Shorter sessions get warm reception

On the first day of eightweek classes, students who had almost a month off may be ready, but those who just finished the short session are still recovering.

"Action-packed, exciting, but brutal

These colorful words from UI Junior Justin Roney were not being used to describe one of this summer's blockbuster movie hits, but the three-week course he just completed at the UI.

The three-week courses have been extremely successful. Of the 10,000 to 11,000 people enrolled in classes this summer at Iowa, more than 1,000 have already gained credit by completing three-week courses.

that the number of three-week classes available to students has risen from 40 to 60 since its beginning last year - an increase of 50 percent. Sixteen-week courses were con-

Movie theaters up the ante

Iowa City was already one of most expensive college towns for student moviegoers, and prices just went up.

prices at several area movie theaters including the Englert, Coral IV, Campus Theatres and Cinemas I &II rose from $5.50 to $6.00 for nighttime shows.

Price hikes from film companies are the reason for the increase, said Arthur Stein Jr., general manager of Central States Theater Corporation, which owns the area theaters.

Campus Theaters manager Kim Davis said costs for such things as advertising, upkeep, labor and main-tenance of the sound system also led to the increase.

Republicans said it probably would be Wednesday at the earliest before new legislation could be prepared, and they declined to say whether they would bow to Clinton's demands when they begin drafting.

Senate Democrats laid plans for an all-night vigil on Tuesday - in a Capitol corridor if necessary - to dramatize the need for disaster relief.

Dr. Nelson Moyer, principle microbiologist at the UI Hygienic Laboratory, and his staff have been examining pool water samples for traces of bacteria that can prove harmful for summer swimmers. Cryptosporidousis, a bacteria which causes diarrhea, and sedomonas foliculitis, which causes a rash along the swim suit line are two diseases that can be found in contaminated swimming pool

"There are two types of disease those that are organisms, which are naturally occurring and those caused by sewage," said Dr. Nancy Hall, public health microbiologist at Hall said whirlpools provide ideal conditions for organisms like pseudomonads.

"Whirlpools are an unique environment because of the hot temperature, aeration, and the number of eople per the size of the water,"

Moyer said one solution for keeping bacterial diseases low in swimming pools is to prohibit children in diapers and adults who have diarrhea from swimming in pools. Mover said swimming pool outbreaks are rare in Iowa, however.

Owners of private swimming pools and whirlpools should follow factory instructions that comes with the equipment to maintain proper usage, Moyer said. One reason whirlpools have higher contamination rates is because they aren't regulated.

To keep the risks of organisms low, Mark Smith, manager at Upper City Park said they use chlorine pellets in the pools. Smith also manages Mercer Pool in Iowa City.

Olympic Park, area bombs, may be linked

By Russ Bynum Associated Press

ATLANTA - Nearly a year after the Olympic Park bombing, federal investigators said Monday they are increasingly confident the attack is connected to explosions at an Atlanta gay nightclub and an abor-

The conclusion, based on undisclosed forensic evidence, was announced as investigators made yet another plea for tips, releasing two detailed composite sketches of two men believed to have been seen outside the abortion clinic, along with a new photo showing a hazy figure sitting on the Olympic Park bench where that bomb was placed.

They also released a letter claiming responsibility for the Jan. 16 clinic blast and the Feb. 21 nightclub bombing. The letter is scrawled in childlike block letters denouncing 'sodomites" and those who commit 'ungodly perversion."

Officials hope the new information will prompt tips that could help them solve the July 27 bombing at Centennial Olympic Park, which killed one person and injured more than 100, and the later explosions, which injured 12.

"I think it would be fair to say we're all but positive the last two are linked, and we have increasing confidence that the Centennial Park bombing is part of this," said Jack Killorin, agent in charge of the Firearms in Atlanta.

As a result, investigators have combined their three separate investigations and extended the $500,000 Olympic bombing reward to cover the two other blasts

At the same time, investigators acknowledged there are significant differences between the Olympic bombing and the two that followed.

