DENVER - Teachers will describe him as a shy, good-natured 19-year-old boy. He was loyal and deeply concerned about his country, they will say. But for the family members of Oklahoma City bombing victim Richard Lee Russell, it will be difficult to form an opinion about McVeigh.

The sentencing phase of the Oklahoma City bombing trial is about to begin, and the jury's decision this week will determine the fate of McVeigh, the convicted Oklahoma City bomber. The jury will have to decide whether McVeigh should get a new trial or if he should be sentenced to death.

The defense will focus on McVeigh's background, his family history, and his mental state. They will argue that McVeigh was a product of his environment and that he was influenced by his family and friends.

The prosecution will argue that McVeigh is guilty of premeditated murder and that he should be sentenced to death. They will present evidence of McVeigh's preparation for the bombing, his involvement in white supremacist organizations, and his role in planning the attack.

The trial has been a rollercoaster for McVeigh's family, who have watched their son's life unravel before them. The trial has also been a devastating experience for the victims' families, who have had to relive the worst day of their lives.

The Oklahoma City bombing is a tragic event that left 168 people dead and thousands more injured. The trial has been a long and painful process for everyone involved, and the outcome will have a significant impact on the community.

The jury's decision is expected to be announced this week, and the world will be watching to see what happens next.
Tobacco faces crucial juncture in settlement with Congress

By James Vargason

WASHINGTON — It's make-or-break time for a settlement with Congress that would allow the nation's tobacco companies to avoid a double tax on top of the hefty excise tax they already pay at the federal and state levels.

A deal was expected this week even though talks between top tobacco officials and congressional staff members got off to a bumpy start. This is the second attempt to strike a settlement and the first since Republicans took control of Congress in November.

The outcome is too close to call and a vote is likely before Congress adjourns next week.

"It's at the last minute," said one congressional staff member. "It's been a close process through the year. It's been contentious." The staff member asked not to be identified because he was not authorized to talk about the negotiations.

The settlement would require tobacco companies to pay a six-cent tax per pack of cigarettes, plus a 3-cent tax per carton of goods. The tax would be applied to all tobacco products, including smokeless and chewing tobacco.

The settlement would also put limits on tobacco advertising and marketing, including restrictions on TV and radio commercials, point-of-sale displays, and promotional items.

The settlement would also include provisions to help tobacco farmers transition to other crops and to fund smoke-free programs and research.

"It's too early to say if the deal will be reached," said another congressional staff member. "But we're close to agreement on the overall framework."

The deal would also require tobacco companies to pay a fee to the federal government, which would be used to fund smoke-free programs and research.

Tobacco companies, represented by the Council of Tobacco Manufacturers, have been in talks with congressional staff members since early this summer.

The council represents American, Reynolds, R.J. Reynolds, Brown & Williamson, and Lorillard.

Last week, council officials met with House and Senate representatives to discuss the settlement.

"We're optimistic," said one council official. "But it's still too early to say if a deal will be reached."

The outcome is important because it would affect the future of the industry and the health of the nation.

"This is a major issue," said another congressional staff member. "We need to make sure we get the right deal for the country."

If a deal is reached, it could be a major win for health advocates, who have long fought to reduce tobacco use.

"It's a big win," said a health advocate. "It would be a step forward in reducing tobacco use and improving public health."

But tobacco companies have been pushing back against the settlement, saying it would be too costly and would hurt their businesses.

"It would be a disaster," said a tobacco company official. "We can't afford it."

The outcome is too close to call and a vote is likely before Congress adjourns next week.

How to tell it’s summer in Iowa City

At last. It’s June. All the traditional signs are here — the river air low and grey, gulls, frogs and gnat swarms, the fiesta on the street corner, the play of light and shadow on the temple spires and trimmed trees. The diaphanous layer of fog that is June is the beginning of summer, a time for leisurely contemplation and enjoyment of the moment.

This is the traditional time for my clan to celebrate my birthday, just as they have been doing for years. It’s June. All the kids are home, and they do during the summer. For the rest of Iowa City, it’s summer. The sun shines brightly, and everyone is happy.

Now is the time to save Apple

"Here is a good deal of meat about 'Environmentalism'," declares the fat that daily invaded the rest of us and all American munitions. But why aren't they "other cultural products...?"

The problem is that the environment needs to be protected, not changed. The Apple is in trouble, and it’s not going to get better unless it changes.

WASHINGTON -- Radio host Howard Stern is offering the latter of his 17-year-old son, reputed to an adult for arson: "Dad, I'm really scared, scared that I'm going to get screwed over," the teenager said. "There's nothing I can do."

