Bridge fall leaves man hospitalized

An lowa City man is in critical condition after a fall from the Benton Street bridge

Saturday.

By Jenn Snyder The Daily Iowan

Iowa City police suspect a man pulled from the Iowa River Saturday afternoon was attempting suicide.

Dale Lawrence Weum, 27, of Iowa City, was recovered from the Iowa River just before 4 p.m. Saturday. Iowa City Police responded to a call from a fisherman who observed a man floating face down just south of the Benton Street bridge, said ICPD Lt. Ron Fort.

Fort said fishermen on the river called police with a cellular phone when they saw Weum floating in the Iowa River below the Burlington Street dam. Weum was removed from the river, where emergency personnel performed CPR.

Weum was then transferred to UI

Weum was a psychiatric patient at the UIHC, where he was being treated for Stark, who was surprised by the incident, said Weum was released from the UIHC about two weeks ago to prepare for a move to a Marshalltown residential care center.

"He was a nice kid - pretty harmless," he said. "I'm really sad about what happened.'

Theaters fight over indie flicks

Students running the Bijou question the motives of an Iowa City theater chain in showing the same schedule of films.

> By Will Valet The Daily Iowan

After a record-setting year, Bijou directors say a repeat performance could be difficult if local theaters continue to beat them to the screen.

Local theaters often book some of the same films that appear on the Bijou calendar and premiere the movies before they are shown at the. student-run Bijou, said UI senior and Bijou co-director Ann Yershov.

Yershov said she noticed a trend for Iowa City theaters (The Englert, Campus Theaters, Cinema I & 2, and Coral IV), to book second-run films shortly before the Bijou was to show them. These local theaters are owned by the same Des Moines company, Central

Commission rallies for gay rights

Human rights officials may begin work in August on a state law protecting gays.

By Steven Cook and Mose Hayward The Daily Iowan

Members of the Iowa City Human Rights Commission say they made one more step towards establishing state protection for homosexuals Friday.

In the wake of the firing of six Davenport health care workers on the basis of their sexual orientation, ICHRC members went to Des Moines Friday to testify before the Iowa Civil Rights Commission (ICRC) on the need for sexual orientation to become a protected class.

Gays and lesbians are protected from discrimination under a state hate crimes law, but are not protected from discrimination in credit, employment, housing, or education. In the state, Iowa City and Ames are the only cities with ordinances specifically protecting homosexuals.

Former chair of the ICHRC Alison Ames Galstad, along with four other commissioners, attended Friday's ICRC meeting in Des Moines, advocating the addition of sexual orientation to the state civil rights statute.

The group went to the informational meeting to present their case to new state commission members, Galstad said. They submitted a packet of letters and testimonials from gays and lesbians who have suffered discrimination because of sexual orientation.

Galstad said she thinks the change has a good chance of passing. She said

Smart and cool: A/C do's and don'ts

Carefully choosing when to run air conditioners can save students tons of money.

By Scott Lester The Daily Iowan

Along with the lazy days of summer come the scorching heat and sweltering humidity, but there is no reason to suffer - if you play UI students can avoid racking up a huge electric bill during the summer months by playing it smart and following a few Terry Smith, supervisor of engineering design at MidAmerican

Energy, 1630 Lower Muscatine Road, said the best way to stay cool and save money is to cycle the air conditioner on and off and run it at a warmer temperature. The most important thing to conserve and stay comfortable," Smith said. "By turning it (air conditioner) up by two or three degrees — up to 78 degrees rather than 72 percent on your bill."

tures above and below 78° using Smith said the most common misconception is that it is cheaper to run the air any type of fuel: conditioner all the time, rather than turning it off and on. But it's cheaper to turn it off at night because it runs less and uses less energy. "If you can tolerate it as long as possible, at least five hours, you can save a lot of money," Smith said. But when hit with a big humid spell it might be best to keep the air conditioner running - as opposed to cycling it- because it will have to work harder to get the humidity out of the air and use more energy, said Joe Schebler, owner of Schebler's Refrigeration and A/C Service.

The air conditioner performs two main functions, Schebler said. First, it reduces the humidity in the room and second, the liquid freon absorbs the heat and expels it out-

"The most satisfying element is the reduc-tion of humidity," Schebler said.

Schebler said the low humidity level is what puts the room at a comfortable level. Even if the room is 85 degrees, if the humidity is low, the room will feel nice and cool.

UI junior Elizabeth Irvine said she doesn't run her air conditioner because degrees - can save up to 35 it's just too expensive. She said she runs

I lowa City residents find a community within a community at the Farmers' Market.

Think of it as a home-grown supermarket in the heart of an Iowa City parking

The Iowa City Farmers' Market turns 25 this year, bringing hoards of people to the parking garage across from the Iowa City Civic Center every Wednesday and Saturday in search of that perfect box of green beans, bundle of fresh flowers or home-

Twice a week, local growers drive up in their delivery vans, compact cars and conversion vans to unload a gamut of products ranging from a cabbage-like vegetable called kohlrabi to soap and to hanging

The market is a healthy alternative to fast food or a supermarket, UI graduate student Christian Puttlitz said.

