Bikers hit the bottom

Local mountain bikers say Sugar Bottom provides the most challenging trails around Iowa City.

By Jeff Clayton The Daily Iowan

While the calendar has turned to fall, surprisingly warm weather in Iowa City has offered more time for biking adventures.

Although it may not be Utah or Colorado, UI senior Dantia MacDonald said she prefers to ride at Sugar Bottom Recreation Area, which provides good local off-road trails for Iowa City mountain bikers.

"It's definitely the best riding around here," MacDonald said. "It's really fun because it's not big hills to climb, but a lot of quick ups and downs."

Located five miles north of North Liberty, Sugar Bottom consists of 10.5 miles of easy to difficult biking trails.

Sugar Bottom is not only beautiful, but enjoyable for people with minimal biking experience, Mac-Donald said.

Even people that have not been biking for years can still have fun,"

However, even the most advanced bike riders will find a challenge.

"There is one climb that is absolutely impossible," MacDonald said. "I walk my bike, but a lot of people do make it." The trails are built and maintained by Iowa City Off-Road Riders (ICORR) in conjunction with the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, ICORR President Rick Knoke said.

A group of ICORR members are available to assist bikers having medical or mechanical problems,

"There are a group of volunteers hose main purpose is to assist, inform and educate trail usage at ugar Bottom," he said. Sugar Bottom provides an outlet for local mountain bikers to have a lace of their own, Knoke said.

"It's truly a mountain bike trail and not for horses or hiking," Knoke said.

Sugar Bottom consists of narrow, single-track trails with a varying degree of difficulty. All trails are onevay for safety reasons, Knoke said. The trails' difficulty are marked the same as cross-country ski trails, with green circle trails being the easiest, blue square trails more difficult and black diamond trails the most difficult, Knoke said.

The different trails are all connected, MacDonald said. Knoke realized the mountain bikes can cause erosion, but he said ICORR works hard to prevent that. "There have been a few studies done," Knoke said. "The impact of mountain biking is typically on par with hiking and less than horses and motor vehicles."

ICORR member and mountainbike enthusiast Brian Hester said ICORR's main concern is ensuring mind is free."

good time.

"It's always in good shape," Hester said. "Erosion is not a problem." Fines can be imposed by the Corps of Engineers if bikers break the rules of the trail, such as riding after heavy rains, Knoke said. ICORR also assists with several racing events and directly sponsors the "Sugar Bottom Scramble," Knoke said. "They are all sanctioned races," Neil said. "It's a real competition." However, the races tend to be a

"Races are a day-long festival," Hester said. "You get to hang out with your friends."

Races are divided into three categories: experts, sports and beginners. "Experts are usually real competitive and don't race unless in good shape," Neil said. "These are the big dogs.

The best thing about Sugar Bottom is it provides an escape from the rigors of modern life, Knoke said.

'I like the fact that when I'm out there, I'm all focused on the trail, and you leave everything behind you," Knoke said. "It's a release from the pressures of life, and your

Hundreds of thousands jam capital for prayer and promises

■ Throngs of Christian men rally in Washington against moral decline.

> By Nancy Benac Associated Press

WASHINGTON - In a soulsearching quest for spiritual renewal, hundreds of thousands of Christian men prayed and sang among the great monuments of Washington on Saturday, eager to own up to their failings and halt a nation's moral

In a chant that thundered for blocks from the Capitol to the Washington Monument, the men of the Promise Keepers thrust their arms upward and declared in unison, "Dear God, I am a sinner ... Please forgive me and change me.'

Kneeling in prayer and rising in exuberant stadium-style "waves," the men pledged to become better fathers, husbands, friends and churchmen. Feminists and liberals saw subtexts of female subjugation and a right-wing political agenda that organizers insisted wasn't

Across the acres of the Mall's green expanse, men linked arms in small huddles, confessing aloud to sins of racism, impurity, pride, backbiting and neglect for family.

Ready to replicate the experience across the country, Promise Keepers founder Bill McCartney set the date Jan. 1, 2000, for rallies at every state capitol to "take roll call" for Jesus Christ

On a crisp fall day, the National Mall was transformed into a giant outdoor cathedral for what was surely one of the largest religious gatherings in American history although there was no official crowd count.

The six-hour "solemn assembly" began with the blowing of a ram horn to summon a crowd that was overwhelmingly white and male to worship.

The atmosphere amid the "prayer tepees" and jumbo video screens on the Mall was an unlikely mix of meekness and machismo: Men confessing their weaknesses on bended knee yet eager to reassert their mannood at home.

It was the latter that made feminists nervous.

'The Promise Keepers come to their rally and check their wives and daughters at the door like coats," Patricia Ireland, president of the National Organization for Women. We're here with a promise we want the Promise Keepers to keep: 'I promise to support equality for women.'

JERUSALEM - Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu's government broke its silence Sunday on the botched assassination attempt against a Hamas leader, defending Israel's right to fight terrorism without compromise

The bungled Sept. 25 attack on Khalid Mashaal in Jordan has damaged peacemaking and thrownrelations with Israel's friendliest Arab ally, Jordan, into crisis. In Israel on Sunday, there were calls for an official inquiry, and an opposition lawmaker demanded Netanyahu's resignation.

In the attack, two men carrying Canadian passports injected poison into the Hamas leader's ear as he Mashaal was hospitalized with breathing problems but recovered. In its first public comment on the attempt, Netanyahu's government stopped short of confirming that Israeli agents were responsible. But in a Cabinet statement, Netanyahu called Mashaal "the No. figure in Hamas, responsible for the murder of innocent Israeli citizens," and said "the government's obligation is to protect the lives of its citizens and to fight terror without compromise.