Black powder was used in the Olympic bomb, while the others used dynamite. Also, the clinic and nightclub bombings each contained a second bomb authorities believe was intended to kill or injure law enforcement officers sent to the

"There is a significant difference," Killorin said. "However, there's also the fact that in one city in the short span of eight months, we've had three anti-personnel bombs about which it could be argued that law enforcement was at least a secondary target for each one." The sketches, which appeared to be computer-generated, were both of men identified as having been seen near the abortion clinic the night before the attack and the morning the bombs exploded. One man had a full beard. Though the letter sent to news organizations days after the last blast makes no mention of the Olympic attack, the omission hasn't dissuaded investigators from believing the bombings may be linked.

American income inequality is vividly illustrated. If

There is another problem besides the children.

What about the dreams and ambitions of women?

U.S. News & World Report claims the article is Why the news matters to everyone

· live, eat, breathe and sleep news. It has become a way of life, a way of thought. From noon to midnight everyday I am bombarded (by my own volition, mostly) by information and the media. I begin every day by reading the newspaper at my desk with CNN droning behind me. At the touch of a button, I read the Associated Press wire to see the breaking news. I discuss news, local and beyond, with my fellow editors and peers, and I make decisions on what The Daily Iowan covers from day to day. I check out all kinds of information on the World Wide Web and often receive less newsworthy information by e-mail.

All of this can become overwhelming. There is no way to soak up every event that happens in the world, but it's my job to try just that. I am a journalist, so paying attention to the news really is a way of life. The news pays my rent, so to speak.

But for someone like you who reads the DI, keeping tabs on things can be difficult. For lack of time to "soak up events," you might become numb or, worse yet, wonder why you should care. Watching or reading takes time, and it certainly doesn't pay your rent. This has mind lately as I've read about and watched reports from one of the biggest stories in current events - the Timothy McVeigh trial. This trial is a news event of very serious import to Americans. It seems very obvious to me that this is a story that should affect every single person who reads or hears about it. In other words, this is a story that you should care about and to which you should pay attention.

Matt Snyder

The obvious answer is the large scope of the trial. On April 19, 1995, a bomb destroyed the Alfred P. Murrah Federal Building in Oklahoma City, killing 168 people. The deaths of these individuals have created emotional shockwaves for their families, friends and their communities. The amount of both physical and emotional pain and suffering involved here is staggering. Even if you are not directly involved with the bombing or the trial, it is painful to watch these ut there is a deeper and much less obvious reason why you should "soak up" this event. At the core of this story is a greater ssue. What does it mean to be an American? McVeigh's own defense lawyers have indicated that they will demonstrate that he is a devoted patriot who became frustrated with the United States government (particularly by the federal siege of the Branch Davidian compound in Waco, Texas). According to The New York Times, McVeigh owns a T-shirt that reads: "The tree of liberty must be refreshed from time to time with the blood of patriots and tyrants." The quote is by Thomas Jefferson. It is clear that McVeigh thinks highly of the United States or, at least, his own idea of the United States.

But the fact remains that McVeigh has been convicted on counts of conspiracy and murder in federal court. McVeigh has questioned the authority of the U.S. government. What's more, he has questioned his role in the United States. McVeigh was once a soldier in the service of the U.S. Army. He fought in the Gulf War. But years later, his role in America changed. He was willing to act violently, particularly against the government to which he had once sworn service, to achieve his ideal America. His own idea of self Perhaps there are those who see his actions as truly "American." As a journalist, I am not interested in whether this is correct. It is a viewpoint that I must acknowledge in balanced news presentation. But as a human being I am moved to consider my own role in America and, for that matter, the world.

So when you read or hear news about Timothy McVeigh, pay attention. You might be surprised at how news affects your own identity.

But before long, the mainstream media finds itself losing revenue to the tabloids, and pressure from the business side forces the traditionalists to adopt the same techniques as their sinister brethren.

Years ago, when tabloid journalstream news producers spent a good amount of time criticizing it. The announcement came after Ralston mounted a last-ditch effort to save his potential nomination by seeking support on Capitol Hill.

The lawmakers were not supportive, and the four-star general informed Cohen of his intentions this afternoon.

Ralston had been traveling in Asia when news broke last week that he had had an adulterous affair with a civilian while a student at the National War College and separated from his wife in the mid-1980s.

At midday today, officials said he was reluctant to remove himself from consideration for the top job.

"He's been getting letters and calls from old friends telling him to hang tough, that this would blow over," said an official who spoke only on condition of anonymity.

