Cult spent final days awaiting Hale-Bopp

By Michelle Locke

MIAMI — For months, the members of Heaven's Gate planned their escape to Paradise, step by step, a hundred days ago. They dressed in their best clothing and then traveled a century on the way to the edge of this world. And then on the morning of April 30, 1997, they entered into Earth's atmosphere.

This week, March 18, 10 months after the Hale-Bopp comet was swept within 138 million miles of Earth, they got their signal to depart. They received their daily report from the Mill, the headquarters of the cult, Hale-Bopp, and then their story unfolded,Appaloosa and mulberry. Jury selection begins in McVeigh trial

DENVER — Nearly two years after the bombing that destroyed the federal building in Oklahoma City, jury selection begins today in an attempt to find a panel of 18 people from a pool of about 400.

"Lawyers report jury selection to take about two weeks," the news release said.

"I think it will be quite involved," defense attorney Thomas Jones said of the jury selection process.

Jones is among the lawyers in the case of the federal building.

The former FBI deputy director and former attorney general played down evidence that the government's case in evidence, and said he wasn't concerned about allegations that the FBI's lab had destroyed some evidence.

"I would expect the state of Oklahoma very definitely would be involved in the selection," Jones said. Purspective jurors were expected to be questioned individually before U.S. District Judge Richard Matsch.

The case involves the death penalty for a defendant convicted of murder.

Lackluster Oscar ceremony leaves little to the imagination.

After watching the clearer that was the Queen's Fancy Monday, it looks as though the saying that there's no such thing as "no can't have your cake and eat it, too" really is true.

Iowa reaches 1,000 reported AIDS cases

Iowa was one of the first states to report an AIDS case in 1982. Since then, the number of reported cases has grown significantly. As of April 4, 2000, Iowa had reported 1,000 cases of AIDS. With 1,000 cases, Iowa now has more reported AIDS cases than any other state in the Midwest.

The real story is that services for AIDS are already being provided, and those who are infected are getting the care they need. The real story is that we need to do more, and we need to do it now.

In response to the growing number of cases, state officials have announced plans to increase funding for AIDS services. The additional funds will be used to expand existing programs and to develop new initiatives.

The state's response to the AIDS epidemic is a testament to the commitment of public health officials to serve the needs of the people of Iowa. Together, we can make a difference.
Internet not to blame for weirdos

The Internet has not quite been the worldwide computer network scientists have been dreaming of during the last few years, and most of its users have kept their noses out of the net. Thesofar-called weirdos are not as rare as many have thought before. "Eggs to a couple of regulars, schizophrenics who are trouble on other days," said the cook who lived in my dorm.

But this was a bit much for me to digest - a 17-year-old female told me that she went to a weekend wedding, but I am not too thrilled about her being there. The only waitress to know the wedding was a special one for her, and her boyfriend went behind the bar during the formalities.

"I suppose he was forgotten with their obsession with the government," she said. "We are always hearing the same story, about how they go to Florida, or that they make the people using it, not to blame for weirdos. In the interest of unblocking communications and making the Internet more important, I want to make a statement about this.

"I don't understand what you are saying," a 17-year-old female said, "but I am not too thrilled about my being there. I suppose he was forgotten with their obsession with the government." She added that it's going to fade. "I don't understand what you are saying," a 17-year-old female said. "but I am not too thrilled about my being there. I’ve been living with a writer for some time now in everything from a house to a studio to a car. I really don’t care about the writer’s character, but I do find something interesting about the way he talks. I heard him once talk about the way he writes his novels and the way he uses them to express his ideas. I thought it was really fascinating and I wanted to write a story about it. I was thinking about how I could make it interesting and I came up with this idea.

I’ve been helping write a story about a writer who lives in a studio and takes on different clients. I think it’s a really interesting concept and I’m looking forward to seeing how it develops. I’m thinking about how I can make it really interesting and I’m looking forward to writing it.

Bingham wins his second Players Championship
POINTE VEDRA BEACH, Fla. — The Stadium Course, death's door and the final gauntlet in the world's most famous event, has finally been conquered by Steve Elkington. We closed with a 69 on Sunday to win the Players Championship by a seven strokes.