"A lot of it has to do with all of the crap that is in the stores," he said. "It's an alternative place to get something to eat and I know that most of the stuff isn't loaded down with pesticides.'

The market began in 1972, when an Iowa City citizen wrote a letter to the city council asking for a location to sell excess produce from their garden. The city grant-ed the request and now growers travel from Lopata said she drives from Walker, Iowa,

Many of the established vendors are like a family, said Peggy Prochaska, a Cedar Rapids grower sitting behind a table of fresh flowers and cauliflower. She has been coming to the Iowa City market since 1975. "This is a community thing. Everyone here knows everyone," she said. "We do get some new (vendors) every now and they don't last, but most of the vendors have been coming down here a long time." Prochaska said she got involved in the growing business because of her husband's family. The family grows plants, vegetables and Christmas trees throughout the year. "I married into it," she said. "This is a family business that was started in 1946. This is an easy market. The college kids come down and the faculty comes down, it's definitely more social."

Rooster with artificial legs dies protecting his hens

JACKSON, Mich. (AP) -Mr. Chicken died with his artificial legs on, defending his hens to the end, and that's the way he'll be buried.

Veterinarian Tim England said his plucky rooster was mauled to death, probably by a raccoon, as he tried to protect the chickens who shared his pen.

"Something chewed him up real good," England said Friday. "The other chickens were OK, though. He was very protective of them."

Mr. Chicken was rescued last December, his feet frozen beyond repair. England adopted the bird and had a physical therapist make Mr. Chicken a new pair of legs.

The plastic legs fit snugly over the stumps, with squarish "feet" that curved up at the toe like skis. As with most prosthetics, Mr. Chicken's were removed at night to prevent pressure sores.

"It's a glum day," England said. "We will bury him in the flower garden with his legs on. He will get a headstone because he was a famous little guy."

"I had no idea that there was any use for chicken clucking at all," she said.

Foul smell disrupts Thoreau's retreat

CONCORD, Mass. (AP) -These days, even Thoreau would be hard-pressed to appreciate the wonders of nature at Walden Pond.

It stinks, with a manurelike miasma that has led the state to close the main beach at the popular swimming hole made famous by Henry David Thoreau, who lived in a cabin by its shore and chronicled his life in "Walden."

The daunting odor is believed to be coming from bacteria in the sand, said Peg Campbell, the park supervisor

China plans enter Hong Kong with highly visible force.

HONG KONG - As Hong Kong headed into its last day as a British colony, China pledged Sunday to preserve its autonomy, Britain offered some royal pomp and rival camps geared up for marathon celebrations and protest rallies.

With the world watching, foreign VIPs converged on Hong Kong for ceremonies ending 156 years of colonial rule at midnight Monday.

In Beijing, tens of thousands of Chinese flocked to Tiananmen Square to celebrate the handover and President Jiang Zemin renewed China's promise to preserve the freedoms and capitalist vigor that have made Hong Kong an economic powerhouse.

Pathfinder takes to Mars

■ The United States is planning to land a spacecraft on Mars to study possible life on the red planet.

> By Jane E. Allen Associated Press

PASADENA, Calif. - This Independence Day, it's the United States that will play alien invader.

About the time Americans are watching holiday parades down Main Street, NASA's Mars Pathfinder will gently parachute to the rocky surface of the red planet to begin a search that one day could yield evi-

If successful, Pathfinder would be the first earthly craft to touch Mars since NASA's twin Viking landers set down in 1976, scooping up sand yet finding no trace of living things.

If it fails, the $267.5 million Pathfinder mission would join four U.S. and Russian Mars-bound flops in the last decade, including America's $1 billion Mars Observer that was lost in space in 1993.

"It looks like there is a gremlin out there, slapping everything that's coming toward Mars," jokes Brian Muirhead, Pathfinder's deputy project manager at NASA's Jet Propulsion Laboratory in Pasadena.

But given Pathfinder's excellent performance since it was launched last December, Muirhead foresees an outstanding chance of pulling this thing off."

Pathfinder is headed for Ares Vala vast, ancient flood plain in a two-week period," said Pathfinder project scientist Matthew Golombek. The area is about 525 miles southeast of where Viking 1

After its airbag-cushioned touch-down, Pathfinder will release Sojourner, a 22-pound, solar-powered rover about the size of a microwave oven - the smallest planetary craft ever launched.

Named after black abolitionist Sojourner Truth, the six-wheel vehicle will move herky-jerky across the Martian plain for at least a week. It explored the surface of another plan-

Endowed with a hazard-avoidance system making it "as smart as a bug," Sojourner will nose up to rocks and analyze their chemical composition, says Donna Shirley, who led JPL's rover development team and now manages its Mars exploration

At the very least, the rover is likely to find the iron compounds that make Mars look like "a rust pit," Golombek said.

The fourth planet from the sun, Mars is considered the most Earthlike, with a thin atmosphere, polar caps and deep canyons carved by flowing water. Surface temperatures can range from minus-200 degrees Fahrenheit at the poles to a balmy 80 degrees at the equator when it's closest to the sun.

