Oklahoma City bombing suspect Timothy McVeigh listens to the cross examination of Lori Fortier by his defense attorney Stephen Jones, right, in this courtroom drawing by CBS News artist Pat Lopez Wednesday.

By Michael Fleeman Associated Press

DENVER - The woman who testified Timothy McVeigh confided his plans to blow up the Oklahoma City federal building was portrayed Wednesday as a drug-using liar truck for maximum destruction. who changed her story to save her own skin and make a buck.

In a persistent cross-examination of Lori Fortier, McVeigh attorney Stephen Jones sought not only to discredit one of the government's star witnesses but to suggest she shared blame in the deadliest terrorist attack on U.S. soil.

"If your testimony is accurate, all you had to do to prevent the deaths think McVeigh was involved. of 168 people was pick up a telephone?" Jones asked.

The 24-year-old wife of one of McVeigh's Army buddies acknowledged in a soft voice that after the bombing she lied to friends, family and the FBI by saying she didn't

Through his leading questions, Jones suggested that Fortier and her husband, Michael Fortier, changed their stories after they learned co-defendant Terry Nichols was arrested and they feared they

years in prison. "Mrs. Fortier, would you agree with me that you either made false statements to the Federal Bureau of Investigation ... or you're making false statements to this jury of strangers?" Jones asked.

The question was quickly disallowed

At Jones' request, Fortier read aloud a news release she and her husband issued shortly after McVeigh's arrest, in which she says McVeigh was "crucified" by the media and that there's "no way that he was responsible for this crime."

You were not distancing yourself from Mr. McVeigh, were you?" Jones asked.

"No," Fortier said.

McVeigh, who could get the death penalty if convicted of murder and conspiracy in the April 19, 1995, bombing, stared intently at Fortier, leaning back in his chair with his hands folded in front of him.

Much of the attack on Fortier focused on her acknowledged drug use. She said she smoked pot and used methamphetamines, or speed, since she was a teen-ager, with her drug use accelerating in the weeks before the bombing

She admitted taking speed in the days prior to some of the most important dates of her testimony, including the days she says McVeigh revealed his bombing plans in the living room of the Fortiers' Kingman, Ariz., trailer.

As the chilled Iowa air finally begins to thaw, motorcycles are making their presence felt in I.C.

By Brendan Brown The Daily Iowan

As spring overtakes Iowa City, area bikers are revving up for another season of freedom-filled rides

- but with safety tips just under their helmets. As of April 1, 267 students had registered their motorcycles with the UI Department of Parking and Transportation. In recent weeks there has been an increase in registration applications, according to the department.

UI senior Randall McNaughton said he commutes to class from Davenport and loves to be able to use his bike to make the trip. He said he brought his motorcycle out of storage in mid-February and plans to ride it exclusively for as long as possible.

"My truck probably hates me in the summer," he said. "I ride a motorcycle because when I ride, I feel really free, like I don't have any worries. It's an elated feeling."

Many motorcycle riders cited convenience as the main reason they ride on campus. UI junior Tony Delancy said riding his bike helps him deal with getting around downtown.

"There's a lot of parking close to classes. It's quick and easy to get around," he said.

The freedom of movement attached to motorcycles is not limited to the practicality of parking.

UI senior Shaun Dolan said the best thing about owning a motorcycle is taking off on trips out of town.

"They're just fun to ride," he said. "When it's warm anywhere in the countryside is cool. I don't like riding around the city as much.'

McNaughton said he is planning a 5,000-mile motorcycle trip this summer, heading first to Oklahoma for his high school reunion before heading west to California. Facing such a long trip, there are safety issues McNaughton has been addressing.

Motorcycle Safety Tips

WEAR THE RIGHT GEAR Choose an approved helmet that meets U.S. Department of Transportation (DOT) and state standards ■ Wear face or eye protection

Wear boots or shoes; they should be high and sturdy enough to cover ankles and give them support

KNOW YOUR MOTORCYCLE

Make sure your motorcycle fits you; your feet should reach the ground while you are seated on the cycle

Be familiar with the motorcycle controls
 Check the motorcycle before every ride

Keep it in safe riding condition between rides

Avoid add-ons and modifications that make your cycle harder to handle

KNOW YOUR RESPONSIBILITIE

Be visible — wear proper clothing, use your headlight, ride in the best lane position Communicate your intentions — use the proper signals, brake light and lane position

NEW YORK - The closet-exiting episode of "Ellen" was more than a ground-breaking moment in television history. It was grounds for celebration Wednesday for those who held parties across the country.

The parties came after months of will-she-or-won't-she reports about both Ellen DeGeneres and her sitcom character, Ellen Morgan, who now becomes the first homosexual leading character in a television series.

Chelsea Clinton chooses Stanford for college career

By Sandra Sobieraj Associated Press

WASHINGTON - Ending months of speculation and rumor, Chelsea Clinton chose Stanford University as her next home, putting 3,000 miles between her and the iron gates on Pennsylvania Avenue. "Planes run out there and phones work out there. E-mail works out there, so we'll be all right," President Clinton sighed.

The first couple's only child announced Wednesday in a singlesentence statement from Mom's press office that she would enroll at Stanford next fall.

"I'm just grateful this day has come," said first lady Hillary Rodham Clinton after being questioned almost daily about Chelsea's pick. "I think she wanted to branch out and be her own person ... make her own mark in the world."

The elite California university, with its sunny campus in the foothills south of San Francisco, had received 16,840 applications for just 1,610 freshman slots.

Chelsea, 17, toured the missionstyled campus with her mother last September and returned for a final look by herself only last weekend. Its world-class medical school may have been irresistible to the aspiring doctor; wind surfing classes on the San Francisco Bay could be a tempting side dish.

As a freshman, she will live in a

Tuition, books, room and board will set the Clintons back more than $31,000 a year, and they are unlikely to get a break. While Chelsea is known as an exceptional student at Washington's private Sidwell Friends School and was one of only 15,000 students nationwide to qualify as a National Merit semifinalist, Stanford scholarships are reserved for low-income students and athletic recruits.

The president's proposed "HOPE scholarship," a $1,500 per year tax credit for college tuition, would do little to dent the bill - even if his $200,000 salary didn't disqualify him.

In keeping with the strict zone of privacy kept around the president's daughter, aides refused to elaborate on the decision that was kept top secret to the end. Stanford president Gerhard Casper received word from the White House in a late-night call Tuesday.

In a brief statement, the university said it is pleased to welcome Chelsea but was limiting comment "because she will be, from our point of view and in every way possible, a regular Stanford student

"Stanford is a place where people like that can fit in," said Ian Rhodes, a senior earth-systems major. He worried, though, about her Secret Service detail: "I feel sorry for Chelsea; she can't skip any of those early-morning classes if they're always with her."

