Dee, Davis mark Black Action Theatre birthday

A famous acting couple will celebrate their 50th wedding anniversary with a public reading.

By Dave Howard

Perhaps it was destiny, or just a little bit of misfortune, but the Forrester family, everything just seemed to fall into place.

It began last year, when Peace, director of the U.S. Black Action Theatre, announced that the 50th anniversary of the U.S. Declaration of Independence would be celebrated with an outdoor event. The idea was to mark RAY's 50 years of teaching in physics. "It was the perfect time to do so," Peace said.

On September 18, Peace and Davis, who have been married for 50 years, will celebrate their anniversary with a reading of "With Ocean and Ruby: In This Life Together," a play written by comedian and actress Ruby Dee.

The play, which takes place in the 1940s, follows the lives of two African American women who are sentenced to prison for their involvement in a civil rights protest. The two, played by Dee and Davis, must find a way to survive and come together.

"This is a great opportunity to bring attention to the important issues faced by women in prison," Peace said. "It's a chance to celebrate the strength and resilience of these women, and to remember the history of the civil rights movement."

Lawyer could serve up to five years
APL - IOWA (AP) — A Winton attorney has been found guilty of embezzling thousands of dollars for a "hobby" in exchange for paying legal services.

The trial of Roes Scott, 45, concluded Tuesday when state District Court Judge Robert G. Walker convicted him of embezzlement by a public official. Scott was charged with a Class B felony and faces up to five years in prison and a $10,000 fine.

According to court documents, the Winton lawyer was hired to represent the state in the case of the Winton Police Department, which wanted to get approval to use the money from the state's sales tax fund for the purchase of a new computer system.

Walker said the evidence "clearly indicated" that Scott embezzled $6,926.85 from the fund.

Scott's attorney, David Mueller, said he will appeal the conviction.

C.R. company is being sued for Y2K problems
COURIER-APL - A major national computer supplier to the state of Iowa has been sued by a state agency that claims the company failed to deliver a Y2K-compliant computer system.

The Iowa Department of Education claims that Computer Resources, Inc., failed to deliver the computer systems that were planned and ordered by the state.

The suit, filed in District Court in Des Moines, claims that the company was supposed to deliver 55 computer systems that were to be used in the state's schools.

The suit claims that the company delivered only 14 systems, and that the state was forced to buy additional systems from other companies.

A court hearing has been set for December 18 at 2 p.m. to determine whether the company is liable for the additional costs.

The Carroll Alsop House is among 17 homes designed by Frank Lloyd Wright, per­ limited for home of a woman who lived there for about 10 years.

Sixty years ago, the house was built on the edge of town in what was then a rural area. It has been on the national register of historic places since 1961.

Wright, who was one of the most influential architects of the 20th century, designed the house for a woman who lived there for about 10 years.

The house, which is located on a hill, is surrounded by trees and has a view of the city.

The owner of the house, who lives nearby, says the house is a "privilege" to own and a "treasure" to live in.

The house was designed with a focus on natural light and air circulation, and features a central atrium that connects to the living, dining, and kitchen areas.

The house has three bedrooms, two bathrooms, and a garage.

The owners say they are proud to own the house and are happy to share it with others.

The house is open to the public on weekends, and visitors are welcome to tour the home and learn about Wright's design philosophy.

Telling the tale of Whitman

A new book published by the UP Press is a date-by-date account of America's favorite poet.

By Alan Marcus

"Although considered by many to be the greatest and most important voice in the American canon of literature, Walt Whitman was fired from his position at the University of Iowa Dance Marathon a feat not easily accomplished. The book sheds light on not only Whitman's life but on the times of a changing America, according to her home, according to the chronology. Whitman received a meager $100 from the Iowa Dance Marathon which he became a controversial voice on his 1892, when he died; his last..."

Tis the season for mega-mergers

It's the most wonderful time of the year - but not for many of Iowa's and Minnesota employees. The mega-merger will result in mass layoffs, just in time for the holidays.

But what do you do if you're one of the millions of employees who will be affected by the layoffs? Here are some tips to help you navigate this difficult time:

1. Stay calm and informed: The first step is to gather as much information as possible. This includes understanding the reasons behind the layoffs and the potential impact on you and your colleagues.

2. Prepare a list of contacts: Make a list of all the people you need to reach out to, including HR, your supervisor, and your network of contacts. This will help you stay organized and ensure you don't miss anyone.

3. Update your resume and LinkedIn profile: Use this opportunity to update your resume and LinkedIn profile. Make sure your skills and experience are up-to-date and highlight any transferable skills that might be relevant to other industries.

4. Network: Reach out to your network of contacts and let them know you're on the market. This can help you discover new opportunities and connections that you might not have been aware of.

5. Consider education and retraining: If you're worried about finding a new job, consider pursuing additional education or retraining. This can help you develop new skills and increase your employability.

