Reno has big plans for later in life

NEW YORK (AP) — Attorney General Janet Reno won't be writing her memoirs when she leaves the Clinton administration — she'll be too busy driving cross-country in a truck.

That's one plan anyway, Reno says in The New Yorker magazine's Dec. 1 issue.

"I'd like to get in a truck. That's what I'd like to do — get in a truck, and put in a cooler and a stove, and a little dresser drawer and a place for a cot," Reno said. "Then take a canvas, and have it hooked to the back so that it rolls out — I could use it as a tarpaulin — and take off across the country."

If Reno does make the trip, she may be accompanied by her closest friend in the Cabinet.

"I told her I'd drive," said Donna Shalala, health and human services secretary. Reno also talked to the magazine about her time as attorney general. She said it's been "fun" but adds she still has much to accomplish.

"There are days that I can do without," she said. "Luckily, I'm good at going home and curling up with a good book, and just dropping out of whatever I was in."

Smith wants to clean up rap

NEW YORK (AP) — Will Smith is looking to lead a renaissance in rap music.

"Rap's gone through a sort of dark ages," Will Smith says in the Nov. 28 Entertainment Weekly. "I think with the loss of Biggie (Smalls) and Tupac (Shakur), the rap industry is ready for a change."

The film and TV actor first known as clean-cut, two-time Grammy-winning rapper Fresh Prince did the rap theme song for his film "Men in Black" and is releasing his first album in four years, "Big Willie Style." He says gangsta rap took hip-hop music down the wrong path. "The essence of rap was always about partying and having fun," said the 29-year-old father of a 5-year-old boy. "The best rapper was the one that could rock the crowd. How well you shot a gun wasn't part of the criteria."

Smith, who's expecting another child with fiancée, actress Jada Pinkett, 26, also believes good rap doesn't have to be vulgar. "I want my son to have a rap record with no profanity," Smith said. "Clean and fun."

New York mayor hosts 'SNL'

NEW YORK (AP) — Live from New York, it's Hizzoner.

Mayor Rudy Giuliani put on a dress, told a few jokes, took a beating from Janet Reno and dished one out to Joe Pesci as guest host of "Saturday Night Live."

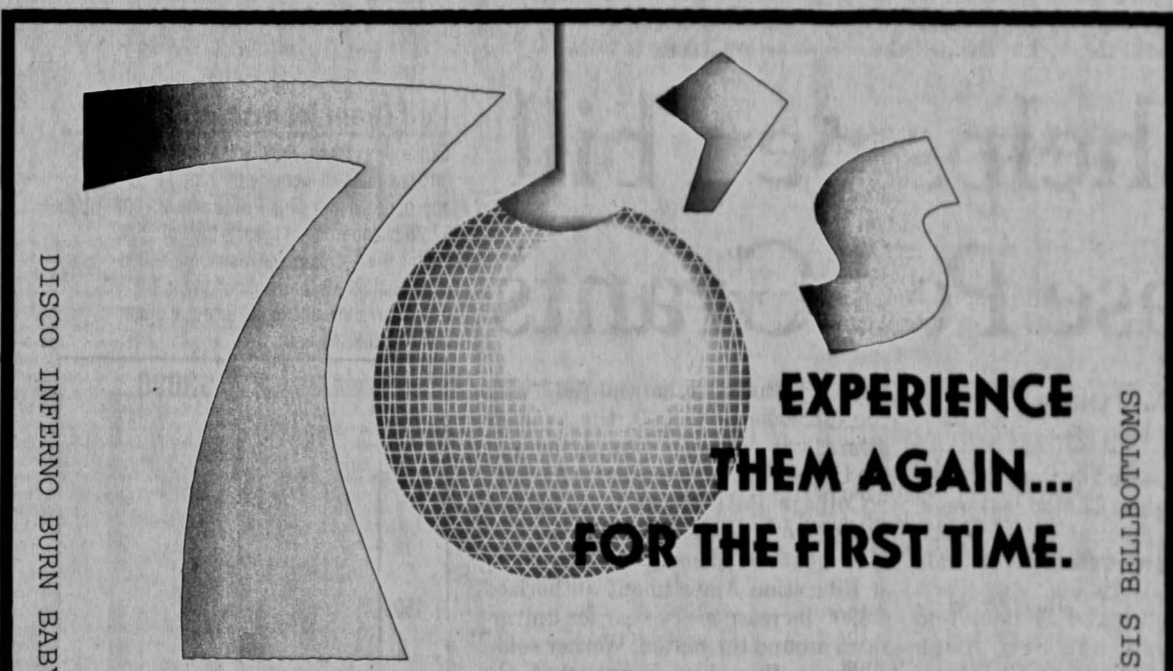

"New York is so safe, it's once again safe to hitchhike!" the newly re-elected mayor cracked in his opening monologue. Giuliani appeared as a gray-haired Italian grandmother, a bow-tie wearing spelling bee announcer and of course, as himself.

He took a few body blows from the show's Reno impersonator but also got to deliver a comedy beating, taking a stickball bat to an ersatz Pesci for making Italian-Americans look bad in movies.

Giuliani then turned toward the TV camera waving the stick, shouting: "This is my city. Turn that camera off."

It was Giuliani's hosting debut, but his second appearance. He and New York Gov. George Pataki opened a show in 1996. Former New York mayors Ed Koch and David Dinkins have also been on the show.

Eating fondue and dancing under the disco ball, UI students and Iowa City residents say '70s parties are the place to be seen.

By Jeff Clayton
The Daily Iowan

Dressed in their finest polyester, UI students are disco-dancing back in time to the hippest bashes in town — 1970s parties.

UI sophomore Farrah Lickton said the '70s party she went to last Thursday was one of the best she's been to all year.

"It was one party where everyone really got involved," Lickton said. "Everyone dressed up and got down."

Iowa City resident Craig Mueller has thrown several disco parties of his own with his roommates and knows the essentials.

"You can't have a disco party without a disco ball," he said.

He also knows to serve the food of the decade — fondue.

"Fondue is the bomb, baby," he said. "You can't have a legitimate '70s party without it."

However, during his last party, Mueller forgot Sterno, the fluid used to heat the fondue, and the party nearly erupted into a disco inferno.

"The fondue didn't quite meet our expectations," Mueller said. "People were disappointed, but the songs soothed them over."

UI sophomore Yvonne Oertel attended the same party as Lickton and said everyone had a great time.

"Of course I did," Oertel said. "I had a great outfit."

Her '70s finery included rust-colored polyester pants that flared at the bottom and a black shirt with a flowered print and a v-neck.

Lickton clothed herself in orange-and-white polyester design pants and a white shirt with an "orange-ish" vest. However, the highlight of her outfit was her black boots.

"Nasty," Lickton described them.

All said the most important aspect of the party is the music.

"You need your K.C. and the Sunshine Band and the 'Saturday Night Fever' soundtrack to really groove," Mueller said.

It's also important to follow through on the theme.

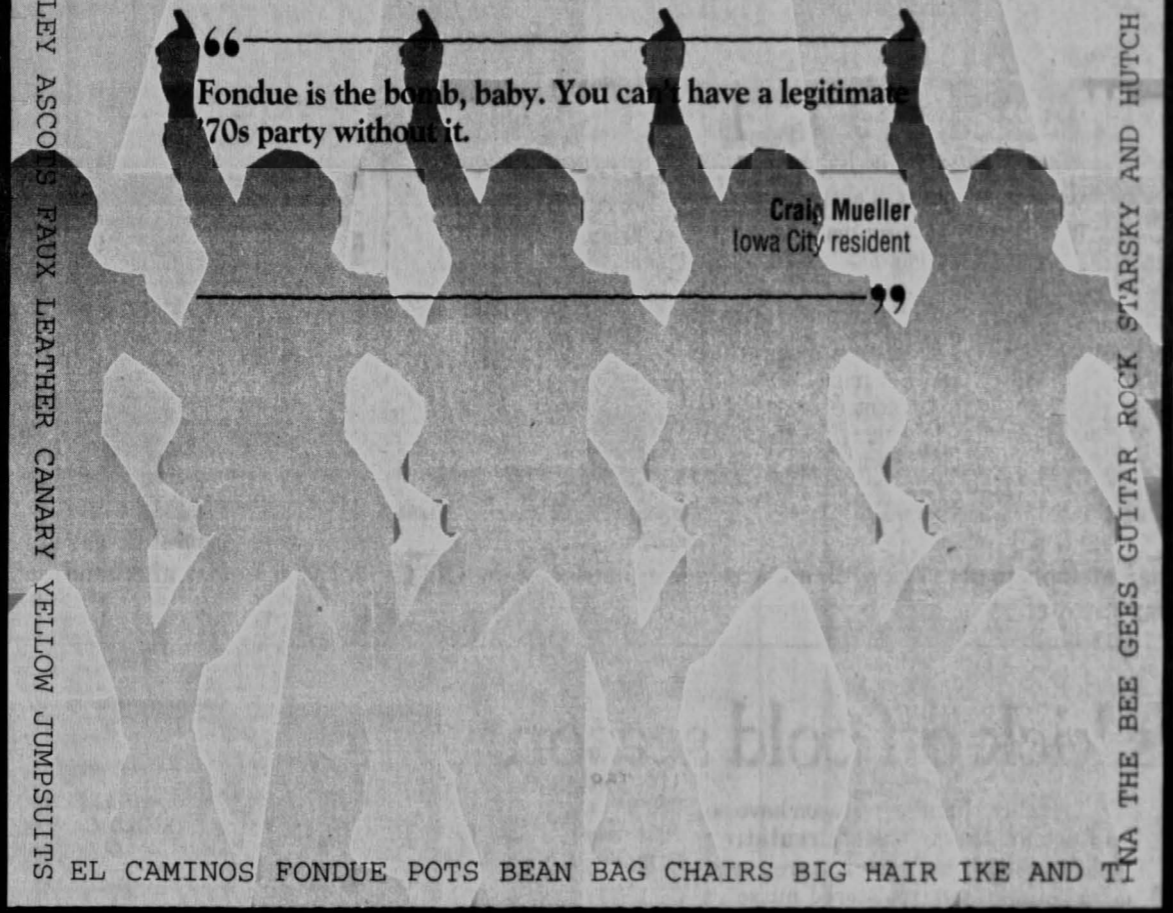

"They played no music from today," Lickton said. "Everyone liked it because everyone knew the words."

Lickton also said '70s parties are one of the few parties where everyone can get involved.

"There was a big turnout — especially for a Thursday night," she said.

Mueller said he plans on throwing another disco party soon.

"It's a great time for everyone to get together and just get down tonight."

Celebrities born on this day: Doug Davidson, William F. Buckley Jr., Geraldine Page, Toulouse-Lautrec

Happy Birthday: Keep your emotional problems to yourself this year and don't let them interfere with your professional goals. You can make headway if you look at the possibilities that are not out of your reach. You need to keep your feet on the ground and realize where you can make the most gains. Your numbers: 6, 10, 13, 30, 36, 45.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Put all your work on hold. It's time you spend some time with the one you love. You can expect to rekindle a relationship that has been stagnating for some time now.

HOROSCOPES BY EUGENIA LAST

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Don't spend too much on luxury items or entertainment. Sudden changes may result in short road trips or a number of telephone calls to close friends or relatives.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): You won't find it easy to get along with those you live with. Don't exaggerate if you want to avoid opposition and upset. Your main concern should be self-improvement, not changing others.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): A good friend will need your help. Try to ease their worry by offering logical solutions to their dilemma. You can make a difference in the outcome of their problems if you share past experiences.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Check out some of those money-making opportunities that are around you. Small-business ventures will pay off if you don't put your personal assets on the line.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): This is a great day for self-improvement or doing things with children. You need to get involved in hobbies that will spark an interest and stimulate your mind.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Your intuition will be right on, but if you point an accusing finger you can expect denial and a harsh response. Be observant and wait for a better time.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): New romantic opportunities will be present if you get involved in fund-raising events. Confusion will surface if your potential mate is already committed to someone else.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Be cautious of individuals who are trying to befriend you too quickly. It's unlikely that the people around you are being honest.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): You will pick up valuable knowledge if you talk to people who have already experienced things that you are encountering at present. Don't deny the fact that you have such problems.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): You will be lucky financially, but you are just as likely to let your money burn a hole in your pocket. Put your cash into sound investments.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Make special plans that will enhance your personal relationship. A romantic offer from someone you met through work may be occupying your thoughts. Don't think that your mate is not aware.

Clinton nixes plea by Yeltsin on Iraq

Clinton rebuffs appeal for softer sanctions on Iraq.