Ralston made phone calls seek-ing support and headed to Capitol Hill to determine whether his candidacy for the nation's highest military post could survive accusations the Pentagon has a double standard on adultery and is treating him more leniently, the official said. Ralston had been widely expected to withdraw after meeting with Cohen and other Pentagon officials, including the current Joint Chiefs chairman, Army Gen. John Sha-Sen. Dan Coats, R-Ind., a senior member of the Senate Armed Services Committee, met privately with Ralston for 45 minutes in trying to review "both sides" of the adultery matter, said a spokesper-Ralston met with at least one other member of the Armed Services Committee, according to another congressional official. He had returned to Washington on Sunday, cutting short by a day a trip to central Asia, to discuss the furor rising from his candidacy. He now is Shalikashvili's deputy. Critics have accused the Pentagon of a double standard, saying others such as Air Force 1st Lt. Kelly Flinn have been singled out and penalized for sexual scandals.

Even those who say Ralston's affair with a civilian woman in the his wife should not disqualify him from promotion conceded in the current climate, he had little choice but to step aside.

Rep. Jane Harman, D-Calif., a member of the House National Security Committee, said the military should stay out of personal sex lives unless they interfere with good order and conduct. But "I think (Ralston) is going to voluntarily withdraw his name for the good of the country," she said Sunday on NBC's "Meet the Press."

Sen. Olympia Snowe, R-Maine, a member of the Senate Armed Services Committee that must approve the administration's nominee to head the Joint Chiefs, said Ralston's case might have been considered differently "in an isolated con-

Cohen caused a firestorm of criticism from women's groups and members of Congress when he said recently that Ralston's affair with a CIA employee 13 years ago did not disqualify him as a leading contender to succeed Shalikashvili, who steps down this fall.

He subsequently tempered those remarks, and on Saturday set up an independent commission to study how military law applies to ensual sexual relati

Pentagon officials said last week that Ralston was still determined reports today that Shalikashvili to fight for the nomination but that might be persuaded to stay in his was before he had a chance to see post for another two year term.

Flinn, in an interview in this week's issue of Newsweek magazine, said the military followed a different standard for Ralston. "He got plenty of support and guidance," particularly from Cohen, she said. "No one in my chain of command took the time to pull me aside and find out what was going on."

Two names that have since emerged as possible candidates for the job are Adm. Joseph Lopez, commander of Navy forces in Europe and Army Gen. Wesley Clark, head of the U.S. Southern Command. Cohen is not expected to announce a decision until after he returns from a trip to Europe starting next week.

In his message, Clinton listed a handful of objections, but controversy has centered on two provisions that Republicans inserted.

One would prevent any government shutdown this fall regardless of whether Clinton and Congress reach agreement on regular spending bills. Republicans say the provision is necessary to avoid a repetition of the shutdowns of 18 months ago. But Clinton wrote lawmakers it would cut $18 billion from the amount envisioned in the balanced budget agreement he recently reached with the GOP leadership.

The second provision would ban the use of sampling in the nation's census in 2000. "Without sampling, the cost of the decennial census will increase as its accuracy, especially with regard to minorities ... decreases substantially," Clinton

Beyond that, Republicans fear that if sampling is used, their majority in the House could be in jeopardy when legislative district lines are redrawn in several states before the 2002 elections.

According to White House press secretary Mike McCurry, Clinton vetoed the measure moments after it arrived at the White House. The bill arrived at 1:50 p.m. EDT, he said, and was vetoed at 2:09 p.m. It was sent back to the Capitol by car at 2:18 - an elapsed time of 28

Citadel's interim president says '60 Minutes' report unfair

By Bruce Smith Asssociated Press

CHARLESTON, S.C.- The interim president of The Citadel said Monday that it was unfair of CBS's "60 Minutes" to use pictures from decades-old yearbooks in a report alleging that cadets glorify Nazi and Ku Klux Klan symbols.

"It was uncalled for, especially when you go back 20 to 30 years,' said interim president Clifton Poole "That's almost a different era."

Sunday's program used yearbook pictures and videotape it said showed Nazi paraphernalia on campus this spring.

One graduate said the pictures were misinterpreted.

Keith Stewart appears in a 1978 picture showing a mock courtroom with a swastika and two cadets with nooses around their necks. He said it was done in jest and represents the Nuremberg war trials.