Clinton's political aides suggested that the president will now travel even more to California - a boon to Democratic candidates, possibly including old Clinton pal Leon Panetta, in the state's 1998 gubernatorial race.

Chelsea had her pick of Ivy League and other top schools, including Dad's alma mater, Georgetown, just three miles from the White House.

False rape charges may lead to expulsion of West Point cadet

By Dana Scott Associated Press

WEST POINT, N.Y. - A recommendation to expel a woman from West Point who was accused of twice bringing unfounded rape charges will "have a chilling effect on any female cadet at the academy," her lawyer said.

An Army investigator recommended Tuesday that Su Jin Col-lier, 19, be expelled from the military academy for lying and having consensual sex with a cadet while on campus, both violations of school regulations. The recommendation came after the investigator found Collier guilty of charges at an administrative hearing. He also recommended suspension for the male cadet, who was found guilty of having consensual sex while on campus. The length of the suspension was not specified. "Cadet Collier was raped on November 13, 1996, and she was raped again today by this institution," her attorney, Alen Beerman, told reporters. "Su Jin started this in order to expose the conditions here at West Point."

Collier, a second-year cadet from El Paso, Texas, plans to pursue criminal charges of rape, assault and conduct unbecoming an officer against the man, her lawyer said. She was dismayed but not surprised at the findings, and issued statement through Beerman.

"I must do this. It (rape) goes on every day. I have to make it better for the people who come after me," Beerman quoted her as saying. As a freshman in 1995, Collier said she was raped by a sophomore cadet, although she admitted they had previously had consensual sex. An investigation concluded another male cadet, which was romantic at first but never went as far as sex. She said the relationship ended in May 1996, but he began stalking her, then lured her to his barracks that November and raped her.

The investigation concluded she had lied in the second case when she said she had not had sex with the cadet in the past.

The reason Collier received a harsher penalty than the man was not because she had claimed she was raped, academy spokesperson Capt. John Cornelio said Wednesday. Her case was different because the academy ruled that Collier had lied to investigators, Cornelio said.

The recommendations must be approved by the academy's superintendent and the Department of the Army. Collier can stay at school until the process is complete, at least through the end of the school year, Cornelio said.

Regardless of the outcome of her case, Collier plans to complete the school year but will not return in the fall, Beerman said.

In an unrelated charge that was brought in the civilian courts, a male cadet was cleared in January of a rape allegation made by a female cadet after a May 1996 party in New Jersey.

In Maryland on Tuesday, a military jury convicted a former Army drill instructor of raping six trainees. Staff Sgt. Delmar Simpson could get life in prison for his conviction on 18 of 19 rape counts.

BOSTON - A large new study provides some of the strongest evidence yet that regular exercise helps protect women from breast cancer.

The research, conducted in Norway, found that women who exercise at least four hours a week have cer. about a one-third lower than usual risk of breast cancer.

Oh, those roommate blues

n a few weeks, many students - including myself — will be paying obscene amounts of money for the rare privilege of having a parking spot. And, as an added bonus, they also will get to live in an apartment.

I'm actually looking forward to apartment life. These last few years in the dorms have been less than ideal. I'm sure everyone has their own personal roommate-from-hell story, but mine was especially strange.

I finally got my room assignment about a week before I was to go to school. So I called my new roommate to see who would bring what, in the hopes that he came from a rich family, whose parents lavished him with several big-screen television sets, VCRs and boxes of cash.

But, sadly, it was not to be. As it turned out, he supplied the television stand (under the rather broad assumption that I would have a television) and I supplied everything else. But I wasn't just looking to use my roommate for his stuff. No, I would have to put up with this guy for an entire year, so I was hoping that we would be compatible, if only so we could go out and he could introduce the to girls.

Of course, I couldn't have been further off. The first tip-off should have been when I had to elaborately explain who I was.

Me: Hi, I'm your new roommate. Him: What?

Me: Roommate. At college. Him: What college? Me: You know, at the University of Iowa. Him: Hey, I'm going there next year! Me: (Pause) Yeah. I know

Him: Maybe we should get together or something. Where are you going to be living? , so maybe I'm stretching it a bit, but OK, that was what it felt like. The clincher came when he told me, and I quote, "I don't like to read.' stayed true to

Lessons for the block party

D iverFest came and went, and so did the second Fairgrounds block party. While there was little property damage, a police officer was injured. The organizers should ensure that the party is safe in future years.

The reality of a phenomenon like the Fairgrounds block party is that it is going to continue to grow. This year's attendance was around 1,000, and next year there will be even more, as word of the event spreads throughout the UI and surrounding communities.

For those who are uninterested in the no-alcohol policy while bands play at Hubbard Park, the Fairgrounds block party will become the alternative of choice. The bands that play during the day at RiverFest are located next to the Arts Fair in the IMU, which is more of a family affair. The Fairgrounds block party offers an adult atmosphere, partly due to the freeflowing presence of alcohol.

The UI, however, is ri

should learn from the mistakes of Madison, Wis., home of the University of Wisconsin. Last year, a riot broke out at the famous Mifflin Street block party when the police attempted to shut it down. Revelers threw rocks and bottles at the police and started a bonfire. Total damages cost the city $44,589. The Iowa City police made a smart move both for their own safety and for the safety of the neighborhood when they allowed the party to

But for next year's event, something is going to have to change. It is unsafe to have that many intoxicated people milling around a residential neighborhood. Twenty kegs, graffiti painted on a garage, and an illegal bonfire are just hints of what is to come as the event grows. More police are necessary, not so much to worry about alcohol violations, but to be there if and when things start to get out of control. Organizers should put up barricades and monitor who is allowed in. Ejecting individual trouble makers is far easier than trying to deal with a faceless mob. Mob mentality relies on the anonymity factor to do outrageous acts, like physically attacking the police.

The Fairgrounds block party is going to continue to grow in the years to come. It is one huge party, and college parties, for better or worse, involve alcohol. Rather than trying to shut it down, the energies of the organizers should be put into aking it as safe as possible always have prided myself on never having held a real job. Apart from the usual gas-station and grocery-store gigs while I was in high school, almost all of the paychecks I have ever collected have been from radio stations. While the radio industry is full of thieves, pimps, small minds and petty stupidities, when the job is good, it's like stealing money. I stole it for 12 years.

