SCOPE CONCERT

George Clinton and the P-Funk All-Stars

George Clinton and the P-Funk All-Stars, the group that gave birth to the term "funk," will perform in the Main Lounge of the Iowa Memorial Union Nov. 4.

Tickets for the concert will go on sale Wednesday at 10 a.m. at the UI Box Office and all Ticketmaster locations. Tickets are $20, plus Ticketmaster fees. UI students, faculty and staff can charge up to six tickets on their student IDs.

Clinton, he of the multi-colored dreadlocks, started his music career in 1955 with the Parliament, Funkadelic, Bootsy's Rubber Band, The Brides of Frankenstein and Parliament. Clinton is known for founding funk music, a combination of rock and roll and R&B.

Bill Patterson, director of SCOPE, said Clinton will put on a genre-defining show. "These people and their show are living legends. They set the trend," he said. "Funk exists because people like George Clinton do what they do."

Microsoft found in contempt

■ The Justice Department is seeking a $1 million a day contempt fine against Microsoft.

By Michael J. Sniffen
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The Justice Department asked a federal court today to impose an unprecedented $1 million-a-day fine on software giant Microsoft Corp. for requiring personal computer manufacturers to license and distribute its Internet browser.

The department said the company is in contempt of a 1995 court order the government obtained to bar it from anti-competitive licensing practices. It was the largest contempt fine ever sought by the Justice Department's antitrust division, which usually seeks $10,000 a day fines in contempt cases.

“Microsoft is unlawfully taking advantage of its Windows monopoly to protect and extend that monopoly.”
Attorney General Janet Reno

“Microsoft is unlawfully taking advantage of its Windows monopoly to protect and extend that monopoly,” Attorney General Janet Reno told reporters.

The announcement had an immediate impact on Wall Street. Microsoft's stock, which had gained as much as $3 earlier in the day, were down $2.25 to $130 by early afternoon on the Nasdaq stock market. Shares of Netscape, Microsoft's chief rival in the browser market, surged more than $6 — or 18 percent — to $41.12.

“This action is unfortunate and misguided,” said Microsoft spokesperson Mark Murray. “The facts will show that Microsoft is in full compliance with the consent decree” governing the dispute. He said the decree “specifically allows Microsoft to integrate new features into the operating system. That's what consumers want and that's how the software industry has operated for years.”

“This is a very serious abuse,” said Assistant Attorney General Joel I. Klein, head of the antitrust division. He said Microsoft's action was designed to undermine the dominant market position of Netscape.

DiFranco implicates I.C. tonight

■ The UI will host the eclectic, punk-strewn wanderings of genuinely independent folk singer Ani DiFranco tonight.

By Mose Hayward
The Daily Iowan

Ani DiFranco has been leading the corporeal life of a folksinger — a life on the road, playing in small venues for sparse audiences — that has slowly built a base of support for her genre-melding brand of folk.

“DiFranco breaks a lot of barriers with genres,” said local folksinger Greg Brown. “Obviously, there's a lot of funk and hip hop in what she does.”

DiFranco, 27, is scheduled to perform a sold-out concert in the Main Lounge of the Iowa Memorial Union with Coco Love Alcorn at 9 p.m. The performance is sponsored by SCOPE Productions.

DiFranco's most recent studio album, “Dilate,” is the most potent example of DiFranco's ability to draw the soulful voice of a folksinger over a feminist's bitching and a rapper's shouting and come out with distinct, electrified, personal music.

But DiFranco has felt criticism from

UICMS plans Tipton clinic

■ The UI's commitment to rural health care continues with a new clinic planned for Tipton.

By John Russell
The Daily Iowan

By opening clinics all over eastern Iowa, UI Community Medical Services Inc. (UICMS) say they hope to expand educational opportunities for medical students and provide advanced medical care to rural communities.

UICMS, a subsidiary of UI Health Systems, plans to open a new family practice clinic in Tipton in the spring of 1998.

The clinic, now under construction, will become the fourth such clinic to come under the management of UI Health Systems in the past year. There are currently UICMS clinics in North Liberty, Perry and Ottumwa. There is also a clinic under construction in Belle Plaine, and plans to take over management of a clinic in Lowden.

Feathers fly over Hawks broadcast

■ Learfield Communications met Monday to discuss legal options against KCJJ for “unofficial” UI football broadcasts.

By Steven Cook
The Daily Iowan

Learfield Communications stressed Monday that KCJJ must stop broadcasting Iowa football games if they want to avoid a lawsuit, lawyers for the corporation said.

However, KCJJ owner Steve Bridges says he is ready to legally fight back against Learfield for unfair business practices.

After holding a meeting with the UI and ABC, Learfield attorney William Hunnicutt said a lawsuit from Learfield against KCJJ is imminent unless the station agrees to stop their broadcasts.

“Learfield has a contract with the UI to be the exclusive provider,” he said. “With (KCJJ's) actions, it's not exclusive.”

