Blacks have lowest graduation rate, figures say

Incoming black freshmen have the highest dropout rate at the UI. according to a report.

> By Rebecca Anderson The Daily Iowan

Black undergraduates are more likely than other minorities to leave the UI without a degree, and many tend to leave in their first year, a report shows.

Figures from the Iowa state Board of Regents show that 41.2 percent of black students in the 1992 freshman class have graduated, while the UIwide rate for the same year is 62.4 percent. Minority groups combined have a 60 percent graduation rate over a sixyear period.

At 21.4 percent, more black students than any other group left the UI in their first year. More than 12 percent of incoming minority students left the UI within the first year in 1997. In "Student graduation rates are a con-cern to us," Regent Roger Lande said. "Anytime there are gaps, we would like to close those.

The same trends tend to be true nationally as well, the report stated. The figures are expected to be discussed at the regents' meeting in Ames Wednesday.

Educational disadvantages and lack of preparation for college are often factors in minority students' decision to leave the UI, said Joe Coulter, interim associate provost and director of Opportunity at Iowa. Problems at the UI may not be the reason, he said.

We work awfully hard to help our students who come here," he said.

But UI graduate student Gena Wells said minorities, especially black students, don't find much to do here. "You want to go somewhere you know you're going to have fun," Wells said. "There aren't enough places like regents institutions. In 1994, the that on this campus for black students. There's just something about Iowa City they just don't like.'

Opportunity at Iowa tries to help freshmen through their first weeks at school, Coulter said. But the culture shock of coming to Iowa City from an urban area such as Chicago may be too difficult for some, Wells said.

"Coming from predominantly black neighborhoods and high schools, it may be overwhelming for black students, who see the majority of white students," Wells said.

When compared with the rest of the country, the UI has a high success rate for graduating minority students, Coulter said; the UI is above the NCAA national averages for the percentage of minority students who Several factors influence the graduation time of students, according to the report. For example, incoming freshman with higher ACT scores and class ranks are reported to have graduation rates of 73 and 77 percent respectively.

For all those who began at the UI in 1992, 62.4 percent went on to graduate. When this information is further broken down, it is apparent that the rate of graduation is not as high for some racial and ethnic groups, revealing a problem hat has plagued the UI for some time. Iraq's retreat averts strike

■ "We remain ready to act," President Clinton says, warning the Iragis to cooperate with the United Nations.

> By Susanne M. Schafer Associated Press

WASHINGTON - President Clinton said Sunday that Iraq must cooperate with U.N. weapons inspectors unconditionally, or Saddam Hussein could again face the punishing military strikes he avoided this weekend Nations.

"Iraq has backed down, but that is not enough. Now Iraq must live up to its obligations," Clinton said at a quickly called news conference at the White House.

Iraq on Nov. 14 sent a series of letters to the United Nations that eventually led the White House to conclude Baghdad was ready to comply with the Security Council-ordered weapons inspections. President Clinton canceled an ordered military strike against Iraq early Nov. 14 when he received word that Hussein was backing down.

If Hussein's government fails to keep its word, Clinton said, "overwhelming force remains an option.

"We remain ready to act," he said. The president said Iraq must allow inspectors "unfettered access" to view any site they wish; it must turn over all relevant documents on chemical and biological weapons production; and it must not interfere with the inspectors themselves.

"The return of the inspectors ... is the best outcome, because they have been and they remain the most effective tool to uncover, destroy and prevent Iraq from rebuilding its weapons of mass destruction and the missiles to deliver them," Clinton said.

U.N. officials said Sunday that its weapons inspectors were returning to Iraq shortly. At the end of a Security Council meeting, Richard Butler, chief of the U.N. weapons inspection team, said he was ordering the inspectors to return Tuesday. The president acknowledged that deep skepticism surrounds Saddam's promises, but he argued that holding back from a military strike is the best ong-term strategy.

On a typical day of class, UI freshman Melissa Botts trudges across campus with enough belongings on her back to fill a small office.

"I have two bags: one for Mondays, my heavy day when I have all my classes, and this one, my light bag," she said, motioning toward a colossal bag on the table.

Sometimes her largest bag, a black Reebok number, gets so full of her textbooks, binders, papers, folders, pencils, etc., she runs into other people with it.

"I hate it when classrooms have desks close to each other; I run into them all the time," she said.

Botts, like other backpack-carrying UI students, may be risking her health to expand her mind, said DI/Dave Selden Mary Khowassah, director of UI Student Health Service. Large bags can lead to back and shoulder pain.

"Bags are so sturdy now, you can really load them down," she said. "It's not unusual to see those kinds of problems."

Arafat hints at war

JERUSALEM - Palestinian leader Yasser Arafat hinted Sunday at armed conflict with Israel, warning darkly that "our rifle is ready," and repeating that he will declare statehood next year.

NEW YORK - Public health advocates said Sunday the proposed $206 billion tobacco settlement being reviewed by the states falls short of delivering a comprehensive approach to discourage smoking.

But they declined to recommend whether the states should embrace the settlement. In anticipation that the deal will be endorsed, they were mobilizing to make sure states use the money to discourage

"We think it's a positive step forward in the war on tobacco, but it's not the answer and doesn't itself provide a national tobacco control policy," said Diane Canova, speaking for the American Heart Association.

She said federal legislation is still needed to give the Food and Drug Administration authority over tobacco products.

Anti-smoking activist Bill Novelli of the Campaign for Tobacco-Free Kids said local public health officials were being alerted to ensure that the money that would go to the states "isn't diverted to non-public health areas."

"There is going to a huge food fight over these dollars," he said.

Negotiators for eight states and the nation's four biggest tobacco makers reached agreement on Nov. 14 on settling remaining state claims for government health costs from treating smoking-related illnesses.