"It's a dangerous and potentially life-threatening situation," said William DeBakey, a senior partner in the Williams & DeBakey law firm. "We need to prevent release of young offenders when juveniles are not automatically tried if they are convicted of crimes.

"The decision is based on the fact that juveniles are not given the same opportunities as adults and that the juvenile court system is designed to protect the rights of juveniles."

The Clinton administration has been working on legislation to ensure that juveniles are not automatically tried as adults for crimes such as murder, robbery, and drug offenses. The legislation would require judges to consider the individual circumstances of each juvenile on a case-by-case basis before determining whether the juvenile should be tried as an adult.

The Red Wings won because they learned from bitter losses of the past two years. They were swept in the first round of the Stanley Cup playoffs in 1993 and swept in the semifinals in 1994. That's why they're also the best team in the NHL.

The Wings are currently the top team in the Western Conference, and they have a chance to be the top team in the NHL.

Astonic decision

LOU ANGELES (AP) -- Darryl Sutter agreed to a three-year contract extension with the Los Angeles Kings on Monday, ensuring the team's coach will be behind the bench when it moves into its new arena in 2003.

"The American Airlines Cup was probably the biggest game of any..."

The right-hander retired the Rockies in three batters, giving Sutter another opportunity to make a two-run lead in the eighth.

"No, it's just like winning the lottery," Malone said.

"I'm excited, we were prepared..."

LOUIS ANGELES — (AP) — Tony La Russa, Bruce Bochy and Delco Thalhimer honored the St. Louis Cardinals beat Los Angeles Dodgers to their third loss in 13 games.

For the second time in four days, a dodger starting pitcher got into a confrontation with manager Bill Russell in the dugout. The Cubs and Dodgers had the same 5-5 deadlock from the fifth through the eighth inning.

The eight right-hander retired the next three batters, then got a double play on a ground ball and struck out a season-high nine, including Albert Belle twice looking.

The left-hander lowered his ERA to 3.86 and moved in the All-Star Game discussion for the AL's starting rotation. Ryan Klesko and toms Stacy

The 48-year-old Hurst shot a 2-under-par to hold the $90,000 winner's check and make some short putts. His collapse turned his tee shot into the grass, and his walk to the green was slow. His putt was missed on the green and he missed a birdie putt on the 12th. It was the best feeling in the world.

"When I walked up to 18 I thought that it was won, and the fans were going crazy," Hurst said. "I hit it really well and it was the best feeling in the world."

When asked if the slow walk was a sign of emotion, Hurst said, "I was trying to hold back tears because I was so happy."

The third-round leader by three strokes, Leonard had a 67 for a 274 total, but Wiebe's collapse was stunning, given that she finished third last year. Wiebe, who led by two strokes after 36 holes, went from 5-over-par on the day to 4-under-par on the day.

Foyt then wrapped his hands around Wiebe's head, took two steps and shoved her to the ground.

"I saw the line real well, and when you see the line well it isn't too bad," Foyt said. "I saw the hole on the ground and I thought it was an easy putt."

Finishing two strokes behind Hurst were Bob Tway, who shot a 65 for a 276 total, and Leonard, who shot a 67 for a 274 total.

"We've never had a collapse like that," Achrazoglou, the University of Iowa's assistant director of student services, said. "It's a very rare occurrence."

Cool film

"Cop Land"

What: Robert De Niro, Sylvester Stallone, and Bruce Willis star in "Cop Land," a scorching drama about the differences between the blue collar and the black hat.

Why it's cool: Stallone took a leap into his future and got an extreme head start on the post-apocalyptic genre.

"The Nutty Professor"

What: Eddie Murphy plays a lovable肥宅，the world's fattest cop, who undergoes a revolutionary transformation to impress his boss.

Why it's cool: Orson Welles would have been proud of this fidelity to his original work.

Cool dance

"Do It"

What: In the tradition of the Electric Slide, "Do It" is the latest choreographic dance sensation, inspired by the chic and powerful swaying movements of New York City.

Why it's cool: This is the newest and most authentic dance craze to hit the streets.

Cool video

"Swingers"

What: "Swingers" follows the night club adventures of a散热器 salesman in his 20s and his group of misfit friends.

Why it's cool: This is the coolest story of the year's midnight movie.

Cool album

In/Out

What: For the first time, this album offers more tracks than its traditional counterparts, thanks to its instructions.

Why it's cool: This album has one of the most unique packages ever released.

Cool theatre

"Broadway Bound"

What: This Broadway-bound reality show is scheduled to open this year.
