Brad Pitt is all business in Irish role

WASHINGTON — Brad Pitt took playing Irish in "The Jersey Boys" this month as a career risk. "I'm playing a Catholic kid from Ireland," Pitt said at the film's Washington screening. "I'm doing something out of character."

Pitt denied there were any bad scenes, "because it's not romance," when co-star in the movie,fid Lea Thompson, was asked if she had any "burning" scenes with Pitt and whether she was at all scared of him. Thompson said she had no "burning" scenes with Pitt.

Mary Kaye Anderson ditched her serious "I'm Irish!" persona for a lighthearted role in "The Jersey Boys." She plays the Irish-born mother of the Jersey Boys who were inspired by Billie Joe Armstrong and Green Day to form their band.

Anderson's character isn't just going to sit there and say, "My kids are going to make it."

The Jersey Boys star Mary Kaye Anderson jokes about her Irishness while filming a scene for the movie Thursday, June 10. She joins a cast that includes John Lloyd Young as Frankie Valli, Vincent Piazza as Nick Massi, Erich Anderson as Tommy DeVito, and Michael Lomenda as Bob Gaudio.

Conference sets focus on children's rights

By Rina Wooly

Public outrage over children's rights is a unifying force in the movement to protect children's rights worldwide. The conference, "International Law and the Rights of Children," is being organized by the University of Iowa's College of Law to bring together experts on children's rights from around the world.

“We must move beyond the legal and political statements that are being made and begin to think about what can be done to protect children’s rights,” said Jennifer Lemish, a law student at the University of Iowa. “We need a more comprehensive approach that involves not only the legal community but also the public and private sectors.”

The conference will feature presentations on a wide range of topics, including child labor, education, and health. Speakers will include legal experts, activists, and representatives from international organizations.

The conference will take place on Friday, March 12, from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. in the Union Bar at 121 College St. in Iowa City. Registration is free, but space is limited. For more information, please visit www.iowalaw.edu/childrensrights.

Clinton’s injury delays summit with Yeltsin

By Robert Burns

WASHINGTON - Clinton answers a reporter’s question as he arrives back at the White House on Sunday after spending two days at Helsinki, Finland, for a summit meeting with Russian President Boris Yeltsin.

Clinton’s state visit to Denmark, scheduled for Friday, is being delayed until July. Clinton told reporters he was held up in the Danish capital because his itinerary was changed again after a meeting with Yeltsin on Saturday. It had been scheduled for Thursday.

The meeting in Helsinki was called as a way to continue discussions about the September meeting of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO) in Brussels, Belgium.

As he entered the Pentagon to meet with Cohen and the military service chiefs, Putin was most interested in “the overall strategic implications of the Yeltsin meeting,” a Defense Department official said.

The move to delay the summit means that Clinton’s trip to Brussels will be postponed until later this year.

Clinton said the move was made necessary by Clinton’s busy schedule and that he would return to Brussels as soon as his health allows.

The meetings will be Thursday and Friday in Helsinki, Finland. Clinton is known to Washington on Wednesday night.

Congress returns land back to Hawaii

By Meli Cox Associated Press

HONOLULU—It’s a simple one-page bill without running water or electricity on a generally dry hillside that runs from the domain of Hilo to the sea on the island of Maui. But for Denise Simpson and her five-year-old daughter, Kaylee, this is the place they call home. Kaylee and her parents just and gather just as Honolulu residents went on strike 100 years ago.

By the end of the year, 125 families will be evicted, leaving 220 acres of land known as Kahuku on the North Shore of Oahu. The land was set aside by Congress in 1921 for Native Hawaiians but never given to them.

Denise Simpson said her 11-year-old daughter, Donna, plans to homeschool her two younger daughters and her 16-year-old son, during the school year. They are being saved by the devices, a trend that runs from mountain top to city center. Everyone eventually will come from the rural areas that need solar power, Moler said; a recent study will provide information on the potential and feasibility of solar energy in Hawaii.

“Hawaiians just want to be there,” said Mo Anua, a 50-year-old woman who has lived on the land for more than 30 years. “They don’t want to go back to the past, culturally and spiritually. This is about going back to the land.”

A recent survey has shown that there are more than 12,000 acres of land in Hawaii that are in disuse. The land was set aside by Congress for Native Hawaiians but never given to them.

“We can’t believe it,” said Monica O’Hara, a 40-year-old woman who has lived on the land for more than 10 years. “We never thought we’d be evicted from our own land.”

Although survey participants mentioned air bags as one of the most positive innovations in the car industry, a recent study concluded that air bags are helping more children than they are hurting. Nine of those were infants. Of the 50 older children, 26 were not wearing seat belts and two were wearing seat belts without shoulder belts, according to Bruce O’Hara, president of the federal Occupational Safety and Health Administration.

“The public has missed the connection. Some are enormously optimistic and favorable view of what air bags are doing for them,” said John Gra- ham, director of the center and a study’s lead author. Of the 28 children killed to date, 10 were in the front seat of the vehicle, 9 were in the back seat, and 2 were in the middle seat, Graham said.

None of those were infants. Of the 50 older children, 26 were not wearing seat belts and two were wearing seat belts without shoulder belts, according to Bruce O’Hara, president of the federal Occupational Safety and Health Administration.

“My husband and I plan to go back and see our grandchildren,” said Sandra Anderson, a 50-year-old woman who has lived on the land for more than 10 years. “We never thought we’d be evicted from our own land.”

By Sandy Shade
Associated Press

DENVER - As estimated 2,500 spectators, jubilant and sor- rowful, watched from a sidewalk near the courthouse plaza today as an -rated man in a white shirt and dark trousers emerged from the courthouse. A federal jury in Oklahoma City recommended a death sentence for Timothy McVeigh, convicted of perpetrating the April 19, 1995, bombing that killed 168 people and injured more than 700 others.

Most spectators were there to support those who have been found guilty in the case and to mourn those who have died. A few were there to hear the verdict of the trial.

The trial, which lasted four months, ended with the jury's decision to recommend the death penalty. The case will now go to U.S. District Judge Richard Matsch, who will make the final decision.

After breaking box-office records and finding itself at the top of the box-offic e chart for three installments of the Star Wars franchise, each successive installment has experienced a decline in box-office revenue, coming to a conclusion with the release of "Return of the Jedi." The final installment saw "Star Wars" gross $36.2 million in its opening weekend. The success of the franchise was not without its challenges, as the creators faced criticism for overexposing the characters. However, the fervor for the series has not waned, with "Return of the Jedi" still drawing crowds to theaters.
