Committee to vote on probe today

■ Henry Hyde, the Judiciary Committee chairman, says he won't limit the scope of the investigation.

By Jim Abrams
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — On the eve of House Judiciary hearings into possible impeachment proceedings against President Clinton, Chairman Henry Hyde said Sunday the Senate so far does not have the two-third majority necessary to remove the president from office.

Hyde also said he hopes to finish his impeachment inquiry by the year's end but won't accept Democratic demands for limits on the investigation.

"You know how New Year's resolutions sometimes get broken, but it's my hope and prayer that we could finish by New Year's," the Illinois Republican said.

Hyde's committee meets today to take up a GOP resolution recommending an open-ended inquiry into whether Clinton's behavior merits impeachment. The Democrats will offer a separate version that would put a deadline on the inquiry and limit it to the Monica Lewinsky affair, but it is likely to be defeated.

On Sunday, Hyde again rejected the Democratic demands. He even said he might, if necessary, be willing to expand the inquiry beyond Independent Counsel Kenneth Starr's report to Congress on the president's relationship with Lewinsky when she was a White House intern and later.

The Judiciary Committee anticipates no more material from Starr, Hyde said, and "we are not seeking that. We're not out trolling for additional issues. But if they come to our attention, we will deal with them."

Hyde, who appeared on NBC's "Meet the Press" and "Fox News Sunday," added: "We don't feel bound by Ken Starr."

Hyde mentioned as possible extensions Whitewater, Filegate, Travelgate and Clinton's relationship with former White House volunteer Kathleen Willey and said his committee will look at a report being put out this week by a different House committee on alleged White House campaign fund-raising violations.

At the same time, Hyde admitted that if the House votes to impeach the president, the 67 votes required in the Senate to remove him from office are not there.

Cutbacks worry workers

■ Funding cuts at KSUI, WSUI frustrate student employees.

By Kelly Wilson
The Daily Iowan

Some student employees at two UI-affiliated public radio stations say they are losing their voices.

Recent funding cutbacks and executive decisions at WSUI-AM and KSUI-FM are frustrating student employees, who said the stations' personality and their learning opportunities are at stake.

The stations have had to increase fund-raising and marketing efforts after cuts by the UI and the Corporation for Public Broadcasting, said Laura Lash, a UI graduate student and announcer for both the AM and FM stations.

Students used to be able to use extra on-air time to add their own style and commentary to the broadcasts, she said, but now they have to read prescribed plugs for donations.

"Now, with these stupid guide promos and fund-raisers, we are not allowed time to give the radio a personality," said Lash, who added that the restrictions take away from the learning experience of the job.

The stations hope to increase donations from the current $125,000 to the $400,000 range per year, said John Monick, director of broadcasting for WSUI and KSUI. Monick said the stations plan to hire two more employees — one will manage marketing and the other will deal with corporate underwriting.

The fundraising messages are only read every other month, only at program breaks and will not interrupt programming, Monick said.

The messages, which will be airing during October, inform listeners about the programs and ask them for donations if they like what they hear, Lash said.

Other changes currently under way for the stations include a push towards computer automation, a trend

Car show to block downtown parking

■ An antique car exhibition will close roughly 100 parking spaces today on Iowa Avenue and Clinton Street.

By Zack Kucharski
The Daily Iowan

Iowa City residents may have thought they had parking problems downtown, but today is likely to bring a whole new meaning to the term.

A classic car show will close the 100 block of Iowa Avenue, near Phillips Hall, and Clinton Street between Iowa Avenue and Washington Street. About 100 metered parking spaces — mostly on Iowa Avenue — will be lost beginning at 3, and traffic will not be allowed on those streets until 7 p.m.

Cars parked in the closed spaces will be towed.

Also, Cambus will switch service from 3 p.m. until about 8 p.m. in order to avoid the area.

The only stop Cambus will make on Clinton Street is at Currier Residence Hall. Instead of stopping in front of Pappajohn Business Administration Building, the Pentacrest and Schaeffer Hall, the buses will turn off Clinton Street on Market Street and make a stop at the Union and the Main Library.

Northbound buses along those routes will not be affected. The Mayflower shuttle will not be making the Iowa Avenue or Schaeffer Hall stops.

CHILL in the air

Unusually cold temperatures have UI students piling on the extra blankets.

By Crissy McMartin
The Daily Iowan

UI freshman Shawn Joyce broke out the extra layers of clothes twice this weekend — once when he ventured out in the rain for Saturday's football game and again when he went to sleep in his dorm room.

"It's freezing in here," Joyce said of his Burge Hall room. "There's not a whole lot you can do."

Just under an inch of rain and unseasonably low temperatures brought the summer to an abrupt halt over the weekend, forcing students, such as Joyce, and area businesses to find a way to deal with the cold.

Jim Hladik, meteorologist for the National Weather Service, said the cold weather can be attributed to cloudy conditions and a cold air mass moving in from Canada. Weekend highs, which were only in the 40s, are unusually low for this time of year, Hladik said.

"The clouds and rain have really kept the temperature down," Hladik said. "This is the sort of temperature we would normally expect for mid-November."

For some UI students living in res-

Vying to be royalty in the land of tall corn

■ Eight members were selected to the Homecoming Court Sunday.

By Anna Vorm
The Daily Iowan

After surviving two preliminary cuts to be chosen for the 1998 UI Homecoming Court, the newly selected royalty are scheduled to find out who will be ascending the throne Friday.

This year, approximately 60 UI seniors vied for the title of Homecoming King and Queen, said Emily Bean, Homecoming Events director. The court was announced Sunday at a ceremony in the R. Wayne Richey Ballroom of the Union.

Similar to previous years, the number of women applicants outnumbered the men.

"For the females it was pretty good, but the males were pretty low," Homecoming Director Christa Clark said about the number of applicants.

The completion of the two-week application process will be a third and final interview of the remaining eight candidates.

The finalists for Queen are Tanna Frederick, Kristen Lee, Mitzi Miller and Lana Zak. The finalists for King are Jay Daniliuk, Eric "Wile" Fisher, Jason Lettmann and Scott Shuman.

Initial applications consisted of four essay questions, two recommendations and a list of scholarship, leadership and service involvement. Unlike last year, only seniors were eligible to apply.

Zak said selection for the court is entirely fair.

"I think the UI's commitment to choosing the court is not the traditional sort of homecoming figurehead found at other schools," Zak said. "The UI tries to get a variety of people."

Applicants are judged by a panel on all aspects of their applications, including thoughtfulness, creativity and sincerity, Bean said.

"We reviewed and scored them 10 points for each category and 90 points

Help Me,
Harlan

Dear Harlan,
I have a friend who is in love with someone on the Internet. They live very far away from each other, but that's not the problem. The problem is that they're both in relationships and have very, very young children. Their spouses don't know about their relationship. My friend wants me to be supportive. She wants me to be there when she has a fight with her husband so I can play peacemaker. I don't know what to do as I find the whole thing distasteful. Do I sit it out and tell her how horrid I think the whole thing is? Do I pray it just ends? It's making me crazy!

— The peacemaker

Dear Peacemaker,
Cleanse your palette and untangle yourself from this Web of deception. It's distasteful that she's having a deeply emotional affair, it's distasteful that she's being so self-destructive and it's distasteful that she's put you in the middle of the mess. It's time to be a true best friend and start being honest. Encourage her to go to counseling, offer your support and offer some tough love. While it's not your place to talk to her husband, you can at least talk to her about what's bothering you. She needs to come back to reality and who better to help her make the trip than a friend.

CEDAR RAPIDS — The baby boy weighed 1 pound, 14 ounces. Born three months premature, he was so weak that he needed a respirator to breathe. Doctors said he had a good chance of survival but would probably grow up with serious problems: learning disabilities, lung disease, cerebral palsy.

He was not hers to care for, not hers to love. She made sure of that the week she found out she had conceived a child with a married man. She decided on adoption and quickly found the perfect couple — he was a lawyer, she was a schoolteacher. They were everything she wasn't: stable, responsible, committed.

■ Concerns about the effects of construction on Gilbert Street businesses have city councilors looking for temporary solutions.

By Steven Cook

The Daily Iowan

A large-scale improvement project along South Gilbert Street should be put off for at least five years, said some Iowa City councilors Sunday.

However, smaller improvements should be done now to improve traffic flow along the street, they said.

The City Council is scheduled to discuss the issue at tonight's work session. Jeff Davidson, the Iowa City assistant planning director who is presenting the proposals, said the planners want a decision tonight about what the council wants done with the street.

Placing any improvement project onto the city's Capital Improvement Plan would be the best solution, Mayor Ernie Lehman said. Doing so would mean the project would be at least five years away, he said.

"That would put business owners on notice that at some point in the future something will happen with Gilbert Street," Lehman said.

He said he favors a short-term solution making left turns off Highland Ave., which is near Highway 6, illegal.

Three of the councilors — Dean Thornberry, Mike O'Donnell and Dee Norton — said they would prefer making the left-turn lane onto Highway 6 from Gilbert Street into two lanes.

Such a move, they said, would help increase traffic flow through the intersection while minimizing the impact on parking and buildings for Gilbert Street businesses.

"There are some old, established businesses down there, and I just simply won't take needed parking,"

What would Nicole do now? Here lay this baby on a warming tray wrapped in tubes and wires, a baby needing more than Nicole was prepared to give.

But over the next six months, Nicole would become everything she never wanted to be.

Becoming a mother in spite of herself

Motherhood was not in Nicole's plans. A day after she delivered her baby in Harrisburg Hospital in Harrisburg, Pa., she had a tubal ligation to ensure that she would never have another child.

At 25, Nicole was wild and impetuous. She lived on the edge of adventure and liked it that way. She danced at a strip club for a while and ran cables at a Louisiana shipyard.

She had joined the Army and was stationed in Korea when she fell in love with a young sergeant. He was strong and handsome and promised to leave his wife and three children for her; she believed him. He even gave her an engagement ring.

When she got pregnant last summer, she had a fleeting fantasy that they would be a family. But she wasn't surprised when, instead of setting a wedding date, he suggested an abortion. Nicole wouldn't do that, so she opted for adoption.

She cut down on her smoking and ate more vegetables. She played soothing chant music and rubbed her belly. But she didn't allow herself to get too close. This was someone else's baby.

The pregnancy was fragile from the start. Within the first two months she was in the hospital, bleeding. Her long, rigorous days in the Army didn't help, so she was discharged and moved home to Marysville, Pa.

Six months into her pregnancy, she rushed to the hospital on Jan. 19 with labor pains. She delivered the baby on Feb. 3 — 14 weeks premature.

When the adoptive parents backed out, she was so outraged she called the local paper, the Patriot-News.

She ridiculed the adoptive parents for rejecting the child, "just because he's not perfect," and asked for help finding new parents for the baby boy, whom she named Alek Nathaniel Smith.

Nicole didn't come back to the hospital to visit Alek until a couple of days later, when the newspaper asked her to pose for a picture with the baby.

Alek looked so defenseless. When the nurse pricked his foot for a blood sample, he grimaced, but didn't cry. He couldn't even make a sound; the ventilator tube down his windpipe prevented his vocal cords from touching.

He hurt Nicole to watch. She reached her hands through the incubator's portals to caress Alek's forehead. She stroked him gently, careful not to disturb the catheter in his belly button that delivered an IV solution.

Breast milk would be the best thing for him, the nurses said. Because Alek was too premature to know how to suck, swallow and breathe at the same time, Nicole pumped her breasts every three hours. Every day she carried little plastic bottles of milk into the neonatal intensive care unit of Harrisburg Hospital; it was dumped into a sterile bag that dripped into a feeding tube taped to Alek's nose.

Letters poured in from people who had read the newspaper story and wanted to adopt Alek. The "Today" show called and wanted an interview.

Alek started to grow. His sagging skin started to fill out. His hand was still too small to grip her pinkie, so she rolled up a piece of gauze the size of a pencil.

Nicole narrowed her search for prospective parents to two and continued her daily pilgrimage to the hospital. She still wasn't allowed to hold Alek; any sudden movement could dislodge the tubes and catheters that kept him alive. She made him a flannel quilt and brought him a stuffed puppy. Alek recognized her face, she thought, was soothed by her voice.

Alek knows his mother, the nurses told her. Nicole rubbed his foot and sang to him, softly:

"Mama's little baby loves shortening, shortening, Mama's little baby loves shortening bread ..."

Complications pile up for young Alek

On March 9, she got an urgent call from the hospital.

Come immediately, the doctor said. Alek might not make it through the night; his lungs could collapse at any moment. If Nicole would like to, she could hold him for the very first time. Alek was 5 weeks old.

Nicole put a little pillow in the crook of her arm, and the nurse gently placed Alek — still less than 3 pounds — on top.

She looked down at the bundle in her arms, and for a moment she didn't see the tubes, wires and tape; he looked like a normal little baby boy. And for the first time, Nicole felt pure love, pure joy — and an intense desire to protect this child. She wanted to watch him grow, to take him to Disneyland, to teach him to fish.

As Alek struggled to breathe, she made a vow: If her son survived the night, she would keep him. She would mother him. She would love him, unconditionally.

Alek lived and started gaining strength again.

Months passed, and Alek struggled on. Nicole jumped from job to job — installing cable TV, working at a trendy coffee house, sorting packages at a shipping company. But she was barely making a living. If she was going to raise Alek, she needed to prepare a better home for him.

A friend told her about a recruiter who helped ex-military people find jobs. When Alek was 5 months old, Nicole was offered a job at a phone company in Cedar Rapids, making double her wages. It was 900 miles away from Harrisburg Hospital.

The thought of leaving Alek was heartbreaking, but she decided it was best for their future.

She promised her son she would return every two weeks after pay day. During her second week on the job, she got a call from the hospital: Alek needed hernia surgery. She drove for 24 hours to see him just in time for his surgery. She held him close, then drove back to Iowa.

Baby Alek is held by his mother, Nicole Smith, during a hospital visit in Harrisburg, Penn. on May 9.

Nathaniel Smith was unrestrained. Nicole held him close for a moment then signaled to her father: Let's go outside, she said. Alek had never been outside.

And so in the wee hours of a warm August morning, Nicole carried her son into the fresh night air. Nicole gently held her son as they listened to the river rushing past the hospital and gazed up at the starry sky. For the first time, Alek felt a cool breeze caress his cheeks.

Nicole's father picked a black-eyed Susan from the flowerbed and brushed the petals against Alek's face. He crinkled his nose.