Netanyahu adviser David Bar-Illan indicated that negotiations were under way with Jordan over the return of the two attackers, now in Jordanian custody. We'd rather not refer to the specific case as long as the negotiations are going on," he told reporters. "We're not discussing the case as long as there are Israelis in custody in Jordan." Bar-Illan said Mashaal was Asteroids aside, Cassini is safe whether the rocket blows or not, Cook and other government officials say. Any release of plutonium would be minute, they insist.

In July, a man questioned UI physicist Donald Gurnett at a UI physics department press conference about the plutonium-powered vehicle. Gurnett's radio & plasma wave science instrument is one of 18 flying to Saturn aboard Cassini. The man said millions of people would be endangered if there was a launch accident.

"I think they're taking a view that's alarmist and is not consistent with the facts," he said about the anti-plutonium protesters. "The only way plutonium would really be a risk is if it would vaporize, and basically that is not a risk at all because it's ceramic."

It's the biggest, loudest crusade against a nuclear-powered space shot ever. Then again, it's the most plutonium for a space shot ever -2 pounds of the highly radioactive, highly carcinogenic stuff, compressed into a nonpulverizing ceramic form so it cannot be inhaled in the event of a launch accident.

By mail, by phone, by rally and especially by Internet, the anti-Cassini crowd is gaining attention, if not momentum, as the launch date nears. A march near the launch site Saturday drew an estimated 500 protesters.

The result: plutonium pandemo-tant issue during the 21st century, Zeidenberg said. "We want to make sure that students know about (the effects of global warming)." UI senior Ben Lewis, treasurer of the Environmental Coalition and co-organizer of today's discussion, would like to see Clinton set specific numbers at a specific date to reduce greenhouse gas emission.

"I would like to hear something (from Clinton) like, We are going to reduce the emissions 10 to 20 percent until 2004," said Lewis.

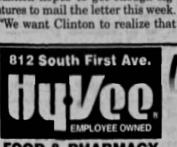

Therefore, the Environmental Coalition has started to collect signatures for an open letter to Clinton, in which it demands greater efforts for a clean environment. Lewis said the Environmental Coalition hopes to get enough signatures to mail the letter this week.

there are other interests involved, referring to global warming, than only economical (interests)," Lewis said.

After Clinton's broadcast, a panel of five UI experts on climate change will discuss the effects of global warming on the Iowa environment and answer questions from the audience.

According to UI Professor Jerald Schnoor, co-director of the Center for Global and Regional Environmental Research and panelist in today's discussion, Iowa is responsible for 20 percent of the United States' total emission of greenhouses gases, such as carbon monoxide and methane. The gases go into the atmosphere and warm it like a greenhouse.

"Per year and per head, Iowa emits 29 tons of greenhouse gas," Schnoor said. "We should show leadership in order to begin to stabilize the atmosphere."

Battle is on for burrito supremacy

nese are intriguing times for the downtown Mexican-food industry. For the past few years, Panchero's has held an unchallenged stranglehold upon its constituents, serving colossal heaps of beans wrapped in tortillas for "bargain" prices. Nightfall continually brought hordes of students and other passers-by into the place in search of a friendly face and a good meal.

Yes, all was well in the Panchero's world until strange developments began to occur not a block away from its cozy nook. Taco Bell, the fast-food behemoth that has single-handedly redefined the term "Mexican food," showed up at the doorstep last month, striking fear in the hearts of, well, a few. Given Taco Bell's dizzying array of fine Latin cuisine and bottom-dollar prices, many wondered if this would be the end for Panchero's.

After all, how could a humble establishment such as Panchero's withstand the pressure from a store that is endorsed by acclaimed actor and sometime basketball player Shaquille O'Neal, among others? If that wasn't enough, Taco Bell's location (which, fittingly, is in a shopping mall) puts it within viewing distance of thousands of inebriated consumers every weekend night. In addition, the industry behemoth currently offers toy eyeballs with its value meals. What is one to do? The Panchero's response was swift and aggressive. Declaring September their "5th Anniversary," Pan-chero's officials counteracted the insurgent Taco Bell faction with an approach that many would have thought unthinkable. The restaurant fell back on

might know this as the fabled two pound burrito - an entree so daunting it has reduced many a hero into mere mortals. The restaurant sponsored a contest concurrent with its anniversary, inviting volunteers to try and conquer El Gordo in as timely a fashion as Regaining consumers by gorging them with beans meat, cheese, salsa and whatnot is, no doubt, a curious approach. But Panchero's was undeterred by concerns such as this, and the game was on. A local radio station presented a live broadcast of the event, and legions of fans were present to support the contestants. The actual proceedings were not surprising Many brave souls put it all on the line and filled their faces with the titanic burritos for all to see. The contest was a rousing success. The restaurant received a much-needed boost, and the contestants received, if nothing else, intestinal regularity.

In the aftermath of the contest, Panchero's found itself once again on solid ground. It's been over a month since Taco Bell forces invaded the Old Capitol Mall, and Panchero's is still on its feet. The battle is far from over, however. Taco Bell is accepting "Team Member Applications" and is pledging applicants a minimum-wage salary for their services. Panchero's, meanwhile, has done some recruiting of its own. The restaurant is selling T-shirts depicting its logo in hopes of creating a fleet of supporters clad in Panchero's regalia.

With strategies as solid as these on both fronts, one may wonder, who will be the victor? It could come down to several factors. One of them is restaurant decor, a category in which Panchero's has a convincing advantage. The restaurant boasts authentic Mexican newspaper clippings framed along the wall, along with an agreeable color scheme and intimately lit bathrooms. Taco Bell, meanwhile, when not endorsing such Oscar-caliber films as "Batman & Robin" and "Kazaam!," features gaudy advertisements and an odd pastel color arrangement.

The most important factor, of course, is the food itself. Although Panchero's receipts often enter the comparatively expensive $5 to $6 range, the fare evokes a certain sense of authenticity. Taco Bell, on the other hand, can best be symbolized by its "Mexican pizza," which, interestingly, is neither an authentic Mexican dish nor an actual pizza. But items such as these sell, which is why Panchero's currently has its hands full.

