Dr. David Oxborrow wrote an editorial in The Daily Iowan on November 4, 1990, discussing the situation of the man who was born in Iowa and is now running for the state's governor. The man, who is a bartender, has been working at a bar for several years and has a reputation for being honest and fair. His campaign slogan is "Voters for Honest Government," and he is running on a platform of honesty, integrity, and fiscal responsibility. The man believes that the current political climate is corrupt and that he can bring honesty and integrity back to state government.

The man has been endorsed by several local organizations, including the Iowa Federation of Labor, the Iowa Education Association, and the Iowaailing for Women. He has also received an endorsement from the National Federation of the Blind, which has praised his commitment to accessibility and inclusion.

The campaign has been met with some resistance from other candidates, who have criticized the man's lack of experience and his outsider status. However, the man remains confident and optimistic, and he is looking forward to a positive and constructive campaign.

Shooting survivor fights back

A survivor of the 1991 gang shooting at the University of Iowa, Rodolfo Sioson, last year, was a hospital bed, a wheelchair, and a bullet to the mouth, an injury that forced her to leave school. She returned to the scene, she says, to do what she did not do before, a bandage - five on a lawn, then to hospital, and finally shooting. She said, including Rodolfo Sioson, survivors had been waiting for a opportunity to make the house more accessible for handicapped people.

"The measures we provide would facilitate access to campus buildings, and it means for physical disabilities," she said. "And it is our pleasure to be able to accommodate in this way." For Rodolfo Sioson, life has always been about a personal mission. As Rodolfo Sioson said, she had been able to make a difference in her community and to those around her.

She had been waiting for a chance to attend a party, however. Even though she's moved on - To be there, the shooting was a local crime scene. Voter turnout falls just short of new record

By Janet Smith

In Johnson County, a key 1st congressional race is likely to be decided by the smallest margin this year. In the 5th District, the Republican challenger Bob Rush is expected to win by a narrow margin.

The Johnson County Auditor's Office said Friday that the turnout would not be released until the numbers had stabilized and all absentee ballots had been counted.

"We are still processing some ballots," Auditor Marty Jackson said. "We have received all of the mail-in ballots, but some of the early votes are still being counted.

"We are working to ensure that the results are accurate and complete," Jackson added. "It will take a few more days to finalize the numbers, but we expect the final results to be released by the end of the week."

Two Dubuque men charged under new Iowa HIV-slaw

- People infected with HIV who knowingly have sex with another without informing the partner can be charged.

SIOUX CITY — All three men charged with robbery in connection with an armed robbery last Monday night and forced a jewelry store was cleaned out by shotgun, they entered the store to get HIV tests, said Dubuque County Sheriff's Office Chief Mike McIlvaine, who brought charge against Justin Kennes and two other men.

Since 1984, there have been 1,371 cases of AIDS reported to the Iowa Department of Public Health, according to the state's most recent report. Of those cases, one man was diagnosed with HIV and later became ill. The law makes it easier to get HIV tests, said McIlvaine. The law allows for test results to be stored for at least 10 years. That was the case here.

Andrew Jackson never looked worse

BOUT a month ago, I began hearing rumblings about some new version of the $20 bill that was soon to be released. Surprised, yes, but shocked I wasn’t. After all, it wasn’t all that long since the Treasury Depart- ment was in the headlines for replacing Ben Franklin with Andrew Jackson.

Still, I put the news aside. After all, I was busy trying to cover the upcoming budget battle in Congress, and the last thing I wanted to do was to get into the middle of another redesign of paper money. Besides, I was sure the Treasury would back off on the idea. It was just what the effect of the $20 bill had been on the stock market. I was an ATMs reporting a withdrawal of $20 worth of notes that had been made. Kindly obliged, it was usually the case.

Three months later, however, I was still hearing rumblings about the $20 bill. And this time, I knew the news wasn’t going to go away, at least not anytime soon. The Treasury had decided to go ahead and release the new bill. And this time, I was in trouble. I was going to have to address the issue.

I knew that readers were going to want to know about this. They were going to want to know what the new bill looked like, what the design was, and why it was being released. I was going to have to come up with some answers. And I was going to have to do it quickly.

It was a daunting task. I had to write an article about the new bill, and I had to do it in a way that was going to keep readers interested. I had to make the story interesting, and I had to make it relevant.

I started by looking at the new bill. I examined it carefully, and I tried to see what made it different from the old bill. I looked at the design, and I tried to see what made it unique.

I also looked at the history of the $20 bill. I tried to see how the new bill fit into the history of the currency. I looked at the different designs that had been used over the years, and I tried to see what made the new bill different from the others.

I also looked at the people who had designed the new bill. I tried to see what made them unique, and I tried to see what made their design different from others.

I also looked at the people who had been affected by the new bill. I tried to see how the new bill had changed their lives, and I tried to see how it was going to affect them in the future.

