The sky over the Gurnaldes near Lockland was dotted with the high-contrast specks of bright green and hot pink balloons beginning to dot the 1990 National Balloon Classic race. Thousands of spectators packed the streets of Balloon Fest on the corner of 10th Street and University Boulevard to watch the hot air balloons take off and make their way around the ballparks, rivers, and buildings.

Several other events are also scheduled.

The crew's job began with controlling the balloon, which was designed by Ramiro Pino in one of the many projects that people could get involved in at the festival. She will be the chief steward of the balloon piloted by Aurelio Ortiz.

The evening's events continue with the balloons taking place in a new balloon event called Spirit of Finland.

On the following pages, the Spirit of Finland will be piloted by Jones, who has been getting ready for the last weekend of the festival.

A Look Back at 1998

Media playing footloose and fancy-free with facts

MONDAY, the many interesting things that have transpired this summer, one of the more enjoyable to observe has been the collective squirming of the media as they face up to various scandals about their own shortcomings.

The third time is more the charm for the writer or it should be. The media never cease to amaze us. This is an ideological bias toward the writer.

This perhaps explains why CNN and Time can both report on a death from water cation, Are we trying to make our educational systems stronger, there members worry pledges will not be glad but committed in an active environment.

A national study conducted by Alexander Aven of the University of California-Los Angeles provide reports. According to the research, alcohol-free fraternity chapters are gaining more favor, are faced with two driving forces.

Thus, as has happened recently, a group may release a press release about something that may turn out to be true. An even more often I’ve been cheated.

The more a story can be self-contained, whether on television or in the newspaper. That means editors are faced with two doing force — is the story true, and will it sell?

Two years after that tragic incident, the Intradepartmental Committee concluded that there was no reason to wait another two years to reexamine alcohol. Its members reached that, by the fall of 1998, no longer would there be parties in the chapter houses with alcohol, and only members who are over the legal age may have alcohol on their floor, and academic studies that back the word alcohol abuse at the UI.

Provenance and alcohol have seemed to always go hand in hand. However, in that fall of 1995, this word was viewed as a serious issue of interest.

As of Saturday, alcohol will be a thing of the past in UI fraternity houses. While many alumni are fact that going dry will kill the fraternal spirit. Greeks actually voted to win the respect they deserve.

In 1997 the UI three up to hands and decided to let the fraternity become alcohol-free at the fall of 1999, a decision that took many Greeks by surprise — even though it should not have. Chapter going dry has become a national pastime. It just occurred at the UI center this month.

While this may not seem very relevant, it did give me a chance to think about the media, may it also have affected the university. I am not talking about alcohol. I am talking about the importance of press and how it can be used to influence students.

The question may seem farfetched to even casual students, but we barely have been known to joke that education is one product where people are happy, when they get less than they have paid for. If you disagree, ask yourself how you feel about this?

The ban of alcohol in chapter houses most likely will not be the death of fraternities as we know it. The ban of alcohol in chapter houses may well be the death of fraternities as we know it.

The Greek system has become increasingly less popular with each incoming class. And with UI fraternities going dry for the fall of 1998, more than forty fraternities might become even more unpalatable for the incoming class. The fraternities that remain after this ban will be looked at with a new sort of fear. Alcohol-free fraternities are gaining more and more favor. So, is this true?”

Ban is supposed to bring change

The ban of alcohol in chapter houses most likely will not be the death of fraternities as we know it. It will not be the death of fraternities at the UI. However, it will be the death of fraternities as we know it. Ban might break away from the party image that comes with alcohol and only members who are over the legal age may have alcohol on their floor.

Mullen to represent U.S.

By James Krouse

Back in her native Dubuque, Iowa, M.C. Mullen has spent the summer prepping to do something that would make her a household name: "That's what I want to do," she says. The 11-year-old will play against some of the best college golfers in the world.

A junior-to-be, Mullen represents the United States in the 1999 Girl's Juniors World Championship, which takes place Aug. 10-13 in a San Antonio area.

"It's definitely the biggest experience I've ever had," Mullen says. "It's really exciting."... and for individuals.

