Bloomfield case continues

Police search for answers in the murder of an Iowa City woman.

By Nathan Hill
The Daily Iowan

Iowa City Police said they have few new leads in the murder of Iowa City resident Frances Bloomfield.

However, police have concluded that the murder occurred in Bloomfield's residence, according to Deputy Steve Court of the Winnebago County Sheriff's Office.

"They have a crime scene in Iowa City because they can tell there was some conflict in the house," he said. "So we've assumed she was killed in the house and moved from there."

Bloomfield's body was found Monday on the 5500 block of Simpson Road, near Rockford, Ill., wrapped in two large black trash bags secured with duct tape, her hands and feet tied with rope, said Sue Fiduccia, Winnebago County (Illinois) coroner.

Neighbors said they last saw Frances Bloomfield late Saturday afternoon, and her husband John reported her missing early Monday morning after returning from a conference in Paris.

Iowa City Police said they are uncertain why the killer chose Rockford to dispose of the body, but ICPD Captain Patrick Harney added that Rockford may have been chosen because of its highway access to urban areas.

"If you're in that area you could be going to Rockford, you could be going to Milwaukee, you could be going to Chicago or you could be going to locations beyond that," he said.

Fiduccia estimated the body was lying next to the isolated road for just a few hours before it was found by a passerby test-driving a car.

She also said Bloomfield had been dead for "right around 48 hours" when police discovered her body.

The cause of death was asphyxiation, but Fiduccia said she could not comment on the manner of strangulation because it's an ongoing investigation.

TIMELINE

Monday, Sept. 13: John Bloomfield, a researcher for the UI's Center for Computer Aided-Design, leaves for Paris to attend a conference.

Monday morning, Sept. 22: John Bloomfield returns to find his wife and their Honda Accord missing. Between 6 and 7 a.m. he calls the police.

Monday afternoon: ICPD investigates the house and suspect foul play in the disappearance.

Monday evening: A man finds a body covered in plastic in the 5500 block of Simpson Road, near Rockford, Ill.

Saturday, Sept. 20: Frances Bloomfield is seen for the last time by neighbors late Saturday afternoon.

Wednesday, Sept. 24: The Winnebago County Sheriff's Office and ICPD identify the body as Frances Bloomfield's using dental records.

Thursday, Sept. 25: Winnebago County police say Bloomfield's death occurred in her house, not on the way to Rockford.

Planned Parenthood wins first battle

Actions by state officials to prevent building a Bettendorf facility were ruled "unconstitutional," but the organization awaits a fight with the city.

By Greg Kirschling and Mose Hayward
The Daily Iowan

Iowa officials unfairly used state regulations to prevent a Planned Parenthood clinic from being built in Bettendorf, the U.S. Eighth Circuit Court of Appeals ruled Thursday.

The ruling will not be appealed, according to a spokesperson for the Iowa Department of Health. However, Planned Parenthood of Greater Iowa must win a separate court battle with Bettendorf officials before it can break ground for a clinic.

Jill June, president of Planned Parenthood of Greater Iowa, said she believes the conflicts with both the state and Bettendorf were politically motivated.

The trouble with the state of Iowa began in 1995, when Planned Parenthood introduced plans for a Bettendorf clinic. The Department of Health said the clinic might be subject to a "certificate of need" law, which required Planned Parenthood to prove its services were needed.

"In the 10 years preceding this case, no similarly structured outpatient clinic had been required to obtain a certificate of need before opening for business. Indeed, other clinics providing essentially the same services as PPI, but not pregnancy termination services, were exempted from certificate of need review," the court ruled.

Battling a certificate of need is a long process, June said, and none of Planned Parenthood's 16 other clinics were held to that law, so Planned Parenthood took the case to federal court. Planned Parenthood won the case and the state's appeal.

Co-workers didn't see racial bias

Testimony resumed Thursday in the civil trial filed by a former radiologist resident that claims racial discrimination by three UIHC doctors.

By Steven Cook
The Daily Iowan

Several UI radiologists said Thursday that they hadn't noticed any racial bias occurring in their department as testimony continued in a discrimination suit against the University Hospitals and Clinics.

Retired UIHC Radiologist Frank Behlke took the stand midway through the day and spoke about his interaction with Dr. Jon Kersetter, a Native American who filed the race discrimination suit against the UIHC in 1994.

"I would say there were certain proclivities (inclinations) he demonstrated that later became enunciated," Behlke said under examination by Kersetter's attorney, Marc Moen, about his evaluation of Kersetter. "I did not see anything there that would make me feel that he should not continue on."

Under cross-examination by Iowa Asst. Atty. Gen. CeCe Ibsen, Behlke admitted that he had not witnessed any racial or biased attitudes by the defendants.

"I don't think at any time — Dr. Sato, Dr. Franken, or Dr. Smith — that they were out to get somebody; they wanted an open and honest discussion," Behlke said of a Nov. 8, 1990, meeting in which the defense suggested only negative comments on Kersetter were solicited.

Kersetter, 46, of Iowa City, is suing three UIHC doctors and the state of Iowa, claiming he was forced out of residency at the UI Radiology Department in 1990 because of racial tensions between the three doctors and himself.

Named in the lawsuit are the state of Iowa, Dr. Edmund Franken, Dr. Yutaka Sato, and Dr. Wilbur Smith, all of whom are members of the Radiology Department. Franken is the head of the Radiology Department at the time of the alleged incidents.

However, the UIHC maintains Kersetter was fired because of poor job performance, not race, Ibsen said.

Several UIHC radiology doctors also testified Thursday about monthly

Albert pleads guilty, loses NBC job

Sportscaster Marv Albert's plea could land him a year in jail.

By Michelle Boorstein
Associated Press

ARLINGTON, Va. — After three days that put the details of his kinky sex life on trial, Marv Albert pleaded guilty Thursday to assault and battery charges that could bring him a year behind bars and perhaps a lifetime of humiliation. Within hours, NBC fired him.

"From my point of view, I just felt like I had to end this ordeal," Albert said outside court in a weary voice after agreeing to a deal in which prosecutors dropped the more serious charge of forcible sodomy, which carried from five years to life in prison.

Albert, 56, was accused by a long-time lover of flinging her onto a bed, viciously biting her back and forcing her to perform oral sex in an Arlington hotel room Feb. 12 because she failed to bring another man into their bed.

His plea came a day after a surprise witness came forward with similar accusations: that Albert — wearing white panties and a garter belt — bit her on the neck and tried to force her to perform oral sex on him during a 1994 struggle in a Dallas hotel room that left her holding the sportscaster's toupee.

"The significance of that testimony is profound," Arlington County Commonwealth's Attorney Richard Trodden said outside court, adding that the plea bargain was endorsed by Albert's 42-year-old accuser.

Students vie for council vacancy

With three students on the ballot, UI officials hope to see a student presence on next year's City Council.

By Laura Heinauer
The Daily Iowan

With primaries only 12 days away, candidates are scrambling to mobilize voters for the primary election Oct. 7.

UI students and Iowa City residents can vote in the City Council primaries if they are registered to vote in Iowa City or if they register at the county auditor's office by 5 p.m. today.

Candidates are passing out voter registration forms at the Public Library, at the county auditor's office and banks and businesses downtown.

UI senior Eric Filson said students should get involved in city politics, but many of them don't because they probably won't see the long-term benefits from their actions.

"In the abstract sense, students have to be a political force in this town; however, the majority of the students aren't here long enough to benefit from the changes being made," Filson said.

Eight candidates are running for the at-large seat, which is currently occupied by Councilor Ernie Lehman.

Lehman, along with Iowa City residents John Lohman, Gary Sanders, Mike O'Donnell, Derek Maurer, John Jones, Ross Wilburn and Allen Stroh Jr., will be on the ballot next Wednesday; only four will advance to the general election Nov. 4.

Jones, Stroh and Lohman say they are all trying to bring a student perspective to the council, which some students say has been lacking in the past few years.

Meghan Henry, vice president of the UI Student Government, said she would like to see a UI student on the council.

"The students make up a large percentage of Iowa City's population, and I honestly think that the council is lacking in its representation of students," Henry said. "Having someone with our perspective on the council would be great."

UI Prof. Cary Covington, who teaches American politics, said the UI's large presence in the community commands attention.

Biker surprises professor

A researcher biked from Chicago to the UI to work with a renowned researcher — too bad no one knew she was coming.

By Jutta Schausten
The Daily Iowan

Although she biked more than 250 miles to meet a UI professor, Dr. Alexandra Feinberg's arrival in Iowa City came as a surprise Thursday.

Feinberg, a clinical director of the Fluency Readiness Program at the Institute for Psychoanalysis in Chicago, developed a program that treats stuttering using psychological methods.

She rode to the UI from Chicago, hoping to collaborate with UI officials who also work with stuttering. She said she planned to meet Patricia Zebrowski, a UI associate professor in speech pathology, who primarily works with stuttering.

However, Feinberg didn't succeed in informing anyone at the UI of her trip, including Zebrowski.

"I've been calling to let them know since July," Feinberg said of her efforts to get in touch with Zebrowski. "Because she feared being ignored, as she has often experienced, Feinberg said she didn't announce her arrival by mail.

Dr. Alexandra Feinberg, center, a Clinical Director of the Fluency Readiness Program at the Institute for Psychoanalysis in Chicago, rode her bike more than 250 miles from Chicago to meet with UI associate professor Patricia Zebrowski.

"I could have sent the information about my ride, but I didn't want it to go in the garbage bin immediately," she said.

So instead, she showed up at the center in person and met with Zebrowski to discuss how they can collaborate to combat stuttering.

Feinberg said she chose the UI's Wendell Johnson Speech and Hearing Center due to its well-known reputation.

Zebrowski said she doesn't know a lot about Feinberg's research or her program, but she is willing to collaborate once she learns more about the program.

"I don't have a clear idea of what she does in her approach, but I do agree that it is essential to deal with the psychological elements associated with stuttering when you are providing therapy," she said. "But I am not ready to collaborate with her until I know what she does."

Feinberg, a recovered stutterer, said her program is "a potpourri" of cognitive, behavioral and psychological treatments. However, she said, it is hard to put in words.

"It is difficult to describe this kind of therapy. It is a very unique form that needs visual aids," Feinberg said.

Therefore, she decided to bike from Chicago as a campaign to raise funds to finance the production of a video that would display her techniques.

Zebrowski said she already addresses psychological aspects of treatment in her work at the UI.

"Any speech or language pathologist that deals with stuttering knows you have to deal with the emotional aspects of the person," she said. "I routinely teach that to graduate students in my program."

Even though Feinberg met Zebrowski, exactly if, or how, they are going to work together is uncertain.

Senator Wellstone to speak at UI

A Minnesota Senator has scheduled several stops in Iowa City and on the UI campus.

By Kelli Otting

Sen. Paul Wellstone, a potential candidate for president in 2000, will meet with UI students on Monday to talk about education and economics.

Wellstone, a Democrat from Minnesota, will speak to UI students in Prof. Jael Silliman's class at 9:30 a.m. in E104 Seashore Hall. The senator said he will focus on the educational and economic issues that affect the nation's young people.

"A lot of young people are going to become increasingly involved with these issues," Wellstone said. "They need to be aware of the financial decisions that will affect their future."

More and more students today are having a difficult time trying to find jobs after graduation that offer decent wages and benefits, Wellstone said.

"Most students graduate from college already in debt," he said. "It is important for students to know that there are still a lot of discrepancies between women's and men's wages and also job offerings in today's world."

The hour-long program will also include such issues as the increase attend Wellstone's lecture.

"There is no better person to talk about this agenda," Hall said. "Senator Wellstone is a liberal senator who takes the moderate issues and makes them important instead of taking on only mainstream issues."

Wellstone played a role in raising the federal minimum wage, and he supported legislation that would protect the security of thousands of families by preventing corporations from raiding seniors' pension funds.

UI sophomore and Democrat Chris Logli said he has seen Wellstone speak before and is looking forward to hearing him again.

"Senator Wellstone is a very dynamic speaker," Logli said. "I would encourage all students to attend. Senator Wellstone has a lot of important information for people both young and old."

In addition to Monday's talk, Wellstone will speak at an event for Bob Rush, and he will also be a keynote speaker at a Johnson County Democrats meeting on Sunday.

Wellstone said he's looking forward to returning to a college campus; for 21 years, he taught political science at Carleton College in Northfield, Minn.

"I'm pretty comfortable with universities and also the students," he said. "I hope I can provide some helpful information to students to secure their futures."

Neighbors cope in aftermath of Bloomfield murder

Residents of the neighborhood where Frances Bloomfield lived are overwhelmed with the intense media coverage.

By Nathan Hill
The Daily Iowan

Iowa City's Village Green neighborhood has the classic suburban look — trees planted everywhere, freshly mowed lawns and a neighborhood watch sign at the corner. Residents of the neighborhood describe it as a very quiet place to live.