KCJJ received a letter Oct. 16 from Learfield lawyers giving the station an ultimatum: Either the station stops broadcasting the games or it will face a lawsuit from Learfield. The deadline for

Kings and queens await coronation

■ It takes more than popularity to capture the crown as the UI's Homecoming King and Queen.

By Kelley Chorley
The Daily Iowan

Students can't vote or be nominated for UI royalty; all they can do is apply and wait for the coronation ceremony.

Eight candidates will undergo one more interview this week before the king and queen are crowned for Homecoming 1997 Friday night.

Between writing an essay and interviews, the application process to be nominated king and queen takes time and effort, but it is worth every minute to represent the UI student body, said Homecoming Executive Director Kyle Brown.

“It's fun and it looks good on the resumé,” he said. “These students are a true representation of the student body.”

The process started Sept. 15, when the applications were available to students with more than 72 semester hours and a grade point average higher than 2.87, eliminating freshmen and most sophomores from the running, Brown said.

“I think about where I was when I was a freshman or sophomore,” UI senior and Homecoming nominee Ann West said. “Even though I was enjoying my experience, I hadn't spent enough time here. It's about knowing your place here.”

The application requires students to write an essay regarding what they think a Homecoming king and queen should represent and two letters of recommendation, said UI senior and Homecoming nominee Scott Mikesell.

“The application process wasn't unlike anything else I've had to apply for,” Mikesell said. “It was fun and professional.”

The number of students applying for the courtship almost tripled, from the 13 candidates who ran last year to 43 candidates this year. Increasing knowledge of the event will continue to raise the number of candidates, Brown said.

Coleman, Jones will not attend UI Homecoming

■ Mary Sue Coleman and Philip Jones will not be able to attend the UI's homecoming celebration due to prior engagements.

By Kelley Chorley
The Daily Iowan

UI President Mary Sue Coleman and Vice President for Student Services Philip Jones will not be able to attend homecoming events this weekend.

“The president is not able to participate because of prior commitments,” said administrative assistant Lucille Heitman.

In early September, Coleman was invited by the Homecoming committee to speak at the pep rally and parade, however she had to forgo the invitation. Heitman declined comment on what specific prior engagements Coleman had.

Coleman was out of town and unavailable for comment Monday. Jones wasn't invited to speak at any homecoming events, but said he won't be able to participate. He will be in a three day meeting with

Sinatra considered making Monroe his wife

LONDON (AP) — Frank Sinatra considered asking Marilyn Monroe to marry him weeks before she died "in an effort to save her from herself," according to a new book.

"No one will mess with her if she is Mrs. Frank Sinatra. No one would dare," writer J. Randall Taraborrelli quotes a Sinatra friend as saying. He doesn't identify the friend.

Taraborrelli's book, "Sinatra: The Man Behind The Myth," is being serialized in the Daily Mail. Monday's excerpt said Sinatra and Monroe began an affair in 1954.

Brosnan and Bond have little in common

NEW YORK (AP) — Pierce Brosnan says he has only one thing in common with James Bond: a good martini.

"Yes, I've been known to imbibe a martini," Brosnan said in the November issue of Biography magazine. "Not all the time. Just occasionally."

Brosnan's second Bond movie, "Tomorrow Never Dies," opens in December. He's under contract for a third and has an option for a fourth, yet he doesn't feel much like Bond.

"I put the suit on, put the gun on, do it, hang them up and go home," Brosnan said.

Maples never read the prenuptial agreement before the divorce

NEW YORK (AP) — Marla Maples said she didn't read her prenuptial agreement with Donald Trump before signing it just two days before they married in 1993.

"I refused to read it because I felt it was sealing our fate," Maples said in Monday's Daily News. Had she read it, "I'm sure I would not have signed it. I probably would not have gotten married, either."

Maples said she only read the document after she split from Trump in May.

"I couldn't believe that anyone would put that kind of financial limitation on what love is," she said.

City Councilors gave mixed reviews regarding plan to allow sharpshooters and off-duty police officers to kill deer in Iowa City.

By Laura Heinauer The Daily Iowan

The deer management committee received preliminary support for a plan that uses sharpshooters to control the deer population in Iowa City.

However, city leaders want to see how the plan holds up to attack from local hunters and DNR officials at tonight's city council meeting at 7 p.m. at the Civic Center.

At Monday night's Iowa City Council work session, council members studied a plan that recommends sharp shooting and trap kill orders to control Iowa City's increasing deer population.

The plan was in response to a number of citizen complaints about too many deer in the City/Coralville area relieved last year and a half. "I think the committee did a tremendous job," Councilor Lehman said. "They were told to do something to fix this problem."

Cable installer helps rescue woman trapped in air duct

HIAWATHA, Iowa (AP) — Hines was on a call to disconnect someone's HBO when he heard strange thumping noise.

Hines, 23, of Cedar Rapids m around the mobile home yelling, "Hello?" when a woman's voice responded, saying she stuck and needed a locksmith.

What he found was 76-year-old Regina Drahlem, who had fallen first into an air duct while cleaning mobile home Friday.

Rescue workers moved the mobile home's air conditioner, sliced through the plastic air duct and detached it from the mobile home. They then able to free Drahlem's feet, who were caught on the floor of the duct.

