UIHC looks for artificially inseminated women
UIHC record-keepers are trying to find the three Iowa women who were artificially inseminated there 44 years ago.

By Jill Steimling

It has been 44 years since UIHC helped three Iowa women become pregnant in an unprecedented experiment using frozen sperm from dead patients. The experiment was conducted by Dr. Larry Coleman, who has been at the Forefront of assisted reproduction for many years. The experiment was conducted in 1977.

The project was started by Dr. Larry Coleman, who was appointed as a consultant to the Department of Medicine at the University of Iowa in 1976. He also worked closely with the Department of Obstetrics and Gynecology.

The project was supported by the National Institutes of Health (NIH) under a grant from the National Institute of Child Health and Human Development (NICHD).

The goal of the project was to determine if it was possible to use frozen sperm from deceased donors to achieve pregnancy in infertile women.

The project involved the collection of sperm from deceased men who had been declared brain dead and had been donated for research purposes. The sperm was then frozen and stored for later use.

The project was conducted in two stages. In the first stage, 18 women were recruited to participate in the study. Each woman was implanted with up to four frozen sperm samples, and the pregnancy rate was monitored over a period of time.

In the second stage of the project, 12 more women were recruited to participate in the study. Each woman was implanted with up to four frozen sperm samples, and the pregnancy rate was monitored over a period of time.

The results of the study showed that the pregnancy rate was low, with only 3 of the 30 women who were implanted with frozen sperm becoming pregnant. However, the study did provide valuable information about the potential use of frozen sperm from deceased donors.

Iowa law may be a little too tough on crime

Monday, May 25th

The Missouri River Basin is one of the areas in Iowa where crime is a major concern. State officials are trying to find ways to address the issue.

4 or after the Mexican Revolution, they have ruled as ligerent autocrats pretending to be democrats. Since 1989 alone, almost 70 percent of the votes cast were for people who had been assassinated. When murder didn't finish them off, the PRI simply violated election law. They passed the votes to their favorite candidates and intimidation and violence when their voters were packing boxes and being watched by factory guards. After 1994, the military was no longer needed to keep the workers from striking or Voting. The new PRI was installed by both the Mexican army and the ruling party of the Democratic Revolution. The PRI's main apparatus has been strengthened and is stronger today than it has been in decades. But democracy doesn't even begin to be spoken about in Mexico when the PRI is on the loose. The PRI's most recent PRI government in Mexico has been blamed for declining environmental standards, the election laws have been changed to allow corruption to thrive, the military has expanded its power into the streets and wields the new PRI as a gibe, the PRI's time has run out. "Apt. 2F"

By John H. Thompson

Comment. Thrilling as it is to watch the current version of "Apt. 2F," there's no question that it's a far cry from the original version, which was a much more intimate look at the lives of the two young women sharing an apartment in New York City. The new version, which features Whitney Houston as one of the roommates, is more about the big city and less about the small personal issues that made the original so compelling.

Comment. "Oddville" was the new name for "Beans and Butt-Head" when it moved to MTV. The series followed two young men as they navigated the ups and downs of college life.

Unethical fund raising by bipartisan issue

By Larry Margaros

WASHINGTON — A top adviser to Speaker Newt Gingrich was named yesterday for a $50,000 contribution.

John Robins, former president of the National College Republicans, has been hired by the Republican National Committee, Gingrich's closest adviser, to develop a "strategic plan to bring before a Senate investigative committee the facts of the donations that were made to the National Forum from January 1995 through the end of last year, when it went out of existence."

Gaylord, Gingrich's closest adviser and top political consultant, asked the Federal Election Commission last week to investigate the forum and its finances.

"We've got a lot of work to do," Gaylord said yesterday. "As you know, it's altered the way we do business."

The forum was a separate fundraising group that was allowed to use enabling Federal Election Commission contributions that were not allowed by the Republican National Committee. Gaylord said the forum was "paid a small amount of money" to help raise money for the Republican National Committee.

\[\textbf{Nation}\\]

The National Political Forum, now defunct, is among a handful of tax-exempt groups that have been investigated by the Internal Revenue Service for possibly violating the law by using funds for purposes other than those for which the groups were created.

The group was created by former Republican party chairman Haley Barbour, who was also called as a witness yesterday.

Philips running away from past

St. Louis running back Lawrence Phillips has gone from college football bad boy to NFL role model.

By K.E. Callahan

MACHER, III. — Every day this week, Missouri Valley Conference coach Tim Shaw has practiced football with some 200 players at a camp that includes a lot of young men, lots of hard work, lots of mistakes, and almost always, lots of fun.

"A lot of veterans are going to miss the camp," Shaw said. "We work with the kids, we work with them in this thing." But there's no denying that Phillips, a star at Missouri Valley College, is the biggest draw of the camp.

"The kids love him, they love the way he talks," Shaw said. "They love his enthusiasm, they love his energy." And they love the way he runs.

"He's got a lot of good things going for him," Shaw said. "He's got a good attitude, he's got a lot of energy, he's got a lot of enthusiasm, he's got a lot of love for the game, and he's got a lot of passion for it." Phillips, who was once a star at Missouri Valley College, is now a role model for many young men around the country.

With the camp in its second week, Phillips is already making a difference in the lives of some of the players.

Vaughn denies assault accusation

By Kent Roger

CINCINNATI -- Dennis Vaughn, who has long been a pariah in baseball circles, refused to take a day off from the major leagues to face assault charges.

"I wasn't asked to be in the game," Vaughn said through a interpreter. "If I was, I would have been in the lineup." Vaughn, who was arrested last week on charges of assault, refused to comment on the charges. "I'm not talking about that," he said.

Vaughn said he was asked to play in a pickup game on Saturday, but he declined. "I don't want to play in a pickup game," he said.

On Sunday, he was asked to report to the Indians' training camp in Goodyear, Arizona. "I want to be a professional," he said, "but I don't want to play in a pickup game." Vaughn is a free agent, and the Indians are unlikely to sign him.

WASHINGTON -- Shawn Green, the Los Angeles Dodgers' center fielder, was charged with assault after a confrontation with a fan.

Green, who was waiting for a bus with his wife and daughters, was asked to leave the bus by the driver. When he refused, the driver called the police.

"I was just trying to make a point," Green said. "I don't like being asked to leave." Green was charged with assault and battery and is scheduled to appear in court.

CINCINNATI -- LCDR. Robert H. Lee, a 20-year veteran of the U.S. Navy, was named the new skipper of the USS New Mexico, a guided-missile cruiser.

Lee, who has served in the Navy for 20 years, was named the new skipper of the New Mexico in a ceremony at the Navy Yard.

"I'm honored to be named the new skipper of the New Mexico," Lee said. "I've always been proud to serve in the Navy." Lee is a native of California and has served in the Persian Gulf and the Mediterranean Sea.

NEW YORK -- The New York Yankees re-signed pitcher Hideki Irabu.

Irabu, who agreed to a one-year deal worth $6 million, was released by the Yankees last week.

"I'm happy to be back with the Yankees," Irabu said. "I want to show that I can still pitch at a high level." Irabu, who was a free agent, was 1-5 with a 7.38 ERA in 13 starts for the Yankees last season.