But since the end of January, I have been finishing the UI's teacher education program with a student teaching assignment at a high school in the Quad Cities. Through some terrible oversight, I seem to have acquired a real job. What follows are a few random observations about that job. Some business executives suggest schools that should be run like businesses, lean and efficient, to produce people better prepared for

James A. Bartlett the corporate climate they will enter upon reaching adulthood. The wisdom of that idea aside, one thing is certain: Schools occasionally seem to have embraced at least one contemporary principle the Dilbert principle. The relationship between teachers and administrators isn't much different than that between the managed and the managers in many large corporations. They often have very different views of the same world, and those views often clash.

The secret of success, it's said, is simply showing up. It's certainly true in education. Being in class every day doesn't guarantee a student will succeed, but being absent can sometimes guarantee failure. Only one of the students who failed my courses this spring did so entirely on merit. The rest of the "F"s belonged to students who were rarely there.

The astounding dedication of some teachers is a prown protein. wonder to behold. I know teachers who wake up at 5 If you have two non-functioning 4 a.m. to be in the building by 6:30, and others who spend three or four nights a week at school for extracurricular events until well after 9 p.m. The extra pay they receive for this - if they get any at all - doesn't amount to much on a per-hour basis. In addition, it's a rare teacher who doesn't spend money out of his own pocket for supplies, books, videos and other teaching aids. Hope of reimbursement is so slight that nobody asks - but they spend the money anyway. Technically, teaching is a five-day-a-week job However, "as you gain experience," one teacher told me, "you'll find that you're giving most of your Saturdays and Sundays to school work. That's why you have to keep Friday nights for yourself." Not since my own high school days have I greeted weekends with the enthusiasm I have for them now. Friday nights have become very special, even if I can barely muster enough energy to remain upright on the couch until bedtime. Young high school students have some peculiar perceptions about their teachers. One morning my ninth graders, mostly 15 years old, asked if I had corrected the test they took the previous day. "No," I said, "I went to the hockey game last night instead, so you'll get your tests back tomorrow." Several of them seemed genuinely surprised that I would go someplace they might also go, and that I might prefer it to doing school work. The world view of many adolescents is about as brown protein and dark brown wide as a keyhole. Many can't divorce themselves from their own opinions, even for a moment. I had one student who struggled mightily with the runup to the American Civil War because she was utterly unable to fathom how one human being might find it proper to enslave another. In he view, it was pointless to try to grasp the motivations of slaveholders, since they were obviously insane. In geography class, one student believed learning about Europe was irrelevant because "Im never going there, so what difference does it make?" Our job as teachers, of course, is to broaden the horizons of students, but the narrowness what we have to start with is shocking. I was a wise-ass during my high school days, the kid with a comment on everything, never blatantly disruptive, but always skating the ragged edge Twenty years later, I'm paying for it. The kind of student I was now annoys the hell out of me. Tall about karma.

Why Do I Have Brown Eves?

As we said last time, if you got a blue eye color gene from Mom and a brown gene from Dad, you have brown eyes. How does that happen?

A gene is a part of a chromosome, a strand of DNA which you got from your mom or dad, that is he instructions to build a protein. brown gene makes a protein. A blue gene is actually an inactive gene, and it doesn't make a pro-

'You have two chromosomes with the eye-color gene on them, one from Mom and one from Dad so you have two chances to receive a functional gene to make this protein. From Dad, in our example, you got a functional gene. So, that gene codes for the

But until I met him, I still had no idea how bad I had it. The first time I met him face-to-face cemented the fact that the two of us sharing a dorm was going to be harder than passing a kidney stone the size of a baseball.

It was 4 a.m. on Saturday before school was due to begin. Call me strange, but I was in bed. My roommate came stumbling in, drunk, and tells me point blank that he is on probation.

I swear I am not making this up. I didn't get much sleep that night. I kept staring over at this snoring mass and wondering what the hell he did. Promptly at 6 p.m., he wakes up and realizes a little bit of dialogue slipped out last night that he might not have wanted to.

Figuring that he couldn't just leave it there, he went on to describe the whole sordid affair. Turns out that, when he was in high school, he fell in with the wrong crowd. And they decided that they needed some money.

Instead of working at the local meat packing plant, where they pay you by the finger, they decide to steal some pigs. Now, when I was in high school, some enterprising senior stole a pig, and set it free in the foreign language hall. That was funny. This was just plain stupid.

So they do their pig stealin', and they even have a buyer lined up. They take the pigs over to the buyer's house, but here's the catch: They forget to tell him. It's late at night and this farmer hears pigs squealing, and he thinks it's his pigs getting stolen. So he calls the cops.

Everyone gets arrested, and presumably the piggies were returned to their rightful owner, where they led happy piggy lives until they were chopped up into little bits so you could have your BLT.

So, the question remains, how the hell did this guy get into college? But, to his credit, he was a halfway decent roommate. And he turned his life around. Last I saw of him, he was working in a local supermarket (when I saw him, he was - I swear - stocking the bacon) although he's no longer going to the UI. He's engaged, I hear, which is more than I can say for myself.

I guess if I have to say anything about the whole affair, I'll say this: live alone if you can. But if you can't, at least get a parking spot.

In defense of Playboy

Playboy is here in Iowa City, and all the right- and left-wingers are here to greet them. The local media, especially the DI, have been slathered with anti-Playboy, anti-porn rhetoric. Frankly, this age-old debate has grown beyond tiresome, into the realm of the ludicrous.

Playboy is pornography, but what is so bad about porn? Critics make several charges.

The first charge is that pornography objectifies women, therefore encouraging rape. Wrong. There is no evidence linking pornography to rape. This is one of those seemingly logical syllogisms that people in our society insist on jumping to without any care for facts. Never has a rapist told the police while under intense interrogation, "Yes, damn you, I did it! I saw these women in Playboy and they became objectified in my mind. My lustful urges were arisen beyond my control and I began to see all women as objects, objects there only to serve my grotesque desires!"

Another fallacy is that Playboy encourages men to look upon women as wholly sexual beings. Playboy deifies the female form. All women are beautiful in their own way and Playboy finds models with the best characteristics of all women and presents them for adoration. Most men do not look down upon models in Playboy. They instead put these women on pedestals, almost as high as the pedestals they put the women in their own lives on.

Playboy's text, which attempts to introduce men to the real women behind the pictures, is admittedly laughable. But the attempt at depth is there, and readers of Playboy do take that as a signal that there is more than just a body there. Other porn magazines make no such attempt at humanizing their models.

Do porn magazines, aside from Playboy, encourage men to see all women as wholly sexual beings? Probably not. Again, there is absolutely no evidence to support a magazine's attempt to objectify women as exclusively sexual. However, in the midst of a controversy that is almost totally absorbed in symbolism, Playboy's attempts at adding some reality to the pictures through text about the centerfolds should not be seen as a concession, but as a major difference in the Playboy philosophy that separates the magazine from other porn.