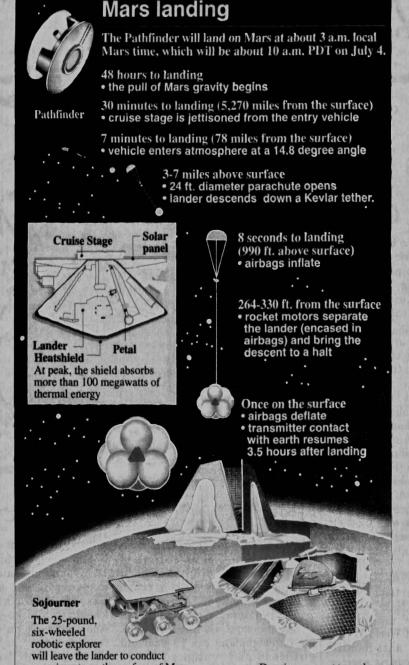

We know life originated on will be the first time a rover has (Earth) when it was incredibly inhospitable to human beings. It's very possible it may have arisen on Mars under those very same conditions," Huntress says.

John Pike, space policy director for the Federation of American Scientists in Washington, calls Pathfinder a "modest, but useful" mission that won't resolve the martian life issue.

For example, it cannot split open rocks to reach fossil-like structures like those found in a Martian metethe 793-pound Pathfinder lander, orite plucked from Antarctica's ice

Pike says last summer's announcement that meteorite ALH84001 might hold remains of ancient life rekindled public interest in Mars exploration and "put new unmanned spaceships to scout Mars missions on the agenda in a way that they would not previously

AIDS rises among children

AIDS cases rising among infants, according to U.N. report

by Stephanie Griffith

BRUSSELS, Belgium - At least a thousand children are contracting the AIDS virus each day, according to a U.N. report that warns of sharp increases in death's among children unless immediate steps are taken.

There were some 400,000 new HIV cases involving children under 18 last year, and some 350,000 children died of AIDS, the disease caused by HIV, the Geneva-based group UNAIDS said in its report released Friday.

The report did not supply comparable statistics for previous years, but said people under 18 are one of the fastest-growing groups of AIDS

It warned of big increases in infant mortality due to the disease - or rates of death for children less than 5 years old - especially in developing countries where there is a lack of medicine and health care.

In some regions of the world, those rates would increase by as much as 75 percent by the year 2000 unless there is immediate medical intervention, UNAIDS executive director Peter Piot said.

Albanians vote for parliament amid threats, violence

TIRANA, Albania (AP) - Reports of gunmen pressuring voters, arson and other intimidation Sunday marred parliamentary elections meant to steer Albania toward recovery after months of chaos. Still, Albanians overcame their fears and ventured to the polls as a first step in re-establishing order. One election official was killed in voting-related violence.

The election aimed to restore calm in a country controlled in places by armed groups and otherwise consumed by often violent rivalry between the president's Democrats and the Socialist-led opposi-

Watch as the conservatives turn on their own

avid Brock is not happy. As a conservative journalist who dares - dares - to occasionally deviate from strict party dogma, he has been shunned by his conservative cohorts. In this month's Esquire, he blasts a "hard-wired conservative movement that can function as a kind of neo-Stalinist thought police." Apparently, any conservative who criticizes anything conservative is verbally beaten in other conservative media, from The Wall Street Journal to the American Spectator to the Washington Times.

Sorry, David. Your friends have weird loyalties. You should read "Up From Conservatism" by Michael Lind, a writer who worked with conservative William F. Buckley for years before finally quitting the movement.

Lind, while a conservative in good standing, published a few articles criticizing Pat Robertson, leader of the Christian Coalition. Robertson has published several books inflamed with blatant anti-Semitism, and many of these books reached the bestseller lists. Not one to coddle fascists, Lind exposed him in several journals, including The New York Times Review

Robertson's book, The New World Order" uses a long list of World War II era anti-Semitic screeds as sources. Jews, according to Robertson, are "a tightly knit cabal whose goal is nothing less than a new world order under the domination of Lucifer and his followers." He recycles the typical conspiracy theories and says they "began to see the wealth of North America as a great treasure, and some of them still wanted to get their tentacles into America's economy."

Michael Totten

Not content to stop there, Robertson applauds their destruction. (We would not expect anyone to extend warm-fuzzy touchy feelies to perceived Luciferians.) "The part that Jewish intellectuals have played in the assault on Christianity," he writes, "may very possibly prove to be a grave mistake ... That investment may pay a terrible dividend." He claims the Jews deserved the Holocaust because they "killed Christ," (they didn't. Rome did), and he exalts in their final blow. "That tiny little nation (Israel) will find itself all alone in the world. Then, according to the Bible, the Jews will cry out to the one they have so long rejected" and be annihilated at Armageddon.

Robertson's words speak for themselves. Neither I nor Lind need to waste space critiquing him. But when Lind published his articles, his conservative "allies" unleashed a rapid-fire assault in one conservative journal after another, calling him a "liberal" and a "Marxist" and a "Communist." They then issued tortured defenses of Robertson such as Irving Kristol's remark that "Christians have always had funny ideas about Jews." Funny? Really? Kristol is Jewish. I am surprised he sees it that way.