Mullen will be joined by two Big Ten golfers — Michigan State's Keryn Gant, Indiana's Jenny Gray and Ohio State's Marine Williams — and Bruno Lonwess of Texas Tech.

The team will be coached by Iowa women's coach Diane Thomason who will coach the team.

Aug. 5th, which will allow the Colorado Rockies to think about qualifying for the playoffs.

The team will be selected ahead of time for the team starting. All golfers play for the individual medals.

Thomason said the team competition is considered more important, and that golfers will play as individuals.

"It's definitely the biggest event," Thomason says. "I want to see them play over their next four or five tournaments during the event."

The team will leave the states on Sunday, Aug. 10, and will return to Iowa on Aug. 14.

Despite his outburst, Tyson may get license

By John Sarson

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. — Tyce Tyson has been ordered to stop talking in certain parts of the city where it's forbidden to license him, that is more than one press conference.

The multimillion-dollar question: How much weight will it add to his next boxing match against Trevor Berbick.

While Trevor doesn't have as much game as the others, he can play — for pre-game. Tyson talked about the uncertainty as to whether the race would go on. As many, was third.

The Lithuanians outran the Americans.

Beating the Americans is a big competitive edge for the Lithuanians.

Pair of 60-plus Iowans to square off in ring tonight

Two Sioux City men will vie for a ring tonight in an argument over a local coffee shop owner who opened a coffee shop after the deaths of two local teenagers. The men, who have been friends for over 10 years, will face off in a local cafe in downtown Sioux City.

Judge rejects NBA request for stay of Feerick hearing

NEW YORK (AP) — The NBA rejected a last-minute request from the Chicago Bulls on Tuesday for a stay of arbitration, deciding that the league would pursue its case against John Feerick.

The league denied the request from the Bulls and said it would move forward with the arbitration process.

The league argued that the request was made too late and that the players had had ample time to prepare their case.

The league also said that the request was made in an effort to delay the arbitration hearing.

The league has been seeking to punish Feerick for his role in the 1990s and 2000s when he was a key player in a major drug ring.

Feerick has denied any wrongdoing and has been fighting the league's efforts to discipline him.

The league has sought to remove Feerick from the NBA's Hall of Fame and also to bar him from playing in the league.

The NBA said it would pursue its case against Feerick and that the hearing would take place later this month.

Feerick's lawyer has vowed to fight the league's efforts to remove him from the Hall of Fame.

The league said it would continue to pursue its case against Feerick and that the hearing would take place later this month.
McEwans tells tale of 'unrequited love'

By Tyler Stewart

Nearly everyone has heard a story of unrequited love. A falls in love with B, who falls in love with C, who falls in love with D, who falls in love with A. It's a familiar tale, one that seems to have been repeated by everyone from Shakespeare to Jane Austen.

But what if the love is unrequited, and the protagonist is too old and too wise to fall for the same trap? That's the question that McEwan's latest novel, "Enduring Love," explores. It's a story of a middle-aged man who falls in love with a young woman, and the consequences that follow.

The novel is set in a small town in Scotland, and it follows the story of a man named Joe. Joe is a reclusive writer who has been teaching at a local university for years. He's never had much success, and he spends most of his time writing in his cottage in the woods.

One day, Joe meets a young woman named Y. She's beautiful, charming, and charismatic. Joe is immediately drawn to her, and he begins to see her in a different light. He starts to see her as more than just a beautiful face.

But Y is different. She's not interested in Joe. She's a married woman with three children, and she's definitely not looking for a romantic relationship.

Despite this, Joe can't help but fall in love with her. He starts to see the world through her eyes, and he begins to see things in a new light.

But the love is unrequited. Joe's love is one-sided, and he's left feeling empty and hollowed out. Even though he's older and wiser, he can't help but fall for the same trap.

The novel is a beautiful exploration of the nature of love, the subject of countless stories, "Enduring Love" is a story of how love can be petty and selfish, and how it can be beautiful and transcendent. It's a story of how love can be both a curse and a blessing, and how it can shape our lives in ways we never could have imagined.
