Late-term abortion ban passes House

A 295-136 vote marks the second time the Republican-controlled Congress has moved to ban "partial-birth abortions"

> By David Espo Associated Press

WASHINGTON - In a debate that blended emotion and politics, the House voted by a veto-proof majority on Thursday to ban cer-BY GARRY TRUDEAU (tain late-term abortions.

The 295-136 vote crossed party lines and marked the second time in as many years that the Republican-controlled Congress moved to ban "partial-birth abortions" except in cases in which the mother's life

In the Senate, Majority Leader Trent Lott said he would schedule a springtime debate on the bill, but to override President Clinton's threatened veto. In hours of debate on the House floor, abortion foes sought to capitalize on a recent confession by abortion-rights supporter Ron Fitzsimmons that he had "lied through my teeth" when he said the procedure was performed rarely and only to save the mother's life or to abort malformed fetuses

"We need to pass this bill again and give it to the president," said Rep. Gerald Solomon, R-N.Y. "Give him another chance to do the right thing because the only reason he vetoed it was because of those lies."

The White House responded with a veto threat that said the measure conceded support does not yet exist "contains the same serious flaws" as the identical bill Clinton rejected

Opponents countered that the bill threatened women with a return to the era that preceded the Supreme Court's landmark Roe vs. Wade ruling of 1973 that guaranteed the right to abortion. Rep. Nita Lowey, D-N.Y., said the measure's passage would mark "the first step on the trip to the back alley."

Rohypnol threatens spring break fun

By Jennifer Cassell he Daily Iowan

With spring break less than one week away, UI students will head south where they will find sun, sand, beer - and a higher chance of a run-in with the "date rape drug" Rohypnol.

Rohypnol, a tasteless, odorless, tiny white pill, is produced commercially in Mexico and easily accessible in southern states like Florida and Texas. Potential rapists or thieves may prey on unsuspecting spring break vacationers by slipping them the pill, which begins working in 10 to 15 minutes and puts them in a disoriented state before falling asleep. Paula Laube, director of the Iowa City

Family Planning Center, said because of the large number of students traveling south for spring break, the need for awareness of Rohypnol and its effects is "Just being aware of the availability of the drug in warmer states is knowledge," she said. "And knowledge is protection."

Sgt. Tom Neighbors of the Palm Beach County Sheriff's Office said the use of Rohypnol is so common in Florida that spring break doesn't alarm the officers there anymore than other times of the year. He said the outbreak of a new drug, gamma-hydroxibutyrate (GHB), is starting to replace the use of Rohypnol in some places.

GHB comes in liquid form and, when used with alcohol, increases its effects. GHB used to be sold in health food stores to body builders, but is no longer on the market. Although it is illegal in Florida to sell GHB, it is still legal to use it or possess it. Possession of either GHB or Rohypnol is a third-degree felony.

Neighbors said his department does warn tourists and natives alike about the effects of these drugs, but oftentimes

Breast cancer, date rape and body image are topics scheduled to be covered at a women's health conference, set to take place on April 5.

Today is the last day to register for the conference titled, "In All Ways A Woman: Healthy Choices of the Mind, Body and Spirit for the College Woman." The conference is a collaborative effort between the UI residence halls, the Greek system and the American Cancer Society. It will be held from 9:00 a.m. to 1:00 p.m. in the Triangle Ballroom of the Union.

Organized by UI senior Jennifer Lofdahl, a Resident Assistant, the conference is aimed at providing women with information on a variety of themes and resources.

The main goal of this conference was to provide not only speeches,

Ul senior Jennifer Lofdahl but break-outs (workshops) in the morning to educate on specific themes and tables in the afternoon to let the community know who is there to help them," Lofdahl said.

As a nursing student, Lofdahl has been thinking about organizing a conference like this for about a year. It was in the beginning of January that the conference started to become a reality.

"With the help of the residence halls and their resources, this idea became a reality," Lofdahl said. "I can't explain the community support, either. It's been awesome.'

'2001' author releases latest 'Odyssey'

COLOMBO, Sri Lanka (AP) -Arthur C. Clarke formally released his latest novel, "3001: The Final Odyssey" Thursday in a brief ceremony in the Sri Lankan capital.

Clarke's novel concludes the space epic he began in 1968 with "2001: A Space Odyssey," and his most famous creation, the psy-

Brinkley picks 'honest' Truman as favorite president

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — David Brinkley says that of the 11 presidents he covered in 53 years as a reporter, his favorite was Harry Truman.