The Republican associated with the far-right began to give the moderately conservative Lind serious pause. He slammed their "no enemies to the right" philosophy and grew weary of the "neo-southern conservatism (that) unites intense hostility to the national government with ruthless, cutthroat capitalism" He realized he couldn't stop the "theatrical denunciations of blacks, Catholics, Jews, atheists, homosexuals, modern artists, Darwinian biologists, and various other supposed enemies of the people."

Lind is no convert to liberalism, however. He is, more or less, an independent centrist today. The importance here is that when he was a card-carrying conservative, he was shunned, berated and openly abused by his peers because he didn't like Robertson's anti-Semitism. Apparently, the Republican Party needs Christian Coalition votes more than they need Michael Lind's input. They can't have him scaring mainstream conservatives away.

avid Brock's accusation that the conservative movement is "neo-Stalinist" is both a blatant exaggeration and an insight. Those in the conservative brain-trust are not killers, as Stalin was, nor will they ever be. But they are fanatical about their strict ideology and will, like Stalin, hurl anyone into the gutter who questions it. It is a symptom of decline. Stalinism, like modern conservatism, has a hard time withstanding serious scrutiny, especially from within the ranks. Apparently, today's conservatives feel that intimidation and slander are a necessary remedies. There is another side to Brock's accusation as well.

He and his conservative pals are employing the same silly tactic against each other they have used against liberals for a century.

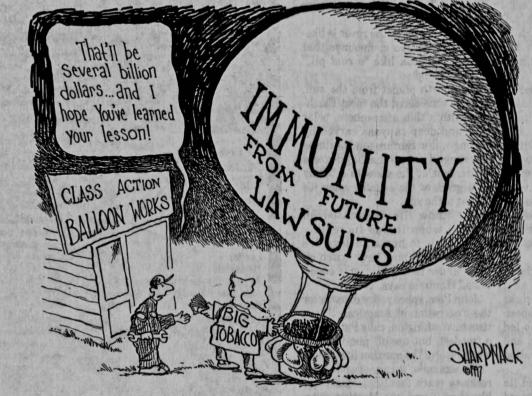

Red-baiting. How typical.

Discovering the wonders of 'liberal' economics and perspiration

ou just can't trust liberals to do much of anything right anymore, except kill off liberalism. They're getting pretty accomplished at that, which is probably why liberals rank right up there with Joe Camel and UI Athletic Department humor on the endangered species list.

Oh, I know there are all these people called Democrats scuttling around, though it's often hard to tell why they're doing it. And conservatives like to call them all liberals, but that's because conservatives need enemies. With the collapse of communism just about everywhere, the conservatives have been running a little dry in the enemy department, so they have to continually find liberals behind every closet door or under every bed, depending on their fetish. Basically, a conservative without an enemy is a lot like a carp out of water.

The latest liberal idea comes on the global economy front, and it's one that would do any hard-boiled capitalist from the last century proud: Sweatshops are good. They're good for you because you can buy cheap stuff, and they're good for the developing nations because that's the path to economic salvation. No, seriously. Jeffrey

Sachs, a Harvard economist with impressive liberal credentials (according to The New York Times), puts it: "My concern is not that there are too many sweatshops, but that there are too few." Tom Joad, saddle up that Model T.

Beau Elliot

The notion that Sachs and another Times liberal economist, Paul Krugman of MIT, are setting forth is so simple it's worthy of Rush Limbaugh: the "Four Tigers" - Singapore, Hong Kong, South Korea and Taiwan - became economic powers by starting out with sweatshops, and this is the template developing nations should follow. "Sweatshop jobs are the jobs that have to come to Africa to get them out of their backbreaking rural poverty," Sachs says.

Given the history of brilliant ideas that Americans and Europeans have generously shared with Africa, I could understand Africans possibly wanting to pass on this particular one. And to their credit (somewhat), neither Sachs nor Krugman have many illusions about what their idea might mean for workers in the developing nations. Krugman sees sweatshop owners as "soul-less multinationals and rapacious local entrepreneurs" whose chief goal is "to take advantage of the profit opportunities offered by cheap labor.

But lest anyone take him for one of those old-fashioned, warm and cuddly liberals, Krugman also says, "The overwhelming mainstream view among economists is that the growth of sweatshops is tremendous good news for the world's poor." And even better news for American consumers.

Not only are they assured of a steady supply of relatively inexpensive goods, but they no longer need to feel any guilt (assuming they ever did) it's good for Third Worlders to work for a dollar a day. With liberal ideas like these, who needs robber barons?

Yeah, yeah, I know - in the practical, "real" world, quite probably the only choice developing nations have is the sweatshop or no shop. This is a bottom-line kind of world, which in a practical sense means most people either take a bottom-line kind of job or they starve. I can be practical. I don't have to like it, though.