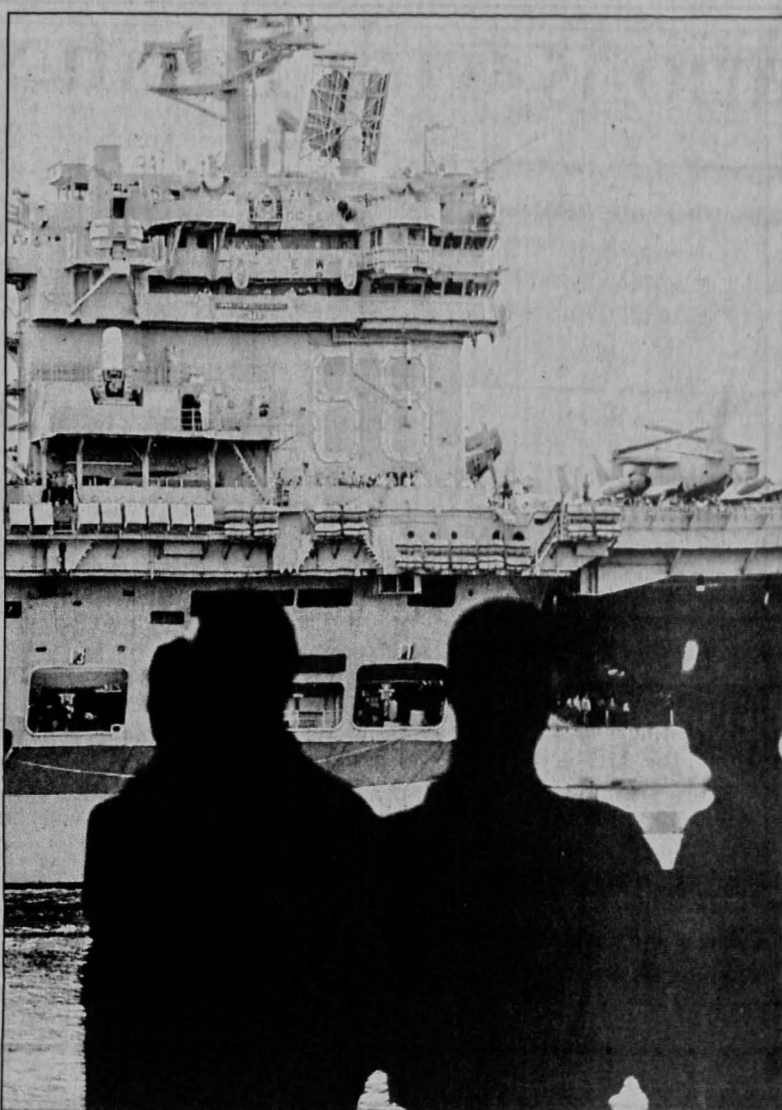

By Terence Hunt
Associated Press

DENVER — President Clinton rebuffed an appeal from Russian President Boris Yeltsin on Saturday to ease tough economic sanctions against Iraq, saying he hoped the tense showdown with Iraq was over "but we're not sure."

Clinton spoke with Yeltsin for 40 minutes by telephone from the White House before setting out on a day of campaign fund-raising expected to reap more than $1 million for Democrats. The president stopped in Denver and Seattle en route to the 18-nation Asia-Pacific Economic Cooperation forum in Vancouver, British Columbia.

The summit will focus on the growing crisis in Asia over currency devaluations, bank failures and stock market crashes. One top priority, Clinton said, "will be strengthening and stabilizing Asia's financial markets so that their economies and ours stay on the right track."

Reflecting on the crisis with Iraq and other demands, Clinton said simply, "It was a killer of a week." Later, in Seattle, Clinton said, "I hope you have seen in the difficult week we have just had over the weapons inspections in Iraq how important it is for your country to continue to stand up for peace and freedom and security around the world."

Sailors on board the aircraft carrier USS George Washington observe the carrier USS Nimitz coming alongside in the Persian Gulf on Sunday.

With international weapons inspectors back at work in Iraq, Yeltsin called Clinton and argued for an easing of United Nations sanctions mostly on humanitarian grounds, noting the severe impact on the Iraqi people.

Yeltsin also said there should be a gradual easing of inspections as Iraq satisfies U.N. suspicions about illicit nuclear, chemical and biological weapons material.

"There's disagreement between us on the terms under which sanctions ought to be ended, but that's not new," a senior U.S. official traveling with Clinton said of the leaders' discussion. The official said Clinton and Yeltsin agreed that Iraq cannot expel the inspectors.

The president said he was concerned about the welfare of the Iraqi people and "we don't want to see them suffer unnecessarily." But chief U.N. inspector Richard Butler had reported there are "still impediments to their work (in Iraq) and he recommends a more robust inspection regime. That is what we need to focus on," Clinton said.

More good news in anti-crime fight

WASHINGTON (AP) — For the second time in two weeks, the Clinton administration is telling Americans that streets are getting safer in all regions of the country.

Two of the most feared crime categories, murder and robbery, showed declines of 9 percent each from January to July compared with the first six months of 1996, the FBI announced Sunday.

Coast to Coast

The preliminary figures from the Uniform Crime Reporting Program — culled from the nation's law enforcement agencies — also showed drops in motor vehicle theft, aggravated assault, arson and burglary.

U.S. works to better trade relations with Pacific nations

Amidst Asian turmoil, the U.S. and Pacific Nations move to open trade markets.

By Martin Crutsinger
Associated Press

VANCOUVER, British Columbia — Gathering against the nervewracking backdrop of Asia's economic crisis, President Clinton and other Pacific Rim leaders pledged fresh rescue efforts Saturday and reached a modest agreement to stimulate open markets for such export items as toys and gems, chemicals and telecommunications equipment.

"Asia buys nearly a third of what we sell abroad, supporting millions of high-paying American jobs," Clinton said in a preview speech as he traveled to Asia-Pacific Economic Cooperation meetings here. "More than ever, America's future and Asia's future are joined."

Officials of the 18 APEC nations identified nine products where negotiators will strive to totally eliminate tariffs and other trade barriers as a down payment toward the goal of full free trade among their nations by the year 2020.

Canadian Prime Minister Jean Chretien set the stage for the summit, saying it would be a tragic error to try to erect barriers even in hard times. "Globalization is a fact of life. We cannot move against this current," he said in speech to Pacific business leaders.

While the annual gatherings of APEC leaders normally focus on trade issues, this year's meeting today and Tuesday has been overtaken by the Asian economic crisis, which has engulfed the region in the grip of plunging currencies and falling stock market values.

The economic typhoon claimed its biggest victim so far, South Korea, on the eve of the summit and President Kim Young Sam, in an address Saturday before his departure for APEC, warned South Koreans of "bone-carving pain" as his government implements austerity measures as a condition of receiving international monetary support.

Clinton referred to the situation in Denver and said Americans should understand that the Asian financial crisis directly affects "Globalization is a fact of life. We cannot move against this current."

Canadian Prime Minister Jean Chretien in a speech to Pacific business leaders.

America's economic future and its national security. He noted that 37,000 Americans are still stationed in South Korea to defend the border with communist North Korea and said the announcement Friday by North Korea that it will come to talks next month aimed at finally declaring an end to the Korean War offered a "glimmer of hope" for permanent peace in the region.

Turmoil in the Asian markets last month triggered the biggest one-day point loss in Wall Street history and spread to Europe as well.

Clinton said a financial rescue proposal put together in Manila on Wednesday would be one of his top priorities in discussions with other APEC leaders. That package provides for support from wealthy countries such as the United States and Japan to bolster the resources of the International Monetary Fund. The program will be modeled on the $23 billion bailout package put together last month for Indonesia. The United States pledged $3 billion.

"The international community must be prepared to help countries that are taking the right measures to help themselves," Clinton said.

He also pledged U.S. support for the goal of creating a huge free-trade zone among the APEC countries, which account for half of all world trade, by the year 2010 for developed nations and 2020 for all 18 countries.

As host for the summit, Chretien pushed to include such key Canadian exports as fish and forest products during upcoming negotiations to open markets beginning in January 1999.

The benefits for U.S. consumers from the proposed tariff cuts would be small since U.S. border taxes in most of the areas are already low. But the boost for U.S. producers would be significant because exporters face sizable tariffs in areas such as telecommunications, medical equipment, chemicals and paper where U.S. companies are among the world leaders.

Japanese spokesperson Hiroshi Hashimoto said Japan had been reluctant to include sensitive sectors such as lumber, fish and toys but dropped its objections because of the "spirit of voluntarism." The agreement only requires countries to begin negotiations, leaving them the option of refusing to make the actual tariff cuts at the end of the process.

U.S. Trade Representative Charlene Barshefsky conceded that for the United States to sign final deals in most of the areas the administration will need congressional approval of fast-track negotiating authority. Clinton failed to win House support for this authority, which every president has had since Gerald Ford, but has vowed to try again next year.

The package of products also includes environmental goods, toys, energy equipment, gems and jewelry. Canadian Trade Minister Sergio Marchi said APEC officials had also urged a conclusion by Dec. 12 to negotiations in Geneva to remove barriers to banking and other financial services.

Marchi said the Saturday trade agreement represented a "very strong message at a time when strong messages are needed" that APEC nations "rather than look inward or build walls ... will continue the outward march." The concern is that countries, faced with economic turmoil at home, will turn inward, raising barriers and choking off global trade, repeating mistakes of the 1930s that preceded the Great Depression.

While none of the nine sectors individually would have the impact of the deal endorsed by last year's APEC summit to phase out tariffs on $600 billion in computer products, U.S. Commerce Secretary William Daley said that the administration's estimate was that the nine sectors taken together cover $1.5 trillion in global trade.

But the agreement reached Saturday only means that negotiations will begin next spring with the speed for eliminating tariffs still left up to those discussions.

Clans press for release of U.N., E.U. hostages in Somalia

MOGADISHU, Somalia (AP) — Clan elders negotiated Sunday for the release of five U.N. and European Union aid workers, held captive for two days in a dispute between rival factions in northeastern Somalia.

U.N. officials were closely monitoring the talks in El Ayo, a town on the Gulf of Aden coast, said a source who spoke on condition of anonymity.

It was impossible to determine whether the hostages had been harmed.

Fighters with the Wasangeli subclan kidnapped the five aid workers Friday, apparently in retaliation for the seizure of a Palestinian businessman by a rival subclan, the Marjeteen, earlier that day, the source said by satellite telephone from El Ayo.

The Palestinian — a partner of two Somali charcoal dealers — was freed Sunday as part of the negotiations. The reason for his kidnapping was not clear.

Attempting to rescue the hostages, the Marjeteen attacked the Wasangeli late Saturday, resulting in the deaths of two fighters on each side, the source said.

The five hostages include one British employee of the European Union and four United Nations aid workers: two Kenyans, an Indian and a Canadian, a U.N. source said on condition of anonymity.

As car theft soars, Israel and Palestinians trade blame, barbs DAHARIYA, West Bank (AP) — It's not hard to get a sense of the leading industry in this desolate Palestinian hill town.

The blighted valley, in the biblical hills outside the Palestinian city of Hebron, is the end of the road for some of the tens of thousands of cars stolen in Israel each year.

Car theft is soaring in Israel, with a projected rise of 25 percent this year to 45,000 cases. Israel's national police say many of those cars end up in the chop shops of the West Bank or on the rutted roadways of the Gaza Strip.

Auto theft has become a familiar type of Israeli-Palestinian quarrel, a bitter brew of politics and prejudice, accusation and rebuttal, half-truths and outright lies.

The rancor undermines what little trust exists and raises the question of whether the two sides can learn to live as neighbors. The issue even came up during the latest round of peace talks, with Israel calling on the Palestinians to rein in car thieves.

Mandela's ex-wife faces accusers before Truth Commission

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa — Winnie Madikizela-Mandela faces her longtime accusers Monday before the commission investigating apartheid-era human rights abuses, a hearing that could affect the political future of President Nelson Mandela's ex-wife.

The Truth and Reconciliation Commission is holding the weeklong public hearing into 18 cases of alleged murders, kidnappings and torture by Madikizela-Mandela's bodyguards in the 1980s.

The Commission can grant amnesty to people who make full confessions of political crimes. But because Madikizela-Mandela has not applied for amnesty, she could face criminal charges based on evidence revealed during the hearings.

Question for kidnap victim: Do you want to meet your real mother?

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (AP) — Crystal Anzaldi soon will be asked if she wants to meet the woman she calls "my new mother," a stranger she hasn't seen since she disappeared from their bed in California seven years ago.

The woman that Crystal, now 8, thought was her real mother is awaiting trial on forgery charges. The little girl was matched with her parents after police discovered her birth certificate was faked, then matched her birthmark and quirky smile to that of a toddler pictured on an Internet site for missing children.

Dorothy Anzaldi called Puerto Rico's Department of Family on Friday and asked to be reunited with the daughter she remembers as a chubby 14-month-old.