Not anymore. The murder of Frances Bloomfield has opened a floodgate of newspaper reporters and television crews rushing to the neighborhood to interview anyone who knew the Bloomfields.

It has added a whole new dimension to this once serene community.

Many residents say they are bewildered with the media activity surrounding the murder of the Iowa City woman.

Several indicated they had been interviewed up to four times by different newspapers or television stations.

"A newspaper guy called me at seven this morning and woke me up," said one resident who was fed up and refused to give his name. "Another one knocked on my door when I was just in my bathrobe. It's crazy."

The spectacle of media activity has parents worried about their children, who routinely watch TV news reporters broadcast live from the Bloomfield house.

"The only traffic around here is usually people who live here," said Ervin Gjovig, a resident of Wakefield Court. "Now this street has been busy all day. I worry about the kids who usually play in the street. It's ridiculous. That van has been there all day," he said, pointing at a TV-news truck.

Ervin's wife, Helen Gjovig, said the news of the murder shocked her.

"We're all concerned because that type of thing doesn't happen around here," she said. "I still think this is a good neighborhood."

The murder also came as a surprise to many UI students, who generally perceive Iowa City as crime-free.

Meg Neary, UI freshman, said the crime makes her think twice about the safety of Iowa City.

"As a single female it really scares me," she said. "I'm thinking of getting an apartment and living by myself, but something like this kind of makes me reconsider."

Many students said they would learn lessons from the tragedy and be more cautious in the future.

"It's kind of scary that someone could just come into your house and take you," said Kristi Cleemann, UI freshman. "Hopefully it'll make everyone a little more careful."

"It makes you feel like it could happen to anyone," Anna Gonzales, UI sophomore, said. "I think Iowa City is pretty safe, but you never know who could be out to get you."

Most students said the crime wasn't something they expected in Iowa City.

"It's scary that something like this could happen here," said Eric Palmer, UI senior. "I think Iowa City generally is a safe place to live. Students should make sure they look over their shoulder and not take their safety for granted."

BLOOMFIELD/Case continues

There were bruises found on the body, but Fiduccia said she could not comment on their location.

Harney said neither Iowa City nor the Winnebago county police have any leads.

"We're trying to piece everything back together, and hopefully that will lead to something," he said.

John Bloomfield could not be reached for comment, but Iowa City police said he's forlorn about the loss of his wife.

"He's taking it hard like anyone would," Harney said. "He's with family and friends now."

There have been no sightings of Frances Bloomfield's vehicle, a red Honda Accord, Winnebago police said.

K.K. Choi, director of the CCAD lab and UI professor of mechanical engineering, said he hasn't heard from John Bloomfield since he left for Paris.

Bloomfield is a very capable researcher who rarely spoke about his home life, Choi said.

"He never talked about his wife," he said. "I don't know anything about her."

The ICPD isn't releasing any further details concerning Frances Bloomfield's personal life, but Harney said she did a lot of charity work, and neighbors said she was a kind and gentle person.

Further tests are planned on Bloomfield's body, including a tox study to determine whether Bloomfield was raped before her death.

"I don't believe there was any sexual assault, but I'm not sure," Fiduccia said. "There's no outward indication. The tests will come back in about 10 days. Then we'll know for sure."

Clinton pays homage to Little Rock Nine

■ The anniversary of the nine black students breaking the color line in Arkansas was commemorated with Clinton and others.

By Terence Hunt
Associated Press

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. — In a powerful gesture of racial healing, President Clinton pulled open the front door of Central High School Thursday and stood back to welcome nine blacks who had braved hate-filled mobs 40 years ago to break an all-white color barrier.

"What happened here changed the course of our country forever," Clinton said, recalling a racial drama that wrenched America and was seared in history on television screens around the world.

"Forty years ago today, they climbed these steps, passed through this door and moved our nation. And for that we must all thank them," said Clinton. The audience — black and white together — roared approval.

But even as he commemorated an important, early victory of the civil rights movement, Clinton warned that American schools are resegregating, opportunities for jobs and education remain unequal and affirmative action programs are being rolled back, "slamming shut the doors of higher education on a new generation."

"Segregation is no longer the law," Clinton said, "but too often separation is still the rule. And we cannot forget one stubborn fact that has not yet been said as clearly as it should: there is still discrimination in America."

"We have to keep working on it — not just with our voices but with our laws," the president said. "And we have to engage each other in it."

Arkansas Gov. Mike Huckabee, a Republican, also stirred the crowd, saying, "What happened here 40 years ago was simply wrong. It was evil. And we renounce it."

Huckabee, a Baptist minister, said that in many parts of the South, "It was the white churches that helped not only ignore the problems of racism but in many cases actually fostered those feelings and those sentiments."

Clinton was 11 years old during the Little Rock crisis, attending segregated schools 50 miles away in Hot Springs. "It was Little Rock that made racial equality a driving obsession in my life," he said.

After a morning drizzle, skies turned blue and a warm sun beat down on Central students and hundreds of guests, including the family of the late Supreme Court Justice Thurgood Marshall, a civil rights pioneer.

Now middle-aged, the so-called Little Rock Nine — six women and three men — basked in cheers and applause, a sharp contrast to the taunts and jeers they braved as teen-agers. The president led them up Central's steps and he held open the school's heavy glass-paneled doors, greeting each of the nine with a handshake or a pat. Clinton was assisted by Huckabee and Little Rock Mayor Jim Daley.

Bomb scare mars ceremony

■ FBI investigates suspicious device outside Little Rock clinics, but no bombs found.

By Chuck Bartels
Associated Press

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. — Trucks similar to the one used in the Oklahoma City bombing were parked outside a pair of abortion clinics Thursday, touching off bomb scares just before President Clinton spoke across town. No explosives were found.

Dogs sniffed out suspected explosive devices in the trucks, which blocked access to the clinics, but the city's bomb crew said all it found was road-flare residue in the trucks' tool boxes.

"This was some type of protest," bomb crew chief Bernie Sherwood said. "They wanted to take the concern that we had with the Oklahoma City bombing and the Ryder truck and maximize the threat for a protest."

Police said the same person rented both trucks; an investigation was continuing.

A truck laden with fertilizer and fuel exploded outside the Oklahoma City federal building April 19, 1995, killing 168.

The abortion clinics are three and seven miles away from Central High School, where Clinton honored the first black students to attend the school 40 years ago.

The president appeared at Central about 10:15 a.m. — five minutes after he was scheduled to speak. It wasn't immediately clear if the delay was caused by the discoveries.

Bill McEntire, a firefighter at the scene of one clinic, said emergency crews were called in after someone blocked traffic and ran away. Some nearby buildings were evacuated.

Bomb-sniffing dogs made a pass through Central High this morning before any of the dignitaries arrived. No incidents were reported near the school.

"I'm sure that this will take away from the program that is taking place today (at Central)," said Carolyn Izard, the director of one of the two clinics, Little Rock Family Planning.

■ British editors tackle through new newspaper reforms in wake of the fatal crash that killed the Princess.

By Audrey Woods
Associated Press

LONDON — No more paparazzi pictures. No more gangs of reporters outside people's homes. No payments to children for stories.

Reacting to the uproar over press intrusion following the death of Princess Diana, the Press Complaints Commission asked editors Thursday to voluntarily adopt "the toughest set of industry regulations anywhere in Europe."

"Motorbike chases, stalking and hounding are unacceptable — and editors who carry pictures obtained by them will be subjected to the severest censure," said the commission's chairman, Lord Wakeham.

"I have found that editors across the industry have been of the same mind — times have changed — and we want to change with them," he said in outlining the new code of a news conference.

However, work continued on details of the code, including conflicts between an "overriding public interest" and personal privacy — questions which are acute in coverage of Britain's royal family and government officials. No timetable was set for when a final code would be issued.

AMSTERDAM, the Netherlands (AP) — After months of wrangling, Dutch lawmakers have approved a plan to supply long-term addicts with free heroin.

The three-month experiment, which will involve 50 addicts, aims to improve their health and curb drug-related crimes. It will begin next March and may be expanded to include 750 addicts, researchers deem it a success.

Parliament approved the program Wednesday night after months of debate.

While the politicians bickered, on pastor in Rotterdam took matters into his own hands and started to help long-term addicts buy cheap heroin from local dealers. However, after warnings from the Rotterdam prosecutor's office this week the Rev. Hans Visser agreed to stop.

The Dutch government experiment will be similar to a program launched earlier in Switzerland involving nearly 1,150 addicts.

'Goosebumps,' 'Huck Finn' on list of banned books

CHICAGO (AP) — A Florida mother says the "Goosebumps" series of scary stories for kids are so violent, gory and vengeful that children shouldn't read them. A Chicago librarian says kids love the scary stuff.

One woman's horror story is another's literary landmark. And this year's list of 100 banned and challenged books includes a number that are considered American classics, including Mark Twain's "Huckleberry Finn" and John Steinbeck's "Of Mice and Men."

The Chicago-based American Library Association releases the list each year to raise awareness about censorship. This year's list coincides with the 16th Banned Books Week, which ends Saturday.

The list includes Alice Walker's "The Color Purple," Herman Melville's "Moby Dick" and Nathaniel Hawthorne's "The Scarlet Letter."

Newer books that made the list include Earvin "Magic" Johnson's 1992 book "What You Can Do to Avoid AIDS," and the "Goosebumps" stories that R.L. Stine began writing in 1982.

Whitewater grand jury seeks White House notes of witness contact

WASHINGTON (AP) — Whitewater prosecutor Kenneth Starr has subpoenaed records of President Clinton, the first lady and top White House aides about possible contacts with investigation witnesses, lawyers familiar with the matter said Thursday.

And in another sign of activity by Starr, a new Whitewater grand jury began work in Washington.

The subpoenas were issued recently by a grand jury in Little Rock, Ark., seeking evidence whether presidential aides or friends have obstructed the investigation. Prosecutors want information about possible contacts with former Whitewater business partners James and Susan McDougal or disgraced Justice Department official Webster Hubbell or their lawyers, said attorneys familiar with the new round of subpoenas.

In addition to the president and Hillary Rodham Clinton, the subpoenas demand documents from some of the first family's closest advisers, including White House Chief of Staff Erskine Bowles, adviser Mack McLarty and Rodham Clinton's former chief of staff, Margaret Williams, the lawyers said.

Drug makers race to market estrogen replacements

NEW YORK (AP) — Barbara Zimmerman stumbled off a New Jersey curb and into a race between drug makers dashing to be the first to replace the most widely prescribed drug in the nation: estrogen.

Two years after her fall, Zimmerman is wrapping up her stint as a research subject in a test of Eli Lilly's drug, raloxifene. Researchers expect the drug to be the first "anti-estrogen" on the market. It would be given instead of estrogen for women who have gone through menopause.

If these new drugs work, women would be able to protect their bones and hearts without increasing their chances of breast cancer. With women living longer and baby boomers just starting to take post-menopausal drugs, the potential market is immense.

Lilly's version, trade-named Ralox, could be approved by the end of the year for osteoporosis. But competitors are following close behind. Pfizer, Inc.'s droloxifene is being used in human trials for advanced breast cancer and is also being tested against osteoporosis. British companies Glaxo Wellcome PLC, Smith-Kline Beecham PLC and Zeneca PLC all have their own compounds in the works.

Big Ten Time

Illinois comes to town to open the Big Ten season for undefeated Iowa

By James Kramer
The Daily Iowan

Northern Iowa and Tulsa didn't really try to run the ball against Iowa. Iowa State wanted to, but couldn't.

In those three blowouts, Iowa gave up 1.6 yards per carry.

That could all change this weekend.

The 11th-ranked Hawkeyes will face a different kind of attack Saturday, when standout running back Robert Holcombe and Illinois (0-3) come to Kinnick Stadium for both teams' Big Ten opener. Kickoff is scheduled for 11:35 a.m., with the game being televised nationally by ESPN2. Locally, the game will be on TCI Cable Channel 4.

The six-foot, 215-pound Holcombe is Illinois' all-time career rushing leader with 3,271 yards. The senior ran for 163 yards last Saturday against Washington State, one week after picking up 163 yards on Louisville's defense.

"You're not gonna arm-tackle him," Iowa coach Hayden Fry said. "He's a whole lot like (Wisconsin's Ron) Dayne, just not as large. We'll have to screw in our cleats real tight against him."

Iowa defenders are bracing themselves for the powerful Holcombe.

"He is a tough, tough back," tackle Jared DeVries said. "He's one of the best in the Big Ten. We're gonna have to corral him and gang-tackle him."

At least part of Iowa's defensive "gang" will be absent against the Fighting Illini. Linebacker Vernon Rollins tore his anterior cruciate ligament last week and is likely to miss the remainder of the season.

