An upgraded cable service will be completed this year, say UI officials. But after all the cancellations and controversy, some residents remain skeptical of the service.

By Steven Cook

Over the past year and a half, TCI, the nation's largest cable company, has been under attack to disbar Iowa City residents and city officials.

Customers charge the service is not up to the level they expect, and that the company is not treating them fairly.

"It's been a tough year for us," said John Green, TCI spokesman. "But we are committed to providing the best service possible to our customers."

TCI officials say they are doing their best to listen and provide the best service possible for customers.

However, some of the complaints continue. How should the service be better?" said John Green, TCI spokesman. "I believe the service is improving, and we are working hard to provide the best service possible for our customers.

You make enough room to turn a whole set of signs around, but I keep your sign up there in plain sight and I don’t call it graffiti. I call it bushido.

It inspires you to know that you have the power to change a person. Is your idea so reckless, but is it so beautiful, too?

Inspirational bathroom reading can be found on the walls of local bars, including the Deadwood, E. D. Dunbar, and Beto's, a Deadwood employer. People walk in and out of the bar daily, but no one seems to notice what it is. We don't care as much as it looks like.

The interior decorations of the Deadwood's men's room are usually routine categories who are constantly adding in the door. Then there is a point over too.

The Deadwood servers money on the wall, but it is a talking job about once a month, and more often if something is bad. The servers really can't do anything. We're in the bathroom.

It’s a new canvas,” she said. “I probably wrote this on this side too.” I just haven’t been able to find another one.

Senate endorses .08 blood-alcohol limit

The U.S. Senate moved to raise the legal intoxication limit.

By Jim Abrams

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON - The Senate asked the members to raise the legal blood-alcohol level for drunk drivers to .08 percent or lower. The bill passed the Senate 95-4.

A majority of states have set the limit at .10 percent, but recently two major U.S. auto manufacturers have painted a grim picture of the current laws. Ford has said it will stop selling vehicles in states that don't support the .08 level.

Increased law enforcement and a tougher legal limit are expected to bring down the number of accidental deaths, according to Sen. Gary L. Hart, D-Colo., the chief sponsors of the measure.

The Senate also asked the House to pass an anti-drunken driving bill, which has been stuck in the House since September.

The current law is a federal guideline that does not have the power of a law.

In a closely watched vote, the Senate approved a sweeping anti-drunk driving measure, aimed at reducing the number of accidental deaths.

If a woman's physician advises her it is the best practice to protect her health, she should be allowed to take the pill at any time.

The bill would make it easier for women to get the pill, which is a one-time dosage, and it would allow women to take the pill up to 72 hours after intercourse.

EX-CBS News president dies at 82

The long-time journalist who was behind the scenes force behind several powerful political documentaries.

By David Sherzer

NEW YORK — Fred Friendly, the former CBS News anchor and producer who teamed up with Edward Seaga in 1969 to create CBS News's most groundbreaking documentaries, died Monday in New York. He was 90.

Friendly was a co-founder of News, which he ran as its executive producer from 1969 until its discontinuation in 1978. He then moved on to NBC News, where he served as executive producer of NBC News documentaries and specials.

Friendly was not only the backbone of the network but also a key figure in the history of television. His work at CBS News earned him five Peabody Awards, the highest honor in broadcasting.

Friendly, who was known for his dry wit and his ability to get to the heart of the matter, was also known for his demanding nature. He was a perfectionist who demanded the best from his team, often pushing them to their limits.

Friendly was born in New York City on January 13, 1922. He attended Columbia University and served in the Army during World War II. After the war, he worked for NBC News as a writer and producer before joining CBS News in 1969.

Friendly was married to the former Rosalind Klaw in 1946. They had two children, and Friendly was a grandfather.

Friendly was a member of the National Academy of Television Arts and Sciences, and the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences.

ELECTION/Recount called for in UISG election

CHICAGO (AP) — The tally of votes in the Illinois Student Government election revealed Tuesday that the incumbent president and the incoming vice president were tied, setting up a recount for student officers.

The tally showed incumbent President Scott Brown and Vice President-elect David Bruce tied with 1,330 votes each. The other candidates were Zachary White with 1,227 votes, Anthony Lee with 1,130 votes and Adrienne Harrison with 1,100 votes.

Bruce said he was not surprised by the outcome of Tuesday’s vote, given the close contest.

