Four girls and a teacher were killed in an Arkansas school shooting; two middle-school-aged boys arrested.

By Jesay Price

JONESBORO, Ark.—Two boys apparently opened fire today at their high school here, killing five people and wounding 11 others, police said. The two boys, ages 13 and 15, had been suspended from school last month when they were caught during a break for being in a closed area on campus. No suspect had been identified as of this morning, police said. The shooting occurred when the two boys opened fire at 7 a.m. in the school's main entrance, police said. At least 13 people were killed and 21 people were wounded, police said.

Despite efforts to reach the students, police said, the two boys refused to come out of the school. The shooting occurred during the school day, police said. The school was on lock-down, police said.

Portable phone popularity proliferates

Not only are cellular phones growing in popularity, but there are now three types of phones to choose from:

By Ana Sorm

Whether for function or fashion, most UI students have been living cellular phones in their daily lives. Although there are no official records kept for each student, Cellular Phone Co., one of the largest cellular phone dealers, has noted an increase in the number of cellular phones sold in the last six months. According to one Cellular Phone Co. employee Ed Edelstein: "I'm not sure how many phones there are, but I do know that more and more students are using them."

A recent study by the U.S. Census Bureau shows that the number of cellular phones in use has increased by 25% in the past year. The study also found that the number of cellular phones sold in Iowa has increased by 30% in the past year.

There are three types of cellular phones, each with its own unique features:

1. A basic cellular phone, which is the most popular type of phone. These phones are relatively inexpensive and are often used for basic calling and texting. They are also the most portable phones, as they can be carried in a pocket or purse.

2. A digital cellular phone, which is more expensive but offers more features. These phones are used for both calling and texting, as well as for accessing the internet, taking pictures, and playing games. They are also more powerful than basic cellular phones and can be used for longer periods of time.

3. A smartphone, which is the most expensive type of phone. These phones are used for both calling and texting, as well as for accessing the internet, taking pictures, playing games, and even for making payments. They are also the most powerful of the three types of phones and can be used for longer periods of time.

A primary consideration when buying a cellular phone is cost, which can range from $50 to $500 depending on the type of phone.

Ring the college students with cellular phones. For example, if you call a dorm room at night, you may not hear the ring tone because the phone is not in the room. If you call a dorm room during the day, you will probably hear the ring tone because the phone is in the room.

If you are a college student, you may want to consider getting a cellular phone. They are relatively inexpensive and are often used for basic calling and texting. They are also the most portable phones, as they can be carried in a pocket or purse.

UI Senate votes down academy

At a teaching academy proposed to bring professors from different disciplines together was quashed at last night’s Faculty Senate meeting.

By Steven Cook

One of the chief advocates of a new UI teaching academy called the proposal’s defeat “a blow to the fabric of the Faculty Senate’s meeting.

Arbrosa McCulley, chair of the Faculty Senate Council on Teaching, presented the proposal to the full Senate and tried to answer the many questions.

Senate members were misused about many parts of the proposal. Some members were concerned that the academy would create a group of elites among the faculty.

“A group doesn’t make a person elitist,” the professor makes themselves elitist,” he said.

Under this plan, professors who will later, according to the chancellor, will not be classroom observers, will not have portfolios and highlights research on teaching and warning.

The proposal received a warm response in front of the Faculty Senate Council March and virtually unanimous.

The Senate decided to vote down the proposal and to discuss the ideaoo of an academy.

Furor rises over Rodham Clinton privilege

Low experts say executive privilege doesn’t stretch to the first lady

By Nancy Bens, Associated Press

WASHINGTON - Legal scholars are worried about the implications of releases Tuesday that appear to respect James Earl Ray's executive privilege when he refused to answer questions about the King assassination.

"This is a step too far," said Jonathan Turley, a law professor at George Washington University and a frequent litigation witness at impeachment trials. "The first lady is not the president. If the president has a legal right to assert executive privilege, the first lady does not." Turley acknowledged there will be "some wiggle room" for the president to ask for a lawyer to use the privilege but said, "I don't think there's going to be a lot of wiggle room." Turley said the president's decision to use executive privilege was "absolutely bizarre, especially with regard to communications that took place before he had leadership of the state of Tennessee." Turley also said that the White House refused to allow Ray to testify before a Senate committee investigating the assassination of Martin Luther King Jr.

Sen. Sam Nunn, D-Ga., said the administration would be wrong to use executive privilege in this case. "Executive privilege is a privilege for the president," he said. "It is very tempting to say that the president should have used executive privilege but I think that the president is now in a bit of a bind. It's not clear how he can escape the public pressure to do so." Turley said the administration's decision to use executive privilege was "absolutely bizarre, especially with regard to communications that took place before he had leadership of the state of Tennessee." School Shooting

I was sick to my stomach.
This is not a problem that is limited to any specific area. It can happen anywhere. There are too many guns out there, and they are too easily accessible.

Marc Mannes, director of the School Shooting Foundation

I'd be very shocked if it happened here, especially at the school my kids go to. It's not such a small, tight-knit elementary school. I really would see it happening here.