The proposal was shipped to the 46 states that have suits pending against the tobacco industry or have not yet filed suits, and they were given until Friday to decide whether to sign it.

A formal announcement of the agreement was expected today in Washington.

Several state attorneys general said they would not know until reviewing the details whether they would sign.

Wisconsin Attorney General James Dovle said Sunday that while the agreement is much better than the failed $368.5 billion settlement attorneys general reached in 1997, he hadn't decided whether to sign on.

"The question is whether the public health advances and the money involved is enough for Wisconsin to say that it's time now to move past litigation and focus on cessation," Doyle said.

Either way, he said, the state's case is strong enough that there's no need to settle too much.

'We're dealing from strength. If we don't take the deal, we'll go to trial," he said. Some public health advocates are

■ The House Judiciary Committee will focus on the special prosecutor this week.

> By Pete Yost Associated Press

WASHINGTON - For the first time in his four-year investigation, Independent Counsel Kenneth Starr will publicly lay out his case against President Clinton - in a congressional forum riven with partisan politics.

Starr's motives and tactics, as much as the president's actions, will be the focus of the House Judiciary Committee hearing set for Thursday.

Democrats plan to portray the independent counsel as a right-wing prosecutor on a rampage against Clinton in concert with the president's political opponents. For Republicans, the hearing represents the best opportunity for Starr to make his case forcefully against Clinton.

In his impeachment report to the House, Starr accused the president of 11 offenses that he considers impeachable and alleged a pattern of lies by Clinton and his loyalists in the Monica Lewinsky case.

Former Iran-Contra prosecutor Lawrence Walsh, a strong critic of Starr for pursuing the Lewinsky allegations, said, "I think his actions deserve all the scrutiny he's getting, but I'm not at all sure Starr

"The sympathy of the public during a televised hearing is with the witness . I think of the appearance of Oliver North, who ran away with the congressional hearing in Iran-Contra."

Starr is no stranger to tough questions in a tense environment. As President Bush's solicitor general, he took them for years from Supreme Court justices. Nonetheless, he is vulnerable on several points:

· He aggressively investigated the Lewinsky matter before getting formal authorization from the Justice Department, having Lewinsky's friend, Linda Tripp, wear a body wire Jan. 13 to record a conversation with the former intern. Starr could defend the action as fully within his discretion as a prosecutor, even though Attorney General Janet Reno didn't approve an expansion of Starr's mandate until were tampered with and whether Tripp lied about them when she testified that the tapes she turned over to prosecutors were originals. The FBI has concluded some of the tapes are in fact duplicates.

Problems loom on other fronts, too. The president's lawyers persuaded federal judge to launch a probe of leaks of secret grand jury information. Starr's office denies it broke grand jury secrecy rules, but U.S. District Judge Norma Holloway Johnson has concluded there's enough superficial evidence of possible leaks — 24 news stories in all - that she named a special judge to investigate further.

Clinton has denied her accusation, and her lawsuit was dismissed last spring. An appeal of that dismissal was pending.

them," Clinton said. "But that would also mark the end of UNSCOM," the U.N. special commission on Iraq

With National Security Adviser Sandy Berger, Defense Secretary William Cohen and Gen. Hugh Shelton, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, at his side, Clinton said U.N. Secretary-General Kofi Annan shares his understanding of Iraq's obligations.

At the United Nations, Annan said Clinton's "statesmanlike response ... will be welcomed by the international community."

A senior administration official said Sunday that Clinton gave Shelton the go-ahead to begin the operation on Nov. 13.

But shortly before U.S. missiles were to be launched on Nov. 14, news reports from Baghdad indicated that the Iraqi government was prepared to back down. Clinton put the mission on hold, and attack plans began forming for a

The president spent much of the day in the Situation Room, weighing options with Vice President Al Gore and members of the national security team

After the White House and British officials rejected Iraq's first statement over the protests of U.N. officials prepared to accept it, Iraq produced two additional letters clearly stating it would cooperate unconditionally with the inspectors and renouncing past declarations limiting their work.

Clinton conferred again by telephone late on Nov. 14 with members of his team, British Prime Minister Tony Blair and French President Jacques Chirac. At 3 a.m. Sunday, Berger asked Shelton to scrap the attack plans.

Iraq averted the attack by mere hours. "It was close. Very close," Cohen said.

He said the U.S. military will "maintain a steady force" in the region "that is more than adequate to deal with Saddam Hussein." But Cohen said the buildup might not reach full planned strength because the United States already has plenty of firepower in the region, with more than 170 aircraft, one aircraft carrier and about two dozen other ships.

Before Clinton's announcement, Iraq's ambassador to the United Nations, Nizar Hamdoon, said Iraq will cooperate fully with U.N.

Hamdoon said Saddam had stopped his government's cooperation with the inspectors out of frustration over U.N. economic sanctions against Iraq, but the resulting international pressure forced a change of strategy.

"We have decided to give it a chance because peace, stability, preventing war, I think, is a noble goal," Hamdoon said on NBC's 'Meet the Press."

"We can now move ahead," said U.N. weapons inspections chief Butler, interviewed on CNN. The team that departed Iraq last week remains in Bahrain and would be able to return to work within 24 hours, he said.

Britain's Blair consulted for hours with Clinton and U.N.

North Carolina college's slavery class draws fire from NAACP

■ A college course teaches that slaves were happy.

Associated Press

ARCHDALE, N.C. (AP) - Black leaders and the leader of a state civil rights panel are miffed over a local college course whose teachers claim that most slaves were happy in captivity and that many served as loyal Southern soldiers.

"How is the college letting this happen?" asked Wyatt Kirk, chairman of the state committee of the U.S. Commission on Civil Rights. Leaders of the state NAACP have threatened to file a formal complaint after reviewing the nine-week class at Randolph Community College.