"I love you," Nicole whispered over and over, rocking him in her arms. Within 40 minutes, Alek took his last breath, cuddled in his mother's arms.

More than a month later, Nicole still lives in Cedar Rapids working for the phone company. She keeps a photo album filled with pictures of Alek in his incubator. One page is filled with pressed black-eyed Susans.

Gilbert St. vexes council

■ Concerns about the effects of construction on Gilbert Street businesses have city councilors looking for temporary solutions.

By Steven Cook
The Daily Iowan

A large-scale improvement project along South Gilbert Street should be put off for at least five years, said some Iowa City councilors Sunday.

However, smaller improvements should be done now to improve traffic flow along the street, they said.

The City Council is scheduled to discuss the issue at tonight's work session. Jeff Davidson, the Iowa City assistant planning director who is presenting the proposals, said the planners want a decision tonight about what the council wants done with the street.

Placing any improvement project onto the city's Capitol Improvement Plan would be the best solution, Mayor Ernie Lehman said. Doing so would mean the project would be at least five years away, he said.

"That would put business owners on notice that at some point in the future something will happen with Gilbert Street," Lehman said.

He said he favors a short-term solution making left turns off Highland Ave., which is near Highway 6, illegal.

Three of the councilors — Dean Thornberry, Mike O'Donnell and Dee Norton — said they would prefer making the left-turn lane onto Highway 6 from Gilbert Street into two lanes.

Such a move, they said, would help increase traffic flow through the intersection while minimizing the impact on parking and buildings for Gilbert Street businesses.

"There are some old, established businesses down there, and I just simply won't take needed parking,"

"That would put business owners on notice that at some point in the future something will happen with Gilbert Street."

— Ernie Lehman
Mayor

O'Donnell said.

Three plans for improving the South Gilbert Street corridor remain. They include: widening it on both sides to five lanes; widening it on the east side only to five lanes; and making it a one-way street.

Norton also said he would be interested in a center left-turn lane for spots along Gilbert, but not for the entire corridor.

Such a move would allow turning cars to do so without blocking a lane of traffic, he said. It would also allow buildings close to the street, such as Aero Rental, 227 Kirkwood Ave., to be undisturbed, he added.

Councilor Karen Kubby said the traffic problems are only getting worse along Gilbert and that any solution would affect at least some businesses. She said the council will have to make a tough decision about Gilbert Street and implement one of the large-scale projects.

Other capitol-improvement projects should be weighed before setting a time table for any Gilbert Street improvements, Councilor Dee Vanderhoef said.

According to traffic numbers included in a memo to the councilors, the corridor accommodates 16,600 vehicles daily — just under its 17,000 vehicles-per-day capacity.

At that level of traffic, Davidson said, problems begin to show up during rush hours. When traffic increases, he said they show up all day.

idence halls, this means some cold nights ahead since they are unable to turn on the heat themselves.

Maggie Van Oel, director of Residence Services, said the heat is normally turned on in residence halls in mid-October, but it can be done earlier if students complain they are uncomfortable in their rooms.

"If it's unseasonably cold, the heat comes on no matter what time of year," Van Oel said. "We try not to do it too prematurely. Heating a residence hall is not a typical process where you can turn it on or off with a switch."

And more is yet to come.

Although temperatures today and Tuesday should reach typical October highs in the low 60s, meteorologists predict another plunge in temperatures by the end of the week.

"We've got a cool week ahead of us: temperatures in the 40s, relatively cloudy, periods of rain," Hladik said.

Not all students are complaining about the cooler climate of their dorm rooms, however. UI sophomore Katie Sheil said this week-end's cool down has been a relief.

"We still have the air conditioner on," Sheil said. "I'm from Minnesota, so the cold doesn't bother me."

Judging by the business at one local clothing store, not all students are as adapted to the cold as of yet.

Traci Taylor, an employee at Active Endeavors, 138 S. Clinton St., said the cold weather is responsible for a noticeable increase in business.

"Starting Friday, we've had more people buying winter coats," said Taylor, a UI sophomore. "We've sold a few hats and gloves, too."

The chilly weather is also being held accountable for a "complete 180" in the ice cream business, said Nick Kercheval, an employee of Dairy Queen, 212 E. Market St.

A cold-weather decrease in business is normal at Dairy Queen, which is open all year, and the employees who work there have had no trouble filling the spare time, he said.

"We study, paint and play chess," Kercheval said. "Sometimes we go outside and chase cats."

Additional vandalism charges still pending

Iowa City Police Department officials say additional charges against West High School students caught spray painting City High School's football field are still pending.

Iowa City police Sgt. Mike Brotherton said two West High teen-agers have been charged with fourth-degree criminal mischief and charges are pending on the additional persons involved.

"These types of occurrences happen every year before the big game between West High and City High," Brotherton said. "We don't believe this was at all racially or religiously motivated."

On Sept. 30, the police department and the Johnson County Sheriff's Department were called to City High's Bates Field to investigate a report of persons spray painting the bleachers.

Twelve teen-agers were found at the site, Brotherton said. When they attempted to flee, several were detained and interviewed about the vandalism.

Damage to City High property included spray-painted and paint-balled bleachers, signs and buildings. The estimated dollar amount of the property damage is still being determined.

The police department is classifying Wednesday's events as "high school pranks," Brotherton said.

"It wasn't just West High students doing the damage," he said. "We chased City High students off of West High property shortly before they were called to City High."

Iowa City man charged with burglary

An Iowa City man has been charged with three counts of second-degree burglary after Iowa City police found him examining the alleged stolen property.

Police arrested and charged Robert J. Gonshorowski, 20, with three counts of second-degree burglary after finding him in the hallway of the building at Lakeside Apartments, 2401 Highway 6 E., where the third burglary took place on Oct. 2.

Complaints of two earlier robberies from residents of the apartment prompted officers to check the adjacent building, where Gonshorowski was found.

"We believe Gonshorowski was checking apartment doors in two buildings to see if they were unlocked," Brotherton said. "When the officers arrived on the scene, they spoke with the complainants and decided to check an adjacent building."

Gonshorowski, who matched the description given by the callers, was found with a bicycle, two wallets and other personal items, Brotherton said.

"No more than a total $100 was stolen from the three apartments," he said.

Interim director in simulator's driver's seat

L.D. Chen, professor of mechanical engineering, was named interim director of the National Advanced Driving Simulator on Oct. 1. Chen will work at the post during the search for a permanent director.

"It's a very important project not only to the UI but to the state," Chen said. The NADS research center is scheduled to be open in May 2000 at the UI Oakdale Research Park.

Chen said researchers hope to construct a simulator that tackles safety issues, such as the effects of drugs taken by drivers with medical conditions. They also hope to design safer highways and vehicles without the need to construct expensive prototypes.

"It is a high-fidelity environment that uses the virtual reality of the environment to simulate situations such as accident avoidance," Chen said.

Chen replaces former director and NADS founder Edward Huag, who is beginning a five-year phased retirement program. Huag will spend his remaining time at the UI focusing on NADS research program development.

total," Bean said.

The six-member panel consists of Bean, Clark, Dance Marathon Executive Director Eric Nemmers, PanHellenic President Megan Hayes, and Mary Ellen Gillespie and Carlos Serrato, staff members of the Office of Student Life.

Seven men and 11 women were selected for the first cut — a ratio based on the initial amount of applications received by the selection committee for each gender. The first cut was based solely on applications.

The second cut consisted of a face-to-face interview with the panel, which asked each applicant a question.

This week, the court will undergo another interview where each member will be asked the same question.

From that final question, a King and Queen will be selected.

The winners will be crowned at the pep rally following the parade. They will receive a gift certificate to G.A. Malone's and tickets to see The Freddy Jones Band.

throughout the radio industry, Monick said. Using a computer instead of employees to do "mindless work" uses resources in a more efficient manner, Monick said.

The push towards automation is fueled by the desire to give students more "on-air involvement," and pursue a more "journalistic" broadcast, Monick said.

"We will utilize students in a different manner," he said. "Right now, we have to have people there all the time. We want to get away from babysitting the station."

The move towards automation may be another effect of the cutbacks, said Oliver Stoutner, UI senior, KSUI announcer and station music librarian. He said he is against adopting the industry trend at the UI because it eliminates jobs, shortens local news coverage and sacrifices student learning opportunities.

Lash said she is irritated at the funding cuts from the UI, which she sees as an attempt by the administration to disassociate itself from the stations.

"It feels like the university is severing us," Lash said. "Especially with our new off-campus location because when you don't see us, it is easy to forget about us."

However, Monick said he does not think the UI is trying to break away from the stations. Instead, the UI would like the stations to secure revenue from other sources as well as from the university, Monick said.

■ A Russian delegation meets with Yugoslav President Milosevic as NATO threatens to attack the Serb state.

By Misha Savic

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia — Sharply opposed to NATO airstrikes on Yugoslavia, Russia sent its foreign and defense ministers Sunday to call on President Slobodan Milosevic, whose generals were preparing to defend the country against an assault.

NATO is threatening attacks to end seven months of bloodshed in Kosovo — despite signs Serbs may be ready for a compromise on how the rebellious Serb province should be governed.

Russian Foreign Minister Igor Ivanov and Defense Minister Igor Sergeev met with Milosevic, Serbian President Milan Milutinovic and Yugoslavia's top defense officials.

Kosovo is in southern Serbia, the dominant of two republics remaining in Yugoslavia.

A statement from Milosevic's office issued after the meeting said any NATO strike would be an "act of aggression" and asserted that in Kosovo the overall situation is "improving daily."

Russia is the Serbs' main ally, sharing bonds of religion and joint Slavic roots.

Serbian police and the Yugoslav Army have routed separatist Kosovo Albanian rebels during the seven-month crackdown. The conflict has killed hundreds — most of them ethnic Albanian civilians — and driven hundreds of thousands of villagers from their homes.

In Moscow, the ITAR-Tass news agency carried a government statement reiterating its opposition to any NATO intervention in Kosovo without approval from the U.N. Security Council, in which Russia yields veto power.

A Yugoslav statement said the leadership wanted the Kosovo dispute solved peacefully, "but in case we are attacked, we shall defend our country with all means."

air defense on high alert, even as Serbs indicated they were ready for compromise by installing an interim government on Oct. 3 in Kosovo.

A Western diplomat said that up to 120 Yugoslav armored vehicles, including tanks, have been pulled out of Kosovo so far. But the West apparently remained unmoved.

Speaking in Denmark, German Foreign Minister Klaus Kinkel said on Oct. 2 the NATO intervention clock "is at one minute to 12." Although Kinkel stressed that "no ultimatum, no date has been set," he added, "Mr. Milosevic must know that we are serious."

London's Sunday Telegraph reported that Britain is preparing ground troops and armored units for Kosovo to be deployed as peacekeepers after a possible airstrike. The defense ministry refused to confirm the report.

French Foreign Minister Hubert Vedrine met Sunday night with his British counterpart, Robin Cook, to discuss the situation in Kosovo, France's Foreign Ministry said. A ministry spokesperson, speaking on customary condition of anonymity, provided no details on the meeting.

The encounter was preceded by a lengthy telephone conversation between Vedrine and U.S. Secretary of State Madeleine Albright, the spokesperson said. The Yugoslav government said on Oct. 2 the fighting had ended and blamed continuing violence on ethnic Albanian rebels. The Serb side reported no fighting Sunday, besides two minor attacks on civilian cars by Albanian "terrorists" about 25 miles south of Pristina, Kosovo's capital. Elsewhere, a policeman was killed after stepping on a mine, the Serb Media Center said.

But the Kosovo Information Center, which reports for the Albanian side, said there was heavy fighting between government forces and the guerrillas 25 miles southwest of Pristina. Ethnic Albanian political leaders have rejected the new interim government, which was drawn up without their participation. The council is composed of seven Serbs, five ethnic Albanians and the rest

If not, Washington has indicated that NATO air attacks will come within two weeks.

Puerto Rico reels in Georges' wake

Thousands are homeless after the hurricane, and relief efforts are ruled by confusion.

By Steven Gutkin
Associated Press

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico — At a shelter in Puerto Rico last week, Hillary Rodham Clinton spoke of a $39-million U.S. grant to rebuild hurricane-ravaged homes.

But two weeks after Hurricane Georges pummeled this U.S. territory, thousands still languish in schools, community centers and the homes of family and friends — and her pledge looks like a drop in the bucket.

The cost of getting the homeless into homes will be far greater than virtually anyone had imagined, probably well beyond $1 billion. And U.S. taxpayers are sure to foot most of the bill.

"We're talking megabucks," said Michael Colon, the Caribbean coordinator for the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development.

Officials originally estimated overall property damage to the island — including roads, public buildings, parks, beaches — to be $2 billion, a figure now believed to be underestimated.

So far, the effort to solve the homeless crisis has been accompanied by confusion. Officials still don't know how many homeless there are — or how to give them homes.

Aside from killing three people on the island, Georges destroyed nearly 30,000 houses and damaged at least another 60,000, the local Housing Department estimates. Those left homeless can receive up to $25,000 from the Federal Emergency Management Agency, as well as $13,500 to buy new appliances and furniture.

Puerto Rico authorities now say the FEMA program, which would allow residents to rebuild their wood and zinc homes, may be ill-advised because it will leave new homes as vulnerable to hurricanes as the old ones.

Gov. Pedro Rosello instead wants federal block grants that, combined with money from Puerto Rico's local budget, would subsidize more expensive cement homes located out of harm's way.

Under his plan, hurricane victims would purchase houses worth $65,000 for $15,000, with mortgage payments of about $100 per month.

"Even though this has been a disaster for Puerto Rico, we should look at this as an opportunity to build something better than what we had before," explained Puerto Rico's Housing Secretary, Ana Carmen Alemany.

The plan was presented to Housing Secretary Andrew Cuomo when he arrived in Puerto Rico last week with Rodham Clinton.

"We are banking on having Secretary Cuomo going back to President Clinton and (FEMA Director) James Lee Witt, expressing support for this program," Alemany said.

In the meantime, 15,000 Puerto Rican hurricane victims remain holed up in shelters; more are staying with friends and relatives, though no one knows exactly how many.

Concrete decisions on solving their long-term plight have taken a back seat to the immediate need to restore water and electricity and provide temporary shelter.

"As of now, there is no program yet," admitted Bessie Figueroa, the Puerto Rico Housing Department's liaison to FEMA.

Meanwhile, the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers is crisscrossing the island to replace damaged roofs, and the island's Housing Department is providing $1,000 vouchers to purchase building materials. The city of San Juan is handing out $500 checks for groceries.