Defensive tackle Jon LaFleur, one of four team captains, also injured his knee against the Cyclones, but could play this weekend.

Replacing Rollins will be sophomore Raj Clark, who will make his first start in an Iowa uniform. Clark has 10 tackles and an interception this season.

"I know I'm prepared, it's just a matter of getting in the game," said Clark, a former Blue Chip all-American from Baytown, Texas. "I'm not nervous at all about starting."

If LaFleur is unable to play, Epenesa Epenesa will also make his first Hawkeye start. Four of Epenesa's 12 tackles have been for losses of yardage.

Illinois' first-year coach, Ron Turner, has seen his team outscored, 61-22, in the second half this season.

"Iowa's playing as well as anybody in the country right now," Turner said. "I can't imagine anybody playing better than what I've seen these guys play."

"Obviously, we'll have to correct the mistakes we've been making."

Turner decided the best way to turn things around was to replace quarterback Mark Hoekstra with freshman Tim Lavery. Hoekstra has thrown five interceptions and only two touchdowns.

Lavery, a left-hander, has not completed a pass in four attempts this season.

"We obviously have to get more production out of the quarterback position," said Turner, a former Chicago Bears assistant coach. "We've got to learn that we can't turn over the football."

Fry will have to keep his players from looking past Illinois. The Hawkeyes travel to Columbus next week to play No. 7 Ohio State.

"Obviously we haven't played the three toughest teams in the country," quarterback Matt Sherman said. "We should have

Nationally-ranked Lions on tap for Iowa soccer

The Hawkeye soccer team will get its first big test as a program today, when they host Penn State.

By Becky Gruhn
The Daily Iowan

Iowa soccer players may not have to attend classes Friday afternoon, but coach Stephanie Gabbert still has an assignment she wants her players to complete.

"We have to take the lessons we learned against Iowa State and apply them to this weekend," the Iowa coach said.

Examination number one will be passed out at 3 p.m. this afternoon when Gabbert's Hawkeyes (4-3 overall, 1-0 Big Ten) host nationally-ranked Penn State. The test resumes Sunday when Iowa travels to Big Ten power Minnesota for its first-ever Big Ten road game.

All three teams are tied for first in the Big Ten with undefeated conference records.

"Our players are very excited to play a team as well-respected as Penn State," Gabbert said. "It presents a challenge to us because we haven't faced a top 20 or 25 team yet."

Penn State will bring a 5-2 record to the Iowa Soccer Complex. The Lady Lions defeated Wisconsin 2-1 last Friday, and Northwestern 2-0 Sunday.

Minnesota stands at 6-1-1 overall, 2-0 in the Big Ten.

"Both Penn State and Minnesota are very strong teams and we will have to be patient while attempting to set the pace and tone of the matches," Gabbert said. "We've learned that we can play aggressively with speed and now they will need to do that for a full 90 minutes to be successful."

Iowa is looking to rebound from a 3-1 loss to intrastate rival Iowa State on Sunday. The

Pete Thompson/The Daily Iowan

Iowa soccer play Beth Oldenburg fights with a player from Illinois last Friday at the Iowa Soccer Complex in Coralville. The Hawkeyes host Penn State today at 3 p.m.

Hawkeyes lost more than just the game though as freshman midfielder Sarah Kiefer suffered a season-ending torn anterior-cruciate ligament.

"Sarah's injury changes a few things for us," Gabbert said. "She was a big part of the midfield."

Despite the loss Gabbert said her team is anxious to see where it stands amongst the nation's best.

"One of the good things about being a first-year program is that we're under no pressure to win," Gabbert said. "They have all the pressure. But we want to win and we're looking for the win."

"This weekend should show us a lot about our character and how we handle the pressure to perform at a higher level."

Big Ten season kicks off for Hawkeye volleyball

By Megan Manfull
The Daily Iowan

The Big Ten better beware when the Iowa volleyball team prepares to open conference play tonight at Carver-Hawkeye Arena.

After a full week of practice, setter Barb Zvonek said the team has bounced back from last weekend's losses at the Toyota Lady Vol Classic, and is focused and enthusiastic heading into this weekend's games.

The Hawkeyes, with a 7-4 record, will face Northwestern tonight, and Michigan Saturday night. Both matches are scheduled to begin at 7 p.m.

"I think we'll see a scrappy, aggressive team out of Northwestern," co-head coach Linda Schoensted said. "They won't make a lot of mistakes, and they'll make us play the ball and put it away. On the other hand, Michigan will be a very good serving team. They'll dig their share of balls, too."

With hitting efficiency a vital part of Big Ten success, the Hawkeyes have used the last week of practice to work on their offense, in hopes of creating more consistent kills throughout the weekend.

"We've been working a lot on hitting," junior Katie O'Brien said. "We need to cut back on errors, find the

By the dawn's early light, Ballesteros plots strategy

By Ron Sirak

SOTOGRANDE, Spain — Seve Ballesteros fought too hard to gain respect for European golf to let the first Ryder Cup played on the continent slip away in his native Spain almost before it begins.

He rigged his roster, changed the order of play and then packed his team with veterans for the opening matches against a U.S. team that seems to be the superior side.

It is as if Ballesteros senses the Americans could win in a runaway if they get off to a fast start Friday. So he popped awake before dawn Thursday to put together the lineup he hopes will get his team going in better-ball play.

"I think Miguel Angel Jimenez was a little bit unhappy this morning," Ballesteros said of his assistant captain.

"Because at quarter past five I called him in his room and said, 'Come over to my room. We have to make the pairings.' He said, 'Are you crazy?' And I said, 'It's a good time because in the morning I'm more sharp.'"

Only a trace of a smile crossed the lips of Jimenez, who was sitting to the left of Ballesteros and nodded his head slightly as if to say, "That's Seve."

That is Seve, indeed.

Red hot Tigers can't get past Red Sox

Associated Press

DETROIT — Steve Avery can now stay in Boston if he wants to. He just doesn't know if he wants to — or if he's wanted.

Avery made his first start since Aug. 31 — triggering a $3.9 million option — and Mo Vaughn hit his 35th homer as the Red Sox beat the Detroit Tigers 3-1 Thursday.

Avery allowed two hits in five shutout innings, struck out three and walked two.

"He put five eggs on the wall against a club that's been hot," said Boston manager Jimmy Williams, who took some heat for starting Avery. "He threw a lot of strikes. Do I feel good about it? We won the game. We play to win."

By reaching 18 starts, Avery triggered a clause in his contract granting a $3.9 million player option for 1998. Still, Avery wasn't at all certain he wants to stay with the Red Sox.

"Whether I'll be back in Boston, I haven't decided," said Avery, a native of suburban Taylor who had his parents and grandmother sitting behind the dugout. "I have a lot of time to decide that."

Royals 2, Brewers 1

MILWAUKEE — Jeff King and Rod Myers drove in runs and rookie Glendon Rusch got his sixth victory.

Rusch (6-9), who had five straight no-decisions and had not won since beating Detroit on Aug. 15, allowed one run and four hits in 7 1-3 innings. Hipolito Pichardo finished for his 11th save.

Cal Eldred (13-15) gave up both runs and seven hits in eight innings. With a victory Eldred would have set a major league record by finishing exactly at .500 for the fifth straight season. Eldred was 4-4, 1-1, 11-11 and 16-16 the last four years and shares the record with Brian Bohanon of the New York Mets (1992-95).

Blue Jays 4, Orioles 3

TORONTO — Wearing No. 43 in honor of fired manager Cito Gaston, Joe Carter became the Toronto's career leader with his 203rd homer.

Carter, who had been tied with George Bell, connected off Mike Mussina (15-8) in the sixth inning. It was his 21st of the season, his first since Aug. 29.

Carter, acquired by the Blue Jays from San Diego in 1989 along with Roberto Alomar, also had a run-scoring double in the first as the Blue Jays stopped a five-game losing streak and won for just the third time in 15 games. Carter usually wears No. 29 but switched for the night to bring attention to Gaston, who was fired Wednesday.

Yankees 5, Indians 4, 10 innings

CLEVELAND — David Cone no-hit Cleveland for five innings and Ivan Cruz hit a tiebreaking, two-run single in the 10th as New York beat its first-round playoff opponent.

The defending World Series champions won the season series from Cleveland 6-5. Cleveland, the AL Central champion, opens the best-of-5 series on Tuesday at New York.

White Sox 10, Twins 5

CHICAGO — Frank Thomas went 3-for-4 with his 35th homer and Magglio Ordonez hit a two-run homer.

Albert Belle and Ray Durham each hit two-run doubles as the White Sox ended a three-game losing skid and snapped the Twins' five-game winning streak.

Thomas, the AL's leading hitter, homered in the eighth to raise his average to .354.

Astros 9, Cubs 1

HOUSTON — Someone had to win the NL Central.

Eleven years to the day after clinching their last postseason berth, the Houston Astros finally won baseball's worst division, routing the Chicago Cubs 9-1 Thursday night behind Brad Ausmus' three-run homer in a six-run seventh inning.

Houston, just 82-77, stumbled to the division title by going 23-28 since Aug. 1. Second-place Pittsburgh, which dropped four games back going into its season-ending three-game series in the Astrodome, was even worse, losing 18 of its last 29 games.

Dodgers 9, Rockies 5

DENVER — Los Angeles moved within two games of San Francisco in the NL West as Todd Zeile homered twice.

The Dodgers, who play their final three games at Coors Field, picked up one-half game on the idle Giants. San Francisco will close the regular season with three home games against San Diego.

Hideo Nomo (14-12), who had two losses and two no-decisions in his previous four starts, limited the Rockies to three runs and five hits in seven innings.

Expos 3, Marlins 2

MONTREAL — Montreal's Pedro Martinez became the 14th pitcher since 1900 and the second this year to record 300 strikeouts in a season, and David Segui homered in the ninth.

With one out, Segui hit the first pitch from Robb Nen (9-3) over the wall in straightaway center for his 21st homer as the Expos avoided a three-game sweep.

Steve Kline (1-3) pitched two perfect innings for the win.

Braves 3, Phillies 2, 10 innings
PHILADELPHIA — Atlanta reached 100 wins for only the second time this century.

The Braves, who beat the Phillies for the 10th time in 12 games this season, improved to a major-league best 100-59. The Braves won 104 games in 1993 and also achieved the feat twice in Boston, winning 102 in 1892 and 1898.

Andruw Jones drove in the go-ahead run with a single in the 10th.

Reds 4, Cardinals 3, 14 innings

ST. LOUIS — Mark McGwire remained stuck on 55 homers, getting two singles in six at-bats Thursday night as the Cincinnati Reds beat the St. Louis Cardinals 4-3 in 14 innings.

McGwire flew out to medium left in the first and struck out swinging in the third and sixth. He singled in the eighth off Brett Tomko, and again in the 10th against Stan Belinda.

Giant Surprise

San Francisco is closing in on its first division title since 1989.

By Aaron J. Lopez
Associated Press

DENVER — They were picked by most to finish last in the NL West, but the San Francisco Giants were not the least bit cooperative. They are closing in on their first division title since 1989.

"That club has really done a lot of amazing things," Rockies manager Don Baylor said. "I take my hat off to them. They've played hard all year."

After rallying in the eighth and ninth innings to beat Colorado on Wednesday, the Giants watched second-place Los Angeles lose to San Diego, reducing their magic number to two.

It wasn't supposed to be this way. At least, not according to public opinion.

"If you looked at them in spring training, Dusty probably never had any idea that they were all just going to come together," Baylor said of the Giants and manager Dusty Baker.

How well have things gone for the Giants? They traded cleanup hitter Matt Williams, and Jeff Kent stepped in with a career-best 117 RBIs through Thursday. Left-hander Shawn Estes, cast off by the Seattle Mariners, has had a Cy Young-type season with 18 wins. Barry Bonds slept through April and May but has hit 31 homers since June 8.

And then there's Brian Johnson, who has two game-winning home runs and 11 overall since being traded to San Francisco in a catcher-for-catcher swap with Detroit on July 16.

"They bring Brian Johnson over and he hits 11 home runs. He hit two in Detroit, so I don't know how you explain that," Baylor said.

Opposing teams have been befuddled ever since San Francisco breezed through April with a 17-7 record. In all, the Giants have been in first place for 133 of 178 days.

UI SPORTS ROUNDUP

Field hockey to open Big Ten play

Field Hockey

This week: The Hawkeyes open up the Big Ten season this weekend when they hit the road to take on Michigan and Michigan State. Iowa is riding momentum into this weekend after its dominating 11-1 and 7-2 wins in the 1997 Hawkeye Invitational. The Hawkeyes will take on Michigan at 4:00 p.m. today before heading into East Lansing to take on the Spartans Sunday afternoon at 1 p.m.