"He was the most honest man I have ever known. For a politician, that's saying a lot," Brinkley told about 700 people at a Junior League benefit Wednesday.

And Brinkley made it plain he doesn't think much of President Clinton, although he said he didn't intend to call Clinton "a bore" on national television on election night.

When he went to the White House to apologize, "I said I was sorry I was not polite to him. I didn't take back anything I said," Brinkley said.

Brinkley told also of playing poker with Truman and Winston Churchill en route to Fulton, Mo., where Churchill gave his famous "Iron Curtain" speech in 1946.

'Fargo' Oscar nominees share alma mater

CHARLESTON, W.Va. (AP) -"Fargo" stars Frances McDormand and William H. Macy share more than Oscar nominations for their roles in the Joel and Ethan Coen movie: Both are alumni of little Bethany College

McDormand, who played the calm, pregnant Sheriff Marge Gunderson, has been nominated for Best Actress. Macy has been nominated for Best Supporting Actor for playing Minneapolis car dealer Jerry Lundegaard. McDormand came to the

Talk show host wages war with mouthwash

NEW YORK - Scope is learning a painful lesson: Provoking Rosie O'Donnell can leave a bad taste in your mouth.

With an eager assist from the mouthwash maker's archrival, Listerine, the talk show queen has exacted sweet revenge for a Scope poll that proclaimed O'Donnell one of the nation's least O'Donnell kissable celebrialso to donate $1,000 to For All Kids, an O'Donnell fund for disadvantaged children, each time she kissed someone on her show, probably until May.

The bonanza of publicity hasn't come cheap. Through Thursday, Listerine's parent company said it has donated $151,000.

WASHINGTON — In a dramatic confession, the maker of Chesterfield cigarettes is ready to settle 22 state lawsuits by agreeing to put warning labels on every pack saying smoking is addictive.

The settlement by the Liggett Group would divide $25 million mong the states - plus the potential of millions more from company profits over the next 25 years. It could provide prosecutors with documents that detail industry-wide discussions of cigarette marketing and the dangers of smoking.

Tobacco giant Philip Morris and three other competitors of Liggett, the smallest of the major cigarette makers, won a temporary restraining order Thursday to keep those documents secret for at least 10 competitors, which have more monev to withstand the estimated $500 million in legal costs the industry faces from state litigation and private suits. Indeed, Mississippi's case against Liggett's competitors is set to go to trial June 2.

Nor does the settlement, an enlargement of concessions Liggett initially made with five of the states a year ago, end Liggett's own liability in private suits.

Liggett's move puts more pressure on its competitors - because no tobacco company ever has admitted smoking is addictive. Liggett would place prominent addiction warnings on its cigarettes and advertisements - in addition to the congressionally mandated Surgeon General's health warnings already on cigarette not end litigation against Liggett's said Massachusetts Attorney General Scott Harshbarger.

> Indeed, tobacco foes immediately called the warning labels more ammunition for a Justice Department investigation into whether tobacco executives lied to Congress about addictiveness. Also, it puts pressure on U.S. District Judge William Osteen in North Carolina, who within weeks is scheduled to rule on an industry challenge to new Food and Drug Administration regulations of tobacco.

> "Liggett is prepared to make admissions and disclosures no tobacco company has ever been willing to make," said Matthew Myers of the Campaign for Tobacco-Free to compete in Iowa City

By David Schwartz The Daily Iowan

Saturday morning, athletes from around the state will converge on Iowa City. Many won't even come close to a first-place finish, yet all will walk away winners.

The Iowa Special Olympics comes to the UI Fieldhouse from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. as part of the program's Mid-Winter Tournament. The general public is invited to watch about 1,100 athletes from around Iowa.

Special Olympians, classified as anybody mentally or physically challenged, will be competing in four events: basketball, gymnastics, weightlifting and cheerleading. Pam Wagner, program director for the Special Olympics, said athletes ages 8 and above are allowed to compete.

Every athlete will walk away with some type of award, whether it's a first-place gold medal or a ribbon for an eighth-place finish. But Wagner said it's not extrinsic rewards that motivate Special Olympians.

"It builds pride in themselves for what they've accomplished," Wagner said. "They get to compete against peers of a near-equal ability. Competing outside of the Special Olympics isn't as much fun or self-satisfying."

Perhaps more important than the competition, funded entirely by corporate and individual donations, is the emotional satisfaction the games provide for the athletes, Wagner said.

She said many of the Olympians work low-paying jobs with little peer interaction. By holding competitions year-round, an outlet offering fun and friendship is provided.

