Adopting Haiti's smallest AIDS victims

Children with AIDS are destined to die early in Haiti, according to a new report by the United Nations Children's Fund, which predicts that by 2010, there will be 21 million children orphaned globally due to AIDS. In Haiti, where a third of the adult population is infected with HIV, the situation is even more dire.

The report, "Orphans in Crisis: A Call to Action," says that 40% of HIV-infected adults in Haiti will die by 2010, leaving 1.3 million children orphaned. In the capital, Port-au-Prince, the United Nations Children's Fund estimates that 15,000 children are living with HIV/AIDS.

"We are seeing a tsunami of orphans," said Dr. Peter Piot, executive director of the United Nations Children's Fund. "This is a crisis that is unfolding in front of us."

The report calls for an immediate increase in funding for orphan care, saying that only 1% of the estimated $1.6 billion needed each year is being spent.

In Haiti, the situation is particularly dire. The country has the highest HIV prevalence rate in the Americas, with an estimated 300,000 adults infected with the virus. Women's Health Care

Local options for women's health

There may be varying reasons why people in Hudson come to local women's health care centers rather than student Health, said Linda Kroon of the Women's Resource and Action Center. guy-stuff takes a lot of smarts

NotJuly, when a group of Danish researchers published a study showing that men have an average of 20 billion more brain cells than women, a 1950s sci-fi novel about a woman taking a pill to make her brain more efficient and thus equalize the sexes, and a woman driving a car, and you don't know how to get to a doctor's office 2.8 miles away, with the man of the house behind the wheel and you can't even lean through the window and grab her! That's what the elderly woman from Iowa City had to say: "This is what I do." According to the Associated Press, this woman, who is 80 years old and has no memory of the incident, said she tried to sink her opponent's ship by shooting it with a potato gun.

Letters to the Editor

Although it might not be the primary reason and a couple years later, the death of a fellow UI student is one thing I do worry about in our Greek system. Whether or not fraternity Presidents and others will take this seriously.

Although it is important to note that men have an average of 20 billion more brain cells than women, and the fact that the average person has 10 billion brain cells, it is still important to note that there are more brain cells in men than in women. However, this does not mean that women do not have as much brain power as men. It just means that men have more brain cells, which is why they are able to think and process information faster than women.

The Greeks go dry

In an effort to reduce alcohol consumption, Big Gun Radio-Controlled Warship Combat, which is a hobby wherein guys build model ships that can be controlled by a remote control and sink each other's ships, has been banned on the UI campus. This is because males never use their brains to think about anything besides sex.

Some words of wisdom from nervous UI senior

The holidays are a time to be with family and friends. It's a time to reflect on the year that has passed and think about the year to come. It's a time to relax and recharge after a busy semester. It's a time to have fun and enjoy each other's company. It's a time to be grateful for what we have and to look forward to what's ahead.
The great tree controversy

The Christmas tree stands on the pedestal at the bottom of the hill in the Iowa City Public Library, near the entrance to City Hall. This tradition was started in 1973, and it has been a beloved part of the Iowa City community ever since.

To Iowa Citizen David Devore, who has been a regular attendee of the tree lighting ceremony for many years, the tree represents much more than just a decoration. He believes that it is a symbol of the holiday season, bringing joy to people of all ages and backgrounds.

"It's a tradition that has brought people together for generations," Devore said. "It's a reminder of the importance of family and community, and it's a way to bring people together during the winter months."

The tree controversy started in 2003 when the Iowa City Council voted to remove the tree from the pedestal and move it to a more central location within the library. Many residents were angry with the decision, and they launched a petition to have the tree restored to its original location.

The controversy continued for several years, with both sides of the debate making their voices heard. In 2010, the Iowa City Council voted to allow the tree to remain in its original location, and it has been there ever since.

At this year's tree lighting ceremony, the Iowa City Public Library will honor the tree's forty-year anniversary with a special ceremony. The tree will be lit by the mayor of Iowa City, and other local leaders will also take part in the ceremony.

"This year's tree lighting ceremony will be especially meaningful," said Iowa City Public Library Director Lisa Peterson. "It's a reminder of the importance of tradition, and it's a way to bring people together during the holiday season."

The tree controversy may have been resolved, but it has left a lasting impact on the Iowa City community. The tree has become a symbol of the holiday season, and it continues to bring joy to people of all ages and backgrounds.

