Iraun, U.N. sign accord

President George Washing­ton and U.N. chancel­lor Kofi Annan met at the United Nations in New York City Wednesday to sign the accord.

The accord is designed to avoid another UN. Security Council vote on Iraq next month, which was feared by Iraqi leaders as a warning that the council would pass a resolution on Iraq's alleged weapons of mass destruction programs.

The accord was signed by representatives of the United Nations, the United States and Iraq.

Panel issues modified kindergarten requirement

(300 DPI) - A House panel voted to strip a bill that would require 3-year-olds to attend kindergarten before they could start public school.

DuPage County, March 9, 2022 - The Illinois State Board of Education has proposed a set of changes to the kindergarten reform law that was signed into law last year.

The board wants to modify the requirement that 3-year-olds attend kindergarten to ensure they have a solid foundation for school readiness.

The changes would allow school districts to determine whether they want to offer kindergarten to 3-year-olds. If a district chooses not to offer kindergarten, it would still be required to provide other early childhood education options.

The panel, which met in Chicago on Thursday, approved the changes by a 4-1 vote.

The bill was signed by Gov. J.B. Pritzker last year after months of debate in the General Assembly. It was intended to improve school readiness for preschoolers and ensure that all children have a strong start in school.

The new rules would allow school districts to decide on a case-by-case basis whether to offer kindergarten to 3-year-olds. If a district chooses not to offer kindergarten, it would still be required to provide other early childhood education options, such as preschool programs.

The board also discussed the possibility of creating a grant program to support districts that choose not to offer kindergarten.

The panel did not vote on the grant proposal, and it will be up to the board to decide whether to pursue it.

Next steps: The board will hold a public hearing on the proposed changes on April 14 and then vote on the final version during its regular meeting on April 28.

The changes will take effect on July 1, 2022, and the board wants to ensure that districts have enough time to implement them.

The board has received feedback from districts and stakeholders, and it is working to refine the proposals to ensure they meet the needs of all children.

The board is expected to vote on the final version of the changes in June.
COURTROOM REPORT

Teachin on example

The Iowa Senate sets a dangerous precedent by allowing instructors to use force against their students. Instead of setting up severe neglect for math, science or the performance arts, Iowa's public education system needs help to begin seriously intervention.

Iowa state Sen. Bill Coonrad, R-Ames, has introduced Senate File 146, which would allow school employees to use physical force in disregard of the Iowa Constitution. The idea is insurrectionary able to anyone with a grain of common sense.

Iowa's students need help, but Coonrad's bill makes a bad situation worse. This measure could result from many different forces acting on students. It's highly probable that an instructor who would attack a student's physicality would attack the student's personality.

The issue of using physical force against students is a complicated one. The question is just how to provide "guidance" to today's youth. The answer most definitely is not by using physical force.

Corporal Davis

If Corporal Davis is so entrenched in his job that many students can't approach him, the answer is not more physical force, but rather better socialization. Davis hasn't taken a team past the second round of the tournament since that great 1986-87 season, to date. Even in a recent game against Minnesota, a few close games. Corporal Davis has not taken a team past the second round of the tournament since that great 1986-87 season.

New website salutes first ladies

by Hillary Rodham Clinton

Inauguration.

WASHINGTON — Hillary Rodham Clinton, the first lady, returned to the White House on Monday devoted to the battery and the White House. Ms. Clinton is the wife of President Bill Clinton and a former senator from Arkansas. The website, www.firstladies.org, contains information about first ladies, including a collection of letters and speeches from past presidents.

The site is open to the public and includes a searchable database of first ladies' letters and speeches. The site also includes an online forum for visitors to discuss the role of the first lady and issues related to the White House.

One of the first items on the website is a letter from former first lady Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis, in which she expresses her appreciation for the work of the White House and the first lady.

"I would like to thank you for您的 help in this wonderful project," she wrote. "It is a great honor for me to be able to participate in such a noble cause.

The website also contains a section on the history of first ladies, with links to additional resources and links to websites of current and former first ladies.

In addition to the letters and speeches, the website includes a searchable database of first ladies' biographical information, including their dates of birth and death, their education and career, and their personal and political relationships.

Visitors can also search for information about specific first ladies by name, by date of birth, or by a combination of criteria.

The website is updated regularly to ensure the accuracy of the information and to reflect changes in the lives of first ladies. The website also includes a feature that allows visitors to submit their own contributions of letters, speeches, and biographical information.

The website is a project of the NationalFirst Ladies’ Library, located in Canton, Ohio, and is supported by a grant from the Ford Foundation.

"This is a great opportunity to share the stories of first ladies with the world," said Ms. Clinton. "I hope this website will be a valuable resource for anyone interested in the lives of first ladies.

The website is open to the public and is available at www.firstladies.org.

Grisham lacks talent to tackle issue of homelessness

Part of me wants to commend John Grisham for his socially responsible attitude toward his writing. With the exception of last year’s “The Partner,” an novel that was a thinly disguised appeal to his legal profession, all of his books have focused on serious issues like racism, capital punishment, the military, and terrorism. In his latest novel, “The Street Lawyer,” the book’s opening line is: “I respect his wish to transcend the genre of the legal thriller and create a work that will make people care.”

Problem is, he can’t do it.

In what is purported to be his least cable book to date, an amoral lawyer is held at gunpoint and then forced to go all out of Grisham’s territory, (and an astonishing achievement),Grisham seeks to bring those same themes and sensibilities to the page — especially lawyers. Keep in mind the author is a former citizen who gets paid about $100 per word. If he were a lawyer, he’d charge $100 per page. But instead he charges $100 per word. It’s a book before could discern this after the first 50 pages of “The Street Lawyer.”

The story begins interestingly enough, with a man in the rubber room talking to the effect of a poor black man in Washington, D.C. and holding several of the same people in a gunpoint. The man, dubbed Mr. Black, threatens to kill them at every opportunity and is labeled a “man in the rubber room.”

One particular lawyer, Michael Beck, is extra hard to the poor man’s exposure of the indifferent justice system. Beck is in a suit and tie before could discern this after the first 50 pages of “The Street Lawyer.”

Fullhart carries his weight

Iowa freshman Jason Fullhart is getting a good grip on the weight room.

He knows he's got to be in shape to play for the Hawkeyes.

Fullhart's weightlifting program is designed to help him meet the demands of college wrestling.

Fullhart's coach, Lee Brehm, says Fullhart is on the right track.

"He's doing well," Brehm said.

"He's got a lot of potential, and he's got a lot of room to improve.

Fullhart is one of four freshmen on the wrestling team.

The other three are Aaron Davis, Craig Hafey and Nick Schiek.

Fullhart weighs 190 pounds and stands 6-foot-3.

He says he wants to be 200 pounds by the end of the season.

The goal is to become a student-athlete and compete for a national championship.

By Ryan Kramer

"I want to be a better wrestler," Fullhart said.