The results of the recount will be announced later this week.

Bruce said he was proud of the campaign he ran, and he looked forward to working with Brown and the other elected officials.

In Sioux City, a kickster can be kicked out of college for smoking marijuana—tobacco products that could kill you—and still not be fired from his job. In neither case will the Human Rights Committee be called to investigate the discrimination. The current university statement of the Sioux City Police Department is that these actions are “within the university’s jurisdiction.”

But that may change. On March 5, the Sioux City Board of Educators will consider a new policy that would require the city council to protect residents regardless of their sexual orientation in the belief that the city council is the city’s governing body. This action would be the third city in Iowa to go in this direction, making it a policy for all residents regardless of their sexual orientation.

If this is so, then we have to question if the city council is doing its job. If the city council is acknowledging these actions, then it is failing to protect its residents and is not fulfilling its responsibilities.

The Board of Educators is considering this action because of the complaints made by the parents and students who have been affected by these actions. Their eyes, hearts, and minds are opened by what has taken place in downtown Iowa City.

It is important to note that the police department has been kicked at by students and parents for their actions. The students have been kicked out of college for smoking marijuana—tobacco products that could kill you—and then not being able to get a job in town. The parents have been kicked out of their homes because they have to support their children and are not able to get a job in town.

CINCINNATI (AP) - Chris Vaughn was acquitted Wednesday of drunken driving and disorderly conduct charges brought against him by the Cincinnati Police Department.

Vaughn, a 23-year-old right-handed pitcher for the Cincinnati Reds, was charged last March after an off-duty officer found him passed out in his car.

"The Sparks were in the barn in a city, and the calsers were scaring the dog," Vaughn said.

Don King robbed in Mexico City

MIAMI — (AP) — Don King, despite his obvious connections to boxing, wanted to add one more event to his list of international contests he has sponsored.

“Don’t think ‘bigger’ is everything,” King said. “I want to see a friendly face. He (the boxer) must be a very good person.”

King, who has made a fortune from boxing, said he plans to bring the Pan-American Games to Mexico City in 1993.

But King has already been involved in the planning of a new boxing tournament to be held in the city next year.

The tournament, which will feature prominent boxers from around the world, will be held in conjunction with the opening of a new hotel in Mexico City.

In addition to the tournament, King said he plans to bring a new boxing event to the city next year, as well as a new tennis event to be held in conjunction with the opening of a new tennis stadium.

King said he has been in talks with officials in Mexico City about the possibility of bringing the Olympic Games to the city in 1996.

But King said he has not yet made a decision on whether to bring the Olympics to Mexico City.

King said he expects to make a decision on the Olympics within the next few months.

But King said he is already planning for the possibility of bringing the Olympics to Mexico City in 1996.

“We’re talking about it,” King said. “We’re talking about it.”

King said he is confident that the city will be able to handle the Olympics if they are held there.

“I think the city is capable of handling it,” King said. “I think the city is capable of handling it.”

King said he is also considering bringing the World Cup to Mexico City in 1998.

“I think it’s a possibility,” King said. “I think it’s a possibility.”

Miller calls it quits as Panthers' coach

Northern Iowa basketball coach Elston Miller resigned Wednesday after 36 years in college coaching. Miller coached the Panthers from 1962-98 and was at one time the only active member of the NAIA coaching fraternity.

Miller spent his first 10 years in journalism before becoming an assistant coach at Knox College in 1952. He was promoted to head coach at Knox in 1955 and was there for 10 years. His Knox teams won 167 games, equaled only by the World of East St. Louis in 1969.

Miller's teams also won 10 Missouri Valley Conference titles. He led the Panthers to 528 victories, second only to S. Kelly Knol's 684 and No. 1 in the NAIA Conference.

"I'm grateful to have been a part of the Missouri Valley Conference and the NAIA," Miller said. "I'm thankful to our players over the years for their hard work and dedication.

But the Spurs also have more than just a coach to consider in their free-agency negotiations.

The Spurs have two more days to negotiate with Sprewell before he becomes a free agent. The Spurs also have to consider the possibility of a contract offer from the Trail Blazers.

The Spurs have already expressed interest in bringing Sprewell back to San Antonio, but the team has been cautious in its approach.

Sprewell was acquired by the Spurs from the Golden State Warriors last season, and he played a key role in helping the team reach the Western Conference finals.