College officials stand behind the course taught by local members of Sons of Confederate Veterans, a nationwide heritage group. Twelve students currently are enrolled. Course organizers say their intent is to teach while restoring pride to their Confederate ancestors. 'We cannot allow political correctness to rewrite history or wipe out our heritage," instructor Jack Perdue said on the first day of the ass in September. Most of the curriculum is a presentation of history with a pro-Confederate twist —a mong the course's statements is that the Civil War was not fought over slavery but over the right of Southerners to self-determination. The instructors say slavery was wrong but conclude from a 1930s series of interviews with ex-slaves that 70 percent of slaves were satisfied with their lives in captivity.

The instructors also use diary accounts by Northern officers, among other sources, to teach that as many as 38,000 blacks fought in the Confederate army. And they teach that, by and large, slaves and free blacks ught in the same spirit of patriotism as their white counterparts.

Local black leaders are especially galled by the claim of slaves' loyalty.

"That's a totally ludicrous statement to say that slaves loved their country," said Richie Everette, president of the Randolph County chapter of the National Association for

Facing the ugly truth: Looks do matter

NE evening late last week, I was sitting at home, flipping through a "women's" magazine, waging internal war over whether to test the "Fab Abs in 10 Minutes!" claim or get on with my Chinese homework. Homework had almost won when I happened upon a very interesting and (at first) noble-sounding article.

Men can get away

with looking like hell, but women are or stay home. It's not fair, but it's how things are.

In this article, semiwell-known actor Ann Magnuson decided to do a little experiment, going undercover as an "ugly" person and trying to shop on HANNAH FONS Madison Avenue in New York City. She donned a frizzy wig with gray roots, thick glasses, bright-pink Bermuda shorts, fake teeth (or "teef," as she called them in the article) and Birkenstocks.

She also visited a make-up artist and had herself done up with sickly, greenish foundation, artificial under-eye bags and even a couple of prosthetic zits. So clad, the formerly gorgeous celebrity ventured out into the wilds of midtown Manhattan.

She tried to shop at Bijan and Ann Taylor, but the salespeople were cold, snotty and obviously put out by having to deal with somebody whom they saw as less than suave. (Either that, or salespeople who sell dickeys worth more than your education feel it necessary to be snotty as a matter of principle.) Our intrepid, novice ugly-chick was even denied entrance into a couple of shops by doormen who didn't like her looks.

When I first read Magnuson's article, I thought, "Hell yeah, woman ... how do ya' like it now? So maybe you are one of the 'beautiful people' rearrange your 'teef' and give your colorist the day off, and you're no more a hottie than the average rural Midwestern farm wife who grew up on lard-based food products and never got orthodontia! Think of that next time you waltz into Prada and all the salespeople fawn over you like a ... well, like a celebrity. Hah!

But then I reconsidered. I began to see Magnuson's little adventure for what it really was: an obnoxious, condescending exercise in stating the obvious to people who most assuredly do not need to be reminded that beautiful people do better in our society.

So you can't get waited on in posh shops on Madison Avenue if you're ugly? No shit! And you're also looking at possible job discrimination, lifelong self-esteem issues, less sympathetic juries in courts of law and a whole lot of Real people with problem skin and messed-up "teef" can't just take 'em off at the end of the day when they're bored with not living up to the jackass American beauty standard. For an obviously attractive person who makes a living by being that way to make herself "ugly" for a single weekend just for kicks is insulting as hell and doesn't tell us anything we don't know already.

Of course, aesthetics are important to me. I appreciate beautiful things and enjoy looking at attractive people, but I'm not gonna avoid somebody or not talk to them just because they don't look like a supermodel or a Hollywood actor. That's ridiculous.

And if I ventured into a swanky store in a major city and got the cold shoulder from some obnoxious sales clerk who lived on commission yet still felt obliged to give me attitude, I'd remind that clerk that she or he is more than welcome to kiss my broad, unfashionable Midwestern butt and try to make rent off some other sucker, thank you very much. I would then bust out and go shop at Ragstock, or the nearest local equivalent.

I guess my basic complaint with the whole article is this: So many of us deal with crushing insecurity about how we look all throughout our lives that it's just a bit much to have someone go out in "ugly chick" drag and remind us that what's on the outside apparently does matter ... a lot more than we'd like. Maybe we don't have snaggle "teef" and a greenish complexion, but then, we ain't exactly lookin' like Tyra Banks, either.

And what would have expected to look hot happened if a male actor had made himself look all nasty and then tried to get waited on at Armani? It would have been a pretty short article. Men can get > away with looking like hell, but women are expected to look hot or stay home. It's not fair, but it's how things are.

> I mean, many is the morning when I would love to skip the a.m. beauty regimen and snooze for an extra half-hour or so, but then I'd have to deal with people wondering where the hell my eyebrows went. So I guess I'd just rather get up and whip out the pencil. Does that make me shallow?

> Anyway. Shallow or not, beauty and personal appearance count for a lot these days - more than they probably should, in my opinion. But until nobody wants to read about the madcap escapades of beautiful actresses who decide to uglify themselves to see how the "other 90 percent" lives, there's going to be a self-esteem deficit among American women that's big enough to choke a horse.

Hannah Fons is a DI columnist.

COMMANDER

From cold turkey to cooked goose

O this year, you agreed to host the big family Thanksgiving dinner. Congratulations! You moron!

No, seriously, hosting Thanksgiving dinner does NOT have to be traumatic. The key is planning.

For example, every year my family spends Thanksgiving at the home of a friend named Arlene Reidy, who prepares dinner for a huge number of people. I can't give an exact figure, because my eyeballs become fogged with gravy. But I'm pretty sure Arlene is feeding several branches of the armed forces

And Arlene is not slapping just any old food on the table, either. She's a gourmet cook who can make anything. I bet she has a recipe for cold fusion. She serves moist, tender turkeys the size of Arnold Schwarzenegger, accompanied by a vast array of exotic hors d'oeuvres and 350 kinds of sweet potatoes made from scratch. I'm pretty sure Arlene threshes her own wheat.

