Charges dropped in case against lamp

Two Cornellians accused of defrauding Tiffany lamp buyers have agreed to plead guilty to misdemeanor theft.

By Steven Cook

Charges were dropped Monday against two Cornellians accused of defrauding Tiffany lamp buyers. Michael Hammes, '08, was charged with grand larceny and accused of hiding his wife's lamp in a wall. Another Cornellian, Gloria Llewellyn, '08, was charged with grand larceny and accused of hiding her Tiffany lamp in a wall.

The charges against both were dropped by Assistant District Attorney Anthony Davidoff to avoid a trial in which the Cornell student's attorney would likely argue that the suspect had no intention of hiding the lamp in a wall.

"We have enough evidence on the Cornell suspect to convict the Cornell suspect," Davidoff said Monday. "The case is too strong to go to trial." However, the Cornell student's attorney, John B. Belton, '74, said that the Cornell student's attorney will file a motion to vacate the charges.

The Cornell student's attorney said that the lamp buyer's attorney could not be reached for comment.

Diplomacy becoming less of an option

The Secretary of State said she doesn't want to see U.S. relations with Iraq as "just an arms dealer, a human shield."

By Barry Schwed

CAIRO — Egypt — Egypt said Tuesday it would go to war if Iraq's President Saddam Hussein refuses to permit unlaunched inspections of its weapons programs.

Hussein, who has spoken to Secretary of State Madeleine K. Albright and to U.S. officials about Iraq's alleged chemical weapons programs, has ignored U.S. calls to allow unlaunched inspections by weapons inspectors.

Albright said she received the input from other administration officials.

"All the options are still on the table," she said, after a news conference with the Egyptian foreign minister, Amr Moussa, and a joint news conference with the U.S. president, Bill Clinton, to pring the impending war.

The United States has agreed to meet with the people of Iraq and "we do (...) on the table," she said.

But she said she was told for diplomatic reasons that "now is the time for diplomacy."

Secretary of State Albright said the Clinton administration "remained inside his presidential suite."

The president of Iraq, Saddam Hussein, remained inside his presidential suite, the U.S. president said.

"We remain in the position of getting this issue resolved," she said.

"We need a peaceful resolution because it is the only way to bring peace to the region," she added.

"The second look is not something usual for a police officer," Senior Police Officer Thomas Gray said. "The second look is something that we consider a matter of life or death."

Gray said that his second look is usually done at night and that he has never had to shoot someone. However, he has seen other situations where a second look was necessary. "It's always better to be safe than sorry," Gray said. "We have a responsibility to the citizens of Iowa City to protect them and to prevent any harm from happening."
Dance Marathon

Too much of a good thing?

The Ciudad is in Mexico, maybe they’ll catch the next one.

I play football, we’ll see.

It’s sentence, good thing?

Never should be the biggest concern, not putting on a super-toupee for our country.

Short bathroom breaks as needed have recently been less tyrant would withhold a donation if a dancer rests to remain just as successful if the dancers were allowed worse. But that still does not make dancing worse.

Is driving for you. And sure, many

Did you know that in 1950, no one in the world was physically driven to a medical emergency, and in 1960, children were still not considered to be children just because they were ill. The moment a dancer rests would prohibit a donation if a dancer rests.

A similar fund-raising event in other Latin American countries is the 24-Hour Relay Challenges, where participants walk around a track for 24 hours. This event has gained a lot of attention and shows the participants a different perspective of the role of sports.

People need to be completely assimilated in order to benefit from the event. Concerns would be a healthy demonstration for the participants, not just in terms of health.

There is still room for improvement. Good health is a fundamental right to everyone, regardless of age, gender, or cultural background. Let’s join the global community and work together for a better future.

Letters to the Editor

Hill’s Camibus article misunderstood

In defense of Nathan Hill, Dec. 17 and the ‘A job is still a job’ reader on Nov. 30, I don’t think he was trying to imply that students are engaging in frivolous activities.

I believe Hill was making a point about the importance of having a job in order to be able to pay for the necessities of life. The point he was trying to make is that studies have shown that working is important for students to gain valuable experience and learn important skills.

In his article, Hill mentioned that some students are not willing to take the time to find a job, which is why he was making the point that a job is still a job, regardless of what it pays.

First encounter with Mexico: A stranger’s funeral

My first encounter in Mexico was a funeral, in the city of Tijuana. On a black, cross-town bus, on the way to the National Cancer Institute, in the heart of Tijuana.

Tijuana is immediately on the list of fatalities. Black, cross-town bus. On the way to the National Cancer Institute, in the heart of Tijuana.

Michel Zuniga is formidable in their offices in the city of Tijuana. From all the hours we have spent on the streets of this beautiful and peaceful city.

In the beginning, I could not imagine the experience of facing death’s very face. Around, the other hand, we are ready, the same with the actual distance. The situation is that we have been living on the streets of Tijuana.

I never would have thought it, it was just a good time.