Time will tell who the victor shall be in this bitter battle of Mexican fast-food enterprises. In all likeli hood, both will stick around for a while. But with good old capitalistic competition creating events such as the aforementioned contest, things should at least be interesting.

dangerous way to raise money

ragedy struck in Toms Rivers, N.J., last week, when an ambitious 11-year-old boy was killed in a random act of unexplainable violence.

Edward Werner was going doorhood, trying to sell the most candy and wrapping paper for his school's PTA, in hopes he would win the grand prize: a set of walkie-talkies. Werner's dedication was paying off and had him bragging to his friends, flashing a $200 wad of bills to illustrate his success. The one knows what stands behind a walkie-talkies were going to be his. However, in the end, prosecutors say it was Werner's success that

Ammerman wrong

on bike issue

Jesse Ammerman suggests that bicyclists should be allowed to ride on the sidewalks in downtown lowa City.

This is a stupid suggestion. If Ammerman had ever been run into by a bicyclist (as I have, twice) hell-bent on getting somewhere fast, then he might be of a different opinion.

The smarter solution is to prohibit all non-delivery/service vehicles in the downtown area between say, Iowa Avenue and Burlington, Clinton and Linn streets. This way bicyclists could ride safely in the streets and only intimidate pedestrians at the crosswalks. (Of course, they would be required to obey traffic signals, something most, but not all, bicyclists despise doing.)

Since such a reasonable solution is not likely in Iowa City - after all, this isn't Madison, Wis., where common sense sometimes prevails — more obvious signs prohibiting bicyclists on the sidewalk should be put up. The overwhelming majority who use sidewalks are pedestrians, not bicyclists.

Movies still have ways to go in portraying gays

To the Editor:

The new hit movie "In & Out" has been Hollywood-ized within an inch of its life, desperately trying to make us gay people palatable for the mainstream with cheap, cutsie gags and stock stereotypes.

I chuckled a couple of times, but overall I felt really let down. I expected a smart comedy that poked insightful, good-natured fun at gay and straight people alike, but for the most part the movie was just really, really dumb. I mean, what planet are these people on? They look human, but it sure isn't planet Earth. Comedy is so much better when it springs from real characters and at least semibelievable situations, with some wit attached, rather than out of cardboard cut-out idiots.

Plus, I'm so tired of being portrayed as less than "normal" in film and on television. I know that African-Americans suffered through the same process, but how far do we finally have to come before we can learn from past mistakes, get over ourselves and treat the world with fairness and openness? We are all people, regardless of race, religion, sex or orientation.

Better humor can be found in genuine human situations and emotions, gay and straight, than going for what is cheap, offensive, insulting or demeaning

I also had a major problem with the "Hmmm, I never thought of it before, but maybe I am gay" angle. It was confusing and absurd. There was no attempt to make sense of this gay man's situation for the audience.

Even a one or two line explanation, like "I realize I've been repressing it all these years; I've been fooling myself, too" would have helped.

Bottom line: "In & Out" is just more over-hyped Hollywood junk. Some say it's a good sign of progress that a film with a gay theme like this was even made, much less become a No. 1 hit, but I say, "What a disappointment."

Serious issue may require drastic step

oter apathy is bad at the national level. worse at the state level and abysmal at the local level. What's the problem? Why are voters turning off and tuning out? Partly it's sheer ignorance of our kind of government and what it takes to make it work. Consider these dismal findings for a survey sponsored by the National Constitution Center, announced at the start of Constitution Week (Sept. 17 to 23).

Half the respondents didn't know how many U.S. senators we have. Less that one in five could answer eight of 10 basic questions about the Constitution and the Bill of Rights. Sixteen percent believe it makes Christianity America's official religion, a third that it declares English the national language. One in four cannot name any First Amendment rights, and a scant 6 percent can name all five: freedom of speech, press, assembly, religion and right to petition the government for redress of grievances.

Our Constitution, novel and unique, has been the model for every emerging democracy since ours. It has held us together for more than two centuries. It has given us fair political representation and basic freedom in a way unparalleled in a history full of repressiveness and tyranny. Our ignorance of this marvelous document bespeaks rank ingratitude for our blessings and invincible (or dare we hope not permanently invinci-Why else are votenough to kill for it. Both boys are Then we have the ubiquitous consultants, mostly self-serving muddlers, totally disconnected from real human beings. The sleazy Dick Morris, who in his new book claims he was Clinton's "chief strategist" in his successful presidential race, credits the win to more and better polls; more, newer and better 30-second commercials; modification of the candidate's stand on issues; a change in his relationship with his party; better oral delivery.

Yuck. Any one of those could disaffect voters. In combination, they are more likely to alienate than

And there was the costly junk mail with which the bubble heads who man the Democratic National Committee bombarded party members nationwide, with their slanted and inane questionnaires and useless photos. There was nothing about the issues: national debt, sweat shops, wars, crumbling infrastructure, drugs, crime, poverty. They assumed that the intelligence-impaired public wouldn't care about these trivia, especially when our busy legislators focus on such urgent items as banning flag-burning and pushing government-mandated Christian prayer in class-

How about the perpetual, interminable investigations, which use up thousands of man-hours and millions of dollars? Simple-minded pundits (is there any other kind?) wring their hands over the lack of public outrage for these alleged moral lapses. But everybody else understands that the investigation, grandstanding and publicizing are motivated solely by a partisan determination to smear mud on opponents

Another offensive ploy is the way candidates are packaged and promoted like too many deodorants of hemorrhoid remedies. Saturated by the media with noxious and dishonest ballyhoo, is it any wonder the electorate is unresponsive?