If you were to look into Arlene's dining room at the end of Thanksgiving dinner, it would at first appear to be empty. Then you'd hear groans and burps coming from under the table, and you'd realize that the guests, no longer able to cope with the food and gravity at the same time, were lying on the floor.

Every now and then you'd see a hand snake up over the edge of the table, grab a handful of stuffing, then dart back under the table again, after which you'd hear chewing, then swallowing, then the sound of digestive organs rupturing. Some guests have to be rushed by ambulance to the hospital, receiving pumpkin pie intravenously en route.

The question is: How is Arlene able to prepare such an amazing feast for so many people? The answer is simple: I watching football when it happens. But my point is that if you want to provide your Thanksgiving guests with a delicious home-cooked meal, one approach would be to go to Arlene's house and steal some of her food when she's busy churning the butter. She'd never notice. She has enough leftovers to make turkey sandwiches for everybody in Belgium.

DAVE

BARRY

If you prefer to do your own cooking this Thanksgiving, your first step is to calculate how much turkey you need. Home economists tell us that the average 155-pound person consumes 1.5 pounds of turkey, so if you're planning to have 14 relatives for dinner, you'd simply multiply 14 times 1.5 times 155, which means your turkey should weigh, let's see, carry the two ... 3,255 pounds.

If you can't find a turkey that size, you should call up selected relatives and explain to them, in a sensitive and diplomatic manner, that they can't come because they weigh too much. In selecting a turkey, remember that the fresher it is, the better it will taste. That's why, if you go into the kitchen of top professional homemaker Martha Stewart on Thanksgiving morning, you'll find her whacking a live turkey with a hatchet. In fact, you'll find Martha doing this every morning.

"It just relaxes me," she reports. Your other option is to get a frozen turkey at the supermarket. The Turkey Manufacturers Association recommends that, before you purchase a frozen bird, you check it for firmness by test-dropping it on the supermarket floor - it should bounce three vertical inches per pound and then take a core sample of the breast by drilling into it with a three-eighthsinch masonry bit until you strike the giblets. If supermarket employees attempt to question you, the Turkey Manufacturers Association recommends that you "gesture at them with the drill in a reassuring manner.

When you get the turkey home, you should thaw it completely by letting it sit on a standard kitchen counter at room temperature for one half of the turkey's weight in hours, or roughly 19 weeks. "If you see spiders nesting in your turkey," states the Turkey Manufacturers Association, "you waited too long."

Once the turkey is defrosted, you simply cook it in a standard household oven at 138.4 degrees centigrade for 27 minutes per pound (29 minutes for married taxpayers filing jointly). Add four minutes for each 100 feet of your home's elevation above sea level, which you should determine using a standard household sextant.

Inspect the turkey regularly as it cooks; when you notice the skin has started to blister, the time has come for you to give your guests the message they've been eagerly awaiting: "Run!" Because you left the plastic wrapper on the turkey, and it's about to explode, spewing out flaming salmonella units at the speed of sound.

As you stand outside waiting for the fire trucks, you should take a moment to count your blessings. The main one, of course, is that you will definitely NOT be asked to host the big family Thanksgiving dinner next year. But it's also important to remember - as our Pilgrim foreparents remembered on the very first Thanksgiving - that two excellent names for rock bands would be "The Turkey Spiders" and "The Flaming Salmonella Units."

Professor Branstad' doesn't sound so bad

This is going to get political.

The prospect of Gov. Terry Branstad joining the UI faculty shouldn't be a question of "What if ..." but rather, "Why not?"

Branstad's 16 years as Iowa's governor, his law degree from Drake University and his soon-to-be excess of free time make him an ideal candidate for another role: an educator.

The UI has offered Branstad a position in the College of Business Administration. The governor, has been bombarded with job offers, has yet to make a decision on whether he'll come to Iowa City when his

But if he did come here, Branstad's shift would be another form of civic duty. The shuffle from political podium to an academic rostrum would allow Branstad to discuss policies, talk business and explain state law from a more comprehensive perspective.

Having the former governor engage students would be like an internship, as young scholars could interact with a professional who has been there. Those who protest Branstad's presence at the UI argue that his political beliefs would be imposed on students. It is the policy of the administration not to impose certain opinions or views on the UI community. But, really, who hasn't had a professor, with a remark here and there, indicate her or his personal beliefs?

If Branstad were to teach at the UI, he would fall under the same standard not to endorse or propagandize one political party over another. As an eduator, he should use his platform to instruct, not to indoctrinate.

Yet, it is the nature of politics to incite debate, to provoke the opposition and to become impassioned by the issues, and students at the university level are challenged to make their own decisions. UI undergraduates are not naive; they can be exposed to various beliefs and either adopt a new affiliation, or confirm an existent one.

Perhaps Branstad's conservatism will inspire students to look more critically at their choices or be even more adamant against the other side.

The utterance of "Professor Branstad" would be proof that the UI strives for a relative, holistic and enriching approach to education. He would be an asset to any program for the experiences he could share.

Casting aside Branstad's potential position on the faculty to promote the view that only academics can teach is too snobbish and too close-minded a view - one that hopefully isn't shared by the professors we value here.

City and UI should work to cure parking woes

To the Editor:

For the thousands of people who own vehicles in this city, there is far too little parking available at a reasonable price, especially when metered parking is only set at onehour limits. If a person has class for several consecutive hours, there isn't time to return to the meter between the classes.

The parking ramps around the downtown area are helpful but expensive. If someone parks his or her car there for the entire day, five days a week, the fares are eventually going to add up to a large sum.