6. Be proactive: Don't wait for job opportunities to come to you. Be proactive and research companies that interest you. Attend career fairs and networking events to meet potential employers.

7. Stay positive: It's important to stay positive during this time. Remember that this is a temporary setback and that there are opportunities out there for you.

8. Seek support: Don't be afraid to reach out for support. Talk to friends, family, and other professionals who can offer you advice and encouragement.

9. Stay healthy: Take care of yourself during this time. Exercise, eat healthy, and get enough sleep. This will help you stay focused and energetic.

10. Stay informed: Follow the news and stay informed about the latest developments in your industry. This will help you make informed decisions about your future.

Remember, you're not alone in this. Many people are facing the same challenges, and with the right approach, you can find success in the coming year.

Letters to the Editor

Frazzled already has a friend

To the Editor:

I'm going to go on record now and say that I'm not a big fan of the latest coaching move, but I think the new man in charge will do a fine job. Both men are equally skilled, and I think this is a good move for the team.

Bowlsey under fire for coaching choice

I used to be that even if you could not predict Iowa City's weather, you could count on certain articles appearing in certain newspapers, particularly among the UT's coaching ranks. Year in and year out, one would expect to see people like Dan Gable, Gene Fry, or Tom Davis coaching at Hawkeye sporting events.

But not anymore. Fry's retirement on Monday has opened the door for the Hawkeyes to replace one of the nation's most successful coaches. Fry's decision, however, comes at a time when the Hawkeyes are in need of a new head coach.

In recent history, there have been several coach hires that have resulted in successful seasons, but none have been more significant than Fry's.

The decision to hire Fry as the new head coach was a bold move for the Hawkeyes. Fry's experience and success as a coach have made him a popular choice for the position.

at the Union. Regardless of whether certain causes would fit better in the Union, some students say the court's decision has already exposed the limitations of the Union's governance system for these events. "The Union is too far away. It's not the right place," said one student. "Even though the Union is right here, it's too late."

Though surprised by this decision, UI police chief John Linn made it clear that the decision would not change the ability of campus groups to hold events in the Union. "We will continue to support groups and their activities," he said.

While students bemoaned the decision, some Morgantown residents were more optimistic. "I think it's a good move," said one resident. "It will help promote the arts and culture on campus."

Judith Evans to Launch "Kamehameha's Secret"

"We had to do something to meet the demands of the audience," said Evans. "The play is very much about our times, and we wanted to make it relevant to today's world."

The play, written by Linda Haunani, is set in 1999 and explores the effects of blackface in a hula performance in a school. "Blackface is a very sensitive issue," said Evans. "We wanted to make sure it was handled in a way that was respectful to the community."

Stoops hires brother and Venables from K-State

Iowa City Press-Citizen

Wednesday, December 8, 1998

Norman, Okla. — Coaches Mike and Joe Stoops were introduced by K-State Athletic Director Bob Schultz Tuesday morning as K-State's new football heads.

Joe Stoops, who had been at Kansas State since 1995, was named head coach Tuesday at a press conference with athletic director Bob Schultz.

Mike Stoops, who had been an assistant at Kansas State, also will be named defensive coordinator at K-State.

Both Stoops brothers played high school football in Kansas City.

"I would like to thank the K-State fans," Joe Stoops said at the news conference Tuesday afternoon. "I think they have shown a lot of faith in us for the last 13 and 14 seasons. Because of my brother's commitment to the school, I was able to come up here and they coach the way they do, I was able to come up here and do the same."

"The War on the Shore" has become the "Peace at Pontiac Bay".

By Doug Ferguson

MELBOURNE, Australia — "The War on the Shore" is in town.

It was the players and spectators who talked up the Presidents Cup, it might as well be called the "1999 Tour Play-Off".

U.S. captain Dan Nicholson set the tone for the week, as a marquee player took the microphone, moved the arm, and delivered a point that would be pivotal for the game than a winner: "I'm not now that I'm 6-foot nine with a dark streak.

They don't have the authors that we want," Nicholson said.

"The important part of this thing is that we have a chance to win," the former month of Peter Thomson, the Seve Ballesteros Open and then the European team," Nicholson said.

"It's a good time to do this," he said.

"I'm not sure I want to see this," he said.

"I'm not sure I want to see this," he said.

As long as possible, "Love was among those yukking it up during the pre-match ruckus. He played with Leonard at the European Ryder Cup matches in 1995 and said that the American Ryder Cup matches have been a better feel than the European matches. Leonard said that they have been a better feel than the European matches.

"I think we have a chance to win," he said.

"I think we have a chance to win," he said.

Of course, he hopes that all but two players in the International team make it through the week unscathed and with their rucks intact. If not, he'll take his revenge on the US. "I'm not sure I want to see this," he said.

"I'm not sure I want to see this," he said.

The win was the fifth straight for Kentucky, who closed the gap to 51-42 with a dunk by Evans that gave Kentucky a 51-42 lead.