But here's a curious phenomenon. Tactics like these are seldom used at the grass-roots level. Here, a minority turns out for local elections and an even smaller minority for school board elections. You'd think it would be the other way around. School boards shape and support the excellent schools that attract desirable families to Iowa City and that pervasively enhance the quality of life. City councilors enact the laws that have immediate impact on the town's general ambiance. Dishonesty and greed are almost nonexistent among these hard-working, public-spirited neighbors. Furthermore, they are readily accessible as state and national figures are not. One explanation of low turnout in a university town s, of course, the fact that many students are from out of state. However, re-registering is quick and easy, and Iowa City is a home away from home for four years. Tomorrow's primary should draw a higher than usual percentage of campus votes because three of the eight candidates for two at-large seats are students; John Jones, John Lohman and Allen Stroh Jr. All three maintain that everyone would benefit if town and gown moved in tandem rather than along parallel tracks. It makes sense. Town and gown interact.

America lags way behind most other countries when it comes to balloting: 139 out of 163, according Who's doing what wrong here? And how can it be corrected? Maybe we should beef up on our high school civics courses. Maybe, as a cartoon character proposed, there should be a mandatory death penalty for campaign consultants.

Nah. Try this on for size: forbid people to vote. Since humans are innately contumacious, what'll you bet they'd rise up in wrath and show up in droves?

But I wouldn't know. I could never get any attention from the girls I grew up and went to school with. They treated me like a wall. #### DI shows bias against COGS

To the editor: Are you familiar with the term

'libel"? It would seem not. Your story "COGS Gets Parking Preference" (DI, 9/18) was so clearly biased against the graduate student union so as to seriously call into question The Daily owan's journalistic integrity. Nathan Hill's use of the term "synditate" to describe COGS harkens back to the days of anti-laborism common during the days of Sen. Joe McCarthy. The implication that the union is tantamount to organized crime, or worse, is a cheap shot and totally unfounded.

Overall, it is clear that Hill has an axe to grind against the union, and seemingly so does the DI editorial board. If the DI can't publish a balanced story then it should not publish one at all. Get with the program, folks.

Drunk-driving laws should be heeded

I am writing this open letter to reades who are parents in the hope that they will sit down with their children and impress on them the seriousness of lowa's new drunk driving laws. The lowa Legislature recently passed legislation that significantly increases the penalties for Operating a Motor Vehicle Under the Influence with over a blood alcohol level of 0.10. If you are convicted in lowa of this offense you will be remanded to the sheriff to server two days in jail. The new law hours and could spend up to one year in jail. The new law also requires that the parents and school be notified.

The new law also mandates a minimum fine of $500 and up to $1,000 for a first offense. Driving privileges are lost for six months. According to Iowa insurance agents, your auto insurance may double for considerably less cov-

Students covered under their parent's policy will no longer be able to remain under that policy and in some cases, the parent's policy will be canceled. The conviction stays on your driving record for 12 years. If you are stopped again in that 12-year period, you will be charged as a second time offender and your vehicle may be seized and you could go to jail for up to two years.

lowa now has a specific law for those under the age of 21. If you are stopped and the blood alcohol level is between 0.02 and 0.10 (about one can of beer for most in this age group) you lose your license for 60 days. A second occurrence and it is 90 days. Failure to take a breath test gets you a year away from driving. This is in addition to any criminal charges. If your blood alcohol is above 0.10, teens are treated like an adult.

lowa is tough on drinking and driving. It is tough on providing alcohol to minors. Your teen will be asked to make a large number of difficult decisions in the next nine months. The members of the Iowa State Bar Association hope the decision whether to drink and drive is not something they have to make. Don't drink and drive!

William D. Scherle

Alcohol problems overstated by DI

Iowa City's reaction to the contrived "issue" of alcohol consumption is so one-sided it's enough to drive one to drink. I refuse to qualify this letter with something like, "While I realize teenalcohol consumption is a widespread problem, and I applaud the community's concern and efforts..." There is no widespread problem, and no one's ineffective, unimaginative and wasteful efforts so far deserve any applause.

The UI's predictable reaction: "The drinking deaths of two students in the last two years out of tens of thousands pant epidemic of deadly binge drinking and if we don't address this problem we'll all be doomed."

Wise up. An alcohol-free Utopia is not an option - even if the Greek system does go "dry." The Iowa City Police Department's mindless reaction: "Drinking's illegal, therefore it's wrong, so we'll increase fines and crack down on underage drinkers in order to protect society and don't give us this crap about rights, you little punks, we have a job to do, and we're

Wake up. Cracking down on a victimless crime (yes, there is such a thing) under the pretense of enforcing "the law" will achieve nothing but further resentment toward the police and

The students' unhelpful reaction, as absorbed from the DI Viewpoints pages: "Don't go after us, go after the bar owners, those evil profiteers who earn blood money by shoving gallons of dangerous alcohol down students' throats." Grow up. Students who wish to be treated as adults should assert their rights instead of trying to deflect misguided blame.

Finally, society's lamentable reaction: "No, we'll never, never, ever lower or abolish the drinking age, never, ever, we don't even want to hear about it, la la la la..." Give up. A lowered or abolished drinking age will not signify a societal acceptance of binge-drinking but will send a positive message of trust, and the fact that most "underage" drinkers do so responsibly means that trust has been earned. If you want to see "us kids today" acting more responsibly, then quit punishing the many for the actions of a few. This is real life, not kindergarten.

Reader takes issue with Hogberg, DI

To the editor: I found David Hogberg's Sept. 25

column very disturbing. The issue is not which side I take in the debate between Lea Haravon and Jacqueline Smetak about teaching philosophies.