However, athletes aren't the only people involved in Special Olympics to benefit from the event. Volunteers, totaling 15,000 statewide, also come away from the weekend with great satisfaction and pride.

"For the athletes, it's the joy of just coming to Special Olympics and competing and being with friends," Wagner said. "And for the volunteers, it's the joy of seeing the ath- contact Lea at (319) 895-0433.

letes just having fun."

Ellie Herman, who coordinates field experience for the College of Education, has been involved in Special Olympics for 25 years. Saturday, she'll be one of the judges for gymnastics.

Herman has been a judge before and said she enjoys helping, "just because they need people." She said the looks on the faces of special athletes and their families is more than enough reason to continue volunteering.

While volunteers may get a kick out of Special Olympics, Wagner and Her-man both realize it's the athletes and their thrilled-just-to-be-competing attitudes which are most rewarding.

"(Special Olympians) are never angry, they don't hold grudges," Wagner said. "They're good people. Whatever they get, you feel it back 100-fold. That's the most rewarding aspect of working for Special Olympics. They remind you of how great life can be.

Bob Elliott has witnessed firsthand the remarkable tale of Special Olympics through his wife, Joey, who has worked extensively with the mentally-challenged.

Tonight, he will be the featured speaker at the "Hawkeye Tailgate Party," a pre-competition banquet held from 6 p.m. to 7 p.m. in the Recreation Building for the Special Olympians.

Elliott, who is speaking at his first Special Olympics despite attending numerous in the past, said he is looking forward to addressing the athletes. When he does, his message will be simple:

"(Special Olympians) are just like our football players," Elliott said. They have goals and aspirations and love to compete. They display sportsmanship and what's good with sports.

"They are exactly like our athletes that's my message."

Wagner said the Special Olympics always is looking for more volunteers. Saturday's positions are filled, but help for April 19 in Cedar Rapids still is being solicited. If you would like to help with Special Olympics, n the early 1980s, the UI developed what is known now as the Unified Program. This program brings a small group of freshman students together each academic year to have the same classes. This helps promote a small-college atmosphere for many of the students in the program.

UI's Unified Program challenged its participants

The administration recently has decided to dump the program. That's a mistake.

Let me start by saying that I have a strong bias on this issue (much stronger than usual!). I am a Teaching Assistant for one of the courses in the Unified Program. Having been a TA in some form or another for seven semesters, the students in the UP are the most participatory I have had.

In many of the classes I've taught, I find it a challenge (occasionally a hardship) to encourage students to participate - they are hesitant to express their opinions when surrounded by > devil's advocate and say something loony to, provoke them to speak their minds. By contrast, the students in the UP are eager to express their views. The familiarity created by having the same classes together seems to make them more other than simply making my job easier. By making students more comfortable with participation, it greatly enhances that aspect of education. Participation compels students to think about their views. When they express their views in class, they open them up to examination and criticism by other students, and that fosters critical thinking in students. This sort of intellectual interaction is beneficial - arguably crucial - for student learning. If the UI is serious about improving undergraduate education, it not only should maintain the UP, it should expand it. As many freshman as possible should be enrolled in a program that enables them to take the same classes together.

This would require more professors to teach more hours, say an increase from six hours a semester to nine. However, a greater teaching load will detract from the amount of hours that can be spent doing research. And at a major research institution like the UI, any proposal that takes away from research time is bound to be met with skepticism, if not outright hostility.

But this gets to one of the fundamental questions of higher education: What is a university for? Should it serve the interests of its students, or those of the faculty and administration? If the answer is the former, then a program which enhances their education should be maintained.

t is even arguably in the best interest of the administration to maintain the Unified Program. They recently took a bit of a beating in the press over the issue of "student contact hours". An Iowa State Legislator revealed that the professors at the UI spend comparatively less time with students than professors at other Iowa institutions. To avoid another public relations blunder, the administration should be hesitant to eliminate a program that brings students into closer contact with their professors.