And I do wonder what the next great liberal idea will be. Indentured servitude, perhaps? Whoops, I forgot, we already have that. It's called welfare reform. Or welform, as I keep mispronouncing it.

suppose the next logical step for Brave New Capitalism will be to try out the sweatshop idea on America's poor. And with the economic wizardry that the combination of a Republican Congress and a Clinton White House can produce, we should have a more than plentiful supply of the poor quite soon. If sweatshops work for Malawi and the Congo, why should we deprive our own citizens of the chance to work for a less-than-subsistence wage in order to partake in an economic miracle? I mean, fair is

And when it happens, the liberals will be out in front, leading the charge. Of course, they won't look much very like the liberals that Franklin and Eleanor Roosevelt were familiar with. In fact, they'll bear an uncanny resemblance to Republicans. But, to paraphrase a great liberal, when you're building a bridge to the 21st century. appearances aren't everything; they're the only

Letters to Editor

Reader corrects Hong Kong facts

Several points about the handover of Hong Kong to China in Howard Heevner's editorial "Prepare for China takeover or for war" were simply incorrect. As a international student from Hong Kong, I think I need to clarify several points.

First, according to the new government of the Hong Kong Special Administrative Region (SAR), demonstrations like the one happened early this month are acceptable, and will be allowed in Hong Kong after July 1, provide that overturning the Chinese government is not the main idea of the demonstration.

Second, the writer did not mention the reason why the British Hong Kong government allows the People's Liberation Army to pass the border hours before July 1. The reason is that it takes more than an hour to travel from the border to the headquarters of the British Army in Hong Kong.

Third, the system that will be used in Hong Kong is called "One country, two systems", which means Hong Kong will still be a capitalist city while the mainland China will continue as a socialist country. There will be only one national government in Beijing. The government of the Hong Kong SAR will be just a local government. However, China proposed another system called "One country, two governments" several years ago. This system, according to Deng Xiao Ping, may be used to unite the mainland China and Taiwan sometime in the future.

The truth about UI alcohol grant

To the Editor:

Jade Roberston's column "UI should put the alcohol grant to better use" was misguided even if it was interesting. She seems confused about the source of the money for this media campaign—at times recognizing that the money comes from the RWJ grant ('grant' meaning that some foundation, person, etc. has awarded this money to the UI) and then referring to the poor student who enjoys alcohol in moderation bankrolling a pointless media campaign. She then goes on to imply that other, more worthy programs on campus go begging as if the UI passed them over when they were handing out the big bucks. The money she refers to is money that the Robert Wood Johnson Foundation intends to spend launching a national media campaign aimed at reducing binge drinking among college students all over the U.S. The UI will most likely see the end product of this campaign, as will thousands of colleges and universities, but we have not been given $830,000 to design such a campaign Her statement that the binge drinker

Dozens of cyclists were arrested for drunkenness and reckless driving.

BIJOU

Yershov said competition has been rising between the Bijou and Iowa City theaters in the last two years.

"Already the choices for films in Iowa City are limited," she said. "It's better if there's no overlap between the theaters."

The Bijou sold a record 5,000 tickets during the spring semester by showing more second-run films like "Swingers" and "Bound," which are independent films rarely shown in large chain theaters.

Arthur Stein, in charge of booking films for Central State Theaters, said his company is not trying to steal business from the Bijou.

He said the scheduling problem is simply due to a shortage of independent movie prints. Central States shows independent films at about the same time as the Bijou able to both organizations at roughly the same time.

"The problem with independents is that they don't make as many prints, and we have to wait a long time until they become available," he said. "Some of them come out with only nine prints, so they can show at only nine theaters at a time. It takes a while for them to get to us."

The booking of independent and foreign films has not been as profitable as showing big-budget films, Stein said, such as the restored "Star Wars" or "The Lost World: Jurassic Park," - singling out the Oscar-winning Czech Republic film "Kolya," showing now at Campus Theaters in the Old Capitol Mall.

"No one went to see 'Kolya' at all," he said. "We did no business and lost money."

Iowa City theaters book films anywhere from six months to a few weeks before they are shown, Stein because the prints become avail- said. However, the Bijou movie them first."

UI senior Ryan Bartelmay, Bijou co-director, said he can't say the Iowa City theaters' booking procedure is an attempt to put the Bijou out of business. We can't speculate on their motivation," he said. "It just sucks. Why show 'Kolya' when you can get something like (the first-run, independent film) 'Chasing Amy,' which is much more geared for Iowa City we college audiences?"

Because the Bijou is non-profit and self-supporting, getting films to Iowa City first is a perogative, Yer-

Eleven people were injured Saturday after thousands of people mistakenly thought they heard gunshots.

LAS VEGAS - Thousands of people panicked Saturday night after they believed shots were fired at the MGM Grand Hotel following a heavyweight fight between Evander Holyfield and Mike Tyson.

At least 11 people were injured by flying glass or by being partially trampled, said Cathy Hayes, a spokeswoman for Mercy Ambulance.

Several people at the hotel insisted they had heard shots, but the Nevada Highway Patrol and Las Vegas police said they found no evi-

There were fights, police Sgt. Will Minor said, but officers found "no shells, no people wounded, no indentations.

Hotel spokesman Jack Leone said breaking glass sparked the melee about 20 minutes after the fight.