I question the fairness of The Daily lowan editorial staff. As a staff columnist, Hogberg gets space every week. As a reader, Smetak is only allowed one piece every thirty days. If Smetak wanted to reply to Hogberg's essay, the quickest she could do so is Oct. 16. By then, Hogberg will have pub lished three more essays. Length is also an issue. Hogberg's columns are about 750 words long. The DI infrequently allows readers 750 words and usually limits them to 400. Hogberg can write more and write more frequently than any reader he may choose to attack. Nor did Hogberg even have to mention Smetak by name or refer to her essay specifically. He could have made the same arguments about classroom motivation and discipline without once mentioning Smetak or Haravon. Formerly, the DI did not allow Viewpoints writers to directly respond to readers' letters and

By changing that policy, then running Hogberg's reply to Smetak, is the DI editorial staff, without necessarily intending to, sending an implicit message to its readers? — "Disagree with one of our staffers, and we'll let the others trash you."

If you are going to allow Viewpoints staffers to criticize readers, then it's time to lift the 30-day rule for readers and make more space available for readers' contributions. If you don't, I question the judgment and ethics of your editorial staff.

> Jeff Klinzman Iowa City resident

Editor's Note: It is the DI's policy that columnists are not allowed to respond to letters to the editor. However, Smetak's piece was a guest opinion, which are allowed to be up to 750

The Grant Field tradition lives on. Since it was opened in 1989, only five times have opponents left the Hawkeyes' home with the sweet taste of victory on their tongues. That didn't change last weekend when Iowa knocked off Big Ten foe Ohio State, 4-3, and upset fourthranked Penn State, who knocked the Hawkeyes out of the Big Ten tournament last season, 4-3, in double overtime. While revenge was on the minds of the Hawkeyes, they were also trying to silence some doubts that had arisen after dropping some games earlier in Kerry Lessard said. "Today was just huge for confidence reasons, for people to know that we're here to fight and play hard, and for people to know that we're still the same Iowa team. I think we got our respect back, definitely." From the start of the game on Sunday it was apparent the Hawkeyes had come to play. They drove down off the opening possession and drew two penalty corners in the first minute of

PINE MOUNTAIN, Ga. (AP) — Davis Love
III continued to shake off last week's disastrous showing at the Ryder Cup, shooting a third-round 5-under 67 Saturday to take a two-shot lead over fellow-Georgian Stewart Cink at the $1.2 million Buick Challenge.

Love, who won his first major by taking the PGA this year, lost all four of his matches at the Ryder Cup in Spain last week.

He didn't let that bother him Saturday, dropping in six birdies before a lone bogey on No. 17 for a 17-under-par 199 for 54 holes over the 7,057-yard Mountain View Course at the Callaway Gardens resort, 90 miles southwest of Atlanta.

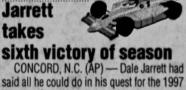

That was good enough for the Sea Island, Ga., resident to break the course and tournament record of 200 for 54 holes set by Steve Elkington in winning the rain-shortened event in 1994.

Vantage Championship CLEMMONS, N.C. (AP) — Hale Irwin loosened up his sore right shoulder and shot a course-record 62 Saturday to open a fivestroke lead in the Vantage Championship, moving closer to becoming the first golfer ever to win $2 million in a season.

Irwin, who took a one-shot lead into Saturday's round and questioned how he would perform because of shoulder tendinitis flaring up, birdied five of his first eight holes as he moved to 16-under-par after 36 holes.

the UAW-GM Quality 500 at Charlotte Motor He didn't gain much on second-place Mark Martin or leader Jeff Gordon, though, since they finished fourth and fifth in the race. Gordon, who came in leading Martin by 135 points and Jarrett by 222, now leads the runner-up by 125 and Jarrett by 197.

But Jarrett, a second-generation NASCAR star, at least kept his title hopes alive with a career-high sixth victory of the season and his 14th overall. It also gave Ford, which already had clinched the manufacturers' championship, its 18th win in 25 races this season.

Saints 20, Bears 17
CHICAGO — Da Coach 20, Da Bears 17.
Mike Ditka got revenge in his first game against the franchise that fired him almost five years ago, as his New Orleans Saints defeated Chicago on Heath Shuler's 89-yard touchdown pass to Randal Hill with 5:39 to play Sunday night yard totardy and the day night. Moments after a livid Ditka screamed at an official for what he felt was a bad penalty call, the coach was pumping his fist in celebration of Hill's leaping catch over Tom Carter. The always-animated Ditka, who became a Chicago loon when he coached the Bears to victory in the 1986 Super Bowl, spent much of the game agonizing over his team's poor play. The Saints (2-4) blew a 13-3 fourth-quarter lead, committed three turnovers and failed to convert a single third down.

Many of the 58,865 fans at Soldier Field were there not to see the free-falling home team but to salute Ditka — also known as fron Mike or, simply, Da Coach.

There were signs nominating "DITKA FOR PRESIDENT" and declaring the game "THE MIKE DITKA SHOW." And fans cheered loudly as he entered and left the field.

detensive end Darren Mickell was flagged for two personal foul penalties.

Ditka was at his most enraged after Wes Bender was called for a late hit during a New Orleans kickoff return following the touchdown that put Chicago ahead 17-13 with 6:02 left. He screamed at several officials and was also yelling at Chicago players.

But on the very next play, Shuler heaved a pass downfield and Hill leaped over Carter to make the catch at the New Orleans 40 while Carter was drawing a flag for pass interference. Hill then raced untouched down the left sideline to complete the longest scoring pass in Saints history. Ditka celebrated with the rest of his team, but he had a few more opportunities to scream at Shuler before the final oun.

Of the game, he said: "We didn't do anything, we made a couple of plays and got fortunate. ... We got lucky on a play and that's all I can say."

It actually was Ditka's second victory over the Bears this year. He won in his "unofficial return" to Chicago during the preseason, 13-7.

Dave Wannstedt is 32-38 in four-plus seasons since replacing Ditka, who coached the Bears to the Super Bowl in his fourth year.

Wannstedt seemed to have the Bears headed in the right direction, going 9-7 with a playoff victory in his second season. But they have regressed, and are 10-20 since the middle of the '95 season.