Game notes: Iowa has never lost to Michigan or Michigan State in the 20 years the Hawkeyes have been a varsity sport, holding a 33-0 record over the Wolverines and a 33-0-1 mark on the Spartans ... Junior Kerry Lessard is second in the Big Ten Conference in both goals and points. She has 12 goals and 26 points in six games this season ... Goalkeeper Lisa Cellucci is fourth in the conference in save percentage (.732).

Coach's comments: "I think getting that first Big Ten win is very important," head coach Beth Beglin said. "Now that our non-conference schedule is over, it's kind of like one phase of our season in complete. You'd hope that there is no difference in intensity, but there is always that extra edge in a Big Ten game. Everyone knows that the way to the NCAA tournament is through the Big Ten tournament, and those seedings start with Big Ten play. So there's always just that little bit extra that a player brings to a Big Ten game."

Looking ahead: The Hawkeyes will return to Grant Field next week and take on conference foes Ohio State on Friday and Penn State on Sunday.

Men's Cross Country

This Week: The Iowa men's cross country team travels to Champaign, Ill., for the Illinois Invitational Saturday. The eight-team field will consist of Illinois, Indiana State, Northern Iowa, Michigan, Illinois-Chicago, Wisconsin-Green Bay and Missouri. The meet will be held at the Illinois University Golf Course beginning at 10 a.m.

Meet Notes: This will be the first meet in two weeks for the Hawkeye runners. In the team's last competition, Iowa finished second at the five-team Illinois State Invitational. That finish put Iowa in the national rankings at No. 31 in the National Cross Country Coaches poll... Chad Schwitters has the team's top individual finish with a 25:05, Stetson Steele closely follows with a 25:18... In the last competition coach Larry Wiecek was also pleasantly surprised by the performances of Pual Sarris and Trent Corey.

Coach's Quote: "The 10,000-meter distance and the strong field will make this a good, tough meet for us," Wiecek said. "This meet will test the team to see where we are at this point in time, and I am anxious to see what progress we have made since our successful opener at Illinois State."

— by Chuck Blount

Women's Cross Country

Today: The Iowa women's cross country team travels to Champaign, Ill., for the Illinois Invitational Saturday in hopes to improve upon its performance of two weeks ago. The event field will consist of Illinois, Indiana State, Northern Iowa, Northern Illinois, Evansville, Chicago State, Wisconsin-Green Bay and Missouri.

Meet Notes: Again Iowa will be without the services of Alienor Gilchrist, she is being withheld out of competition for another week... Mandy Vitense, Julie Wuorinen and Haley Newbrough will be looked upon to lead the team. At the Illinois State Invitational they finished 9th, 12th and 29th respectively... The weekend field at Illinois will be the largest the team has competed in this season... In its last competition, Iowa finished fourth at the four-team Illinois State Invitational.

Coach's Comments: "We are going out to improve on our team score," coach Sara Swails said. "Everyone needs to improve in time and the way they run their race. We need to run a stronger third mile and between Mandy, Julie and Haley they have been able to do that."

— by Chuck Blount

Women's Golf

This Week: The Hawkeye women's golf team travels to Columbus, Ohio to compete in the Lady Buckeye Invitational, Saturday and Sunday.

Meet Notes: The 12-team field includes Big Ten powers Ohio State, Illinois, Northwestern, Michigan State, Minnesota and Wisconsin... The 54-hole tournament will be held on the par-72 Scarlet Golf Course, where the Big Ten men's Championship was held in May... Sophomore M.C. Mullen leads the Hawkeyes with a 75.5 average through her first six rounds of the season.

Coach's Comment: "This course plays long and the kids haven't seen it yet," Iowa coach Diane Thomason said.

Next Week: The Hawkeyes have a week off next week before traveling to Evanston, Ill., October 13-14 for the Wildcat Invitational.

— by Andy Hamilton

Men's Golf

This Week: The Hawkeye men's golf team makes the voyage to East Lansing, Mich., to take part in the Northern Intercollegiate, Saturday and Sunday.

Meet Notes: The 54-hole tournament will be held on the Forest Akers West Golf Course and will consist of all of the Big Ten schools. Michigan State will host the 1998 Big Ten Championships on the same course... Junior Chris Englund leads the Hawkeyes with a 74.4 round average going into the weekend after finishing second at the Big Four Classic and sixth at the Hawkeye Intercollegiate.

Coach's Comments: "It's important for our guys to play well and establish confidence on this course," coach Terry Anderson said.

Next Week: Iowa will participate in the Legends of Indiana tournament, October 6-7 in Franklin, Ind.

— by Andy Hamilton

Jonathan Meester/The Daily Iowan

Kerry Lessard and Natalie Dawson celebrate a blowout victory against Kent last weekend. The Hawkeyes open conference play this weekend against Michigan and Michigan State.

Women's Tennis

This Week: The Iowa women's tennis team will shake the rust off the rackets as it returns to competition at the Furman Fall Classic today through Sunday.

Tournament Notes: This will be the first of four fall tournaments for the Hawkeyes. The Furman Fall Classic is a flighted tournament, meaning it will only count on the individual's records and will not affect Iowa's overall team record.

Coach's Comments: "What's exciting about this weekend is that we'll finally have a chance to play outside competition," Iowa coach Paul Wardlaw said. "We should get a good idea of where we stand as a team. This weekend we want to let the new players get a feel for the game and not put them under the gun. We need to see how people perform in a real match environment."

Player's Comments: "Everyone on the team is excited for this weekend to get experience and put into play what Paul has been teaching us," Shera Wiegler said.

Looking Ahead: The Hawkeyes next action will be Oct. 3-5 at the Notre Dame Invitational.

— by Becky Gruhn

Men's Tennis

This week: The Iowa men's tennis team opens its season today at the Notre Dame Invitational in South Bend, Ind. The invitational is one of four the Hawkeyes have on their fall schedule.

Meet notes: Iowa's Ulf Jentler won the Flight B title at last year's N.D. Invitational, while teammate Dave McDevitt lost in the Flight D finals... Freshman Tyler Cleveland and transfer Girts Auskaps will be the Hawkeyes' first-flight singles players... Of the eight players Iowa is sending to South Bend, five are newcomers to the team... The three returning players heading to Notre Dame are Ben Bamsey, Ryan Johnson and Jentler.

Coach's comments: "The numbers our guys are playing this weekend are very arbitrary positions," Iowa coach Steve Houghton court and terminate the balls." After splitting with Michigan and sweeping Northwestern last season, the players are entering this weekend positive, but coach Matt Sonnichsen said the team must come more mentally prepared for the matches in order to find success.

"Physically we are doing everything we need to," Sonnichsen said. "Emotionally we've kind of flattened out a bit. We want to try and pick up our intensity, energy and our ability to just play good together." "I'll be curious to see how our team reacts to getting into the Big Ten, especially at home."

Off to a strong start, senior Jenn Bell will continue to try and lead the Hawkeyes on the court. Sonnichsen said her play has been outstanding throughout the preseason and hopes the rest of the team rallies around her this weekend.

"Our setters need to improve their abilities," Sonnichsen said. "They've been in kind of a slump. And our outside hitters, other than Jenn, have been in a slump also. I'd like to see our outside hitters and our setters step up and put a little bit more pressure on themselves."

"No one has anything to lose this opening weekend. Everybody wants to finish in the top four in the conference."

Katie O'Brien
Iowa volleyball player

Playing in what could be the most competitive conference in the country, the Hawkeyes must now put everything on the line approaching each Big Ten match.

"No one has anything to lose this opening weekend," O'Brien said. "Everybody wants to finish in the top four in the conference. Everybody wants to make a statement, and so I'm sure Michigan and Northwestern will also come out strong."

DeVries said he and his teammates don't dwell on their No. 11 ranking. Iowa is rated ninth in the ESPN/USA Today coaches' poll.

"Obviously you're gonna see it on TV and in the newspaper," DeVries said. "But this team has kept it in perspective."

Iowa snapped a three-game losing streak against the Illini with a 31-21 victory last season in Champaign. Illinois leads the series, 35-22-2, but Fry has a winning record against the Illini (9-8).

Tired Jaguars

■ Playing with just six days rest, the undefeated Jacksonville Jaguars face a tough test at Washington this Sunday.

By Dave Goldberg
Associated Press

It's interesting that the Washington Redskins are approaching Sunday's game with the Jacksonville Jaguars as a test of good their young team might be. Washington, a franchise that won three Super Bowls between 1982 and 1991, before there was an inkling there would be a franchise in Jacksonville, also should be a test for the third-year Jaguars.

The Jaguars are one of the "unbeaten teams in the NFL" with three different quarterbacks. The Redskins are the brand new stadium, not after the late Jack Kent Collins' longtime owner and behind the financing and construction of the new edifice.

Washington, coming off a bye week, is favored by a 1 1/2 points against Jacksonville, which has just days rest.

That's probably the correct bet. The Jaguars, who got a bye week back at quarterback Sunday night, could easily have two of their three wins in week's game with the Steelers opening week, when they Baltimore by a point in a played 30 miles north of Skins' new home.

That means the law of averages is working against them and means ...

that made him one of his generation's most compelling players.

"There is no question, being a captain is more pressure," said Ballesteros, who has been known to make birdies from parking lots and hit 4-woods from his knees. "When I'm playing in the majors, I don't remember waking up at four o'clock in the morning."

Ballesteros was criticized three weeks ago when the European Ryder Cup committee replaced injured Miguel Angel Martin with Jose Maria Olazabal.

The haste with which the move was made seemed to support the theory that Ballesteros wanted the experienced Olazabal on the team instead of the untested Martin. It also freed him to make Nick Faldo and Jesper Parnevik his two captain's picks.

That done, Ballesteros asked Kite if the traditional order of matches could be switched. Ballesteros wanted better ball, not alternate-shot play, to come first, and Kite agreed.

"I think I know why Seve wants to do that," Kite said. "He thinks he'll get a better feel for how the players are playing by watching them in the morning play their own ball."

Perhaps that is the edge Ballesteros is seeking. Perhaps he also knows that Europe won 28 of the 40 better-ball matches played from 1983 through 1991.

And when the pairings were announced on Thursday for the opening better-ball matches, Ballesteros went with six of his seven players with Ryder Cup experience.

The first match will have Olazabal and Costantino Rocca facing PGA Championship winner Davis Love III and Phil Mickelson.

Faldo, who breaks the Ryder Cup record Friday with his 11th appearance, teams with rookie Lee Westwood against Fred Couples and Brad Faxon.

Then the two Swedes — Per-Ulrik Johansson and Parnevik — take on Tom Lehman and Jim Furyk.

Tiger Woods and Mark O'Meara, neighbors in Orlando, Fla., who play together frequently, will anchor the U.S. team in the final morning match against Colin Montgomerie and Bernhard Langer.

Scott Hoch, Jeff Maggert, Lee Janzen and, perhaps most surprisingly, British Open winner Justin Leonard, will sit out the morning matches for the United States.

The only one of Europe's seven players with Ryder Cup experience to sit out better-ball play is seven-time veteran Ian Woosnam.

Also not playing in the morning matches for Europe are Darren Clarke, Thomas Bjorn and Ignacio Garrido — all Ryder Cup rookies.

That's probably the correct line. The Jaguars, who got Mark Brunell back at quarterback Monday night, could easily have lost two of their three wins — last week's game with the Steelers and opening week, when they beat Baltimore by a point in a game played 30 miles north of the Skins' new home.

That means the law of averages is working against them and that means ...

Green Bay (minus 7 1/2) at Detroit

Mike Holmgren isn't happy the Packers alone blew a 24-point halftime lead to the Vikings. Bobby Ross is even unhappier about what happened to the Lions in New Orleans. He stays that way.

PACKERS, 24-14
Philadelphia (plus 2 1/2) at Minnesota

The Eagles should have beaten Dallas. But ..

VIKINGS 20-17
Arizona (plus 7 1/2) at Tampa Bay.

Two improved teams. The Bucs are more improved and are home.

BUCS, 23-7
Tennessee (plus 6 1/2) at Pittsburgh

At least there will be fans in the stands for what should be a very quick game featuring Eddie George vs. Jerome Bettis.

Bettis, er STEELERS, 17-13
Denver (minus 10) at Atlanta

Dan Reeves teams play well against their betters — except the 49ers. Plus there's this motivation: Reeves' first game against the team he used to coach (one team removed.)

BRONCOS, 26-17
Chicago (plus 14) at Dallas

Dave Wannstedt was better off when he worked at Texas Stadium.

COWBOYS, 31-3
Seattle (plus 5) at Kansas City

No more Elvis jokes.
CHIEFS, 24-10
St. Louis (plus 7) at Oakland

Take nothing for granted with the Raiders.
RAIDERS, 24-20
New York Jets (plus 4) at Cincinnati

Remember that Jeff George ridled the Jets' secondary. Jeff Blake, the ex-Jet, can do the same, particularly with Bruce Coslet, the Jets' ex-coach, handling the offensive game plan.

