Iraq threatens U.S. base in Turkey

■ Saddam's vice president wants to end enforcement of no-fly zones and warns of retaliation if the flights continue.

By Leon Barkho Associated Press

BAGHDAD, Iraq - Iraq threatened Monday to attack a Turkish base used by U.S. warplanes - along with other American and British bases in the region — if the jets continue to patrol

Secretary of State Madeleine Albright promised swift U.S. retaliation in event of an Iraqi attack.

Iraqi vice president Taha Yassin

Ramadan's threat, coming in an interview with Radio Monte Carlo that was monitored in Baghdad, marked the first time in years that Iraq has threatened to attack neighboring Turkey.

U.S. jets based at Incirlik, in southern Turkey, have struck almost daily at Iraqi defense sites after being targeted by Iraqi defenses while patrolling the "no-fly" zone over the northern part of the country. Ramadan also repeated Irag's threat, originally made Sunday, against bases in Saudi Arabia and Kuwait from which U.S. and British jets patrol a southern no-fly zone. The Arab League denounced this earlier threat Monday.

"If the Turkish base continues attacking Iraq, it will certainly be (targeted) like other bases (in the Persian Gulf)," Ramadan said.

"I say if America and Britain do not retreat, they'll soon pay dearly in relation to the properties and elements they use to launch aggression on the people of Iraq," he said.

CHINESE NEW YEAR

Responding to the threat, President Clinton's top foreign policy advisers Monday warned that if Iraq were to attack the Turkish base, the United States would react sharply.

"We have made very clear that, were there any attacks on our forces or on neighboring countries, that our response would be swift and sure," said Albright, who is with Clinton on a trip to Mexico.

alleged flasher

■ The director of Public Safety says catching one suspect probably won't mean the end of such reports.

> By Zack Kucharski The Daily Iowan

Despite a recent arrest for indecent exposure in the UI Main Library, Public Safety officials say reports of a "library masturbator" are likely to continue.

Justin D. Krogmeier, a 20-yearold Cedar Rapids man, was arrested on Feb. 11 at the library after he allegedly exposed himself to a student employee, court documents show.

Though there may be a brief break in the number of incidents reported, this won't be the end of the reports, said Chuck Green, the director of Public Safety.

"By no stretch of the imagination do we think there is any range of danger, but this will continue to happen. There is more than one person that engages in this behavior," he said.

The charge against Krogmeier stems from an incident that allegedly took place just before 4 p.m. on the fifth floor of the Main Library, Public Safety reports said.

"The female victim witnessed the offender with penis exposed and in hand in the library in plain view of the witness. The offender's penis was in erection as it was in his hand," the court documents said.

UI sophomore Brianna Kruse was shifting books from the stacks on the fifth floor when Krogmeier was allegedly seen by a co-worker, she said.

"He had been up there for a couple of hours just looming around and walking through the aisles of books," said Kruse. "He was just watching." Calling the ordeal "surprising and upsetting," Kruse said she had been informed of how to deal with such incidents because of past occurrences at the library. "We were told to be aware that something like this tends to happen and were told to leave the area to let security deal with it," she said. Public Safety received several reports of masturbators in the library last semester but no one was charged, said Patsy Porter, Public Safety records clerk.

Regents oppose any tuition reciprocity

■ A proposed bill would allow agreements between lowa and other states that would lower out-of-state tuition.

> By John G. Russell The Daily Iowan

Members of the Iowa state Board of Regents oppose a proposed bill in the state House of Representatives that would allow students from neighboring states to pay in-state tuition at regents' institutions.

Tuition reciprocity, an issue that has been brought up in the Legislature several times in past years, allows non-Iowa residents to pay a resident rate. The bill would permit the board to negotiate reciprocity agreements with other states.

"I don't have a desire to have reciprocity because I don't know if we'll end up on the short or long end of the stick," said Regent David Fisher. "Nonresident tuition is very important, and it keeps resident tuition rea-

Minnesota has reciprocity agreements with Wisconsin, North Dakota, South Dakota and Ontario, Canada. The cost of in-state and reciprocal tuition at the University of Minnesota, Twin Cities, for the 1998-99 school year is $4,458. Out-of-state and non-reciprocal tuition is $16,345. Opponents of the bill worry that, if reciprocity were agreed to, not enough students from other states would come to Iowa schools, creating a drop tuition revenue.

Mike Barron, the director of UI Admissions, pointed to Illinois which charges $4,554 for in-state and $11,370 for out-of-state tuition during the 1998-99 school year - as an example of how reciprocity could affect the UI.

"Twenty-eight percent of the freshnan class is from Illinois and is now aying out-of-state tuition," he said. "If it paid in-state, there would be a net tuition revenue loss.'

Barron said an agreement could drive up current tuition rates if Iowa does not attract enough out-of state students. Iowa has no guarantee that enough out-of-state students would take advantage of the tuition decrease, he said.

"In a sense, one state would benefit more than another," he said. "If you offer reciprocity to Minnesota, there's a fear that not enough students would come to Iowa."

In order to make reciprocity finan-See TUITION, Page 7A

Luck's afoot in the Year of the Rabbit

■ The UI community ushers in the Chinese New Year with a gala celebration at the Union.

> By Anita Chlipala The Daily Iowan

Today marks the beginning of the Chinese New Year, and more people than ever seemed to be involved in this year's celebrations at the UI.

More than 450 people attended a gala on Feb. 13 in the Main Ballroom of the Union to commemorate the upcoming Year of the Rabbit. The twohour event included 18 performances of music, dance and martial arts.

"People were able to share the joys (of the New Year) with others," said Li Wang, UI graduate and former president of the Students, Scholars and Friendship Association.

Wang said the gala had more performances than in previous years, an indication that more people are sharing in the celebrations. "It's not just for Chinese but for all Oriental people," said Peter Chen, UI senior and member of the Mainland Chinese group. Some students are far from their families, but the distance will not stop them celebrating with relatives. "We all call back home on New Year's Day," said UI graduate Yanrong Chang, who plans to continue the tradition and call her family in China. Others say it's not quite the same See NEW YEAR, Page 7A

HOUSTON - They were, without a doubt, the best and brightest high school seniors in the country: straight-A students, National Merit Scholars, class valedictorians.

The students, one from every state in the nation and the District of Columbia, had each won a $10,000-ayear college scholarship, renewable for four years, from Houston-based AdamsVision USA.

There was just one problem. AdamsVision now admits there is no money and never was. So the students are scrambling for financial assistance while their parents are searching for answers and, in some cases, lawyers.

"I was always so trusting. It never even entered my mind that something like this could happen," said scholarship recipient Amber March, who is studying at Eckerd College in Florida. "I'd like to believe it was just an unfor-See SCHOLARSHIPS, Page 7A

Grant to UI Foundation will improve literacy

A grant of more than $575,000 from the Roy J. Carver Charitable Trust will allow the UI College of Education to help boost literacy among firstgraders throughout lowa.

The grant to the UI Foundation will enable the Reading Recovery Center of Iowa to fully implement the Reading Recovery program across the state by the end of the 2001-2002 academic year. The College of Education is the fiscal agent for the Des Moines center, which is one of only 23 university training centers in North America. Reading Recovery is an early intervention program designed to prevent reading failure among first-grade children. More than 80 percent of students who complete the program, which lasts from 15 - 20 weeks, begin performing within the average achievement range of their peers and do not need remedial help again. The continued success of students who have completed Reading Recovery has encouraged educators worldwide to implement the program.

This literacy initiative continues to gain attention. The center and the UI will host the first state conference on Reading Recovery Friday and Saturday in Des Moines.

The Carver grant will fund training for more teachers to make Reading Recovery available to all eligible firstgraders in Iowa. Only 3,800 children are being served during the current academic year.

Planned Parenthood, 2 S. The Iowa City Family Planning Clinic, Westlawn, is also participating with a half-price deal on condoms.

But condom distribution isn't just a week-long affair. UI Student Health Service, for example, distributes 15,000 to 20,000 free condoms each year, said Eric Moschella, a graduate assistant with Health Iowa.