The best argument against Playboy is the Judeo-Christian argument: To lust is a sin and you'll go to hell if you pose for or read Playboy. Still, the Bible does not mention pornography, only lust, and there is an argument to be made that lust for people and lust for pictures are two very different things.

In the end, it is a matter of choice whether or not to pose for Playboy, it is a matter of choice whether or not to read Playboy. So exercise your choice and allow others to do the same in peace.

But then I see a kid, or an entire class, really understanding what I'm trying to teach them. Or a kid tells me not to worry about getting a job for the fall "because you're a really good teacher." more recent well-controlled studies using state-of-the-art techniques to measure body composition revealed that chromium intake at 200 micrograms (mcg) a day and resistance training had NO effect on body composition, metabolism, or strength gains.

Chromium is an essential trace mineral, which means that small quantities must be ingested on a egular basis. Measuring your chromium status and determining if you need supplementation is very difficult. Because there is not enough data to determine a specific recommended dietary allowance (RDA), the National Research Council has established a range of 50-200 mcg. as the estimated safe and adequate daily dietary intake (ESADDI).

It is very difficult to get too much chromium from your diet alone. The average American diet provides only about 33 mcg a day. However, some recent studies have shown that supplementing chromium in large amounts may affect your iron status or damage chromosomes, thus raising the question

The claim linking chromium picolinate to a thinner body and an increased metabolic rate stems from the fact that chromium serves as a co-factor to insulin action, helping transfer blood sugar the from blood to the muscles for energy (glucose metabolism). Proponents of chromium picolinate supplements point to a handful of studies suggesting that subjects have lost body fat after taking large doses of the mineral. KISANGANI, Zaire - The United Nations flew 236 children home to Rwanda on Wednesday after rebels unexpectedly dumped truckand trainloads of sick and hungry refugees on unprepared aid workers in Kisangani.

"This is a chaos," U.N. refugee spokesperson Kilian Kleinschmidt said of the refugees' sudden arrival from camps in northeastern Zaire. "As far as I know, we could have 10,000 people here tomorrow."

After weeks of balking at United Nations plans for the biggest refugee airlift ever attempted in Africa, the rebels now are pressing to complete the operation in 60 days.

The first flight of 186 refugee children reached Kigali, the Rwandan capital, Wednesday afternoon, fol-lowed by a second flight of 50 more children. U.N. workers hoped to fly 1,200 more refugees home today.

Aid workers were shocked when the rebels began bringing hundreds of sickly refugees to Kisangani on trucks and trains from refugee camps south of the city.

Congress quarrel threatens disaster relief Local offic

By David Espo Associated Press

WASHINGTON - In a classic Capitol dispute, legislation providing billions of dollars in disaster relief became ensnared Wednesday in a partisan quarrel over a move by Republicans to prevent a government shutdown this fall.

GOP lawmakers insisted on attaching the no-shutdown provision to the disaster aid package in a move that Sen. Kay Bailey Hutchison, R-Texas, described as ate 'good government."

Democrats countered that Republicans were using the noshutdown provision as a guise for forcing deep cuts in social programs. "Four hundred thousand Pell grant students will lose their Pell grants" if the GOP proposal passes, Democratic leader Tom Daschle of South Dakota said. 'Two hundred thousand veterans are going to be cut off from their benefits. The White House said President Clinton would veto the relief bill if Republicans persist in adding the no-shutdown measure. "That some members of the Congress would hold the fate of those disaster victims hostage to a political element in the budget process seems to us very unwise," presi-dential spokesperson Mike McCurry said Wednesday.

likely the no-shutdown provision would remain intact during the panel's deliberations. The prospects are clouded on the Senate floor, though, if Democrats decide to filibuster the no-shutdown provision. Republicans hold a 55-45 majority, but it takes 60 votes to shut down a filibuster. The underlying disaster relief includes $5.5 billion to help disaster victims in 22 states, the floodstricken Dakotas and Minnesota among them. Daschle said an additional $50 million was added during the day to compensate ranchers for livestock losses.

Other funds are provided for military operations in Bosnia and other government programs.

But the no-shutdown measure quickly became a flash point, as the two parties waged their recurrent struggle over spending priorities and Republicans tried to shed the lingering political damage from the twin government shutdowns two years ago.

A third factor was clearly at play, as well - struggle for control of the Senate's agenda.

Dole begins work with D.C. law firm to bring in clients

By Curt Anderson Associated Press

WASHINGTON - After four decades in public life, 73-year-old Bob Dole starts work today with a high-powered Washington law firm. The former Kansas senator and presidential candidate is preparing to write a book, give speeches around the country – and retain a voice in Republican politics.

"It's going to be Bob Dole Enter-prises, I guess," Dole, grinning, told an interviewer.

The former Senate majority leader said he will never lobby Congress or the executive branch for Verner, Liipfert, Bernhard, McPherson and Hand. The downtown firm's long client list includes more than 90 Fortune 500 companies and some foreign governments.

"To me, it's just demeaning," Dole said of lobbying. "I've worked with these guys. You sort of go up there with your hat in your hand. Having been the leader, I wouldn't feel quite right about it."

Dole's main duty will be bringing in new clients, a task he can combine with traveling the nation, making speeches and raising money for the planned World War II memorial in Washington. He also is working out a deal to write a book he hopes to have ready in the fall about "things that have been important in my lifetime that might have some value for readers."

To take up his new digs at Verner, Liipfert, Dole finally is moving out of his GOP presidential campaign office suite near Union Station, where "Dole For President" signs still adorned the windows Wednesday.

As a moving crew taped up boxes and gingerly took pictures off the walls, Dole took time out to discuss his new job and future projects, his views of the current political landscape, even the potential for a presi-dential run by his wife Elizabeth Dole in 2000.

Although Elizabeth Dole "sees these polls coming out," Dole said "it's way too early" for her to consider such a bid seriously.

Court declines to order father to pay for daughter's college

DES MOINES (AP) - The lowa Appeals Court on Wednesday refused to order a father to pay college expenses for a daughter who had ended all ties with him.

In the Scott County case, Deanna Pendergast had sought payments from ex-husband William for daughter Julie's college expenses.

Court records said that Julie, upset that her father hadn't paid for private school costs, had cut off all contact with him at age 12.

While a child's angry letter could be overlooked, the court said, the strain lasted into the woman's life as a young woman.

"It was Julie's choice to continue in this way," the court said. "Although William could have done more to heal the wounds, it is not for us to say he has to pay for college for a young adult who has behaved in such a manner."

2 lowa teens charged in high-speed chase

WEST POINT, Neb. (AP) -Two lowa teen-agers involved in a high-speed chase and collision with two West Point police cars last week were charged Wednesday in Cuming County courts.