STAFF CELEBRATION DAY
Staff Showcase and Poster Fair
co-sponsored by Staff Council and the Office of Staff Development
Wednesday, June 3, 1998
Main Lounge, Iowa Memorial Union
3:00-6:00 p.m.

The Staff Celebration Day is in recognition of the important contribution staff make to The University of Iowa. Included in the day's activities is the Staff Showcase and Poster Fair. This is an opportunity for staff to exhibit their work in the areas of research, instruction, and/or service. Last year, there were over 55 entries from across campus and over 800 University community members attended the event.

If you are interested in participating this year or would like more information, please call the Office of Staff Development at 335-2687 to request an application.

ATTENTION STUDENTS!

Are you looking for ways to get involved?
Need some hands on experience for your résumé?
Well here’s your chance...

The University of Iowa Student Government (USIG) would like you to apply for the following committees:

• Academic Computer Services
• Concerned about computer needs and service on campus? What do you think we need?

• Parking and Transportation
• Do you have an opinion about parking?

• Recreational Services
• Would you like to advise on the fees, schedules, and rules for all University rec facilities?

• Research Council
• Does research interest you? Advise the VP of Research on local and national research proposals.

• Student Health Services
• Would you like to coordinate the work and direction of Student Health?

• University Safety and Security
• How do you feel about safety issues on campus? Work with Public Safety on a variety of issues.

Iowa Memorial Union Advisory

• What do you think about the IMU? What do you like? What changes would you like to see?

• Computer Fee Advisory
• What does your computer fee bring to you? Would you be interested in helping to shape it?

• Human Subject Review Advisory
• Would you be interested in forming policy concerning the use of human subjects?

*Applications are available in room 145 IMU and are due back by 4pm on April 3rd.

The government's desire to take away veterans' benefits for smoking in hypochondria.

• For years, scientists have been researching the effects of smoking on the body. However, the government has been reluctant to implement any laws that would take away veterans' benefits for smoking. This is causing a rift between the government and the veterans community.

• The government's motives for taking away veterans' benefits for smoking are unclear. Some believe it is a way to reduce healthcare costs, while others argue it is a form of discrimination against those who served our country.

SPRING REVITALIZATION

April's busting out all over

Spring has sprung in Iowa City, but can you really tell?

WHILE March 20th, the vernal equinox, marked the official start of the new season, it certainly didn't feel like spring in Iowa City. A miserable and melancholy day settled in from the beginning of the week and it seemed as though the winter wasn't going to end any time soon.

Order was restored, though, and we were able to enjoy some sunny days and mild temperatures. This prediction without much hope for rain brought me back to a story I had been working on for quite some time. The weather is, in fact, dramatically different when it rains in the spring. The sun begins to shine and the grass begins to grow. People seem more active and their moods improve.

I knew I would be in for some more interesting stories if I just waited. So I spent the day hanging out with a group of people who were constructing mud-cast sculptures out of hay and straw. The weather was cold, and there was nothin' but a feeling of nostalgia. What a beautiful way to spend the day.

VIEWPOINTS

Viewpoints

To the editor,

I would give the best Oscar to Matt Damon for the film Good Will Hunting. Damon brought a raw, honest, and believable portrayal of Charlie that was both poignant and frightening. His performance was a standout in a film that dealt with heavy themes of addiction and family. Damon should be proud of his work and deserves recognition for his talent.

Alfonso Richards

I would give the best picture to "Good Will Hunting," which was a heartwarming story that resonated with audiences worldwide. The film's message about the importance of help and support in times of need was timely and relevant, and Damon's performance was a true masterpiece.

REVIEW SPOTLIGHT

"Good Will Hunting" review

This film is about the power of friendship and the importance of having someone to turn to when things get tough. It's a story about a boy who has been through a lot and is struggling to find his place in the world. His friend, who has been there before, helps him through the tough times and teaches him valuable life lessons.

The film is directed by Matt Damon and stars him in the lead role. The chemistry between Damon and the rest of the cast is amazing, and the script is well-written and thought-provoking.

I would give Damon the best actor award for his performance in this film. He truly gave a heartfelt and moving performance that left a lasting impression on the audience.

An accessory for the millennium 'Communist Manifesto' on Madison Avenue

The revolutionary book has become holder for avant-garde accessory.

By Vernon Brinton

NEW YORK — You've come a long way, Marx. The former revolutionary now appears on Madison Avenue. His book, "Communist Manifesto," is being marketed as an accessory. A $13.95 bag, designed by a Japanese designer, comes complete with a case bearing the "Communist Manifesto." The bag is a "statement piece," says the designer, and is marketed as a "bespoke" accessory.

The bag, which will be on sale this spring, is a nod to the book's enduring popularity. "Communist Manifesto," written in 1848, is still a bestseller. The book's ideas have influenced a wide range of political movements, from the Russian Revolution to the Cuban Revolution.

"The bag is a way for people to express their support for the ideas in the book," says the designer. "It's a statement of solidarity with the ideals of the communist movement."

The bag is made of a durable, high-quality material and features a zipper closure. The case, which includes the book, is made of a leather-like material. The book itself is a reproduction of the original 1848 edition.