If the Spurs do decide to re-sign Sprewell, it could have a significant impact on the team's future plans.

The Spurs are expected to have a lot of money to spend in free agency, and re-signing Sprewell would give the team an experienced player to lead the team.

The UI’s new theatre “dream team” wants its debut at the Undergraduate Short Play Festival to have its audience feeling girly but good this weekend.

By Nathan Hill
The Daily Iowan

In the minuscule quarters of Thabor’s 2nd Street stages, students and faculty from Theatre, Dance, and Drama perform in a series of original, one-act plays. The festival is an open call for UI students to showcase their work, which is thenreeved by the UI Theatre’s faculty and other evaluators.

A one-act titled “The Saved,” which will run at 7 p.m. on Saturday, is one of the festival’s more interesting offerings. The play is written by UI student Ethan Lamplough and directed by UI Theatre’s student director Chris Baur.

The play is a one-act written for this festival by UI student Ethan Lamplough. It is about a terminally ill patient who is taken to a hospice to die. The patient’s roommate, an intellectual and assertive person, takes it upon himself to help the dying patient find a way to die. The play is performed by UI Theatre’s student director Chris Baur and the cast includes UI students Michael Thoman and Keri Redd.

The saved, script in hand, reading it aloud when someone asks if it’s okay.

While Thomson realistically walks among the theatre’s many black, plastic seats, she calmly explains that the space will be transformed into a dance. The show includes “Number 2,” a one-act from the “Dancing” series, from Carol Gilligan. Moss, who spent 20 years with the Baryshnikov Company and worked with Baryshnikov and Nureyev, is known for her technical expertise.

The play is called “This p.m.” and is the centerpiece of the festival. It features a scene from “Lebowski” and is performed by UI Theatre’s student director Chris Baur and the cast includes UI students Michael Thoman and Keri Redd.

FILM CHATTER

If you've been watching the prints of "The Big Lebowski," you'll have noticed that the character names are just initials. The reason is simple: "Lebowski" is a trademark on the characters, not the film. It's one of the few times when trademarking doesn't work in your favor, but here's how to fix it: the lebowski is written with an "I" in the middle. And yes, the director is also written with an "I," just like in the middle of the film. So if you're wondering why the director's initials are both I's, it's because it's a nod to the film. "Lebowski.""

80 Hours The Back

Rantings 'from and inspired by' bad soundtracks

When Tim Robbins was in the process of making "Dead Man Walking," he had his musical director, who also happened to be a select group of extremely talented arrangers, Mary Chapin Carpenter,田鼠 Tonic, just to name a few - and had them watch a cut of the film. The arrange on from that experience - and encore who has seen the film believes that it is a powerful one.

The director's tale. A perfect example. Few of the songs actually made it into the film, and it's shocking that any of the songs were allowed to end the film in their original form. If they had, I would hope that many of the artists would have refused to do anything to that pain of crap. Eventually, they even did a re-recording for songs for scenes that weren't in the film.

This is a long way from the original "Batman," but that went one step further than "Dead Man Walking," and allowed Prince to record several songs, and then record several pieces actually dealing with the subject matter of the film to fill out the rest of the film. The album was released, and it was a hit. Of course, it reaped the rewards of the album.

Elliott Smith complained at the time that many record labels were wanting to buy his music, but ended up buying Prince's piece because his wasn't out yet. The question arises as to why the producers didn't record the songs that were in the film, and it's shocking that any of the songs were allowed to end the film in their original form.

For all of these "inspired by" songs, I do not have a huge movie music staff, but they probably wake up a quarter of my CD collection, but the songs are getting better and better.

A child's mother refused to buy me the "Star Wars" soundtrack until the largest-selling album of any purely orchestral music of all time - something like the original, "The Planets" by Holst, which is the strikingly similar piece, "The Planets" by Sibelius, which I have found out was a big inspiration for John Williams' work in "Star Wars." Eventually, I did get the real thing, and many others, but lacking it's hard to find scores by anyone but John Williams, thanks to these songs "nurtured" by... you know what I mean.

"Titanic" might have been Id, as "Star Wars" did 10 years ago. The soundtrack has been at the top of the charts, much like in movie counterparts, for weeks. That's a good thing. This might just get a Hallmark card or two to get mailed out, but hopefully, someone actually takes time to listen to the music and realize why it's good.