County Attorney Tom Donner went to adult court with five charges against 16-year-old Jeremy Lee Cagley of Marengo, lowa.

He was charged with theft of stolen property, flight to avoid arrest, assault on an officer using a motor vehicle, criminal mischief and resisting arrest.

Two counts — receiving stolen property and resisting arrest were filed in juvenile court against the 16-year-old girl with Cagley when he failed to pay for gasoline at a West Point convenience store early on April 23. That led to the chase and the teens' eventual arrests in a field near West Point.

The girl surrendered shortly after the teens ran into the farm field but Cagley, armed with a shotgun, gave up after about three hours when subdued by a K-9 dog unit.

Police later found the teens were driving a vehicle that had been reported stolen earlier in Marengo.

There also has been heavy turnover in Gore's West Wing office

Many of the aides who have recently departed or are making plans to go are likely to resurface by the time Gore's presidential campaign takes shape, as are several former Gore staffers who left during the first term. Still, two Democrats outside of government who advise Gore from time to time voiced worry in recent days that the vice president's staff was losing valuable experience. With Christian Coalition executive director Ralph Reed stepping down in September, one Christian conservative activist likely to raise his media and political profile is Gary Bauer.

He is a former Reagan White House policy aide who directs an organization called the Family Research Council. Bauer has taken a high-profile role in opposing an extension of China's most-favorednation trade status, on grounds the Beijing government denies its citizens religious freedom and other rights.

Early this year, Bauer also launched a new political action committee, the Campaign for Working Families, which he said would back conservative candidates who advocate his organization's agenda, including opposition to abortion and support for tax cuts for families.

The PAC's fund raising is off to a solid start.

Campaign for Working Families raised $600,000 from February through the end of April, according to executive director Peter Dickinson. The goal is to raise $1.5 million by year end, he said.

"You really have to watch out for yourself," he said. "Both cars and pedestrians don't take a lot of notice of you."

According to Iowa Department of Transportation records for 1995 the last year complete records are available - there were 43 fatalities and 820 injuries related to motorcycle accidents. Fifty one percent of those killed and 61 percent of those injured were under the age of 35.

Despite the flack she has received for being a freshman in a them." position to make important decisions for other students, Ahrens said she is confident she can pull it regent. She said she doesn't believe off.

"I don't think my being a freshman is a problem, I think it's an advantage," she said. "I have many years to serve as a student instead of just a couple. Plus, I read the papers and talk to students, so I'm as informed as anyone else.'

Ahrens is an agronomy and ag business major at ISU, pursuing a degree that will take her five years to complete.

Regents are selected by the governor. According to the Iowa Code, the board must consist of nine members only from the state of Iowa, have at least four members belonging to each major political party, and one seat with a full-time student in an Iowa university.

Ahrens was encouraged to apply for the board by ISU president Martin Jischke after she applied for a scholarship at ISU. Ahrens says the perception that she was "hand-picked" to be on the board is false.

"My feeling is that (the board) is open to anybody to apply," she said. "The Governor's office treated all applicants the same."

assistant for Gubernatorial appointments in the Governor's office, said the criteria for student Regent members included maturity, moral character, future vision and a good understanding of the role of academic institutions in Iowa.

Ahrens was raised in Osage, Iowa, by her father Don, a former professor at ISU, and mother Marylou, a dietitian. The two now farm and own a seed business. Don Ahrens said Lisa has had an interest in education and politics since serving on student government in high school.

"She's enjoyed it, probably more for the people side of it than the political side," he said. "She's always been good with people. When she worked in our seed business, people were amazed at how well she could converse with any of Ahrens, as the student Regent, she'll be treated differently because she is younger.

"People keep telling me I'll be constantly called 'the student Regent,' but that (other members) will treat me the same," she said. "They've really welcomed me into the group."

Ahrens said former student Regent Aileen Mahood told her it would take about six months to get used to the routine, and also gave her information on what to read and how to keep up with issues. Mahood was a student at UNI. She was preceded by Jacklyn Van Eck-erin-Ropp, UI law school alumnus.

Ahrens said one of her main concerns during her term is keeping in touch with students at all universities. She plans to do so by getting to know student body presidents and keeping informed.

Another concern is the stress of balancing her classes with her duties as a Regent member. Regent meetings are two days a month and in a different location throughout the state for every meeting.

"It's going to be a lot of time, but Mark Schnell, administrative I'm willing to put it in," she said.

UI sophomore Cindy Ahrens, Lisa's cousin, said although she doesn't feel she's in a position of power with a cousin on the board, she will keep Lisa informed of UI issues

"I'm sure she'll be open to any suggestions," Cindy Ahrens said.

Richard Tiegs, assistant director for the Board of Regents, said the student perspective is important to the Regents, and that Ahrens will be following in the positive tracition of past student members.

"Any time you try to give students a voice in government, it's an interesting experiment," Tiegs said. "We can be very proud of what our past student Regents have done for the state.'

"I got to the back of the house and she was there playing," he said. "The problem was I still had just know I get presents," Klemm May baskets in my hand. She told me that if you get caught with a May basket you have to kiss someone. I ran away so fast, and I decid-

Iowa-Iowa State baseball game cancelled

The Iowa-Iowa State baseball game scheduled for Wednesday was washed out due to inclement weather. There will be no make-up date.

The game was scheduled to be played at Sec Taylor Stadium in Des Moines. The Hawkeyes and Cyclones were supposed to play back on April 9 in Iowa City but that game was canceled due to snow.

This is the first time since 1984 that lowa has not played lowa State at east once during the season.

The Hawkeyes will be back in action this weekend against Big Ten oe Minnesota at home for a four game series. Iowa takes on the Golden Gophers at 3 p.m. Friday for one game, play a doubleheader on Saturday starting at 1 p.m. and wrap up the series at 1 p.m. on Sunday.

UNI coaching vacancy may speed up Gable's decision

Iowa coach reluctant to lose top assistants to Northern Iowa, may make retirement decision sooner than anticipated

Gable wants to make the 'right decision'

"I've had my mind made up for quite a while," Gable said. "But in fairness to Mr. (Bob) Bowlsby - who really wants me to continue to coach - I have to be sure. He told me to wait, whenever I feel like making it. I want to make the right decision, for all of us."

Bowlsby is Iowa's athletic director and Gable's close friend.

Health is obviously a big factor in Gable's decision. The 48-year-old had surgery to replace his left hip in January, and he alked with crutches for the remainder of UNI athletic director Chris Ritrievi said a national search would begin immediately, with the deadline for applications set for May 15. After Briggs resigned Monday after 15 interviewing the top candidates, a deciyears as UNI's head coach. Once a sion will be made around June 1.