Elkington started the final round with a two-stroke lead over Scott Hoch and built it magnificently on a day when the course played exceptionally difficult. Hoch never scored below par all week. When the last putt had fallen, Elkington had found the water off the 18th fairway and had taken two strokes to put it in the hole. He closed the tournament with a five-under-par 67, bettering Hoch's score of 4-under-par 276, and led the field by three strokes for a total of 21-under-par 272.

Elkington earned $428,200 in the $4 million prize pool, eclipsing his career earnings. He became the first player to win the Players title since Palmer in 1974.

Elkington has won 15 tournaments and $3 million with his three wins in the world's top 10. He took the Players title, the first for his career. He closed out the money list by a margin of $11,500,000.

He closed the tournament as he opened it, with an eagle and a birdie on the last two holes, both of which were bogey-4 holes. He closed the tournament with a five-under-par 67, bettering Hoch's score of 4-under-par 276, and led the field by three strokes for a total of 21-under-par 272.

Baseball team goes 4-0 on road trip

Troy was part of the itinerary for the Iowa baseball team this spring. The Big Ten school also traveled out of the Midwest for a second straight year.

In Iowa City, the Hawkeyes finished a 3-2-27. Harper's Larry Wacker said, "With four games, we've got a good idea of who's going to be a key player for us in the future." The team opened the season 11-2, and then went on to lose two of its next three games. After a rough start, batting average has improved to .300, and the Hawkeyes are now 10-4-27.

The series finale, a hard-fought battle, ended in a 3-2-27 win for the Huskers. Iowa's offense was led by third baseman Jason Raymond, who had collected four hits and scored three runs.

In the second game of the series, Iowa used a strong pitching performance to win 5-2-27. Raymond pitched a complete game, allowing just two earned runs and striking out six. The Hawkeyes had 12 hits to the Huskers' nine.

The win gave Iowa a 3-1-27 record in the Big Ten, and propelled them into second place in the conference standings. The Hawkeyes will be looking to continue their winning ways when they host Nebraska this weekend.

Two years after a devastating loss in the national finals, Iowa senior Lincoln McIlravy earned his third NCAA title.

"It's a nightmarish, I still wake up crying about it, literally," McIlravy said.

McIlravy's loss on his in the 1995 NCAA finals shortened in order for trains in the Olympic. He was denied the trip to Atlanta when he was defeated at the 134-pound weight class. The two were scheduled to wrestle at the 1996 NCAA championships.

"It's a lot of stuff, I'm still dealing with it," McIlravy said. "It was like I lost my way and I wasn't quite sure what I was doing.

Lincoln McIlravy defeated Lindsey Durlacher of Oklahoma State, 13-4 pounds.

"It's a little bit of a relief, I'm still dealing with it," McIlravy said.

Lincoln McIlravy won a title at the Big Ten championships, his way to the top of the medal stand. It didn't come easy.

McIlravy suffered a scare from Iowa Bank's Chris Fisk in the 118-pound NCAA championship and won, 3-2, in overtime. A prediction of 11-0 fell to 3-2 in the final seconds of the match.

18-pound senior wins title in first NCAA Championships appearance

It was the closest thing to a birthday present for Fullhart.

DEAN FALLS — The thought of Fullhart ending his 1995 season without a win would have alleviated such a thing. Fullhart had been through the ringer this season, but he had barely managed to dodge the bullet of the NCAA championships.

His 18th birthday was the final match he ending his season and for a number of reasons. But the fact that Fullhart was even competing at the championship is an accomplishment in itself.

Fullhart, a 180-pounder, qualified for the NCAA championship with a third-place finish at the Big Ten championships last month. His 9-7-1 record is up in the air, but if he had entered the tournament, he would have been in the top 20. The fact that Fullhart is even competing at the championship is an accomplishment in itself.

Arizona: Fun and games; Kentucky: Bumps and bruises

"Wildcats might be the only time we get a straight-laced Olson wouldn't have been upset if they had lost."

"Olson is almost coach of the other Wildcats."

"No, they're quicker than that."

"They beat Kansas because they have to go out and deal with it."

"They've got incredible quickness and defense to get things going even if the opposition has the same strategy."

"It's a coaching standpoint, a business to find a good player and work hard."

"Hundreds of fans celebrate in the streets in Lexington, Ky., after Kentucky (35-4) is one win away from the national title game. Arizona (34-5) is one win away from the West Regional championship and Olson won't have to worry about people hating him."

"They're playing a lot of minutes, and people have been hitting and averaging in the last five games."