Also, the university-owned parking lots quickly fill up in the morning, so students who drive their cars to campus for afternoon classes often have to find other places to park, such as ramps or metered parking, which again brings up the issue of money.

I don't believe there would be as much of a parking problem if the bus system was more efficient and frequent. Also, there would have to be more bus stops in order to allow the bus riders more chances to get a bus closer to where they parked and still be able to get to class on time. I realize that the city gains revenue from meters, ramp fees and also parking tickets, and that helps the city to fund other things for the community. But I feel that city officials should be thinking about the feelings of the citizens as well when they are considering the issue of parking.

I think the city officials and the university need to get together and come up with some new ideas on how they could better the parking situation for all of the students and citizens who reside in the lowa City area.

Student Health policy needs reworking

To the Editor:

As the cold and flu season bears down on the UI campus, many students will make their way across the Iowa River to Student Health, in search of medical care. A student health facility is a wonderful resource for any university.

After all, it exists on any campus for the convenience of the student body, with the hopes of providing on-campus care without forcing the students to find other means of health care.

Speaking from personal and observed encounters with the UI Student Health, there is a problem with appointments. With Student Health's policy of "appointment only," many students who are in need of medical care have to wait days before being seen by a physician. I feel Student Health needs to have more spaces set aside for nonappointment patients.

Also, there needs to be less emphasis on whether or not students have appointments scheduled, and the major emphasis should be the patient's condition.

As I said before, Student Health is a wonderful resource at the University of lowa, but some administrative changes need to be made in its admittance policies

Arafat: Our rifle is ready

Israel frowns at comments on armed conflict and a declaration of Palestinian statehood.

> By Nicolas B. Tatro Associated Press

JERUSALEM - Palestinian leader Yasser Arafat hinted Sunday at armed conflict with Israel, warning darkly that "our rifle is ready," and repeating that he will declare statehood next year.

David Bar-Illan, a senior adviser to Israeli Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu, said Arafat's comments were a "declaration of war on the peace process." Bar-Illan told the Associated Press that Netanyahu "views such statements with the utmost severity" and would bring them up when his Cabinet meets later this week.

The escalation of rhetoric came as U.S. envoy Dennis Ross sought to jump-start the latest Mideast peace accord.

An Israeli official, speaking on condition of anonymity, said that Israel has asked the United States, which mediated the recent peace agreement, to condemn Arafat's comments.

And in comments certain to heighten tension, Foreign Minister Ariel Sharon called on Jewish settlers Sunday to grab West Bank hilltops before the sides reach a permanent territorial Soldiers also clashed with a group of Palestinians who tried to prevent a bulldozer from beginning work on a bypass road for Jewish settlers. The road will require the confiscation of 40 acres of Arab land in al-Khader, near Bethlehem.

About 30 soldiers beat back 20 protesters, who responded with a hail of stones. Soldiers shot rubber bullets and tear-gas canisters into the crowd. Two Palestinians were treated for tear-gas inhalation, including Palestinian lawmaker Salah Tamari, and one Israeli soldier was injured.

Ross met with Israeli officials and with negotiators from both sides. Palestinian officials, speaking on condition of anonymity, said the three-way meeting produced a loose timetable for implementation

Emotional Hawkeyes still no match for Ohio State

For sixteen seconds, the Iowa Hawkeyes were a better college football team than Ohio State Saturday. Then reality kicked in, and the Buckeyes' talent took over. Just ask Ohio State coach John

"That was a big play," Cooper said. "They had the momentum there. It was important for us to come back and not only get momentum, but sort of take their crowd out of the game."

It was a big play sort of afternoon for the Buckeyes, with three of their scoring possessions lasting less than one minute.

That's what pure talent can do for you. The showing was reminiscent of last year's Iowa team, which dominat-

All the turnovers, trick plays, and emotion in the world for Iowa couldn't overcome Buckeye talent. It was the third time this season the Hawkeyes faced a Top 10 team, and the third time they walked away on the wrong

If only Cara Consuegra could have played the first half of Sunday's game ike she played the second half.

Iowa's sophomore point guard scored all of her 19 points after halftime, but it wasn't enough to overcome a 24-point second-half deficit as the Hawkeyes ost their regular-season opener to Washington, 84-76, in Seattle.

The game was also Washington's season opener.

Only eight of Iowa coach Angie Lee's players dressed, severely limiting her depth. Of the eight in uniform, only six saw action, and three played at least 37 minutes.

'We showed a lot of character," Lee said. "Our freshman class got almost 30 minutes of experience in their first collegiate game and did some wonderful things.

Finally, the Iowa volleyball team danced. Friday night, the Hawkeyes snapped their 24-match conference losing streak with a three game win over Indiana.

With a season-high 864 fans in attendance, Iowa coaches Rita Crockett, Anne-Sylvie Monnet and Lonise Norfleet took to center court after the final point and danced. The team surrounded them, and the group entertained the fans as L.L. Cool J's "Phenomenon" blared through the speakers at Carver-Hawkeye Arena.

The first year coaches had promised prior to the season to dance after Iowa's first Big Ten victory. After 14 straight losses, the trio were last weekend, the players knew they more than willing to make good on the promise.

"It was kind of like having a baby, and it took almost nine months, too," Crockett said laughing. "It took awhile, but it was fun. It's just good to have that monster off our backs.'

Iowa's conference losing streak began on Oct. 25, 1997. With only six matches left in Iowa's season prior to

Still, Iowa didn't roll over and play dead for the Buckeyes. It threw anything and everything it had at Ohio State, keeping things interesting until the Buckeyes blew it wide open midway through the third quarter. The Hawkeyes' emotion-filled

The story was the same for Ohio State's nine penalties. The Buckeyes would make a mistake to keep an Iowa drive alive, only for the Hawkeyes to not move the football and give it right back.

