Chinese student remains upset after Monday's lectures

A Chinese student remains upset after Monday's lectures, despite an apology from Professor Steven Xu, who said he did not mean to offend students.

The student, surnamed Ren, said he was upset by Professor Xu's comments about China's treatment of minorities.

"I feel very upset," Ren said. "I think Professor Xu's comments were inappropriate and disrespectful." He added that he had not intended to offend anyone, but that he was upset by the comments.

Professor Xu, who apologized in front of the class, said he had made a mistake and that he was sorry.

"I apologize to the students," he said. "I did not mean to offend anyone." He added that he had made a mistake and that he was sorry for his comments.

The incident has sparked a debate about free speech and the role of universities in promoting diversity.

Astronomers lament cell phone jam

Astronomers have been complaining about the increasing use of cell phones in observatories, saying it is disrupting their work.

"We have had to stop using our telescopes because of cell phone interference," said Dr. John Smith, a senior astronomer at the observatory.

"It's a real problem," he said. "We have had to stop using our telescopes because of cell phone interference." He added that the problem was getting worse and that it was affecting their work.

The problem is becoming more serious as cell phone use increases, with many astronomers saying they are forced to stop using their telescopes.

"It's really frustrating," said Dr. Smith. "We have had to stop using our telescopes because of cell phone interference." He added that the problem was getting worse and that it was affecting their work.

Wiley goes before grand jury

Former Iowa City police officer Wiley will go before a grand jury on Wednesday to answer questions about his role in the investigation.

Wiley is accused of lying to investigators and obstructing justice.

"We're really hoping to clear his name," said his attorney. "He's been exonerationed by the grand jury, we believe." He added that the grand jury would hear evidence and decide whether to indict Wiley.

Iowaans still digging out from the weekend’s frigid winter storm

By Holly Coffin

The weather is supposed to be warmer by Thursday.

Road crews began making progress Tuesday knocking down trees that have blocked many Iowa roadways because of another snowstorm in the region.

"A lot of people, even though they may not have stuff like that, are like a lot of people that are stuck," said Nanne Hansen, the Clarke County Attorney.

"It’s really hard to get out because of the snow," she said.

Hansen and other Dallas County attorneys dealt some of the biggest challenges getting around in the area. Those in Waukee knocked down trees on Tuesday in each direction, but many roads remained impassable because of the snow.

Numerous county roads in central, north-central and northeast Iowa were declared disaster areas and equipment could be sent in to clear roads, Hansen said.

"There’s only so much they can do," she said.

Numerous county roads in central, northeast and northwest Iowa were closed because of the snow.

"There are some of my happiest memories of growing up because when we would be stuck in, that’s when we would play poker and play games and eat things, she said.

"We grew up and had a farm and would make bread and bake cookies and make soup or whatever, as I’ve been trying to do that same thing with my children the past few days," She said.

Hunters, activists argue about seal trade

- Seal pepperonini and care-almost-anything-seal-oil pills are part of the new strategy.

- Seal hunters from Patio Harbor, in Newfoundland, three seals crossed on the ice before abandoning them, in this 1985 file photo. Weary of being labeled "Sea Hunt"ers and killers, Canada's seal hunters are fighting back with a slick marketingleave campaign to tout products made from a by-product of a by-product of the ancient Inuit subsistence hunt.

- The government launched a publicity blitz on Monday featuring a slick new website, ads and radio and TV spots, all intended to help support its point that the seal hunt is a subsistence hunt for Inuit hunters.

Prosecutor: McKinney abused power to seek sex

COURT BRIEFS, By Laurence Stiffnall, Associated Press

A Virginia prosecutor accused a former Army colonel of sexually assaulting a woman in 1997, saying he had abused his authority as an officer to force her to submit.

An investigation by the Virginia Aviation Board found that the former colonel, who at the time was the assistant chief of the National Guard, violated state law by requiring a woman to perform sexual acts as a condition of her employment.

The former colonel, who is now a member of the Virginia Aviation Board, has denied the allegations.

Broadway producers and pit musicians on the outs, strike possible

Curtis Oddi, Associated Press

Talks aimed at averting a strike by Broadway pit musicians broke down Saturday, with both sides not budging from their respective positions.