A reunion hinges on Crystal's own decision — and what social workers make of her real mother's troubled life.

"I explained to (Ms. Anzaldi) that it's going to take time to decide whether, where and under what circumstances such a meeting would be held," said Jenny Ramirez of the family department.

Crystal disappeared a few days before Christmas in 1990, from the bed she was sharing with her parents and older sister, Kendra, who is now 10.

The baby disappeared from a San Diego neighborhood that authorities say teemed with drug problems. There was speculation that Crystal had been sold to pay a drug debt, and the parents came under suspicion.

In Puerto Rico, the child lived a nomadic existence; the woman masquerading as her mother, Nilda Gierbolini Guzman, feared discovery.

Her last home was in Luquillo, a seaside town where she lived in a rundown house with Gierbolini and her American husband, who says Gierbolini treated the child with affection when she wasn't drunk and abusing her.

Authorities discovered that "Sonja Guzman's" birth certificate was a fake during a routine investigation of the abuse

One man's word against the future

If you have been watching daytime HBO this month, you may have been in for a special treat. About two or three times a day, the network plays a movie called "The Man Who Saw Tomorrow."

It is a "fascinating docudrama" about the prophecies of history's feel-good prognosticator, Nostradamus. The narrator — Orson Welles — reads off quatrain after quatrain of vague, subjective predictions while high-caliber actors enact them on screen. The best part is when they show the so-called Third Antichrist, who appears in the form of a Middle-Eastern man wearing an astoundingly lustrous turban.

Anyhoo, that movie got me to thinking. Why are this man's predictions so special? I mean, those prophecies can be interpreted in many ways to mean anything. What makes him so different from me?

I'll tell you what makes him different from me: I am neither French nor an astrologer — nor dead. I'm going to go out on a limb (more of a bough, much like the one that rock-a-bye baby's crib rests upon) and tell you how I think the future is going to happen, without those overly interpretational quatrains. The future's going to be so much fun, just you wait.

J.R. Haugen

You may be wondering what the world's immediate forecast might be. First, at the turn of the century, we really are going to party like it's 1999. Then will come the presidential election of the year 2000. Don't quote me on this, but Tom Berenger will become the 43rd president by defeating James Earl Jones by the narrowest of margins. But that's just the beginning.

Soon we will finally get into World War III. And since no World War can officially be started without the Germans pulling the strings, Germany will once again be the instigator. Although my visions of this are blurred, I can tell you that it will stem from an incident involving Fußball, Lyman and a projectile piece of Bit O' Honey.

As with World War III, no future scenario is complete without flying cars! Well, you can consider this an incomplete scenario, then, because there will be no flying cars, and I'll tell you why: People will abandon their vehicles and begin to attach prosthetic limbs to themselves. With five, six or seven legs, people will be breaking land-speed records.

Unlike the laser weapons you've seen in "G.I. Joe," futuristic ground warfare will be carried out using weapons that shoot out beams of NutraSweet, which will have been declared a chemical weapon.

The national pastime will get a bit of a facelift. Instead of going to the ballpark to watch a game of baseball, people will go to see games of large-scale Stratego.

You may revel in nostalgia humor, because after all, who doesn't nowadays? By now, you're probably sick of the 1970s. The '80s are still chic, and the '90s may amuse you here and there. It's catching up so fast that soon people will reminisce about the future, making fun of events that have yet to happen. Or perhaps that time is already upon us...

Aliens? You bet we'll have aliens. Forget about E.T., Alf and John Lithgow. Aliens will come to visit us, and they will all be 50-foot-tall clones of Jerry Orbach from the planet Zumbletron.

I can't leave out the kiddies and their fads. It will become hip (or "hep") to wear clothes made out of tree bark. Maternity clothes will also be fashionable. And the best-selling toys are going to be Patrick Swayze dress-up dolls.

Inevitably, though, our good fortune is going to run out. Have you ever seen the intro sequence to "Thunderdarr the Barbarian"? Believe it or not, that entire sequence will actually happen. A comet (not unlike Hale-Bopp) will fly right by the planet and throw everything into chaos, splitting the moon in half.

You probably don't believe any of this and are thinking, "Just what gives him the right to predict the future?" Well, Nostradamus did it, so why can't I? I have been to the edge and back. There is so much more to say, but alas, I can only tease you with this small amount of information. Believe me, this is the way it's going to happen. Really. It makes sense, doesn't it?

one possible explanation:

The morality behind a miracle

Across the nation and away from the recent frenzy that accompanied the birth of septuplets in Des Moines, something amazing happened.

On Nov. 14, a woman in Rochester, N.Y., experienced the miracle of childbirth. Lisa Nottingham gave birth to a baby girl by Caesarean section. The miraculous part is that the mother was brain-dead, kept alive through life support.

Nottingham was about four-months pregnant when she suffered a brain hemorrhage in August and was declared brain dead. Rather than let Nottingham and her unborn child die, doctors chose to place her on a ventilator to keep her body alive for the baby's sake. She was on life support for 14 weeks before her condition had become unstable and her body was developing infections. It was then that doctors decided to deliver the baby.

Shortly after the delivery of the 3-pound, 3-ounce baby girl, doctors removed 20-year-old Nottingham from the machines that kept her alive. She was dead 20 minutes later. The baby, born prematurely, was placed on a ventilator because of her immature lungs but is otherwise healthy. She is expected to remain hospitalized for at least four to six weeks. There are a few neurological concerns, but doctors say that is nothing unusual for a premature baby born at her stage of development.

As celebrated as this child's birth should be, one has to wonder what her future will be like. Did doctors make the right decision in keeping her mother alive long enough so she could be born? This child will grow up without knowing her mother or her father. The lone living relative is her maternal grandmother, whose comment to the press has been that baby looks just like her mother when she was born. Her financial standing is unknown, but statistically she is not beginning life as well as other babies are. Her health could improve, but it is very likely that she will have some sort of life-long reminder of her premature birth.

Strikes are against this baby, but doctors made the right decision to keep Lisa Nottingham on life support. Years ago, if a mother was declared brain dead, the child died as well. Keeping a mother on life support for over three months, just to deliver a baby, was unheard of. The thought didn't even cross doctors' minds.

However, things are different today. If doctors have a chance to save a child's life, shouldn't they take it?

Medical procedures are now being performed daily that were once simply unheard of. Sometimes the public believes that doctors get too cocky and enjoy playing God with their patients' lives, but for every such sentiment, there are countless doctors doing their best and saving lives.

We must remember that experimental drugs and new techniques are not employed to make medical history. They are used to save lives. If advances in medical technology are able to save a child that may have never been born, by all means they should be employed.

Isn't that the point?

Letters to the Editor

TCI decision is offensive

To the Editor:

We appreciate very much that The Daily Iowan gave front-page coverage to an important story that affects both students and non-students in Iowa City. I would like to take this opportunity to expand on the information your newspaper reported on November 10 in an article entitled: "TCI targeted by local Latinos."

We are living in a multicultural society where many languages are spoken, among them Spanish, Portuguese, Chinese, etc.

Therefore, it is important to know how to respect the rich cultural diversity that we enjoy. TCI is not very adept at this. It seems it wants to promote an "English-only" agenda.

In our daily lives, we presume to respect our diversity and the cultural richness of our society. Does not TCI contradict this presumption when it proposes to cancel the only Spanish channel that we have?

TCI underestimates its customers. Univision reaches not only the Latino population, but also a large English-speaking population that also speaks Spanish. People in Iowa City are very well educated; Spanish is taught at the university, community college, elementary, secondary and high school levels, and Univision is a vital linguistic and cultural resource for these students. Spanish is definitely not a language spoken only by a "minority."

I strongly urge TCI to rethink its biased decision and to respect the voices of all of us in this society — Latinos and non-Latinos.

To all TCI subscribers who are displeased with TCI's offensive behavior: I urge you to make your feelings clear to TCI by canceling your subscription if Univision is taken off the air.

ATM addiction is wide-spread

To the Editor:

After reading Byron Brown's column on his addiction to the ATM machine (DI, Nov. 4), I realized I have the same problem.

Whether I need cash or just to transfer money into my checking account, I have the convenience to do it at Mayflower and Burge residence halls or almost anywhere downtown.

I didn't own an ATM card until I came to college, but to pay all the extra expenses of my phone bill, UI bill, groceries and so on, I have watched my savings dip below $100. I got a part-time job, barely go out and have ordered pizza twice this year. Maybe I take out more cash than I realize.

I transferred from a college where the nearest ATM machine was not just down the stairs. Has convenience got the best of me? It seems to have gotten a hold of a lot of people. What can we do to get rid of our addiction? Unrealistically, you could cut up your ATM card.

The best advice is to keep track of the money you take out and list why you take it out. From there you can see if the expenses are needed and manage your money better. Also, before you leave for the day decide if you really need your ATM card. If you don't, leave it at home and then you won't even have the temptation to use it. I wish luck to all those who continue to struggle with this problem and thank you, Byron, for helping me realize my own addiction.

Let's talk turkey: Give care to animals

Most holidays are family oriented, of course. Thanksgiving, as it has evolved, is surely the most so of all. At Christmas, close families are more likely than ever to enjoy the day with each other.

On ours, we certainly shall, as our daughters arrive from San Francisco, Cleveland and Ithaca, N.Y., to join us and the daughter who lives here and the one who's in Iowa City after residing in Slovenia. Add my sister and brother-in-law from Los Angeles.

And we can't leave out Flavia, the dog, and Sam, the cat. Our pets are integral and cherished family members, as are other pets in other families.

Appreciating Flavia and Sammy set me to wondering about Thanksgiving for the dogs and cats at the Iowa City-Coralville Animal Shelter, temporarily without families for whatever reasons.

Two cats and one dog greet a visitor to the shelter. On the left side of the shelter's entrance stands a net playpen filled with overflowing with dog and cat food in bags of all sizes. This is the food bank for animals, explained Director Lisa Goodman-Herbst. Collected at the shelter, the food's distributed by the Johnson County Humane Society to pet owners in financial straits who might otherwise be forced to abandon their pets. The society and the shelter work in tandem for animals who need help, and the society finds foster homes for animals which, due to illness or stress or age, would be difficult to place.

Asked how many animals the shelter was housing, the director responded emphatically, "Too many! We have 28 dogs, 35 — no, make that 50 — cats, one rabbit and one iguana." Iguanas, she says, are the pets of choice among students.

Inspecting the quarters where the animals are kept is both heartening and wrenching. It's heartening that the cages are as spacious and clean and comfortable as possible and to know that the dogs — small, medium and large, black, brown, beige, white, which prickle their ears, wave their tails and gaze hopefully at visitors — will in 90 percent of the cases find the humans and homes they long for so they can again give and receive love.

It's wrenching that they don't understand this and that a few will never find those homes.

The door to the animals' quarters bears a placard which admonishes sternly: "Ninety-five percent of the lost pets found without a tag DO NOT get home. Ninety-five percent of the lost pets found with a tag DO get home."

The passageway is cheerful-looking, with off-white masonry walls and green trim. It passes the dog's rooms and a large cage full of fuzzy, furry kittens and leads to a left turn which takes one to the cats' room. Here, some bat at the toy which dangles in their cages, some placidly survey the room, some rest or sleep, one meows stridently and persistently.

The dedicated staff members are assisted by volunteers, some of them students. "We try to get students to come over to volunteer," says Goodman-Herbst. Many do.

These students are part of the solution. Others, unfortunately, are part of the problem. They jettison their pets when they leave school, and the end of every semester is a bad and busy time for the shelter. So is the Christmas season, as adoptions increase two weeks before it but returns increase two weeks after.

The humans who operate this superior facility and who support it and adopt animals from it and the persons who care deeply about their fellow creatures display an admirable trait of humanity, in drastic contrast to the creepy-crawly psychopaths who tortured and murdered the cats at a Fairfield shelter. The slap on the wrist they received for their odious atrocity angered a great many citizens, including Goodman-Herbst. But, she urges, Iowa must change the law. Other states have enacted laws against cruelty to animals. It's overdue here.

Although the shelter is mostly supported by the municipalities it serves, donations are always welcome and, the director stressed, they go directly to benefit the animals. Not 1 cent is used for overhead.

And what about Thanksgiving? Yes, it is, in a small way, a day for turkey at the shelter, as people bring in leftover scraps, which they personally hand out to the animal guests.

If these animals only knew it, they have quite a bit to be thankful for, what with well-kept quarters, caring staff, no time limit on their stay and nine chances out of 10 for finding another home.

So do we humans. The bond between us and our household companions has been around for so long and extensively that we take it for granted. When you stop to think about it, it's quite a remarkable phenomenon which is mutually rewarding. It's one more thing to be thankful for on this Thanksgiving Day.

who receive Pell Grants go through an extremely selective application process, said Catherine Wilcox, financial aid associate director.