Dear Readers:

Discrimination based on disability is prohibited by federal law, state law, and University policy. The University of Iowa is committed to creating a campus fully accessible to everyone. The University, as authorized by Section 503 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973 and by the Vietnam-Era Veterans Readjustment Assistance Act of 1974, is required to take affirmative steps to employ and advance the employment of qualified individuals with disabilities, qualified disabled veterans and veterans of the Vietnam Era. As required by the Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA), The University of Iowa makes reasonable accommodations for the functional limitations of students, employees and applicants with disabilities, and disabled veterans. The following information is presented to inform the campus of services available to assist people with disabilities. If you have any questions, please contact the Office of Affirmative Action at 335-0705 (voice) or 335-0697 (text).

Sincerely,
Susan Mask, Assistant to the President,
Director of Affirmative Action and ADA Coordinator

DEFINITION OF TERMS

Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA):

The ADA prohibits discrimination against individuals with disabilities in employment, education, public accommodations, transportation, state and local government services, and telecommunications.

Under the ADA, the University is required to provide reasonable accommodations to individuals with disabilities in employment and education unless such accommodations impose an undue hardship or significant threat to health or safety.

Disability:

The ADA defines an individual with a disability as a person who:

- has a physical or mental impairment that substantially limits one or more of the major life activities of that person.
- has a record of such an impairment, or
- is regarded as having such an impairment.

Major life activities include caring for oneself, performing manual tasks, walking, seeing, hearing, speaking, breathing, learning, and working.

Reasonable accommodations:

Reasonable accommodations are modifications made to the work or academic environment that help create equal employment or educational opportunities.

SERVICES

The following offices on campus are responsible for the implementation and monitoring of the University's services to people with disabilities.

Office of Affirmative Action

The Assistant to the President and Director of the Office of Affirmative Action is the ADA coordinator at the University. The Office of Affirmative Action also handles complaints of discrimination, including those based on disability and denial of disability accommodation requests. The Office provides educational programs on the ADA and disability awareness. For more information, contact the Office of Affirmative Action at 202 Jessup Hall, 335-0705 (voice) or 335-0697 (text).

Office of Faculty and Staff Disability Services

The Office of Faculty and Staff Disability Services is a resource service available to assist faculty, staff, departments, and applicants in need of accommodations in matters related to employment at The University of Iowa. For more information, contact the Office of Faculty Staff Disability Services at 335-2660 (voice), 335-3495 (text).

Office of Student Disability Services

The Office of Student Disability Services (SDS) provides support services and coordinates academic accommodations for students with disabilities. SDS provides direct services such as counseling and support groups for various disability populations. SDS also coordinates many indirect services with other University offices and departments. For more information, contact 335-1462 (voice and text).

HOW YOU CAN HELP

Every person in the University community can contribute to the full inclusion of people with disabilities. Listed below are some things you can do:

- Use the word disability instead of handicap.
- Ask and wait for acceptance and instructions before assisting a person with a disability.
- Sit at eye level when you are talking to a person who uses a wheel chair and speak directly to that person.
- When using a sign language interpreter, maintain eye contact with the person who is deaf, not with the interpreter.
- Be considerate of the extra time that it may take a person with a disability to walk, talk, write, or take an exam.
- Apologize if you offend someone with a disability.

THINGS TO AVOID

Avoid the following behaviors that may suggest a negative attitude toward people with disabilities:

- Avoid referring to individuals by their disability. A person is not a condition.
- Do not emphasize disability over other characteristics when describing a person with a disability.
- Do not block ramps, curb cuts, or disability-designated parking spaces.
- Avoid using "normal" to describe someone who is not disabled, implying that someone with a disability is not normal. Say that the person is "non-disabled."
- Do not touch a person's wheel chair or other assistive equipment without asking; do not pet or feed a guide dog while it is working.

DISABILITY AWARENESS

How often do you:

- Challenge others who tell derogatory jokes about people with disabilities?
- Accept and reinforce the fact that that not everyone has to act or look a certain way to be successful?
- Empower people with disabilities, assigning responsibility to them as often as to others?
- Disregard physical characteristics when making decisions about competence or ability?
- Get to know people with disabilities?
- Follow and reinforce University policies regarding equal opportunity and treatment?

EDUCATIONAL PROGRAMS

The Offices of Affirmative Action, Student Disability Services, and Faculty and Staff Disability Services offer educational programs on disability awareness and compliance. Please contact the Office of Affirmative Action for more information, 319/335-0705 (voice) or 319/335-0697 (text).

Education can help prevent violations which may lead to disciplinary action ranging from verbal warning to termination from The University of Iowa.

If you are a person with a disability who needs an accommodation to participate in a University event, please contact the office or university event in advance of the event to request the needed accommodation. The reasonableness of the accommodation can be directed to the Affirmative Action.

A WORLD OF OPPORTUNITIES

Let Northwestern College of Chiropractic Help You Map Your Future At Career Day 1998.

Saturday, Oct. 17, 1998 • 10 a.m. — 2 p.m.

Northwestern College of Chiropractic has earned an international reputation as an innovative leader in chiropractic education. Our success is a cumulative process. It begins with our clinical education programs, designed to develop those skills required of a future chiropractic physician to successfully meet the challenges of a rapidly changing health care system. It continues with Northwestern's clinical research program, which is dedicated to the pursuit of new science related to chiropractic care. Finally, success is fostered by the rigorous interdisciplinary curriculum, balanced with clubs, organizations and many social opportunities.

Here's what you can expect:

- Learn about the chiropractic profession;
- Meet faculty, staff and students;
- Tour our campus and visit science and chiropractic methods laboratories and one of our four outpatient clinics;
- Receive admission and financial aid information;
- Enjoy a complimentary lunch.

Registration Deadline is Oct. 9, 1998.

Call the Northwestern College of Chiropractic Admissions Office at 1-800-888-4777 or 885-5409 for more information or to register. And be sure to tour our virtual world at www.nwchiro.edu.

Chris (Robin Williams) and Annie (Annabella Sciorra) in "What Dreams ..."

Bring tissues. "What Dreams May Come" is a sob fest.

I've never been so touched by a film since, well, "Ghost." Like "Ghost," "What Dreams May Come" deals with death of loved ones, heaven and hell. But unlike "Ghost," "What Dreams May Come" takes the audience through heaven and hell. The film will leave you speechless.

This isn't just any ordinary romance movie. The film takes love to the highest limits and beyond: love after death. Robin Williams continues his string of serious roles after "Good Will Hunting" and proves his best talents are his serious dramatic roles. Williams plays Chris, a children's doctor who is killed in a car accident and sent to heaven. His destiny is to accept the fact that he's dead and move on to resurrection.

The art of Chris' heaven is what really makes the film stand out. Williams and his wife Annie (Annabella Sciorra) surrounded their lives with paintings. These paintings that made him so happy become heaven for him. From that point on, the film is filled with breathtaking special effects.

"What Dreams May Come" begins as a journey where Chris is learning how to deal with the afterlife, but the tides change when his wife commits suicide. Annie is not so fortunate: She goes to hell. The film is really about the love and connection of two soul mates. Chris loves Annie beyond the limits of heaven and hell and makes a great journey to hell to find her. Along the way he is accompanied and instructed by Cuba Gooding Jr. and Max Von Sydow.

Chris and Annie's love is proven through flashbacks throughout the entire movie that answer all the questions that come about in the film and explain the reasoning of the plot. The point: how much Chris and Annie love each other.

In a nutshell, the writer of this film, Richard Matheson, is giving the audience his two cents on what happens after death. And it's astonishing.

Performance tour sojourns at the Parallel House

■ Tentatively A. Convenience's mystery performance/ installation promises to be a live one.

By Alan Murdock
The Daily Iowan

A Pittsburgh based performance and installation artist with a 3-D brain tattooed on his shaved head, a penchant for shocking public action, and the name Tentatively A. Convenience will christen Parallel House, a new Iowa City venue for underground collaborative works and live art tonight at 8 p.m.

Tentatively's stop in Iowa City is part of a tour organized by the artist in conjunction with alternative and underground performance/installation spaces across the nation. As a part of this tour, the work has already been shown in New York, Chicago and Minneapolis.

The artist has been a part of the Neoist movement, a group of artists who all exhibit under the same name, Motycantsin. Stephen Perkins, a friend of the artist explains, saying, "This is to break down the concept of the individuality of an artist and to thereby unify very different work under one name."

When asked about the name by which he shows his individuality, Tentatively told a reporter for the Honolulu star, "It answers the question, 'What is your name?' on the level of what function it serves."

Most of Tentatively's work deals with these kind of social constructions. Because of this, Tentatively refuses to limit himself to the performance space or camera. His performances and "actions" often are carried out on the streets or in gathering places we may each one day find ourselves. "In one of his most recent events he went to a peep show and inserted his own video of a grapefruit being penetrated by a series of vegetables. This played for a few weeks until he went and retrieved it," Perkins said.

In contrast to this uncouth work, tonight's performance is somewhat of a mystery. The flyer promises the show will include video, film, audio, slides and whatnots. Perkins says the event may include some performative element within the space, but with Mr. Convenience, who can tell?

The event will be held tonight at 8 p.m. at Parallel House, 415 N. Johnson St. There will be no ticket sales, but a donation between $2-$5 to support the artist will be requested.

Who would have thought that Illinois would be Northwestern 13-10 after getting trounced a week ago by Iowa?

Not many On-the-Line players. An overwhelming majority of players were down a loss with the game, including most of the Week Five winners. With the game also being the tie-breaker, the sting was felt by all.

This week's On the Line winners are Jeff McCutough (9), Adam Wiley (9), David Schwebel (8), Scott Thomson (8), Daniel Lopatka (8), Al Stroth (8), Mark Lanciai (8), Chad Seering (8), Missy Lambert (8), John Gelhaus (8) and Lew Brewer (8).

Prizes can be picked up in room 111 of the Communications Center.

Other games that resulted in problems for many players were Arizona's win over Washington, Georgia's nail-biter over LSU and Arkansas' toppling of Kentucky.

Former Iowa kicker Rob Houghtlin proved that he should stick to advertising with his 4-6 record. His only wins were the no-brainers on the list.

Andrew Bagnato of the Chicago Tribune, who called for coach Hayden Fry's retirement in an article, proved that he knows college football with an 8-2 record. Bagnato covers the sport for his publication.

For the Daily Iowan, Chris Snider and James Kramer led the way with 7-3 records. Wayne Drenth and Andy Hamilton finished 6-4. Since 29 of this week's players managed to win eight games, they proved that they are far from "expert" panelists.

SPORTS BRIEF

Yankees visit Strawberry

NEW YORK (AP) — Hearing the good news secondhand wasn't good enough, so half a dozen New York Yankees visited Darryl Strawberry on Sunday, a day after a cancerous tumor was removed from the outfielder's colon.

Pitcher David Cone intended to bring one of the Yankees' caps, which now have Strawberry's number 39 stitched in white on the back.

"We just want to show him how much we care — and we got the job done he wanted us to do," Cone said before joining teammates Chili Davis, Joe Girardi, Derek Jeter, Tino Martinez, Andy Pettitte and Tim Lincecum on the trip to Columbia-Presbyterian Medical Center, about a mile from Yankee Stadium.

Strawberry was on the Yankees' minds as they prepared for Tuesday's start of the AL championship series against Cleveland. Dr. Stuart Hershorn, the Yankees' team physician, held a clubhouse meeting and gave an update on Strawberry's condition.

Hershorn told them doctors believe the cancer had not spread, but they won't know for sure until tests come back in about 10 days.

Former Iowa kicker Rob Houghtlin proved that he should stick to advertising with his 4-6 record. His only wins were the no-brainers on the list.

Andrew Bagnato of the Chicago Tribune, who called for coach Hayden Fry's retirement in an article, proved that he knows college football with an 8-2 record. Bagnato covers the sport for his publication.

For the Daily Iowan, Chris Snider and James Kramer led the way with 7-3 records. Wayne Drehs and Andy Hamilton finished 6-4. Since 29 of this week's players managed to win eight games, they proved that they are far from "expert" panelists.

Yankees visit Strawberry

NEW YORK (AP) — Hearing the good news secondhand wasn't good enough, so half a dozen New York Yankees visited Darryl Strawberry on Sunday, a day after a cancerous tumor was removed from the outfielder's colon.

Pitcher David Cone intended to bring one of the Yankees' caps, which now have Strawberry's number 39 stitched in white on the back.

"We just want to show him how much we care — and we got the job done he wanted us to do," Cone said before joining teammates Chili Davis, Joe Girardi, Derek Jeter, Tino Martinez, Andy Pettitte and Tim Lincecum on the trip to Columbia-Presbyterian Medical Center, about a mile from Yankee Stadium.

Strawberry was on the Yankees' minds as they prepared for Tuesday's start of the AL championship series against Cleveland. Dr. Stuart Hershorn, the Yankees' team physician, held a clubhouse meeting and gave an update on Strawberry's condition.

Hershorn told them doctors believe the cancer had not spread, but they won't know for sure until tests come back in about 10 days.

Hawkeye defense played well enough to beat No. 25 Michigan

■ With the exception of two drives, the Iowa defense kept the Michigan offense in check.

In a game played in bad weather, the team that wants it more usually wins. The slick, chewed-up turf and wet ball do a lot to equalize the skill of the two teams, giving the team with the most desire the upper hand.

Michigan ended up taking this defensive battle, 12-9, but it was in no way a result of Iowa's defensive play.

The Hawkeye defense wanted this game really bad, and it showed.

Iowa's defenders played more inspired than they had all year, and it was evident in pregame warmups that they were pumped up to take on the Wolverines.

"We just wanted to get after it," safety Eric Thigpen said. "We went out there and played our butts off, but then came up short. We laid it all on the field."

That desire was evident the second time the defense took the field.

After Michigan rolled over the Hawkeyes for 84 yards and a touchdown in its opening possession, it looked like it could be a long afternoon. The Hawkeye defense didn't fold up its tent, though, and held the Wolverines scoreless until their final field goal with 8:19 left in the game. Along the way, Iowa saw Michigan fumble five times, recovering three of them, picked off two passes and sacked quarterback Tom Brady twice.

"It was tough," Brady said. "The whole second quarter we were backed up with terrible field position. Every time I looked, they were swarming around the ball carrier. They run a couple different coverages, and it's tough to deal with."

While Iowa's offense couldn't seem to catch a break, Iowa made its own breaks on defense. Every time it looked as if Michigan might finally pull away, the Hawkeyes came up with a huge play on defense.