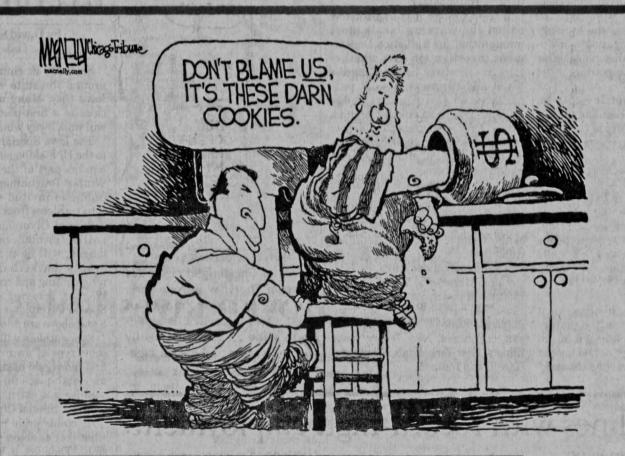

The UP makes the college experience at a large institution more personal and less intimidating for students. It increases their willingness to participate in class, which is crucial to their ability to grapple with challenging ideas and concepts. It should be expanded so as many students as possible can partake of it. By eliminating it, the UI is sending undergraduate education in the wrong

For example, when students have not cleared their UI bills in the middle of the semester, the office of the registrar withdraws their registration. This has a number of implication for the foreign student. First, since the foreign students have F1 students' visas, they become illegal immigrants because their status is anulled. Students may have problems with immigration officials. A student may try to hide from law enforcement officers. The office of the registrar is not tolerant with the foreign students, and hence contributes to the high number of illegal immigrants in Iowa and the Unit-

There are several ways through which the UI can ensure that bills are paid rather than withdrawing a student's registration. Without a solution, the UI will lose students who are unable to complete their studies and to whom the university

One might ask if foreign students deserve such special treatment from the registrar. Does the Ul and the community benefit from the presence of foreign students here? The answer could be yes and

A number of foreign students feel that there are certain areas where they are not "allowed" to work, especially when it is a non-custodial job. There have been occasions when some foreign students responded to advertised jobs like data entry or desk work only to be ignored. part from bringing new and diverse ideas into the classroom that the other students can benefit from, the international students also serve goodwill acting as unofficial ambassadors to the UI from their countries of origin. It is these students who could recommend the institution to would-be applicants. But these recommendations will depend mainly on the kind of treatment they get from the administration.

Another area where most international students feel isolated and "unwanted" is getting accommodations outside the university housing. There have been cases where foreign students have responded advertisements for vacant houses, and the response will be that the unit is occupied, yet one still sees the same house being advertised.

Can the UI also step in to help those living in Hawkeye Court family housing units who currently are facing transportation and child-schooling problems? It is true that the majority of the students will go away after two to four years, but their children deserve to learn in some of the good schools in their neighborhood, even though they are not direct taxpayers.

There is need for closer working ties between the international students and the UI administration. Perhaps a special foreign student fireside chat between the students and UI President Mary Sue Coleman to discuss their experiences and feelings. This will make most students feel as if they belong to the UI, rather than feel as if they are outside the

As an historical institution of learning, the UI should be at the forefront of the policy "Our strength lies in our diversity." Let us not make the international students feel isolated. There is a lot to be learned from them since they come from different cultural backgrounds. Solving the drinking problem means hard decisions

To the Editor:

Did you know that college students drink an estimated four billion cans of beer each year? This is a total of 430 gallons — enough to fill an Olympic-sized pool at every college and university in the country. And students spend an average of $5.5 billion on alcohol annually (or, an average of $466 per student), which is more than many spend on books, coffee, soda, juice and milk combined. And in Iowa City, excessive as much of a tradition for the UI as pulling allnighters before a big test.

Movies, television shows and beer commercials portray youthful drinking as an acceptable way for students to fit in and be popular. We have all seen the women portrayed sexually, the cute frogs or Dick's Millertime used to win us over. In addition, college newspapers are often predominantly paid for by alcohol-related advertising. But for some, along with this "popularity and acceptance" comes many hazards. The fact is that as many as 360,000 of the nation's 12 million undergraduates will die as a result of alcohol abuse, according to a study by Henry Wechsler in the Journal of the American Medical Association. (Former UI student) Matthew Garofalo was just he latest of many who will needlessly die from alcohol. Alcohol is also a najor factor in other campus problems, such as violent crimes, suicides, fatal car crashes, rapes, sexual assaults and sexually transmitted diseases, including AIDS, according to a study by the Harvard University School of Public Health. We have been extremely lucky under this plague.