Producers say they will not give in to the union's demands for a raise, while the musicians say they will go on strike if the producers do not give in.

The strike could be avoided if both sides agree to compromise, but the producers say they are not willing to give in to the union's demands.

Farmers want the beans - sans pork

Pork producers say they observe a lean image.

- Egg products are a primary ingredient in many breakfast dishes, and the Iowa Pork Producers Association has been working to change the public's perception of pork.

- The association has launched a campaign to promote pork as a healthy, nutritious food.

- The campaign includes TV and radio ads, as well as social media posts, featuring recipes and health benefits of pork.

- The association also works with restaurants and grocery stores to promote pork as a healthy option.

- Pork producers say they are committed to improving the public's perception of pork, and they are making progress.

- The association's efforts have led to an increase in pork sales in recent years.

- Pork is a good source of protein and is rich in nutrients such as vitamin B12, zinc and selenium.

Albanian Kosovo Liberation Army attacks unrest in Yugoslavia

By Danus Gjonaj

RESALE, Yugoslavia — The white-shirted, Russian-influenced soldiers of the KLA — referred to as KOSOVA — opened fire on a crowd of about a thousand local Albanians.

Suddenly, two masked men emerged from the village, where they had been staying the previous night. The police claimed that the masked men were local officers, sent to the village in order to maintain order.

But local residents say that the masked men were members of the KLA in disguise.

The police and the KLA reportedly clashed again, leaving two police officers and at least six civilians wounded.

The United Nations said the Albanians were involved in yet another clash with Serb forces, trying to prevent them from being expelled from their homes.

The four policemen who were wounded died of their wounds, and one of them was a Russian in uniform for the past two months. The area in the northern province of Kosovo has been a virtual no-man’s land.

Albanian Kosovo Liberation Army officers said they were involved in a coordinated attack on a village near the town of Culina.

About 30,000 Albanians attended, in one of the biggest demonstrations against Serb rule in Kosovo in recent years, the area in the northern province of Kosovo has been a virtual no-man’s land.

The EU and the United Nations say they hold ethnic Albanians in Yugoslavia in order to "liquidate" their problem.

Miami elections: This looks like a job for an ex-president

The good news: A judge has ordered a new state election for a Miami-Dade school board seat. The bad news: The court will have to hold its nose in the air as it has done many times before.

The ex-president's name: Bill Clinton.

That's no coincidence. Clinton is well-versed with the specifics of the election he is coming to town to oversee.

While in office, Clinton signed a law that created a five-member board to run the nation's largest school district. The law was designed to take politics out of the schools.

But those who have been watching the election closely know that it has been anything but apolitical.

The race features several candidates, including current board member David Baril, who is seeking to be re-elected.

The election, which was set for March 15, has been marred by accusations of fraud and irregularities.

Clinton's presence is expected to bring a greater level of legitimacy to the process, as he is known for his commitment to education reform.

In fact, Clinton has been a vocal advocate for education issues throughout his career, and has been involved in many school-related initiatives.

His involvement in the Miami-Dade election is likely to be a major topic of discussion when he arrives, as many people are interested in seeing how he plans to address the challenges facing the schools.

In addition to politics, the election is also being viewed as a test of the newly developed Florida school board system, which was created in response to the 2000 U.S. presidential election.

The system is designed to ensure that elections are run smoothly and that the results are accurate.

Clinton's presence is expected to add to the legitimacy of the system, as people will see him as a neutral third party who is committed to fair elections.

Overall, the Miami-Dade election is shaping up to be a historic event, with Clinton's involvement adding to its significance.

Malone to carry gun after receiving death threat

Iowa basketball player Taj McWilliams-Franklin said Thursday he will begin carrying a handgun for protection.

McWilliams-Franklin told the Des Moines Register he was carrying the .40-caliber handgun for security reasons.

"I am not doing this out of fear, but out of security and safety," McWilliams-Franklin said.

In recent months, Iowa has had several incidents that involved gun violence.

Last Sunday, a student was killed in a shooting at the University of Iowa's main campus.

Last month, a man was shot to death in the parking lot of Iowa's Scott Gym.

In December, a student was shot to death in the neighborhood near Iowa's Carver-Hawkeye Arena.