"Students who claim independence must have a contribution of $2,400 or less to their education, and if students claim dependence, the family contribution must also be $2,400 or less to qualify for the grant," she said.

UI junior Tabitha Strom said she has been receiving a Pell Grant for the past three years at the UI and had no idea about the grant increase.

"I claim dependence, so my application process was based on my family's income contribution," Strom said. "In the past years I have not received the maximum, but this year I have been lucky enough to receive the maximum $2,700."

Every little bit helps, and the increase of $300 will be extremely helpful next year, Strom said.

"I work 30 hours a week, and I try to apply for scholarships, but I don't have enough time to do all the volunteer work that (people who award scholarships) are looking for," she said.

Until this year, there has been a decrease in funding available for college students over the last few years, said Ken MacInerney of the National Association of Student Financial Aid Office in Washington, D.C.

"We are seeing good signals from Congress when we see two years of federal increases, even though the increases may not be as much as the $200 that was authorized," he said. "We are still behind, but we now seem to be heading in the right direction."

An additional 222,000 low- to moderate-income families around the nation will receive Pell Grants for the 1998-99 school term, Warner said.

"With this new appropriations bill, students at the UI will see an increase in the number of students who receive the award and an increase in the average award of the Pell Grant," he said. "With this new bill, the Pell Grant will continue to help students in financial need, but on a higher level."

Clinton Street, past the Pappajohn Business Administration Building and the Pentacrest, with its headlights turned off.

Steffen said Thomas was followed by three police officers, one Public Safety officer, two fire trucks and one ambulance down Dubuque Street, where the driver lost control and hit a culvert on the roadway and caught fire.

After the crash, Thomas ran across the highway on foot and jumped into the Iowa River, Steffen said. Thomas was caught a short time later.

UI freshman Nate Hensley said he and his friends were heading home to the Mayflower when they saw the driver jump out of the burning car and run across the highway.

"The cops were chasing him across the road, and he jumped into the river while his car was in the median, engulfed in flames," he said. "The cops brought him back up around five to 10 minutes later."

Thomas was transferred to UI Hospitals and Clinics Emergency Treatment Center for minor injuries sustained in the accident. Thomas remains a patient at UIHC; his condition is not being released.

The incident remains under investigation and charges are still pending.

the McCaugheys worship, gathered to celebrate what they say is a miracle birth.

"Our hearts are so full this morning, we can hardly speak," said McCaughey's uncle, the Rev. Henry Hepworth of Innisfail, Alberta, as he led the congregation in a prayer of thanks.

The altar where Bobbi and Ken McCaughey were married in 1992 was decorated with four "It's a boy" and three "It's a girl" balloons.

The Rev. Robert Brown stood before the congregation and said the last week was a "grand" one, with emotions ranging from "cautious anticipation to ... exuberance."

"How can anyone doubt there is a God?" he asked.

About 15 reporters scribbled notes through the service and later converged upon family members, while camera crews crowded around relatives outside.

But the family, expected to appear on NBC's "Dateline" Tuesday, appeared to be growing weary of the media attention.

"We would like to get back to normal as soon as we can be," said Peg Hepworth, McCaughey's mother.

In a letter printed in Time magazine's Dec. 1 issue, the surviving Dionne quintuplets warned the McCaugheys that multiple births should not be seen as entertainment or a marketing tool.

"Multiple births should not be confused with entertainment, nor should they be an opportunity to sell products," the 63-year-old sisters, Annette, Cecile and Yvonne Dionne, wrote.

Conceived before the era of fertility drugs, the five identical sisters were born on May 28, 1934, in Ontario, Canada. Weighing less than 2 pounds each, they were the first known surviving quintuplets and became a tourist sensation.

Rev. Hepworth said he was in awe of the McCaughey babies.

"They're all delicate, but they are so perfect," he said. "There's not a bent nose or squashed head in the bunch."

McCaughey's father, Bob Hepworth, said holding the babies was thrilling.

COLDS/Student Health prepares for another nasty cold season upper-respiratory infections, but that is typical, said Dr. Mary Khowassah, director of Student Health.

"Our clinic is busy," she said. "But it's run-of-the-mill. Flu season hasn't hit yet. Last year, it hit in December," she said.

Flu season is different every year, but usually runs October through March, Fulton said.

Student Health began giving flu shots at the beginning of October, and will continue through the beginning of 1998, Khowassah said. The cost of the influenza shot is $13 and can be charged on a U-bill.

"People should start getting their flu shots as close to flu season as possible," she said.

"Any time now is a good time to get one," she said. "They provide immunity and protection from the common cold."

However, those who are needle-shy may choose a less painful course of action for combating their cold; cold medicine is the cure-all for Iowa City resident Barb Corwin.

"I tell my kids and grandkids to find a good cold medicine, get some rest and wait," she said. "I tell them to just keep on truckin'."

Treating symptoms is basically the only thing that cold medicine will do for an illness, Fulton said.

"I'll recommend a decongestant or an antihistamine," she said. "But most people usually have something they'll go buy, that's what they'll want to use."

To prevent a cold from taking up residence in your body, Khowassah suggests taking general good care of yourself.

"You should try to get rest, eat well and wash your hands frequently," she said. "Of course, trying not to come in contact with the virus is something you should do, too."

The average cold lasts three to 10 days, Khowassah said.

"Most people think that penicillin or antibiotics will make a cold go away," she said. "It won't — the cold will run its course."

Strep throat is also a common occurrence in spring and fall, Khowassah said.

"We give throat cultures here, and strep throat can be treated with antibiotics," she said.

Students can come in and be seen by physicians often at no charge, Khowassah said.

"If students pay their student health fee, there is no office charge," she said. "Unless they get X-rays, blood work or some other special procedure, they won't have to pay for their visit."

For students' convenience, Student Health is a walk-in clinic.

However, this convenience often results in long waits in line, especially during cold season. UI senior Jen Pitcher didn't schedule an appointment and waited over an hour to see a doctor at Student Health. She finally left without seeing a physician.

"I waited there an hour. They said it would be 45 minutes," she said.

However, Pitcher was waiting during the lunch hour, when the clinic is only staffed with two doctors.

"An appointment can be scheduled, and this is the best way to receive prompt assistance," Khowassah said.

singer Michael Hutchence."

The statement gave no clue to why Hutchence may have committed suicide.

Police inspector Dennis Smith said detectives had interviewed a family friend who spoke to Hutchence about three hours before his body was found.

The woman told police she had arranged to meet the singer later in the day, Smith said.

Rock music commentator Ian "Molly" Meldrum said Hutchence's death came as a complete surprise. "I saw Michael and Paula with their baby daughter in Los Angeles around about eight weeks ago, and I've never seen Michael more peaceful and happier in his life," he said.

Hutchence had flown from his London home to Sydney earlier this week to prepare for the band's 20th anniversary "Loose Your Head" tour, which was to start Tuesday.

The tour — which was to have been the group's first in their homeland of Australia for more than three years — has been canceled, according to concert promoter Michael Gudinski.

Yates' lawyer, Anthony Burton, said the singer's girlfriend was being comforted by friends at the couple's home in Chelsea, southwest London. They have a daughter, Heavenly Hiraani Tiger Lily.

Last month, Hutchence said he planned to marry 37-year-old Yates on the Tahitian island of Bora Bora in January.

Formed in Perth in 1977, INXS shot to international success a decade later with the album "Kick," which sold 9 million copies. It featured four hit singles: "Never Tear Us Apart," "Need You Tonight," "New Sensation" and "Devil Inside."

The band toured throughout the world and performed its stylish dance-rock at major charity concerts, including the Live Aid series in the 1980s. They also performed a sellout show at London's Wembley Stadium.

The group once cranked out a hit album every year or two, but Hutchence remained self-deprecating about his success.

"I basically just stumble through all this," he told The Associated Press in an interview earlier this year. "I am a tenacious, ambitious person, it seems, if I have to admit it to myself, but I didn't notice at the time."

2 big-time books + 2 famous directors = 1 hit, 1 miss

What's the deal with courtrooms? Trial scenes in the movies have become as ever-present as car chases; heavily-plotted legal dramas have turned into action films for the thinking moviegoer. And, like action movies, courtroom thrillers are falling into formula, so that someone who's seen a lot of them might feel comfortable enough to step into court, trip up witnesses, schmooze juries and know exactly when to throw in an "Objection!"

Been-here-before sameness creeps into the two (two!) brand new courtroom thrillers that opened over the weekend. Both go heavy on the courtroom dueling, both are set in the South, both are based on best-selling books, both come from major directors. The only thing that really separates them is quality; one is god-awful, the other is good enough.

Bad news first. Clint Eastwood's "Midnight in the Garden of Good and Evil" takes the award for the worst major film of the year, and, since it's late November now, statements like these are less arbitrary. It is butt-aching dull despite a plot that includes a murder, a female impersonator, a voodoo priestess, and even the reliable "surprise witness" ("Your Honor, the prosecution wasn't notified of this witness in advance..."). It is snooze-inducing dull despite the presences of both Kevin Spacey as the true-life Savannah, Ga., socialite who shot down his cantankerous gay lover in 1981 and John Cusack as the New York reporter who covered his trial.

With a title as cumbersome and as heavy as "Midnight in the Garden of Good and Evil" (doesn't it seem like one should observe a moment of silence after saying it aloud?), why is the result so silly and throwaway? Eastwood's last movie, "Absolute Power," suffered for the same reasons, but at least it was trash as trash, not trash posing as something called "Midnight in the Garden of Good and Evil." Eastwood does try to have a little fun, following indulgent tangents that introduce us to Southern "characters," like the Lady Chablis, the Savannah transsexual who plays herself here. But the Lady Chablis scenes only help dry out "The Garden," because she's coarse, quirky...but absolutely disposable, particularly considering the two-and-a-half-hour (gulp) running time.

This isn't just a murder mystery, which probably just as well, since the only real, albeit mild, revelation comes in at about the 2 1/4 hour mark. The South itself, and Southern gentility, are also among Eastwood's main concerns, which explains why most of the courtroom scenes are so boring; everyone's so polite. Even Spacey doesn't register as much of anything except a gentleman. But his character is gay, a fact that — considering his fate — ends the movie with some galling homophobic vibes. In the last shot, Eastwood reappropriates a sculpted Southern version of the blind lady of justice as a symbol that seems to punish all gay people, who aren't favored among the film's Georgians, nor, so it seems, by the man who once played Dirty Harry, now sitting behind the camera.

Lady Justice, forever set in stone, appears in the first few seconds of "John Grisham's The Rainmaker," making for an unfortunate déjà vu experience for anyone who catches this movie soon after "Midnight in the Blah Blah Blah." Directed by Francis Ford Coppola, claims is costing lives. While he battles the slick lawyers (led by a marvelous Jon Voight, "Anaconda"), he protects a battered wife (Claire Daines, "Romeo + Juliet"). Coppola never quite joins the two stories satisfactorily, but the romance is better handled than the "Evil" romantic subplot between Cusack and Alison Eastwood (yep, Clint's daughter).

Naughty insurance companies? Perhaps the problem with "The Rainmaker" is that the typical Grisham threat (e.g., the government, the Mafia, the KKK) is a bunch of insurance bigwigs this time, and we all know how boring those guys are. Yet, paradoxically, this may be the film's biggest plus; the threat isn't too susceptible to the typical Grisham over-aggeration/simplification, the kind that ailed "A Time to Kill."

Actually, Coppola has made a crowd-pleasing movie in the best sense. The villains are tame enough so that they can get their just desserts in court; they don't need to be rounded up and lynched. When Rudy goes after them in his final summation in the end, decrying Great Benefit's slick lawyer and PR tactics, Coppola has fully convinced; it's tempting to cry "Oh, yeah, right on!" when the suits get their dressing down from a youngblood lawyer in his first big case. "The Pelican Brief" is a tighter thriller, but it finally has some company on the list of decent Grisham films.

With Danny DeVito along, "The Rainmaker" also has a welcome sense of humor, which fits; the novel is supposed to have been one of Grisham's lighter, funnier reads. (I didn't read it because it came after "The Chamber," probably the most unnecessary half-thousand pages I've conquered. The movie might send some courtroom-loving armchair lawyers back to the novel, which is a lot more than you can say for "MitGoGae." Eastwood fails to find the elements of the book that are making it last so long on the best-seller list, where it's been going strong now for about 175 weeks. Judging from the film, that number is inconceivable, a freak of nature, which is perhaps the best evidence against the movie. The prosecution rests.

'Anastasia' debuts to $15 million, giving Disney a run for the money

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "Mortal Kombat Annihilation" premiered atop the box office this weekend, but "Anastasia's" debut in the No. 2 spot was enough to give Mickey Mouse a run for the money in the Walt Disney Co.-dominated field of animated features, industry analysts said Sunday.