As students come back to campus, you will most likely hear massive accounts of binge drinking all over the nation at wild parties. However, April is Alcohol Awareness Month, and this must stop. In January 1996, there was a public forum to address this, but I have yet to see any real impact as a student, President Coleman, and I doubt that given typical administrative spending, the $830,000 grant will do any good without considerable student

As I am sure that you are aware, this is an important topic and one that ultimately affects us all. I urge the administration to mandate that all residence halls be alcohol-free, and all universityaffiliated events, including those held in Greek houses, be alcohol-free. I

Solving the drinking problem means hard decisions

To the Editor:

Did you know that college students drink an estimated four billion cans of beer each year? This is a total of 430 gallons — enough to fill an Olympic-sized pool at every college and university in the country. And students spend an werage of $5.5 billion on alcohol annually (or, an average of $466 per student), which is more than many spend on books, coffee, soda, juice and milk comdrinking and bar hopping has become as much of a tradition for the UI as pulling allnighters before a big test. Movies, television shows and beer commercials portray youthful drinking as an acceptable way for students to fit in and be popular. We have all seen the women portrayed sexually, the cute frogs or Dick's Millertime used to win us over. In addition, college newspapers are often predominantly paid for by alcohol-related advertising. But for some, along with this "popularity and acceptance" comes many hazards. The fact is that as many as 360,000 of the nation's 12 million undergraduates will die as a result of alcohol abuse, according to a study by Henry Wechsler in the Journal of the American Medical Association. (Former UI student) Matthew Garofalo was just the latest of many who will needlessly die from alcohol. Alcohol is also a major factor in other campus problems, such as violent crimes, suicides, fatal car crashes, rapes, sexual assaults and sexually transmitted diseases, including AIDS, according to a study by the Harvard University School of Public Health. We have been extremely lucky under this plague. As students come back to campus, you will most likely hear massive accounts of binge drinking all over the nation at wild parties. However, April is Alcohol Awareness Month, and this must stop. In January 1996, there was a public forum to address this, but I have yet to see any real impact as a student, President Coleman, and I doubt that given typical administrative spending, the $830,000 grant will do any good without considerable student

As I am sure that you are aware, this is an important topic and one that ultimately affects us all. I urge the administration to mandate that all residence affiliated events, including those held in Greek houses, be alcohol-free. I push the tavern community to voluntarily eliminate advertising that promotes heavy and daily drinking among students with penny and nickel drink nights, ladies' nights, "crawls," all-youcan-drink specials or 21 pitchers for 21 bucks in The Daily Iowan. I ask the Iowa City police to lobby the state for more money to increase patrols and for the City Council to revoke or hold liquor licenses for repeat tavern violators. I implore the Legislature to reconsider leaving the Blood Alcohol Content at .10 and instead adopt zero-tolerance laws. Finally, I urge the students to think before they drink

Inevitably, we will all drink at one point or another. However, for each action there is a reaction, and in this case, a consequence that must be continually addressed.

Levine misinformed on Conrad's novella

To the Editor:

Gary Levine's column of March 10 ("Dealing with racism in art from the past") contains a thoughtful and historically conscious assessment of Shakespeare's "The Merchant of Venice." He is additionally to be commended for accomplishing this within the structures of a newspaper column, certainly not the ideal forum for careful analysis

His more facile — and less wellinformed — comments on Conrad's "Heart of Darkness" are another story entirely. Tacked on as it is to the end of Mr. Levine's column, one can understand how any critic might be led to overgeneralize or reduce what is really a much more complex argument. That is a poor excuse, however, for the misrepresentations and outright misreadings that Mr. Levine offers in his critique of Conrad's novella.

As the strictures of letters to the editor are even more severe than those of the columnist, I will limit my response to two points: Mr. Levine's misinformed assumption that only "(white male) critics have ... mounted a defense" of "Heart of Darkness"; and his assertion that "the book continually links 'savagery' to 'blackness.' '

As regards the former point, any Conrad criticism written by women and men of color dating back to the

You can take your opinion and 1940s (with examples dating back to the 1890s), represents various critical positions and ranges widely from admiration to dismissal. Very few of these examples are as contemptuous of Conrad as Achebe's essay ("An Image of Africa" is Mr. Levine's referent here, I believe), and many, including the Caribbean novelist Wilson Harris, the African Ngugi wa Thiong'o, and UI Professor Peter Nazareth, credit Conrad with having worked an inspiration to writers of the postcolonial world. A good place for Mr. Levine to begin to read such Conrad criticism and spare his future students the inadequacies of his current perspective is in "Joseph Conrad: Third World" (and even — egads! — non-males). As a Conrad scholar of color myself, all I can do beyond this is to ask Mr. Levine to stop painting us all with the same (white-dipped) brush, and be a little more careful with his critical palette.