Hiawatha Fire Chief Mark Powers said Drahlem told rescuers she dropped something into the space while cleaning, took off the er and reached for it. That's when she lost her balance and tumbled in first.

She ended up on her back with feet sticking up in the air. She didn't appear to be injured but was tired.

"She was cold and a little confused when we got to her," Powers said. "She was a little dehydrated but not lost any body heat. Another or two and we might have had a completely different situation."

Drahlem was taken to a local hospital, where she was checked for injuries and later released.

Hiawatha Police Chief Dave Powers said investigators have determined Drahlem was stuck for about hours. The air duct was well-insulated, and that likely prevented her losing body heat when outside temperatures fell, he said.

AT&T brings in new CEO

AT&T picks aerospace executive, C. Michael Armstrong, as its new chief officer.

By David E. Kalish
Associated Press

NEW YORK — AT&T Corp., which has been in a holding pattern while its telecommunications competitors have been taking off in all directions, enlisted an aerospace executive Monday to get it moving again.

C. Michael Armstrong, the head of Hughes Electronics, will succeed 62-year-old Robert E. Allen as chairman and chief executive of the long-distance phone company.

Armstrong becomes the fifth outsider picked to lead the corporation in nearly eight decades. Allen, who is resigning after a tumultuous nine years, has been criticized for a disastrous foray into the computer business, which led to billions in losses and the splitting off of AT&T's valuable research arm.

The search began in July after AT&T decided that John Walter, the man designated as Allen's successor, wasn't up to the job.

Kathy Wilens/Associated Press

New AT&T Chief Executive Officer and Chairman of the Board C. Michael Armstrong gestures during a news conference announcing his new post at the company's New York headquarters on Monday.

chairman John D. Zeglis, 50, as president. He is expected to be groomed to succeed Armstrong as chairman and CEO in three years.

"The combination of Armstrong and Zeglis is a powerful one," said Stephanie Comfort, an analyst with Morgan Stanley & Co.

Armstrong clearly brings proven leadership and turnaround expertise, and Zeglis has a great reputation in terms of understanding the long-distance business and what AT&T needs." AT&T also announced plans to sell off its credit-card and customer-support units by the middle of next year and said its third-quarter profit dropped 15 percent, which was still better than expected.

Profit was hurt by higher expenses and a drop in revenue from its long-distance business amid stiff competition for customers.

AT&T said it earned $1.15 billion, or 71 cents a share, for the third quarter compared with profits of $1.36 billion, or 84 cents a share, for the same period last year.

Oh, deer — sharpshooters may make mark in I.C.

City Councilors gave mixed reviews regarding a plan to allow sharpshooters and off-duty police officers to kill deer in Iowa City.

By Laura Heinauer
The Daily Iowan

The deer management committee received preliminary support for a plan that uses sharpshooters to control the deer population in Iowa City, Monday night.

However, city leaders want to see how the plan holds up to attack from local hunters and DNR officials at tonight's city council meeting at 7 p.m. at the Civic Center.

"I don't want people to have to get used to gun-fire at night in Iowa City," said Karen Kubby, city councilor.

At Monday night's Iowa City Council work session, councilors studied a plan that recommended sharp shooting and trap kill methods to control Iowa City's increasing deer population.

The plan was in response to a number of citizen complaints about too many deer in the Iowa City/Coralville area relieved in the past year and a half.

"I think the committee did a tremendous job," Councilor Ernie Lehman said. "They were told to try to do something to fix this problem and they came to a conclusion that I personally agree with and I think that we should move full speed ahead."

The plan calls for city sponsored and certified sharpshooters to help control the deer population in Iowa City. Off-duty police officers or other licensed sharpshooters would be able to use bait and lights to attract and kill the deer with shotguns in city limits.

City council member Karen Kubby expressed concern about the plan, which would take place on private property if implemented. She said that the city would have to find some way to determine whether or not neighbors were happy with the plan.

"I don't want people to have to get used to gun-fire at night in Iowa City," she said.

The only method currently allowed by the Department of Natural Resources for urban deer management is bow and arrow hunting.

DNR officer Tim Dorr said the plan may not be in everybody's best interest.

Allowing sharpshooting as an alternative method for urban deer management could eventually threaten the use of bow and arrow hunting as a recreational activity and will cost the city more if it is implemented, Dorr said.

Bills edge winless Colts in 9-6 battle

■ Indianapolis, at 0-7, joins the Chicago Bears as the NFL's only teams without a victory.