The fight ended after Tyson was disqualified for biting his opponent in the third round. That sent the 16,000 fans who witnessed the fight from the MGM Grand Garden into the parking lot, where they mingled with thousands of others who were at the resort on the city's famous Strip. Traffic was at a standstill.

ROYAL OAK, Mich. (AP) - Detroit Red Wings star Vladimir Konstantinov and the team masseur of the Stanley Cup champions are coming out of their comas, but will still need months of rehabilitation, doctors said Sunday.

Konstantinov and Sergei Mnatsakanov have been upgraded to serious condition. They had been listed in critical condition since June 13 - six days after the Red Wings won their first Stanley Cup in 42 years - when the limousine they were in crashed into a tree.

LAS VEGAS - Evander Holyfield's right ear is in stitches, and Mike Tyson's boxing career is in tatters.

Iron Mike, the baddest man of the decade, went far beyond the bounds of even his violent sport and was disqualified after three rounds for biting Holyfield on both ears Saturday night.

"We don't know what's in store for Mike Tyson," said Jay Larkin, the man behind boxing for Showtime-SET, which still has a 1 1/2-year contract with Tyson. "We're waiting for a lot of

As for suing Tyson for the bites, one of which took a oneinch hunk out of the right ear, Thomas said, "I believe the action of Mike Tyson was a tortious action. Whether Evander Holyfield wants to do anything about that, we'll have to decide.

"Both of us feel for the good of this sport, which Evander has put a lot into over the years, there needs to be some consequences," Thomas said. "It's ust been hours since somebody bit a piece out of my best friend. I should calm down before deciding what to do." Thomas said his course of action would

Tyson disqualified from heavyweight title fight for biting Holyfield in the ear

Former heavyweight champion Mike Tyson says his career is over after biting a chunk off Evander Holyfield's ear Saturday night.

By Tim Dahlberg Associated Press

LAS VEGAS — In the sanctuary of his dressing room, Mike Tyson angrily tried to contemplate what he had just done. "It's over. I know it's over," Tyson kept repeating. "My career is over." Tyson had just fought his way through an enraged crowd that was screaming and making obscene gestures at him. A bottle of water thrown from the stands had just missed his head, and he had to be stopped from going into the seats to beat up his tormentors.

Minutes earlier, Tyson had been fighting Evander Holyfield for the heavyweight title in the richest Holyfield's ear after fight ever. A Saturday's fight. sellout crowd at the MGM Grand Garden was chanting his name as he rallied in the third round to bring the fight to Holyfield.

Then, he snapped.

In a clinch with Holyfield, their two heads together side by side, Tyson suddenly bit a gash out of the right ear of the champion, sending him leaping in the air in anger and pain.

Blood began flowing down the side of Holyfield's face as he headed toward his corner. Tyson watched for a few moments, then rushed across the ring and pushed Holyfield in the back, sending him into the

"He just bit a chunk out of his right ear and spit it on the canvas," said judge

Duane Ford, who was within a few feet of the fighters when Tyson first bit. It was one of the most bizarre scenes in a sport where bizarre is sometimes commonplace. But it wasn't over yet, and neither was the fight.

For four minutes, referee Mills Lane tried to restore order, deducting a point from Tyson for the bite and another for the push. As Holyfield stood bleeding in his corner, ring doctor Flip Homansky looked at the gash taken out of his ear and said the fight could continue. Meantime, assistant trainer Tommy Brooks was arguing for Holyfield to demand a disqualification. But the champion was angry, and wanted to continue.

"Put the mouthpiece in," he told Brooks. "I'm going to knock this guy out."

Thirty three seconds were left in the third round, and Holyfield resumed the action with a vicious left hook. The two clinched again, and then the unthinkable happened.

Tyson spit his mouthpiece out and took a bite of Holyfield's other ear.

The grants were the most dramatic result of the year-old agreement between the USOC and the NCAA to provide financial aid to Olympic sports facing extinction or an inability to get started in financially pinched college athletic departments. Sports such as men's gymnastics, wrestling and track have been especially hard hit, and efforts to start programs in relatively new sports such as team handball or women's ice hockey

Competition resumes at Wimbledon

For only the second time in history, matches were played on the middle Sunday at Wimbledon.

WIMBLEDON, England - The flag-waving, foot-stomping rabble took over Centre Court from the blue-blazered swells on People's Sunday II at Wimbledon and turned the joint into a soccer-style circus for beloved Brit Tim Hen-

The fans' full-throated roars and chants carried Henman from the brink of defeat to a rousing fourhour, 6-7 (9-7), 6-3, 6-2, 4-6, 14-12 triumph over Paul Haarhuis that will go down as one of the most dramatic in Wimbledon history, even if it only put Henman into the fourth round against defending champion Richard Krajicek

It was a match that defined a rare day at Wimbledon and overshadowed the ouster of six women seeds, including the only former champion in the draw, Conchita Martinez, and Olympic gold medalist Lindsay Davenport.

The rain that wrecked the opening-week schedule gave way to a weekend of chilly but dry weather that allowed the tournament to catch up on most of the postponed matches with play on the middle Sunday for only the second time. Like People's Sunday in 1991, Centre Court was filled with thousands of fans who queued up through the ever, saying he'd face more of a night to get seats that usually go only to the privileged.