BENGALS, 30-24
Baltimore (plus 1 1/2) at San Diego

The Ravens keep winning on the road.
Why not here?
RAVENS, 27-20
New Orleans (plus 5) at New York Giants

Not on the road, Mike.
GIANTS, 24-13

Hopkins, Baldwin brave 'The Edge'

Let me say this up front, I don't really care for nature movies. Yes, the tale of a man surviving in the wilderness has infinite dramatic possibilities, and who can resist witnessing man's ultimate triumph? But, in between those moments of glory, after a life-or-death encounter and before a moment of decision, what is there to do?

Enter David Mamet. With his script for the new wilderness movie "The Edge," he has solved a major problem in the genre of man against nature. He lets them talk. Really, really talk.

The dialogue exchanged between Anthony Hopkins and Alec Baldwin as they brave the elements consists of much more than "Will they look for us?" and "Who are we going to eat first?" You see, Sir Anthony is a billionaire, and he's married to a beautiful model (Elle Macpherson), and he is convinced Baldwin, who's brilliant as a pre-tenacious photographer, is out to steal her away. He is also convinced Baldwin wants to kill him.

"The Edge" always keeps you guessing as to Baldwin's true motivations. He definitely needs Hopkins to get out alive, and the conspiracy Hopkins has constructed often seems paranoid, but a good movie will never eliminate the unthinkable. And, to me, "The Edge" is unthinkable: A survival movie that doesn't lull.

Comparisons will come to other wilderness films, but rest assured, no matter what is mentioned, "The Edge" is better. "Alive," for instance, died from terminal lulls, and the tension in "Lord of the Flies" never has come through on film like it should. This one gets it just right, with fascinating characters who endure tremendous suspense and often generate it themselves.

But since this is a nature movie, there are, of course, some harrowing action sequences. The ones in "The Edge," though, go above and beyond the call of duty. Director Lee Tamahori ("Once Were Warriors") stages what is the best movie sequence involving a bear since, well, "The Bear." The notion of Hopkins and Baldwin attacking a kodiak may seem like the stuff of exaggerated campfire stories, but it is done in a manner that is marginally believable and absolutely thrilling.

Below the surface of the life-or-death tension is a loneliness in Hopkins' character that is brought through expertly by the Oscar winner. He is constantly suspicious of "what people value in him" and is profoundly afraid to find the answer in his wife. "You know you have no business with that broad," another character tells him. "You've known that from the beginning."

"The Edge" is essentially about fear, and seeing if all the protective measures you've taken to save your work when put to the test. The wilderness is simply a metaphor, as is the mammoth kodiak bear that stalks the duo. The wilderness is one thing, but life ... Ah, me!

Making your Hayden Mask

Materials you will need: The Daily Iowan's Illinois Pregame Section, scissors, glue, popsicle stick, hand-eye coordination (Warning: Don't attempt this after a long morning of tailgating) and a good Hayden Fry imitation.

Halloween is a ways
away, but ...

... we here at The Daily Iowan thought our readers would appreciate a chance to salute one of the greatest coaches in the history of college football on the heels of his 400th career game as a head coach.

So, we all put our heads together and came up with the unofficial "Hayden Fry Mask." Feel free to wear it to parties and other social functions (but please, not while you are driving), and be sure to bring it to the game on Saturday.

If you're not convinced, here are the top ten reasons to wear your Hayden Fry mask:

10. Popsicles sticks. You love popsicles.
9. Your ticket to alumni kegers.
8. No need for sun screen.
7. The cops wouldn't throw Hayden out of a rowdy crowd of drunks, now would they.
6. Free meal at La Casa (allegedly).
5. If the game gets boring, you can sniff the glue.
4. You might get on TV, not that anyone would know it's you behind that mask.
3. Chicks dig Hayden. Heck, everyone digs Hayden.
2. If Hayden is unable to fulfill his coachy duties, the team might let you call plays.
1. Hey, look at me. I'm the football coach at a Big Ten university.

BANKS/Hawkeye senior was soccer star in high school

Nebraska for the next four years.

It came down to Washington and Iowa and the last thing Hayden Fry needed was another loss to the Huskies. While Washington got the breaks in the 1991 Rose Bowl, the Hawkeyes got one back when rumors began to surface that the Huskies were headed on probation.

"I would've gone there," Banks said. "But when I was getting recruited, they were going on probation. I didn't know if they would get the death penalty, so I chose Iowa."

Others began to follow. Banks had turned into the pied piper in helping bring the Iowa program back from a 5-7 record in 1992.

"It kind of said something to me," Dwight said. "Here's a kid who's probably the best running back coming out of high school and he's going to Iowa. I was kinda like, damn, what if we put me on that team and he's on the team already? We can do some things in a couple of years. Now we're in a situation where that thought has appeared and it's here and real."

TWO SPORT STAR

I was evident to Merrikay that Tavian wasn't just an average athlete when he was just six years old in his youth soccer league.

He ran past kids his age like they were stuck in mud, but he finally found ability to match his.

When LaVance would go off to play sports, Merrikay would always make sure he would take Tavian along.

"Being an older brother I hated it," said LaVance, four years Tavian's elder. "You don't want your little brother tagging along, but it made him work harder. He never wanted to get beat and that's what made him so strong."

Despite being much smaller and younger than LaVance and his friends, Tavian still held his own and then some.

"He was giving a lot of athletes four years older than him a very hard time," LaVance said. "It was kind of frustrating for somebody my age that couldn't compete with somebody four years younger."

It wasn't because LaVance wasn't a good athlete, either. He went on to star as a wide receiver at Southern Illinois. But Tavian's opponents felt the same sentiments as his older brother.

Much like he dominated the high school football ranks, he excelled equally in soccer. After being named the Gatorade Iowa high school player of the year in both sports, his decision was more than which school to attend, but which sport to play.

"There was a lot of colleges that recruited me," Banks said. "I didn't know if I wanted to play football in college or play soccer."

He went to the U.S. Olympic trials during the summer of 1993, but he opted to attend summer school at Iowa instead.

Hawkeye place kicker Zach Bromert played with two members of the U.S. National team in high school and then teamed up with Banks in Iowa intramural leagues. Was Banks good enough to make the National team?

"Definitely," Bromert said. "If he would've stopped playing football and totally trained for soccer — barring injury, I think he would've made the national team easily."

Banks dominated the intramural league just like he has on the football field.

"He'll just hang around most of the game and chill out," Bromert said. "Then he'll be serious for five minutes and he'll score three goals. That's pretty much the way it was the whole season. When he wanted to play, he put 'em away."

Although Iowa doesn't have a men's varsity soccer program, it wouldn't have been too hard for the Hawkeyes to recruit a blue chipper to play in the spring.

"I definitely would have played soccer, too," Banks said.

Watching someone who runs with the speed and grace Banks does, would make you think he starred in track as well. In junior high that was the case, but he gave it up for reasons other than a lack of success.

"I didn't want to run track," Banks said. "I didn't really like it because I didn't like running a whole lot."

Now that's what he's known for.

WHAT THEY'RE SAYING ABOUT BANKS

"He's a little more quiet than I thought he'd be, which is really nice. Sometimes you hear of other guys really talented like he is and they speak a lot of stuff, but he shows it on the field. He's true to what he says. He does the work and doesn't slide by like some of the great athletes do."
- Tim Dwight

"I'm awfully proud because I know this kid and this is somebody I know is a good kid and I feel he's a good athlete and he would make a great Heisman candidate."
- Merrikay Banks

"That's how a Banks is. We're not the ones to actually follow in the footsteps of the crowd. We've always been the ones to do something a little different because that's how our personalities are."
- LaVance Banks on Tavian coloring his hair blond

"With all respect to Sedrick Shaw, Tavian Banks is the best running back I've seen since Barry Sanders."
- Tulsa coach Dave Rader

Race for the Rose Bowl

BY CHUCK BLOUNT
THE DAILY IOWAN

With Saturday kicking off to the Big Ten season, it may not be a question of whether or not Iowa is ready for the Big Ten. The question should be rephrased: Is the Big Ten ready for Iowa?

Preseason sports magazines and other various publications had the Hawkeyes anywhere from a sixth-place conference finish all the way up to third. Their endorsements almost unanimously labeled Penn State as the team to beat, while all other squads played second fiddle.

A month into the college football season, the Nittany Lions still look like a legitimate pick, but uncertainty has filled the ranks of the previously decided contingency of voters. The reasons:

- Michigan's 27-3 victory over No. 8 Colorado.
- Iowa has scored 183 points in three games.
- Tavian Banks has rushed for 644 yards and 10 TD's in three games.
- Michigan State is 3-0 and is coming off a 23-7 route of Notre Dame.
- Ohio State is Ohio State.

Even Purdue took a little of the spotlight with a 28-17 upset over Notre Dame.

The race is again wide open with the favorite label split between Iowa, Ohio State, Michigan, Penn State and Nick Saban's Spartans.

"I don't think anybody is better than Penn State," Ohio State coach John Cooper said. "But the way things have transpired don't surprise me."

"I knew nobody was going to beat Penn State after three, I knew nobody was going to beat Iowa, didn't think we would drop one, and even though they had tough games, I thought Michigan and Michigan State would be undefeated at this point."

Iowa coach Hayden Fry also admits that the Big Ten race is going to be an open war, but he far endorses Penn State as the conference's best. Fry's rationale stems from the fact that Iowa beat the Nittany Lions a year ago and return more personnel.

On paper, it appears that Iowa may have the easiest run for the roses between the aforementioned group of four. In case of a tie in the final conference standings between Iowa and Penn State, the Hawkeyes would grab the Pasadena ticket because they have been away from the "Granddaddy of 'em all" the longest.

Currently, the Hawkeyes are the talk of the Big Ten town. Leading the conference in three of the four major offensive categories and rushing defense, Iowa has assembled numbers rival to that of Ohio State's statistical juggernaut of two seasons ago.

"I have seen the statistics that Iowa has been putting up and I need to get a hold of some film to figure out what Hayden is doing over there," Indiana head coach Cam Cameron said. "They are tearing it up. The numbers they put up are mind-boggling."

For Fry, the numbers produced by his Hawkeyes have caused the rarest of all occurrences in sports — a satisfied coach.

"We've accomplished our goals, even beyond that," Fry said. "We've scored more points and moved the ball better than anticipated, took care of the football, and the defense has been real sound."

Penn State doesn't lead in any of the eight offensive and defensive categories, but the Nittany Lions are better than average in most.

Only the Michigan Wolverines have been as impressive. Michigan dominates the defensive scene, leading in total defense (189.0 yds/game), fewest points allowed (6 in two games) and pass defense (118.5 yds/game).

Michigan coach Lloyd Carr just looks at this season as another typical year in the Big Ten. But in the Big Ten, typical is about as easy to define as Haystack — nobody knows what it is.

"The problem in the Big Ten is that once we all start playing against each other, it's a battle every week," Carr said. "With the rivalries and the tradition, some of us, whether we are favorites or underdogs, are going to take our lumps."

"That's the bottom line."

BIG TEN CONFERENCE

Indiana Hoosiers

1997 Record: 1-2 1996 Record: 3-8 Coach: Cam Cameron

Cam Cameron, one of five new head coaches in the Big Ten, was a former Hoosier basketball and football player, and is hoping to turn a 3-8 ballclub around.

Cameron

Eloms

It won't be easy, Cameron lost his star tailback Alex Smith to the NFL. Smith had 1,248 yards in 1996. In 1997 the Hoosiers are last in the Big Ten in rushing offense, averaging 70.7 yards per game and second to last in scoring offense, averaging 15 points a game.

Jason Spear takes over Smith's role as starting tailback. The Hoosiers' strengths are in their passing attack. Quarterback Jay Rodgers has thrown for 749 yards, second in the Big Ten, and 5 touchdowns. His favorite target is Chris Gall, who has 20 receptions for 149 yards and 2 touchdowns. —SL

TOP PLAYERS:
Quarterback: Jay Rodgers, 67/107, 749 yds, 5 TD, 4 Int, 249.7 yds/game
Running Back: Jason Spear, 67 att, 207 yds, 3.1 avg
Receivers: Chris Gall, 20 rec, 149 yds, 2 TD; D. Wilkerson, 11 rec, 194 yds, 1 TD
Defense: Jabar Robinson, 25 tackles; Kywin Supernaw, 22 tackles

Michigan Wolverines

1997 Record: 2-0 1996 Record: 8-4 Coach: Lloyd Carr

When the Michigan Wolverines opened the season with a 27-3 trouncing of Colorado, they erased any doubt that the legacy of the maize and blue was lowered into the depths of mortality.

Woodson

Streets

Colorado, the preseason favorite to win the Big-12 championship, was thoroughly manhandled by Michigan with only 224 yards of offense.