"I think it's great, it's wonderful, it's about as much as we could hope for," said Bill Mechanic, the chair and chief executive officer of Fox Filmed Entertainment.

Fox has spent an estimated $100 million combined on producing and marketing "Anastasia," a story about the Russian revolution and the mystery of the czar's daughter.

It was produced in a new animation studio Fox recently built in Arizona and is considered the first serious contemporary rival to Disney's throne.

Only one fully animated non-Disney movie has grossed more than $50 million at North American theaters: 1996's "Beavis and Butt-head Do America."

"The only reason Disney's had a run is that there's been no one out there," Mechanic said.

But as Mechanic pointed out Fox is not alone in its efforts to dethrone Disney's animation.

Among other animated films waiting in the wings are Warner Bros.' "The Quest for Camelot" (set to open May 22) and DreamWorks' "The Prince of Egypt" (November 1998).

Here are estimates for Friday through Sunday:

1. "Mortal Kombat Annihilation," $17.5 million.
2. "Anastasia," $15 million.
3. "John Grisham's The Rainmaker," $11 million.
4. "The Jackal," $9 million.
5. "The Little Mermaid," $5.8 million.
6. "Midnight in the Garden of Good and Evil," $5.2 million.
7. "Starship Troopers," $5 million.
8. "Bean," $4 million.
9. "The Man Who Knew Too Little," $3 million.
10. "I Know What You Did Last Summer," $2.8 million.

ABC lands Mary/Rhoda

LOS ANGELES (AP) — What's 20 years between Mary and Rhoda? If the ideas for a new show are any indication, they sure were living.

A new series will reunite Mary Tyler Moore and Valerie Harper as their 1970s characters Mary Richards and Rhoda Morgenstern.

The show, scheduled for the 1998 fall TV lineup, may feature the two as friends who have lost touch with each other over the years, but meet again as widows, Daily Variety reported. Each will have a daughter named for their old friend.

ABC has ordered 13 episodes.

Moore and Harper co-starred in "The Mary Tyler Moore Show," which aired from 1970-77. Moore portrayed Richards, a single woman who was an associate producer of the evening news on WJM-TV in Minneapolis. Harper played her upstairs neighbor, a role she spun off into her own hit series, "Rhoda," which aired from 1974-78.

HEADLINER Olajuwon injury could require surgery

HOUSTON (AP) — Hakeem Olajuwon's injured left knee that could require surgery, team doctors said Sunday. The Houston Rockets center, who has been sidelined since a groin injury in late October, is expected to return until after Thanksgiving.

Team physician Walter Lowe said Olajuwon, who has been bothered by the knee since training camp, because of long-term wear and tear.

Team spokesman Tim Finley said Olajuwon will determine by Monday whether he will undergo surgery. It was not clear how long he would be sidelined.

Olajuwon was bothered by the knee during Saturday night's game against the Dallas Mavericks.

"Normally, it comes and goes during the season, it's usually not a problem. I just want to do whatever is necessary to get him back on the court."

Olajuwon was 4-for-11 from the field and scored nine points in Saturday's game. Through his career, Olajuwon has scored 14,800 points on 52-percent shooting, down to 14.8 points and 48.5 percent shooting.

Olujuwon injury could require surgery
HOUSTON (AP) — Hakeem Olujuwon has an injured left knee that could require arthroscopic surgery, team doctors said Sunday after examining the Houston Rockets center.

The Rockets already are without forward Charles Barkley, who has been sidelined since Nov. 16 with a groin injury and isn't expected to return until after Thanksgiving.

Team physician Walter Lowe said Olujuwon, who has been bothered by the knee since training camp, could have damage because of long-term wear and tear. He is in his 14th NBA season.

Team spokesman Tim Frank said doctors would determine by Monday whether to treat the knee with rest and rehabilitation or perform arthroscopic surgery. It was not clear how long Olujuwon might be sidelined.

Olujuwon was bothered by the knee following Saturday night's game against the Golden State Warriors.

"Normally, it comes and goes," he said. "After the preseason, it's usually gone. But it's not going away this time. I just want to find out what it is and do whatever is necessary to correct it."

Olujuwon was 4-for-14 from the field and scored nine points in Saturday's 90-84 victory.

Through his career, Olujuwon has averaged 24 points on 52-percent shooting. This season, that's down to 14.8 points and 48-percent shooting.

Tim Dwight glances back at a Minnesota defender at the beginning of his 44-yard touchdown punt return.

What defense? The answer is here

What defense?
Those were the words the bold yellow letters said on the black t-shirts handed out to the Iowa defense three years ago. The shirt was designed by first-year defensive coordinator Bob Elliott, and was supposed to remind the unit that their ability was always in question.

This year was no different. Iowa fans knew the Hawkeyes had a high-powered offense, but a lack of respect was given for the "D."

But as the regular season came to an end Sunday against Minnesota, it was clear how drastically the tables have turned. The defense has become one of the Big Ten's best, and the offense has been sputtering along in hopes of breaking a big play.

Iowa gave up just 13 points against Wisconsin two weeks ago, and lost. Fifteen points was all the Northwestern Wildcats could muster against the Hawkeye defense last week, but that game, too, ended in an Iowa loss.

Iowa defensive end Jeff Kramer wraps up Minnesota quarterback Cory Sauter Saturday. Nose tackle Aaron Klein (#90) is in pursuit in the background.

Defensive tackle Jared DeVries unfairly put the blame for those games on his shoulders, saying that 13 and 15 was simply, "too much."

But against the Golden Gophers, the junior figured out a way to assure a great defensive effort result in an Iowa win.

"A shutout," he said. "If they don't score any, then we are going to win the game. Or at least tie."

The defense held Minnesota to just 170 yards in the 31-0 victory.

A pack of Wolverines

Michigan senior Eric Mayes (26), rallies his team before the start of their game against Ohio State at Michigan Stadium in Ann Arbor, Saturday. The Wolverines beat the Buckeyes 20-14, catapulting themselves into the No. 1 ranking in both college football polls. Michigan is now off to the Rose Bowl, where they will play Pac-Ten champion Washington State. Complete college football coverage, Page 3B.

Decker cracks starting lineup

Sophomore wrestler Justin Decker won the 158-pound wrestle-off to earn a starting job.

By James Kramer
The Daily iowan

Justin Decker wants to become one of those unknown Iowa wrestlers who makes it big.

Last year it was Jessie Whitmer, a fifth-year senior who won an NCAA title in his only season as a varsity wrestler. Decker, a sophomore from Westgate, Iowa, made the first small step toward success Saturday with a victory in the Hawkeyes' pre-season wrestle-offs.

Three matches were held Friday night, with seven more coming the following morning. A large crowd of fans packed into the wrestling room at Carver-Hawkeye Arena to see the defending national champion Hawkeyes.

Decker defeated junior Ben Uker, 5-3, at 158 pounds to earn at least a temporary spot in Iowa's starting lineup. Friday night, Decker pinned Chad Vance in 42 seconds.

Other winners included Eric Juergens (118), Doug Schwab (126), Mark Ironside (134), Jeff McGinness (142), Kasey Gilliss (150) and Lee Weber (177). Joe Williams (167), Lee Fullhart (190) and Wes Hand (heavyweight) were unchallenged.

"We have a lot of big names in the lineup, but I kind of like being the underdog," said Decker, who has a 2-4 Iowa record. "It's my job to make a name for

Swimmers continue winning ways

The Iowa men's swimming team took the No. 1 spot in the Nebraska Shootout this weekend.

By Tony Wirt
The Daily iowan

If past results are anything to go by, the Hawkeyes will not be an underdog for the rest of the year.

After a huge upset of Minnesota two weeks ago in their first conference meet, Iowa once again pulled off some magic by taking the top spot in the Nebraska Shootout, beating out national powers Arizona State and host Nebraska.

"We had an unbelievably fantastic meet," head coach Glenn Patton said. "The Minnesota meet was a huge upset, but this was even a bigger upset because it was in Nebraska's pool."

After taking out three of the top 11 teams this season, the currently unranked Hawkeyes are looking at their first top-25 rating of the year. "This feels great," Senior Marco Minonne said. "It started with Minnesota and continued with the meet this weekend. We'd better be in the top 25 right now, and that's all I've got to say about that."

Iowa won the meet with 404 points. Nebraska was a close second with 394, Arizona State had with 256 points.

Patton was pleasantly surprised with the way that his

Wrestle-offs/Juergens defeats Kritsonis at 118 myself.

 Decker chose the down position at the start of the second period and quickly escaped. He scored takedowns in the second and third periods. Uker nearly took down Decker in the final seconds of the match for a tie, but could not convert.
 The match between Decker and Uker was by far the most intense wrestle-off. Coach Jim Zalesky was impressed with the effort of both wrestlers.
 "They both wrestled maybe one of the hardest matches I've ever seen in wrestle-offs," said Zalesky, whose team is ranked second in the country. "They were really going at it."
 Decker's victory, which came despite a knee injury sustained last week, will allow him to wrestle against Luther College and UW-LaCrosse this Friday in Decora, Iowa. The wrestle-offs determine the tentative lineup, but final decisions come later.

 Four-time Iowa state champion Juergens defeated Ben Kritsonis, 11-4, at 118 pounds. Juergens had five takedowns, Kritsonis none.
 "Before I went out there, I was like, 'Geez, Louise,'" said Juergens, referring to the large gathering of spectators. "But once the whistle blew, it was just a wrestling match."
 Juergens, like the rest of his teammates, had to weigh within five pounds of his weight class. Getting to 118 has been somewhat of a struggle for the Maquoketa, Iowa, native, but he managed to cut to 123.
 "It's when I stop eating right, that (cutting weight) kind of bothers me," said Juergens, a redshirt freshman. "But I'm watching my diet pretty good."

 McGinnis' 15-5 victory over Corey Stanley was his first match in front of a crowd since the 1996 NCAA Championships, where he did not place. A former national champion at 126, McGinnis red-shirted last season in preparation for moving up two weights.
 "When you don't compete for almost a year and three-quarters ... you really don't know what to expect," Zalesky said.
 Injuries kept a handful of wrestlers from competing. Eric Koble and Jamie Heidt at 150 and Gabe McMahan at 158 were all too banged up to wrestle. They could vie for positions later in the season.
 The 10 varsity wrestlers will travel to Decora on Friday, while non-varsity team members will compete at the North-

Irish pull away to win World Cup of Golf

KIAWAH ISLAND, S.C. (AP)—Ireland's Padraig Harrington and Paul McGinley, lurking just off the lead most of week, combined to shoot 9-under-par Sunday to win the $1.5 million World Cup of Golf.
 Harrington shot a 5-under-par 67 and McGinley had a 68 at the Ocean Course, finishing with a combined total of 31-under 545. That was five strokes better than Scotland and six in front of the United States.
 Davis Love III shot a 65 to keep the United States within striking distance in the two-man team event, but Justin Leonard had putting problems and managed only a 70.
 Scotland's Colin Montgomerie claimed individual honors with his third consecutive 66, finishing at 22-under 266 to overtake the faltering Alexander Cejka of Germany.
 Montgomerie ran off three straight birdies down the stretch, holing out a 20-yard chip at No. 17.
 "It's not an official title, but it's nice to be able to win for the first time in America," said Montgomerie, runner-up to South Africa's Ernie Els at the U.S. Open.
 Ireland won for the first time in the event since 1958 in Mexico City. Harry Bradshaw and Christy O'Connor captured the trophy when it was known as the Canada Cup.

Starting nose guard Aron Klein of the Iowa football team was charged with public intoxication early Sunday morning in downtown Iowa City.
 Klein, a 21-year-old junior, was arrested at the corner of Dubuque Street and Iowa Avenue at 1:02 a.m. The Appleton, Wis., native led the Hawkeyes with eight tackles in Iowa's 31-0 victory over visiting Minnesota on Saturday.
 A two-year starter, Klein is third on the team with 66 tackles on the season.

