Non-smoking floors planned for Rienow

Changes in smoking policies at UI residence halls are being considered but probably would not go into effect until next fall.

UI President Bruce Harreld has said that the UI administration is considering adopting a non-smoking policy for residence halls.

"It's important to us that we're addressing the health and safety of our students," Harreld said. "We want to create a campus that is healthy and safe for all students."

University researcher defends his comet theory

The dispute over a U of I researcher's small space seminar is heating up.

By Paul Rosen

WASHINGTON — Space snowman, the term given by the media to the cartoon-like scene created by a hula skirt and a snowman, is an idea that University of Iowa researcher says he is still studying.

The term "snowman" was coined by the media last year to describe the scene created by a hula skirt and a snowman, which are often seen at public events.

The University of Iowa's science and engineering department says it is still studying the phenomenon, but is not ready to draw conclusions.

Several scientists at the meeting have denied the existence of snowmen, including European and Japanese scientists, who say they are not aware of any similar phenomenon in their countries.

"It's a small community of atmospheric physicists, who are finding evidence for a new phenomenon," said a representative for the science and engineering department.

"It's a very exciting development," said the representative, "and we are very pleased to have this information available for our colleagues in the field.

"The only thing that changes is that these snowmen are not real," said the representative.

There is some controversy over whether the phenomenon is caused by human action or natural processes.

"There is no conclusive evidence as to whether these snowmen are caused by human action or natural processes," said the representative.

ATHLETES UNDER ARREST

■ Athletes — with their high fees and pro high profiles — are not typical students.

The growing shadow cast by some UI student athletes has been much in the news lately, and deservedly so in light of their special status and privileges.

Last week, the Daily Iowan and the Iowa City Press-Citizen offered side-by-side coverage of a spate of athlete arrests for drunken driving.

The May 7 fatal sports page was the Hawkeye sports fan (Iowa City Press-Citizen) and many of us feel unsatisfied with the after effects of the hard work and planning that was put into these events. What is the new meaning for these days? What is the new look for our society? And how will we bridge the gap between these two worlds? The Daily Iowan and the Iowa City Press-Citizen continue to pitch the "student-athlete" line forever.

Proceeds from all of the Hawkeye football jerseys with No. 22 and No. 6 on them went other places besides the players' checking accounts, though, biding their time to make the jump to the professional leagues.

In particular, it should stop treating athletes, though it also attracts high profile media attention.

No free tuition, no free tutoring and no free tuition, no free tutoring and no free tuition, no free tutoring and no free tuition.

The Daily Iowan and the Iowa City Press-Citizen are an editorial writer and a staff writer. We welcome your comments and encourage you to share your views.

P.J. Fleck’s last trip to the city was a milestone in the Hawkeye football program. The Associated Press ranked the team No. 22 for the first time in the rankings.

It’s not hard to see why.

Clinton attempts to move Israel about peace talks

The president will have the secretary of State meet with Palestinians Wednesday in Washington.

By Barry Swiszcz

WASHINGTON -- Tying up loose ends in the 14-term term for Mideast peace talks, President Clinton named Secretary of State Madeleine Albright to meet in Washington Wednesday with Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu.

The move -- including a visit by 13 percent from the West Bank, which has been on the move for Mideast peace talks, instead of meeting with representatives of the Israeli government, also the appointment of a new Mideast envoy, a confirmation for the position of Mideast envoy, as well as a new appointment as national security advisor to the president, was announced.

The move comes as relations between Washington and Jerusalem, which have been tense in recent weeks, have improved.

The president said that "the United States has a strong commitment to the Mideast peace process," and that "the United States has a responsibility to promote a peaceful and democratic future for the people of the Middle East." He added that "the United States will continue to work with the Palestinians and the Israelis to bring about a lasting peace in the region."
India goes nuclear; Pakistan issues warning

India goes nuclear; Pakistan issues warning

India became the nuclear power on Monday as scientists tested a fission device, a low-yield device and a thermonuclear capability, immediately warning worldwide that it has a proven capability to make the ultimate weapon within days.

Pakistan also believed to have planned to conduct underground nuclear tests, though these were not confirmed. Pakistan, also known as a black market for nuclear weapons, has been closely watched and monitored.

Nonetheless, Delhi officials were more than a little surprised by the development, holding no remote possibility of retaliating at the moment.

"We have taken some specific preparatory measures for a possible nuclear war. If the United States, an ally in the war against international terrorism, disapproves of India's nuclear tests, it can lose the possibility of a peaceful war," said Zarkova, who was the editor of the news conference.

"The rate of war to the affair is almost like a lie that it is going to proceed in peacetime and compensating has no such testing," Clinton Press Secretary Mike McCurry...

McGwire

McGwire really dropped in. In the batting race, McGwire, who is firmly entrenched as the leading home run hitter, has been driven back to third place. Lou Gehrig leads with 14 home runs, McGwire has 13, while third-place teammate Tino Martinez has 12.

McGwire, however, looked as if he were pondering his next at-bat. He was not trying to get a hit. He was just trying to hit the ball hard.

"I'm sure it's just a matter of time," McGwire said. "I want to put the ball in play, but I don't want to be put out. That's just how I'm going to try to do it."

In fact, it's only been in the last couple of games that McGwire has been a consistent force at the plate. But he still doesn't want to hit for average.

"I'm still the same player," McGwire said. "Just a little more patient and a little more relaxed."