"We would never have done anything that would have looked unfa-remarks.

vorable for The Citadel or indicated we had anything but contempt for what Hitler did," said Stewart, a physician's assistant from Marion.

Cadets choose outrageous subjects for the yearbook, but the pictures don't represent cadet life, he said. "If anybody in my company when was there came up with a 'Heil Hitler' or done something seriously as far as skinheads, their life would have been miserable," Stewart said. Poole has ordered an investigation into mottoes and symbols at the military college. "What we need is for the media to give us a chance to get up off the canvas. This institution will do the right thing," he said.

Jeanie Mentavlos, one of two female cadets who quit because they said they were hazed, told "60 Minutes" that she was denied food because she could not answer an upperclassman's question about the Ku Klux Klan.

CBS spokesman Kevin Tedesco would not comment on Poole's

Reported compromise: slow Jerusalem construction to near halt

JERUSALEM (AP) - Under an emerging compromise, Israeli construction of a Jewish neighborhood on a disputed Jerusalem hilltop would go on, but at a snail's pace, a newspaper reported Monday.

Such a move could be a face-saving way to mend the three-month break in Israeli-Palestinian peace talks. Members of Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu's conservative government, however, may resist even a slowdown.

Netanyahu's office refused Monday to comment on the report in the Haaretz daily, and one Cabinet minister said he would quit if construction stopped.

"I can assure you that if there is a freeze on building at Har Homa, I will leave the government," said Police Minister Avigdor Kahalani.

The March groundbreaking for the 6,500-home neighborhood, on a hill Arabs call Jabal Abu Ghneim, led to the breakdown in peace talks. The site is in the disputed sector of Jerusalem that Palestinians want for a future capital.

Netanyahu argues that the Israel-PLO accords do not preclude construction anywhere in Jerusalem. "Construction at Har Homa continues, Netanyahu told Israel TV on Monday.

When asked if he feared a construction freeze would jeopardize his coalition, dominated by nationalist and religious parties, Netanyahu said "the government is stable.

Palestinian officials confirmed that the housing project was discussed at Sunday's talks in Cairo between Israel and the Palestinians, the first such meeting since the construction began.

Since Friday, soldiers loyal to Lissouba have been arming citizens and looting homes, witnesses said.

Reports of arson mark dangerous statewide trend

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) - Arson fires have soared in recent years, so state Fire Marshal Roy Marshall said Monday he's not surprised that new records were set in 1996.

"Arson has always been an easy crime to do and a difficult one to solve and prosecute. That's always been the case. What we're seeing is an increase in arson motivated by vandalism, hate and even domestic violence," he said.

There were 2,331 arson fires reported last year causing damage exceeding $18.5 million, both of them records, Marshall said. The year before, there were 1,878 arson fires that caused more than $13 million in damage. Marshall said the trend is worri-

"We went all through the 1980s in the $4 million to $6 million range. There was never more than $6 million in arson losses and never less than $4 million for 10 or 12 years," he said. "Then it just started going up."

Reflecting a national trend, the main cause in lowa is an increase in juvenile crime, he said. "Over half of those arrested are juveniles and the No. 1 motivator is vandalism. They vandalize the school, vandalize the church, whatever. I think there's less and less respect," he said. Other arsons are motivated by hate and domestic violence, he said, and some are done to cover up other crimes or to commit insurance fraud. But more than half are vandalism.

"They do it just to do it," he said. Since the vandals are striking out of anger or boredom, Marshall said they're difficult to prevent. Of those investigated by his office in 1995 and last year, only 20 percent resulted in

Bijou announces summer movies

■ The Bijou's summer lineup is scheduled to include independent films like "Everyone Says I Love You,""Flirt," "Lost Highway" and "Koyla."

> By Katharine Horowitz The Daily Iowan

Showcasing the latest independent films, the Bijou's summer lineup features an alternative to the string of action-packed Hollywood blockbusters.

Films showing at the Bijou, located in the Iowa Memorial Union, this summer include the Woody Allen musical "Everyone Says I Love You," actor Kevin Spacey's directorial debut "Albino Alligator," David Lynch's "Lost Highway" and "Flirt" by Hal Hartley.

"We were pretty surprised that 66 Iowa City sooner, but it was a great chance for us to pick it up," said codirector and UI alumna Ann Yershov. "And we've had a ton of calls for 'Lost Highway.'"