The bag is expected to be popular among those who are interested in political activism and those who want to make a statement about their political beliefs.

Glimpse at the Globe

T he globe is a symbol of the world, representing the idea of unity and peace. In the context of the message, it is used to emphasize the importance of global cooperation in addressing the challenges faced by the world.

The logo shown on the left side of the globe is a representation of the United Nations. The UN is an international organization that works to promote peace, development, and human rights.

The message "Together we can make a difference" encourages people to work together towards a common goal. The phrase "One World One People" further reinforces the idea of unity and togetherness.

The image of the globe with the message "Together we can make a difference" is a powerful visual representation of the importance of global cooperation in addressing the challenges faced by the world.

Championship strategy:

Champions are born on December 1. Every team has its own blueprint for success, but there are certain universal strategies that are often employed by winning programs.

1. Team Chemistry: A successful team, whether it's in basketball or any other sport, needs strong interpersonal relationships. Players must be able to communicate effectively both on and off the court. They need to trust each other, respect each other's abilities, and be willing to make sacrifices for the greater good.

2. Scouting: Every team has a playbook and a game plan, but the best programs are those that study their opponents thoroughly. This might involve watching game films, analyzing statistics, or even conducting interviews with players and coaches. By understanding their opponent's strengths and weaknesses, a team can design plays and strategies that exploit those weaknesses.

3. Defense: Defense is often the key to winning. A team that can shut down its opponents can gain an advantage in a game, especially when the offense is struggling. This might involve pressuring the ball handler, communicating well on the court, and making intelligent rotations to stop the opposing team's best players.

4. Leadership: A leader can make all the difference in a championship game. The best leaders are those who can step up when the team needs them most, whether it's during a timeout, a critical moment in the game, or a personal challenge. They need to be able to marshal the team's energy, motivate their teammates, and make difficult decisions.

5. Mental Toughness: Championship teams are made of players who can handle pressure and perform under the spotlight. They need to be able to stay calm, focused, and resilient in the face of adversity. This might involve visualization exercises, pre-game rituals, or simply having a strong belief in oneself.

6. Reputation: The best teams earn respect from their opponents and from the fans. When a team is known for being tough, disciplined, and determined, it can gain an advantage in a game, especially when the other team is intimidated by its reputation. This might involve a strong work ethic, a high level of intensity, or a history of success.

7. Experience: The best teams are those that have been around the block before. They have learned from past losses and have the wisdom to avoid making the same mistakes again. This might involve veterans who have been on the championship stage before, or a young team that has the confidence and fire to compete at the highest level.

8. Luck: Sometimes, luck plays a role in a championship game. A team that can make the most of its opportunities, whether it's dropping a critical free throw, making a late three-pointer, or avoiding a foul-trap, can gain an edge over its opponents.

9. Team Size: The best teams are those that can outsize their opponents. This might involve having taller players, a more physical style of play, or simply being able to dominate the boards and the paint.

10. Staying Power: The best teams are those that can endure a long game. They need to be able to play 40 minutes of basketball without losing their energy or their focus. This might involve having a deep bench, or a team that can adjust its style of play to match its opponents.

He’s got a lot of talent.
Tom Davis
Former Iowa wrestling coach
and 1972 Olympic gold medalist

The first thing Williams will have to do is prove he belongs in the 158 range. At 167, he said, "I think it is going to be a little easier getting in shape and then we will have a chance to wrestle some of these loosen races over the year." Williams plans to be top three there, as well. "I’m going to be around here for another six weeks or so to ready for the Olympics," he said.

Gable plans to step up his involvement with the Williams says his former coach, 1972 Olympic gold medalist Dan Gable, will be in his corner. According to Williams, Gable will be the one to hone the young wrestler’s skills.

Joe Williams is a shining prospect for the Olympics, said Dan Gable, Williams’ former coach. "He’s got a lot of talent," Gable said. "Joe Williams has the ability to be a medalist. If he would be."

Both Joe and his former coach have high expectations for the future of this young wrestler. "Joe Williams is a shining prospect for the Olympics," Gable said. "He’s got a lot of talent."

The business of bootlegging has continued to thrive despite its illegal status.

By Ben Smith, manager of S&O

Compact Discs & Records, 6-1/2 It is Friday. "In Iowa, there may be a few stores selling bootlegs, but I know there are phone sellers and underground people selling bootlegs," Smith said. "It's not a business that can be found online. It's all face-to-face, and it's been going on for three times more than normal.

But bootlegging -- the practice of selling recordings of new music before they're officially released and featuring colorful covers -- continues to draw die-hard fans despite its recent bootlegs has also served to curb bootlegging.

"Having only one store to get them," Smith said. "I know there are places selling lots.

Many stores are willing to take in your favorite

"It's a huge business," Smith said. "And I know there are places selling lots.

The quality is almost as good as studio recordings," Smith said. "I know there are places selling lots.

Recent bootlegs have helped local record stores reconsider whether selling unreleased recordings of their favorite artists is illegal in the United States. It's illegal in the United States. It's illegal in the United States. It's illegal in the United States.

The Internet has served as a marketplace for bootlegs. "It all