From the word go, it was something I'd never experienced before," Henman said of the wildly screaming fans. "The noise was just a totally different level. I always have great support here, but in the situation of a middle Sunday that crowd played a huge part in the match. ... It gives you an amazing sort of buzz.'

Haarhuis held at match at 5-4 but double-faulted twice, each time the crowd parting with protocol and cheering those mistakes. Haarhuis refused to criticize the crowd, how-

The difference between Sunday's mob and the typically staid spectators, one steward commented, is "these people know something about tennis." They showed it not just in their patriotic cheers for Henman, who rallied from a break down at 3-5 in the fifth set, but in set the warm way they responded to beleaguered Monica Seles cheers by knocking off No. 7 Anke Huber 3-6, 6-4, 6-4, the No. 2 Seles received the loudest applause among the women.

A huge standing ovation brought a welcome smile to Seles' face when she beat Kristina Brandi 5-7, 6-3, 6-3 in a match that had been suspended because of darkness Saturday with Seles up 3-1 in the second

"The crowd was very spontaneous today," Seles said. "What was amazing to me is how dedicated some of the fans are to be sleeping outside (for tickets). I think they just love tennis, and at very few

SOMERS POINT, N.J.-Michelle McGann closed with a near-perfect 64 on Sunday to sprint past red-hot Annika Sorenstam and win the Shoprite LPGA Classic by three strokes over the two-time defending U.S. Open champion.

McGann finished at 12-under- iron up and over the trees. par 201, breaking the tournament record set last year by Dottie Pepper by one stroke. Sorenstam, in the top three for the ninth time in 13 tournaments this year, was at 204. Julie Inkster was third at 206.

The victory was McGann's second of the year and the seventh career win for the 27-year-old who is sure to be one of Sorenstam's main obstacles when she tries to win an unprecedented third consecutive U.S Women's Open in two weeks.

Sorenstam lost her chance for a fifth victory this year when she left her third shot in the greenside bunker on No. 17.

"It landed about 2 inches too "I had 140 yards to the front of short," she said. "Maybe I got too the green," she said. "I just hit a 9- greedy, but I had heard Michelle had made a birdie

Since winning her first LPGA tournament at the U.S. Open in 1995, Sorenstam has won 10 times in her last 40 LPGA tour events, an astonishing 25 percent of the time.

While McGann was overpowering the Greate Bay course, Sorenstam was struggling to hang on, showing grit to go with her grace as she made three sturdy par saves in the first five holes.

"I thought I had a chance," a lob wedge to 4 feet, but pulled back McGann said.

MEMPHIS, Tenn. - Greg Norman birdied his final three holes Sunday - the last with a 30-foot putt - to win the rain-plagued St. Jude Classic by one stroke, his first PGA Tour victory since March Norman's last tour victory came in the 1996 Doral-Ryder Open, six weeks before he blew a six-stroke lead in the final round of the Masters. The Australian star did win his fifth Australian Open title in November, and also took the Andersen Consulting World Champi-

(70) finished two strokes back. "I don't know whether it's relief," Norman said of picking up the $270,000 winner's check.

"I think it's more elation more than relief because I knew I was playing well and to me the game of golf is the challenge, the competitive nature which we have to play the game, but ... put it all together and win, that's what it's all about.

But Norman nearly missed his chance thanks to his putter. He Norman finished at 16-under missed several birdie chances early in the round. With Damron falling back into a pack of six others at 13third-round leader Robert Damron under and Hart in the locker room, Norman finally started his charge on the par-4 16th.

He sent his second shot into a greenside bunker, but chipped within inches of the hole for a tap-in birdie. He then hit a 4-iron 4 feet from the flag at the par-4 No. 17 and made the putt to tie

On No. 18, Norman used a 6-iron from 190 feet from the flag on his second shot and landed the ball 30 feet right of the pin.

"About 10 feet out I knew it was going in. It was one of those putts that came right out of the putter perfect speed so I looked up. I knew it was going in," he said.

Marsh edges Bland to win U.S. Senior Open

By Mike Nadel Associated Press

OLYMPIA FIELDS, Ill. - Graham Marsh overcame seven bogeys in the final round Sunday, making a birdie on the 17th hole and a perfect par on No. 18 to edge buddy John Bland and win the U.S. Senior Open.

It was the first major championship for Marsh, an Australian who had come close but failed in his first three appearances in the tournament. He won despite a closing round of 4-over-par 74.

Victorious for the second consecutive week on the Senior PGA Tour, Marsh earned $232,500 by being the only player to shoot even-par at Olympia Fields Country Club's challenging North Course. He is the first Senior being patient when things are Open winner not to break par since Jack Nicklaus in 1991.

Bland, a South African who has finished in the top seven in six of his last seven events but hasn't won this year, ended at 1-over. Gil Morgan and Tom Wargo were another stroke back Nicklaus, who played well but was able to make only two of his 15 birdie putts Sunday, was in a fiveplayer group that tied for fifth at 4over. He shot 69, his best round of the tournament. Hale Irwin, the tour's top money winner, also was in that group after carding Sunday's best score, 67.