"We have a lot of information we try to hand out with condoms on proper use," he said.

"There are 23 steps in using a condom correctly, and there are generally two or three steps people haven't thought of," said Sharon Elmore, a health educator at the Family Planning Clinic, which sells thousands of condoms every

Greeks hold sway at Dartmouth

■ The school newspaper's poll shows that 83 percent of students support single-sex fraternities and sororities.

> By Sarah Rubenstein Associated Press

HANOVER, N.H. (U-Wire) -Eighty-three percent of the students who responded to a survey conducted by the Dartmouth said Monday they favor the continuation of the single-sex Greek system at the college.

Of the 4,106 students polled via BlitzMail, 2,003 — or 49 percent responded to the survey, and 1,660 of them said they support the single-sex system. Fifteen percent of the respondents said the system should not be continued; 2 percent were undecided.

Fifty-five percent of the students who said the single-sex system should be continued are not affiliated with a fraternity or sorority.

Betsy Beck, '00, who is unaffiliated, said single-sex Greek houses should remain on campus.

She said there are "plenty of places in which men and women can have healthy social interactions," but single-sex houses are a "necessary part of the college experience."

"That's the most popular social avenue, and I just think that forcing them to combine social space in such a popular avenue would just completely revamp the whole social atmosphere at Dartmouth,' she said.

Members of the Class of 2002 expressed the most support for the system.

A total of 616 - or 31 percent of the respondents to the survey were from that class. Twenty-four percent were seniors, 20 percent juniors and 25 percent sopho-

Of the freshmen respondents, 532 supported the continuation of the single-sex system - 32 percent of the total number of students from all classes who supported its continuation.

Jen Morgan, '02, said she doubts whether she would rush a sorority in the fall, but she appreciates the "tradition" generated by the Greek

"I feel like they're taking something away that they don't have the right to take away - no matter whom they're taking it away from,"

Louis Freidheim, '02, said he is bothered that "the opportunity (to rush) might not be there, just because I had a passing interest in it. I probably would have rushed, but I don't know if I would have pledged.

He added that he would have rushed "just to see what the experience was like."

Of those who opposed the continuation of the system, many were unaffiliated upperclassmen.

"I think it's a good idea, but I'm a '99, and I'm not going to be here during the transition," said Jing Wang, who is not affiliated with a Greek house.

"In the long run, it's going to make Dartmouth a better place.

In the long run, it's going to make Dartmouth a better place. It's going to be a rough transition period, but you'll have to wait 20

Dartmouth student

It's going to be a rough transition period, but you'll have to wait 20 years for that.'

Wang said there are some positive aspects of the system and "some of the good things will have to go out with the bad."

Christen Einsiedler, '00, who is also unaffiliated, referred to the ghetto" party held by the Alpha Xi Delta sorority and Chi Gamma Epsilon last term when explaining why she is against the continuation of the single-sex

"In light of everything that happened this fall, I had come to a conclusion that Dartmouth could do without fraternities and sororities," Einsiedler said.

"I was trying to figure out what the institution did to Dartmouth as a whole - what it added. Part of the time, I couldn't think of anything. It was just this year that I came to this idea."

Of the students who responded to the survey, 67 percent said the five-point plan established by the Board of Trustees would not improve the overall social and residential life at the col-

Twenty-two percent thought the plan would improve social and residential life, and 11 percent were undecided.

The plan calls for greater choice and continuity in residential living space, additional and and improved social spaces controlled by students and an interactive coeducational social system.

It also aims to reduce the number of students living off-campus and eliminate alcohol abuse.

"I think that a lot of the ideals that they put down in those five points are positive ideals to work toward, but in this form, they are so vague," said Nate White, '99.

Tanveer Abbas, '01, said the plan has "the right intentions in mind, but the change is kind of drastic.'

Kevin Gallagher, '99, a member of the Chi Heorot fraternity, said the plan has been "prescribed by a group of 40- to 60-year-old men and women who think they can plan the social situation at Dartmouth for a group of 18- to 21year-olds.'

"Basically, we're at one of the most elite colleges, but we do not have the intelligence to plan our own social scene - I think it's insulting," he said.

NEW YORK - In life, Amadou Diallo was an unassuming street merchant who sold videotapes, tube socks and other items from a table in front of a Manhattan convenience store.

But a week and a half after he was shot dead in a hail of 41 bullets, Diallo has become something else: a symbol of alleged police mis-

On Sunday, the body of the 22year-old West African immigrant was flown home to his native Guinea on a Continental Airlines jet bound for Paris, accompanied by his grieving parents.

Thousands of people in hundreds of cars - trucks and taxis, jalopies and shiny Mercedes Benzes — escorted Amadou's plain coffin and his family to the airport in a show of protest and support. "It was in the midst of all this pain, a beautiful sight to see all these brothers and sisters driving down the highway," said the Rev. Al Sharpton, who joined the Diallos on their trip home. "This cannot be the end, but the beginning.'

Four plainclothes police officers from an elite unit fired 41 bullets - 19 of which struck the victim at Diallo, 22, as he stood in the vestibule of his apartment house in the Bronx on Feb. 4. Many have questioned why so many shots were fired. The shooting took five Sharpton has called for the sus-

The officers have been placed on administrative non-enforcement, duty, although they still carry their weapons and badges. The shooting is being investigated by the Bronx district attorney's office with the assistance of the FBI.

"We will fight until justice is done," Diallo's mother, Kadiadou Diallo, 39, said at the airport, amid shouts of "Amadou! Amadou!" and "No justice, no peace!"

On Sunday, many of the thousands who took part in the motorcade said they were trying to prevent another killing.

"I am doing this so they don't shoot any more of our people," said a taxi driver who identified herself only as Fatima. "If we didn't protest certain things, we'd still have no civil rights, no human rights."

Monicagate may have weakened presidency

Some scholars claim that the dilution of the office's power is part of a natural shift away from imperial presidents.

By Connie Cass Associated Press

WASHINGTON - When the next occupant settles into the Oval Office in January 2001, he or she may feel the power of the presidency subtly reduced by the distant events of the Year of Monica&Bill.

Kenneth Starr's tireless investigation of President Clinton, the president's pursuit of losing legal gambits, the House's vote to impeach - all nibbled away at presidential power, constitutional scholars say.

The erosion began even earlier, with the Supreme Court's unanimous decision on May 27, 1997, that Paula Jones could bring her sexual-harassment lawsuit against a sitting president. That led to the deposition in which Clinton denied ever engaging in sexual relations with Monica Lewinsky.

The Clinton administration was almost reckless in its willingness to litigate each of these issues despite the remote possibility of success.

Watergate figure, ex-Nixon aide John Ehrlichman is dead at 73

ATLANTA -John Ehrlichman, a domestic affairs adviser to President Nixon who was imprisoned for 18 months as a result of the Watergate conspiracy, has died. He was 73. Ehrlichman died Sunday of natural causes at his home in Atlanta. He had suffered from diabetes, his son, Tom, said Monday. Ehrlichman, who along with H.R.

Haldeman was one of Nixon's two top advisers, resigned from his White House post in April 1973. He was convicted two years later for obstruction of justice, conspiracy and perjury in the attempted coverup of the burglary of the Democratic National Committee offices at the Watergate complex in Washington.

Early on June 17, 1972, burglars with connections to Nixon's reelection campaign broke into the Democratic offices. They were trying to replace a faulty telephonebugging device installed during an earlier break-in. They got caught by a security guard.

Nixon, who won re-election that November, and his aides tried to cover up the growing scandal.

As the cover-up began to unravel and pressure mounted, Nixon summoned Haldeman and domestic counsel Ehrlichman to the presidential cabin at Camp David, Md., in April 1973 and told them they would have to resign. The next day, he fired White House counsel John Dean and accepted the resignations of Haldeman, Ehrlichman and Attorney General Ehrlichman spent 18 months at Swift Trail Camp, a minimumsecurity federal prison south of Safford, Ariz.. He was released in 1978. Haldeman also served 18 months in prison; he died in November 1993.