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Steve Christie kicked a 27-yard field goal as time expired Monday night to give the Buffalo Bills a 9-6 victory over Indianapolis, keeping the Colts one of only two winless teams in the NFL. The game was just the second in the history of the NFL to be played without a touchdown or a turnover. The first was New England's 6-3 victory over Miami in 1988.

yard field goal by Cary Blanchard with 6:12 to go, but they never got the ball back. Todd Collins completed passes of 20 and 16 yards to Quinn Early and added a 14-yarder to Andre Reed to get Buffalo (4-3) to the Indianapolis 20 with two minutes to go. Three runs by Antowain Smith took the Bills to the 7, then Collins took a knee and let the clock run down to three seconds before calling a timeout. Christie, who kicked earlier field goals of 22 and 47 yards, then kicked the game-winner, leaving the Colts and the Chicago Bears as the only winless teams. It was the seventh straight games between the two AFC East rivals that was decided by six points or less. The last time they played, in Buffalo a month ago, the Colts blew a 26-0 first-half lead and lost 37-35. Indianapolis never led this time. The Bills found some unlikely offense in the first half with Eric Moulds, their kick returner who had just five receptions for 51 yards this season. He topped that with 52 yards on the first Buffalo possession, including 32 yards on his first of five catches. After two carries by Thurman Thomas, a 12-yard reception by Moulds took Buffalo to the Indianapolis 24. Five plays later, an 8-yard catch to the Colts 4 set up a 22-yard field goal by Christie for a 3-0 lead. Thomas, who became the 10th running back in NFL history with 11,000 career yards, left the game late in the second quarter with a sore knee after he was flipped upside down on a tackle by Quentin Coryatt after a 2-yard gain to the Colts 29, setting up a 47-yard field goal by Christie. Thomas returned in the third quarter. The Colts' first real threat came on the next possession. Marshall Faulk ran 13 yards and Jim Harbaugh passed 20 yards to Marvin Harrison and 14 yards to Sean Dawkins, taking Indianapolis to the Buffalo 25. The Colts moved to the 20 on a holding penalty, but Harbaugh was sacked by Sean Moran and Bryce Paup on consecutive plays and Blanchard missed a 51-yard field goal attempt with two seconds left in the half. Harbaugh, sacked five times, left the game midway through the third quarter with a sprained right ankle.

Iowa Crew among world elite

By Jutta Schausten
The Daily Iowan

"Start to row!" This was the start shot to take more than 5,600 male and female rowers into racing last weekend at Boston's Head of the Charles, the world's largest fall rowing regatta.

Right in the midst of all those athletes, representing more than 300 clubs, colleges and universities worldwide, the University of Iowa showed up with two women's eights.

The first UI eight finished the three-mile course on the Charles River in 27th place, competing in the Championship event against 50 crews.

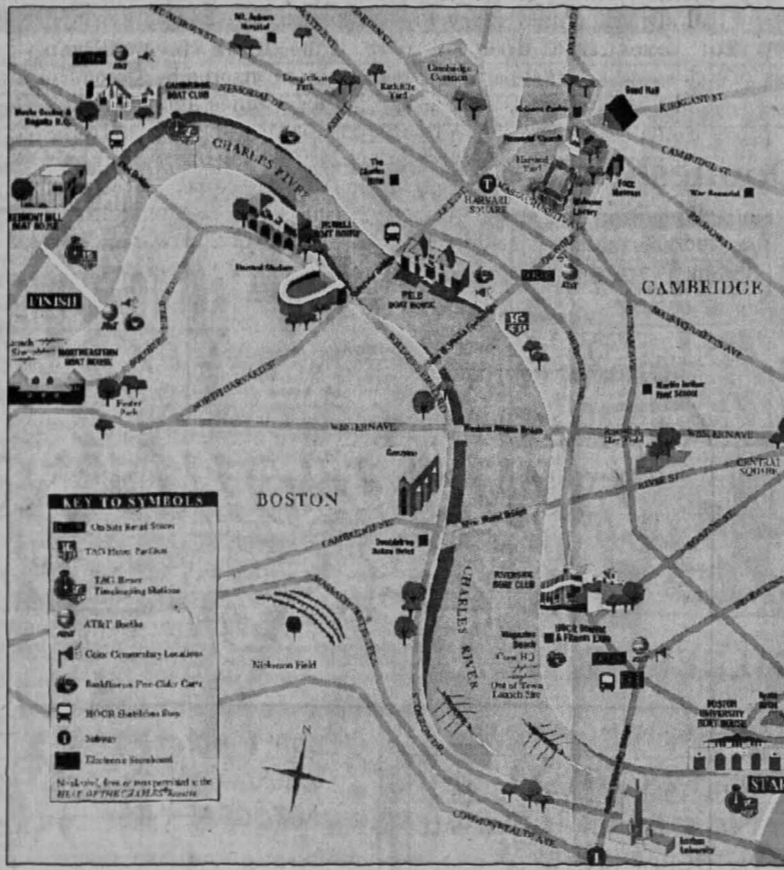

Despite this result, head coach Mandi Kowal said she was very pleased when she saw her team going by.

"Technically they looked better than I've ever seen them before," she said. "They were moving better than the results show."

Cheered by more than 125,000 spectators, it took the UI crew 17 minutes, 11 seconds to finish the course with its narrow bridge arches and sharp turns. The winner's elapsed time was 15:44, rowed by the Canadian National Team.

