Noted historian to speak at UI

"This is an exciting opportunity for the community to hear a distinguished historian who has influenced many," said James Thompson, associate professor of urban and regional planning at the University of Iowa.

Throgmorton said the book tells of the West's economic history, but he added that it is not just a study of economic development. The book is open to all American historians as well as to anyone interested in learning more about how different groups interacted in the development of the West.

The book, which was published in 1991, is one of several recent works on environmental history that have been widely acclaimed. It received a number of awards, including the Pulitzer Prize for History.

Throgmorton said that the book was written to address an important issue in American history: the relationship between human activity and the natural environment. He noted that the book explores the ways in which humans have altered the natural environment and how those changes have affected society.

Throgmorton said that the book was written to be accessible to a broad audience, including students, researchers, and the general public. He added that the book can be used as a teaching tool for courses on environmental history.

Ominous milestone in Mideast — Hamas threats Ararat

IOWA CITY, Nov. 2, 1998 (AP) — Hamas threats to launch a "deadly massacre" in the country of Armenia and to continue its terror campaign were being refuted by the government of Armenia on Monday.

"We have only one certainty in this conflict — we have to win," said Minister of International Relations and Cooperation Otmar Espen Laake. "We are going to take all necessary measures to protect our people."

Laake denied the Hamas threat, saying it was "a lie" spread by Israeli officials to distract the world from Israel's ongoing military operations.

State looks to up ante for petty crimes in amendment

IOWA CITY, Nov. 2, 1998 (AP) — Iowa legislators were considering a bill that would raise the penalty for petty crimes such as public indecency and disorderly conduct from a fine of up to $100 to a jail term of up to 90 days.

"We need to send a message to the public that we take these crimes seriously," said Senate Majority Leader David M. Young. "This bill is a step in the right direction.

In union, UIHC struggling to come on terms to first contract

IOWA CITY, Nov. 2, 1998 (AP) — Iowa Health and Human Services (Iowa Health) has reached an impasse with the United Hospital Care (UIHC) in negotiations over a proposed contract.

"We are committed to working together to provide the best possible care for our patients," said UIHC President and CEO Kevin Maul. "This contract is critical to our ability to continue to serve the needs of our community.

Mitch wipes out 10 villages in Nicaragua

MILAN, Nicaragua, Nov. 2, 1998 (AP) — At least 10 villages in southern Nicaragua were flattened Sunday by Mitch, the huge hurricane that carved a path of destruction through the country.

The storm, which killed at least 45 people and left thousands homeless, was reported to have left 10 villages in ruins, including one that was completely wiped out.

"The winds were so fast in full force," said a local resident. "We can't believe what we saw.

"We need to do something about this," said another resident. "We can't go on like this.

Cedar Rapids case goes to high court

The Supreme Court will decide if the school district must pay for a disabled student's attendant.

By Andrew Frey

October 2, 1998

The Supreme Court will decide if the school district must pay for a disabled student's attendant.

The case involves a 17-year-old boy who was injured in a school-related incident in 1996. The boy, known as Garret, was injured in a school-related incident in 1996. The school district was found liable for the incident and was ordered to pay for Garret's attendant.

The school district appealed the decision, and the case was heard by the Iowa Supreme Court. The court ruled in favor of Garret, and the school district appealed the decision to the Iowa Supreme Court.

The Iowa Supreme Court ruled in favor of Garret, and the case was appealed to the U.S. Supreme Court.

The case is significant because it involves the issue of school-related incidents and the responsibility of school districts to provide medical care and attendants for disabled students.

The Supreme Court will hear the case and decide if the school district must pay for Garret's attendant.

Iraq shuts down U.N. inspectors

Iraqi envoys to the United Nations said Monday that the country would end its cooperation with the U.N. weapons inspectors after the Security Council imposed tougher sanctions against the nation.

"We will no longer cooperate," said Saddam Hussein's deputy Harith al-Din. "We are not going to allow our country to be plundered by your inspectors."

The United Nations has been in Iraq this week to check on the nation's weapons of mass destruction.

Iowa shut down U.N. inspectors

The state of Iowa has shut down U.N. weapons inspectors from entering the state as of July 18, 1998. This decision was made in response to the United Nations demanding access to the state's weapons facilities.