Tarig Holman stopped two consecutive drives in the first quarter with interceptions. Anthony Herron forced a punt with a sack. Jared DeVries took the Wolverines out of field-goal range with a sack.

The defense consistently came up ance, including 0-for-4 Saturday night. "When you have the type of pitchers like they have, they are not going to make a lot of mistakes."

CHICAGO — The Atlanta Braves and Greg Maddux are moving on in the NL playoffs. Nothing new there.

The Chicago Cubs' wild wild-card ride is over and their shot at the World Series has vanished again. Nothing new there, either.

Maddux tormented his former team again Saturday night, pitching the Braves over the Cubs 6-2 and sending Atlanta to its seventh straight NL championship series.

"Time really flies. I haven't had time to reflect on all these years. Some day, it'll sink in," Braves manager Bobby Cox said, once again soaked with champagne after victory celebration.

"This team's been great for a long time. I think it will be something that will be hard for any club to do with the format that is out there now. It all starts with pitching. That's how you do it."

There's none better than Maddux, the four-time Cy Young winner who left Chicago six years ago, a move that haunts the Cubs to this day, especially when they see him on the mound at Wrigley Field.

"For me, personally, it's probably the hardest park to pitch in after all that went on here. It takes a long time to let go. I did a good job of letting go but still it's the playoffs," Maddux said after Atlanta completed a three-game sweep.

"Time flies. This is a great park. I love pitching here with the atmosphere and the history I had in this park, but it's pretty hard for me sometimes."

Atlanta advanced to meet San Diego, starting Wednesday night at Turner Field. The Padres defeated the Astros, three games to one in their series.

Big paydays for Rios, Williams at Grand Slam Cup

MUNICH, Germany (AP) — Marcelo Rios can soothe his aching back with a $1.3 million paycheck.

Winning in pain and on the verge of quitting early on, Rios persevered Sunday to beat a weary Andre Agassi in five sets and capture the Grand Slam Cup for the richest prize in tennis.

"I was going to retire, but the trainer told me to give it one more chance," Rios said.

Venus Williams won the inaugural women's edition of the tournament, using a big serve to overpower Patty Schnyder of Switzerland 6-2, 3-6, 6-2 and earn $800,000.

"She really wanted this title, and I really wanted this title, too," Williams said.

Rios looked as if he would retire but the Chilean recovered to win 6-4, 2-6, 7-6 (7-1), 5-7, 6-3.

"Even if I was not feeling good, I played one of my best matches," he said. "I'm really proud I can win a match like that."

Added Agassi: "I didn't really believe he was close to defaulting. I felt he ran incredibly well. He is very talented."

Agassi, now No. 8 after falling from the top 100 last year, seemed worn out by nearly seven hours of tennis in two days. He needed 3 hours, 40 minutes to beat Karol Kucera in the semifinals, while Rios had a three-set win over Mark Philippoussis.

"I wasn't feeling that good all day," said Agassi, who earned $650,000. "It's hard to recover in 15 hours or so."

The $6.7 million tournament, the richest in tennis, tries to feature players with the best records in the year's four Grand Slam events.

But three men Grand Slam champions elected not to show for the event, which awards no ranking points.

Iowa needed to stop Michigan one last time, but couldn't huge to keep Michigan off the board.

"We had some guys come up with some big plays, and big-time players step up in big-time games," Thigpen said. "The line did their job, the linebackers did their job, we just came up a little short."

The conditions did not appear to be hindering Iowa's defense at all. In fact, many of the Hawkeyes said they enjoyed playing in the slop.

Iowa's defense wasn't alone in its desire to bring home a victory, though. The Wolverine defenders played inspired ball throughout the game, as well.

Michigan held Ladell Betts and Rob Thein in check, and made it a point to put a lot of pressure on freshman quarterback Kyle McCann, recording four sacks.

"The more pressure we put on McCann, the easier it is for our defensive backs," linebacker James Hall said. "He stayed calm, but we knew we needed to pressure him. Eventually, we got to him."

Michigan coach Lloyd Carr was extremely pleased with his defense, crediting it with keeping the Wolverines in the game by matching the Hawkeyes' heart, determination and intensity.

"It was definitely a defensive battle," Carr said. "If you like defense, which I do, you loved this game."

While the defenses were the story of the game, the Hawkeye squad couldn't come up with a stop on Michigan's final scoring drive in the fourth quarter.

The Wolverines rolled over the Iowa defense on the first three plays of the drive, getting gains of nine, 15 and 13 yards.

From then on, it was just steady progress until Jay Feely chipped in the 22 yard field goal, giving Michigan a 10-9 lead.

With the Hawkeye offense unable to score in the second half, the Wolverines took the win.

Iowa's defense did everything it could to win the game for the Hawkeyes, but when all said and done, it couldn't bring home the victory by itself.

Maddux doubled in the third and scored Atlanta's first run off Kerry Wood, pitching for the first time in a month after being sidelined with a sprained elbow ligament.

The Braves added five more in the eighth off Chicago's bullpen, capped by a grand slam by Eddie Perez off Rod Beck for a 6-0 lead.

"Wood struck me out twice and when they took him out, I thought we would have more chances," Perez said. "He's one of the guys you don't want to face."

The Cubs loaded the bases in the eighth on consecutive singles by Jose Hernandez, Sandy Martinez and Lance Johnson, finishing Maddux. Mickey Morandini hit a sacrifice fly off Kerry Ligtentberg to make it 6-1.

Bosa then struck out before Mark Grace hit an RBI single. Henry Rodriguez lined out to center, ending the threat.

Elkington wins Buick with par on first extra hole

PINE MOUNTAIN, Ga. (AP) — Steve Elkington spoiled the victory party for Fred Funk, who had led wire-to-wire on one of his favorite courses.

Elkington, coming from four shots back in regulation Sunday, parred the first playoff hole of the Buick Challenge to beat Funk in the $1.5 million tournament.

Funk, who won here in 1995 and was the runnerup in 1996, had called the Mountain View course at Callaway Gardens resort 75 miles southwest of Atlanta, one of his three favorite courses after his opening round 63 and because of his past success.

Elkington, however, likes the place, too. "I love coming here. I know how to play the course," said the native of Australia.

who won here in 1994. By winning the playoff, he became only the third two-time winner in the tournament's history (Hubert Green, 1975 and 1984; and Jerry Pate in 1977-78, when it was known as the Southern Open).

Elkington, sidelined for a month earlier this year with a bout with viral meningitis, shot a 5-under-par 65 for a 267 to tie Funk, who had a 69 in the final round over the par 72, 7,057-yard hilly course surrounded by pine trees.

"I think this course suits Fred because he's a straight hitter, but that's my strong suit as well," said Elkington.

On the first playoff hole — the par 4, 432-yard 18th hole, Funk hit into a fairway bunker, 184 yards from the pin, and Elkington hit into the short rough about 150 yards from the pin.

"I hit my worst drive of the week," said Funk, whose ball was buried in the sand. "I had a bad lie and was pretty much dead. I was just in a place where you can't hit it."

"I was just hoping against hope that I could hit one of my greatest shots ever," he said.

Michigan petitions to reinstate Ray

DETROIT (AP) — Michigan has petitioned the NCAA for the immediate reinstatement of strong safety Marcus Ray, the Detroit Free Press reported today.

The university sent the NCAA a report that does not clear Ray fully of violating NCAA rules, but finds that Ray's involvement with an agent does not warrant more than the three-game suspension he already has served, sources told the newspaper.

"I'm optimistic that (Ray) will be back," Michigan athletic director Tom Goss said.

The school suspended Ray indefinitely Sept. 10 over allegations he had improper contact with an agent in July. He was a second team All-America last year and one of the team's three captains.

Michigan does not play Saturday. Its next game is Oct. 17 at Northwestern.

■ Iowa had some momentum after an ace serve, but the call gave Minnesota the victory.

By Megan Manfull
 The Daily Iowan

A controversial call in the fifth game Friday night shot down the Iowa volleyball team's hopes of recording its first conference victory in 14 matches.

After an ace serve by junior Dawn Peterson, the Hawkeyes closed in on Minnesota's lead, 14-12, giving them hope of ending their long dry spell. But that's as close as Iowa would get.

On the next play, the referees allowed what appeared to be a fourth hit violation by the Gophers and a subsequent point for Iowa.

The referees said the first hit was a block attempt, and the game ended, 15-12. The call gave Minnesota a 13-15, 15-8, 16-14, 9-15, 15-12 victory in Carver-Hawkeye Arena.

"At a time like that, (referees) can't make a mistake like that," Iowa coach Rita Crockett said. "And (the Minnesota player) wasn't blocking, she was going for the hit. I mean, that's not the reason we lost the game, but it could have been a reason we won the game."

Iowa remained on the court, hoping for a change in the referee's call, but despite Crockett's arguments, no points were changed. The Hawkeyes retreated to the locker room and Crockett told her players they have to begin stepping up during close games.

Things are not getting better for the Iowa field hockey team.

After getting swept by Penn State and Ohio State last weekend, the Hawkeyes saw their record drop to 0-4 in the Big Ten with a 2-0 loss to Michigan and a 3-2 loss to Michigan State at Grant Field last weekend.

Sunday against the Spartans, Iowa came out strong and took a 1-0 lead when on a breakaway, Sonia Steffler fed Kerry Lessard, who skipped past the goalkeeper and buried the shot.

The score stood until halftime, but Michigan State came out fired up in the second half and put heavy pressure on an uninspired Hawkeye squad.

"We came out of the half with a 1-0 lead and thought the game was won," coach Beth Beglin said. "Then Michigan State took it right down the field on us, we totally lost our poise, and before we could get a time-out with the ball on our offensive end of the field, they score two quick goals."

"It's absolutely unacceptable for our team to not be prepared and not be on the same page."

Six of the eight team members Wiecek brought to the meet were first-year runners, although their youth served them well as they blew away the competition.

Iowa's "B" team was just as successful as the regulars, as the Hawkeyes placed seven runners in the top ten for the second time this season.

"We dominated the meet," Wiecek said. "I was really pleased, it definitely was a worthwhile trip."

The race ended in a photo finish, with Reed Steele beating out his freshman counterpart Shaun Allen by six-tenths of a second. Both Steele and Allen broke the course

Iowa remained on the court, hoping for a change in the referee's call, but despite Crockett's arguments, no points were changed. The Hawkeyes retreated to the locker room and Crockett told her players they have to begin stepping up during close games.

"Every time we play I see something better," Crockett said. "But when we need something, we make stupid mistakes — really cowardly mistakes. And I told them, we're here to make players, not cowards."

With the five-game loss to No. 22 Minnesota and the four-game loss to No. 6 Wisconsin last week, Iowa proved it can contend with the best teams in the Big Ten — it just can't finish them off.

Four of Iowa's starters finished with double figures in kills, including junior Julie Williams (24), sophomore Katie Panhorst (14), senior Jordan Schultz (13) and freshman Sara Meyermann (10).

But Iowa is still an ingredient short of being in the thick of the Big Ten — arguably the nation's toughest volleyball conference. Friday, Iowa will face No. 1 Penn State on the road. And Crockett has no quick solutions in ending the losing streak.

"We do need more players," Crockett said. "But this team here is a very good team. And they need to realize that and just cut down on their errors."

"The one good thing is that this team is not at its best yet. And these teams we're playing are maxed out. They've peaked. So if we can keep working hard, maybe we can get them second round."

Iowa's most consistent players are continuing to get stronger. Setter Barb Zvonek has been a steady and solid player for the Hawkeyes all season. And Williams has picked up her game on defense, while remaining the team's top hitter.

Panhorst has caught on quickly to her position change (outside hitter to middle), and has become one of Iowa's most deadly weapons on offense.

But Crockett said she still hasn't established the ideal lineup.

"Meyermann is doing great, but she's not ready to come in the back row yet, so we have Dawn for that," Crockett said. "It's just a matter of time when she can pass and play the back row. She does it in practice. Then we'll be able to use Dawn for someone else. We just have a lot of basic skill weaknesses."

Beglin: Some Iowa players don't want it bad enough

The Iowa field hockey team lost two conference matches at home last weekend.

Things are not getting better for the Iowa field hockey team.

After getting swept by Penn State and Ohio State last weekend, the Hawkeyes saw their record drop to 0-4 in the Big Ten with a 2-0 loss to Michigan and a 3-2 loss to Michigan State at Grant Field last weekend.

Sunday against the Spartans, Iowa came out strong and took a 1-0 lead when on a breakaway, Sonia Steffler fed Kerry Lessard, who skipped past the goalkeeper and buried the shot.

The score stood until halftime, but Michigan State came out fired up in the second half and put heavy pressure on an uninspired Hawkeye squad.

"We came out of the half with a 1-0 lead and thought the game was won," coach Beth Beglin said. "Then Michigan State took it right down the field on us, we totally lost our poise, and before we could get a time-out with the ball on our offensive end of the field, they score two quick goals."

"It's absolutely unacceptable for our team to not be prepared and not be on the same page."

The Spartans managed to put another on the board off an in-bounds pass with 14:49 left, making the score 3-1.

This fired up the Hawkeyes, who began diving at every loose ball, while putting heavy pressure on the Michigan State defense. Senior forward Quan Nim led the Iowa charge.

The Hawkeyes had a few good chances to score in the last ten minutes, keyed by a pair of penalty corners. On the first, Lessard fired a rocket through the Spartan corner unit that bounced off the goalkeeper's pad before she even reacted to the shot.

On the second, Nim tipped a Kelly Dolan shot from the point, pulling the Hawkeyes within one.

"I just stood in front of the keeper and tipped a great shot from Dolan," Nim said. "That's what we have to do, get on the keeper and scrap around. It doesn't have to be pretty, and we have to understand that. Just take a shot from the top of the circle and someone will scrap for it."

"We need more heart and desire, more diving, just doing whatever we can to put that ball in the cage."

At that point, though, Michigan State shored up its defense, and the Hawkeyes failed to challenge the Spartan lead.

"We didn't deserve to win this game," Beglin said. "We totally lost our poise, we became frantic, and we were afraid to lose."

"You can't sit there and wait until the other team puts you in a hole with two goals before you decide to come out and play with heart and desire. Was I happy with the way we responded? Yes, but we should have been doing that the whole game."

Against Michigan on Friday, the Hawkeyes played much better, controlling the ball for extended periods of time and out-cornering the Wolverines 7-1.

"I was far happier with the game against Michigan than the game against Michigan State," Beglin said. "We outplayed Michigan, we out-cornered them, and we played one of the best possession games this year. We just couldn't put the ball in the cage."