Fry even tried a few of his famed "exotics" to help the offense. On one play, he lined four receivers on one side of the field and threw a receiver screen. On a short yardage situation, he called for a pitch to Ladell Betts, who threw a halfback pass to Zeron Flemister for a 23yard gain.

Settles finished with five points, four rebounds and two assists.

"He's something," Iowa coach Tom Davis said. "I now remember what I've missed the last two years. It's not so much what he does, but how he does it.'

Settles assured Iowa of a 34-25 halftime lead when he blocked a shot with a few seconds remaining in the half. The Leathernecks cut the Hawkeyes' lead to 42-39 early in the second half, but Iowa followed with an 11-0 scoring run to take a commanding lead.

The last time Iowa faced Indiana, the Hawkeyes lost in three straight. They followed the defeat by being shutout at Northwestern.

But Iowa was determined to avenge both losses this weekend. And for once, things fell into place for the young squad. Iowa hit the court strong on Saturday, shutting out Northwestern to gather two straight Big Ten wins for the first time since 1994.

"This feels really good," junior Julie Williams said. "It's tough to go on losing. We just have to keep going and try to get every game from now until the end of the year. We've got a lot of time to make up

The Hoosiers and Wildcats were both coming off big wins prior to facing Iowa. Both teams had defeated No. 15 Illinois a week ago, and Indiana was hoping to gather another win to help its push for a bid in the NCAA tournament.

"It should always be like that," Crockett said. "Wins shouldn't be a surprise. From all the hard work that we've done it's finally starting to pay off and it should continue."

Week 11 was filled with tough matchups and upset potential, but a lot of On the Line players found a way through it all for perfect cards.

Forget Michigan's big win over Wisconsin or Kansas State's victory over Nebraska, who would have thought that Ohio State would actually defeat lowa?

Scott Mullen is out for the year with a broken collarbone.

> By Wayne Drehs The Daily Iowan

It has been a jinx to play quarterback for the Hawkeye football team

First, Randy Reiners went down

Freshman Kyle McCann replaced Reiners successfully until a high ankle sprain against Michigan sent him to the sidelines.

with a knee injury.

Now, Iowa's third starting quarterback, sophomore Scott Mullen, will be out for the season with a broken collarbone.

It happened early in the second quarter, when Mullen was drilled by Ohio State defensive lineman Joe Brown after Mullen threw an incomplete pass to Ladell Betts. Although TV replays showed the hit was late, no flag was thrown on the play.

"I heard it snap when I fell," Mullen said. "I knew it was broken."

The sophomore was driven off the field on a motorized cart and replaced by a still sore and less mobile McCann.

McCann had not played since the Hawkeyes' 31-0 loss to Wisconsin on Oct. 24 due to a high ankle sprain suffered on Oct. 3. McCann completed his first six passes, and finished the afternoon 13-of-24 for 120 yards.

Mullen was just 2-for-6 for 16 yards prior to the injury, but his 11yard touchdown run helped Iowa to an early 7-0 lead. Fry planned on using the option attack with Mullen extensively, and the quarterback ran five times for 25 vards. "When Mullen went down, that took the option game out," Fry said. 'That's what we had based our practices on.' Fry said he expects McCann to start next Saturday against Minnesota, with either Reiners or Ryan Hansen the backup.

Hughes comes up huge Any questions about the health of Iowa senior linebacker Matt Hughes were answered loud and clear Saturday.

Hughes tallied a career-high 18 tackles against Ohio State, including a dozen solo stops. It was Hughes' first appearance since the Wisconsin game, during which he sprained his ankle.

He even took some time in between tackles to let Buckeye coach John Cooper know he didn't approve of the coach's constant complaining to the officials.

"I just told him that his guys were doing the same things our guys were doing," Hughes said. "He didn't like that too much.

"He started yelling at me, but I just kind of laughed at him. He may be older, but I feel I can say what I want to say."

Freshman D.J. Johnson experienced the highest of highs and lowest of lows against the Buckeyes.

In the first quarter, he intercepted a Joe Germaine pass and returned it 73 yards to the Ohio State 11-yard line. One play later, Iowa quarterback Scott Mullen pair of touchdowns.

"This is uncanny that those two passes, all he had to do was back up and not let him behind you," Fry said. "Those are inexcusable, but they happen. It's just been that type of year."

Boston ended his afternoon with five catches for 163 yards and two touchdowns. Both scores came on plays when Johnson was the primary defender.

"He was good, very good," Johnson said. "It was good that I got to play against him because you don't get that chance a lot. Even though some things didn't go my way, I learned a lot and it will help me out."

Kampman crushes 'em

True freshman linebacker Aaron Kampman started his first game Saturday, and played like an experienced veteran, totaling ten tackles and a sack.

On one play, he blitzed right up the middle and literally met Germaine as the senior took the snap from center.

"I thought he had a super game," Fry said. "He looked like he was shot out of a cannon on some of those. He had three or four great tackles. He's a tremendous prospect."

Why the flag?

Fry said after the game that the officials apologized to him for throwing a penalty flag on Iowa's third-down punt late in the first

On the play, Iowa was trying to catch Ohio State off-guard by punting on 3rd-and-19 from its own 12yard line. The punt sailed over safety Gary Berry's head, and rolled to the Iowa 28-yard line.

An official threw a flag on the play for no apparent reason. He later waived off the flag, and repeated the down. Iowa then handed off to Ladell Betts and punted on fourtly down, with the element of surprise then gone.

The result was a 43-yard boot by Jason Baker that Ohio State returned to its 41-yard line.

Four plays later, the Buckeyes punched it into the end zone for a 28-14 lead.

"That's a quick kick we use," Fry said. "But the official threw his flag and we had to punt again, but then they got a guy back there. He told me at halftime he just got confused."

Extra points

Zach Bromert moved into sole possession of fourth place on the career scoring list with 216 points, two behind Tavian Banks.

