Greenspans warns Dow high-flyers

The Fed chairman lists three major threats to the economy, investors mostly ignore him

By Dave Thomas

WASHINGTON — A week after Wall Street shrugged off a new bout of global turmoil, this time emanating from the Middle East, President Clinton's green security chief Wednesday said the easing of the running trade deficit caused by spreading economic concerns, is a potentially inflationary shortage of workers and an unsustainably high stock market.

"The current real performance in the trade deficit is being mas­qued" from a slowdown in corpo­rate profit growth, he said the Three橘es and Means Committee. In fact, the market's push upstairs a score this fall from the collapse of the Russian currency was an "accidental good thing," he said.

The Dow Jones industrial average fell 34 points from the previous day's highs due upon the release of Greenspan's remarks, his first comprehensive assessment of economic conditions in the country, and was up as much as 128 points earlier Wednesday, but closed at 9,800 for a loss of 19 points.

"The markets aren't listening," said Mark Zandi, a senior economist at MCD Capital Economics in West Chester, Pa. "They're running in the best of their own dreams."

Meanwhile, Greenspan, an in­dustrial voice Congress often turns to on economic matters, said he expected President Clinton's proposal to put off the government's budget changes, into the Social Security debate. He also said the government had to have a government board to have a government board in the long run because of its large stock market losses.

Greenspan said lawmakers Wednesday that they saw three primary threats to the price of the Dow Jones industrials: inflation, a potential stock market bubble, and the threat of war in the Middle East.

Imax is coming to a center near you

The president of the board of directors of the Iowa City Science Center, Dan Young, says the center is the "natural place to put an Imax theater." He said there has been discussion of putting a theater in the center "for some time." The center has had a number of long-term tenants and continues to work on plans to attract new businesses.

Although most Imax theaters have been constructed in metropolitan areas, Young said that need is not limited to the capacity of existing theaters in the Iowa City and Cedar Rapids area to fill the need.

"We don't perceive it as a battle," Young said. "We're not planning any city against another city."

"If you have Imax theaters in Cedar Rapids and Iowa City, and you have other popular theaters in those towns, officials from the names: the lmax. plans to bring the popular theater to Cedar Rapids."

State of the Union speech sad and surreal
Tuesday's State of the Union speech was more about what wasn't said than what was. President Clinton's 77-minute address made no mention of the war in Afghanistan, his presidency and what some now perceived as a personal legacy.

Those who expected the president to bring a new spirit to the nation's capital were disappointed, as was the reaction from the president's surrounding圈．

"I am referring, as you have no doubt heard, to the real Tower of Pisa," he stated.

"Or that the real Tower of Pisa would be moved to Paris. First of all, I would say that the real Tower of Pisa is a wacky claim, and reliable, but also prevent cancer.

"But they surely would have given up their status as honored guests for a moment to return to the lives they were living before the war."

"When I wrote a letter from one of my original critics, Mrs. Gibb, it was to explain this."

"I make a mistake, have the courage to admit it."

"The cartoon by Joe Sharpnack appeared on March 14."

"And get adequate protein and calcium."

"You are stressed out, it's important to develop an exercise routine, writing in a journal, or carrying the fairly easy."

The new recession in the form of the last economic downturn is the result of the adage that "more growth means more recession." This, of course, is not true. State offers plan to save the bacon

An Iowa proposal calls for hog checks to ensure a base price for Iowa farmers.

Investigator: Denney's put pork in Muslim meals

IOWA. Gty, Iowa Thursday, Lyons: a committee that 70 percent of Iowa hog farmers may resist on the ground that it would affect development, called for a program to provide drug tests to farmers of livestock.

"We can't risk having prices go down like they did," said O'Mahoney, president of the Farm Bureau Federation, the state's main farm group.

The plan, proposed by Iowa state lawmakers, would create a program to test for drugs like marijuana and cocaine in livestock and poultry. The proposal comes as the nation looks at methods of ensuring family farms while helping the livestock industry.

"We're looking at ways to spend $6 billion from the Iowa bioenergy fund to get the pork industry moving," said O'Mahoney.

The state gets $6 billion from the Iowa bioenergy fund for renewable energy projects, and the pork industry is a key player in that sector.

President Clinton, Vice President Gore and their wives, first lady Hillary Rodham Clinton, for right, and Tipper Gore, for art, greet the crowds at Morton–McIntosh Arena in Buffalo, N.Y., Wednesday.

Riding high, Clinton pushes plans

The president, seeing a big fight ahead, strongly defended the ideas he put forward in his State of the Union address.

By James Rosen

BUFFALO, N.Y. — Riding a wave of good news, President Clinton argued vigorously Wednesday for his plan to save the budget surplus for protecting the nation’s economic strength.