Ehrlichman was born on March 20, 1925, in Tacoma, Wash. He graduated from University of California, Los Angeles, and got a law degree at Stanford University in 1951.

During World War II, Ehrlichman was a lead navigator in the 8th Air Force, where he earned the Air Medal clusters and the Distinguished Flying Cross. Before Medal joining the White House, Ehrlichman was a partner in the Seattle law firm of Hullin, Ehrlichman, Roberts & Hodge from 1952 to 1968.

After getting out of prison, he moved to Santa Fe, N.M., where he began a new career as an artist, writer and commentator. Ehrlichman wrote four novels: "The Company" 1976; "The Whole Truth" 1979; "The China Card" 1986; and (co-author) of "The Rigby File" 1989. He also wrote a memoir, which was published in 1983, "Witness to Power: The Nixon Years.

American Airlines, pilot negotiations resume

DALLAS (AP) - Most of American Airlines' flights took off as scheduled Monday as negotiations resumed between the company and its pilot union, 10 days after pilots began a sick-out that tangled travel for more than one half-million passengers.

About 800 of American's 9,400 pilots were still listed as sick Monday, down from the nearly 2,500 who were out Feb. 11 and Feb. 12, airline officials said. Cancellations of 11 percent of flights was no worse than a day of bad weather in a hub city, officials said. American's parent company, AMR Corp., and the Allied Pilots Association headed back to the table to negotiate the integration of recently purchased

The two were in virtually the same place they were when pilots began calling in sick and refusing overtime, canceling thousands of flights and costing the airline tens of millions. Neither side has changed their stance on pay for pilots who fly for Reno Air.

About 250 of the 2,250 flights scheduled were canceled because some pilots weren't immediately available for flying. The Fort Worth-based airline had canceled only 17 flights scheduled for today, spokesman John

After nine years, alleged killers of Guatemalan activist back in court

GUATEMALA CITY (AP) - In the middle of a civil war in which massacres, torture and disappearances were common, one killing came to symbolize for Guatemalans how determined the army was to crush criticism.

Nine years later, three former highlevel military officers are going to trial for allegedly ordering the murder of Guatemalan anthropologist and political activist Myrna Mack.

The case says a lot about how the country is dealing with its tormented past after ending a 36-year civil war.

"As a friend, I thought we'd never know who killed her," said Joel Simon, who conducted his master's degree research alongside Mack and now works at the Committee to Protect Journalists. "In my wildest dreams, I thought those who were responsible would receive immunity. The fact that these men are facing trial is a testament to how much things have changed.

Two years after a peace accord ended the war, Guatemalans are unearthing mass graves, studying declassified CIA documents, compiling testimonies both of victims and human rights violators, and probing judicial cases many feel were swept under the carpet during the war.

Mack, who worked with a group that had accused the army of human rights violations, was stabbed 27 times by two attackers in broad daylight on the sidewalk outside her downtown office.

Police insisted the attack on Sept. 11, 1990, was a common robbery. But after an international outcry over that claim - fed in part by Mack's academic ties and in part by her sister's advocacy - the government had presidential guard Noel de Jesus Beteta Alvarez extradited from California to stand trial.

Chubby-bashing ads used by a popular fitness chain are not funny, says a group of full-bodied advocates.

SAN FRANCISCO - More than 30 overweight people chanted "Eat me!" while performing aerobics on the sidewalk in front of a health club to protest a new ad campaign that they say demoralizes fat peo-

The "fat advocates" banded together to protest a 24 Hour Fitness billboard campaign that depicts a hungry space alien and reads, "When they come, they will eat the fat ones first." Company officials say they didn't intend to offend anyone. "Sometimes humor helps make things easier and can even be motivational," 24 Hour Fitness officials said in a release.

But the protesters said they saw little humor in the ad.

"It's really hard for fat people to get into the gym anyway. To alienate them before they even walk in the door is cruel," said Rebekah Bridges, who handed out lollipops to passersby.

"I may be fat, but I'm fit, I'm happy, I'm sexual - I'm all of those things. How dare an ad man decide for society that we're not allowed to be someplace," Bridges said.

Principal Lehmann still a pal

Thank you to the Iowa City School Board for allowing Brian Lehmann to retain his job as principal at Lucas Elementary School.

Thank you to the parents, teachers and community members who have given their support to Lehmann throughout this ordeal and for recognizing that suspending him would serve no purpose, save to humiliate and incriminate him.

No thanks to the Iowa City Police Department, which is charging Lehmann with criminal child endangerment and alleges that Lehmann was, in part, responsible for the improper photographs allegedly taken by former Lucas vol-unteer Roland Thomson during the 1997-98 school year.

Thomson was convicted in 1985 on one count of wanton neglect of a minor and received a one-year suspended sentence. A police officer and two staff members said they informed Lehmann of Thomson's criminal background in September 1997, but that Lehmann took no action.

Holding Lehmann responsible for child endangerment and taking away his job would do nothing to ensure the future safety of the children at Lucas Elementary. The important thing is to facilitate a safer environment for the children from here on out.

The school board has already taken the first step in that direction by unanimously approving a new volunteer policy that employs a formal application process before potential volunteers may serve at a school.

Under this new policy, applicants must now go through a screening process by which the school will determine whether they have a history of child abuse or other crimes. It requires administrators to monitor and evaluate volunteer activities. In addition, administrators must routinely report volunteers' names and hours volunteers have worked.

Holding Lehmann responsible for something that allegedly happened in the past will contribute nothing to the future. He has already paid the price by coping with being the center of public and police scrutiny for his alleged involvement

Lehmann has already done his time - and he hasn't even been convicted of any charges yet.

And another thank you should go to Lehmann for his grace under fire. It is important to acknowledge that Lehmann is innocent until proven guilty. Let's hope the blame falls only where it is deserved.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Outcry needed to end the horror of rape

To the Editor:

Thank you to letter-writer Reshma Desai and columnist Amy Couteé for their recent responses to the Feb. 9 article, "UI investigates alleged assault." Their stirring commentaries challenged all of us to combat the tendency to disbelieve victims of rape. Both also pointed out another dangerous, yet common, error - misattributing the blame for a crime to its victim, rather than to the person 100 percent responsible: the perpetrator.

As an advocate and educator at the Rape Victim Advocacy Program, and as a woman, I acknowledge that the realities of violence are overwhelming at times. Some days, it feels as though there is little hope of changing the attitudes and behaviors of rapists. I believe that it is often out of a desire for self-protection that we choose instead to attack victims, whose actions seem easier to control.

We must, as a community, make a commitment to using every bit of our energy to take a strong stand against perpetrators of violence. I urge each of you not to misdirect your anger or skepticism toward victims of sexual abuse.

Ending rape means moving past our collective fear of confronting a problem that cannot be solved overnight. Ending rape means taking a hard look at where the real change needs to occur — in the actions of rapists themselves.

Dance Marathon could be made more accessible

To the Editor:

I just want to get it out first that I think Dance Marathon is for a great cause. But I agree that there has to be a better way to earn the money or make people feel that they have done something special besides dancing for 30

I was going to dance in the marathon but I dropped out because I was not feeling well and had some other work to get done. I felt that if I danced for 30 hours with no break or real chance to sit down for a long period of time, I might end up more sick, which might end up affecting my class attendance.

I know they set a requirement of raising $350 in order to dance, but I think that is a little high. I know it is for a good cause, but doesn't the willingness of all these people to give up their time mean something? Why not set a minimum of like $100 or $200?

I also heard from a friend who went to visit his buddies dancing last year that they charge you $1 to get in to see your friends dancing. I know it is only $1, but it just seems a little much when you are just trying to give your friends a lift. It is a charity, not a business.

I do believe in the cause - I gave all the money I raised even though I did not dance. I just think that there should be a better and less mandated way to do it.

SUARPNACK Singing about the bicycle blues

OR about a year and a half, I was an active member of the local bicycleriding community. Racing through streets, dodging traffic, riding illegally on downtown sidewalks - I had done it all.