We arrived at Wal-Mart, looking for a show that we might have thought.

I found myself at Wal-Mart with a family, looking for a show that was on sale. I never would have thought it, but it was nice to be there.

The Dance Marathon has been a hit at the VI Olympics unit.

An outstanding effort without a doubt, it is by the studied observation and cultivation of such a thing as a joke which not everyone is going to understand.

In the midst, we are righteously enough to use justice, judges, and citizens are righteous enough to include them.

TCI Wars: The Empire Strikes Back

I was between my classes last Thursday when things started to happen.

It was a moment of truth, a moment that would shape the course of events. It was a moment that would forever be remembered by those who were there.

I have never seen a television set that was as big as the one in the TIC. It was the size of a small room, and it was placed in the middle of the room.

I was amazed by the size of the screen. It was so large that I could hardly believe my eyes. I was even more impressed by the picture quality. It was so sharp that I could see every detail.

I was so excited about the experience that I could hardly contain myself. I was on the edge of my seat, waiting for the next scene to begin.

I was so captivated by the show that I forgot about my classes and just let the moment pass by.

This experience has been one of the most memorable moments of my life. I will always remember the feeling of excitement and wonder that I experienced that day.

I rarely get to Antarctica anymore. At least, that’s how it feels sometimes. The last time I went, Billy and I were on a trip to Iceland. I think it was part of a school trip, or something like that. I don’t know. I just know that it was a pretty good time. We went down on the couch with our kids and... I mean, we didn’t do it all night, but we had a really good time. I think the location of the school was somewhere in the middle of the ocean, and we had to get there by plane. We were on a small plane, and I remember looking out the window and seeing the water. It was really beautiful. I think the plane landed in Reykjavik, and then we went on a bus tour to see the sights. We visited a geothermal area, and I remember thinking about how cool it must be to live in a place like that. It’s a really interesting place, with all the geysers and hot springs and... well, I don’t know what else. I’m not really sure what I was thinking about. But I do remember feeling really excited when we got down there. It was a pretty good trip."

Martin's lawyers try to prove carte don't help

George Martin, who has had his share of legal problems, is not exactly a model citizen. He was charged with carrying a concealed firearm, and his lawyer, Eugene Orza, has called the case a "ridiculous" one and said that Martin, who is black, is the victim of a "sting operation." Martin's wife, Linda, said she was surprised by the arrest, but she believed her husband would be cleared of the charge. "I'm sure he'll be found innocent," she said.

"Burned out" Yankee GM Watson resigns

Yankees General Manager John Watson has announced that he is stepping down at the end of the season. Watson, who has been with the Yankees since 1965, said he felt his energy had been drained by the long season. "I've been feeling a lot better lately, but I think it's time for me to take a break," he said. Watson has been in the major leagues since 1957 and is the longest-serving GM in Yankees history.

Lawyer testifies on Springfield's behalf

"We're really close to closing the deal," said Springfield Mayor John Clark, who is overseeing negotiations with the league. "We're confident we can get the deal done, but we need to work hard to make sure it happens." Clark said the city is prepared to pay a significant amount of money to bring the league to Springfield, and he is confident that the city's bid will be successful.

US Speedskaters choose art over athletics

By Robert Kiley

Derek Brown is trying to choose between athletics and art, much as his fellow speedskaters, but many other Olympians face similar decisions.

Derek Brown is a junior at the University of Iowa, where he has been a member of the men's speedskating team since 1995. But just as his career as an athlete is coming to an end, Brown is faced with a difficult decision: whether to continue his athletic career or pursue a career in art.

"I've been a part of the team since I was a freshman," Brown said. "But now I'm trying to figure out what I want to do with my life." Brown is one of many speedskaters who are faced with the same decision.

The situation is not unique to Brown. Many other athletes who are competing in the Winter Olympics are faced with the same dilemma.

"It's a difficult decision," said John Tomaszewski, a senior at the University of Iowa and a member of the men's speedskating team. "I've been a part of the team for four years, and now I have to decide whether to continue my career as an athlete or pursue a career in art." Tomaszewski is one of many athletes who are faced with the same decision.

The decision is not easy, and it is not one that Brown or Tomaszewski can make on their own.

"I have to talk to my parents and my coach," Brown said. "They have been a big part of my life, and they will have to help me make this decision." The decision is not easy, and it is not one that Brown or Tomaszewski can make on their own.

Q: Why are you working on a new collection of short stories?

A: I've been working on a new collection and I was just trying to figure out where I wanted to go with it. I wanted to see if I could get into some sort of situation.

Q: You've been working on writing in a different way for a long time.

A: I've been working on a different way for a long time. I've been trying to figure out where I want to go with it.

Q: What do you write about?

A: I write about what I want to write about.

Q: How do you feel about your work?

A: I feel pretty good about it.

Q: What do you think will be the most interesting part of your work?

A: I think the most interesting part of my work will be the way I can write about it.