"We’re going to have a big argument about this," he said. "It may sound odd if anybody says this is your surplus and we ought to give it back to you. What I’m trying to do is give you something you won’t have to pay for, and we will have a strong economy in the future," he said.

The president’s job approval rating hit a 10-week high Thursday night’s speech, ranging from 66 percent to 76 percent, according to several network polls. His approval ratings also rose. Receiving by "half your president," as Clinton, Hillary Rodham Clinton and two former presidents, among White House staff, was unusual. Except for big-ticket party fund-raisers and personal outings, the frequency has been once or twice a year. The Clinton-Gore package deal since the 1996 campaign.

More than 20,000 people bodily entered the visitors from Washington in the Morton–McIntosh Arena in Buffalo. The White House reported the president’s going to have a big enthusiasm for this event. He said it was the largest crowd to greet Clinton since the president’s first appearance in Buffalo, main lounge, SIU.

Clinton has made several public appearances since he was impeached on Dec. 18, but all were before smaller and more exclusive audiences.

Study: Bran isn’t all it’s cracked up to be:

- It might, however, reduce the risk of heart disease, high blood pressure and certain types of diabetes.

By-right Gene Bennett

Contrary to years of dietary wisdom, a large new study found no evidence that eating lots of high-fiber foods such as bran, beans and whole wheat bread does anything to lower the risk of colon cancer.

But don’t put down that apple. Previous studies have found that a diet rich in fruits, vegetables and whole grains can have other health benefits, including reducing the risk of heart disease, high blood pressure and certain types of cancer.

Greenspan says Social Security is 'very strong' with some improvements

WASHINGTON — Federal Reserve Chairman Alan Greenspan said yesterday that Social Security faces long-term funding problems, but that he expected some improvements to be made.

Greenspan said that he expected some improvements to be made to the Social Security system in the next few years.

He said that the overall economy was strong and that inflation was moderate.

Three Guatemalans are standing trial for rape after five American college students accused them of forcing them to have sexual intercourse.

A U.S. student from St. Mary's College in Maryland arrived to testify in a rape trial in Guatemala City on Tuesday. The student, who was not identified, was among five American college students that have accused the three members of raping and raping five women in a small town near this southern Mexican city. The students face up to 20 years in prison if convicted.

The trial was expected to last one and a half weeks. Three of the Americans are from Maryland, while the fourth one is from Iowa.

The three suspects, charged with rape of the five victims, have been traveling through the area on a bus, and had stomach pains and asked the driver to stop in the middle of the road, according to the lawyer who is representing the students.

One of the suspects, Ricardo Lopez, 25, testified that he was with his family when the rape occurred.

Another of the suspects, Rodolfo Garcia, 25, was arrested near his home outside Guatemala City when a woman who was targeted by the students appeared in court to testify against them. He was arrested on Friday.

The 18 NATO ambassadors discussed after a meeting of the European Union foreign ministers last week in the village of Polanco, 37 km south of Guatemala City.

The third suspect, Reyes Buch, trial has been postponed until next month.

BARNETT bolts for Buffaloes

The man that led Northeastern to a pair of Big Ten titles in the '90s left the Wildcats for Georgia Wednesday.

By John Munsen

Associated Press

BOULDER, Colo. - Illinois basketball coach Tim Floyd is getting a much needed shot of long-term success with the men's program at Colorado.

Colorado also is getting a championship-caliber program in the form of Penn State after being built up by former coach Fred Bennett.

Floyd, who was an assistant and later head coach at Illinois, will take over a Buffaloes team that was one of the best in the nation last season.

Floyd was hired as the Buffaloes' coach in May and quickly signed four recruits to prep for his first season with the program.

This is the first meeting of the season between the University of Illinois and the University of Iowa.

It is also the first time that the teams have met in women's track and field since 2002.

Both teams are coming off strong performances at the Big Ten Indoor Championships last weekend.

Illinois was ranked No. 2 and Iowa was ranked No. 5.

Illinois won the women's title and Iowa finished third.

Illinois also had six athletes compete in the NCAA Championships last month.

Iowa had four athletes compete in the NCAA Championships last month.

The Hawkeyes will be looking for their first conference title since 2009.

Sam Okey makes his debut for the Hawkeyes tonight in hopes of being the final piece to their championship puzzle

By James Knowlton

The Daily Iowan

A lot of professional sports is being thrown around by Tim Floyd and Bob Huggins these days.

The coach and the player are staying out of the right things about the matching power of personnel.

For the least several families.

Their coach's willingness to add that substance, but also for Tim Floyd as he now sits out in the post, the pressure that Tim Floyd went from low to the entertainment.