UI senior Anne West, the crew's stroke, said that she was disappointed to see the result, but at the same time proud to be part of a regatta where the world's top crews compete. "You are there, and everyone's there," West said. "While we were waiting for the start I felt my oar touching an oar of another eight. Then I recognized the blade with its blue, red and white colors - it was the US Rowing Team!"

For UI senior Marni Levinson, the crew's coxswain, the race turned out to be a real challenge. First, the starting area was so crowded with boats that she couldn't make her crew crossing the starting line with adequate speed. "The start was really panicked," she said. "In the end this really hurts us." Then, right after the start, the coxbox (loudspeakers in the boat to support the coxswain's voice) broke down. Despite this, Levinson managed to motivate her crew shouting her voice hoarse.

Intensive preparation helped her to take the 58-foot long boat smoothly through the turns, one of them with an angle of almost 270 degrees.

"I loved it," said Levinson, who knew the tricky course by heart after studying the map every night for the last three weeks.

UI's second eight actually came in 11th in the Club eights event. However, a penalty for crossing the buoys marking the course made them lose four places. Finally, they ended up 15th out of 64 crews competing.

UI senior Amanda Wilkerson, coxing the UI crew in this event, said they could not have done anything to prevent from crossing the buoy line.

"The boat (ahead of us) didn't give way and suddenly, there was a buoy out of the line," she said.

Again, Kowal stressed that the crew performed well.

"The main thing is that they came off the water feeling really good," she said. "It was a good benchmark to see where we go."

NEBRASKA FOOTBALL Frost is back in favor with Husker fans

■ Nebraska fans have booed Scott Frost in the past, but now that he's guided the Huskers to No. 1, they love him.

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP) — What a difference a year can make.

Last year, Scott Frost was the turncoat quarterback, a home-grown sensation who left the state, returned but couldn't deliver the third national championship that Nebraska fans expected it.

Now, he is the leader of a No. 1 team, fans are behind him and expectations are high again.

"I've definitely had some ups and downs in college," the senior said. "I had expected to come out of high school and have a great career. But sometimes it doesn't really happen the way you want it to."

"I think this year I fought through the roller coaster a bit and it seems to be clear sailing now," he said.

Frost has rushed 87 times for 524 yards and three touchdowns and has completed 40-of-75 passes for 518 yards in Nebraska's six victories.

But it wasn't Frost's modest stats that warmed Nebraska fans: It was his leadership in the Huskers' 27-14 win over then-No. 3 Washington on Sept. 20, when he rushed for two touchdowns in the first quarter.

It was the pivotal point of Nebraska's season — the Huskers had been underdogs to the Huskies.

"There ain't going to be any more Frost-bashing," said one fan after the win. "It's time to get off of Scott Frost and pull together," said another.

Frost grew up around Nebraska football — his dad, Larry Frost, played halfback for the Cornhuskers and coached Scott at Wood River High. His mother, Carol, is the receivers coach at Wood River, a town of 1,156 about 100 miles west of Lincoln.

The Frosts guided their son through his record-breaking high school career. He holds the all-time state high school record for total offense and ranks fifth nationally with more than 11,000 yards and 139 touchdowns.

"He's been playing quarterback and football since he was about 8," Larry said. "The first time he ever touched the ball, he went for a touchdown."

But he angered local fans when he chose Stanford over Nebraska.

Frost was Stanford's No. 2 quarterback. After Steve Stenstrom was injured, Frost led the Cardinal to an upset of Washington, a 46-28 win in 1994. A year later, he transferred to Nebraska.

"I don't regret (going to Stanford)," Frost said. "But it was really tough coming in last year. It was basically like being a freshman. ... If I had had four years around this place, I think I could have ran this offense as well as anybody ever has."

Frost completed 104-of-200 passes for 1,440 yards and 13 touchdowns in 1996 and rushed 126 times for 438 yards and nine scores — but he was no Tommie Frazier, the quarterback who led Nebraska to two titles.

Some fans in the student section of Memorial Stadium booed Frost when he re-entered the second game this season after a successful drive by reserve quarterback Frankie London.

"I think there were some people that had a personal thing against me, for whatever reason. But I don't hold it against them," Frost said Saturday after leading Nebraska to a 29-0 win over Texas Tech. "Those people change their mind and they are on your side just as quick they were opposed to you."

Nebraska quarterback Scott Frost drops back for a pass as Joel Makovicka blocks Saturday.

Fall chill awaits Marlins

A forecast including a chance of snow is in store for the Florida Marlins in Cleveland for games three through six of the World Series.

By Ben Walker Associated Press

CLEVELAND — Jim Leyland saw the foreboding sky and heard the grim forecast. A frost warning for Monday night, snow flurries later this week.

The World Series weather concerned the Florida Marlins manager. Not so much, however, for the way it might aggravate Bobby Bonilla's hamstring or affect Al Leiter's grip.

"I'm more worried about the cold for my mom more than I am the players," Leyland said at an off-day workout. "But I'm not going to buy her a fur coat today, I can tell you that."

Suffice to say, Leyland's 85-year-old mother, Veronica, could use one when she attends Game 3 Tuesday night. Temperatures may drop into the upper 30s by the end of the evening, and it might be even more frosty Wednesday.