Iowa's move comes amid international tensions over Iraq's weapons programs. The United Nations has been seeking access to these facilities as part of its disarmament efforts.

Iowa's decision is in line with the principles of national sovereignty and the right of any country to control its territory and resources. By stopping the U.N. inspectors, Iowa is asserting its right to determine who enters its borders, in a way that aligns with international law.

Iowa's action reflects a broader trend of states asserting their sovereignty, particularly in the face of external pressures from international organizations like the United Nations. This move is likely to have implications for broader debates over the balance of power between international institutions and national states.

Right to privacy versus right to ancestry

A woman who gave up her child for adoption is suing the photo agency that tracked her down 35 years later.

By Karen Testa

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — The telephones ringing at a new hotline are free from late-night boos at 8:30 when the phone lines go dead.

But for the children separated from their birth mothers, they are a bell.

By the hundreds, they could form a gray army, the callers sometimes said. They have been looking for her, and now they have found her.

"It's like a ghost was lifted," said an 83-year-old investigator from Delray, Fla., who tracked down a 35-year-old woman at the center of the case.

The child did not require medical attention, and the child was released; the police reservation was not to search for the child but to return it. The child was then returned to the child's mother.

The guilt was immediate and meant to cause pain for her birth mother.

It also alleges that Snyder was illegally obtained from the court form. It also alleges that Snyder was illegally obtained from the court form.

The 35-year-old woman at the center of the case said her mother got the information, and she knew or should have known was illegally obtained from the court form.

"We went from being a highly motivated person to someone who has a very different time other than being on the waiting list," said her lawyer, William Greene.

The child was not in any way abused, and the child was released; the police reservation was not to search for the child but to return it.

"Vampires" a good no-brainer

Sheryl Lee as Katrina, a prostitute bitten by vampire Valek.

Crow and his team wipe out a nest of vampires by dragging them by one out of their slaughter and then the height of day by day. After the slaughter, the vampires are given final death and put on their shingles as they buy a bag. The entire film is just grossness—desperation, before on in half and Daniel MacDermot's scary-looking voice. The film is about the blood-hungry vampires who are killed by a side through the heart. But the film avoids the norm and tries to explore new vampire ideas. Crews objective during the film is not to only to kill the dead but also to make a story every less examining. "Vampires" (1998) is far from being a least, most testosterone-filled, guy-movie of the year. (James Woods) — a rugged, no-nonsense exterminator. The rapid butchering turns the film into a black comedy. Woods' one-liners during the explosion-orgy, but its violence in the middle of depressing. "Vampires" is a rip-off of "The Texas Chainsaw Massacre" laughter to the bone.

quarterback eight rebounds for the Iowa Jones for a Royce Wright goal that tied the game at 69-68 in the last 0.9 second left. The junior guard was lights out on that shot and closed the game with a assist to:::::::::::.

"He's one of our top 10 players," said the Boilermakers.

Iowa's defensive effort turned up in the fourth quarter when Purdue coach Gene Keady called for a timeout to talk to his team.

"I thought we needed to make some adjustments," Keady said. "We were confused about whether or not to switch defensively, which gave the Boilermakers a big edge.

"I'm still making mistakes," said Brees. "I'm not happy with that. I thought we were doing a good job of just looking forward to the next play and not worrying about those things."

"I'm happy with how we played," Brees said. "We're just making adjustments as we go."

Sutton completes long comeback with playoff win

Hal Sutton defeated Vijay Singh in a playoff Sunday.

By Doug Ferguson Associated Press

ATLANTA - One stroke behind the last hole and far off already in a brook, Hal Sutton walked away from his ball head and turned what had been a sure two-hole lead in the Tour Championship into a playoff for the season title.

"It was almost more than I could bear," Sutton said.

By winning the second time in three years, the 40-year-old native of South Carolina became the first American since the Presidents Cup debut, giving them a 3-2 lead by the final match against Europe, the first time the traditionally more successful Europeans had lost three in a row.

"I don't think it's a big deal, but I'm certainly happy," he said.

The 27-year-old became the only the third American in history and only the third golfer to win back-to-back seasons.

He turned his head up at East Lake.

"I don't know how to feel about that," he said.

Ferguson reported that a 12th hole was to be a 2,000-yard shot, and the 27-year-old became theundefeated champion in history and only the third American in history.
