L.C. residents react to ruling
Local residents say they are happy with Thursday's ruling.

Iowa City paper, Nancy Steyer, who is perfectly happy to monitor her children's Internet use be- cause children, aged 12 and 18, both are on the Internet and even though they access internet services.

The Philadelphia Inquirer was the lone voice in its reporting on the decision. The court said that a revocation of speech "enamounted to burning the house to make the fire. The Constitution creates a darker shadow over free speech, threatening to create a large onus of the Internet content.

It is true that we have repeatedly observed, in the interest of preserving children from harmful materials, that Internet does not cease to exist if their parents have no right to see it, the justices said. They ruled it is a valid court ruling that struck down the Communications Decency Act, but even the two dissenting justices agreed parts of the law constitutionally restricted.

Drinking penalties to increase
Underage drinkers are preparing for a steep increase in fines, which goes into effect

By Will Vare  The Daily Iowan

This week marks the final stretch of the last time the underage drinkers will get off cheap if they tried to sneak into a bar with a fake ID.

In an attempt to curb underage drinking, Iowa legislators have introduced a new law that will increase the fine for underage drinking from $10 to $65 for the first offense and up to $219.50, plus a license fee, for the second offense.

The new law was introduced on Wednesday. It states that any person caught with alcohol under the legal drinking age of 21, who is not under the age of 18, will be subject to a fine of $10 to $65 for the first offense and up to $219.50, plus a license fee, for the second offense.

The law also states that anyone caught under the new law will be subject to a $10 fine for the first offense and up to $219.50, plus a license fee, for the second offense.

The law will go into effect on July 1, 2004.

Water main soaks Pedestrian Mall
By Steven Cook  The Daily Iowan

The bricks of the Pedestrian Mall have been soaked up over the past three days by a water main break, shutting down businesses for four hours.

A water main break in front of the Iowa City Police Station in downtown Iowa City has water flowing through it, and the Iowa City Police Station will not have water until the problem is fixed.

City workers used a hose to find the break and later used shovels to dig up the street. The break was made on 11th Street and 11th Avenue. The Iowa City Police Station did not have water for the past four hours due to the break, and the Iowa City Police Station was closed.

The Iowa City Police Station was closed for four hours due to the water main break. The Iowa City Police Station is located at 1101 Clinton Street, Iowa City.

Report sheds new light on man's suicide

IOWA CITY — A recent report sheds new light on the thoughts, actions and events leading up to a man's suicide, which occurred in January, 1997. The report, said by Johnson County Sheriff's Deputy Robert Investors, is a second-year report on an investigation into the man's death. The report, which was presented to the Johnson County Public Safety Committee, includes information on the man's residence, the time line of events, and the events that occurred on the day of the suicide. The report also includes statements from the man's family and friends, as well as information on the man's mental health history.

Unemployment

Unemployment rates in Iowa continue to decrease, according to the Iowa Employment Security Commission. The latest data shows that the unemployment rate in Iowa was 3.9 percent in February, compared to 4.1 percent in January. The unemployment rate for the United States was 4.7 percent in February, compared to 4.8 percent in January.

Teen drug use increases in Iowa

Iowa families, schools and communities should renew their commitment to promote the state's children and youth to resist the use of tobacco and marijuana, said David Wright, the Iowa Department of Education's deputy director of education services.

Tobacco and marijuana use are on the rise among teenagers in Iowa.

In December, the Iowa Department of Public Health released the second annual report on youth drug use in Iowa. The report found that the use of tobacco and marijuana increased among Iowa youth, with marijuana use increasing by 10.5 percent and tobacco use increasing by 4.2 percent.

The report, "Youth Drug Use in Iowa," is available online at the Iowa Department of Public Health's website, www.idph.state.ia.us, or by calling 1-800-332-2247.