Whether I was coasting across town or simply trying to make it to class on time, I was hell on two wheels. My days as a freespirited bicyclist came to a bitter end quite recently, as certain destructive forces put my bike-riding career on hold

It was a cold, damp day in November when, late for a doctor's appointment, I unlocked my bike to make the short (and hopefully quick) trip.

This was going to take longer than I thought, though. I realized this as I got on my bike, which was - to my disappointment - not moving forward. This problem could be attributed to the fact that my back wheel had been kicked askew while the bike sat on campus in between classes. I was not amused; I was also cutting this appointment pretty close. Exasperated, I locked my bike in the same place as before and took a bus to the eye doctor.

Now, I am not sure whether it was an unwillingness to ride a bike that would not get me very far or if it was sheer laziness on my part, but the bike remained in its spot for the next several weeks. This lapse in time characterized a terrific lapse in my own judgment. I would check on the bike periodically to make sure that it was there (and it always was), but wintry weather always led me away on foot instead of on my bike. Days and weeks continued to pass. At times I thought about the $400 piece of machinery that sat guarded only by a small lock. Other days I simply forgot. At other times, due to massive snow accumulation, I could not even see it.

AMMERMAN

The snow eventually melted, however, and I figured that this would give me ample opportunity to retrieve my bike from its desolate place of residence. Imagine my surprise, then, when I discovered that there was no longer much of a bike to speak of. Gone was the front wheel, as was the seat. One pedal was crushed, and the back wheel had been grotesquely mangled. Spokes stuck out every which way like fractured limbs jutting out from torn jeans.

I was dumbstruck. It was difficult to tell whether this thing was a mode of transportation or a modern art exhibit. Either way, I was not going to be riding my bike home that day. I did not know whom I should be more angry with - the thieves and vandals who made a mockery of my bike, or myself for leaving the thing there for so long. I felt ridiculous. Fifteen minutes of my time at any point over the pre-vious two months could have prevented this situation entirely.

Then again, it has never been legal to heist other people's property, and I was beginning to wonder what would lead somebody to do what they did to mine. It was a pretty nice bike why not take the whole thing?

Instead I was left with a frame, some handlebars and a wheel that looked as if it had been run over by a homecoming parade. What was supposed to do with that?

The thing about this is that the perpetrator of this heinous crime will likely get away without ever being implicated. Without any leads or witnesses, I don't have a whole lot of legal recourse. The cops would probably get a good chuckle out of my story and not much else. In any case, it is safe to say that my impression of Iowa City and its residents has taken a downward turn in light of recent events. Around the time that I abandoned my bike on campus, my apartment was burglarized, and I witnessed the work of a would-be car stereo thief. Of course, the downfall of my bike does not indicate the downfall of Iowa City's social structure, but it certainly does not enhance my perception of the area.

One of these days, I'll get my bike fixed up or get a new one, but for now I will either be on foot or behind the wheel of a car. And if I see anybody riding a bike with an extra wheel, do not be surprised if I accidentally swerve in that direction.

Never know what to expect in the Land of Bill&Monica

ND then, as suddenly as it zippity-zapped onto the national radarscope, the Year of Monica&Bill is over. All over the land you can hear the sudden intake of breath as TV producers ponder the most important question of 1999:

What in the world are we going to fill the airwaves with, now that we don't have impeachment to kick around anymore?

It is quite an intake, as inhalations go. Deoxygenates a land mass the size of Nebraska. Of course, Nebraska is mostly a void with occasional interstitials of empty space, but then, that's what TV mostly is, so no one much notices. Not only do they not much notice, they don't much care, either. After the first few weeks of the Year of Monica&Bill, people had pretty much stopped caring just exactly how oval the Oval Office could get when used for highly technical astrophysical experiments involving cigars and famous They had cigars and blue dresses of their own to worry about. They had their own astrophysical experiments, though perhaps not so high nor so technical as the ones that made the Oval Office oval.

The close of the Year of Monica&Bill leaves the right wing feeling a bit forlorn, too. It's hard to have a Crusade without a Jerusalem to conquer. And Americans, slyly decadent souls that they are, stubbornly refuse to rally around all the other Jerusalems the right wing comes up with banning a woman's right to choose what goes on in her own body, for instance. But we should be able to choose what goes on in the inner workings of any woman's body, the right wing says. After all, God

And the American people roll their eyes at each other in that significant kind of way. It's a trick they've picked up from Paul Newman. We know other people who hear voices, the Americans say. We call them homeless. They do such socially useful things as collecting the empty bottles and cans and burning trash on street corners.

And god knows there are enough empty bottles and cans rattling around the landscape, not to mention spare trash to burn, because we the people like to drop trash and empty bottles and cans wherever we happen to be walking. It's the American way.

The Year of Monica&Bill held such promise, the right-wing denizens mutter to each other. They have to mutter to each other because no one else will listen to them anymore. For one thing, they combine the sense and sensibility of molten lava with the compassion and understanding of Attila the Hun. Or maybe it's the other way around.

But we could'a been a contender, the right wing cries to the Karl Malden skies. Adulterous sex in the White House. Nineteen-sixties immorality run amok. Next thing you know, tie-dye and bell bottoms the size of two Brazils will be back. Bad news for the right wing in the Year of Monica&Bill. Tie-dye and bell bottoms the size of two Brazils have already come back. And gone again, thankfully. It's awfully hard to cakewalk coolly down the boulevard with two Brazils thwapping around your ankles And the reason that 1960s immorality ran amok in the first place was that most Americans indulged in it, back when the '60s were the '60s and immorality was fun.

And the adulterous sex in the White House wasn't very much like the '60s, anyway - it was a whole lot more like 1950s teen-age groping at the drive-in. Back seat of a cut-down Chevy, when all the shoes were blue suede and all Daddy's daughters remained virgins and Father knew best because Ozzie and Harriet told him so and everyone could stay forever Robert Young at So at the end of the Year of Monica&Bill the right wing mutters and sulks, and the media pundits wring their metaphorical hands and ponder what it all means. Searching for the answer, they'll trot out Linda Tripp, the face that launched a thousand skits. But she won't know, either, because she didn't get it down on tape.

The message of the Year of Monica&Bill is so simple. It could've come in a bottle. Maybe one of the empty ones the homeless

It goes like this: Leave us alone, the Americans said. We're making

And it goes like this: The kind of Republican we like, the Americans said, is Bill Clinton.

And in the Year of Monica&Bill, that's the kind of Republican they get. As the Year of Monica&Bill fades into the digitally enhanced technicolor sunset, Hillary is running for the Senate. And Mary Albert, known to his closest acquaintances as the underwear king, is on the comeback trail. Is this a great country or what? No cigar

"The atmosphere is different," said UI freshman Brian Ting. "But the spirit's still here."

In the Chinese calendar, animals symbolize the years in a 12-year cycle. Chen said the animals are closely related to luck, a recurring theme for the Chinese in the new year. If you are born during this year, your qualities include "peaceful, friendly, active, lovely and a little bit timid, qualities something like the rabbit," Chen said.

To celebrate Chinese New

Year, people prepare a variety of food, usually delicate dishes such as lobster, fish and Chinese dumplings, Ting said. Another tradition is the wearing of new clothes, which symbolizes a fresh start. When children wish their parents and relatives a happy new year, they receive red envelopes with money - the red symbolizes luck.

"It's a Chinese version of Christmas," said Ting, laughing. He added that it is his favorite tradition of the new year.

"I'll go back home to eat food and have my parents give me money," Ting said.

Four people were charged with indecent exposure on the UI campus last calendar year, Porter said.

There are an average of 12 reports of masturbators in the library each year, said Gary Grout, Main Library facilities coordinator.

"I don't think people wake up in the morning and say 'I'm going to masturbate in the library today," Green said. "This tends to be something that a person does to act out, and it probably happens more than once.