Some foreign films will include Czech film "Kolya" and the French "Ridicule." Specialty films in the line-up contain "The Life and Times of Allen Ginsberg" and "Paris Was a Woman," a film documenting female journalists and artists living in Paris in the 1920s.

Many of the films being shown concur with a variety of events happening over the summer in the Iowa City and UI community. "Kolya" coincides with a newly added Czech language class taught this summer while "The Life and Times of Allen Ginsberg" and "Paris Was a Woman" both are shown during Gay Pride Month.

A diverse schedule - appealing to a broad spectrum of audiences was the Bijou's main goal in film selection, Yershov said.

"A person could go to the Bijou every weekend and see something fresh and new and entirely different than what they saw before," Yershov said. "We try to provide an opportunity to see foreign films, independent films, intellectually stimulating films - whatever you couldn't usual- really good mix of diverse films.'

Scheduled Bijou Summer Highlights

"Everyone Says I Love You" June 10-14

Woody Allen's most recent effort, as usual, boasts an all-star cast, but what is highly unusual is that the film features several song-and-dance routines resembling the MGM musicals of the 1940s and '50s. The cast includes Alan Alda, Allen, Drew Barrymore, Goldie Hawn, Edward Norton and Julia Roberts.

'Albino Aligator" June 13-15

Actor Kevin Spacey, known for such off-the-wall roles as the serial killer in "Seven" and the notorious Keyser Soze in "The Usual Suspects," steps behind the camera for the first time to guide his own crime drama about a robbery that goes awry through an intense two hours. The gang of robbers undergo a battle of wills while hiding out in an out-of-the-way bar that has Faye Dunaway as its proprieter. Matt Dillon, Skeet Ulrich and Gary Sinise-star as two of the criminals. "Flirt" June 20-22

Independent fave Hal Hartley directed this 1995 vignette-fest, starring Parker Poisey, Bill Sage and Martin Donovan where each of the tales includes a fickle lover, a phone call and a loaded gun.

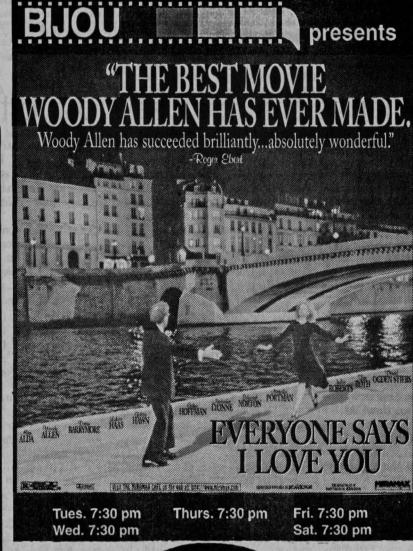

"Lost Highway" June 24-31

The Wizard of Weird David Lynch throws in his usual mélange of sex, drugs & rock 'n' roll into a story about a man (Bill Pullman, "The Last Seduction") whose fate cannot escape the allure of a beautiful woman (Patricia Arquette, 'Beyond Rangoon"), whether he is in his own body, or in that of a much younger man (Balthazar Getty, "Lord of the Flies"), as he is for some of the film.

The efforts of Lynch regulars such as John Nance ("Eraserhead") and composer Angelo Badalamenti are on-hand, as well. Lynch co-wrote the screenplay with Barry Gifford, whose novel "Wild at Heart" Lynch made into a 1990 film, starring Nicolas Cage and Laura

This Czech film — about a middle-aged musician (Zdenek Szerak) who plays funerals at the city crematorium - won the Best Foreign Film Oscar this year. Set in Prague shortly before the 1989 Velvet Revolution, the musician's life is forever changed when an amaible grave-digger (Ondrez Vetchy) suggests he marry his niece (Irena Livanova).

Alliance chairman says playoff won't work

By Eddie Pells Associated Press

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. - The head of the Bowl Alliance warns that an NFL-like tournament will create more problems than it

Southeastern Conference commissioner Roy Kramer says the expanded bowl alliance being assembled would work better than any playoff system to determine a true college football champion.

The Bowl Alliance, which was supposed to produce a true title game, pitted No. 1 Florida State against No. 3 Florida in the Sugar Bowl last season. No. 2 Arizona State met No. 4 Ohio State in the Rose Bowl and when the two higher-ranked teams lost, Florida was voted national champion.