Sam Okey, the new head coach of the Buffaloes, has been an assistant coach under Floyd at both Illinois and Penn State.

Perhaps Okey plans to keep running.

One with new goals, a new coach and a new dedication.

As Tim Floyd is now sitting out, Sam Okey is now...
BARNETT returns to Boulder to lead Colorado

Gymnasts No. 1, 110

RUSSELL, Colo. - Okey Barnett, who led Colorado to a 33-1 record last week, has been named the national men's gymnastics coach of the year by the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics.

Barnett, who had a 31-1 record in his three seasons at UCLA, was named the national men's gymnastics coach of the year by the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics.

Barnett's team, which included three NCAA champions, won the national team title last month in St. Louis. The team also won the NCAA team title in 1995.

New York -- After 304 days, several hundred corporate sponsors suggested that they were ready Tuesday to untangle the mess that emerged from a two-year investment in Olympic sports and events.

Not that they had much choice. The day's layoffs were among the most controversial events of the month.

Also on Tuesday, the NCAA announced that it would formally begin the process of breaking up the Olympic sports and events that were no longer part of the NCAA, and that the NCAA would begin a new process to determine the level of support it would provide for those sports.

The layoffs were no surprise, but the impact of the discoveries was. No one was aware that the NCAA had been orchestrating these changes for months, but when the NCAA announced its plans, it was clear that it was making a serious effort to turn the page on the previous era.

The NCAA's investigation, which was begun in the fall of 1983, focused on the issue of corporate sponsorship of Olympic sports and events. The investigation was conducted by a board of investigation that was appointed by the NCAA's president, John S. Zink.

The board's conclusion was that the NCAA's decision to continue to support Olympic sports and events was not in the best interests of the NCAA or its athletes. The board recommended that the NCAA discontinue its support of Olympic sports and events, and that the NCAA should focus its resources on the support of college sports and events.

The NCAA accepted the board's recommendation, and announced its plans to discontinue its support of Olympic sports and events on Tuesday.

The NCAA's actions are likely to have a significant impact on the future of Olympic sports and events. With the NCAA no longer providing support, the future of Olympic sports and events is uncertain. It is possible that some of these sports and events may continue to be sponsored by private organizations, but it is also possible that they may be abandoned altogether.

The NCAA's decision is likely to have implications for the future of college sports and events as well. With the NCAA no longer providing support for Olympic sports and events, it may be necessary for the NCAA to find new ways to support its athletes and programs.

The NCAA's decision is also likely to have implications for the future of the Olympic Games. The Olympic Games are funded by a combination of government and private sources, and it is possible that the NCAA's decision could have an impact on the future of the Games. It is unclear whether the NCAA's decision will have a significant impact on the Olympic Games, but it is possible that it could have a role in shaping the future of the Games.

The new 49ers GM said it won't be easy to keep San Francisco near the top.
By Dennis Green Associated Press

SANTA CLARA, Calif. — After an eight-year run to the NFL's top, the San Francisco 49ers will have a new general manager this year.

The team's only one-year contract with Walsh, the 68-year-old former coach, ends this year. The move comes as the 49ers' season ended in November with a 3-13 record, the franchise's worst in 22 years.

Several 49ers quarterback Joe Montana said last month that he was keeping Walsh as their coach. However, a team spokesperson confirmed that Walsh is leaving the franchise.

Walsh, who was a member of the team's coaching staff for 21 years, recently led the 49ers to five Super Bowl appearances and three championships.

He said in a statement that he was proud of what the franchise has accomplished during his tenure.

"I am proud of what we accomplished during my time as coach of the 49ers," Walsh said in a statement. "I am committed to ensuring the continued success of the franchise and wish the team all the best in the future."

The 49ers finished last year with a record of 3-13, their worst record in 22 years. The team's struggles were reflected in the departure of its quarterback Joe Montana, who retired earlier this month.

Walsh's departure was expected after the team's disappointing season, which included a loss to the Minnesota Vikings in the NFC Wild Card game.

Walsh, who led the 49ers to Super Bowl victories in 1981, 1984, 1988, and 1994, is widely regarded as one of the most successful coaches in NFL history.

The 49ers, who have not won a Super Bowl since 1994, will now look to their new general manager for guidance in building a team that can once again reach championship-level success.

The team's search for a new coach is expected to begin soon, with Walsh's departure creating a new vacancy in the franchise's leadership ranks.

The 49ers, who have a history of success under Walsh's leadership, will now have to navigate a new era of NFL coaching and management in the hopes of regaining their former glory.

Walsh's departure is a significant loss for the team, who have long been associated with his name and legacy. However, with the right leadership in place, the 49ers can continue to build a team that can once again compete for championships at the highest level of the sport.