Gable now gets around without any assistance - although he is supposed to use a cane. For the most part, he said, his body feels better every day.

"That's why I'm waiting so long," Gable said. "The better I feel, the more likely I would be to come back and coach another year."

The awards banquet for Gable's team is set for Friday night in Coralville. The lowa coach said it will not be the site for an announcement regarding his future.

"I want to make sure I'm not acting emotionally," Gable said. "If everything stays the same, I'll probably be able to make (a decision) within a month.' -James Krame

Once a decision is made at Iowa, UNI's search would seem to be narrowed. However, Ritrievi said his program will not wait for Gable's verdict to hire a replacement.

'We would select who we thought was the best and we would go after that individual and talk with him,"

Ritrievi said. "I expect to have a large number of high-quality candidates."

Ritrievi said he is not concerned that potential candidates like Brands could wait for Iowa's decision before applying at UNI.

"If someone was reluctant to come here, I think I would have at least six or eight other high-quality candidates," the Panther AD said.

Wednesday, Brands said he had not yet been contacted by Ritrievi. He added that he's not sure how the search process works, or whether UNI is even interested.

If Ritrievi called, however, Brands would be willing to listen.

"I would talk to him and ask him a lot of questions," said the 1996 Olympic Gold medalist. "From what I've heard, he's demanding to work for, and that's my type of person. He wants to win, and I don't have a problem with that.'

The timing of Briggs' resignation, combined with Gable's silence, could be troubling for Brands. The Iowa assistant wants a chance to succeed Gable, BOSTON (AP) - Saying his "mission has been accomplished," M.L. Carr joked and laughed Wednesday as he resigned as coach after the worst season in Boston Celtics history. He will stay on as director of basketball operations, a post he's held for three seasons, and said he would be involved in the search for a "career coach" to replace him on the bench. He avoided most questions - including potential successors, Larry Bird's uncertain future in the organization, and a timetable for naming a new coach.

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) - Larry Brown is on the road again. He quit as coach of the Indianapolis Pacers on Wednesday and immediately flew to Philadelphia to search for the next stop in his 25-year coaching odyssey. Expressing frustration with players he felt he no longer could teach and direct, Brown resigned with two years remaining on his contract. His four years in Indianapolis were the longest of his five stints coaching NBA teams.

Bullets. Chicago's sixth first-round sweep in the last seven years puts the Bulls in the second round for a 10th consecutive season. Chicago will face the winner of the Detroit-Atlanta series.

It was Washington's first home playoff game since 1988, and it turned out to be the team's final game as the Bullets. Washington moves to a new arena next season and will be called the Wizards.

"They pushed us to the limit. Without the education and maturity we got from past playoffs - to finish the ballgame in the fourth quarter - it could have been a different outcome." Jordan said. "The thing they lack the most is playoff experience against a veteran basketball team, and I think that's something they gained this series.

The game-winning basket came after the ball slipped out of Jordan's hands and flew right into Pippen's while his defender, Juwan Howard, was caught looking in another direction. Pippen drove to the basket and jammed the ball as he was being fouled by Harvey Grant. "We executed the play to perfection,"

NEW YORK - Riddick Bowe, boxing's last undisputed heavyweight champion, retired Wednesday, ending a career that at times turned bizarre, with a paraglider, a riot and an aborted stint in the Marines.

didate, although he said Bird is "definitely a guy" he would pursue. That's assuming, of course, Bird is interested. And so far, he hasn't indicated he wants to leave his consulting job with the Boston Celtics. "I don't know what's going to hap-pen. I've talked to a lot of teams," Bird told Boston's WHDH-TV on Tuesday. "It'd be hard for me to leave Boston, but if that's the way it's going to be, then that's the way it's going to be.'

Bird's return to Indiana certainly would cause a sensation.

"A lot of people from outside would be wondering how it would work out, Larry being the great player he was .. can he truly coach and do well?" said Bob Heaton, Bird's former teammate and roommate at Indiana State. "But I think Larry could relate well to the players, obviously. He could motivate them."

McGwire's scoreboard shot lifts A's over Indians

Sports

CLEVELAND (AP) — Mark McGwire Orioles 12, Twins 3 it two tape-measure home runs — the MINNEAPOLIS — B.J. Surhoff and hit two tape-measure home runs - the first ever off the Jacobs Field scoreboard and a tiebreaking shot in the 10th - as the Oakland Athletics beat Cleveland 11-9. McGwire followed a mammoth 485-foot blast in the third with a 459-foot shot to straightaway center off Jose Mesa in the 10th, breaking a 7-7 tie. The A's went on to score four runs in the inning, and they needed them all because Cleveland rallied.

Matt Williams barely missed a grand slam with two outs in the 10th as the ball struck two feet below the top of the center field wall.

Going, Going Gone: Indians continue home run ways minus Belle

By Ken Berger Associated Press

CLEVELAND - Supposedly, the reshaped Cleveland Indians weren't intimidating anymore. They'd have to take the extra base, move the runner along. That sort of thing.

So far, they've been too busy trotting around the bases.

Even without Albert Belle, the Indians lead the majors with 47 home runs in 24 games - a pace that would produce 317 this season, even more potent Thome obliterating the major league than the swag-record of 257 set by Baltimore last gering group that year.

The UI Opera Theater will present two famous Gianno Puccini one acts,"Sister Anjelica" and "Gianni Schicchi" in English in an effort to draw younger crowds to opera. The operas will be University Symphony legend James Dixon's final performance as conductor.

Television

shining

Stephen King never liked the Stanley Kubrick film adaptation of one of his most highly lauded novels, so after the success of past King miniseries like "The Stand," ABC gave him the chance to present the story on film the way he wanted. This version of the famous haunted hotel story seems to be steering entirely clear of Kubrick's vision (King even got rid of the spooky murdered twin girls, who were the scariest element of Kubrick's movie), and it's taking greater pains to humanize the cabin-feverish Jack Torrance (Steven Weber of TV's "Wings"), played to the hilt by Jack Nicholson in 1980. Tonight, as the threepart, six-hour film concludes, look for an ending entirely different than the one seen in the film, but hopefully even more frightening. Rebecca DeMornay ("Risky Business") and famous blaxploitation director Melvyn Van Peebles costar. "The Shining" airs tonight together three times and say, "There's no place like summer break." Unless you magically can wake up in Kansas, many students will be faced with finals week and its hairy friend, stress.

"Stress is when someone is feeling overworked and has the feeling of having too much to do and not enough time to do it," said Cathy Barnett, health educator at Student Health Service. And to handle "the too much to do," many UI students tend to turn to things which may or may not be helpful, such as caffeine, stay-awake pills, nicotine or food.