Mr. Levine's later assertion, regarding the supposed synonymity of "savagery" and "blackness" in the novella, is tougher for me to address here because of space and other limitations (it would no doubt be awkward of me here to cite passages from "Heart of Darkness"). But I can make this claim, which I believe any careful reading of Conrad's novella will bear out: "Heart of Darkness" is a text very much steeped in its own contradictions, regarding both the evils of institutionalized racism in the imperialist project and its own complicity with those evils. It doesn't take a Conrad scholar to read how thoroughly ambivalent narrator Marlow (and by extension, Conrad himself) is (are) about their various experiences in the text; nor is more than a careful read required to realize that "Heart of Darkness" doesn't offer any single, simple position on race and imperialism, and if anything, would be less guilty of doing so than, say Achebe's "Things Fall

Mr. Levine is, finally, all too correct in his warning that texts such as "The Merchant of Venice" and "Heart of Darkness" do not "teach themselves." There are many in our community who will never read the works themselves, and will be satisfied with reading what is said about them by teachers or columnists. For the sake of those people and in the name of responsibility, Mr. Levine needs to be more careful with his scholarship in both of his occupations.

Clinton, Yeltsin begin summit

By Terence Hunt Associated Press

HELSINKI, Finland - Both on the mend, President Clinton and Boris Yeltsin opened talks Thursday struggling to calm tensions in the thorniest East-West dispute since the Cold War. Changing his tone from tough rhetoric, Yeltsin hoped for "compromises" while Clinton offered arms concessions.

Clinton said he was encouraged by the Russian president's conciliatory remarks - after Yeltsin's remark last Friday that this would be his "most difficult" summit ever with an American president. "I think we'll work something out," Clinton said. "I hope we will."

The two leaders were deadlocked over the U.S.-led move to expand NATO eastward toward Russia's borders. "We're going to disagree on NATO enlargement," said Sandy ing van. He smiled but looked constructive approaches and com-Berger, Clinton's national security

People drugged with Rohypnol may experience symptoms such as nausea, dizziness, hot and cold flashes and difficulty speaking. Lowered inhibitions and a relaxed drunken state also are signals that someone has been drugged with Rohypnol. The victim has a loss of memory for a period of eight to 10

Nicole Cook, education director of the Rape Victim Advocacy Program, said it's important for vacationing students to remember Rohypnol is found in all different parts of the country and isn't limited to only southern states. She said students vacationing in places like Colorado also should be concerned with the possibility of being drugged with Rohypnol.

The first case of Rohypnol use occurred in 1993 in southern Flori-

Over the past two years, law enforcement agents have cracked down on the drug in Miami. One case resulted in the seizure of 11,000 doses of the date rape drug.

While Neighbors said crackdowns on these drugs are helpful, they often are met with a backlash of different drugs in other areas.

"It's like sticking your finger in the dike to stop a leak," he said. "I like to see the huge seizures, but it doesn't stop the usage."

Laube said students should be very careful about what they drink and who they accept drinks from, especially while away from home. She said staying close to friends and avoiding being left alone with strangers are two good ways to reduce the chances of encountering "the forget pill."

UI senior April Privett said she is aware of Rohypnol because one of her friends believes she was drugged in a downtown Iowa City bar. The Hawkeyes, who entered the meet as underdogs to No. 1 Oklahoma State, used a flurry of pins, technical falls and major decisions to build a 40.5-27.5 lead over the second-place Cowboys after one day of competition, but Cowboy coach John Smith is not conceding the title to the Hawkeyes by any means.

CEDAR FALLS - It didn't seem to matter how Iowa 190-pounder Lee Fullhart felt Thursday.

Fullhart looked fine during his NCAA Championships first-round match, but said he didn't feel quite right. Fullhart managed to pin Boise State's Rusty Cook in five minutes, 45 seconds.

"I felt pretty sluggish," said Fullhart, a sophomore from Decorah. "I think I wound myself up too much, I didn't relax."

Fullhart's teammates gave him a good reason to be overly excited. The Hawkeyes won nine of 10 first-round matches, with four ending in pins. After Thursday's first session, Iowa

Every player on the Connecticut women's basketball team lists her biggest disappointment of the 1995-96 season as an overtime loss to Tennessee in last year's Final Four. If the Huskies have it their way, they will get a chance for revenge on the Volunteers Monday night at 8 p.m. in the Midwest Regional Championship at Carver-Hawkeye Arena. But before the showdown can take place, No. 1 seed Connecticut (32-0) must get past 4th-seeded Illinois (24-7), and third-seeded Tennessee (25-10) will have to knock off No. 2 Colorado (23-8). Play begins Saturday night at 7 p.m. at Carver-Hawkeye Arena. The Huskies are coming off a 73-59 win over Iowa Monday in the NCAA second round. The Hawkeyes beat Illinois in the championship game of the Big Ten tournament to advance to the NCAAs, but now they must watch from the stands as their rivals go at it on their home court. "I know who the other teams are, but I haven't paid that much attention," Auriemma said. "I don't think it's time to do that. The assistant coaches are doing that, but I don't like to do that. I want all my thoughts to be on Illinois and if we're successful, then I'll think about whoever we're playing on Monday." Connecticut has been led all season by All-American center Kara Wolters. Throughout her career, the senior has played her best games in the tournament, and has been named to seven of ment teams. Her career postseason averages are 18.6 points, 6.5 rebounds and 2.9 blocks per game. "If we win the national championship and go undefeated this year and she's the MVP of the Final Four, then Kara's in the hall of fame,"