At 0-4 in the Big Ten, the Hawkeyes have dug themselves a huge hole at the halfway point of the season. A drastic turnaround will be needed if perennial power Iowa has any aspirations of post-season play.

"Every single player on this team needs to take a long look at how they prepare themselves for each game, whether we are together as a team, and whether they want it bad enough," Beglin said. "Right now, they don't want it bad enough to deserve to win."

"I'm not quite sure how bad this hurts some people. I know it hurts some people really, really bad, but I don't think it hurts enough people."

Hawkeyes play better, but settle for a loss and a tie

By Roger Kuznia
The Daily Iowan

The Iowa women's soccer team accomplished two big goals this weekend, but they weren't victories.

The Hawkeyes (5-4-2, 0-4-1 Big Ten) lost at Michigan Friday 3-1 and dueled Michigan State to a 0-0 overtime tie Sunday in East Lansing, Mich.

The first achievement was a rather modest one. Against the Wolverines, Iowa scored its first Big Ten goal in 485 minutes, a drought dating back to last October's Michigan State game.

The Hawkeyes averted the shutout when junior defender Jenny Hyngstrom scored from 25 yards out on a free kick with less than a minute remaining in the game.

"We're happy to get on the scoreboard," Gabbert said. "I think that was an accomplishment for us to get the monkey off our back."

Iowa's other accomplishment was playing well for the entire 90 minutes. A lack of consistency has plagued the Hawkeyes throughout the season. Iowa played well in spurts in each of its previous three Big Ten games, but didn't put it all together until this past weekend. Amber Berendowsky scored two of the Wolverines' goals and assisted on the other one, which Emily Schmitt scored on. Berendowsky now has 31 career goals, one shy of the Michigan school record.

Though her team only scored once in the two games, Gabbert said it wasn't due to a lack of good chances. Luck still hasn't found its way to the Hawkeyes, as another scoring chance clanged off the goal post against Michigan.

"It's just a matter of us getting a break and getting one in, and I think we're going to score a lot more," Gabbert said.

Iowa will play Ohio State this Friday at the Hawkeye Recreation Fields before travelling east for a game against Penn State.

Gabbert said her team is still not out of contention for a Big Ten tournament berth. Besides the Buckeyes and the Nittany Lions, Iowa still has to play Indiana and Illinois — teams the Hawkeyes can beat.

"If we explode now and just start scoring a lot of goals, it's not going to matter that we haven't scored (much)."

Iowa men dominate cross country meet in Fayette

Iowa men's cross country coach Larry Wiecek said the main reason for competing in last Friday's Upper Iowa Classic was to get his freshman class some valuable meet experience.

Six of the eight team members Wiecek brought to the meet were first-year runners, although their youth served them well as they blew away the competition.

Iowa's "B" team was just as successful as the regulars, as the Hawkeyes placed seven runners in the top ten for the second time this season.

"We dominated the meet," Wiecek said. "I was really pleased, it definitely was a worthwhile trip."

The race ended in a photo finish, with Reed Steele beating out his freshman counterpart Shaun Allen by six-tenths of a second. Both Steele and Allen broke the course record on their way to finishing 1-2.

Junior Tim Pleskac, one of the two Hawkeye upperclassmen to compete, finished just ahead of freshmen Adam Thomas and Joe Welter, who came in fourth and sixth, respectively.

Luther College finished second, followed by the University of Dubuque, Cornell, Upper Iowa, William Penn and Iowa Wesleyan.

"It wasn't Big Ten competition, but there were some good people there," Wiecek said.

The meet served as a way for the younger runners to contribute, and their contributions will be needed next weekend at the Murray Keatinge Invitational in Orono, Maine.

National powers Michigan, UCLA and Boston College are expected to compete.

Hawkeye men's golf team to compete in Indianapolis

The Iowa men's golf team travels to Indianapolis, Ind., today to play in the Legends of Indiana Invitational.

The Hawkeyes look to improve on their fourth-place finish in the Jack Moyers Cup last weekend in Iowa City.

Senior Chris England won the individual championship at the Moyers Cup. The win assures England a spot on the Iowa roster for the remainder of the season. The team has a rule that if a player wins a tournament, he does not have to qualify for a spot on the starting five.

Adam Turner finished in the top ten last weekend for Iowa. Coach Terry Anderson said he has been pleased with Turner's performance over the course of the season. Turner's eighth-place finish was his best as a Hawkeye.

Despite having the best finish of the season, Anderson said the team still has room for improvement.

"We just have to strive to improve week after week," Anderson said. "Last week was good because we got a chance to be competitive going into the final day. The experience will help us in future tournaments."

Indians not intimidated by Yankees' dominance

The Facts: Cleveland defeated New York in last year's ALCS, despite being the underdog. The Impact: Since the Yankees appear to be almost invincible this year, the Indians will need an effort similar to last year.

By Tom Withers
Associated Press

NEW YORK — The Indians swear they won't be afraid. They've been to New York, seen the sights, even won a few games on baseball's holiest and most hostile grounds.

Cleveland visited the Bronx this time last year, and the Indians had such a pleasant experience they're coming back for a few days. Like last October, they're not expected to beat the Yankees.

And that's just fine with the Indians.

"Maybe we can do it again," shortstop Omar Vizquel said. "I know they've been waiting for another shot at us, and now it's time to go at it."

Showing the same resiliency that helped them surprise New York and Baltimore en route to winning the AL championship in 1997, the Indians earned a chance to defend their title by winning three straight games — two with late-inning comebacks at Fenway Park — to eliminate the Red Sox.

How the Indians defeated a team that beat them eight times in 11 games during the regular season is still a bit mysterious. Cleveland batted just .206 to Boston's .252, was outscored 20-18 in four games and had a team ERA of 5.00.

But as the Indians proved last year, the postseason devalues statistics while elevating intangibles like momentum, emotion and good fortune.

"I don't think you get to the postseason by being lucky," Cleveland manager Mike Hargrove said. "You have to be a good ballclub and if you catch a few breaks along the way, you can piece some wins together and maybe beat some people along the way that the experts say you're not supposed to beat."

"We feel very good about ourselves and that we can match up with anyone."

Cleveland's reward for beating Boston is a best-of-7 series against the vaunted Yankees, who won 114 games during the season before blowing through Texas with startling efficiency in the first round.

But don't expect the Indians to be shaking in their cleats for Game 1 Tuesday night. Cleveland is loaded with experience, and for all the postgame partying in Boston, a been-there, done-that feeling seemed to emanate throughout the Indians' clubhouse.

"They have a great ballclub from top to bottom," David Justice, Cleveland's Game 4 hero, said of the Yankees. "But we're confident we can play on the same field with them. The games will dictate who comes up with the big hits and who's going to be the star on any given night."

Last year, the Indians' brightest postseason star in beating the Yankees in the division series was Jaret Wright. Unfazed by pitching at Yankee Stadium as a rookie, he beat the Yankees in Game 2 and then came back in his next start to win the decisive Game 5.

Wright, 2-1 with a 3.66 ERA vs. New York this year, was disgusted with his performance in Game 1 last week against the Red Sox. The 22-year-old right-hander allowed six runs in 4½ innings in an 11-3 loss, and afterward wrestled with thoughts of waiting all winter before he could redeem himself.

"If you had told me four days ago that I'd be standing in our locker room with champagne flying all over the place, I would have found that very hard to believe," he said.

Revenge on the minds of Yankees

■ New York players are using last year's loss to Cleveland as motivation for this season.

By Ronald Blum
Associated Press

NEW YORK — Thank you, Cleveland.

Some Yankees think the Indians are responsible for New York's record-breaking season. The five-game loss in the first round of last year's playoffs motivated the Yankees to work extra hard in the weight rooms last winter.

And that extra urge for revenge figures to be a factor when New York opens the AL championship series against the Indians at Yankee Stadium on Tuesday night.

"We're a year removed from losing to them in the playoffs last year, but I think it's fresh in people's minds," David Cone said after a two-hour workout in a drizzle Sunday. "If we had gotten by Cleveland, maybe we could have gotten to the World Series and we'd be thinking about three in a row. Maybe it's the reason we won 114 games and we're in the position we are in now. Maybe it was a slap in the face."

And believe this: This is not a team that takes a slapping lightly. The Yankees were four outs away from advancing before Sandy Alomar Jr. homered off Mariano Rivera in the eighth inning of Game 4 at Jacobs Field.

"It's hard to forget they beat us last year," Paul O'Neill said. "It's a different year, a different team. There's a lot more at stake. Last year was the first round. This year's a ticket to the World Series."

New York manager Joe Torre is shaking up his rotation slightly, choosing David Wells to open, Cone to pitch Game 2, Andy Pettitte to start Game 3 in Cleveland and Orlando Hernandez to pitch Game 4. If the series extends, Wells would pitch the fifth game, followed by Cone in Game 6 and Pettitte in Game 7.

Eric Gay/Associated Press

"Hopefully it won't go seven," said Pettitte, who pitched the second game in the opening sweep of Texas. "Hopefully, we can take care of business and get out of there."

New York won seven of 11 from Cleveland during the regular season, and broke the AL record for wins set by the Indians team that went 111-43 in 1954. With the three-game sweep of Texas in the first round, the Yankees moved within a game of the record for wins in one year — regular and postseason — in one year, set by the 1906 Chicago Cubs (118).

"I don't think there's a feeling of revenge," Tino Martinez said. "We just want to do our job. Because they beat us last year? That's history."

Yankees manager Joe Torre decided to move up Cone from Game 3 for two reasons: Cone made only 85 pitches in the rain-shortened clincher Friday night, and Torre wanted Cone to pitch at Yankee Stadium. Since arm surgery in 1996 and 1997, Cone has lost some feeling in his fingers in cold weather, and Torre thinks it will be colder in Cleveland than in New York.

Cone wants revenge more than most Yankees. He started the 1997 postseason opener against the Indians and was pounded for six earned runs and seven hits in 3½ innings in a game New York won 8-6.

"But you can't get caught up in last year," Torre said.

Padres dismiss Houston

■ Jim Leyritz is becoming Mr. October, and the San Diego Padres are the beneficiaries.

By Bernie Wilson
Associated Press

SAN DIEGO — Champagne dripped off Jim Leyritz's shaved head, his reward for an astounding run of clutch home runs.

Leyritz is a playoff hero once again, and the San Diego Padres are going back to the NL championship series after a 14-year absence, their tense division series against Randy Johnson and the Houston Astros secured with a 6-1 win Sunday night.

"I'm numb right now," said Leyritz, who led the Padres to a 3-1 series win by homering in the final three games. "I can't believe all that's gone on. I don't even want to think about it. Let it just keep rolling, man!"

Leyritz was one of the New York Yankees' heroes in 1996, hitting a dramatic three-run homer in the eighth inning of Game 4 at Atlanta, and now he's got the Padres headed for a showdown for the NL pennant with the Braves starting Wednesday night at Turner Field.

He set the tone Sunday with a 422-foot drive to left center off Johnson leading off the second as twilight settled over Qualcomm Stadium.

"He's just got a history of being big in the postseason, and this series was no different," said winning pitcher Sterling Hitchcock, who used a devastating split-fingered fastball to strike out 11 in six innings.

Johnson, the Big Unit, is not going to make it to the World Series as many thought. He lost his fifth straight decision in the postseason,

Kevork Djansezian/Associated Press

San Diego's Jim Leyritz connects for a second-inning homer Sunday against Houston's Randy Johnson, tying a major league record.

"I didn't have my best stuff, but you give up three earned runs in 14 innings (in two starts), you don't feel like you're going to lose too many ballgames," said Johnson, who left for a pinch-hitter in the seventh.

"Everybody counted us out," Hitchcock said. "They said we couldn't beat Johnson twice in a five-game series. Well, we beat him twice in a four-game series. These guys never let up."

This series was close and tense, with the first three games being decided by one run. This one was headed that way until reliever Jay Powell gave up pinch-hitter John Vander Wal's two-run triple and Wally Joyner's two-run homer in the eighth.

With the crowd of 64,898 roaring, Trevor Hoffman closed out the ninth for the Padres, who now face a Braves team that beat them five times in nine games this year.

Houston's Ricky Gutierrez knelt in the on-deck circle for a few minutes after the final out, which sent the Padres bursting out of the dugout and fireworks bursting overhead. Craig Biggio sat in the dugout, stunned, staring at the scene. Like they did the night they won the NL West, Padres players and their families partied on the field.

This is the first time the Padres have been this far since 1984, when they beat the Chicago Cubs to win the pennant, only to lose the World Series, 4-1 to Detroit.

Tony Gwynn, 38, is the only player left from that Padres team, although Bruce Bochy is the manager and Tim Lincecum the third base coach.

"Everyone knew coming into the playoffs that all roads lead to Atlanta," Gwynn said. "I'm excited."

The Astros, who led the NL in scoring this season but managed just eight runs in this series, go home frustrated for a second straight year, having been swept by Atlanta in the first round in 1997. Houston has been in five postseason series, and lost all of them.

"It's just kind of hard for me to think about," Houston star Jeff Bagwell said. "It's just too devastating to even think about."

Hitchcock and three relievers combined on a three-hitter Sunday. "I've seen it before," manager Larry Dierker said. "It happened here at a critical time."

Johnson was brilliant after being traded from Seattle to Houston on July 31, going 10-1 with a 1.28 ERA. But the Padres beat him twice this series.

Leyritz had been just 4-for-37 (.108) with one home run lifetime off Johnson.

Ho hum: Braves earn 7th straight NLCS berth

■ Atlanta improved to 12-1 in the division series with its three-game sweep of the Cubs.

By Paul Newberry
Associated Press

ATLANTA — The surest bet in sports? It might be the Atlanta Braves in the division series.

While the Braves have struggled in the World Series, winning only once in four tries this decade, they've owned the best-of-5 round that was added in 1995, treating it as nothing more than some bothersome gnats to be swatted away on the road to the NL championship series.

Atlanta finished off its third straight sweep with a 6-2 victory Saturday over the Chicago Cubs. Overall, the Braves are 4-for-4 in the first round, losing only once in 13 games.

"We expect to win," said Greg Maddux, who completed a dominating three days by Atlanta pitching in the clinching game at Wrigley Field.

The Braves move on to play in their seventh straight NLCS, a feat that's even more remarkable considering the extra round of playoffs they've had to get through the last four years.

"It is a grind," manager Bobby Cox said. "It is something that will be hard to do for any club with the format that's out there now."