In fact, these could become the first World Series games with snow since the 1979 opener in Baltimore between Pittsburgh and the Orioles.

Florida and the Cleveland Indians, tied 1-1, both got a feel for what may come during Monday's practices, held in blustery, 50-degree conditions.

The Marlins traded in the T-shirts and shorts they wore while taking batting practice in the 77-degree heat before Game 2 for heavy pullovers, as did the Indians.

Players on both teams wore gloves — not the kind made by Rawlings, either — while standing on the sidelines.

Not that anyone was complaining. At least, not yet.

"I found that this kind of weather is kind of a mind over matter," Indians manager Mike Hargrove said. "If you don't mind, it really doesn't matter."

Marlins second baseman Craig Counsell, a Notre Dame alum, said he was actually looking forward to having an October chill in the air.

"I grew up in Milwaukee, I went to school in South Bend, so this is outstanding weather," he said. "I can't wait to go out and play in it, to be honest with you."

"To me growing up, this is always what the World Series was played in, weather like this," he said. "It's the World Series, I don't care what the weather is going to be like. It's not going to be a factor from my standpoint. You've got to deal with it. If you let it affect you, you're crazy."

No doubt, it won't bother the Jacobs Field crowd too much. Remember, some of these fans are the same ones who stood bare-chested in the Dawg Pound when the old Browns played in December.

But there are adjustments that need to be made.

"Probably the major effect is the grip the pitcher will have on the ball. Cold weather tends to dry out your hands and fingers a lot more than warm weather will, obviously," Hargrove said.

"Hitting a baseball in cold weather is not a lot of fun," he said. "If you don't hit it just right, it hurts."

Charles Nagy, who will start for the Indians against Leiter, did not sound disturbed.

"I don't mind it so much," he said. "There's nothing you can do about it, you can't change the conditions."

"I've pitched in cold weather before, but nothing can really prepare you to go out there," he said. "It's going to be cold."

Agreed Leiter: "The biggest problem with the cold is the sick feeling on the ball. The balls become like cue balls."

Leiter, Nagy take hill

By Tom Withers Associated Press

CLEVELAND — Al Leiter's resume includes three World Series appearances and a no-hitter. He's never made a start like his next one, though.

Leiter will take the mound for Florida in Game 3 Tuesday night against Cleveland's Charles Nagy as the Marlins and Indians resume the World Series at frigid Jacobs Field.

It's a fitting matchup in this hot-to-cold series. Leiter's a left-hander, who relies on his fastball and likes to pitch hitters on their hands. Nagy, a right-hander, prefers to nibble at the corners with his sinker.

Both are from the Northeast and familiar with throwing in nippy weather. And it will indeed be that, with forecasts predicting 30-degree temperatures.

"I grew up in New Jersey, and on the shore in March and April it was cold," Leiter said. "And I remember pitching many games in the snow." Nagy was born in Connecticut,

Tony Dejak/Associated Press

and he's got the cold-weather routine down pat. "I get to wear long sleeves and blow in my hand," he said.

For Leiter, who pitched in relief for the Toronto Blue Jays in the 1993 Series against Philadelphia, Game 3 represents another chance. He did not pitch well during the season, prompting a lesser role in the division series against San Francisco and in the NLCS against Atlanta.

"I'm really treasuring this," said Leiter, who will also start Game 7 if this series goes that far. "There have been better players than me that have come down the pike and never made it to the World Series, and this will be my second time and I'm really going to enjoy it."

After making his initial All-Star team in 1996 and pitching the Marlins' first no-hitter, Leiter's 1997 season was beset by injuries and inconsistency. He was on the disabled list twice and finished 11-9 with a 4.34 ERA, that after going 16-12 with a 2.93 ERA last season. "I had some good moments this year, even though it wasn't the most consistent and best season I would have liked," said the 31-year-old. "But there was also a lot of good times that I can remember that I'll work off of."

Hamilton/Sorry Series

Vizquel, Marquis Grissom and Matt Williams, but this series goes wrong with pitching. Both teams have makeshift rotations due to injuries.

There hasn't and won't be an intriguing pitching matchup this series. Livan Hernandez versus Orel Hershiser, Kevin Brown against Chad Ogea, Al Leiter opposing Charles Nagy and Tony Saunders against Jaret Wright — none of these are the same as last year when it was Greg Maddux against Jimmy Key, John Smoltz versus Andy Pettitte and Tom Glavine against David Cone.

Postseason baseball is all about runs having a higher value than gold. If you're a true baseball fan, you want to see a 2-1 World Series game.

And you want to see the World Series be the highlight of the season.

Iowa women's golf coach Thomason preached to her team of focusing on each shot.

After two rounds at the Fall Classic, the Hawkeyes' first place, 21 strokes ahead of Arizona.

"I'm really excited," Thomason said. "It makes me believe we said all along, that we can be team."

Iowa's opening round 298, by its second round 310, marked best 36-hole score in the past years on the par-72, Carlton Country Club course.