Harlan and Emmetsburg win more trophies

CEDAR FALLS, Iowa (AP)—Harlan and Emmetsburg are going to have to get new trophy cases.
 Harlan won its seventh state title and Emmetsburg its fifth Saturday. While Emmetsburg took control early to take the 2A crown over Highland-Lone Tree 43-6, Harlan had to watch nervously as top-ranked Decora frittered away chances to turn around a 14-7 victory.
 "We hadn't given up any big plays there in the fourth quarter, so I just kept my eye on the clock, biting my lip and hoping," Harlan coach Curt Blatt said.
 The Cyclones' seven state titles, the last one in 1995, are the most by any school since the current playoff format was adopted in 1972.
 "I feel a great sense of pride to be part of a tradition," said Blatt, an assistant on the 1972 championship team.
 It was top-ranked Emmetsburg's first state title since 1990. The E-Hawks (13-0) raced to a 14-0 first-quarter lead, forcing Highland-Lone Tree (12-1) to punt after its only series in the quarter and allowing just four Raiders

TENNIS Novotna captures Chase Championships

NEW YORK (AP)—Exorcising the pain of past disappointments, Jana Novotna finally put a major tournament title on her resume.
 "Even if I don't win another match, I proved I'm the player I expected to be," Novotna said after capturing the Chase Championships Sunday by defeating Mary Pierce 7-6 (7-4), 6-2, 6-3 in the season-ending showcase featuring the tour's top 16 players.
 This victory will not erase the sting of her collapse in the 1993 Wimbledon final or her failures in the finals of the 1991 Australian Open or this year's Wimbledon. But it put to rest the notion that she is unable to win a big one.
 "I have come a long way," Novotna said. "I have made it to the final three times in the Grand Slam. Twice I came close to winning. After today, I feel I'm a great champion."
 On Saturday, Novotna teamed with Lindsay Davenport to win the doubles title, defeating Alexandra Fusai and Nathalie Tauziat and became the first player to win both titles at the same Championships since Martina Navratilova in 1983.
 Novotna earned $500,000 and Pierce collected $250,000. With the $125,000 she earned for her career earnings to $8,388,380.
 "Tennis is not only about money," Novotna said, "and that's how I always looked at it. Tennis for me was always about winning trophies, about winning Grand Slams and winning tournaments."
 Even with the loss, Pierce had her best year since winning the Australian Open in 1995. She reached the final at this year's Australian Open, won the Italian Open and was chosen the WTA Tour Comeback Player of the Year.

Michigan spoils OSU's season

Michigan's 20-14 victory over Ohio State allowed the Wolverines their first perfect season since 1971.

By Richard Rosenblatt
Associated Press

ANN ARBOR, Mich. — With a rose in his hand and a Big Ten championship hat on his head, Charles Woodson walked through the tunnel at Michigan Stadium and into the locker room.

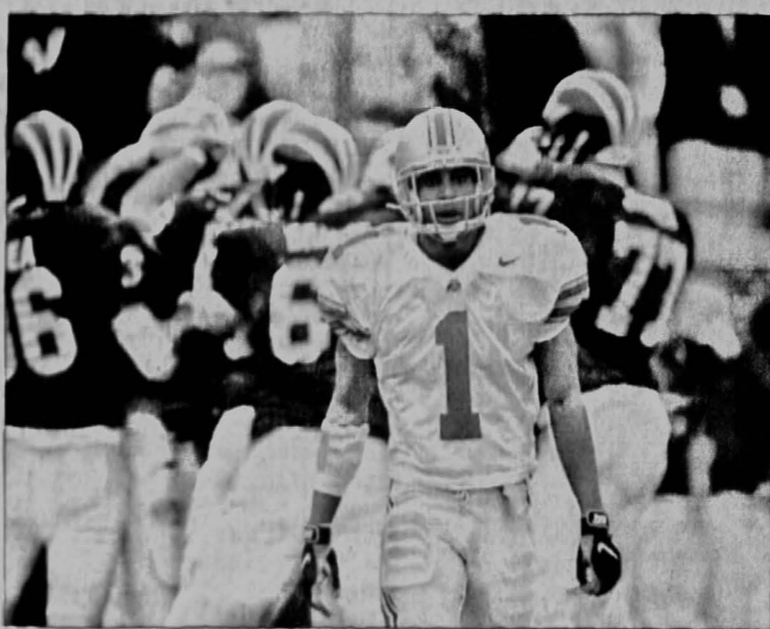

After a rousing team rendition of "The Victors," Woodson entered the interview area, sat up on the podium and held the rose aloft: "Can you all smell that?"

Woodson produced one of the sweetest performances in the history of the Ohio State-Michigan rivalry, leading the top-ranked Wolverines to a 20-14 victory over the fourth-ranked Buckeyes on Saturday.

The win gave Michigan (11-0, 8-0 Big Ten) its first perfect season since 1971 and first Rose Bowl berth since 1993.

On a grander scale, it puts the Wolverines in position to win their first national title since 1948, when they play No. 11 Washington State (10-1) in Pasadena on Jan. 1. The Cougars beat No. 17 Washington 41-35 Saturday to clinch the Pac-10 spot in the Rose Bowl.

Also, No. 2 Florida State dropped from the title chase with a 32-29 loss to No. 10 Florida, leaving Michigan and No. 3 Nebraska (10-0) as the nation's only unbeaten teams. The Huskers still need wins

Associated Press

Ohio State cornerback Gary Beery (1) walks off the field as Michigan celebrates during the closing minutes of its game Saturday.

over Colorado and Texas A&M to move into the Orange Bowl.

"For us, it's a dream season," Michigan coach Lloyd Carr said. "We never played when we didn't play hard. The chemistry has been really tremendous among these kids."

For Ohio State (10-2, 6-2) and coach John Cooper, it was another devastating defeat. The past two seasons, the Wolverines spoiled Buckeyes' bids for perfect seasons and national title shots. And Cooper's record fell to 1-8-1 against Michigan.

"I'm tremendously disappointed we lost the game," Cooper said, "because we had a chance to beat the best team in the country."

But they couldn't overcome the nation's most exciting player. Woodson stated his Heisman Trophy case with a 37-yard catch to set up Michigan's first touchdown, then returned a punt 78 yards for a score just 2:39 later for a 13-0 lead and capped the day with an end zone interception in the third quarter.

"He took over the game," Ohio State's wide receiver David Boston, who boasted this week that the Buckeyes could win by two or three TDs, said. "It was a great return. He played great defense all game long and had a great interception."

Woodson made Boston pay for his bluster.

"Basically, I was like a father to him today," Woodson said, "chastising him for running his mouth to the wrong people. He talked a lot but he didn't back it up."

Ohio State did not go down without a gallant fight. After Michigan took a 20-0 lead on Andre Weathers' 43-yard interception return for a score 4:31 into the third quarter, the Buckeyes made it close.

Joe Germaine threw a 56-yard TD pass to Boston, who beat Woodson on the play, with 4:50 left in the third quarter and Pepe Pearson scored on a 2-yard run with 13:08 remaining to make it 20-14.

But the Wolverines' top-rated defense held off the Buckeyes' high-powered offense, with Germaine throwing an incomplete pass on fourth-and-10 from the Buckeyes' 16 with 42 seconds left.

"Any time a game comes down to the end," Woodson said, "we feel our defense ought to be able to hold on for the win."

Michigan took over and ran out the clock and thousands of fans in the Michigan Stadium record crowd of 106,982 ran onto the field to celebrate the Wolverines' 16th outright Big Ten title.

"After we sang Hail to the Victors, I just wanted to go back on the field, like an encore," said quarterback Brian Griese, who joined dozens of teammates in doing just that. "I wanted to shake every fan's hand in the stands. I couldn't, but I'd say I got about 50 percent."

Michigan quarterback Brian Griese (14), acknowledges the crowd with a rose in his hand after he led the Wolverines to a 20-14 win over Ohio State at Michigan Stadium in Ann Arbor, Saturday.

COLLEGE FOOTBALL ROUNDUP

Florida knocks Florida State out of national title race

The postseason picture was cleared considerably Saturday after Michigan beat OSU, and FSU lost to Florida.

By Richard Rosenblatt
Associated Press

ANN ARBOR, Mich. — It was another nightmare for Ohio State, which had its season spoiled by Michigan for the third straight year as coach John Cooper's record fell to 1-8-1 against the Wolverines.

Fifth-ranked Florida State (10-1) has that empty feeling, too. The Seminoles' perfect season and title hopes were ended by the Gators (9-2) for the second straight year, this time by a 32-29 margin at The Swamp in Gainesville. Last year, it was a 52-20 loss in the Sugar Bowl.

The cloudy postseason picture cleared up considerably Saturday, with Washington State clinching the Pac-10's spot in the Rose Bowl with a 41-35 win over No. 21 Washington in the Apple Cup.

No. 2 Nebraska, with games remaining against Colorado and Texas A&M, is the favorite to play in the Orange Bowl, with Tennessee (9-1) the likely opponent if the Vols beat Vanderbilt and go on to take the SEC title.

The Sugar Bowl is looking at a possible Penn State-Florida State matchup, provided the Nittany Lions win at Michigan State next Saturday.

The Fiesta Bowl is hoping for an Arizona State-Syracuse matchup, with the Sun Devils (8-2) needing a win over Arizona on Friday and the Orangemen needing a win over Miami on Saturday.

Sixth-ranked UCLA (9-2) appears headed for the Cotton Bowl against No. 11 Kansas State (10-1), while No. 8 North Carolina (10-1) could go to the Gator Bowl to play the No. 2 team in the Big East, perhaps Virginia Tech.

The Citrus Bowl could match Florida against Ohio State, while Notre Dame, 6-5 after a 1-4 start, is almost certain to go to a bowl, perhaps the Insight.com Bowl in Tucson, Ariz.

No. 3 Tennessee 59, Kentucky 31
At Lexington, Ky., Peyton Manning passed for a school-record 523 yards and five TDs as the Vols beat the Wildcats for the 13th straight time. Jamal Lewis scored four TDs for the Vols, while Kentucky's Tim Couch broke his school mark with 476 passing yards, and set SEC single-season records for passing yardage (3,884) and total offense (3,759).

No. 4 Penn State 35, Wisconsin 10
At State College, Pa., Mike McQueary passed for 269 yards and three TDs and Curtis Enis ran for 138 yards and two scores, including a career-long 78-yarder. Ron Dayne rushed for 126 yards for Wisconsin (8-4).

No. 6 UCLA 31, Southern Cal 24
At Los Angeles, Cade McNown passed for three TDs as the Bruins beat the Trojans for the seventh consecutive year, but lost out on the Rose Bowl because of an early-season loss to Washington State.

The Bruins have won nine straight since opening 0-2. Southern Cal (6-5) could be headed to the Aloha Bowl, possibly against Oklahoma State.

No. 8 North Carolina 50, Duke 14
At Chapel Hill, N.C., Chris Keldorf threw four TD passes and Jonathan Linton rushed for 199 yards for the Tar Heels.

Carolina coach Mack Brown said, "If this team does not go to an alliance bowl, then the system is not working."

(AP) — Michigan is going to the Rose Bowl, while the rest of the Big Ten football teams are awaiting bowl invitations. Others bowl eligible from the conference are Ohio State, Penn State, Wisconsin, Iowa, Purdue and Michigan State.

On Saturday, No. 18 Purdue rolled to a 56-7 win over Indiana, Iowa shut out Minnesota 31-0, No. 4 Penn State whipped Wisconsin 35-10 and Michigan State got by Illinois 27-17. The regular season ends this coming Saturday with Penn State at Michigan State.

At State College, Pa., Joe Jurevicius hooked up with quarterback Mike McQueary for four catches for 101 yards and two touchdowns — one a 42-yard Hail Mary pass with one second remaining in the first half for the Nittany Lions (9-1, 6-1).

Frank Polich/Associated Press

Illinois running back Robert Holcombe (35) runs ahead of the Michigan State defense during third quarter action Saturday.

Ron Dayne, who played on a gimpy right ankle, ran for 126 yards on 30 carries for Wisconsin (8-4, 5-3).

Ed Watson rushed for 163 yards and two touchdowns at Bloomington, Ind., as the Boilermakers finished the regular season with a winning record for the first time in 13 years.

The only unfinished business now for the Boilermakers (8-3, 6-2) is a bowl bid, which also would be their first since 1984.

"It means a lot to me, my last year, that we can go winners," Watson said.

The Hoosiers (2-9, 1-7) got 342 yards passing by Jay Rodgers, a record for the 100-game series against the Boilermakers.

After losing four straight games and plunging from the rankings, Michigan State (6-4, 3-4) got by the Big Ten's worst team at Champaign, Ill., to stay eligible for a bowl.

"We're probably the best 6-4 team in the world right now," said tailback Sedrick Irvin, who rushed for 159 yards and caught a touchdown pass.

The Illini (0-11, 0-8) had their longest losing streak in school history extended to 17 games.

"It hurts right now, unbelievably," Illini QB Mark Hoekstra said.

No. 10 Washington State 41, No. 21 Washington 35

At Seattle, the Cougars clinched their first Rose Bowl berth since 1931 behind the passing of Ryan Leaf, who threw for 358 yards and two TDs. Michael Black ran for 170 yards and Chris Jackson caught eight passes for 185 yards.

The Huskies (7-4) lost their third straight Pac-10 game but appear headed for Sun Bowl against Iowa.

No. 11 Kansas State 28, Iowa State 3

At Ames, Iowa, Michael Bishop ran for two TDs and passed for another as K-State completed its first 10-victory regular season since 1910. Mike Lawrence ran for 102 yards to become Kansas State's career rushing leader with 2,265. Iowa State (1-10) has gone 6-37-1 over the past four years.