MINNESOTA 90, CLEMSON 84

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) - The Golden Goohers were extended into a second overtime before Bobby Jackson scored five straight points and finshed with a career-high 36 for top-seeded Minnesota

Jackson made a 3-pointer with 3:55 left and a fadeaway jumper in the lane with 42 seconds remaining in the second OT to finally give the Gophers (30-3) control of the game. Sam Jacobson matched his career best with 29 points.

Clemson (23-10) got 22 points from Greg Buckner. The fourth-seeded Tigers rallied after trailing by 15 in the first half, but failed to make a field goal in the second overtime. They also held a six-point lead

The trip to the regional finals will be just the second in school history for Minnesota.

UTAH 82, STANFORD 77

SAN JOSE, Calif. (AP) — With its best player fouled out and its energy sapped by a remarkable Stanford comeback, Utah turned to a pair of unlikely heroes to salvage an overtime win in the NCAA West Hanno Mottola, a freshman from Finland, broke the final tie and Andre Miller had five points in overtime as Utah — which led by as many as 16 points in the first half - held on for a 82-77 victory.

Mottola hit a short jumper and followed seconds later with a free throw to give Utah a 76-73 lead in the overtime. Miller added three more free throws as the Lites - whose leader, All-American Keith Van Horn, watched from the bench — scored their final seven points at the foul line.

Van Horn had fouled out early in the overtime after scoring 25 points and grabbing 14 rebounds.

KENTUCKY 83, ST. JOE'S 68

SAN JOSE, Calif. (AP) — Defending NCAA champion Kentucky, bigger, quicker and deeper, ganged up on tiny St. Joseph's with a swarming press to race to an 83-68 victory Thursday night and a matchup against Utah for a berth in the Final Four.

Even with two of its best swingmen on the bench Derek Anderson in uniform but out for the year, and Allen Edwards with a cast on his foot - Kentucky ran a relentless attack from the start. That reduced pesky St. Joe's to a team with no hope of an upset in

When All-America Ron Mercer stole a ball, slashed toward the hoop, and spun 360 degrees for a layup that gave Kentucky a 20-10 lead, it was an early sign the Wildcats (33-4) would have no trouble. Mercer, who finished with 19 points, simply couldn't

St. Joe's (26-7) tried to slow the tempo, working the ball around while looking for an open shot, but still trailed 39-27 at halftime with 38 percent shooting. The same strategy in the second half kept the score down but failed to help the Hawks get closer than 72-64 with 3:25 left.

UCLA 74, IOWA STATE 73

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Cameron Dollar's 4-foot ank shot with 1.9 seconds left after he dribbled the ength of the floor lifted UCLA past lowa State 74-73 in overtime Thursday night.

The Bruins, winners of 12 in a row, will play topseeded Minnesota in Saturday's NCAA Midwest legional final. The Golden Gophers beat Clemson 90-

Dollar's shot came after Shawn Bankhead put Iowa State ahead 73-72 with 12.5 seconds left off an inbounds play.

lowa State, trying to set up a final shot with a long bass, was guilty of a five-second violation on its final ossession, and UCLA ran out the clock. Iowa State's Dedric Willoughby sent the game into overtime with 17 seconds left with his eighth 3-pointer of the game. Dollar, who hit two buckets to give UCLA a 64-61 lead with 34.7 seconds left, traveled as the Bruins worked for a shot.