After the incident was reported, the library staff monitored the exits from the area in which the incident had been reported until Public Safety officers arrived,

Because a suspect was caught, a criminal-trespass warrant has been issued, and the library staff will be provided pictures of Krogmeier to prevent his return to the library, he said.

Indecent exposure is a serious misdemeanor with a maximum fine of $1,500 and a possible oneyear jail term.

The charge is defined in the Iowa Code as the exposure of genitals or pubic area to a person other than a spouse in order to arouse or satisfy sexual desires of the party though the person knows, or should know, the act is offensive to a viewer.

Though unable to comment on the specific indecent-exposure charge, exposure tends to be a behavior based on others' reactions, said Jerry Stone, director of University Counseling Service.

"I've never heard of a draw to any particular place other than the fact that it is public," he said. "The reasons surrounding this kind of behavior are really different. They are very idiosyncratic to the person, the reaction the exposer is looking for, and the fantasies that may occur in the person's mind."

tunate mistake, but I kind of think

I've been had.'

Adams Vision founder Val Adams insists that he still is trying to scrape up money to honor the scholarships.

"I'm very saddened that we're at the point that we are, but at the same time I'm very hopeful that we will get these scholarships started and be able to continue our commitment," Adams said.

John Boone, a prosecutor with the Harris County district attor-ney's office, doesn't think the students should hold their breath.

"Based on my contact with him, I would be concerned if he were in any ousiness where anyone was relying on his promises," Boone said.

He described Adams as a habitual criminal, convicted of theft for writing bogus checks on six differprobation for a 1993 case.

"His schemes were fairly grandiose," Boone said. "He had some sort of a fake business, and he would use checks from the business basically just to live well."

Boone said Adams may have had legitimate enterprises but that typically there would be no substance behind the business. It would just be a front."

Adams acknowledges his criminal past but maintains the scholarship effort was on the level. He notes that the students were not asked to pay an application fee or provide any money, something the students and their parents confirm. And he insists he invested $300,000 for expenses such as salaries for the professional educators who selected the recipients.

Adams said he started his company in June 1997 and the scholarships were AdamsVision's primary focus. In fall 1997, he sent applications every high school in the country. An attached letter promised the awards would be presented to the winners by the governor of their state. Eligible students had to have at least a 3.0 grade-point average and a combined SAT score of 1160 or above, and submit an essay and three letters of recommendation.

Jean Lockhart, a former teacher Adams hired as a consultant on the project, assembled 15 educators in December 1997 to select the winners.

She said Adams assured her from the start that the scholarship money was in place. But Lockhart became suspicious after Adams, despite his contention, failed to pay her and the selection team.

On Jan. 8, 1998, letters were sent to 51 students announcing they had won. But elation turned to confusion a few months later when AdamsVision sent another letter saying funding for the scholarships wasn't yet complete.

Glennie has achieved international fame not only for her bestselling recordings and dramatic performances, but because she has barefoot so she can feel the vibrations on the floor as she plays each instrument.

"She is quite an amazing free spirit in the music world. She's becoming very highly regarded in the industry," Chappell said.

Pro Musica Nipponia was formed in 1964 to perform modern and classical music on traditional Japanese stringed instruments, including the koto, the shamisen, biwa, wind instru-ments such as the shakuhachi and shinobue and percussion instruments such as the odaiko and kotsuzumi.

The centerpiece for tonight's concert is titled "Requiem 99," which was composed by Minoru Miki, founder and director of Pro Musica Nipponia. Miki will personally introduce the piece.

"The musicians in Pro Musica Nipponia wear traditional Japanese dress and play traditional Japanese instruments, but they are primarily devoted to more modern music and per-cussion instruments," Chappell

At 1 p.m. today, Glennie is scheduled to offer a free percussion master class in the Opera Rehearsal Room in the Voxman Music Building. The class will be open to the public.

UI BRIEF

lowa-Indiana date, time set

The lowa men's basketball team's final regular season game against Indiana will be played on Feb. 27 at 3:30 p.m. in Bloomington, the Big Ten announced Monday. The game will be televised by the ESPN Regional Big Ten Network.

Packers' Minister of Defense officially calls it a career

Green Bay star Reggie White ended speculation that he might return to the Packers by turning in his retirement letter Monday.

By Jim Carlson Associated Press

GREEN BAY, Wis. - This time,

Reggie White put it in writing. The NFL's career sacks leader turned in his retirement letter to Green Bay Packers general manager Ron Wolf - and gave no indication he intends to return.

"He's officially retired. It's over. I think he's had it," Packers spokesman Lee Remmel said

The 37-year-old White had said last season would be his last. But there had been hints the All-Pro player might change his mind after the Packers hired his longtime friend, Ray

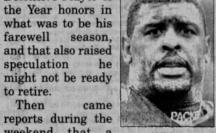

Rhodes, as new head coach, replacing Mike Holmgren. White wound up making 16 sacks and earning Defensive Player of the Year honors in what was to be his farewell season, and that also raised to retire. Then came reports during the speculation

weekend that a return by White would cause trouble for the Packers in staying within the NFL salary cap.

White, an ordained minister, said last April that he intended to retire. But after repeating to Holmgren he wouldn't come back. White said he had a revelation while having back thera-

"God spoke to me and said you made a promise," White said at the time. "When I signed the deal last year, I signed a five-year deal with the promise that I would play for two years."

Last month, after the Packers lost to San Francisco in the playoffs, White said he expected to retire and focus on his other interests.

But when he was in Hawaii earlier this month for his record 11th Pro

Bowl appearance, he seemed to leave a slight opening when he told an interviewer he was "intrigued" about the idea of returning to play under

"When Ray got the job, if anyone else had gotten the job I wouldn't have been intrigued," White told Fox television at the time. "I've really been praying about it and thinking about it.

Right now I'm retired." Wolf had acknowledged the Packers were counting on White's $4.4 million salary to provide room under the salary cap to pay defensive tackle Santana Dotson and linebacker George Koonce under the long-term deals they agreed to last Friday.

Rose opts for suit and tie

Derek Rose has set his sights beyond playing pro football

By Mike Kelly The Daily Iowan

Former All-Big Ten center Derek Rose is trading in his shoulder pads, football cleats and helmet for a three-piece suit, a briefcase and a legal pad - permanently.

Despite being regarded as one of the top offensive line prospects in the country, the two-time all-conference center is not planning on entering April's NFL Draft.

Instead, the former Hawkeye will take his 3.93 GPA and try his hand in the business world. "I am comfortable with my decision," said Rose, who graduated in inspires me, and football is not it anymore. It is time for me to start to pursue other things.

Rose was ranked as the No. 2 center in the country by The Sporting News entering the 1998 season, and many Internet sites predicted Rose would be selected in the late

"I just told him

- Derek Rose to enjoy whatever it is he chose to do," Rose's father, Jim, said. "Do it until it is not fun anymore. Rose met with doctors following Iowa's 1998 season to discuss the rigors of playing professional football. Due to the weight at which might not be advantageous for him. Rose, who weighs close to 300 pounds, was told he may have to go on special medication if he maintained the weight. At Iowa, Rose was listed at 277 pounds, but he said he played at closer to 300.

Rose plays, he decided a pro career

'It's not healthy for me to weigh this much," Rose said. "I have to use the Stairmaster every day to stay in shape."

Rose's mother, Linda, said her son talked with both parents a great deal about his future during the '98 season. Both said they were there for Derek when he needed advice, but that he was the one who took control and made the decision about his future.

"We did not influence him that much," his mother said. "We basically just listened and gave him advice when he needed it. It was Derek who did all the talking, whether it be with agents or doctors."

Rose's situation is similar to that of former Hawkeye center Casey See ROSE, Page 2B

IOWA WRESTLING

Hawks look ahead after reality check

■ The lowa wrestling team continued to look vulnerable Sunday in Champaign, III.

> By Tony Wirt The Daily Iowan

If the third-ranked Iowa wrestling team needed a wake-up call, it got one in Sunday's 20-16 loss at the hands of the Illinois Fighting Illini.