After beating Colorado 3-1 in 1995, Atlanta swept Los Angeles, Houston and now the Cubs. Over the last three years, the Braves have given up only 14 runs in nine first-round games.

Atlanta, 4-2 in the championship series since 1991, will meet the San Diego Padres in the NLCS. The Padres defeated Houston in Game 4 of their division series Sunday night.

Morry Gash/Associated Press

Atlanta pitcher Greg Maddux hurls a pitch Saturday in a 6-2 victory over the Chicago Cubs. Maddux's effort capped an incredible division series by the Atlanta pitching staff, which gave up four runs in three games.

In a champagne-soaked clubhouse, the Braves were in no mood for reflection. As usual, the season won't be considered a success unless they win another World Series title, so there's eight more victories to go.

"It really hasn't sunk in yet," Cox said. "The organization has had tremendous success. We have had great teams for a long time and to be able to (play in the NLCS seven straight times) is really something, trying to keep it all together, keeping your players as healthy as you can, things like that."

As long as the Braves keep their magnificent pitching staff together, they will always be a contender. Just ask the Cubs, who averaged more than five runs a game during the season but managed only four in three games against the Braves, hitting a minuscule .181 as a team.

"I've always thought that good pitching beats good hitting," Maddux said after proving that point. "We pitched them good and came away with the win."

He'll get no argument from the Cubs — especially Sammy Sosa. After hitting 66 homers in his memorable duel with Mark McGwire, he went 2-for-11 in the division series with no homers or RBIs. "They've got a better team,"

Sosa said. "They've got better pitching."

The Atlanta starters were masterful. John Smoltz went 7½ innings in Game 1, surrendering five hits and a run. Tom Glavine gave up only three hits and a run in Game 2. Then Maddux finished it off by allowing seven hits and two runs in Game 3.

Still, the difference was in the bullpen. While Chicago's relievers surrendered nine runs in 6½ innings, their no-name Atlanta counterparts — Kerry Ligtenberg, John Rocker, Rudy Seanez and Odalis Perez — pitched 6½ scoreless innings, giving up just two hits.

Atlanta didn't even need its other two starters, 17-game winner Kevin Millwood and 16-game winner Denny Neagle, who were sent to the bullpen for the division series.

Cox will have to decide if he wants to stick with a three-man rotation for the best-of-7 championship series, or take a chance on Neagle's bursitis-stricken left shoulder in Game 4.

The Braves expressed no preference about their opponent in the next round.

"I'm just glad we're going," Maddux said.

Where else would they be this time of year?

Bears pull out

■ Chicago scored 21 fourth-quarter points to win its first game since last December.

CHICAGO — As Erik Kramer ran out for the Chicago Bears' last series, his arms raised in victory, he heard a very unfamiliar sound.

Applause. After weeks of boos, the Bears finally gave fans something to cheer for Sunday. Kramer and Edgar Bennett each threw for a touchdown, and Kramer ran for another in the fourth quarter as Chicago (1-4) scored 21 straight points and rallied for a 31-27 victory over the Detroit Lions (1-4).

It was Chicago's first victory in five games this season, and its first since beating the St. Louis Rams last Dec. 14.

"It's been awhile, to have that exalted feeling after a game. Now we've got to keep it up," said Kramer, who beat his former team for the first time in seven tries.

"We've overcome a lot to get here," he said. "We put ourselves in a hole every game and finally we were able to battle our way out of it. There's a lot of relief, a lot of satisfaction."

Kramer was 26-of-37 for 275 yards and two TDs, and Bennett had his best outing as a Bear, rushing for 88 yards on 21 carries. Chris Penn, starting in place of the injured Curtis Conway, caught six passes for a career-high 106 yards.

Chicago limited Barry Sanders to 28 yards on 14 carries, one of his worst games ever. Lions rookie Charlie Batch was 16-of-31 for 268 yards and two TDs, and Johnnie Morton caught two passes for 138 yards, including a 98-yard TD catch.

"We just took a good old-fashioned whupping in the fourth quarter," Lions coach Bobby Ross said. "We had them at 27-10 in the fourth quarter and let them back. We couldn't stop them."

Actually, the Lions couldn't stop the Bears at all. Chicago did that all on its own. The Bears fumbled the ball five times, leading to 13 Detroit points. Their third-quarter woes continued as the Lions scored 17 consecutive points. The Bears have now been outscored 61-0 in

"We just took a good old-fashioned whupping in the fourth quarter," Lions coach Bobby Ross said. "We had them at 27-10 in the fourth quarter and let them back. We couldn't stop them."

Actually, the Lions couldn't stop the Bears at all. Chicago did that all on its own. The Bears fumbled the ball five times, leading to 13 Detroit points. Their third-quarter woes continued as the Lions scored 17 consecutive points. The Bears have now been outscored 61-0 in the third quarter this season.

But instead of giving up like usual, Chicago rallied. With rookie Curtis Enis in the locker room with back spasms, Bennett took charge. He rushed for 20 yards, and then hit Chris Penn with the 18-yard scoring pass on the halfback option to cut Detroit's lead to 27-17 with 12:52 left.

"We worked on that all week," Penn said. "We had it in the game plan for a couple of weeks, and we were just trying to find the right time to use it."

Bennett refused to talk after the game.

After the Lions went three-and-out, Kramer found Fabien Bowens for a 6-yard score, pulling the Bears to 27-24 with 4:34 left. The Bears defense did its job again, getting Chicago the ball back at its own 42 with 3:18 left.

On second- and-5 from the Detroit 38, Kramer connected with Penn on what looked like a touchdown. But Penn went out at the 1, and Kramer ran it in on the next play for the 31-27 lead with 1:50 left.

"I should have scored, but I didn't want to get greedy," Penn said, laughing. "I just wanted to get close and hold onto the football."

Batch broke the 10-10 halftime tie with a 3-yard pass to Pete Chryplewicz, and then got the ball back on another Chicago fumble. Batch connected with Morton on a 40-yard pass, and Tommy Vardell ran it in from the 1 to make it 24-10 with 4:59 left in the third quarter.

Kramer was sacked on the first play and fumbled, leading to Jason Hanson's 43-yard field goal that made it 27-10. Detroit's first score, Hanson's 28-yard field goal, also was courtesy of a Chicago fumble.

"We were sloppy with the ball today," coach Dave Wannstedt said. "To turn it over five times today and be able to overcome that, it shouldn't happen. It shouldn't happen."

Detroit added another score in the first quarter on Morton's 98-yard TD. With Batch backed up deep into the end zone, Morton gave Terry Cousin a little shove, caught the pass at his own 29 and ran untouched to the end zone. It was the second-longest TD reception in Detroit history.

Dwight's 93-yard TD return lifts Falcons

■ Former Iowa All-American Tim Dwight has brought his kick return heroics to the NFL.

ATLANTA (AP) — Carolina gave up a touchdown on the opening kickoff. Then things got worse for the Panthers.

Atlanta scored three touchdowns in a 48-second span of the third quarter — the quickest trio of TDs since the NFL-AFL merger in 1970 — and went on to rout the Panthers 51-23 Sunday, the most points scored by the Falcons in a quarter-century.

"It was awesome," said Atlanta's Jamal Anderson, who rushed for 117 yards including a 20-yard touchdown. "I was thinking, 'Please, coach, don't take me out.'"

Tim Dwight put the Falcons (3-1) ahead just 15 seconds into the game with a 93-yard kickoff return, and the Panthers totally fell apart in the third quarter, fumbling on their first three possessions.

Carolina finished with six turnovers.

"What can you really say about a game like that?" Kerry Collins said. "We're bad. We're really bad. We're embarrassed."

Dwight, a 5-foot-8 rookie from Iowa, set the tone when he took John Kasay's opening kickoff at the 7, cut through a gaping hole on the left side and cruised all the way to the end zone. The Panthers' coverage was so poor that only one defender even got a hand on Dwight.

"That was a basic textbook return," Dwight said. "It opened up real well and all I had to do was run through."

Following Dwight's opening touchdown, Atlanta scored again just six minutes later. On third-and-6 at the Carolina 30, Chris Chandler rolled away from the rush and hit Tony Martin on a scoring pass down the middle.

The teams traded field goals to leave the Falcons with a 14-point lead at the half.

The first of three field goals by Morten Andersen was set up by some Atlanta razzle-dazzle. Dwight took a handoff on a reverse, then threw back to Chandler for a 22-yard completion.

Chandler completed 12-of-20 for 189 yards before he was replaced with five minutes to go by 44-year-old Steve DeBerg, making his first appearance since 1993 and becoming the oldest NFL player since George Blanda.

Bills 26, 49ers 21
ORCHARD PARK, N.Y. — Rob Johnson threw for 254 yards and a touchdown, and Buffalo shut down San Francisco's high-powered offense for most of the game before surviving a late rally and beating the 49ers 26-21 Sunday.

The Bills, who had won only one of their previous 10 games, built a 23-0 lead in the third quarter before the 49ers staged a comeback and pulled within 26-21 on Steve Young's 21-yard TD pass to J.J. Stokes with 1:03 left.

San Francisco (3-1) then tried an onside kick, but it was recovered by Buffalo (1-3). The 49ers, ranked first in the NFL in rushing, passing and total offense, were held to 56 yards passing and 105 total yards in the first half.

Colts 17, Chargers 12
INDIANAPOLIS — It was billed as the rookie showdown between Peyton Manning and Ryan Leaf, but Elijah Alexander and Ken Dilger stole the show and led the Indianapolis Colts to their first win of the season.

Alexander intercepted a pass by Leaf to set up one touchdown and recovered a fumble to set up another. Dilger ran in a 2-point conversion on a well-executed fake after the TD and recovered an onside kick after the Chargers had pulled within two points with 1:48 left.

That led to Mike Vanderjagt's third field goal, a 40-yarder that clinched the game for the Colts (1-4). Manning was 12-of-23 for 137 yards with an interception, while Leaf was 12-of-23 for 150 yards with an interception for the Chargers (2-3).

Jets 20, Dolphins 9
EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. — Curtis Martin rushed for 108 yards and a touchdown as the New York Jets snapped a four-game losing streak to the Miami Dolphins.

Dan Marino had a poor day for the Dolphins (3-1), going 13-of-31 for 121 yards, getting sacked three times and throwing two interceptions. Miami's running attack also sputtered, gaining just 34 yards.

Vinny Testaverde, subbing at quarterback again for injured Glenn Foley, threw a 10-yard TD pass to Keyshawn Johnson for the Jets (2-2).

Cowboys 31, Redskins 10
LANDOVER, Md. — Jason Garrett, Emmitt Smith and Chris Warren had big days as the Dallas Cowboys routed the winless Washington Redskins.

Garrett completed 14 of 17 passes for 169 yards and a touchdown, while Smith and Warren each ran for 100 yards and combined for three touchdowns for Dallas (3-2).

Smith ran for 120 yards and a touchdown, and Warren rushed for 104 yards and two TDs against the Redskins (0-5), who are off to their worst start since 1981.

Patriots 30, Saints 27
NEW ORLEANS — Adam Vinatieri kicked a 27-yard field goal with three seconds left as New England handed New Orleans its first loss of the season. After New Orleans tied it on Doug Brien's 37-yard field goal with 1:29 remaining, Drew Bledsoe completed four passes to set up the game-winning field goal for the Patriots (3-1).

The Saints (3-1) had tied the game 27-27 after a heady play by punt returner Andre Hastings. After the Patriots punted, New England's Tebucky Jones batted the ball out of the end zone to Larry Whigham, who unsuccessfully tried to down it. Hastings grabbed the ball and raced 76 yards to the Patriots 26, setting up O'Brien's field goal six plays later.

Broncos 41, Eagles 16

DENVER — Bubba Brister, filling in for an ailing John Elway, threw four touchdown passes and Terrell Davis ran for 168 yards and two scores as Denver routed Philadelphia.

The defending Super Bowl champions (5-0) built a 35-2 halftime lead and 41-2 advantage after three quarters before Charlie Garner ran for a pair of 3-yard scores in the final period for the winless Eagles (0-5).

Davis, the NFL's leading rusher, had 120 yards and both of his touchdowns in the first quarter and finished the half with 168 yards. He sat out the second half.

Bucs 20, Giants 3
TAMPA, Fla. — Tampa Bay bounced back from an embarrassing Monday night loss, playing inspired defense to beat the Giants.

Charles Mincy returned an interception 22 yards for a touchdown on the third play of the game, and Regan Upshaw and Ronde Barber also picked off passes for Tampa Bay (2-3), which was coming off a 21-point loss to Detroit.

The Bucs held New York (2-3) to 135 yards in total offense.

Raiders 23, Cardinals 20
TEMPE, Ariz. — Donald Hollas, playing his first NFL game since 1994, replaced an injured Jeff George with 50 seconds left in the first quarter and guided Oakland over Arizona.

Hollas was 12-of-22 for 104 yards and scored on a 1-yard run for the Raiders (3-2), who were trailing 7-3 when he entered the game.

Jake Plummer was 23-of-39 for 208 yards and two touchdowns, but had three interceptions that cost the Cardinals (2-3) their chance at winning three straight games for the first time in two years.

Chiefs 17, Seahawks 6
KANSAS CITY, Mo. — On a rainy night when violent storms suspended play for almost an hour, the winning team should have been the one with Watters.

But Rich Gannon, atoning for three lost fumbles, scored on a 4-yard run and connected with Andre Rison for an 80-yard touchdown Sunday night as Kansas City beat Seattle, 17-6, following a first-half downpour and a 54-minute delay.

As torrential rains pelted the field and lightning flashed across the nighttime sky, NFL officials halted play at 8:14 CDT, with 7:10 left in the second quarter and the score knotted 3-all. Halftime was cut in half to six minutes.

Fans were told to go to the protected areas of the stadium for their own safety.

Weather officials said 3.66 inches of rain fell in downtown Kansas City in a two-hour period starting just before kickoff, but rainfall totals of 6 inches or more were registered across the area.

Three-quarter inch hail was reported across the area and some wind gusts reached 70 mph.

Only a light rain fell most of the second half, but the muddy conditions contributed to more sloppy play, including two lost fumbles by Seattle running back Ricky Watters and five for the Chiefs (4-1), one short of the 29-year-old team record.

COLLEGE FOOTBALL

COLLEGE FOOTBALL ROUNDUP

Buckeyes hold firm at No. 1

■ LSU lost and Nebraska nearly did, solidifying Ohio State's No. 1 ranking.