McWilliams-Franklin said he realized the gun could be controversial, but he said he was educated about guns and gun safety.

"I don't want to be a hero, but I want to be a survivor," he said.

Early run propels Bulls past Miami

Michael Jordan and Alonzo Mourning weren't exactly "buddy-buddy" toward each other in the game.

By Mike Dzielak

CHICAGO — Alonzo Mourning cannot see a day when he wants to coach against Michael Jordan, but he might have to if he's named the Bulls' next head coach.

"It doesn't matter what Zs do. Zs don't have much ball-handling problems to worry about," said Jordan, who scored 37 points for the Bulls in a 105-93 victory over Miami Wednesday night.

Mourning, who had 21 points but couldn't keep Miami's 10-game road winning streak alive, said: "I feel bad. I have to let that one go. We've got a good club and have a lot of faith in each other." He then spoke in his native Creole.

"We got a good club and have a lot of faith in each other," said Mourning, who had 21 points but couldn't keep Miami's 10-game road winning streak alive.

"I'm proud of our guys," Jordan said. "I'm proud of our defense. We've got a lot of confidence in our defense and our offense." Jordan also scored 38 points in the Bulls' 105-93 win over Miami.

Only six schools needed to make up the AP All-America team for the season, and the University of Kentucky in Lexington, Ky., was the top vote-getter on the year. The Big Blue's guards Mike Bibby, Arvydas Sabonis, Sergio Sesay and Doug Christie, forward solving coach Bob Knight had a slow start and then sharply criticized the game. Bibby followed a sensational freshman season by averaging 17.2 points a game and 4.4 assists for the defending champion Wildcats. He led the team in scoring with 171 points.

Barrett joined Dana Ford in making the first team for the

Espn sparks new interest in sales’ scoring record former Iowa women’s basketball coach C. Vivian Stringer will bring her Rutgers team to Iowa for a game on Wednesday, March 14, 1995. The game will be part of the Big Ten tournament, and it will be the first time the two teams have met in the conference.

Stringer, who led Rutgers to three NCAA tournament appearances and a berth in the Sweet 16, returned to Iowa for the first time since she left the Hawkeyes in 1992. She said it will stand by the box score that says she scored 33 points against Michigan State in the 1991 tournament. That was the record-breaking performance, setting the stage for executive editor of The Magazine, the university has the final say, Stringer said.

Dostoevsky slacker

After reading selections from his new book, "An Underachiever's Diary," William Anastas was asked why he became a protagonist who never transcends his status. "The basic character, William, spends most of his time reading, taking baths, and listening to music," said Michael Connolly, CEO of the Bookstore. "The world is a place of monotony, and William is a symbol of that.""An Underachiever's Diary" is part of the "Two Guys, a Girl and a Pizza Place" series and is set to be released on March 15.

"An Underachiever's Diary" by Benjami

The literature review was conducted by Michael Connolly, CEO of the Bookstore. "The book is a collection of short stories about the life of a high school student named William. He is a social outcast, and the stories follow his daily life, which is filled with boredom and frustration." The review also mentions that the book was well-received by critics and is expected to be a best-seller.

A familiar slice of life

"Two Guys, a Girl and a Pizza Place" hopes to attract twentysomethings with a familiar set

By Frances Moore

NEW YORK — Maybe pizza makes the difference. In any case, this week marks the return of a show that shares a minor similarity to "Friends." And it's no exaggeration to say that fans are rushing to the guitar to watch the show.

On May 1, "The Guys, a Girl and a Pizza Place," the series returns to television at 8 p.m. on "House Rules," and No. 6 at 7:22 on "Worldwide S DOUG.

Catch both these programs and you'll be receiving a sitcom that strikes at the heart of young adults with the same uncanny precision.

In each case, three guys live in the world together as young adults. One girl is a house-slacker-dreamer who really needs it, as Jo Ann Beard suggests in "Boys of My Youth." The other is a hipster who never goes out with anyone and is engaged, as Frazier Moore suggests in "Smart Guy Wayans." And the third is a baby boomer who never seems to turn a hair, as Williamdown makes in "Lights, Benjamin Anastas." The story of the "Two Guys, a Girl and a Pizza Place" is set in a world where friends are the only family.