No. 13 Auburn 18, Alabama 17

At Auburn, Ala., Jaret Holmes kicked a 39-yard field goal with 15 seconds left, giving the Tigers (9-2) the SEC West title. Alabama's Ed Scissum, whose fumble led to Holmes' field goal, returned the ensuing squib kick 25 yards and a 15-yard facemask penalty brought the ball to the Auburn 40. But A.J. Diaz's 57-yard field goal attempt fell well short as time expired.

Alabama (4-7) finished with its worst record since 1957.

NFC ROUNDUP

Pack dumps Dallas

The Associated Press

The Green Bay Packers gave the Dallas Cowboys a chilly reception at Lambeau Field.

Brett Favre threw four touchdown passes and Dorsey Levens rushed for a team-record 190 yards as the Packers snapped an eight-game losing streak against the Cowboys with a 45-17 victory Sunday.

"I knew we had them when they left the field two minutes early in warmups because of the cold," said Levens, who broke Jim Taylor's 36-year-old Packers record of 186 yards rushing in a game.

Green Bay's last seven losses to Dallas were at Texas Stadium. It was a different story at Lambeau, where the Packers outscored the Cowboys 35-7 in the second half.

"I witnessed in the second half probably the best kicking the Cowboys have had in a long time," Dallas coach Barry Switzer said. "We were totally dominated."

Oilers 31, Bills 14

At Memphis, Steve McNair ran for two touchdowns and threw for a third against the one of the NFL's stingiest defenses as Tennessee kept its slim playoff hopes alive.

Buffalo (5-7) had allowed only 13 touchdowns on 36 trips inside the 20 yard line, but the Oilers scored on three of their four trips into the red zone. Only Eddie George's fumble stopped them from scoring a fourth time.

The Oilers (6-6) controlled the ball by rushing for 163 yards, including 93 in 25 carries by George, who just missed his seventh 100-yard game of the year.

Patriots 27, Dolphins 24

At Foxboro, Dan Marino threw interceptions that Jimmy Hitchcock and Larry Whigham returned for touchdowns, and Whigham got another interception at the goal line to stop a fourth-quarter comeback as New England beat Miami.

The Patriots (7-5) moved into a second-place tie with Miami in the AFC East, one game behind the New York Jets.

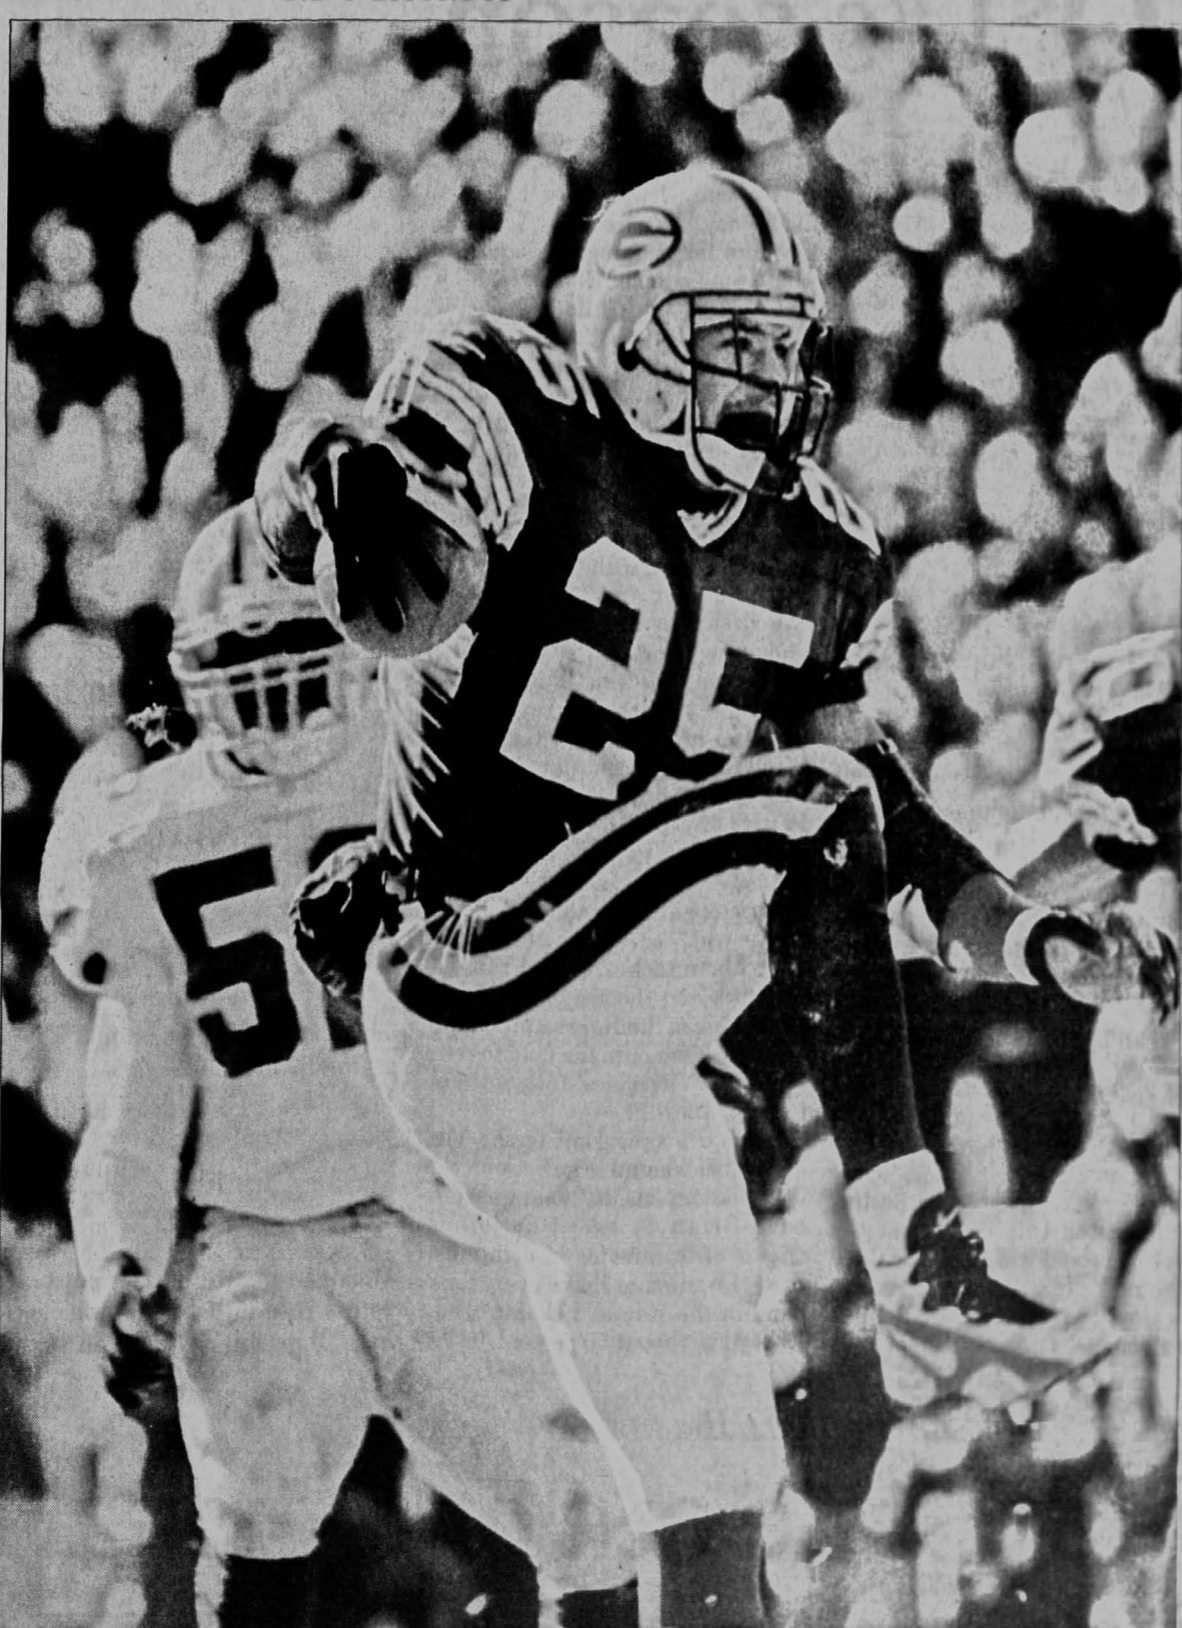

The Dolphins pulled within three points on Karim Abdul-Jabbar's third TD run of the second half with 10 seconds left. Miami then recovered an onside kick, but the game ended after two interceptions by Marino.

Redskins 7, Redskins 7, OT

After eight years without a tie in the NFL, the Washington Redskins and New York Giants played the second one in two weeks.

After an ugly overtime Sunday night in which the Redskins had three turnovers and a costly sportsmanslike conduct penalty on Michael Westbrook, the game ended in a 7-7 tie that left the Giants in first place in the NFC East.

There were 22 punts, 10 sacks and Washington quarterback Gus Ferretto put himself in the hospital by ramming his head into a wall.

Philadelphia led Baltimore 10-10 a week earlier for the first deadlock in the league since 1989.

Sunday night's tie was the first for Washington since overtime began in 1974. It was the Giants' first tie since 1983.

The result keeps the Giants (7-4-1) in first place in the NFC East, ahead of the Redskins (6-5-1) and Dallas Cowboys (6-10-0-1-6) with four games to play.

At Pontiac, Barry Sanders rushed for 218 yards and two touchdowns, including an 80-yarder. Sanders topped 100 yards for the 10th straight game and became the first running back in NFL history to score three touchdowns on runs of 50 or more yards in a season. Sanders, held to just 53 yards in his last six games, now has 1,427 with four games remaining.

George Foreman boxing after hiatus

George Foreman, the former world heavyweight champion, announced his retirement following his major injury decision loss to 25-year-old Shannon Briggs that was greeted with jeers and catcalls.

"I'm walking away," said the puncher with a paunch, who decided time for a decade and made an indelible mark in a young man's sport. "This could go on for the rest of my life, chasing young guys. Young guys should be chasing young guys."

In 1994, at age 45, Foreman became the oldest heavyweight champion by knocking out Mike Tyson in the 10th round for IBF titles.

Former heavyweight champ Foreman retires

George Foreman, 48, announced his retirement from boxing after his majority-decision loss to Shannon Briggs.

Foreman, who will turn 49 on Jan. 10, announced his retirement following his majority decision loss to 25-year-old Shannon Briggs that was greeted with jeers and catcalls.

"I'm walking away," said the puncher with a paunch, who defied time for a decade and made an indelible mark in a young man's sport. "This could go on for the rest of my life, chasing young guys." Foreman became the oldest heavyweight champion in history by knocking out Michael Moorer in the 10th round for the WBA and IBF titles.

would break that record, Foreman said, "If some guy breaks it, I'm coming back."

Then, in his best carnival barker's voice, he added, "I'm the last of the bearded ladies. Step right up."

Almost everybody but two judges thought Foreman won the 12-round fight Saturday night.

"They said Shannon Briggs won," Foreman said. "Good luck to him."

"I'm not bitter about anything," said Briggs. "He had the crowd behind him, and that's why they reacted like they did."

The reactions of most of 5,220 fans at the Trump Taj Mahal were those of dismay and anger. Ringside reporters were virtually unanimous in thinking Foreman won.

Foreman, all 260 pounds of him, pressed Briggs throughout. Briggs' movement and jab might have given him an edge, or at least had him even, after eight rounds. But Foreman appeared to control the last four rounds with punishing jabs and hard rights to the head. He hurt his 227-pound opponent in the 10th round and rocked him a few times in the last round.

Judge Steve Weisfeld, who called the fight even at 114-114, gave Foreman three of the last four rounds. Calvin Claxton, who favored Briggs 116-114, gave Briggs three of the last four rounds.

Larry Layton, who scored it 117-113 for Briggs, gave Briggs the seventh and eighth rounds and called each of the last two rounds even.

The AP scored it 116-112 for Foreman, favoring him in each of the last four rounds. Despite the loss, Roy Foreman said his brother's accomplishments were incredible.

"This has been one of the great achievements in history, in life or in sports," he said.

That might have been laying it on a bit thick, but Foreman's career unquestionably is one of the most remarkable in sports history. A street tough in Houston, Foreman won the heavyweight gold medal at the 1968 Olympics at Mexico City. He turned pro in 1969, became undisputed world champion by stopping Joe Frazier in the second round on Jan. 22, 1973, at Kingston, Jamaica, and lost the title to Muhammad Ali when he was stopped in the eighth round Oct. 30, 1974, in Kinshasa, the capital of what was then Zaire.