The Michigan defense has only surrendered six points in two games, and is sitting at No. 1 in the Big Ten standings in total defense, scoring defense and pass defense.

Offensively, Michigan ranks third overall in total yardage, averaging 479 yds/game in split fashion. The Wolverines are second in the conference in rushing offense (243 yds/game) and sixth in passing offense (236 yds/game). —CB

TOP PLAYERS:
Quarterback: Brian Griese, 34/50, 427 yds, 3 TD's, 1 INT, 213.5 yds/game
Running Backs: Chris Howard, 31 att, 152 yds, 2 TD's, 4.9 avg; Anthony Thomas, 30 att, 142 yds, 1 TD, 4.7 avg
Receiver: Jerame Tuman, 6 rec, 149 yds
Defense: Sam Sword, 13 tackles; Glen Steele, 6 tackles, 2 sacks

Michigan State Spartans

1997 Record: 3-0 1996 Record: 6-6 Coach: Nick Saban

The Spartans will take a 3-0 record and a lot of momentum into their Oct. 4 Big Ten opener against Minnesota. Last week, Michigan State handily defeated Notre Dame 23-7.

Reese

Irvin

Labeled as a darkhorse for the Rose Bowl by many pre-season publications, head coach Nick Saban has his team going in the right direction offensively and defensively. The Spartan defense ranks third overall in total defense, allowing just 261.7 yards/game, while the offense has outscored opponents 116-38.

The schedule leans in Michigan State's favor this season as Ohio State, Michigan and Penn State all make the trip to East Lansing.

Third-year quarterback Todd Schultz provides veteran leadership, while running back Sedrick Irvin ranks as one the conference's best at the position.

TOP PLAYERS:
Quarterback: Todd Schultz, 38/58, 405 yds, 4 TD's, 2 INT, 135.0 yds/game
Running Backs: Sedrick Irvin, 57 att, 258 yds, 3 TD's, 4.5 avg; Marc Renaud, 40 att, 215 yds, 1 TD, 5.4 avg
Receivers: Carl Scott, 10 rec, 152 yds, Octavis Long, 8 catches, 105 yds
Defense: Ike Reese, 27 tackles; Tyrone Garland, 22 tackles

MASTER MUFFLER

BY WAYNE DREHS
THE DAILY IOWAN

If there is anybody who has suffered the most from Illinois' recent struggles on the football field, it's Robert Holcombe. Statistically, the running back has put up numbers to rank him right up with the Big Ten's best running backs: Back-to-back 1,000 yard seasons, 23 career touchdowns, and a 315 yard performance against Minnesota last year.

But all the Big Ten tailback publicity in the past years has gone to guys like Ron Dayne, Darnell Autry, Sedrick Shaw, and Curtis Enis.

Why? No wins equals no respect. And with an 0-3 start so far this year, and just two wins all of last year, not many people are paying attention to the Fighting Illini or Holcombe.

New head coach Ron Turner considers it his job to change that.

"It's pretty hard when you are 2-9 to get the recognition that you deserve," Turner said. "Everything goes along with winning."

The former Chicago Bears offensive coordinator has been thoroughly impressed with his senior tailback since taking over for Lou Tepper last winter, and admits even he didn't hear that much about Holcombe before arriving in Champaign.

"I didn't realize he was so talented," Turner said. "He is an NFL back. He's got all the tools necessary."

"He can do everything. He's not a back that's one-dimensional, just a power runner, or just a quick guy. He's got some speed, he's got some strength, he's got some balance, central toughness, good intelligence, and he's a great worker."

With the Bears in 1995, Turner meshed the talents of running back Rashaan Salaam with those of quarterback Erik Kramer and wide receivers Curtis Conway and Jeff Graham to create a 1,000 yard rusher and two 1,000 yard receivers.

At Illinois, Turner has said his offensive game plan will do its best to get the ball in Holcombe's hands as much as possible.

"He is the centerpiece of our offense," Turner said. "He's going to run it and run it and run it for us. He'll also catch the ball out of the backfield. Everything on offense begins with Robert Holcombe."

With that kind of an opportunity, it's pretty obvious why No. 35 couldn't be happier that Turner and his offensive-minded philosophies have come to the Fighting Illini, where defense has dominated the game plan over the years.

And the pro experience and advice Turner brings to prospective NFL players, such as Holcombe, the senior calls invaluable. Now if they could just do something about that record.

"I don't know much about how they (the NFL) look at a guy," Holcombe said. "But team success probably does play a roll in scouting. But we went 2-9, and we can't change it, so we've got to put that behind us and look ahead."

PETE THOMPSON/DI
"It's good to know your coach thinks you and your team are ready. But it doesn't mean much if I don't produce on Saturday. I don't want to make him out to be a liar, so I've got to back it up."
Illinois' Robert Holcombe runs the ball against Iowa last season.

Illinois Fighting Illini

1997 Record: 0-3 1996 Record: 2-9 Coach: Ron Turner

The Fighting Illini stumble into Saturday's Big Ten opener with an 0-3 record and the statistics more than show why.

Illinois is ranked dead last in the conference in scoring offense (14.3 ppg), scoring defense (28.3 ppg), total defense (412.3 ypg), pass defense (270 ypg) and is No. 10 in total offense (326 ypg) and rushing defense (142.4 ypg).

In those three games though, Illinois didn't shy away from playing talented teams, with contests against Southern Mississippi, Louisville and No. 15 Washington State.

First year coach Ron Turner runs a pro style offense that is centered around running back Robert Holcombe. Holcombe has been the only bright spot the team has going for it. Holcombe is third in the conference rushing charts with 139.7 yds/game.

Minnesota Golden Gophers

1997 Record: 2-1 1996 Record: 4-7 Coach: Glen Mason

Despite having numerous offensive problems the Golden Gophers have amassed a 2-1 mark so far under the guidance of first-year coach Glen Mason.

The Minnesota offense ranks last in the conference standings with just 257 yds/game, but their defense has been keeping them in position to win. The Gophers rank fourth, behind Iowa, in total defense, allowing on average 290 yds/game.

Veteran quarterback Cory Sauter is an established Big Ten quarterback, but so far this season has only thrown for 315 yards and one touchdown all season. Receiving target Tutu Atwell has accounted for over 1/3 of that total with 121 yards off 13 catches. Atwell currently leads the Big Ten in kickoff return yardage with 372 yards in 11 attempts.

Sauter

Atwell

TOP PLAYERS:
Quarterback: Cory Sauter, 34/62, 315 yds, 1 TD, 105 yds/game
Running Back: Thomas Hamner, 59 att, 295 yds, 4 TD, 5.0 avg
Receivers: Tutu Atwell, 13 rec, 121 yds, 9.3 yds/catch; Luke Levenson, 9 rec, 117 yds
Defense: Tyrone Carter, 25 tackles; Sean Hoffmann, 24 tackles

Penn State Nittany Lions

1997 Record: 3-0 1996 Record: 11-2 Coach: Joe Paterno

Named the preseason No. 1 by the AP, the Nittany Lions held that spot for the first three weeks of the season, finally losing the recognition as the nation's top team to the Florida Gators, but due to no fault of their own.

Penn State enters Big Ten play with a record of 3-0 and ranked No. 2. They have recorded three lopsided victories against Louisville, Temple and Pittsburgh. The Nittany Lions run a high-powered offense that is second only to Iowa, averaging 47.7 points per game.

They are led by Heisman hopeful Curtis Enis, who has six touchdowns in three games. Penn State also has possibly the most powerful quarterback-receiver tandem with Mike McQueary and Joe Jurivicus. The two have connected 14 times, for 330 yards and 5 touchdowns.

Jurivicus

Enis

TOP PLAYERS:
Quarterback: Mike McQueary, 41/73, 743 yds, 7 TD, 0 Int, 247.7 yds/game
Running Back: Curtis Enis, 50 att, 246 yds, 6 TD, 4.9 avg, 82 yds/game
Receiver: Joe Jurivicus, 14 rec, 330 yds 5 TD, 23.6 yds/catch
Defense: Jim Nelson, 24 tackles, 3.5 sacks; Brandon Short, 19 tackles

Northwestern Wildcats

1997 Record: 2-2 1996 Record: 9-3 Coach: Gary Barnett

Who ever said lightning never strikes twice, never watched Northwestern football. For the second straight year the Wake Forest Demon Deacons upset the Big Ten co-Champions 27-20.

To make things worse the Wildcats lost their star receiver D'Wayne Bates for the season with a knee injury. But Northwestern did not lose a step with their back-up Brian Musso. He has 23 reception for 408 yards with 4 touchdowns. Taking over Steve Schnur's starting spot at quarterback is Tim Hughes, and has been impressive completing over 50 percent of his passes. Trying to fill Darnell Autry's shoes, Adrian Autry, has been quiet thus far, averaging 67.3 yards a game, with only one touchdown.

Barnett

Musso

TOP PLAYERS:
Quarterback: Tim Hughes, 59/110, 869 yds, 5 TD, 1 Int, 217.3 yds/game
Running Back: Adrian Autry, 62 att, 269 yds, 3 TD, 4.33 avg
Receiver: Brian Musso, 23 rec, 408 yds, 4 TD, 17.7 yds/catch, 102 yds/game
Defense: Barry Gardner, 58 tackles; Eric Collier, 45 tackles

Purdue Boilermakers

1997 Record: 2-1 1996 Record: 3-8 Coach: Joe Tiller

After a week one 28-17 upset of Notre Dame and a 2-1 start, there is bowl talk going on. Gone is the running philosophy of old and in with new head coach Joe Tiller is a passing oriented offense.

Behind the strong play of Boilermakers quarterback Billy Dicken, Purdue takes a two-game winning streak into Saturday's contest with North Carolina State. Dicken is the Big Ten's leading passer and has shredded opponents for 260.7 yds/game. Defensively, Purdue ranks eighth in total defense (353.7 yds/game), but the offense has more than compensated, averaging (439 yds/game).

In the scheduling department, Ohio State and Michigan are absent from this year's slate. Purdue's most difficult tests will be a Nov. 1 trip to Iowa City and a Nov. 15 home contest with Penn State.

Tiller

Matthews

TOP PLAYERS:
Quarterback: Billy Dicken, 66/115, 782, 3 TD's, 4 Int, 260.7 yds/game
Running Back: Kendall Matthews, 26 att, 140 yds, 5.38 avg
Receivers: Brian Alford, 21 rec, 319 yds, 2 TD's, 15.2 yds/catch; Vinny Sutherland, 18 rec, 177 yds, 1 TD
Defense: Willie Fells, 26 tackles, 8.7 avg/game; Lee Brush, 25 tackles, 8.3 avg/game

Ohio State Buckeyes

1997 Record: 3-0 1996 Record: 11-1 Coach: John Cooper

After squeezing out a victory against Arizona, 28-20, coach John Cooper said they are "grateful to be unbeaten."

Ohio State led 28-0 in the first-half, but had to cover an inside kick late in the game to preserve the victory. The Buckeyes had only 70 yards rushing on 41 attempts. Ohio State is averaging 32 point a game, but that is against Wyoming and Bowling Green. Cooper still employs the quarterback duo of Joe Germaine and Stanley Jackson. Pepe Pearson is back to lead the rushing attack, but may be missing No. 1 draft pick Orlando Pace, because he is only averaging 4 yards per carry with one touchdown.

The Buckeyes are paying sub-par football and they have their work cut out for them in the Big Ten.

Cooper

Pearson

TOP PLAYERS:
Quarterbacks: Joe Germaine, 22/44, 316 yds, 1 TD; Stanley Jackson, 23/34, 308 yds, 4 TD

Receivers: David Boston, 15, rec, 204 yds, 3 TD; Dee Miller, 13 rec, 231 yds, 2 TD
Defense: Jerry Rudzinski, 28 tackles, 2 sacks; K.B. Johnson, 26 tackles

Wisconsin Badgers

1997 Record: 3-1 1996 Record: 8-5 Coach: Barry Alvarez

Behind the strengths of Ron Dayne, the Badgers are expecting good things and hoping to make it to their fourth straight bowl appearance.

As a freshman Dayne racked up 2,109 yards and 21 touchdowns. While battling injuries, Dayne has gained 445 yards with 7 touchdowns in three games. Wisconsin suffered a crushing defeat by Syracuse 34-0 in the Kickoff Classic. Dayne was held to 46 yards on 13 carries. The Badgers bounced back strong after their week one loss, beating Boise State, San Jose St. and San Diego St. winning their last two games by a margin of 36 points.

Wisconsin is going into Big Ten action on a positive note, but it will not be easy for them. The Badgers have to play Iowa, Michigan and Penn State late in the season.

BASKETBALL

Slam Dunks, Three-pointers, the UI Spirit Squad and Pep Band!!

This is just part of the excitement surrounding Iowa Basketball.

University of Iowa students make plans to join over 15,000 Black and Gold Hawkeye fans this season in Carver-Hawkeye Arena.