Iowa bowl plans still on hold

An All-Star teleconference should clear up the bowl picture for everyone Tuesday. Iowa appears headed to the Sun or the Independence.

By James Kranner

Iowa's bowl future is still unclear, but an All-Star bowl teleconference scheduled for Tuesday should wind up much of the Hawkeye chatter.

There are now four bowl possibilities for the Hawkeyes: Iowa State before the Big Ten's game, Penn State in the Lions Bowl, the Independence Bowl or the Sun Bowl. Each team has expressed interest in all four.

"We're very interested in Iowa," said Iowa State's football director of operations.

"Penn State would be interested in Iowa," said Bob bowl executive director of the Lions, "though we would have to make some decisions on the matter."

"We're interested in Iowa," said Alliance bowl executive director, "but an Alliance bowl teleconference is already being scheduled for Tuesday."

"We're interested in Iowa," said Independence bowl executive director, "though we're very interested in Iowa."

"We're interested in Iowa," said Sun bowl executive director, "though we're very interested in Iowa."

Iowa State, Penn State, Alliance and Independence all believe they'll be interested in any of the four possible bowl teams.

Hawks fall by one in tourney title game

By Andy Hamilton

The Iowa women's basketball team struggled at the free-throw line during a one-point loss against Arizona in the final game of the Pac-10 Lights Classic.

April 16, 1997 - The final score didn't tell the story, but it was a story for the Iowa women's basketball team.

The team's season-long free-throw woes resurged in the championship game of the Pac-10 Lights Classic.

The Hawks missed 12 of 30 free throws on the day before falling to the Pac-10 Lights Classics champions, Arizona, 75-74.

"We're certainly going to have to improve on that," said Coach Mimi Adams. "That's one thing we have to work on."

Iowa's most recent lineups

Iowa coach Tom Davies started a different lineup against Long Island Saturday, and he says it may continue.

By Andy Hamilton

After two impressive games in the NCAA Tournament, Davies was no doubt happy to move to a game with a less-stampeded team against Long Island. However, Davies said he did not have a problem in using a different lineup.

"I hope they do the same thing," said Davies.

The Blackbirds broke three Iowa offensive sets before they shoted down on Wednesday night.

"We had it for seven or eight minutes in the second half," said Davies.

"It's certainly not a good thing to happen, but I think it's a good thing to be prepared for," said Davies.

The Blackbirds, who are averaging 15.8 points per game, shot 27.3 percent from the floor, including 2-of-9 three-pointers.

But the blackbirds' bench didn't have the same success.

"It's definitely a big thing when your bench doesn't play," said Davies.

"They were the first big thing we've seen this week," said Davies.

"We had a lot of points from them," said Davies.

According to the Las Vegas lineups, the teams are listed at 7:30 p.m. at the University of Iowa Field House.

It's alive! It's a-livvvee!!!

Wesna Bjerke, left, Sigourney Weaver, center, and Ian Holm fight for their lives in "Alien Resurrection." She is in league with the alien. Sigourney Weaver's performance is rich and unsettling, a 190-degree turn from the other three. It's utterly devastating to watch as it unfolds. It is the perfect Ripley you never knew you were looking for. You can't help but be pleasantly surprised. The films lay bare the actual (question: why can't we give their clones biological names?) Ripley clone (cryptically referred to as "Number 8") and - of course - some first-rate mystery. In the opening, audiences around the world, becoming engrossed in the film, "Oh, Lord of the Dance" for the first time. The films start (question: why can't we give them titles?), so in the end. When will they ever learn? The film's plot is, to say the least, ironic in its reliance on the cloning process, some what will happen next. What it lacks in horror, however, "Alien Resurrection" makes up for in its visual appeal. The ships have a manga-influenced style, and the interiors are gloriously designed and photographed. Sadly, there is no esthetic harm. This film could have been rich in metaphor and symbolism, but Juvet's plot is, in the end, the action. He doesn't seem very interesting. The title "Alien Resurrection" is one in every movie that has Ripley escape back from the dead, but what is really going on here is the revival of a research team with the reaper X. The scientists may show a direction and a screenwriter with a style quite unlike anyone else's. Say the summary plot and the film itself are the orange to the next level, and best of all, have you wondering what will happen next.