• Ohio State's interception return for a touchdown was the first for an Iowa opponent since 1995, when the Buckeyes' Shawn Springs returned a Matt Sherman pass 60 yards for a touchdown.

 Offensive tackle Jared Kerkhoff and Kampman both started for the first time Saturday. They became the 20th and 21st Iowa players to get their first career starts this season.

· Boston raised his career reception total to 170, breaking the school record of 168 held by Cris

quarterbyquarter

Ohio State's powerful offense looked as if it might do as it pleased in the early going. David Boston returned a Jason Baker punt 41 yards to start the Buckeyes' first possession at the lowa 49-yard line.

27, but freshman cornerback D.J. Johnson picked off a Joe Germaine pass and returned it 73 yards to the Iowa 11. Iowa quarterback Scott Mullen scored on an option keeper on the next play to give the Hawkeyes a 7-0 lead.

The lead lasted just 16 seconds when Joe Montgomery ran 80 yards on the next play

Germaine hit Boston for a 54-yard touchdown pass on the last play of the quarter.

But when the Hawkeyes threatened, Ohio State coach John Cooper put Andy Katzen-moyer and company back in the game in place of the second stringers.

Ohio State then moved 65 yards on six plays and scored on a 10-yard run by fullback

Norman didn't have to win this week to feel good about his game. His left shoulder felt strong throughout the 54-hole event, his putting was superb at times and he came up with his share of big shots throughout the day.

Under the gun, I felt pretty good," he said.

But the closing holes belonged to Elkington, who himself missed his share of golf this year with a litany of illnesses and injury.

Elkington's 8-iron into 8 feet set up the playoff, the first in the 10-year history of the Franklin Templeton Shark Shootout. On the first playoff hole, Elkington hit his approach into 10 feet. Norman made that one, too, a big putt coming after Cook's 20-foot birdie putt.

The accident occurred just hours after Kentucky (7-3) defeated Vanderbilt 55-17 on Saturday at Commonwealth Stadium. Watts was one of the players honored during Senior Day ceremonies on the field that were attended by his parents.

Pulaski County Sheriff Sam Catron said the accident happened just before 7 a.m. EST on southbound U.S. 27, about 60 miles south of Lexington and 10 miles north of Somerset.

Catron said the 1985 Chevy truck in which the men were traveling drifted onto the shoulder of the road. Watts apparently got the truck back on the pavement but overcorrected, sending it across the two-lane highway and off the other side, throwing all three men from the vehicle, Catron said.

None were wearing seat belts.

By Eric Petersen The Daily Iowan

The Iowa men's cross country team placed second at Saturday's Midwest Regional, giving Larry Wieczorek his first trip to the NCAA Championship meet in his 12 years as head coach.

The Hawkeyes earned an automatic berth to the Nov. 23 Championships at Kansas by placing three runners in the Top 20. "I think it was a historic moment in our program," Wieczorek said. "It was one of those days where it was a coaching peak." With the championship field expanded from 23 to 31 teams this year, No. 32 Iowa had an excellent chance of receiving one of 13 atlarge bids. But with the Hawkeyes' top two finish, they didn't need it.

Steele said he was elated to help lead the team to their ultimate goal, Wieczorek's first trip to the championships.

"I'm just so happy that the team is going (to NCAA's)," Steele said. "We're the pioneers I guess." While No. 32 Iowa looked impres-was just excited to have the opportunity to compete with the best teams in the country.

In the opening match, redshirt freshman Marc Juergens brought the crowd to life with a pin of junior Ben Kritsonis. In a match that was contested mostly on the wrestler's feet, Juergens took a 4-2 lead into the third period.

Falcons take out frustration on 49ers first place in the NFC West on Sunday, scoring twice on defensive plays before clinching a 31-19 victory over San Francisco on Chris Chandler's 78-yard touchdown pass to Terance Mathis.

The 49ers (7-3) have dominated the West since 1980 and blown out Atlanta through most of the '90s. The Falcons (8-2) captured their only division title 18 years ago and have been one of the league's sorriest franchises since entering the NFL in 1966.

After Ray Buchanan scored on an interception and Jessie Tuggle on a fumble recovery, the Falcons gave up two long touchdown passes by Steve Young that closed the 49ers to 24-19 with 3:09 remaining.

But on second-and-8 from the Falcons 22, Chandler went deep to Mathis for the touchdown that sealed it. Dolphins 13, Panthers 9

The Colts (2-8) drove 80 yards on their final possession. Tight end Pollard appeared stopped just short of the goal line, but stretched his arms into the end zone before he hit the ground, tying the game. Mike Vanderjagt, whose missed field goal at the end of the first half led to one New York touchdown, kicked the extra point to snap the Jets' fourgame winning streak.

Redskins 28, Eagles 3 LANDOVER, Md. — Skip Hicks

The 25-point margin of victory was the second largest in Norv Turner's five seasons as Washington coach. Philadelphia has lost four games by 25 or more points this season.

After an 0-7 start, including a 17-12 defeat at Philadelphia on Oct. 11 in the first-ever meeting between two 0-5 teams in the NFC East, the Redskins (2-8) have won two out of three. Oilers 23, Steelers 14

COLLEGE FOOTBALL ROUNDUP

Staying perfect doesn't mean playing perfect

By Richard Rosenblatt Associated Press

Exciting? Yes.

Works of art? Not really. On college football's show-and-tell

Saturday, the nation's top three teams Tennessee, Kansas State and UCLA - demonstrated there's no need to play perfectly to stay perfect. And because of it, there's still no telling how the national title picture will turn out.

The top-ranked Volunteers (9-0, 6-0 SEC) had three turnovers and dropped several passes, but got a gift fumble recovery near midfield to set up Travis Henry's 1-yard TD run with 28 seconds left for a 28-24 victory over No. 9 Arkansas (8-1, 5-1).