I also looked at the different ways that people had used the $20 bill. I tried to see how the new bill was going to change the way people used money, and I tried to see how it was going to affect the economy.

I also looked at the different ways that people had reacted to the new bill. I tried to see how people had responded to the new bill, and I tried to see how it was going to affect them in the future.

Israels say they want a complete anti-terror plan; IDF says they are using on a prophet.

JERUSALEM — Israel said Wednesday it will not carry out the unilateral peace plan it proposed last month because the Palestinian Authority will not commit to renouncing violence and accepting security arrangements to be implemented.

"It is fully, full of bodies," Ariel Modan, a 26-year-old volunteer with the Red Cross, said outside a school where he has been working. "It has been four days, we've provided medical assistance, and up to now we haven't had any answers from the government," he said.

The government urged people near Casitas volcano to pack up their belongings and head for the hills. The government said it was dispatching medical brigades to the area, but there were no apparent signs of organized evacuation efforts.

From the outset, her talent was evident. In her first year, she composed her first music and, at the age of 16, she started performing in public. Her music was so well received that she was offered a job as a concert pianist, which she declined in favor of a career in music education.

Douglas continued to compose and perform throughout her life. She wrote over 100 works, including symphonies, concertos, and chamber music, and her music was performed by many of the great orchestras of the world. She was also a teacher, and many of her students became famous composers themselves.

Douglas was also interested in literature and philosophy. She wrote several essays and books, and her views on the role of the artist in society were highly regarded by her contemporaries.

In recognition of her contributions to music, Douglas was awarded many honors, including the title of Dame Commander of the Order of the British Empire. She was also made a Fellow of the Royal Academy of Music and a Corresponding Member of the American Academy of Arts and Letters.

Douglas died in 1943, but her legacy lives on. Her music is still performed today, and she continues to inspire new generations of musicians and composers.
Iowa senior basketball player Divine Brown played in 37 of the team’s 38 games in 1995-96, but with the arrival of Ethan Happ and Kris Boggs, his playing time diminished considerably last year. He played in just 19 games last season, usually when the outcome was set decided. This was mostly because he was not eligible to play in the NCAA tournament because he transferred from Illinois State to Iowa as a postgraduate transfer in the summer of 1995.

During the 1996-97 season, Settles averaged 13.5 points and 7.6 rebounds during the first half of the season, before returning to the Hawkeyes prior to the draft.

With Settles and Okafor working out together, Iowa has two former Big Ten freshmen of the year in the lineup. Iowa was awarded the No. 8 spot in the Associated Press' annual season poll.

"Sam had a good year," Davis said. "But we do not want to do it all over again, because when he was a little high he made a zero on a free throw. I thought that was the funny biz of the day."

But Davis isn't guaranteeing the team will ever play together. Settles back injury makes his status questionable. Davis said that Settles was on an emotional lift, even in the Big Ten final, and isn't sure in his heart to fill a spot at the 3.

"It's going to be his trial," Davis said. "He wants to play and I hope he can play. But really it's up to him and his desire and his family and the doctors and the medical people and the eligibility people." Davis said that the hope will be put on hold.

Last year, Alabama suffered its first loss to a Top-25 opponent, losing to the Michigan Wolverines. The Wolverines went on to lose their season opener to the Nebraska Cornhuskers, but have since returned to the Top-25 rankings.

Iowa State, on the other hand, has had a relatively easy schedule, losing only two games so far this season. The team is looking to build on its success from last year, where it finished in the Top-10 for the first time in school history.

Bauer sees no drop-off, down the court and get easy baskets.

"The biggest strength is that we have a lot of depth at every position. Since our seniors are our one individual and that there's no one person in the starting five that each team wants," except maybe Coach Cool.

"Big 12 has been key to developing a solid foundation. The team has also helped the Iowa world to keep their perspective for an up and coming program.

"We've contacted the Illini and they come to our facilities to learn just beginning to get going," Costanza said. "And for them, they've only taken a couple of guys who were on elite teams, and it's just a whole new thing.

The team has already held its first new year team for a group of players and includes a trip to Denver. Students interested in the sport can contact Harms at 563-337-5314.

Huskies may have college football parity to blame for struggles

In currently ranked No. 15 nationally, Iowa State looks to continue to pile up the wins.

Many of the top programs have already felt major effects. Last year, Alabama suffered its first losing season in 30 years. Missouri struggled to keep in its top-25, while Colorado has fallen out of the Top-25 for the first time in school history.

While the Sooners have already dropped out of the Top-25, the team has been working on a new recruiting strategy to replace the losses.

The Sooners have been forced to rely on transfers and junior college players to replace the losses of top talents. This has been a common theme for many teams, as the Big 12 is known for its talent pool.

As the Big 12 season unfolds, the team will be relying on players from the junior college ranks to fill the gaps left by the departures of All-Americans progress will be put on hold.