Thomason said the toughest her team has seen is a combination of sand and water causing havoc for the players.

The water cost the Hawkeyes shots as a team in the afternoon, but Iowa remains in shape to bring home the team.

"We just have to play sound," Thomason said. "Don't let it be an accident. We just stay focused."

Hawkeye women are on a tear

Iowa women's golf coach Diane Thomason preached to her team the value of focusing on each shot and her lecturing couldn't be more evident than the Hawkeyes' performance Monday.

what Thomason said she spent Thursday and Friday's practice time stressing to the team. Now the Hawkeyes find themselves ahead of Purdue, one of Iowa's Big Ten nemesis' through this fall season.

better in each one." Iowa won two of the four singles flights and both doubles flights. Girls Auskaps defeated Stephen Killian of Drake in the Flight C final, while Dave McDevitt beat Drake's Bill Bemis, 6-2, 6-2, in Flight D. Auskaps won by injury default. The Hawkeyes' Jake Wilson bowed out in the Flight B final.

Men's tennis

Iowa's men's tennis team played well for the third straight tournament, which made Steve Houghton a happy coach.

The Hawkeyes won four of six titles at the Purdue Invitational in West Lafayette, Ind., in their third tournament of the fall season. Iowa now has two weeks to prepare for the Rolex Invitational in Champaign, Ill.

Davis, who hails from the Quad Cities, feels he has the same caliber of talent as the McDonald's all-Americans. In fact, he has made previous statements that he would consider bypassing some of his college career to jump to the NBA.

Freshmen/Davis and Oliver have high hopes

But they're adapting well and are worthy of all the praise they are getting." After successful senior seasons, the 6-foot-6 Davis was selected to Parade Magazine's all-American fourth team, while the 5-foot-11 Oliver was selected as Gatorade's Circle of Champions Player of the Year.

But at media day, Davis said he wasn't looking toward the future, but rather just focusing on his inaugural season with the Hawkeyes.

Northwestern is struggling at 3-5, 1-3 in the Big Ten. But in the past three weeks, Barnett has seen improvement.

COLLEGE BASKETBALL

Bennett keeps mum about Okey

Another officer who questioned the women decided not to cite them for any offense. Moore, who questioned Okey, decided to write a citation for entering a tavern while underage, but he agreed to hold it until Okey's birthday and destroy it if he does not see Okey in a tavern prior to that date.

Unhappy Rodman threatens to sit out

DEERFIELD, Ill. (AP) — Dennis Rodman is unhappy with the contract agreement he reached more than a week ago and still isn't officially a member of the Chicago Bulls.

Rodman and his agent, Dwight Manley, had separate meetings with Bulls general manager Jerry Krause on Monday, but there was no word that the NBA's six-time rebounding leader had signed a contract.

Rodman, who is threatening to sit out the start of the regular season if certain incentive clauses aren't rewritten or eliminated, wasn't available for comment Monday. Krause and Manley refused to talk to reporters.

"Someway or other, it's going to be resolved. He's either going to be here practicing or he's not. When the Bulls have something to report, you'll hear about it," said coach Phil Jackson.

Krause and Manley announced Oct. 10 that Rodman had agreed to terms on a one-year contract. But Rodman had bronchitis and slight pneumonia and wasn't able to complete his physical examination, and it was announced that he would sign when the team returned from France.

Upon returning, however, the Bulls learned that Rodman was unhappy with several incentive clauses in the deal, which reportedly includes a base salary of about $4.5 million.

"It's very unfair, and before I sign anything I'll make sure those things are out of the contract," Rodman told the Chicago Tribune on Sunday. "I don't have a contract, and the contract they're trying to give me — I don't like it."

Rodman was especially upset with incentives tied to team performance. He claimed he was misled about the condition of Scottie Pippen, who is expected to be out until at least January.

"Now I hear Toni could be out for the season," Rodman said, referring to Toni Kukoc. "How many games are we going to win without Scottie and Toni?"

HONORED

DeVries, Dwight earn Big Ten honors

IOWA CITY, Iowa (AP) — Iowa's Jared DeVries and Tim Dwight have earned player of the week honors in the Big Ten despite the Hawkeyes' 28-24 loss at Michigan.

DeVries was named the defensive player of the week after making 11 tackles against the Wolverines. The junior tackle had three sacks and made another tackle for a loss and also knocked down a pass.

Dwight shared the special teams award with Minnesota's Adam Bailey and Northwestern's Anwan Jones. The senior from Iowa City returned a punt 61 yards for a touchdown and returned a kickoff 72 yards to set up a field goal.

Sherman may be sidelined

Iowa quarterback Matt Sherman suffered an injured throwing hand in Saturday's loss to Michigan and could be sidelined for two to three games.

By James Kramer
The Daily Iowan

Iowa quarterback Matt Sherman reportedly suffered a broken thumb on his throwing hand against Michigan and could be out several weeks.

Iowa (4-2, 1-2 Big Ten) hosts Indiana on Saturday at Kinnick Stadium.

Sherman, who has started 32 straight games for Iowa, injured his right hand late in a 28-24 loss to the Wolverines on Saturday in Ann Arbor.