By Richard Rosenblatt
Associated Press

Ohio State is still the one. Georgia's upset of LSU, Nebraska's narrow escape against Oklahoma State and a few other close calls shuffled the college football rankings this week.

But the No. 1 Buckeyes held firm, thanks to a stingy defense that turned a fumble and a blocked punt into touchdowns, and beat Penn State 28-9 on a rainy Saturday in Columbus, Ohio.

"I look at it as a solid win over the No. 7 team in the country," Ohio State coach John Cooper said after his team held the Nittany Lions to 181 total yards. "I think we've beaten three real good, solid teams this year."

That would be West Virginia, Missouri and Penn State, all Top 25 teams. With a solid grip on the top spot it has held since the preseason poll, Ohio State (4-0, 1-0 Big Ten) is set for another national title run.

The toughest game over the next six weeks appears to be at home against Michigan State on Nov. 7. Then comes Michigan on Nov. 21. The Wolverines are 8-1-1 against Cooper-coached Ohio State teams.

No. 2 Nebraska (5-0) nearly dropped off the road to the Fiesta Bowl — the Bowl Championship Series' designated title game — but defensive end Mike Rucker stopped Nathan Simmons at the 1 on the last play of the game and the Cornhuskers beat the Cowboys 24-17 at Arrowhead Stadium.

"Sometimes your whole season comes down to one play, and sometimes it comes down to one foot," Rucker said. He was referring to a last-second, game-tying TD catch by Matt Davison against Missouri in '97 that came after a Husker player's foot kept the ball alive. Nebraska won in overtime, 45-38.

The Huskers extended the nation's longest major-college winning streak to 19 games and kept the Cowboys winless against them since 1961 — a 35-game stretch. But Nebraska looked beatable after running for just 73 yards — 240 under their average.

At Baton Rouge, La., freshman Quincy Carter hit on 27 of 34 passes for 318 yards and two TDs as Georgia (4-0) surprised LSU 28-21. The Bulldogs moved from No. 12 to No. 7 in this week's AP poll and play host to No. 4 Tennessee on Saturday. LSU dropped from No. 6 to No. 11.

The Vols (4-0, 2-0 SEC) had a tough time at Auburn before winning 17-9 while Florida State and Florida both struggled — the Seminoles beat Maryland 24-10 and the Gators hung on at Alabama 16-10.

In this week's Top 25, UCLA moved up a spot to No. 3 after beating Washington State 49-17, while Florida moved up two spots to No. 6 and Penn State fell six places to No. 13.

In next Saturday's top matchups, it's Tennessee at Georgia, UCLA at Arizona and Kansas State at Colorado.

No. 1 Ohio St. 28, No. 13 Penn St. 9
In a six-minute span covering the second and third periods, the Buckeyes scored three TDs to pull away from the Nittany Lions (3-1, 0-1).

Linebacker Jerry Rudzinski recovered Penn State quarterback Kevin Thompson's fumble in the end zone and Joe Germaine threw a 20-yard TD pass to Michael Wiley to put Ohio State ahead 14-3 at halftime. Then, Percy King blocked Pat Pidgeon's punt, lost control of the ball in the end zone and Joe Cooper pounced on it for a score and a 21-3 lead.

At Kansas City, Mo., Joe Walker's 73-yard punt return for a TD with 7:29 left broke a 17-17 game, but the Cowboys (2-2, 11 Big 12) nearly forced OT.

On fourth-and-4 at the Huskers 12 with 14 seconds left, Tony Lindsay hit Sean Love with an 11-yard pass. After spiking the ball to stop the clock with five seconds left, Simmons ran up the middle but was stopped by Rucker and a swarm of defenders.

"We didn't come up here for a moral victory," Cowboys coach Bob Simmons said. "We had a good game plan and we thought we could execute the game plan. We came up here to win."

No. 3 UCLA 49, Washington St. 17

At Pasadena, Calif., Cade McNown threw for 205 yards and a TD and ran for another score as the Bruins (3-0, 1-0 Pac-10) ran their school-record winning streak to 13 games.

Jermaine Lewis and Keith Brown each ran for two TDs as UCLA avenged last year's 37-24 the Cougars (3-2, 0-2).

No. 4 Tennessee 17, Auburn 9

At Auburn, Ala., Shaun Ellis returned an interception 90 yards for a TD and the Vols (4-0, 2-0 SEC) capitalized on three Tigers' turnovers to win the rematch of last year's SEC title game. Auburn (1-3, 1-2) trailed 17-0.

No. 6 Florida 16, Alabama 10

At Tuscaloosa, Ala., Travis McGriff caught nine passes for 213 yards, including a 32-yard TD from Jesse Palmer, for the Gators (4-1, 2-1 SEC). Alabama (2-2, 1-1) was at the Florida 34 with 19 seconds left, but Tony George intercepted on the next play.

"The Gators don't play like champions anymore," Florida coach Steve Spurrier lamented after his team came away with just three field goals on six trips inside the Alabama 12. The Crimson Tide fell to 2-2, 1-1.

No. 8 Florida St. 24, Maryland 10

At College Park, Md., Sebastian Janikowski kicked five field goals and Chris Weinke passed for 261 yards as the Seminoles (4-1, 2-1 ACC) overcame their own mistakes. Florida State led only 16-10 at halftime against a team it has dominated for years.

No. 9 Virginia 52, San Jose St. 14

At Charlottesville, Va., Thomas Jones ran for 203 yards and two of Virginia's six rushing TDs. Aaron Brooks also rushed for two scores as the Cavs (5-0) gained 446 yards on the ground.

Also:

—At Bloomington, Ind., Ron Dayne, who had 130 yards and TD in Wisconsin's 24-20 win over Indiana, became the sixth player in major-college history to rush for 4,000 career yards as a junior. Dayne now has 4,083 yards as the Badgers moved to 5-0.

—At Seattle, Ortege Jenkins scored on a 9-yard run — somersaulting over three defenders into the end zone — with four seconds left as Arizona beat Washington 31-28. The Wildcats (5-0, 2-0 Pac-10) are riding a nine-game winning streak, while the Huskies (2-2, 1-1) fell out of the Top 25.

—Colorado (5-0, 2-0 Big 12) survived at Oklahoma, winning 27-25 as Mike Moschetti threw three TD passes.

—Marc Bulger threw for 354 yards and two TDs as West Virginia (3-1) rallied for a 45-24 win over Navy (1-3) at Annapolis, Md. Amos Zereoue added 95 yards and two TDs for WVU, which trailed 17-3 in the second quarter.

BIG TEN ROUNDUP

Michigan and Wisconsin sit atop Big Ten standings

■ Both teams came from behind to improve to 2-0 in the Big Ten.

(AP) — Two teams that won ugly are sitting pretty atop the Big Ten standings.

Wisconsin and Michigan are tied at 2-0 after barely beating their opponents on Saturday. The Badgers escaped with a 24-20 win and the Wolverines struggled for a 12-9 win against Iowa on a sloppy field.

Ohio State and Purdue won their conference openers. The Buckeyes stomped Penn State 28-9 and the Boilermakers outscored Minnesota 56-21.

Also on Saturday, Illinois upset intrastate rival Northwestern 13-10 and Michigan State whipped Central Michigan 38-7.

Wisconsin's Ron Dayne, gimpy ankle and all, ran for 130 yards at Bloomington, Ind., to become the second quickest player in major college history to reach 4,000 yards rushing. He also scored the go-ahead touchdown.

"It's getting better, a lot better, from week to week," said Dayne, who sprained the ankle in practice and missed the season opener last month.

Dayne has 4,083 yards in his 28-game college career. Only Georgia's Herschel Walker reached 4,000 quicker, in 27 games.

Indiana (2-2, 0-1 Big Ten) led 6-3 at the half and 20-17 after Chris Gall's touchdown late in the third period, but the Badgers (5-0, 2-0) moved 66 yards on the next possession for the go-ahead score.

It was drizzly, soggy and gray at Iowa City, Iowa, and there was but one touchdown scored the whole game.

The Wolverines (3-2, 2-0) overcame sloppy play and turnovers to win their third straight game and continue their mastery over Iowa (2-3, 1-1).

Purdue's Drew Brees, in only his fifth collegiate start, passed for 522 yards and six touchdowns at West Lafayette, Ind.

Purdue (3-2, 1-0) set a school record with 692 yards of total offense, topping the mark of 616 set in 1980 against Illinois. Minnesota (3-1, 0-1) gained most of its 321 yards after the outcome was determined. Purdue's total was the third highest ever in a Big Ten game.

"We threw the ball more than we wanted to. They kept blitzing us and stayed in man (defense) most of the game," Purdue coach Joe Tiller said.

After 15 consecutive Big Ten losses, 20 straight defeats to Division I-A squads and no conference win on the road since 1995, Illinois found a way to win at Evanston.

"Wins are hard to come by in this league," Illini coach Ron Turner said. "This was a great job. The team fought through adversity."

Illinois freshman Rocky Harvey gained 132 yards on 40 carries and scored twice.

Bill Burke tied a Michigan State record with four touchdown passes at East Lansing, Mich.

"That's an indication of Bill coming into his own," said Leroy McFadden, who hooked up with Burke for a 62-yard touchdown pass play. "Today, he started to become a real quarterback."

Plaxico Burress and McFadden each had two scoring catches and Shawn Foster ran 79 yards for a touchdown for the Spartans (2-3).

Michigan did everything it could to hand this game to Iowa. The Wolverines fumbled the ball away three times and threw two interceptions. But in the end, Iowa's offense simply could not remove the ball against a tough defense.

Hawkeyes lost game, but may have shown they are legit

thebottomline

Michigan did everything it could to hand this game to Iowa. The Wolverines fumbled the ball away three times and threw two interceptions. But in the end, Iowa's offense simply could not move the ball against a tough defense.

By Andy Hamilton and Tony Wirt
The Daily Iowan

Last year, losing a second-half lead to Michigan seemed to send the Iowa season spiraling downward.

After the Wolverines again came from behind to hand the Hawkeyes a 12-9 loss Saturday, Iowa coach Hayden Fry naturally came away from the game disappointed.

But at the same time, the Hawkeyes impressed Fry with their progress.

"We came a long way in the football game and there's not going to be a whole lot of Michigans left on the schedule," Fry said. "I feel a hell of a lot better about them. They played their butts off."

"I think when they look at the film, they'll feel much better about themselves. But if they're not heartbroken right now, they shouldn't be on the football team."

From the reactions of the players in the press room following the loss, the Hawkeyes were indeed heartbroken.

"I can't tell you how we'll feel on Tuesday," safety Eric Thigpen said. "I can only tell you how we feel right now. I'm just frustrated and angry inside that we came up so short."

Thigpen talked in a somber voice, linebacker Matt Hughes had watery eyes and cornerback Tarig Holman almost looked to be in a state of shock.

"You've got to feel bad for a little bit," Hughes said. "But when you look at the overall picture and how hard we played, it's very promising."

Not a happy Hayden

Michigan was called for 12 penalties, but in the minds of the Hawkeye coaching staff, even that wasn't enough.

Television replays showed defensive end Jeff Kramer getting pulled down by his jersey twice on running plays. And although Kramer plays on the outside, which is most visible to the officials, the men in stripes kept their flags tucked in their pockets.

"I'm too mad to even comment about the officiating," Fry said. "All we were trying to do was get them to call it. I'm so damn mad — that's all I can say."

The most devastating call negated a 34-yard pass play from Kyle McCann to Ladell Betts. A holding penalty backed up the ball from the Michigan 33-yard line to the Iowa 14.

"You wouldn't want me to comment on the officiating," Iowa offensive line coach Frank Verducci said. "I'd be the first assistant coach to get suspended for a week."

quarterbyquarter

Iowa got the early breaks it was looking for, but the Hawkeyes couldn't do anything with them.

The Wolverines turned the ball over three times, but the Michigan defense kept the Hawkeyes from taking advantage of the miscues.

Michigan whiffed five penalties on its opening drive and moved 85 yards for a touchdown. The Wolverines caught the Hawkeye defense on a safety blitz on third- and six and quarterback Tom Brady hit Tai Streets for a 14-yard touchdown pass.

After going three-and-out on offense, the Hawkeyes got a boost when Michigan's James Whitely fumbled a punt and Doug Miller recovered at the Wolverine 32-yard line.

Iowa's offense failed to capitalize. Kyle McCann was sacked twice and Tim Douglas' 52-yard field goal attempt barely reached the end zone.

Brady's next pass went through the hands of Marcus Knight and was picked off by Tarig Holman. The Wolverine defense stopped the Hawkeyes on three running plays, but after another Jason Baker punt, Holman picked off Brady again.

Michigan took its opening drive of the half into Iowa territory as Brady hit Streets for 20 yards and Knight for a seven-yard gain to the Iowa 30-yard line.

But the Hawkeyes stopped Clarence Williams on the next play and Jared DeVries hurdled Williams to sack Brady, knocking the Wolverines out of field goal range.

Iowa's offense spent the quarter with its back against its own end zone. After the Wolverines stopped the Hawkeyes deep in their own end, Whitely returned a punt to the 35-yard line, where he was hit by Bolters, forcing a fumble that Iowa freshman D.J. Johnson recovered.

Michigan's defense once again gave its offense a much needed break when linebacker Sam Soward caused and recovered a Betts fumble.

The following play, Matt Bowen returned the favor as he pulled the ball away from Williams and freshman linebacker Roger Meyer was there to recover.

But Betts wasn't buying into the theory that the officials were out to get the Hawkeyes.

"The officiating, as far as I know, was fine," the freshman tailback said. "Both sides got calls for them."

Holman ties record

For the second time in his career, defensive back Tarig Holman nabbed two interceptions in a single game.

Holman's effort tied a Kinnick Stadium single-game record.

Holman first picked off Tom Brady when a pass went off the hands of Marcus Knight on Michigan's second drive of the game. He then did it again when Brady underthrew Tai Streets on a fade pattern.

"It's easy when we've got guys like Jared DeVries and Anthony Herron up there applying the pressure," Holman said. "I was just in the right place at the right time."

The other time Holman had two interceptions at home was against Northern Iowa last season.

Noisy Hawkeye fans

Michigan was plagued with false start penalties several times, mostly due to the volume that the fans at Kinnick produced.

"This crowd was tremendous, they always are," Lloyd Carr said. "We had real difficulty hearing the snap count."

The noise altered the Wolverines' game plan by not allowing them to audibize at the line of scrimmage.

"It was very noisy, checks at the line were very difficult today," Brady said. "If you don't take (the crowd) out of the game early, they're going to be in it the whole game."