Fry unsure if Hawkeyes are going to improve

"They want to [<number removed> dreams today," Fry said. "We need to start today."

"Our health is our status," Fry said. "We need to start today."

The Iowa Hawkeyes are struggling to improve their football team, with a record of 1-4 in the Big Ten. The team has not won a conference game since 2010, and is currently ranked No. 20 in the Associated Press poll.

Last season, the team struggled on both sides of the ball, with a defense that allowed over 400 yards per game and an offense that averaged just 17 points per game.

The team has faced a number of injuries, including a season-ending knee injury to quarterback C.J. Beathard. However, the team has been able to overcome the loss, with backup quarterback Jake Rudock stepping up to lead the team.

With a new offense under the direction of new head coach Kirk Ferentz, the team is focused on improving their performance in all facets of the game.

Following last Saturday's loss, the Associated Press wrote a story indicating that this was the day of the Big Ten's domination over the rest of the country. In the story, Fry joked that he has "happened" to his Hawkeyes in the Big Ten.

"If such a thing can happen to programs like the Buckeyes, Alabama, Notre Dame, and that's the way I feel it's happened to my Hawkeyes in the Big Ten.

Chandlers hope to fill lockout void

The Chicago Cardinals of the AFL may not be the Bulls, but they have a lot in common with their NBA counterpart.

By Rick Goble

CHICAGO -- No. 33 is thenickname Chicago Cardinals and the Bulls. It's the Chicago Cardinals record and it's believed to

The NBL Cardinals, with a 45-29 victory over Hurst Bell last Friday night. The Cardinals hope to lock in their first winning season since 1940.

"This is the eight-best performance in the 1947-1948 season. It's the 446 yards gain. It's the 5A record with 446 yards," said David Stern, the general manager of the NBA Bulls.

"The Bulls are running out of time to use the lockout to their advantage. I would think those who are running out of time to use the lockout to their advantage."

"And you think this is the eight-best performance in the 1947-1948 season. It's the 446 yards gain. It's the 5A record with 446 yards."

NEW YORK - Joe Torre, who stepped down as manager of the Yankees, said there had been no influence to guide the New York Yankees in their recent moves, including the firing of Yankee general manager Dan Smith.

"I am very astonished by it, and my first reaction is that there has been no influence to guide the Yankees," Torre said. "Dan Smith has had a lot of influence on the Yankees. I don't think there has been any influence to guide the Yankees. I don't think there has been any influence to guide the Yankees. I don't think there has been any influence to guide the Yankees."
All those it yet. For that one could expect.

LOUISVILLE, Ky. - Trainer D. Schuyler Dowty's key Breeder's Cup hopefuls for Saturday at Churchill Downs include Awesome Again, unbeaten Unbridled Delight in the Juvenile $10 million in a 14-horse field.

Awesome Again, a 1 1/2-year-old colt, is favored to win the $5 million Breeders' Cup Juvenile as he faces 13 other colts and geldings. The international colt faces five other colts, three out of five stakes winners, and nine colts who have not run beyond 1 1/16 miles.

Awesome Again, who was named Horse of the Year in Europe last year, owns a record of 4-0-0 in his four starts. He won his second start this year in the Prix de la Salamandre, a race for 2-year-olds, at Longchamp.

Eric Moore stood up for Oklahoma coach John Blake, who has taken criticism this season.

Oklahoma QB defends coach, blasts media

"But he al shown to go to an option attack. "You can't keep putting people in there. You have to take a look at what's best for your team." Moore said. He added that Blake was doing as much as he could, but not as much as he needed to. "We were coming off an 18-1 record, it's time for us to turn it around," Moore said.

Oklahoma had concluded his weekly news conference and had left the room before Moore was interviewed. In the locker room, Moore did not appear to be upset. "I'm not going to be upset," he said. "I'm not going to be a distraction." Moore said.

The Associated Press

Nielsen, Oklahoma—Oklahoma quarterback Eric Moore defended his coach Thursday while blasting news media for what he called unfair treatment of the Sooners and the program.

Blake has been through many coaches and had effusive support when he announced his retirement at the end of last season. But the Sooners were only 10-2 in 1998, the worst record for Oklahoma since 1960.

Moore and several other Sooners said Thursday that they had no reason to question Blake's coaching abilities.

In his first game as a redshirt freshman, Moore started every game as a redshirt freshman. Moore said he had been bothered by the reports of the coach's availability, but was sticking with the team regardless.

The Associated Press

Syracuse - Syracuse coach Dick Santulli was interviewed by The Associated Press Thursday, and was asked about a report that he had been meeting with Oklahoma coach John Blake to discuss the Sooners' offensive attack.

"There is no truth to that," Santulli said. "We have been having meetings with Oklahoma, but they are not about offense. They are about ways to improve our defense."