No. 2 Kansas State (10-0, 7-0 Big (2) beat No. 17 Nebraska (8-3, 4-3) for the first time in 30 years but had to overcome five turnovers, including three fumbles and an interception by Michael Bishop, for its 40-30 win. And No. 3 UCLA (9-0, 7-0 Pac-10), after four consecutive close calls, stayed ahead of Washington from the start but relied more on Chris Sailer's foot than Cade McNown's arm for a 36-24 victory over the Huskies (5-5, 3-4).

Surely, mistakes are going to be on the road to a national title.

We got some help from them late, but we gave them some help in the first half," Vols coach Phillip Fulmer said after his team fell behind 24-10 but scored the game's final 18 points. "Those kinds of things tend to even out over the course of a game."

On Saturday, it's Gators vs. Seminoles at Tallahassee, Fla., with the usual high stakes - the loser is out of the title chase.

Gopher loss to Hoosiers ends dreams of bowl game

■ Minnesota lost to Indiana Saturday 20-19.

By Hank Loweneron Associated Press

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. Excuse Minnesota if it doesn't have a brotherly feeling about Antwaan and Curtis Randle El.

The two brothers combined to play key roles in Indiana's 20-19 comeback victory over the Gophers, who saw their hopes of the school's first bowl invitation since 1986 end with the loss.

'We've been trying to get the combination going. We got it going in high school, and Pop Warner," said Antwaan Randle El, who became the first quarterback in Indiana history to rush for 100 yards in four games. "Just knowing he's on our side is more of a comfort for me." The redshirt freshman, who passed for one touchdown and ran for another, had a career-long rush of 50 yards and accumulated a career-high 143 yards rushing while completing just 4-of-17 passes for 39 yards.

"Coach said we're going to go right at them," said Randle El after Indiana rushed for 204 yards against a defense that was ninth in the nation after allowing an average of 94.6 yards in its first nine outings. "All the stunts that did, we practiced against and it helped us out. The stunts that they ran, we were able to get blocked."

Indiana (4-6, 2-5 Big Ten) overcame deficits of 12-0 and 19-7, taking the lead for good on Randle El's 9-yard run in the third quarter.

"But when you talk about a football player, you talk about a lot of dimensions. To me, Michael has all the dimensions. He can run it. He can throw it. He's involved on every snap. He's got great leadership ability. He's so competitive, you can see it. It's pretty evident," Snyder said.

Bishop, the Big 12's leader in total offense, has rushed for 12 touchdowns and passed for 20 to lead the Wildcats (10-0, 7-0 Big 12).

FILM REVIEW

By Phil Kennedy

Look out Grim Reaper - Brad Pitt is the newest image of the master of darkness that every "Idrool-for-Pitt" female will have after seeing "Meet Joe Black.

Dare I say, "Meet Joe Black" is the date movie of the year. Three hours of Pitt satisfies the female viewers, and newcomer Claire Forlani satisfies male viewers as Pitt's high-cheeked obsession. Pitt and Forlani's relationship combined with Pitt's metamorphosis from "death" to good guy gives the film a real feel-good-movie persona. However, when the characters aren't smiling and feeling the love, they just sit around looking into space, stretching the film into a somewhat lifeless movie. Pitt, the film's hyped star, is not only the character death, but dead in his role also.

Anthony Hopkins is the real star of the film. Hopkins is at his best starring as Bill Parrish, a business tycoon who is loaded up to his neck in cash. Death, who takes over the body of Pitt's original character in the film, has plans to take Bill to the afterlife, but wants to see the real world first and take a "holiday" from his killing chores to discover why peo-

Death takes on the simple name of Joe Black and forces Bill to guide him through human life for a few days. However, Joe picking Bill makes no sense. Joe wants to experience normal life for the first time in his existence, and he chooses a filthy rich businessman to show him the ropes. If Joe wanted to see normal life, he should have picked someone who but battles with a sleazy associate

Joe quickly finds his pleasures in life once entering Bill's house and life. Peanut butter is his first love, but then he meets Bill's prized daughter, Susan, a loving child and successful doctor. Not realizing she's falling in love for none other than death himself, Susan disregards getting to know Joe well and goes right for his pants.

Hopkins, who should get Oscar attention for his dramatic and expressions. Death may be able to emotional role, not only hosts Joe get the girls and retain power at least doesn't have servants and of his own who is attempting to but he's painfully dull.

sell off the business that Bill has built up throughout his entire life.

Jumping back and forth between Joe and Susan's romance and Bill's emotional last days on earth makes the film flow easily keeps it entertaining throughout the entire butt-numbing three hours. Despite Pitt's starring role in the film, he nearly ruins the movie with his androidlike voice tone and blank facial over humans in "Meet Joe Black,"

'Waterboy' success defies critics

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Panned movies dominated the weekend box office estimates, with "The Waterboy" followed by the openings of Brad Pitt's "Meet Joe Black" and the slasher sequel "I Still Know What You Did Last Summer.'

Proving once again that young audiences ignore the critics, Adam Sandler's new comedy was No. 1 for a second weekend, grossing $25.2 million for a total of $79.9 million, according to estimates Sunday

Second was "I Still Know What You Did Last Summer," which was faulted for a nonsensical plot and lack of thrills but reaped $17.5 million. It appealed to huge production costs.

No. 3 was "Meet Joe Black," starring Brad Pitt as a vacationing Grim Reaper in a three-hour movie that some critics likened to suffering a slow, boring death. The romantic drama had a respectable but not stellar — opening, reaping $15.6 million from audiences dominated by

"Joe Black" actually did better than its third-place finish would indicate because its long running time meant it had fewer showings than the competitors. The perscreen average was a decent $6,230, although the key will be whether the film can hold onto its audience to recoup