Western Conference championship and not up to the task of dethroning the defending champs.

But two straight victories have brought the Jazz to a state of nearsuphoria while the Bulls have slumped into a situation they haven't experienced in five years. Not since 1992 have they been tied 2-2 in a championship series, and Jordan and Pippen are the only two remaining members of that team.

"It's a great challenge and no one said this was going to be easy. This team is making us work hard for it," Jordan said. "We haven't been put in this position for a long time, and that's fun to me."

draw from the same history of personal pressure experiences like Jordan and Pippen can, and the two stars are unhappy with the noncontributions the Bulls are getting from their supporting cast most notably Rodman.

But the rest of the team can't

The league's leading rebounder has been a complete non-factor in this series, and most of Chicago's other role players have contributed

"They're playing better team basketball than we are right now," Pippen said. "Individually, me and Michael are playing good, but the Jazz are playing well as a team and that's the difference in the series. Their team is really outplaying us.

"We're making runs throughout the game and they're stopping our runs. We're normally able to run 12 to 15 points on teams before they can even react. We're not able to do that against this ballclub." The Jazz are trying to become the first home team to sweep the middle three games of the finals since the NBA switched to a 2-3-2 format in 1985. A victory by Utah on Wednesday also would mark the Bulls' first three-game losing streak with Jordan on the team since the opening three games of the 1990-91 championship season.

The Jazz will carry a 23-game home winning streak into Game 5 and figure to be infused with another burst of energy from their fans, who were still out on the streets honking horns and whooping it up in front of the Delta Center some two hours after Sunday night's stirring comeback victory.

Utah also may have another advantage in the way the team has rallied together and shown so much passion after its victories.

"People might think it's corny to be close to one another, but this team is pretty close," Karl Malone said. "People talk about the impossibility of winning three in a row, but with the intensity we've had in these games we never give up.

"The worst thing you can do against Chicago is get down when things aren't going well. If you don't get your head down you always have an opportunity."

STOCKTON

goes for just about every aspect of

At age 35, Stockton finally has made it to the finals, where his demeanor has been so serious that his good friend Karl Malone wishes he would lighten up a little.

"Even though this is a tense time of your life and your career, you would like to see him relax a little bit more," Malone said. "You don't want to look back on it 10 years from now and say, 'Gosh, that was pretty exciting and I didn't enjoy it ike I wanted to enjoy it."

Once in a very great while, Stockton will let his guard down and provide a glimpse of the com-petitive emotion that burns within. Like the time he went airborne in joyous celebration after hitting the 3-pointer that gave the Jazz the Western Conference title over

"I had no idea he could jump that igh," Malone said. Or Sunday night in Game 4, when Stockton, looking like Joe Montana on a rollout, lofted a length-of-the-court pass to Malone for a layup that gave Utah a 74-73 lead over Chicago with 45 seconds to play. Ever so briefly, Stockton let out his elation for all to see, pumping his fists and jumping in the air over and over.

"For that brief minute, he allowed himself to say, 'I'm enjoying this," Malone said. "That might be all you get out of him."

In private, Malone said, Stockton is much looser, much more prone to joking around. But that all changes when he steps on the court where he is all business.

"I'll say, 'How are you?" Malone said, "and he'll say 'Fine,' and that's about it."

In the final two minutes Sunday night, Stockton had that spectacular pass, stole the ball from Michael Jordan, made three of four free throws and nailed a 25-foot 3pointer that likely was his biggest play of all.

All of which he shrugs off.

"I just try to keep playing," he said. "At the end of the game, you don't have time to think and maybe that just helps sometimes."

To Sloan's suggestion that he has a fierce competitiveness that rubs off on his teammates, Stockton protests, "It sounds a little bit overboard for me.'

Modesty, he said, is a posture he's developed for his public per-

"You have a different personality in front of the world than you would in front of your pals at home. ... This is on a big scale and that's on a personal level," he said, "and I like to keep the two very much separate."

So that explains how someone could be a two-time member of the U.S. Olympic Team and the NBA's career assists and steals leader and still not be fully appreciated, at least until now.