The Hawkeyes (13-3) won five of the 10 matches, but were defeated because of bonus points. Ben Uker was pinned at 165 pounds, while Lee Weber (184) and Paul Jenn (heavyweight) suffered major decision losses.

"This is going to be really motivating," sophomore 141-pounder Doug Schwab said. "We know we have a way to go, but we're going to fight through it and turn the corner." The meet wasn't a total disaster.

Iowa got big wins from Eric Juergens (133),Gabe McMahan (174) and Schwab (141). T.J. Williams also kept his record We just have to perfect at 149 pounds with a 9-8 keep pounding win over Adam them on the Tirapelle.

some need to step up," head coach Jim Zalesky said. "It seems like some of the weight classes have been losing all year. We just get caught making the same mistakes." Correcting those mistakes this late in the season is not going to be easy. "We just have to keep pounding them on the head, and hopefully they'll catch on," Zalesky said. "These are things that should have been corrected by now." Iowa again suffered due to the absence of third-ranked heavyweight

Wes Hand. The junior injured his ankle during a match last month, and has not seen any meet action since. Weber and Jenn have been filling in

POINT/COUNTERPOINT

Is the NBA still FAN-tastic?

Take away Michael Jordan, dismantle the Bulls, suffer through an eight-month lockout and, yes, I still love this game. Why? Because of the uncertainty and excite-

Now that the Bulls are done, it's anyone's guess who will step up when it counts (sorry, Laker fans) and become the next dynasty, and I can't wait to find out the answer. About eight teams legitimately could contend, making this year's playoffs that and exciting to watch.

And say all you want about there being too much dunking, show-boating and trash-talking in the NBA. Flove all the flashiness — it's what makes the game fun and exciting to watch.

I mean, when was the last time you overheard someone in class comment about the great defense or phenomenal bounce passes in a game? Never.

Instead, it's the dunks, taunts and monster blocks that get all the attention, and rightfully so — they are exciting, entendining and offen athletically impressive.

Few former NBA stars talked more trash than Larry Bird and Michael Jordan, but you never heard anybody get on their cases. That's because they backed it up. Once the NBAs young talent learns to do the same, the league will take center stage once

No defense, poor sportsmanship, overpaid players, children out of wedlock and egos the size of Michael Jordan's bank account - it's FAN-tastic! As long as their dunks make SportsCenter, players don't seem to care who wins until the playoffs. Do you think Allen Iverson cares that the Sixers lose as long as he gets his 35 points?

The NBA has become a joke. It's hardly even a sport anymore. It's more like part of the entertainment world.

It's loud techno music, pyrotechnics, laser light displays and highlight film moves.

Example: Dennis Rodman. Back before he had more body piercings than the entire Ped Mall crowd and multicolored hair, Rodman was one heck of a ballplayer, but nobody knew it. He rebounded, played tough defense and always

Now, he's a step slower and his scoring has become nonexistent, but he's a star simply because he does anything he can to get attention.

The game of basketball is for sports fans, but the NBA is for entertaining the masses. It's style, not substance.

McGwire, O'Meara and Holdsclaw win multiple ESPYs

By Jeff Goodman Associated Press

NEW YORK - Mark McGwire hit another home run Monday night, winning three ESPYs for shattering the most revered record in sports.

McGwire won ESPN's awards for Male Athlete of the Year, Showstopper of the Year and baseball's top performer for hitting 70 homers to break Roger Maris' record of 61 and reinvigorate an entire sport.

"It was a magical season for myself, the Yankees, David Wells' perfect game, Cal Ripken stopping his streak ... to the home run race between Sammy (Sosa) and I." McGwire said. "I want to thank the fans. I'm glad baseball is back and on top.'

McGwire and Sosa, who hit 66 home runs and battled McGwire until the final weekend for the title of home run king, received the loudest standing ovations from the crowd at Radio City Music Hall.

Sosa won the first ever Humanitarian Award for his work helping victims of Hurricane Georges in his native Dominican Republic.

Golfer Mark O'Meara, the first golfer since 1990 to win the. Masters and British Open in the same year, and Tennessee basketball star Chamique Holdsclaw were the only other multiple award winners.

O'Meara took the awards for Performance Under Pressure and top men's golfer. Holdsclaw was honored as Female Athlete of the Year and top women's college basketball player.

"I won last year and Pat Summitt didn't let me come," Holdsclaw said. "This year senior year and since I'm from New York, she let me attend."

The New York Yankees won three awards after setting a record with 125 wins and sweeping the San Diego Padres in the World Series. The Yankees were selected as the Team of the Year, Joe Torre won Coach/Manager of the Year and Wells earned the Dramatic Individual Performance of the Year for pitching a perfect game.

Billie Jean King won the Arthur Ashe Award for Courage for her fight to bring equality to women's sports.

Other top awards went to Randy Moss (Breakthrough Athlete of the Year), Eric Davis (Comeback Athlete of the Year), Michael Jordan (Men's Pro Basketball), Terrell Davis (Pro Football), Dominik Hasek (Hockey), Antawn Jamison (Men's College Basketball) and Williams (College Ricky Football).

"You grow up watching ESPN and the ESPYs and hope you can win one one day," Williams said. "It's not the Heisman, but it's pretty good."

Pete Sampras set a record by winning his sixth straight ESPY

as Male Tennis Player of the Year. Jeff Gordon was named the top performer in auto racing one day after winning the Daytona 500.

The show, sponsored by the ESPN cable network, presented awards in 28 categories, including 19 Performer of the Year awards and nine Cross-Cutter categories with nominees from any sport.

Sox ink Durham to $20 million contract

■ The second baseman will average $5 million contracts over the next four years.

CHICAGO (AP) - Second baseman Ray Durham avoided a salary arbitration hearing Monday, agreeing to a $20 million, fouryear contract with the Chicago White Sox.

Durham, selected to to the All-Star team last season, made $1,935,000 last year. He had asked for $4.3 million in arbitration and the White Sox had submitted $3.35 million. The arbitration hearing had been scheduled

Monday in Tampa, Fla.

Durham, 27, hit .285 with 19 homers, 67 RBIs and 36 steals last season, all career highs. He was second in the AL with 126 runs scored and his 19 homers were a club record for a second baseman.

Durham, entering his fifth major league season, has a .273 career average with 47 homers, 236 RBIs and 117 steals.

He will receive salaries of $3.4 million this season, $4.9 million in 2000, $5.9 million in 2001 and $5.8 million in 2002. If he has 625 plate appearances in 2001, his 2002 salary would increase to $6.3 million. If he has fewer than 625 plate appearances in 2001, he could earn a $500,000 bonus for 625 plate appearances in 2002. The deal calls for Durham to receive $100,000 of his 2000 salary this year as an advance. Chicago failed to re-sign free agents Albert Belle and Robin Ventura and will be counting on Durham and Frank Thomas for run production. "We are committed to our young talent and are happy Ray will be a key part of this club's long-term foundation," White Sox general manager Ron Schueler said.

Central College grad signs with Eagles

PELLA, Iowa (AP) — Former Central College running back Mark Kacmarynski has signed a free-agent contract with the Philadelphia Eagles, who are sending him to play in NFL Europe this spring.

Kacmarynski had previously signed with the Iowa Barnstormers of the Arena Football league and was planning to attend the Barnstormers' training camp.

But he has been released from that contract and will play with the Scotland Claymores in Europe. He reports to training camp in Orlando on March 9.

The Claymores' season begins April

Wiegmann, Wiegmann, who played at 285 pounds, was Iowa's co-MVP in 1995 and a late-round NFL Draft prospect. He went undrafted, but signed as a free-agent with the Indianapolis Colts and is currently the starting center for the Chicago

"The agents told us that Derek would either be drafted in the later rounds or picked up as a free agent," Jim Rose said. "We tried to be realistic when we assessed the situation."

Instead of playing football, Rose plans on choosing from a variety of options, including graduate school, starting a small business with a pair of friends, or getting an internship at a local business to help pay the bills.