The Zoo is a place I cannot even bring myself to call our "city museum" - especially after the "Scarface"-themed exhibit. My 9-year-old son has a terrible fear of the animals in the "Scarface" room. It's an exhibit that doesn't belong in a place where children spend their Sundays. I hope the zoo responds to our request to have the exhibit removed. Sincerely, Addie M. Mellin

Readers ponder just what doesn't make political sense

To the Editor:

The "subjective supersubject" feature of Macdonald's performance, which would have made more sense, is not the kind of line a political writer would want to pass off as "humor." It's not a joke; it's a serious statement.

Colony years have been a time of change and uncertainty.

The legislation made it a crime to put "patently offensive" words or pictures on placards that they would see in public schools or other places.

The law would allow school or private institutions to be put on a list of bad words. It is thought that this would be a rapid way of getting the word "stop" out of Hong Kong.

But in a late-April poll, 57 percent of the respondents said they would support changes in the law. The poll was conducted between June 9 and had a margin of error of 4.5 percent.

Choi, who has studied at the UI for make an effort to get the law revoked.

"It's a long process, but I think the students will continue to fight for the rights of the students," she said.

The flaxen-bearded Beast is no mere musclehead in this wise, inhuman, and often hilarious Disney comedy. "Heracles," the Greek poet's Hercules, is the ultimate 1994 Disney character. The moral of the picture is summed up in the opening - "The only true victor is the one who is strong enough and yet can be gentle enough to allow others to have their way when they wish to." "Heracles" is the ultimate in 80s TV commercials and TV commercials that were once a prominent part of the Disney television package. There's a short, one-minute promo for the film that was shown on network TV and in theaters across the country. The film was released on video the same day it was released in theaters.

Disney's 30th-floor animation Footage File, "Heracles," opens tonight at Cinemas '94. The feature-length animation has an excellent live-action performance, but it's Disney's animation that will appeal to the Disney fan.

"Face/Off" continues Summer of Cage

"Face/Off" opens tonight at Cinemas '94. The film is a long, talky, and somewhat silly story about a man who is trying to kill his rival. The main character is played by John Travolta. The film is directed by John Woo and is based on a original novel by John Egan.

"Wedding" takes the Familia's comedy cake

"My Best Friend's Wedding" is the film to see if you're tired of the same old romantic comedies. The film is directed by John Hughes and stars Julia Roberts, Dermot Mulroney, and Elizabeth Shue. The film is about a woman who is engaged to be married, but then her fiancé disappears.

"Wedding" takes the Familia's comedy cake - something else is happening in town. "Wedding" has a fun story, but it's not exciting - the story is often predictable and the actors are not always convincing. Although "Wedding" gets a low rating, it's a solid film and you'll want to see it. Julia Roberts is wonderful, and she's always a great choice for a romantic comedy lead. Dermot Mulroney is also very good, and his chemistry with Elizabeth Shue is great. The film is directed by Ron Howard and is based on a novel by David Egan.

Former Magic coach Hill gets Vermont job

Vermont, British Columbia — Mike Hill, British Columbia head men’s basketball coach, has been named the new coach of the Vermont Catamounts, the school announced Thursday.

Hill, who led the Nanooks to an NCAA Tournament appearance this season, will be the 22nd coach in Vermont history.

"We are thrilled to welcome Mike to Vermont," said athletic director John McLaughlin. "Mike has a proven track record of success and has a strong reputation as a coach and mentor. He will be a great fit for our program and our community."

Baltimore (AP) — This time, Dave Stieb was the man. On Tuesday, it was Chris Cremin.

Cremin was good enough to beat the Baltimore Orioles Tuesday night. Cremin outpitched John Olerud and the Orioles to give Toronto its fourth straight win, a 2-0 victory.

Cremin allowed a run and three hits in seven shutout innings by Roger Clemens, who gave up three runs in seven innings. "I'm happy to get a chance to pitch against him," Cremin said.

Clemens, who started his second career 12-game winning streak to 17 innings, was lifted by Houston Astros catcher Brad Ausmus tags out Chicago Cubs' Brian Hunter stole second and later passed his defender.

Clemens said, "I was just trying to do what I do."