Stockton plays his final home game of the season in Game 5 Wednesday night. If Utah wins and can wrest a victory from the Bulls in Chicago, perhaps Stockton's achievements finally will overpower his blandness.

"He is," Chicago's Ron Harper said, "a guy who uses his basketball skills the way that guards in this league don't know about."

Stockton and Malone like to point out that it was only a year or two ago people were saying the stars' time had come and gone. In many ways, though, Stockton is better than ever.

"Sure, John's probably not quite as lively, but I think he's gotten smarter," Sloan said. "And as you get older, you seem to shoot the basketball a little better and you know when to shoot it. That makes you a better player.

"I don't know that I can ever recall a guy at his age still having the energy that he does for his size," Sloan said. "Then we're asking him to set screens on guys a great deal of the time. If not, we're running the pick-and-roll. He's involved just about all the time in just about everything we do."

May 22 with a 3-2 victory over Michigan, advancing to the winner's bracket for the first time in hree appearances. The comefrom-behind victory was Iowa's only win during the tournament. The Hawkeyes then lost to Washington, 5-1, the next day to et up the show-down with Fresno State in the double-elimination ournament.

"This has been a real special eam for me," Iowa coach Gayle Blevins said following the Fresno State loss. "I'm incredibly proud of my kids for the kind of season they put together and the kind of team they've been this year, represent-ing the University of Iowa."

The kind of season Blevins is referring to can best be summed up in two words: record-breaking.

A few of Iowa's accomplishments during the 1997 campaign include: · winning its first Big Ten title since 1990 and becoming the first team in league history to finish the conference undefeated, posting a 22-0 record. · being ranked in the top ten nationally the entire season, and at one point holding the nation's longest Div. I winning streak at 24 games. · hammering a school record 35 home runs and having four players break a total of nine individual records.

"This year happens to be one of the most wonderful years we could have ended on," Iowa senior catcher Brandi Macias said. "Every goal we had this year we accomplished, except for the last one."

Macias, who became Iowa's career home run leader after the '97 season, was one of six seniors who donned the black and gold for the final time at the World Series.

"With the exception of Cornish and Twigg, who transferred in, the seniors have been a part of all three World Series'," Blevins said.

"They've set a different stage for us and our program. When they first arrived at the tournament as sophomores this was uncharted territory for us. It was nice to have a group here to show us the way and be our backbone for the last three years."

Sophomore Tammy Utley, who became Iowa's clutch hitter at the Series, said the impact of the senior leadership will carry on in the future.

"Our six seniors led us so well," Utley said. "It wasn't only on the field but off the field as well. They were the most awesome senior class ever. Everyone will take something from them."

Three former NHL coaches return to the bench

By Adam Nazimowitz Associated Press

Two days after the Detroit Red Wings hoisted the Stanley Cup, three NHL coaching jobs and two general manager positions were filled.

Three former NHL coaches returned to the bench Monday, making new starts. Ron Wilson took over the Washington Capitals, Jim Schoenfeld became coach of the Phoenix Coyotes and Darryl Sutter was back in the league as coach of the San Jose Sharks.

Whether Scotty Bowman, who coached the Red Wings to their first title in 42 years on Saturday, comes back next season is questionable. There is a possibility he could join the Toronto Maple Leafs as an executive.

Fluff's fans emerge Classifieds

■ Tiger Woods' caddy, Mike "Fluff" Cowen, has developed celebrity status with his hippy lifestyle and philosophy

BETHESDA, Md.- Nick Faldo walked through the relatively sparse Monday crowd at the U.S. Open, drawing a few stares and the occasional autograph request.

Suddenly, a sure sign of celebrity popped up. A knot of fans four deep encircled a shaggy-haired, stocky man with a walrus mustache, thrusting forth hats to be autographed and shyly asking questions.

This is how big Tiger Woods has become. His caddie, Mike "Fluff" Cowan, might be the second-biggest star on the PGA Tour right now.

Woods' biggest challengers in the 97th U.S. Open this week will be Faldo, Greg Norman, Tom Lehman and a longshot or two like Jim Furyk, but his biggest competitor in the autograph race might be the guy carrying his bag.
"I don't mind," Cowan, a 20-year tour caddie, said about the attention.

PARIS — It took one win over Andre Agassi in February to make Gustavo Kuerten a believer in himself. That's what his coach considers the turning point in Kuerten's short career, which now includes a French Open title and a No. 15 ranking, up from No. 66 before the tournament.