Students have three options when purchasing tickets to the home games of the 1997-98 Iowa Basketball team — 13 games, 10 games or five games. Each option offers exciting Big Ten Conference basketball, Hawkeye style! The 1997-98 schedule is loaded, too, with games against the likes of Drake, Indiana, Michigan, Minnesota and Illinois to name a few. The 13-game package includes all of the games listed below, the 10-game package does not include the Bucknell, Northwestern and Illinois games, the five-game package will be randomly determined by the UI Athletic Department. The five-game package will consist of games found in the 10-game package.

The Schedule

- Fri., Nov. 14
- Sun., Nov. 16
- Sat., Nov. 29
- Tue., Dec. 2
- Sun., Dec. 28

Pretty soon, there will be no more smashing of smaller opponents for the Big Ten.

The non-conference season is almost completely out the window, and with it, goes every easy win imaginable. Say adios to Ball State, Western Michigan, Northern Michigan, Iowa, and company. It's Big Ten time now. The ground game. Ball control. Down and dirty football.

Notre Dame at No. 6 Michigan

This game marks the renewal of one of the greatest rivalries in college football. Former Wolverine coach and athletic director Bo Schembechler would like to see the series cancelled, but that would be a travesty to the college game.

The Fighting Irish are off to a 1-2 start, with losses to Purdue and Michigan State. A loss to the Wolverines would mark the first time since 1960 the Fighting Irish have lost to every Big Ten team on their schedule.

Because of that fact alone, expect the Irish to be at their best, even if they are only playing for pride.

But that might not be enough. In a pair of wins over Colorado and Baylor, Michigan looked like the Wolverines of old, with the nation's No. 1 ranked defense.

Michigan ranks No. 1 all-time in Division I college football wins with 766. Notre Dame ranks second with 747. The Fighting Irish won't close that gap at all Saturday. Michigan 21, Notre Dame 20

Houston at Minnesota

Houston is 0-3, and you know what that means. Nothing. The Golden Gophers are 2-1 under new head coach Glenn Mason, and are building a powerhouse program.

OK, so wins over Iowa State and Memphis might not mean much, but any way you look at it, the Gophers are playing with confidence.

Thanks to the efforts of return specialist Tutu Atwell, the Golden Gophers lead the Big Ten in both kickoff returns (31.4 yards per return) and punt returns (12.0).

And the defense has been playing inspired football lately too. They have tallied 14 sacks through the first three games, after only having eight for the entire 1996 season.

Indiana at Wisconsin

It's Parent's Day up in Madison, and a sellout crowd is expected for the game that will kick-off the Big Ten season.

After getting pounded by Syracuse in the Kickoff Classic, the Badgers have bounced back in their last three games and have looked sharp in convincing wins over

THIS WEEK IN THE BIG TEN

Big Ten season almost in full swing

San Diego State and San Jose State.

In those games, quarterback Mike Samuel has completed 18 of 22 passing attempts for 352 yards and two touchdowns.

Tailback Ron Dayne is quietly still putting up solid numbers, ranking fourth nationally in rushing with 148.3 yards per game.

Indiana, on the other hand, completely fell apart last weekend against Kentucky, and lost to the lowly Wildcats 49-7. Fifty-one Hoosiers saw action in the contest, 29 of which were freshmen or sophomores.

The game marks the Big Ten debut for new Indiana coach Cam Cameron, who was an assistant at Michigan during the 1980's.

He knows what to expect from a Big Ten battle, but it won't matter. The Badgers are starting to roll Wisconsin 31, Indiana 20

Northwestern at Purdue

New Purdue coach Joe Tiller has his Boilermakers playing with the same intensity and excitement that Gary Barnett had brewing in Evanston two years ago.

After knocking off Notre Dame, Purdue sees no reason why it can't beat anyone. The Wildcats have taken the last two meetings between these teams, and the last two in West Lafayette, but Purdue has won 15 of the last 19.

Versatile Purdue quarterback Billy Dickerson ranks No. 9 in the nation in total offense, and has 107 rushing yards on the year to go with his passing numbers.

The Wildcats, on the other hand, are fresh off a 40-34 loss to Rice at home. And although Northwestern is perfect in the red zone, completing on all 13 of its opportunities, kicker Brian Gowins leads the nation in field goals made with eight.

That means only one thing: The Wildcats are struggling to put the ball in the endzone, and are quite often "settling for three."

Purdue is the Northwestern of '97. Purdue 21, Northwestern 17

No. 7 Ohio State at Missouri

This ought to be a cakewalk for the Buckeyes, who face a Missouri team that is clearly focused on next week's showdown with Iowa State.

Ohio State hasn't looked impressive in any of its wins though, and surrendered its 28-6 lead to an unranked Arizona squad last week, only to hold on and win 28-20.

Missouri doubled up on Tulsa, 42-21 last weekend, and isn't playing like a typical Tiger squad, with a 2-1 record.

But the Buckeyes are too good, and its John Cooper's last chance to tune his squad before next weekend's Big Ten battle with Iowa.

Ohio State 35, Missouri 14

Tavian Banks eludes an Iowa State defender last weekend in Ames. Banks leads the nation with 644 yards rushing this season.

RUNNING WILD

By ANDY HAMILTON
THE DAILY IOWAN

Iowa senior Tavian Banks admits he is different than most college football players

His stats prove him right

When Tavian Banks cut off his braids last spring for a shorter hair style, his mother Merrikay thought her youngest son was maturing and preparing himself for life after college. Instead, the Hawkeye running back faked out his mother like he jukes a defender in the open field by dyeing his freshly cut hair blond.

What Merrikay Banks came to realize was that inside the helmet was her son with the blond hair, but he was still the same person.

"Once I realized that he hadn't changed, then I was OK with it," Merrikay said. "He was still the son I raised and he did not do this to draw attention to himself."

Tavian was the same laid-back guy, whose personality is as unique as his running style — doing things others don't even dream of.

"I'm not wild or anything like that," Tavian said. "I'm pretty calm. I'm just kinda different in the things I do. Everybody who knows me knows I'm different. I'm always goofing around and stuff like that."

On the field Tavian has made opposing defenses look like the joke. His Heisman Trophy candidacy has gone from ground zero straight through the roof faster than his 4.28 speed in the 40.

"I'm really not paying any attention to it," Tavian said. "It's not getting to my head or anything like that."

Tavian seems to be the only one not thinking about it. He's appearing in Heisman watches across the country. His older brother LaVance, who now lives in Phoenix, Ariz., said the media in the area is starting to mention Tavian's name alongside Peyton Manning's.

"They have his name there for the Heisman because of the stats," LaVance said. "Right after that they have, well (Iowa has) only played Northern Iowa, Tulsa and Iowa State and who are they? Then the next question is what is he going to do when he gets into the Big Ten?"

That's one of the few questions remaining about Banks. He's already proved he can make people forget about Sedrick Shaw. But what kind of statistics will be there when the dust clears and the Heisman ballots are turned in.

After Banks' school-record 317 yards and four touchdowns against Tulsa, fullback Mike Burger said the goal was 2,000 yards. Tavian agreed that would be a special accomplishment, but is that a lofty enough goal?

"The only way you can truly tell what numbers he will put up is to give him the ball," LaVance said. "If you give him the ball, any number you put in your head, I know for a fact he's going to do better than that."

in leading the Bulldogs to 4-A state titles during his junior and senior seasons.

On its way to the 1992 state title, Bettendorf matched up with Iowa City High and Tim Dwight in a game that many still talk of to this day.

Bettendorf went on to win the game, 31-28, in an action-packed contest filled with big plays. But Banks and Dwight both recall the same play that didn't even count.

"At the end of the game, he had this unbelievable kickoff return," Dwight said. "I don't even know where I was at. I was figuring if somebody's going to tackle him, I was going to be the one because I missed him one time before and he went 70 yards on us."

"He slipped us all and they called it back and it wasn't even a clip. It was our kicker trying to dive for him and a guy went right behind him and they called him for a clip."

Banks had his choice of any school in the country. He visited Miami (Fla.), but the glitz didn't match his style.

He checked out Nebraska, where Cornhusker coach Tom Osborne and the academic support system impressed his mother. On the ride home Tavian told his mother he couldn't see himself waking up in

HIGH SCHOOL LEGEND
Banks' career at Bettendorf High School is paralleled by very few to play the game in Iowa high school history. He racked up 4,292 yards and 74 touchdowns

Hawks will take 'fight' out of Illini

Iowa 52, Illinois 17

With an 0-3 record and his next game on the road against a top-flight team, Illinois coach Ron Turner has every reason to be frustrated.

But I tend to look for a positive in everything and at least you're not with the 45-man circus called the Bears anymore, Ron.

It hasn't been easy for the Fighting Illini and Turner and there isn't too much sympathy coming from Iowa City. Illini won't find any mercy at Kinnick Stadium on Saturday either.

Iowa and its Big Ten and NCAA leading offense will once again find an overmatched defense, which ranks dead last in the conference.

Northern Iowa and Tulsa tried to take Tim Dwight out of the Hawkeye offense and Tavian Banks ran like a bat out of Hades.

Iowa State stacked the line to slow Banks and Dwight was open every time Matt Sherman looked up.

The Hawkeyes have managed to put up more points and yards than any team in college football through the first three games and according to Hayden Fry, there's a lot more bullets still in the gun.

Andy Hamilton

"We still have weapons we work on every week that we haven't explored yet," Fry said. "Sooner or later the time will come when we'll utilize them."

The time certainly will come next week at Ohio State, not Saturday.

Illinois will pick its poison, but a short suffering will be in order. Banks has scored on his first carry against UNI and his second against Tulsa and Iowa State.

If there was a category called receiving efficiency, Dwight would be the leader. He's only caught 13 passes thus far, but five have been scores and he's averaging 21.3 yards per catch.

Banks needs 356 yards to become the first back ever to run for 1,000 yards in the first four games. He said anything's possible and right now who's going to question him?

Look for Banks to approach the 200 yard mark once again, Dwight to make his presence known with another solid game and maybe, if you're lucky, the Illini might kick the ball to him.

With the numbers Banks and Dwight have put up, it's easy to forget the job done by Matt Sherman, even though he does rank second in the nation in passing efficiency. This will be Sherman's day in the sun with numbers in the range of 23 of 30 and 280 yards.

The Illini have their star in running back Robert Holcombe, who enters the game right behind Banks and Wisconsin's Ron Dayne in rushing in the conference.

Illinois' hopes for keeping the game close ride on Holcombe's big shoulders.

The Cyclones couldn't run the ball against Iowa and one dimensional offenses don't stand a chance against Bobby Elliott's defense. This week, he doesn't have the luxury of Vernon Rollins and quite possibly Jon LaFleur to plug into his defen-

Illinois will pick its poison, but a short suffering will be in order. Banks has scored on his first carry against UNI and his second against Tulsa and Iowa State. If there was a category called receiving efficiency, Dwight would be the leader. He's only caught 13 passes thus far, but five have been scores.

even though he does rank second in the nation in passing efficiency. This will be Sherman's day in the sun with numbers in the range of 23 of 30 and 280 yards.

The Illini have their star in running back Robert Holcombe, who enters the game right behind Banks and Wisconsin's Ron Dayne in rushing in the conference.

Illinois' hopes for keeping the game close ride on Holcombe's big shoulders.

If Iowa gets off to a fast start the Illini will be asking too much of freshman quarterback Tim Lavery to bring them back in his Big Ten debut on the road, especially with the history of this series.

The last two times Iowa has gone to the Rose Bowl, it has annihilated Illinois. In 1985 the Hawkeyes scored 35 points in the first quarter and destroyed a good Illini team 59-0. Five years later Iowa marched into Champaign and whipped the Illini 54-28.

Will the trend continue?

Hawkeye linebacker Vernon Rollins is trying as best he can to deal with his knee injury

Raj Clark has mixed emotions about his first start

By CHRIS SNIDER
 THE DAILY IOWAN

Rumor had it, Iowa linebacker Vernon Rollins would not be around for media interviews Tuesday afternoon. But there he was, a gold crutch under each arm, an unsightly brace extending from the bottom of his yellow mesh shorts to the top of his loosely-tied Reeboks, gingerly making his way towards the Iowa lockerroom.

"It was miserable, but life goes on. I can't let it get me down. I have a hard road to come back, but I'll do it. No problem."

Iowa linebacker Vernon Rollins

Rollins was informed he did not have to talk about his situation, and even was cleared an open lane to the lockerroom. And although he tried not to talk about the pain he went through Saturday, he stayed until the last question was answered.

"It was miserable, but life goes on," said Rollins, who will be replaced by sophomore Raj Clark in the Hawkeye starting lineup. "I can't let it get me down. I have a hard road to come back, but I'll do it. No problem."