Wannstedt benched Rick Mirer, his hand-picked $10 million quarterback, after a horrible first half. Erik Kramer helped the Bears to two fourth-quarter touchdowns — their first TDs in 15 quarters — but Wannstedt said he wouldn't choose his quarterback for the Green Bay game until later in the week.

Brien.

Mario Bates, benched after a first-quarter fumble, got out of Ditka's doghouse just in time to score on a 49-yard run in the third. Brien added a 48-yard field goal for a 13-3 lead.

The Bears pulled within three points on Kramer's 1-yard run and got the ball back with 6:49 left when Shuler fumbled a snap for the Saints' 24th turnover this season. Two plays later, Raymont Harris scored on a 1-yard run.

Shuler finished with 195 yards passing, but was only 9-tor-23 and threw his 10th interception.

GAME NOTES

By Wayne Drehs and Mike Triplett The Daily Iowan

COLUMBUS, Ohio - The Iowa Hawkeyes traveled to Ohio State Saturday, not sure exactly how good a team they had. What they discovered was clearly disappointing.

But a team's dreams did not die in Columbus.

"It's still a dream season," Iowa linebacker Matt Hughes said. "This is just one game. That's what we've got to understand. We didn't execute today. So Michigan comes around, we're going to start over, refocus ourselves. It happened to us last year. You saw what happened after the Northwestern game. Iowa lost to Northwestern, 40-

13, last season. A week later the Hawkeyes demolished Wisconsin 31-0 and didn't lose again until a seven-game win streak was ended on Saturday.

Such a strong rebound will be no easy task, though, this year. After an off-week, Iowa must travel to No. 6 Michigan on Oct. 18.

And with such a strong Big Ten conference field, Rose Bowl dreams will most likely live or die based on that game's outcome. The Hawkeyes will be ready for

"It's still 0-0. We have a chance against Michigan," Iowa defensive lineman Jared DeVries. "This team ain't gonna roll over and play

"Overrated, Overrated."

The Hawkeyes disagree. Iowa coach Hayden Fry was disappointed with Iowa's failure to execute against the Buckeyes, but he warned, "You can't take away what we've already accomplished."

As for the pollsters and critics, Iowa defensive lineman Jared DeVries said he doesn't much care if the Hawkeyes fall from their No. 11 AP ranking and No. 8 coaches' poll position.

"We'll have our fans and we'll have our doubters. We're not concerned about the outside world. That's life," DeVries said. "As Hawkeyes, we're gonna bust our tails and get better.

Despite Banks' poor performance in which he rushed for only 84 yards on 22 carries, well below his 9.1 yard-per-carry average, Katzenmoyer had nothing but praise for the Iowa tailback.

"I still think he is a Heisman trophy candidate," Katzenmoyer said. "He is a very good running back and I see him getting many, many more yards.

"He had an off day, or maybe we just played great. But I have so much respect for him, so I think he should be right there.

Stats 'n' stuff: Tavian Banks' 4 yards rushing moved him to Not overrated: As the Iowa fifth place on the Hawkeyes alltime list with 2,205, passing Eddie Phillips and Dennis Mosely.

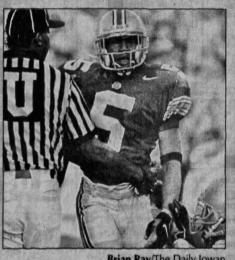

FIRST QUARTER

Both the Hawkeye and Buckeye defenses rose to the ocassion in the opening period, holding their opponents

Ohio State had the deepest drive in the quarter, taking the ball to the lowa 22 yard-line, where on 4th down and 1-yard to go, Matt Hughes combined with Eric Thigpen to stuff Ohio State tailback Pepe Pearson on a sweep (above), and give the Hawkeyes the ball.

Buckeye linebacker Andy Katzenmoyer set the tone for the game early, shutting down lowa's Tavian Banks, helping hold him to four yards on five carries in the first

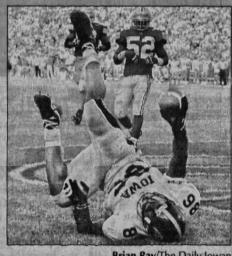

SECOND QUARTER

The second period began with Ohio State executing a seven play, 49 yard drive that culminated in a 36-yard field goal by the Buckeyes David Stultz. Quarterback Joe Jackson connected on a pair of strikes of 19 and 26 yards to tight end Jon Lumpkin on the drive.

lowa then began moving the ball also, with Matt Sherman hitting Tim Dwight on a 32-yard touchdown pass on 3rd and 8. Zach Bromert came on to attempt a 42-yard field goal which was blocked by Ohio State's Percy King. The Buckeyes would then march 66 yards in 11 plays in a drive that culminated with a 1-yard run touchdown run by Michael Wiley (above) to end the half ahead 10-0.

Brian Ray/The Daily Iowan

THIRD QUARTER

The Buckeye defense came out and set the tone eary, stopping the lowa attack. On offense, tailback Pepe Pearson broke open a 36-vard run that set up a 6-vard pass from Stanley Jackson to David Boston to put Ohio State up 16-0, Dan Stultz missed the extra point.

The Hawkeyes responded with their first scoring drive of the afternoon, marching 8 plays in 80 yards. Matt Sherman hit Austin Wheatley on a four-yard pass for the score (above) to bring lowa within nine.

As lowa appeared to build momentum after shutting down the Buckeye offense, they were forced to punt, and ended the quarter behind 16-7.

Jonathan Meester/The Daily Iowan

FOURTH QUARTER

Michael Burger was the first victim of the fumble disease, dropping a hand-off into the hands of Buckeye safety Damon Moore, who fumbled it right back.

Sx plays later, Ahmed Plummer came around Matt Sherman's blind side and nailed the QB, forcing him to fumble and give the Buckeyes the ball

Ohio State would then miss a 42-yard field goal leaving the door open for an Iowa comeback, but OSU linebacker Andy Katzenmoyer intercepted a tipped Sherman pass (above), all but ending a Hawkeye comeback

Twice in the postgame interview room, he was asked - to his apparent surprise - if he was injured.