Kuerten is the first Brazilian to crack the top 20 since the inception of the rankings in 1973. He is the second-lowest ranked player to win a Grand Slam event. Mark Edmondson won the Australian Open in 1976 with a No. 212

'He beat Byron Black in the first round and after the match in the locker room I sat down with him and said, Look in my eyes and believe what I am going to say. You can beat every player that's out there if you really believe it," Passos said Sunday.

"And he looked into my eyes and shouted, 'I believe it. I believe it. I can beat them."

SALT LAKE CITY - Judgement week has arrived. It's time for the future of the Chicago Bulls to be deter-

Does the dynasty die? Does the running of the Bulls become the ruining of the Bulls? Is this the end of their era?

It's all up in the air as the NBA Finals keep going, and the Bulls are suddenly in a precarious position as they enter what could be the final chapter in their run of supremacy.

The Utah Jazz have turned this into a highly competitive and captivating best-of-7 series by winning Games 3 and 4 to even things at two games

Game 5 is Wednesday night, and the Bulls will be trying to wrest the momentum back and keep the city of Chicago from entering a collective state of panic.

"This situation we're in may be exactly what we need," Michael Jordan said Monday, a day after Utah's 78-73 victory knotted the series and set off celebrations on the streets of Salt Lake City. "The attitude needs to elevate. A lot of these players have never experienced repeating or defending a title. title next season. Jordan repeated his party line Monday that he expects himself, coach Phil Jackson, Scottie Pippen and Dennis Rodman all to return next season, but his statement was met with more skepticism than it was a week earlier.

Especially since Pippen had just been in the same interview room saying the Bulls "will probably be broken up anyway" and Jackson was on the court saying he had finally spoken to owner Jerry Reinsdorf for the first time since April but that nothing substantive was discussed.

The mood of this series has changed since a week ago when the Bulls were on their way to taking a 2-0 lead against a Utah team that seemed to be satisfied with winning the elusive See BULLS, Page 9

Stockton's stock up in Finals

By Bob Baum Associated Press

SALT LAKE CITY - Finally, on basketball's biggest stage, the world is seeing just how good John Stockton can be.

For 13 years, he's toiled in the obscure shadow of Wasatch Mountains, far from the media spotlight, excelling in the kind of precision basketball that is a fading memory in the rest of the slam-dunking, trash-talking, in-your-face NBA. He's just 6-foot-minutes of Game 4 of the NBA Finals and he can do amazing things.

"He doesn't want to lose," Utah coach Jerry Sloan said. "He's not an overpowering guy, but he's going to do everything he can to try to win. That

DID YOU KNOW?

■ Dwight Gooden gave up four runs on five hits in seven innings Sunday for Triple-A Columbus in a 4-3 loss to Toledo. Gooden (1-1), on a rehabilitation assignment from the New York Yankees, struck out four, walked three, hit two batters and threw a wild pitch. Bubba Trammell homered off Gooden.

■ The Padres are talking with at least one AL club - possibly Cleveland - about dealing Rickey Henderson and possibly a pitcher in exchange for a pitcher. Henderson, 38, has done his part to facilitate a trade, going 9-for-16 with a double, two runs, two RBIs, four walks and three steals in starting the last four games. Candidates to be included in a trade are right-handers Sean Bergman and Tim Worrell. Cleveland was interested in Henderson during spring training.

■ Bulls forward Dennis Rodman's three-game streak of not drawing a technical came to an end in Utah's 78-73 win over Chicago on Sunday night. Official Ed T. Rush gave him one in the third quarter when he tried to grab Karl Malone's foot as Malone ran back downcourt following a layup. Rodman had received at least one technical in each of Chicago's 13 playoff games before the finals.

1995 and 1996. Ironically it was the team's failure to achieve a game goal it had set and accomplished for its previous 60 contests that kept Iowa from advancing to the semi-finals. "We weren't able to prevent the big inning today," Iowa coach Gayle Blevins said following the seasonending loss. "Fresno State had two big innings on us today and that was the big difference in the game. If we could have controlled those innings a little better, it could have been a different outcome."

Fresno State tallied four runs in the fourth and three runs, including the game-winner, in the top of the seventh.