After being outpointed by Jimmy Young on March 17, 1977, at San Juan, Puerto Rico, Foreman said he had a vision and he retired to become an evangelist in Houston.

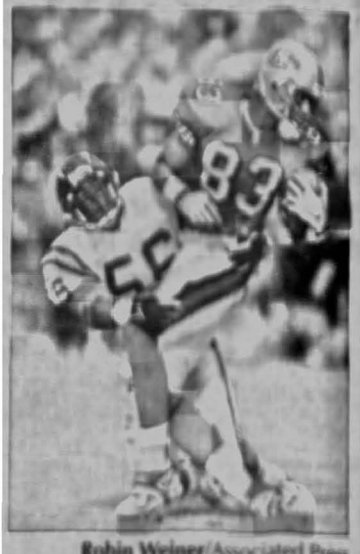

He sounded like the Rev. Foreman early Sunday when he said, "I hope that nice young man (Briggs) doesn't smoke and doesn't drink. He should go forth and lead a good life."

In 1987, Foreman began a comeback, he said, to raise $100,000 for his youth center. He has earned more than $100 million in purses and endorsements. His purse Saturday night was $5 million. Briggs got $400,000.

The Foreman who retired in 1977 often was a scowling, menacing man. The one who came back in 1987 did so with a smile and quip, especially about his waistline and love for cheeseburgers. He became a middle-aged folk hero, especially after he went the distance in losing to Evander Holyfield in a bid for the undisputed championship in 1991 at Atlantic City.

Foreman fought his way back for a title shot and cashed in by knocking out Moorer. He won a controversial decision over Axel Schulz in 1995 at Las Vegas before he was stripped of the titles for not fighting opponents designated by the WBA and IBF.

NHL's all-stars are becoming no-stars

Brian Leetch, Dominik Hasek and Chris Chelios have all had less than stellar performances so far this season.

By Ken Rappaport
Associated Press

In any given season, Brian Leetch, Dominik Hasek and Chris Chelios might be expected to play in the NHL All-Star game. They might be there again this season, though none is in all-star form.

Leetch, the top vote-getter in the first balloting by fans among defenseman on the North America All-Star team, is off to one of the worst starts of his career with the New York Rangers.

As a warmup to the Nagano Olympics in February, the Jan. 18 All-Star game in Vancouver features a new format — North American players against those from the rest of the world, essentially the best of Europe.

Leetch, who has played in six All-Star games in nine previous seasons, usually winds up leading Ranger defenseman in several categories.

This season is no different — except this time it's a negative stat. After Saturday night's game at Pittsburgh, Leetch was an embarrassing minus-17 in the plus-minus category, meaning the opposition scored 17 more goals than the Rangers when he has been on the ice in even-strength situations.

Last season, when Leetch won his second Norris Trophy as the top defenseman in the NHL, he led the Rangers with a career-high plus-31 rating.

He has been struggling on offense as well. Leetch is the Rangers' career leading scorer among defensemen with 650 points in 649 games entering the season. He has only 13 points (4 goals, 9 assists) in his first 24 games. More important, his work on the power play has not been sharp.

With the departure of Mark Messier to Vancouver, Leetch was appointed the Rangers' captain, creating some speculation the burden may have been too much for him to carry along with the defensive scoring load.

On the ice, Wayne Gretzky is the unofficial leader, usually making his presence known when the Rangers have to talk to game officials.

Hasek, the Buffalo Sabres' goaltender, is another leader in the voting. So far, Hasek has twice as many votes as his nearest competitor for the World All-Star Team, Nikolai Khabibulin of the Phoenix Coyotes. But Hasek is off to a rocky start.

Hasek, who won the Vezina Trophy as the NHL's best goaltender last season, to say nothing of the MVP award, was ranked a startling 39th among goaltenders before this past weekend.

His MVP season featured a 2.27 goals-against average, .930 save percentage and 37-20-10 record. This season, Hasek has allowed more than three goals a game and his save percentage has been under .900 all season. His 6-1 victory on Saturday against the New York Islanders was the first time he had won at home in a month. And for a change, he heard mostly cheers instead of mostly boos.

The Sabres' fans not only have been unhappy with Hasek's play, but also with his remarks last spring that led to the eventual departure of NHL coach of the year Ted Nolan.

Attendance was announced at 5,516, which was 36 fewer than the turnout for the Hurricanes' home game earlier this month against Ottawa. The latest crowd came two nights after a season-high 19,358 came out to the Greensboro Coliseum to see Wayne Gretzky and the New York Rangers, and it dropped Carolina's average attendance to 8,886 at the 21,500-seat facility.

UNI shocks Iowa State, wins 54-48

The UNI Panthers defeated Iowa State for just the second time in 22 meetings, and for the first time at Hilton Coliseum.

By Chuck Schoffner
Associated Press

AMES, Iowa — Maybe now, says Darian DeVries, Northern Iowa basketball will start commanding some attention.

Northern Iowa opened the season with a victory in a place it rarely wins, beating Iowa State 54-48 Sunday despite shooting 31 percent.

The Panthers turned the game with a 12-0 run in the second half and won for just the second time in 22 meetings with the Cyclones in Ames and for the first time in 12 tries at Hilton Coliseum.

"When we came out of every huddle, we came out as a team yelling, 'Respect,'" DeVries said. "That's what we were after. We just want people to realize that Northern Iowa is a good program."

The Panthers definitely were good enough Sunday against an Iowa State team that was loaded with newcomers.

Iowa State, which lost all five starters from a team that reached the Sweet 16 of the NCAA tournament last season, scored only 19 points in the second half and had more turnovers (23) than baskets (17). UNI took 71 shots to 44 for Iowa State and had a 21-9 edge in offensive rebounds.

"What pleased me most was how hard our kids played," Northern Iowa coach Eldon Miller said. "That's really what I worry about this time of year. We couldn't throw it in the ocean, really. Iowa State is a big part of that."

"But I thought our kids played really hard defensively. We took some of their inside stuff away from them, particularly in the second half."

Iowa State burned Northern Iowa inside early with Klay Edwards, who finished with career highs of 20 points and 15 rebounds, and burly freshman Marcus Fizer. They sparked the Cyclones to an early 13-2 lead, Edwards hitting two jump hooks and a dunk and Fizer getting two baskets.

But Fizer had no more field goals after that, Edwards got only two second-half baskets and Northern Iowa pulled ahead.

"They made adjustments," Iowa State coach Tim Floyd said. "You've got to credit Eldon for making adjustments. They did a terrific job of taking away some of the inside looks we had."

Terry Cress and reserve TyJuan Finley led the decisive run, which began after Edwards' dunk gave Iowa State a 37-29 lead with 13:15 left. Iowa State went the next 6:42 without a point and Northern Iowa stormed ahead 41-37.

"I just want it to be remembered that I played hard my whole career, every down," Dwight said after the game. "I just want to be remembered as somebody who gave my heart and soul to the game, to the Hawkeye fans and to the program."

Dwight said only time will tell if his legend will stay behind once he moves on. He said he doubts he'll be remembered in the same way as legend Nile Kinnick.

happy after the game, but he still had time to vent a little frustration. Fry complained about criticism from the media, the fans and the call-in shows that followed his team through a trying 7-4 season.

"I'm a head football coach. I know football. This is a fine football team," Fry said. "And particularly knowing how many people were injured throughout the year. And when we lost Matt Sherman, I hope some of you people finally realize how valuable Matt Sherman was."

Fry also went off on on people who criticized Iowa's schedule, which saw the Hawkeyes beat up on four lesser opponents before hitting their first big game at Ohio State.

"Somebody says, 'Well that's false stats,' because that's an easy schedule," Fry said. "Hey, I have nothing to do with that schedule. We play it. No. 1, the state legislature makes us play Iowa State every year. Are you gonna jump on the legislature? And No. 2, if I recall right, Tulsa beat us last year. Were they a gimme?"

"Then we play four games on the road in the Big Ten against the four toughest teams. Other than Penn State, but heck, I don't mind playing Penn State. If I recall right, we went into Happy Valley and beat them last year."

BANGED AND BRUISED: Running back Tavian Banks suffered an injured ankle late in the first half of Saturday's win but should be fully healed in time for Iowa's bowl game.

In fact, Iowa coach Hayden Fry said after the game that he expects his entire squad, including quarterback Matt Sherman, to be ready for the postseason.

The only player who will be unavailable will be linebacker Vernon Rollins, who tore his anterior-cruciate ligament in the third game of the season.

STATS 'N' STUFF: Tavian Banks finished the regular season with 1,639 yards on 246 carries — a 6.7 per-carry average. His career total of 2,920 yards ranks him second in Iowa history behind Sedrick Shaw (4,156).

KEY STAT: Iowa forced three turnovers and had two sacks.

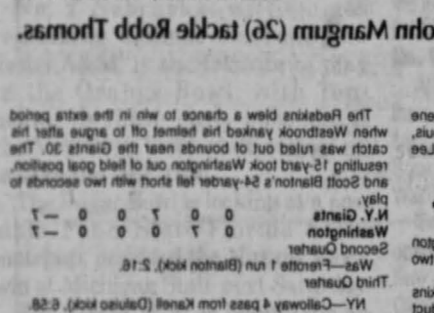

KEY STAT: Iowa's offense piled up only 29 yards on three drives before Dwight returned the punt for a score.

Iowa football/ Hawks hope for bowl

what they needed from a pride standpoint. It also should be more than enough to let the bowl scouts see what this team is made of.

"Coming out and goose-egging them 31-0 after the games they played against Penn State and a lot of other teams. That's something bowl representatives look at," Dwight said.

"I think we're a top-10, top-15 team. Hopefully we'll have a bowl game to prove that," said DeVries, who had one of Iowa's three sacks on the day.

Exactly where the Hawkeyes are heading remains up in the air, but they believe the strong points of their season make them a lock for a bowl invitation.

Dwight said a lot of teams are 7-4, but Iowa is better than its record indicates.

"I think the way we played

Coach Fry and I were talking about that on the sideline. These aren't his exact words, because he used a little profanity, but he said it doesn't matter where we're playing.

Tim Dwight Iowa wide receiver on Coach Hayden Fry's philosophy that any bowl is a good bowl.

Michigan, and even the Ohio State game. And the way we dominated some of the teams in the Big Ten, and some of the players we have," Dwight said, rattling off Iowa's strong points. "And our defense is one of the top 10 in the country, and maybe the No. 1.

"Having those aspects will hopefully show the bowl representatives that we're better than 7-4. And they're gonna get a good team coming in and playing for them."

Iowa will likely have to wait until Dec. 7 — the day after college football's regular season ends — to find out where it is invited. But Iowa coach Hayden Fry said an invitation could come at any time.

The Hawkeyes don't mind waiting. And they don't care where they're headed. They're just happy they clinched their eligibility Saturday.

"Coach Fry and I were talking about that on the sideline," Dwight said. "These aren't his exact words, because he used a little profanity, but he said it doesn't matter where we're playing."

Drehs/ Elliott's defense steps it up

seem like the shutout was unnecessary, but that was hardly the case.

Excluding a late fourth-quarter drive of 74 yards, Iowa's longest march of the game was for just 52 yards. And that drive stalled on the three-yard line, forcing Zach Bromert to kick a 20-yard field goal.

The defense created five turnovers, each of which gave the offense the ball in Minnesota territory. But scores were produced on only two of those five possessions.

Prior to last season, the Hawkeyes hadn't had a shut-out since 1992. Thanks to Elliott, the squad has now put together five in the last two years.

"I think maybe it's due time," DeVries said. "I don't want to be tooting my horn, but I think it's due time that the defense starts getting some recognition. These guys have been playing their hearts out every week."

Only three of Minnesota's 14 drives made it into Iowa territory Saturday, and the dominating performance assured Elliott squad a place in Iowa history. His group has set the record this year with fewest touchdowns allowed. In addition, they've intercepted 20 passes and not allowed a first-quarter point in 10 of 11 games.

"On paper, they are one of the top 10 defenses in the country," wide receiver Tim Dwight said. "But I think it may be No. 1 in the country."

So what is it that makes this bunch so dominating? For Iowa linebacker Matt Hughes, it's the attitude of never being satisfied. Despite Saturday's shutout win, the Iowa linebacker still thought the defense could have done more. "You can look at the total yardage and say it should have been a little less," Hughes said. "We had a couple of plays get away from us."

"We are just never satisfied. Every week we are trying to improve, and it has paid off."

For defensive back Kerry Cook, Iowa's success has centered around the coaching staff of Elliott, Chuck Long, and Bret Bielema.

"They know their players and allow them to do different things they are comfortable with, not a much what they are set on," Cook said. "And those guys motivate good as well. They've brought us where we all play together. There are no individuals out there."

In other words, the answer is simple. What defense? A damn good one.