He rarely cut to the outside, only once showed any breakaway speed, and appeared extremely tentative when contact was imminent. But to Banks' defense, their was a lot of contact. The Buckeyes often piled nine men on the line of scrimmage, and even a three-man front inebacker Andy Katzenmoyer was

"I don't think anybody blocked Katzenmoyer today," Banks said. That's a poor excuse for Banks'

But on two or three occasions, Sherman could have turned the tide of the game with an on-target pass. Banks burned the defense early, then was overthrown. The score could have been 7-3. The story could have been different.

And some balls were behind receivers. But some were right on. And some were dropped. And sometimes the receivers missed some easy ones. Even a solid day by Tim would have gotten the job done if Dwight was marred by a pair of slips to the ground.

Banks said it best when he gave his version of what happened Sat-

BIG TEN ROUNDUP

Penn State, Michigan roll to victory

Associated Press

Michigan's two Big Ten football teams are undefeated, Illinois' are just in a sad state. No. 6 Michigan beat Indiana 37-0 and Michigan State got by Minnesota 31-10 Saturday while No. 2 Penn State humbled Illinois 41-6, Wisconsin edged Northwestern 26-25 and No. 7 Ohio State clipped Iowa 23-7.

Northwestern (2-4, 0-2), winners of at least a share of the Big Ten title the past two years, suffered its third straight loss and the defeat Saturday night at Evanston, Ill., was one of toughest in the last three years.

Matt Davenport kicked a career-long 48yarder with 6 seconds to go to improve Wisconsin to 5-1 overall and 2-0 in the Big Ten.

"A kicker usually gets once chance to do this in his life and I've gotten to do it two weeks in a row," said Davenport, who had kicked a 43yarder, also with six second remaining, to beat Indiana 27-26 last week

In Champaign, Ill., the Illini (0-5, 0-2) suffered their 11th consecutive defeat, matching their second-longest losing streak since they started playing football in 1890. Illinois, which last won on Oct. 5, 1996, has been outscored 370-154 during its streak. The Illini also have lost eight straight conference games.

"When people make a mistake against us, we're not able to capitalize," said Illinois coach Ron Turner.

Mike McQueary passed for three touchdowns and Curtis Enis had his first 100-yard rushing game this year as Penn State (4-0, 1-0) gained 548 yards and averaged 7.8 yards

Brian Griese passed for 204 yards and one touchdown, but it was the Michigan defense that dominated at Bloomington, Ind.

"We just go out to play aggressive football," said cornerback Charles Woodson, whose interception set up one Michigan touchdown. "Our defensive line gets a lot of pressure on the quarterback. They were in the backfield all day, and that helps us out in the secondary.

Michigan (4-0, 1-0 Big Ten) attacked Indiana's vulnerable defense with four touchdowns in the second quarter and kept the Hoosiers (1-4, 0-2) away from the Wolverines' end zone

Todd Schultz matched a career high with three touchdown passes at East Lansing.

No. 11 Michigan State (4-0, 1-0 Big Ten) has won its first four games since the storied 1966 season when the Spartans finished 9-0-1 after the famous 10-10 tie with Notre Dame.

"I think our offense is very explosive," Schultz said. "In the past few games, we've been able to jump out to a quick lead, and that helps our defense a lot. And we have a great defense."

The defense held Minnesota (2-3, 0-1) to minus-3 yards on its first two possessions.

Lewis stops Golota after 95 seconds

By Ed Schuyler Jr. Associated Press

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. - Lennox Lewis' punching power has never been questioned. His desire has been.

Demonstrating both, Lewis stopped Andrew Golota in 95 seconds Saturday night and sent Golota to the hospital.

Golota looked fine after the fight as he stood in his corner, shaking his head in disgust. Minutes later, he collapsed in his dressing room and was taken to Atlantic City Medical Cen-ter. Co-trainer Lou Duva said he thought his fighter had a seizure or anxiety attack.

Atlantic City Medical Center did not release a diagnosis. But Golota, described as awake and alert after passing a CAT scan, was released Sunday morning.

Lewis, the 32-year-old WBC heavyweight champion from Britain, sought recognition in the United States as a top fighter. And he certainly impressed with his performance before a crowd of 13,889 at the Convention Center and a nationwide pay-per-view audience.

"Basically, I wanted to go out and make my statement to the world and prove I'm the best Theavyweight champion on the planet," Lewis said. He also wants to unify the championship by winning the WBA and IBF titles. It looks as if he will get the chance.

Promoter Dino Duva said he believes Lewis will fight the winner of a Nov. 8 match at Las gas between WBA champion Evander Holyfield and IBF champion Michael Moorer.

Greg Kirschling MOVIE REVIEW

Stone's comedy detour

Oliver Stone- he's a trickster, noir. that's for sure.

through Arizona in his 1964 Mustang convertible, right past vultures picking on bleeding roadkill. Suddenly a busted radiator hose forces him to pull over, and, almost before the credits can say "Directed by Oliver Stone," he's stuck in Superior, a dry little town where regional atmosphere includes sex, murder and general craziness.

This is de rigeur, coming from the director of "Natural Born Killers," isn't it? Sounds so, but then there's the tricky part. "U-Turn" gets by because it's a comedy - Stone's first, unless you want to count "NBK." (I don't.)

There it is. The Hollywood subversive throws Iowa City its second curveball in less than a week. First he comes in to give a lecture purportedly on movies, but he offers life lessons instead. Then he prepares you for a nihilistic thriller sure to have the "NBK" crowd salivating, only to deliver a bloody but bright spin on film noir, a genre that feels as old as the movies.