The decision to go after such goals was one Rose made during preparation and planning for the draft. Rose traveled to Denver in mid-January to work out with the trainer of the NBA's Nuggets, then played in the East-West Shrine game in Palo Alto, Calif., on Jan.

Before starting the trip, Rose was unsure what his future would hold, but brought a precautionary book with him just in case. The book dealt with preparation for the GRE exam.

The text, which helps prepare students for the graduate school entrance examination, was a hint as to which way Rose was leaning.

"I went to Denver to see if I still liked football when it wasn't for Iowa," Rose said. "It wasn't the same. Some people do not realize how long an NFL day actually is. You have to devote your life to football, and I don't want to do that right now."

Rose will not play in the NFL, but he said he loved the game during his days in Iowa City. He cited his allegiance to former Iowa coach Hayden Fry, a sense of duty to his teammates and loyalty to the cause of winning as reasons he loved

"It was easy to play here," Rose said. "I loved playing for Coach Fry and loved the concept of team. I was tied to the cause and comfortable being here. I have no regrets." Rose plans on applying many of the lessons Fry taught him on the football field to the small business world, where they are easily applicable.

There are many similarities," Rose said. "In the business world, your opponents are your competition, and you have to find their weak spots and adjust accordingly. "You'll have a lot of setbacks and have to have a lot of resilience. It's just like football." Rose said he is comfortable with his decision, but said it was hardly an easy one to make. "Like everything else in life, there were no simple answers regarding my choice," he said. "The road forks and there is no right or wrong. I am doing what I think is Hand's status for Sunday's dual at No. 1 Oklahoma State is in question, Zalesky said. The heavyweight stayed home last weekend to go through workouts with assistant coach Terry Brands.

The loss to Illinois has given the Hawkeyes an extra reason to bounce back against the Cowboys, but lack of incentive was not expected to be a problem heading into Stillwater.

"We won't need any motivation when we go down there, this rivalry is big," Schwab said. "They beat us last year, they've got a big home winning streak going, and we are going to run into them at nation-

ROBIC

By Bob Baum Associated Press

PHOENIX - For the first time since he lay paralyzed on the Pontiac Silverdome turf seven years ago, Mike Utley stood in public Monday and took a few wobbly steps.

"By standing up, you feel who you are," he said. "I was 315 pounds and 6-foot-6. I was proud to be as big as I was. I was proud to be as tall as I am. I want it back." Towering over everyone as he did so long ago, wearing a Detroit Lions T-shirt, the former offensive lineman made it a few feet down a wooden walkway, painfully swinging one leg ahead, then the other. He wore lower leg braces to keep his ankles from rolling. A friend steadied him on each side. He grimaced as he took each excruciating step, his girlfriend Dani Andersen helping him by making sure his spindly lower legs stayed straight. A couple of times, his legs gave way, and the two buddies on each side, retired NFL center Bill Lewis Lions linebacker Rob Frederickson, had to catch him. But he made it 10 feet or so. "Whew! I'd rather go through double days than that," he said afterward. "No, it's exhilarating.

Seven years is a long time to be sitting in this chair." His sense of humor, a major ally throughout his struggle, was on

As Utley stood poised for this high drama, a cell phone rang. "Dominos," he said, imitating the guy who answers at the pizza place. Everyone laughed.

Then it was back to business, as it has been every tough day since that horrifying moment on Nov. 17, 1991, in the Lions' home game

He knew immediately the injury was serious. Two of his vertebrae had been crushed. As he was carried off the field, he gave the crowd a "thumbs up" gesture.

It's become his trademark, and Utley has come to symbolize grit. determination and optimism in the face of grim odds. He vows to someday walk off the field from the spot he was injured. He talked Monday of someday walking his mom three blocks from her home to church.

He's a long way from that, but those steps in front of a crowd of reporters and photographers in a Phoenix hotel conference room were an emotional triumph nonetheless.

"It was awesome to see him up there," Lewis said. "Yesterday when we rehearsed, I was practically in tears. It's nothing short of miraculous."

Utley, 33, is paralyzed from the chest and elbows down. His upper arms still are the bulging biceps of a football lineman. But he has only partial control of his hands and lower arms. About two years ago, he began to feel some sensations in his legs. He can feel his toes, describing it as the way you'd feel on an extremely cold day.

He began working with biofeed-back, trying to identify the connection between his brain and those few alive nerves in his legs. He kept up daily, grueling physical therapy. "Rehabilitation is a lifestyle," he said. "It's not something you just do." A major reason for his public display, and the pressure that came with it, on Monday was his desire to raise more money for his Mike Utley Foundation.

"The one thing you can control is your mind," he said. "I'm not saying everyone will get as far as I've gotten. But they can do something today they didn't do yesterday. Maybe they can go outside. Maybe they can wheel themselves around the block, and maybe tomorrow they can do two blocks.'

Tiger's back

Tiger Woods is back on the right track after winning the Buick Invitational

Associated Press

SAN DIEGO - It had been a while since Tiger Woods stood on an 18th green on a Sunday afternoon, both arms raised in tri-

Almost nine months to the day since his last victory, Woods rolled in a 15-foot eagle putt to beat scrappy Billy Ray Brown by two strokes in the Buick Invitational. Woods lifted both arms, then hugged Brown after the two battled for most of the final 18 holes

The Buick field wasn't exactly overpowering, but Woods' golf was riveting, and one thing he said he'll remember from this one was that he shot 17-under over the weekend. On Friday, he needed birdies on his final two holes just to make the cut.

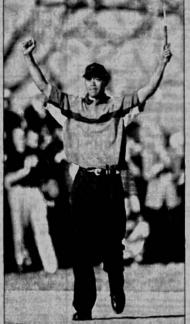

He went into Saturday's round nine back, but tamed Torrey Pines South with a course-record 62, which also happened to be his lowest round as a pro. He fol-lowed that with a 65 Sunday, finally beating Brown after the two went into No. 18 tied at 20-

Woods finished at 22-under 266, tying George Burns' 1987 tournament record for Torrey

"It was Tiger's tournament to lose," Brown said. "All I could do was go free-wheel and he's the guy who had pressure on him. And you see how he responded to the pressure. An eagle on the last hole is just indicative of the kind of player he is."

Woods said he didn't lose confidence in the 14-tournament span in which his best finishes were a pair of thirds. At the same time, David Duval was becoming golf's hottest player.

"Unfortunately for me, I haven't been winning as much as David has. I haven't been playing as well, either," Woods said. "It's just a matter of time before everything comes around and some breaks start going my way. In order to win, you have to get lucky breaks, no doubt about it. And this week I got my share."

The biggest was on the par-5 No. 6 on Saturday, when his difficult 3-wood shot from a knoll next to a bunker bounced off a sprinkler head and shot onto the green, setting up a 10-foot eagle

These are little things that, if it kicks the other way, hits soft or if it kicked right and ended up in the rough, I'd have made par, and that would have been a momentum killer right there."

But Woods also was on with his short game and his putter. After his round Saturday, he said he feels more confident when he's playing badly. "More importantly, my short game has improved where I don't mind missing the green as much."

But he also said his goal was to hit 18 greens, "no matter what. Whether it's 40 feet or 4 feet, it doesn't matter. I figured I could knock it down."

Even Gordon impressed by 'The Pass' at Daytona 500

By Mike Harris

Associated Press

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. -Considering that Jeff Gordon had described "The Pass" a hundred mes by Monday morning, it was surprising that he hadn't viewed it

"I can't wait to see the tape of the closing laps," said the winner of Sunday's dramatic Daytona 500, "I knew it was intense and exciting from where I was sitting."

Gordon may flinch when he does see the moment race fans will be talking about for years to come.

"The Pass" took place as the leaders drove toward the first turn on the 2 1/2-mile oval 11 laps from finish at Daytona International Speedway.

Gordon chose that moment to try to pass Rusty Wallace for the lead. The two-time defending Winston Cup champion darted to the lower portion of the banked track and picked up speed.