Tough turf

While the weather was lousy throughout the game, the playing surface at Kinnick Stadium was in surprisingly good shape at game's end.

The sod was soggy, but it was not as torn up as would normally be expected with a constant rain.

"The turf was good," Hughes said. "The rain is going to affect your passing a little, but Kinnick held up really well. I love this weather. Today is perfect football weather for me."

Neither team seemed to have a problem with slipping on the wet turf.

"It was a little slick out there," Holman said. "Being out there early to check it out helped some. Coach Fry always tells us to keep our feet under us, so I didn't have a problem today."

Ouch

Nearly every skill player on the Hawkeye offense sat out of practice last week, Fry said.

Betts, who said he is getting close to healthy again, sat out his second consecutive week with a groin injury he suffered at Arizona.

McCann missed workouts with an injured finger on his throwing hand and both starting wide receivers sat out of practice.

McCracken quits

Linebacker Jeff McCracken has quit the team, and Fry said it is up to the sophomore from Springfield, Mo., if he wants to return.

Fry also said in his pregame radio show it is unlikely Chris Knipper will be able to return this season. The Hawkeye coach said it would be at least three weeks before the senior offensive lineman would be in playing shape.

Freshman running back Robbie Crockett made his Hawkeye debut on special teams after sitting out a four-game suspension for a sexual misconduct conviction.

an Iowa comeback.

Iowa finally forced a punt with 39 seconds to play, but freshman Kahlil Hill took the punt at the three-yard line and was tackled in the end zone by Anthony Jordan.

"Freshmen are gonna make mistakes," Fry said. "The young guy was trying to win the ballgame by himself. I gave him an A-plus for effort and a zero for decision making."

While the Iowa offense was the beneficiary of the five turnovers, the Wolverine defense allowed just three points off those miscues.

"If you like defense, which I do, you liked it," said Carr, Michigan's former defensive coordinator. "Yes, we made some mistakes (offensively). That I didn't like, but it's amazing how they got only nine points. I thought our defense was just tremendous."

Iowa's offense managed just 159 yards of total offense (93 passing, 66 rushing) and seven first downs. Early on, it looked as if the Hawkeyes would have to play well offensively to keep Iowa in the game.

Michigan took the opening kickoff and drove 84 yards on 14 plays to take a 7-0 lead. Quarterback Tom Brady finished off the drive when he picked up the Iowa safety blitz and hit Tai Streets for a 14-yard touchdown.

"We always study tendencies throughout the week and we always play the tendencies," Iowa linebacker Matt Hughes said. "It wouldn't be smart if they didn't break their tendencies a little bit and that's exactly what they did. They did some things we weren't ready for (on the opening drive)."

The Hawkeye defense corrected its problems and kept Iowa in the game. After the Michigan score, each of the Wolverines' next 11 drives ended in a punt, interception or fumble.

Iowa's offense capitalized on the good field position for two field goals to cut the lead to 7-6, but a penalty here and there or a sack seemed to keep the Hawkeyes out of the end zone.

Just before halftime, the Hawkeye offense put together its first legitimate scoring drive.

With 1:02 to play, Iowa took possession at the Michigan 45 yard line. On the first play of the drive, quarterback Kyle McCann avoided the rush of Wolverine linebacker Larry Foote and found fullback Trevor Bollers for a 25-yard gain.

McCann hit Hill on a crossing pattern to the Michigan 15 on the next play, but the officials ruled Hill stayed in bounds and the clock continued to run.

After Ladell Betts ran the ball to the 11-yard line, Iowa burned its final timeout with 18 seconds remaining.

Instead of attempting a throw into the end zone, Fry elected to send in kicker Zach Bromert on second down to give Iowa a 9-7 halftime lead.

"You saw their defense," Fry said of the decision. "We couldn't move the ball. What we didn't want to do was make a mistake and get the ball intercepted and then not have a chance to take the lead."

"If you score late in the first half, you've got all that momentum going into the dressing room. Plus, that put us ahead."

The momentum carried on into the third quarter for the Iowa defense, but the Hawkeyes couldn't escape the shadow of their own end zone on offense. Iowa reached its own 40-yard line just once in the second half.

When Michigan wasn't stopping the Hawkeyes, penalties were.

Perhaps the biggest, and the one that upset Fry the most, came when Betts caught a pass from McCann and ran 34 yards to the Michigan 33 yard line. Iowa was called for holding on the play, which moved the ball back to the Iowa 14 yard line.

Michigan was called for 12 penalties, resulting in 94 yards, but the officials could have thrown their flags on several other holding calls that were obvious on television replays.

"You wouldn't want me to comment on the officiating," Iowa offensive line coach Frank Verducci said. "I'd be the first assistant coach to get suspended for a week and I don't have that kind of money. You guys want to pass the hat maybe. Right?"

The Hawkeyes host Northwestern (2-3, 0-2) Saturday in a scheduled 11:10 a.m. start. The Wildcats became the first Big Ten team to lose to Illinois in two seasons Saturday as the Fighting Illini won 13-10 in Evanston.

"Without question...an investment banking powerhouse" -Wall Street Journal

In June 1998, Union Bank of Switzerland merged with Swiss Bank Corporation to create the new UBS AG.

The investment banking businesses of both banks came together to form Warburg Dillon Read* - one of the world's most significant investment banks.

As a world leader among financial institutions, Warburg Dillon Read has opportunities for students interested in joining an organization that has built its franchise as the investment bank of choice, meeting the global banking needs of our clients.

homecoming director's address

Alumni, students, faculty, staff, and the community, welcome to Homecoming 1998. With our theme, There's a Little Gold in Everyone, we seek to prove that Hawkeye fans both large and small can enjoy our celebration to the fullest. Whether you are a quiet back row spectator or a banner waving fanatic we invite you to partake in our festivities, celebrate the tradition, and make new memories of Homecoming 1998.

This year we also celebrate the 50th anniversary of the tried and true University mascot, Herky the Hawk. The Official 1998 Homecoming button is dedicated to Herky and features his progress through the years. We would like to thank Herky for his spirit and unconditional support, and we look forward to another amazing 50 years.

I would also like to recognize fifteen tried and true individuals whose dedication, determination, and diligence have created the events and programs you all will enjoy this week. To the members of the Homecoming Executive Council, I extend my heart felt thanks for giving it your all, and congratulations to each and every one of you. We did it!

Again, welcome to Homecoming 1998. There's a Little Gold in Everyone so let your spirit shine through this week and help us celebrate the 86th edition of Homecoming at the University of Iowa. Go Hawks!

Christa A. Clark, Executive Director

The Hawkeyes

Once again

A Message from the University President

Welcome to the 1998 Homecoming celebration—a time for Hawkeyes past and present to come together for an exciting week of renewed appreciation of all that we value in a University of Iowa education. For all of us, it's time to show our pride in an institution where "there's a little gold in everyone!"

As our current students, faculty, and staff continue to pursue the "gold" standard in academics, athletics, and citizenship, I know our returning alumni will applaud their success. In addition to attending the parade and the big game, I hope you will have an opportunity to explore new and updated parts of the campus, check out refurbished classrooms like MacBride Auditorium (with its technological enhancements), and catch up on our many recent achievements in scientific research. I hope, too, that you will introduce yourself to some of the newest Hawkeye students. I am sure that you will be impressed with their commitment and enthusiasm, and I know that they will benefit from yours in return. In my view, Homecoming means not only a reunion among former classmates but also a grand reunion of all the generations who delight in showing their black and gold.

With each new academic year, I am reminded that the University of Iowa alumni and friends have always encouraged and supported the University and one another, across time and space. And as each new generation adds its portion of "gold in everyone," those bonds of support grow ever wider, stronger, and more intricately intertwined. Celebrations like Homecoming help us realize that we all are part of one shining network of pride, friendship, encouragement, and support.

I hope that everyone enjoys the week-long series of Homecoming festivities and the chance to cheer our team, renew old friendships, and wear black and gold to your heart's content. And when you come back for Homecoming next year, be sure to bring back that little bit of gold that is in every true Hawkeye! Go Hawks!

Hayden Fry's Address

It's a pleasure to again welcome thousands of alumni, parents and friends of the University of Iowa back to campus for Homecoming 1998. We have a lot to celebrate every year but this year is truly special. We are celebrating our mascot's 50th birthday. Herky has been a familiar figure at Iowa athletic events and I know you enjoy the fun he brings to game day.

Homecoming is one of my favorite times of the college football season. It's a time when our campus is at its prettiest, the weather is cool and crisp, and the Hawkeyes are playing football in Kinnick Stadium. Stop by on Saturday afternoon. The Hawkeyes will certainly appreciate your support as we strive for a Homecoming victory over the Northwestern Wildcats.

Once again, welcome, everyone, and Happy Homecoming!

1998 Homecoming Council Mission Statement

The students of the 1998 UI Homecoming Executive Council are determined to create and implement innovative programming which will incorporate a diverse group of individuals including: students, alumni, faculty, citizens of the Iowa City/Coralville communities and beyond.

We seek to prove that There's a Little Gold in Everyone and that all Hawkeye fans can actively participate in our celebration. We invite fans both young and old to partake in our festivities, celebrate the tradition, and make Homecoming 1998 a memorable occasion.

Homecoming provides an opportunity to unite with others from different backgrounds and cultures in celebrating the impressive opportunities and memories that our institution provides. We will make every attempt to combine education and recreation, to put forward a celebration in which all can participate.

This is the Homecoming experience at the University of Iowa.

VISIT

The Fountain of Youth Discovered by Iowan

Kelly Trecka

The University of Iowa is celebrating a birthday for the most popular 50-year-old on campus. Unlike most baby boomers, however, this one is just as energetic and youthful as the day he was born. Being a Hawkeye since birth is the key to Herky's fountain of youth.

This year, Herky the Hawkeye celebrates 50 spirited years as the University of Iowa's mascot. In 1948, a journalism instructor, Richar Spencer III, gave birth to the infamous character. It was said to be a speedy and painless delivery.

Herky remained lifeless, however, until the men of the Delta Tau Delta fraternity gave him his spunky personality.

Today, Herky's agenda consists of appearances at other events as well as football games, thanks to the Delta Tau Delta men who still create Herky's inner energy.

"It's amazing how well-known Herky is around the state of Iowa," said 3-year Herky veteran Nathan Jackman. "I had a Herky doll when I was five-years-old."

Jackman said that this year's Herky team consists of five men for the main sporting events such as football and basketball, and five for events such as women's sports, men's swimming, and wrestling.

Iowa fans know that Herky is tough. That was proven in 1997 when he rumbled with the University of Minnesota's marching band and suffered a cracked helmet and head. Many fans, though, probably don't know that he is sensitive as well.

"It's fun and sad at the same time," Jackman said about the annual Hospice Road Races event held at the Ronald McDonald House. "A little girl with cancer followed me around all day, but once I left she wouldn't eat."

The rewarding feeling for Jackman comes not only from his experiences at the Ronald McDonald House, but also from the years of tradition within his fraternity.

Six months ago, Delta Tau Delta alumnus and former Herky, Craig Standish, died suddenly in a car crash. "He was very instrumental in keeping the tradition alive," Jackman said.

The tradition for Jackman extends outside the boundaries of his fraternity. His grandfather is alumnus of the University of Iowa.

Since his grandfather's college years, Herky's had a bit of a facelift. "I've seen pictures of the original costume where you can actually see the person's head inside the suit."

The next physical change for Herky was to a paper mache head. It has since been changed to a more durable form, due to possible predators such as Minnesota's marching band.

The appearance of Herky may have changed a bit over the years due to some plastic surgery, but he's just trying to keep up with the times.

Herky's individuality and vitality is something that has remained constant over the years. The University of Iowa's loyal fans and the members of Delta Tau Delta maintain the spirit of Herky to keep him forever young.

Happy 50th Herky!

Homecoming... The Greek Way

Brendan P. Caulfield

this is not the only game in town. UI fraternities and sororities will be engaged in a battle for the highly coveted sweepstakes title and traveling trophy.

In the months leading up to the game, individual chapters are paired up; normally one fraternity and one sorority. The groups get together to compete in a series of events which range from getting sloppy in Havoc at Hubbard to using all of their combined talents to put on an original skit at Iowa Shout.

The competition starts several weeks before the game when chapter members can sell buttons before Hawk's home games for extra sweepstakes points, but the real competition gets kicked off with the week's first event, window painting.

Each group is given a window at a local business to try to capture the spirit of Homecoming. The windows are judged on creativity, artistic expression, and the Hawkeye spirit. Groups are also encouraged to incorporate Herky and this year's theme "There's a Little Gold in Everyone!" in their paintings.

The next day, participants roll out of bed, strap on some tennis shoes and head to the Fieldhouse for the 3-on-3 basketball tournament, Homecoming Hoops.

Once the grueling b-ball tournament comes to an end, the real physical challenge begins. Each chapter has a team of seven that competes in a super sloppy Double Dare type obstacle course in Havoc at Hubbard. In an attempt to compile the winning time, contestants sacrifice body, pride, and clothes while they slide through maple syrup, swim in oatmeal, and enjoy all of the free condiments they can handle.

The next event catapults the competition to another level. Groups spend weeks preparing original dances, scripts, and props for their skit entry at Iowa Shout. This year's Iowa Shout will be held at the IMU's Main Lounge where nearly 1500 Greeks and other students will gather to support their brothers and sisters while they perform on stage.

But, at this point, the sweepstakes is far from over. The pinnacle of competition still remains and will be showcased at the Homecoming Parade on Friday, October 9.

Chapters take great pride building their parade floats which range from elegant to wacky. Float building is a true sign of what the Greek system is all about. Members spend countless hours working together to build and design lavish floats for the parade's onlookers.

Another reason for Greeks to celebrate during Homecoming week is the tremendous alumni support stirred up by the game. Alumnae show up in large numbers to support their chapters and the Hawkeyes. Many chapters hold events and open houses for those who come into town for the weekend.

"On the morning of the game we hold an open house for alumni. It is a great chance for past members to come back and see what we have done with the house," and Shannon Kenealy president of Alpha Phi sorority.

Some Greek officials look to Homecoming week to showcase all that the system has to offer. "Homecoming is a great chance for the Greek system to come together," said Nick Mauro, president of the Interfraternity Council. "It gives us a chance to do something for ourselves and show the entire campus our strength and numbers."

The week gives fraternities and sororities an opportunity to meet new people, have some fun, and promote the strength of their system. With the help of local merchants, numerous volunteers and the Greek system, this fall's most celebrated university event should be a great success.