Rollins halfheartedly smiled and laughed as he talked about the injury, giving the impression he was starting to accept the situation. But teammate and fellow linebacker Matt Hughes confirmed his close friend was still hurting.

"He's pretty down on his spirits," said Hughes, who has been sitting through rehab treatments with Rollins this week. "But that's to be expected from someone who loves football as much as he does."

Clark, who entertained reporters only a few feet away from the man he is replacing, has recorded 10 tackles and one interception this season in his backup role. His numbers are similar to those of Rollins, who has 11 tackles and no interceptions.

A close friend of Rollins, Clark enters his first career start with mixed emotions.

"It was bad to see such a great player go down with an injury like that, but then again, I was happy to start," he said.

Iowa coach Hayden Fry said prior to the season that he would try to find a way to get Clark, whom he considered every bit as talented as Hughes and Rollins, more playing time. Fry never wished it would happen this way.

Although Rollins was an honorable mention all-Big Ten selection last season and a sure all-Big Ten choice this year, Fry said the Hawkeyes shouldn't feel too much of a drop off with Clark in the lineup.

"They're two very similar football players," Fry said. "Vernon has proven he is gifted and valuable and Raj hasn't done that because he hasn't played that much yet. But Raj loves to play the game. He's got a motor."

Although Rollins will be watching this weekend's game against Illinois from the sidelines, both Clark and Hughes will be honoring him on the field.

Rollins has been a mentor for Clark ever since he enrolled at Iowa. The two study film together every Monday night, Rollins playing the role of the teacher and Clark the student. Away from the football field, Clark, the unofficial team barber, cuts Rollins' hair.

Hughes, who has started 15 consecutive games for the Hawkeyes, but never without Rollins lined up next to him, said the loss will be used as inspiration by the whole team.

"Football was important to him," Hughes said. "We are going to go out and try to win the rest of them for him."

Hughes' reaction is no surprise. He and Rollins have developed a strong friendship in their years at Iowa. Hughes rushed over to Rollins' side the moment he saw his teammate lying on the field at Jack Trice Stadium last week.

Later in the game, with Rollins sitting alone on the Hawkeye bench, Hughes walked over to see how his friend was doing. At that point, Rollins still thought his knee was sprained, so the two joked around like usual.

It wasn't until after the game that Hughes found out Rollins might be out for the season. He went to the interview room to talk to the media and then went looking for his friend, finally finding him on the team bus.

"It was kind of a hard conversation for both of us," Hughes said. "He's one of my best friends and seeing him in that much pain hurt me, too."

"I gave him assurance that I would be there for him. It was kind of a short conversation. I didn't want to make him talk about it longer than he had to."

For Rollins, the only talk now is one of a comeback.

New coach, QB lead Illini into I.C.

BY TONY WIRT
THE DAILY IOWAN

The Illinois team that enters Kinnick Stadium this Saturday will be somewhat of a mystery to Hayden Fry's Hawkeye squad, which will be looking at a coaching staff and a quarterback that it has never seen before.

When a team starts the year with three consecutive losses, as the Illini have, changes are usually quick to follow.

That will be the case this week when first-year Illinoi coach Ron Turner yanks the reigns of the team from quarterback Mark Hoekstra and hands them over to redshirt freshman Tim Lavery.

"We've got to get more production out of the quarterback position," Turner said. "We haven't been productive, and we've turned the ball over too much. We had opportunities to win the game this past week and the week before, and we didn't get it done."

"And not that the quarterback is the sole reason, because that's not the case."

It's never one guy that wins or loses a game, but we have to get better production and we're hoping Tim can give us a spark."

The Hawkeyes aren't sweating over the quarterback change. Iowa quarterback Matt Sherman thinks that the Illini's new signal caller will be feeling the heat in Kinnick Stadium.

"It's a hostile environment for visitors, unfortunately for him, and I'm sure our fans will do a good job of letting him know," Sherman said. "I think our defense will cause him some problems, too. They do a lot of stunting, and as a young quarterback, you're kind of confused out there."

Sherman isn't alone in his evaluation. Fry also said Lavery will be under a lot of pressure in his first start.

"He's running a new system in Illinois, and realistically there should be more pressure on him because he's inexperienced," Fry said. "I know how I would feel as a coach with a freshman quarterback coming in without a lot of game experience, with a new coach to boot. It's tough."

While Iowa knows very little about the man at the helm of the Illinoi offense, one thing that will not be a mystery to the Hawkeyes is who will run the ball.

Senior running back Robert Holcombe has been the bulk of the ground game for the Illini, carrying the ball 92 times for 419 yards this season.

Holcombe's success on the ground has caught the attention of the Hawkeye defense, and the players know that he's a bruising back who's going to come right after them. "We face good backs week in and week out, but (Holcombe) is by far the best we've faced so far," junior linebacker Matt Hughes said. "We're going to have to really concentrate on wrapping him up and using proper tackling techniques."

Holcombe, a Mesa, Ariz. native, is the all-time leader in rushing yards and carries at Illinois, gaining 3,271 yards on 741 career carries.

"(Holcombe) has broken all of the Illinois records through the years, and they've had some great ones, going back to Red Grange," Fry said. "He's a very determined, hard-nosed runner. You're not going to arm-tackle him. He's a whole lot like (Wisconsin's Rod) Dayne. He's a north and south runner. We're going to have to screw our cleats on real tight when we play him."

While it is no secret that Turner will look to Holcombe to provide most of the offense, Lavery will have some solid targets to throw to.

Senior tight end Matt Cushing is in his third year as a starter and has 50 career receptions. Junior Rob Majoy is the top returning wide receiver from last year and sophomore flanker Lenny Willis is leading the team in receptions this year with 13.

"Holcombe is definitely a great running back, but they also have a great passing attack with good tight ends," Hughes said. "We can focus on Holcombe, but we can't ignore or overlook the rest of the offense. They have a potent offense where we have to pay attention to every detail."

On the defensive side of the ball, Sherman will be facing a hot secondary, which had three interceptions against No. 15 Washington State last week. Sophomore free safety Ivan Benson was responsible for two of the thefts, the first two picks of his career.

Cornerback Trevor Starghill picked off his ninth career pass last week, moving him to 10th on the schools all-time list.

"It's a great challenge for me because this is probably the best secondary that we've faced all year," Sherman said. "That's why I play the game, I want to play against the best and compete against the best. It'll be a great challenge this week and I'm very excited."

Illinois will have to make a choice whether it wants to concentrate on stopping Iowa's

Washington State rallied past Illinois last weekend

BY TARA BURGHART

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. — Washington State quarterback Ryan Leaf called his performance "terrible" and coach Mike Price was furious at his team for committing 18 penalties.

Still, the 19th-ranked Cougars (3-0) were able to rally past winless Illinois 35-22 Saturday.

Leaf threw four touchdowns but also three interceptions, and State overcame a 14-7 Illinois lead early in the second half.

The go-ahead touchdown drive took just two plays and 25 seconds. Running back Michael Black broke off a 44-yard run on the final play of the third quarter. Then on the opening play of the final period, DeJuan Gilmore ran 21 yards around the right side for the touchdown that made it 21-14.

The scoring drive came after the Illini (0-3) failed to convert on fourth-and-2 at the Washington State 35 when quarterback Mark Hoekstra threw an incomplete pass.

"I think we're all frustrated right now," said Hoekstra, who threw two interceptions and fumbled on another fourth-down sneak attempt. "Every game is the same thing. We're not producing."

Leaf, meanwhile, completed 21-of-36 passes for 302 yards, giving him 1,038 yards and 10 touchdowns in just three games.

He credited the Illinoi defense for pressuring him in the first half, when he threw two of his interceptions.

"They did a good job at getting to me and it disrupted my throwing," he said, offering a description of his own play. "Terrible. I played very poorly."

On the first scrimmage play of the game, Washington State stunned the Illini when Leaf threw the ball across the middle to Kevin McKenzie, who ran untouched through the Illini defense to complete an 80-yard touchdown only 16 seconds into the game.

But the Cougars sputtered after that in the first half, racking up 10 penalties, seven in the first quarter for 53 yards.

"We weren't mentally focused. We wanted to go in and dominate, but that just didn't happen," Leaf said.

The first of two interceptions by Ivan Benson — at the Washington State 36 — led to a tying 2-yard touchdown run by Hoekstra midway through the first quarter.

Illinois made it 14-7 on its first possession of the second half when Robert Holcombe, who finished with 163 yards, ran 48 yards for the touchdown.

"We go in expecting to win. Everybody felt we would win this game," Holcombe said. "Washington State has got a great team but we were in the game and then late we fell apart."

running game as Iowa State did, or taking away the passing attack as Tulsa and UNI tried. The Hawkeyes aren't sure what they are going to see from the Illini.

"If a team is going to play Iowa, I don't know if they'd want to take out Tavian or take out the receivers," sophomore receiver Tony Collins said. "I'm sure they'll use a lot of stunts and some blitzes to try and get to the quarterback and hopefully bump Tavian on the head a couple times, too. It'll be interesting to see what their schemes will be."

One thing that the Illini have going for them is their history against the Hawkeyes. Illinois holds a 35-22-2 series lead, with the Illini winning the past two contests in Kinnick Stadium.

"They'll come in here fired up, and they should, because they've had our number here the last couple of years," Sherman said. "They've done a good job in this place."

Jon LaFleur (right) and Matt Hughes team up to crush Northern Iowa's Shane Fortney earlier this season at Kinnick Stadium.

Loving the trenches

WAYNE DREHS
THE DAILY IOWAN

What Jon LaFleur does on the football field isn't pretty. It won't win him any trophies, or start a trend of No. 55 jerseys on campus. It probably won't even get the defensive tackle a highlight on the Hayden Fry show. But LaFleur doesn't care. Growing up on a farm since he could crawl, he's learned the intrinsic value of unappreciated hard work. And that's just what run-stopping is.

He's made a college football career out of filling gaps in the defensive line and greeting opposing tailbacks searching for the open hole. Out of his 160 plus tackles as a Hawkeye, 40 of them have ended in a loss of yards for the opposition.

And yet it's rare to hear LaFleur's name mentioned as a defensive star.

"I'm a player who doesn't get noticed too much," LaFleur said. "If people want to talk to me, fine. If not, I don't care. As long as we are still winning, I really don't care."

Teammate and close friend Jared DeVries is one person who understands how important LaFleur is to the defense. While the Outland Trophy candidate gets most of the team's defensive spotlight, he's quick to give credit where credit is due.

"He's the center of our defense," DeVries said. "Without Jon LaFleur, I'm not as good of a football player."

Jon LaFleur has no problem being out of the spotlight

The Hawkeye defensive lineman wouldn't have it any other way

"I'm a player who doesn't get noticed too much. If people want to talk to me, fine. If not, I don't care. As long as we are still winning, I really don't care."

Iowa defensive lineman Jon LaFleur

DeVries may get a first-hand look at life without LaFleur Saturday against Illinois. LaFleur suffered an injured knee in the win against Iowa State last week, and his status against the Fighting Illini is still up in the air. Coach Hayden Fry said Tuesday it was "possible" that LaFleur will see action.

The loss of the senior on the football field would mean the loss of one of the team's most unselfish and important players.

It's his team-oriented attitude that LaFleur's teammates had in mind when they voted him one of two defensive captains last spring. The selection was a big surprise for the honor roll student.

"You feel a sense of respect when your own teammates pick you like that," LaFleur said. "A little more is expected from me now. I always try to do everything I can, but I think maybe a little more leadership and vocal position is now expected."

LaFleur's high school sports career taught him the key elements that go into a successful team and gave him the qualities to be a successful leader. It was at Sioux City Heelen High School where he earned three letters in football, two in basketball, four in baseball, and four in track.

Following his senior year of football, he was rated the fourth-best defensive line prospect in the nation by Blue Chip Illus- trated. "Those days made me a well-rounded athlete," LaFleur said. "I got to experience all kinds of teams and realize how it all fits together."

LaFleur wears No. 55 in honor of his father Dan, who wore the same number for the Hawkeyes from 1972-1974. Jon has worn No. 55 since he started playing football in 6th grade.

"I was very fortunate they had it when I came here," LaFleur said. "I think it's something that's more special to my Dad. I don't think of it as his number any more, I think of it as mine, because I've worn it for so long."

At no point in time were more eyes on No. 55 than last October's home game against Ohio State. It was in that game that LaFleur stood face-to-face with 6-foot-7, 330-pound Orlando Pace.

LaFleur had high expectations heading into his match-up with who would end up being the No. 1 selection in the NFL Draft, and Pace didn't disappoint.

LaFleur managed to hold his own, though, and avoided being a victim of the "Pancake Block."

"When you are successful against not only Pace, but anybody, it always builds confidence," LaFleur said. "So I have more confidence now. But I'm not over confident by any means."

Of course not. That wouldn't be the LaFleur way.