Caffeine

Studying and caffeine go hand in hand for many students, especially during the finals crunch. Colleen Coover, manager of Iowa City Coffee Co., 15 S. Dubuque St., estimates that the establishment's coffee sales increase by 10 percent during finals week

"The regular students that come in here everyday come in here a lot more, stay here longer and buy more coffee, usually two cups instead of one," Coover said.

When bean water doesn't do the trick, some students hit the stores for caffeine said the store's caffeine sales go up towards the end of the semester. "It's not uncommon to go out into t aisle and see we're out of all caffeir related products," Ensrud said.

Ensrud said the rule of thumb for caffeine is moderation. "Caffeine is fine, in reasonable amounts, but it doesn't take the place of sleep," Ensrud said. "After two or three days of using caffeine, it will catch up with you. Your concentration will go down.

Ephedrine

Another popular, yet more dangerous, stimulant for some students is ephedrine. Popular with truckers who need to stay awake all night, ephedrine is often found at gas stations and truck stops. However, ephedrine should not be available over the counter since the FDA ruling in early 1996 removing ephedrine from the overthe-counter list of drugs, Ensrud said.

Despite the FDA ruling, Ensrud said some students still manage to find the stimulant.

"If you go into a questionable business, you can probably find it," Ensrud said. Also, some companies are manufacturing it as an herbal tea."

Even though ephedrine may help students stay awake, using it can be dangerous. Negative side effects can include a rapid heartbeat, increased blood pressure and, in extreme cases, stroke and heart

Ways to take a dip in relaxation during the finals-week frenzy

The Daily Iowan

There are only six days of classes left and 300 hundred thousand million zillion things to do in the time between the end of class and the beginning of finals week. So, take a deep breath and relax with one or more of the following:

Listen to Classical music

When you're hen-pecked, throw out your metal, rap, country, pop, etc. You know most of that stuff is the devil's music anyway. Instead, find comfort in the arms of a Beethoven sonata (like the "Appassionata" and the "Les Adieux"), a Rachmaninoff piano concerto (especially nos. 2 and 3) or a Mozart symphony (more than 50 to choose from!). Or go Bach. Studies have proven plants sprout better with help from the Baroque era. So pop in Johann Sebastian and feel your brain grow like Jack's beanstalk.

Outside

Go take a hike - literally. From a walk around the neighborhood to a full-fledged hike through the woods, getting a breath of hunger wake-up calls. fresh air can be more than just a cliché. City Park and even a trail along the river can instantly provide for a quick getaway and point of focus. Easy-access bike trails include Hickory Hill Park, Lake MacBride or any road running along the city limits.

Good food

Pig out on some chow, dude. It's finals week and you're stressed to the max so forget that diet. You'll have all summer to work it off anyway. Run over to the nearest Quik-Trip for a fountain drink and some chips or call your helpful pizza deliv-ery person and get it right to your door (just don't stain your notes with pizza grease). Or, if you have a little extra time, prepare yourself and a few study buds a gourmet of a meal. Pasta is pretty easy, ham-burgers, grilled cheese, soup, whatever. Just be sure and save the leftovers for those 2 a.m.

Hot Bath w/cold beverage

If you're lucky enough to live in an apartment with a bear claw tub or just a dumpy tub, clean it up with some Soft Scrub and make yourself a relaxing hot bath. Whether alone in the tub, inviting another or submerged in a great work of prose, bubbles and candles can definitely lighten up the anxiety ... at least for a half hour. To induce maximum enjoyment find a cold beverage(s) to consume this relaxation technique.

Sleeping

This relaxation technique speaks for itself. There comes a time in every student's studying session when the caffeine and nicotine has worn off and one simply does not care anymore - it's either sleep or death. halls of the silver screen. Rumor has it that if the topic being

Gene Romero/The Daily lowan studied is slipped under the studier's pillow, the learning process is acquired through dreams (it's called osmosis). So grab that favorite blankie and a pillow and dream the way to that "A."

Self-indulgence (presents to yourself)

So there is only $30 left in the bank account before the semester's end. First, with Mother's Day approaching quickly buy and send her a nice card. Perhaps this thoughtful gesture will result with money being deposited into your bank account. But if this is just a pipe dream, why not take the remaining money and buy a CD, a good bottle of liqueur, a magazine or book. Indulging in anything else other than the real tasks at hand may be pleasurable for minutes to hours.

Movie (Theater)

Remove yourself from the shackles of education - just for a few hours. Checking out a movie is a good way to forget about the eight million things that need to be done in the next two days. Cushy chairs, air-conditioning and that extra-huge tub of popcorn are just some of the perks received in the hallowed

New releases

"Austin Powers: International Man of Mystery" (PG-13) - Fab clothes. Randy attitude. Nasty choppers. These are some adjectives, in his own lexicon, to describe "SNL" alum Mike Myers' new film persona, a cryogenically frozen '60s superspy who is thawed in the '90s to save the world from his arch nemesis, Dr. Evil (also Myers). Opens Friday at Coral IV Theatres, Coralville.

"Breakdown" (R) - Kurt Russell stars as a man who is traveling with his wife (Kathleen Quinlan) in the Southwest, when the two get separated under mysterious circumstances, leaving Russell to embark on a perilous journey to find her. Opens Friday at Coral IV Theatres.

"Warriors of Virtue" (PG) - A boy finds himself in the mythical, mystical world of Tao, defending its energy-producing Lifesprings from an evil kangaroo-like warlord (Angus Macfayden, "Braveheart"). Opens Friday at Cinemas I & II, Sycamore Mall.

Now showing

"Anaconda" (PG-13) - When nominations for the Razzies (awards for the worst in entertainment) come out later this year, this giant snake movie should clean up. Jon Voight ("Midnight Cowboy") gives a performance that would be great in a "Naked Gun"-type spoof, but not in a supposedly legitimate thriller.

The special effects are supposed to be the big seller here, but the snake, which we get to peek at all too often, looks more silly than the guys in gorilla suits did in "Congo." Not only does this movie shoddily attempt to emulate "Jaws" in every possible way, but the filmmakers could foreseeably be sued for ripping off the ending of "The Relic," another not-so-good managainst-beast flick released earlier this year.

"Anaconda" takes itself way too seriously to qualify as a guilty pleasure, and the only fun part is thinkafter high school and ing maybe somebody like Ed Wood suring Secret Service agent Diane Lane to help them.