"U-Turn"s plot would appear to snuggle into the conventions of old noir, which usually found a stranger mixed up with a femme fatale and an ominous town. Essentially, Bobby Cooper (Penn) is stuck in Superior with no money. He needs a way out. He meets a dangerous woman misleadingly named Grace (Jennifer Lopez, "Anaconda"). She has a much-older husband (Nick Nolte) who wants her dead and will offer the stranger a large sum of money to do it. But Bobby is falling for her.

Therein ends the similarity. Actually, "U-Turn" is best described as neo-neo-noir. The movie takes off not from old noir, but from recent noir updates like "Body Heat" and "Chinatown." Does that mean Stone has really invented a new genre? Maybe.

"U-Turn," you see, falls somewhere between a genuine neo-noir and an "Airplane!"-style parody of the genre, even though it's never nearly that broad. For one thing, Penn's character should be tough, like most noir heroes, but he's a wimp, and pretty soon he always looks like he's on the verge of tears. In one of the film's most successful (and funny) noir ironies, he's constantly getting beaten up by the townspeople.

Moreover, Stone makes mood more important than plot, which was always the essence of memorable noir. The screwy camera angles and MTV editing style won't feel new to anyone who's followed Stone since "JFK," but in "U-Turn" Stone's overused aesthetic lends a unique and stylishly silly quality to

'Kiss The Girls' is No. 1

LOS ANGELES (AP) - The new suspense thriller "Kiss the Girls" and the lowbudget "Soul Food" topped the box office, dumping "The Peacemaker" from the No. 1 spot after just one week, according to industry estimates Sunday.

The estimates for Friday through Sunday: 1. "Kiss the Girls," $13.4 million.

2. "Soul Food," $8.5 million.

3. "The Peacemaker," $8.4 million. 4. "In & Out," $8 million.

5. "The Edge," $5.2 million.

6. "L.A. Confidential," $5 million.

7. "The Game," $2.9 million. 8 "The Full Monty," $2.8 million. 9. "U-Turn," $2.7 million.

10. "The Matchmaker," $1.5 million.

Archdiocese paper supports 'Nothing Sacred'

An editorial published in the newspaper of the Archdiocese of Los Angeles, which has a membership of four million Catholics, has supported the ABC drama "Nothing Sacred," CNN reported.

The editorial writes the show "should be allowed to develop before anyone passes final judgement" and it "is a television drama; it is not the catechism of the Catholic

As a result, I didn't pay as much In "U-Turn," Sean Penn's ripping attention to the story as I did to the jokey little things that made up the atmosphere, like the wacky soundtrack. This has its pros and cons: Stone is trying to keep the big "twist" ending a secret, but the twist was less interesting to me than the gag that comes right before fadeout. That said, I wish Stone had made

"U-Turn" even look more revolutionary, and much less repetitive. In ways reminiscent of "NBK," it often succumbs to its director's excesses, vet not as drastically. Everything but the kitchen sink is a symbol here eyes, broken bottles, coitus interruptus; it helps render the feel, but Stone gets too hooked on certain subjects. There are too many eyeballs in this movie. Clocking in at over two hours, "U-Turn" is also way, way too long. Especially beware of the thirty minutes of downtime near the end in which Bobby just walks around town, not really propelling the movie anywhere at all. In a few scattered scenes, Jon Voight's blind Indian character mainly serves to stalling the movie in case anyone has to go to the bathroom. (Others in the supporting cast - Billy Bob Thornton, Powers Boothe, Claire Danes and especially Joaquin Phoenix - fare

Yes, by the way, what you've heard is right. "U-Turn" contains no political agenda, no overt signs of the System out to get us. It's exactly what you didn't expect from the "JFK" director. Whether you liked his speech or not, the surprise here is a

Waking up from Stone's 'Night Dream' After hearing Oliver Stone speak

last week, one thing became abundantly clear about his newly published book, "A Child's Night Dream": He writes like he speaks.

"What does that mean? Pretend not to listen. Can't possibly look her in the eye. Would die. And her thigh. My.'

Stone composes his poetic prose with fragmented sentences that are enigmatic and, well, strange, but the presence of something profoundly deeper beneath the surface always lingers. It is not a stream of conscious, but one of consciousnesses that cross the border of the schizophrenic. This is taken to its utmost extreme in the book's epilogue, when the older version of the book's protagonist speaks in the third person of his younger version whose travails the book heretofore follows.

Even more schizophrenic, to the point of being distractedly uneven, is the narrative transitions. It is almost from chapter to chapter that the structure changes from flowery poet- sidered self-plagiarism of "Platoon," ics to rather straightforward prose. This is not to say, however, that the more expository scenes in the book are dull, or even inferior to his poetic spiels. They make for not just the most accessible reading in the book, but the most enjoyable. Hopefully, Stone's next literary effort will rely on his storytelling strengths and not feel the need to inject so much of the ethereal.

Stacey Harrison BOOK REVIEW

A bit of caveat emptor: Even though "A Child's Night Dream" has the words "a novel" written on its front cover, rest assured it is a thinly veiled autobiography of Stone's experience in Vietnam, including his abandonment of Yale University to volunteer for the war. The character has the same history as his author, the same family and even the same name. This, along with war scenes that could be con-makes it almost impossible to keep the words "a novel" in your mind.

The overall effect of this effort completed in 1,400-page form in 1967, is a cathartic one, meaning it is often overindulgent and selfinvolved. For every thoughtful passage on the ephemerality of life; there is an explicit vision of Freudian angst concerning his mother that I wish Stone had kept to himself.

But the parts Stone does get right, which include his unassum ing meditation on his improbable killings in Vietnam and his musing that the looks we share with strangers will probably be the only moment our lives will be connected, are worth the reading time. They jar the reader with the same force as countless images from his films.

The deceptively thin "A Child's Night Dream" is not an easy 236 pages to endure, since much of it is not too engaging. But there is no denying Stone has proved himself in yet another medium to be an artist of singular ilk.