"I had been trying to set Rusty up for a few laps and I had a lot of momentum built up when I started under him," Gordon said. "Then I got out there and saw Ricky and thought for a couple of seconds I was going to have to get on the brakes hard."

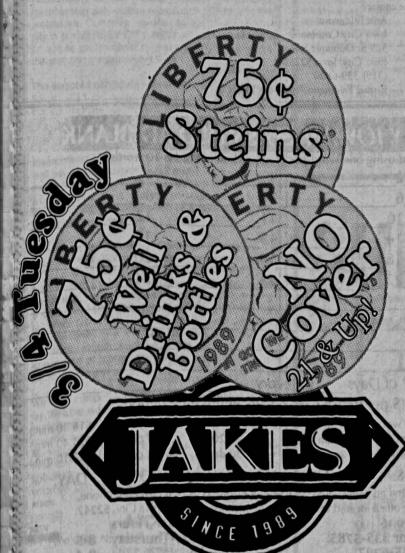

Unfortunately for Ricky Rudd, he had gotten involved in a multicar crash earlier in the race and was driving slowly around the apron of the track with his battered car, simply trying to pick up points for the long season ahead.

The lane between Wallace, traveling at close to 190 mph, and Rudd, going considerably slower, was narrow and getting smaller as Wallace squeezed down to discourage Gordon's bravery.

"I said, 'Oh, Ricky, I hope you see me coming because I'm coming real fast.' " Gordon said.

Hill's 31 not enough for Pistons

NEW YORK (AP) - The New York Knicks let Grant Hill get his points, but didn't allow any of the other Detroit Pistons to hurt them.

Hill scored 31 points Monday in his only trip of the season to Madison Square Garden, but no one else reached double figures for Detroit as the Pistons dropped a 78-69 decision to the Knicks.

Allan Houston scored 19 points, Patrick Ewing had 14, Larry Johnson 12 and Charlie Ward 10 for the Knicks, who doubleteamed Hill near midcourt whenever they could.

Yet Jerry Stackhouse (1-for-11), Bison Dele (4-for-12), Lindsay Hunter (1-for-6), Jerome Williams (0-for-5) and Joe Dumars (0-for-4) failed to capitalize as Detroit shot only 36 percent.

Miami 95, New Jersey 72

MIAMI — Alonzo Mourning had 34 points, 17 rebounds and seven blocks as Miami handed New Jersey its third straight loss. P.J. Brown chipped in 12 points and nine rebounds for Miami, which has won 12 of its last 14 games against New Jersey. Keith Van Horn paced the Nets with 19 points. while Kerry Kittles, playing in his second game of the season, shot 1-for-13 for five points. Jazz 120, Kings 112, OT

SALT LAKE CITY — Bryon Russell and Shandon Anderson combined for 12 points in overtime as Utah remained undefeated. Jason Williams had 19 points and seven assists and Chris Webber had 26 points and 11 rebounds before fouling out early in overtime as the Kings appeared ready to upset the Jazz.

But Karl Malone hit five free throws in the final minute of regulation to force overtime, and the Jazz made a 9-2 run to start the extra period and run their record to a franchise-best 6-0. Suns 115, Nuggets 106

DENVER — Jason Kidd had 28 points, 13 assists and 11 rebounds and George McCloud added 24 points as Phoenix beat Denver.

Kidd was 9-for-17 shooting and posted his 20th triple-double as the Suns beat the Nuggets for the eighth consecutive time and second time this year.

Mary Albert signs with Turner Sports

NEW YORK (AP) — The local fans already have welcomed back Marv Albert. Now he'll see if the reception is any different around the country.

Albert is returning to national prominence, agreeing Monday to a multiyear contract with Turner Sports to broadcast NBA games

Albert, fired by NBC in 1997 after pleading guilty to biting a woman during a sexual encounter in a Virginia hotel room, is scheduled to make his debut on TNT's broadcast of the Los Angeles Lakers game at Phoenix on

Lightning come from behind to tie Islanders

UNIONDALE, N.Y. (AP) -Vincent Lecavalier assisted on one in regulation as the Tampa Bay Lightning came from behind for a with the New York Islanders in a game between the bottom two teams in the Eastern Conference on Monday.

Lecavalier had a wide-open shot from the left crease after a perfect cross-ice pass from Pavel Kubina for his ninth goal. Darcy Tucker and Michael Nylander also scored for the Lightning. Rookie defenseman Karel Betik, playing in his first NHL game, added two assists. Zigmund Palffy scored twice and Mariusz Czerkawski also scored for the Islanders. Blues 8, Canucks 1

ST. LOUIS — Pierre Turgeon had a goal and two assists and Pavol Demitra had three assists as the St. Louis Blues snapped their five-game home losing streak by beating the Vancouver Canucks.

The Blues have won eight straight against the Canucks, who last beat St. Louis on Dec. 15, 1996.

Sabres 3, Hurricanes 2

BUFFALO, N.Y. - Michael Peca broke a tie in the third period and Dominik Hasek made 36 saves as the Buffalo Sabres beat the Carolina Hurricanes.

Miroslav Satan scored and James Patrick notched his first goal of the season for Buffalo, goal and then scored with 9:31 left which played a spirited third period after allowing 30 shots in the first two.

Senators 6, Blackhawks 2

KANATA, Ontario goals and an assist and Wade Redden added two goals as the Ottawa Senators beat the Chicago Blackhawks. Shawn McEachern and Vaclav Prospal also scored for the Senators, who had scored only nine goals in their last six games. Chris Chelios and rookie Todd White scored for Chicago.

Devils 3, Maple Leafs 3

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. — Garry Valk got a gift goal late in the second period when New Jersey defenseman Lyle Odelein tipped a shot past Martin Brodeur, giving the Toronto Maple Leafs a tie with the Devils.

Bryan Berard and Derek King also scored for Toronto in its first game since a 6-2 loss to Chicago on Saturday night in an emotional final game at Maple Leaf Gardens.

Jay Pandolfo, Bobby Holik and Jason Arnott scored for New Jersey in what is turning into a miserable six-game homestand. It started with a loss to Toronto on Feb. 6 and the Devils are now 1-3-1 with one game left.

Penguins 7, Capitals 3
PITTSBURGH — German Titov and Alexei Morozov scored twice and the Pittsburgh Penguins extended the second-longest winning streak in team history to 10 by beating the Washington Capitals.

No sign of Rodman in L.A. — yet

By John Nadel Associated Press

LOS ANGELES - The Worm remained out of sight Monday, with no word from the Los Angeles Lakers on when — or if — Dennis Rodman would join the team.

"I heard he's coming," Shaquille O'Neal said after another practice came and went without an appearance from the seven-time defending rebounding champion.

A source close to the Lakers told The Associated Press late Sunday that Rodman was expected to sign with the team by Tuesday and be in uniform for that night's game against Charlotte. Lakers executives Jerry West and Mitch Kupchak have been talking with Rodman's agents, team spokesman John Black said, but added that there was "absolutely nothing new to report."

A couple hours earlier, Black answered his home telephone by saying, "Dennis Rodman Hotline." Already, the buzz over the expected arrival of the league's most colorful character may have become a distraction to the team. A loss Sunday to the Indiana Pacers dropped the Lakers to 3-3, leaving them in a three-way tie for third place in the Pacific Division.

Derek Harper, at 37 the oldest player on the team and the same age as Rodman, said over the weekend that "any distraction was going to be a cancer for this team."

"It's not a big deal to me," Harper said Monday when asked if he was tiring of all the questions. "I'm pretty focused on what's going on around here and what I'm trying to accomplish here.

"I think he can help us as a player here. If and when it happens, it happens. That's the only approach you can have. We haven't, I haven't, talked about it with anybody except the media." The Lakers first expressed an interest in Rodman two weeks ago. They can only offer the veterans' minimum of $1 million, prorated for this lockout-shortened season, and that money is diminishing with every game Rodman misses. Starting Tuesday night, they'll play six games in eight days. "I think I'll just leave that up to everybody else to talk about," Lakers coach Del Harris said when asked about Rodman.