Leonard Thompson, Dave Eichelberger and Hugh Baiocchi were the others at 4-over.

Marsh and Bland, who have played against each other numerous times over the years and teamed to win the Legends of Golf earlier this season, went into the 18th hole tied.

After Bland drove the ball into the short rough, just in front of a fairway bunker, Marsh sent his drive about 295 vards down the middle of the fairway.

"My best drive for the week,"

Bland then hit a 3-iron into the trap guarding the right side of the green and Marsh followed with an iron within 18 feet. Bland blasted out of the sand and narrowly missed an 18-foot par putt before tapping in for the bogey Marsh knew he could two-putt and win, and he did just that. He held up both arms in triumph, hugged Bland for several seconds and then pumped his right fist to the cheering crowd. "Somehow, I scrambled and scraped and got it done.'

Marsh said. "I didn't have the kind of start I was looking for, but my plan was just to be totally , patient. It's easy to be patient when things are going well. The challenge is going astrav." He went into the round with a two-stroke lead over Bland, but promptly bogeyed the first three

Marsh's last bogey came on 16, when he three-putted a treacherously undulating green for a bogey. Bland parred, and both were at 1over going into the dramatic final two holes

Both birdied 17, Marsh after hitting a 9-iron from a replaced divot hole to within 8 feet and Bland with a 12-foot putt.

Marsh, 53, who has won 60 championships in Europe, Japan, Australia and the United States, captured his fifth title since joining the Senior PGA Tour in 1994.

He was runner-up to Simon Hobday in the '94 open, and finished eighth and fourth in the tournament in subsequent years.

Yankee slugger Tino Martinez hit his sixth home run in six days, helping New York beat Cleveland, 11-10.

NEW YORK (AP) - Tino Martinez bailed out New York's bullpen with an RBI single in the eighth inning as the Yankees outlasted the Cleveland Indians, 11-10.

After Yankees relievers blew a three-run lead in the top of the eighth, Martinez came through in the home half to continue his hitting tear. Martinez, who hit a three-run homer in the first inning, has 11 hits in his last 20 atbats and has six homers in his last six games.

Electronica's last chance?

Prodigy's highly-anticipated new album is being used as an industry barometer for the popularity of electronic-based music.

> By Ben Schnoor The Daily Iowan

While the hard-driving beats of electronica music dominate the discos of Europe, the musical genre that includes such acts as Prodigy and the Chemical Brothers has yet to achieve large-scale popularity in America.

On the eve of the release of the Land, music industry executives are hoping America is ready to groove to the sounds of the latest musical trend.

Prodigy was one of the first electronica groups to reap success in the early '90s as the electronica movement gained momentum across Europe. With an ultraaggressive sound, challenging lyrics and an unlikely fusion between dance and rock music, the foursome shook up the dance scene in Europe with their breakthrough album Music For the Jilted Generation in 1994. The group followed with two hits on the European charts in 1996, "Firestarter" and included on the long-anticipated The Fat of the Land.

Although electronica music has broke, and they're hoping this been hyped to be the next popular album will be a springboard," trend in music and has infiltrated into American culture through MTV's show "Amp," which plays videos from such groups as Future Sound of London, Orbital, The Chemical Brothers and Prodigy, no electronica album has managed to break into the Billboard Top 10 of record sales. The Fat of the Land is expected to be the first.

"It's going to be huge," said Prodigy's new album, The Fat of Susie Hoffman, assistant manager of Vibes Music, 119 E. Washington St. "We've had so many people come in the store inquiring about

Due to the large demand, Vibes Music will be opening at midnight to sell the album. Other record stores in Iowa City are also anticipating big sales.

"It's going to be one of our biggest sellers this summer," said Chad Smith of BJ's Compact Discs, 6 1/2 S. Dubuque St. "With all of the exposure it's been getting, it should open a lot of people's eyes." However, it is unclear whether

U2's PopMart sells heart with hype

Despite the negative pre-publicity, U2's Pop-Mart '97 show at Chicago's Soldier Field was a audience pleaser.

> By Jenn Snyder The Daily Iowan

U2's PopMart '97 has been called everything from the greatest show on Earth to a corporate fabrication.

It may well be the most extravagant, controversial tour that's ever crossed the 50 states. But what seems to have been ignored in countless articles about ticket prices, media hype and technological overkill is the most important facet of this tour - the music.

PopMart '97 came to Chicago's Soldier Field Friday night for a three-day stint in the Windy City. I was there, section 106, sixth row, to witness Pop in its full glory.

The show, from the moment Bono bobbed and weaved across the stage for his entrance to the final, powerful version of "One," PopMart was about making music by and for the fans. The crowd sang loud and true on U2 classics like "Pride" and Still, U2's video screen, nearly 50 yards wide and 25 yards tall, was an ncredible stage presence in of itself. Soldier Field is a large venue, and from my seat, Bono bounced around on stage like a silver-clad flea. But U2. He waved his the video screen, oft lambasted for arm across the its gratuitous size, was a concertgoer's dream. It brought the band together with the audience, making kitch, and said, the show more personal - no easy task with more than 30,000 fans.