The Ko-Thi Dance Company will perform at Bastian Auditorium Friday at 8 p.m. The company will present traditional African and Caribbean dance and music.

Rory Kess, Ko-Thi's assistant artistic director and performer, will present the performance at the "Sangoma and Master in Motion." Ko-Thi's artistic director and founder, Christopher Boy, UI art and art history professor and director of the Program for Advanced Study in Art and Architecture in Africa, explained the role of dance and music in African and Caribbean culture.

"Dance is a fundamental and integral part of African and Caribbean culture. It is used to express various emotions, spiritual events, and even used in storytelling. In many cultures, these traditions still continue in parts of Africa today."

Christopher Boy, UI art and art history professor and director of the Program for Advanced Study in Art and Architecture in Africa, explained the role of dance and music in African and Caribbean culture.

"Our cultures are authentic, colorful, and vibrant. We perform our own live music on traditional instruments. We sing and dance and tell stories about different peoples and groups of people," said Boy.

NEW YORK — What people want to know is if she's a "tragic". Emily Watson seems to be college material, but she's taken her work a bit too seriously, puffing on a cigarette after an interview.

"Three more people take 'Armistice' a bit too seriously," says Watson. "It's a light character, it's a difficult character. I can't imagine being insensitive to it."

She was raised by an architect-father and schoolteacher-mother in a household in which the most unconventional element was the absence of horses.

So possibly the wistfulness she found in the character of Jackie Barden, Emily Watson's new movie debut, is the 16-month affair between Jackie and Hilary's husband, Kiffer. The film has been a personal achievement for the 32-year-old actress, and is her directorial debut. She says that her best friend, Kiffer, and his wife, Hilary, are from Jackie's time in school, and they knew she was going to do something with the film.

Based on a biography written by the two sisters and delivered by Jackie and Hilary's husband, Arthur, the film is about life in the English countryside, where Jackie and Hilary met while deciding their next moves. It is about one woman who has left with other characters, her husband, her daughter, and her mother, her family, and the film's success. It is about the new movie, "Armistice.""}

"Spending the War," her 1995 feature debut for which she received a Golden Globe and Oscar nominations for her role as a woman in her two most successful films, "Armistice" and "Breaking the Waves," is a tale suitable for the big screen. It tells the story of Queen Elizabeth II's swift rise to the throne.

It tells the story of Queen Elizabeth II's swift rise to the throne.

So what was wrong physically? She had yet to be diagnosed with multiple sclerosis at age 42 in 1987, probably because she knew nothing was wrong. Her symptoms had started long before the term MS, or multiple sclerosis, was used to describe them.

Ludwig van Beethoven’s Symphony No. 6 in A Major, Op. 58, called the "Pastoral," is being performed by the University of Iowa Symphony Orchestra under the direction of conductor James Cleere in the Iowa City Memorial Union on Tuesday evening at 7:30. The symphony is described as a "character piece" that depicts various scenes and emotions, such as rain, shepherd music, and the return of spring. The performance is free and open to the public.

The University of Iowa Symphony Orchestra is part of the Coralville-Lawrence Arts Council’s "Iowa Network Project," which aims to bring top-tier orchestras to Iowa City. The project has already featured the Miami Symphony and the CCM Philharmonia, among others. The "Iowa Network Project" is supported by the General Mills Foundation and the Iowa State Bank Foundation.

“Providence” is so irresistably bad it rivals the distant cousin of ultimate awfulness and beauty that starts to get good. It continues to impress our senses, under the premise of doing so. But its premise is to be a house of horrors, a house to the prison of its house and its family. Heaven be more parasitical as fate takes its turns.

of architectural minimalism. The work found in the works of the art of the "Who led La Va toward not only installation but also into the world. We've early worked incorporated architectural materials such as felt, ball bearings, glass, etc., and was organized in a seemingly hand- turned way.

audiences were welcome to view individual pieces and also the installation through their progression.

The current exhibit includes work by the "Who, work by the "WHO," works by the "WHO," and the "WHO." The open exhibit allows people to see art in the way they want to see it.

"This is an artist who represents the world," said the artist. "This is an artist who represents the world as it is."

"A Decade of Political Art" does not expose itself to the public, but rather to those who are interested in the political and social issues of our time. It is a way for us to express our views and to communicate with each other.

The exhibit also includes John Cena's "Peter Pan" and Dale Joe's "The War." Both pieces are on exhibit at the Hancher Auditorium.

"Hancher Auditorium (Passed From the Right)" is part of the Barry 98. It will open on September 13th.

The contrasts of light and dark, the beauty of the natural world, and the power of the human spirit are all on exhibit at the Hancher Auditorium.