Baseball

This Week: After a month's worth of traveling and prepara tion, the Iowa baseball team kick off the 1997 Big Ten Conference season with yet another road trij - a four-game series at Ohio State. The Hawkeyes and Buck eyes are scheduled to play once today, twice Saturday and once

Game Notes: If last weekend's split in Springfield, Mo., is any indication, the Hawkeyes (2-7) wil need to rely on their pitching and defense to hang with Ohio State (10-4). Iowa tallied only one hit in a loss to Southwest Missouri State. .. Sophomore Brian Mitchell, one o only two Hawkeyes batting over 300, is leading all regular starter with a .324 average and has team highs of four home runs and 15

Player's comments: "I think we're definitely more prepared than we were last year," junio itcher Jeremy Meccage said of the Big Ten season opener. "We've been improving with each weekend, and we just need the hitting to come around with the pitching and the Coach's comments: "It's for real now. They all count from here, Iowa coach Duane Banks said. Next Week: Iowa travels to Mis souri for a pair of mid-week games then heads to Northwestern for a four-game weekend series.

than second-place Minnesota. "When you watch your teammates wrestle, and we had a good first round, it's just hard to sit still," Fullhart said. In his second-round match against Arizona State's Danny Faqir, Fullhart said he felt more refreshed. His condition may have changed, but the result was similar. Fullhart (23-4) again dominated his opponent, defeating Faqir by major decision, 14-4.

Had the match lasted a little longer. Fullhart may have had his second pin of the day. Fullhart put Faqir on his back for the last 15 seconds of the final period, but could not quite expose both shoulder blades to the mat.

"If I had maybe 10 more seconds, I might have had him," Fullhart said. "It was a matter of time, and I didn't have time."

Iowa coach Dan Gable said Fullhart was not the only Hawkeye to get too anxious before his first

"I think maybe the guys warmed up a little bit too early and they got a little tired," Gable said. "It seemed like 167, 177, 190 and heavyweight, even though we won three of the four, got a little bit

It was critical for Fullhart to control his emotions and focus on a victory in round two. Iowa had lost two matches in a row prior to Fullhart's win over Fagir. 167-pounder Mike Uker lost a heartbreaker to Penn's Brandon Slay and Tony Ersland lost to West Virginia's John Koss at 177.

At that point, Fullhart knew his team needed a lift.

"It was a little motivation for me because we've got to keep our momentum going," said Fullhart, the fifth seed at 190. "It's going to be very close race for the team championship."

A successful day looked even better for Fullhart when Michigan State's Brian Picklo was upset in first-round action by North Carolina's Scott Stay. Picklo was seeded one spot higher than Fullhart. Fullhart and Stay will meet today in the tournament's quarterfinals, but don't expect Fullhart to look past his unseeded opponent. "I don't know if you can say it's easier because (Stay) had to beat Picklo," Fullhart said. "The guy that beat Picklo can't be too bad." Top-ranked Jason Robison of Edinboro is in Fullhart's bracket and the two could meet in the semifinals. In the opposite division is defending champion John Kading of Oklahoma and Minnesota's Fullhart this season.

Iowa leads the three-day tournament with 40.5 points, 13 more than Oklahoma State and 16 more than Minnesota weekend, the No. 6 rated Hawkeyes travel to Sacramento to compete in the Cal-State Sacramento Capital Classic today through Sunday. Iowa will enter Tourney Notes: Twelve teams, including three other USA Today/NFCA Top 25 squads, will compete in the tournament ... This is Iowa's third straight appearance. Last season Iowa lost in the finals to Cal-State, 1-0 ... One tourney opponent Iowa has already faced is Toledo. The Hawkeyes blasted Toledo in a doubleheader last month in Arizona,

Coach's Comments: "The trip to California will be the team's final tune-up before the Big Ten season starts," Coach Gayle Blevins said. "We are beginning to see a more consistent effort

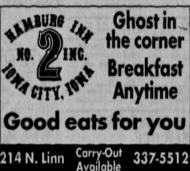

Next Week: The Hawkeyes will head to Hayward, Calif., to play a doubleheader against Western Oregon State on Mar. 24th. Men aim for to get back at Buckeyes

By Chris James The Daily Iowan

The second season begins this Saturday for the Iowa men's gymnastics team when the Hawkeyes travel to Minneapolis for the 1997 Big Ten Men's Gymnastics Champi-

Iowa head coach Tom Dunn said it's time to forget about the eight warm-up meets.

"We've had a pretty solid season," Dunn said. "But once the conference and regional meets start you want to be at your best.

"I think we still have some little things to work on but we're a very soild team that is going to have be reckoned with in the post season."

Iowa is currently ranked No. 4 in the nation and finished the regular season 4-2 in dual meets. Iowa's Big Ten rival Ohio State has been the top ranked team in the nation for the whole year.

There are four teams currently ranked in the nation's top ten from the Big Ten. Along with the Hawkeyes and Buckeyes, Penn State is ranked No. 6 and Illinois is