Immediately after the game, a source close to the quarterback told The Daily Iowan that Sherman hurt his hand on Iowa's second-to-last play of the game — a 30-yard pass to Tavian Banks — and that the injury was believed to require surgery.

On the following play, Sherman threw his third interception to end the Hawkeyes' comeback effort. Team trainer John Streif and offensive coordinator Don Patterson refused to comment on Sherman's injury as players boarded team buses, but KXIC-AM of Iowa City reported Monday that multiple sources in the Iowa athletic department confirmed the injury and said he would miss at least two games.

Sherman exited the locker room at Michigan with a coat draped over his hand before boarding a team bus. The fifth-year senior was seen on campus Monday with a thick brace on his hand.

Sports information director Phil Haddy said coach Hayden Fry told him that Sherman has a doctor's appointment Wednesday and would be evaluated then.

Two Iowa players told the DI that Sherman attended Monday's walk-through practice, which did not require him to throw.

If Sherman sits out, sophomore Randy Reiners is expected to play in his absence. Reiners saw limited playing time earlier this season, completing nine of 14 passes for 209 yards.

The Associated Press contributed to this report.

FACTS

- Davis played at North High School in Davenport, Iowa
- He averaged 25 points and 12.1 rebounds as a senior
- He was named co-MVP in Magic Johnson's Roundball Classic after leading all scorers with 27
- Oliver played at Mason City High School
- He was named Mr. Basketball by the Iowa Newspaper Association
- He was state of Iowa Player of the Year by USA today
- He led team to 4A state title as a senior and junior

Iowa freshmen Ricky Davis and Dean Oliver have yet to step on the floor of Carver-Hawkeye Arena, but the legends of the two Hawkeye newcomers have already been years in the making.

Now the two are ready to tackle the expectations that have been steadily rising for three years.

"We do have a lot of high expectations we're trying to accomplish, but that's not new," Oliver said. "Both of us really like to play under pressure and we're big competitors. We like to prove things that other people doubt."

Oliver has been selected as the Big Ten Newcomer of the Year by Athlon's magazine while Davis is ranked among the top 50 national newcomers by The Sporting News.

Because of the credentials both bring to the team, Iowa coach Tom Davis said the two players will likely be in the seven-man rotation, and could possibly become starters.

"I would be shocked if they're not in the rotation," the Iowa coach said.

"That's just reality. I think you have to give them what they deserve, and yet not until they deserve it."

Although Oliver will be looked upon to help fill the void left by Andre Woolridge at point guard, the Hawkeye coach said Davis was so versatile he could be called upon to play the 2, 3 or even 4 position.

"I don't really have a preference, just whatever fits best for the team," the freshman forward said. "I really don't know his offense too well yet, but hopefully I'll figure out what feels best for me after I learn it."

The Nov. 14 season opener against Chicago State will mark only the second time the two have competed on the same team. If the combination is half as exciting as the first time they teamed up, Oliver said Hawkeye fans will be in for a treat.

"That one time we played together we had a lot of fun," the freshman point guard laughed. "I threw an alley-oop to him from three-quarters court and he dunked it backwards. I think he scored about 38 and I scored

Iowa freshman Dean Oliver will be used to having the ball in his hands by the time his career as Iowa's point guard is complete.

Florida's Devon White breaks up a double play as Cleveland's Bip Roberts soars over him in Game 2 Sunday.

Series is putting baseball to sleep

Is there anyone else out there turned off by the World Series?

I'm not talking about you people out there who don't care about baseball in the first place. But even the most loyal baseball fans can't be savoring the first two games.

After two brilliant League Championship Series, Florida and Cleveland in the World Series couldn't be a more anti-climatic ending to the year baseball made its comeback.

The 1997 season had everything — A great divisional race between the Giants and Dodgers, Ken Griffey Jr. and Mark McGwire's home run barrage, Roger Clemens dominating hitters on his way to the triple crown of pitching and Larry Walker nearly becoming the first hitter to do the same since Carl Yastrzemski in 1967.

Maybe it's just because the Cleveland-Baltimore ALCS was one of the best played six-game sets in recent history. Perhaps it's because the Marlins had to beat every NL Cy Young Award winner since 1991 to get where they are.

Andy Hamilton

This season deserved better than such a terrible ending. The 1997 season is reminiscent of Tin Cup. You can sit through the entire show, watching every single great detail, and then you feel cheated after watching Roy McAvoy give away the U.S. Open.

There could have been so many better matchups. The potent Seattle offense against the Atlanta pitching staff. The best regular season teams with Baltimore against Atlanta.

World Series rematch with the Yankees and Braves. The game's two best players with Griffey and Seattle against Barry Bonds and San Francisco.

Nothing against the Marlins and Indians, but you couldn't pick two better teams that made the postseason come up with a more lifeless series.

This shouldn't be a sorry series either. Both teams have plenty of offensive firepower and both teams have plenty of marquee names up and down their lineups.

There's exciting defensive star Charles Johnson, Devon White, Ozzie