While you never believe Lane as a S.S. agent, she's still a tough screen presence who holds her own with Snipes. And, in the land of overdone film formulas, the lack of a forced romance between the two is a welcome breath of fresh air. However, although the film builds an intriguing story, it leads to an unlikely ending that's about as easy to swallow as a bottle of Surge. $\star \star \frac{1}{2} - RM$

• "Romy and Michele's High School Reunion" (R) - This gem of a movie is the funniest and most stinging portrayal of 1980's highschool life since "Heathers." Mira Sorvino ("Mighty Aphrodite") and Lisa Kudrow ("Friends") give endearing performances as the title characters, a pair of losers who moved to

• "Volcano" (PG-13) - Don't feel bad if you find yourself enthralled by this no-brainer of a movie about an unknown volcano wreaking havoc on Los Angeles, it's OK. You're not the only one.

The amazingly implausible premise and some embarrasingly maudlin attempts at social commentary are made bearable by a load of bombastic special effects, the credits of which would be the crown jewel on any pyrotechnician's résumé, and some enjoyable tonguein-cheek performances by Tommy Lee Jones and Anne Heche.

"Grosse Pointe Blank" (R) - If announced. John Hughes collaborated with Quentin Tarantino on a movie about a class reunion for all the dweebs, losers, jocks and princesses of '80s Brat Pack movies like "The Breakfast Club," it might have turned out like this uneven jumble of light and dark comedy.

John Cusack ("Say Anything ... ") deftly plays Martin Blank, a hitman as unflinching as Jules and Vincent in "Pulp Fiction" and as angst-ridden as any Hughes protagonist. He returns to his 10-year high-school reunion in Grosse Pointe, Mich., to romance the woman he left behind (a feisty Minnie Driver, "Circle of Friends") and kill one more person. Lurking in the background are a few amusing characters, like Dan Aykroyd ("Ghostbusters") as a rival hitman and Alan Arkin ("The In-Laws") as Martin's shrink.

But the film would have been edgier, sharper and funnier if the script had found a faster way to meld the romantic comedy aspects of the story with the black humor of the hitman plot. As it is, "Grosse Pointe Blank" feels like two different movies, and neither of them is funny or entertaining enough on their own. At Campus Theatres, Old Capitol Mall.  - GK

"Liar Liar" (PG-13) - Forget the darker road Jim Carrey seemed to be heading down in "The Cable Guy." His new film is pure, unapologetic fluff that seeks to turn the rubber-faced comedian into someone as irresistibly likable as Tom Hanks.

Carrey plays a lawyer whose son's birthday wish for his dad to go one day without telling a lie comes true, much to the chagrin of the opportunistic attorney. It's a one-joke movie, but it's a very funny joke, producing many scenes that evoke uncontrollable laughter because they ring so true.

Carrey's performance borrows heavily from that of Steve Martin's in 1983's "All of Me," with some of the spastic body contortions being almost identical. But who better to copy than Steve Martin? At Coral IV. $\star \star \star - SH$

"Murder At 1600" (R) - Wesley Snipes plays a convincing Washington cop who won't back down to protective Secret Service agent Daniel Denzali (TV's "Murder One") after a woman is found murdered in the White House. As more details about the woman's role within the first family is revealed, Regis and his partner (Dennis Miller) track down more and more information, pres-

The first few minutes play like a female Beavis & Butt-head, but once former classmate Janeane Garafalo ("The Truth About Cats & Dogs") shows up and the girls start paging through their yearbook, the film takes off. The jokes sting with truth, the one-liners are actually funny, and Garafolo's strings of obscenities are a scene-stealer. And although a mid-film dream sequence atre.  - SH goes a bit too long, a bizarre dancefloor scene toward the end more than makes up for it.

Overall, the film is a great throwback to the carefree jubilance of 1980's films, with a silliness that's as true-to-life as it is funny. The meanings behind this film may not run too deep, but it's far too much fun for anyone to care. At Campus Theatres. $\star \star \star \frac{1}{2} - RM$

"The Saint" (PG-13) - Val Kilmer bounces back from "The Ghost in the Darkness" land of the walking dead with a lively if showy performance as Simon Templar, an agent-for-hire with a fetish for adopting crazy personas named for saints. Hired by a power-starved Russian oil tycoon, his job is to steal the secrets of "cold fusion," a revolutionary new power source, from its creator, Dr. Emma Russell (Elisabeth Shue, "The Karate Kid").

The movie isn't exactly original in any respect - look for the obligatory microchips, disguises and Swiss bank accounts. The only thing that starts to work is the romance between Simon and Emma, even though it's contrived and ridiculous. These two really seem to go ga-ga for each other, and it actually is a refreshingly goofy kind of love affair Hollywood portrayals. toward the end.

The songs live up to their typical way of putting life into perspective with their poetic and meaningful lyrics. Thaw 97: Iowa City's answer to the Sundance Festival

By Tricia Musel The Daily Iowan

Experimental film and video art come together with the new frontier of digital media this weekend at Thaw 97.

The second annual Thaw festival of Film, Video and Digital Media Thaw festival, 90 percent of entries kicks off tonight at 8 with an opening reception in the Lasansky Room nation. Works from Amsterdam, of the UI Museum of Art.

The festival was created last year by local media artists. With a diverse collection of independently produced films, videos, CD-ROMs and Internet sites, Thaw presents experimental works, co-founder Lloyd Dunn said

Thaw co-founder and UI graduate student Renee Sueppel said while Iowa City has a strong visual culture, there was not a festival celebrating film, video and digital media until last year.

"Most of the time, festivals don't mix the three, but we felt bringing

Another product students tend to lean on for support during finals are cigarettes. "Although I'm a regular smoker, during times of stress I kind of float over to the chain smoker end of the spectrum," UI junior Jennifer Burke said.

Although there are health risks with smoking, Burke said the benefits outweigh the risks.

"Smoking does make my throat hurt more, and walking up hills becomes more physically challenging, but it makes me feel less jittery and nervous about finals," she said.

Barnett said nicotine may help someone stay awake with the first dose. When combining its negative effects with the fact that it becomes less effective with more use, Barnett said smoking is a poor choice of stress relief.

Dunn said this is a worldwide festival with amateur to professional media works.

"The title Thaw' derives from the beginning of a new age. With the colapse of the Berlin wall and Communism, it seems the world is coming together," Dunn said. "A precedence of freedom and information is flowing from place to place. Technology is more accessible and it increases the ability for people to become producers of there own culture."

"Eating poorly can make people feel sluggish," she said.

While some students may try to compensate with vitamins, Barnett said supplements are often more expensive than effective.

"In general, just starting vitamins because of finals is not really a good idea. Our dietitian says that it just gives a person expensive pee."

To alleviate some of the the finals crunch, students should establish priorities and divide work into smaller tasks. Maintaining a healthy lifestyle is also key, which includes a balanced diet, proper sleep and good time management, Barnett said.
