Peace pact, bombing of Serbs put on hold

■ Madeleine Albright says NATO won't attack the Serbs unless the Kosovars commit to the accord.

By Barry Schweid
Associated Press

RAMBOUILLET, France — Secretary of State Madeleine Albright, making scant headway toward a Kosovo peace settlement, said Sunday that, if neither Serbs nor ethnic Albanians accept the six-nation plan, NATO cannot carry through on its threat to attack Serb targets.

With a new deadline set for Tuesday, Serb negotiators "are not engaging at all" over the critical question of whether NATO peacekeepers would enforce the settlement, while the Kosovar Albanians must still be persuaded to sign on fully with the plan to give them greater autonomy in the Serb province, Albright said.

"They are dealing, and I think we have to appreciate this, with decisions that affect their lives," Albright said. "It is a question of war and peace for them. I think we need to understand the difficulty of the decisions that they are making."

Albright will return to this small town southwest of Paris today for more talks with the ethnic Albanians, a senior U.S. official told the Associated Press.

Albright, talking to reporters, declined to explain what was holding up Albanian approval. In fact, she said, U.S. officials thought the Albanians had given her a green light on Feb. 20.

But other U.S. officials said the renewed negotiations focused on the Albanians' quest for independence after the plan's interim three-year period and the U.S. refusal to endorse independence. And Albright, ruling out any independence referendum in the agreement, said she was looking for a way "the voice of the people" could be expressed in Kosovo.

But "if this fails because both parties say no, there will not be bombing of Serbia, and we will try to figure out ways of trying to deal with both sides," she said.

However, Albright said, if the Albanians give their total endorsement to the complex plan — which would give the majority Albanians significant autonomy but stop short of independence for Kosovo — and if the Serbs continue to hold out, then the Serbs would be attacked.

"The Serbian side is not cooperative. The Serbian side believes that it can have half the deal, which is to talk about the political part of the document ... There is no deal and no cooperation if they are not willing to engage in what is a basic aspect of the agreement," she said, referring to the NATO peacekeepers.

Albright's spokesman, James P. Rubin, said she left U.S. Ambassador Christopher Hill — the U.S. special envoy to the talks — to continue negotiating with the Albanian representatives.

And British Foreign Secretary Robin Cook also tried to put pressure on the ethnic Albanians to accept the agreement.

"If you don't sign up to these texts, it is extremely difficult to see how NATO could then take action against Belgrade," he said told the British Broadcasting Corp.

German Foreign Minister Jodvha Fischer, at a European foreign ministers meeting in Luxembourg, ruled out another extension of the peace talks. "There will not be another extension," he said.

Home, sweet co-op

■ Co-operative living, such as at the Anomy House, can provide residents with all the comforts of home.

By Anita Chlipala
The Daily Iowan

With the annual spring signing of the leases underway in Iowa City, UI students can avoid the process and find an alternative way to live with co-operative living.

"It's not typical student life," said UI junior Lucy Jeansonne. "It's a challenge; it's very dynamic."

Jeansonne, along with nine other people, lives in the Anomy House, located at 802 E. Washington St. The historic stone home is nestled among the other houses and sorority houses in its Iowa City neighborhood.

The "Anomites," as they call themselves, include five men and five women, ranging in age from 21 to 54.

"It's the best of everything," Jeansonne said. "I feel like I'm growing all of the time."

With the diversity in age and occupations, the tenants draw from each other's experiences and talents, said UI graduate student Bennett Brown, another Anomy resident.

"People learn a lot from others," he said. "From carpentry and plumbing to accounting, budgeting or communication skills."

Second UISG slate under investigation

■ The Norman/Jefferis ticket allegedly violated the UI policy against solicitation.

By Rebecca Anderson
The Daily Iowan

The Student Elections Board is investigating the UISG presidential slate of Brian Norman and Nick Jefferis for allegedly violating campaigning policies over the weekend.

On Feb. 20, Norman said he taped envelopes containing condoms and advertising for Gumby's Pizza, 702 S. Gilbert St., on every door in the residence halls. This kind of campaigning is a violation of a UI campuswide policy against solicitation, said Ann Rhodes, vice president for University Relations.

But Norman denies violating any policy. He said other candidates may be resorting to "dirty politics."

"There was absolutely no violation of rules," he said. "The Student Elections Board never informed us on looking over UI policies."

The policies may be unclear in the board handbook about campaigning in the dorms, but it is something for the board to look at over the next couple of days, said board Co-Chairwoman Emily Brown.

The rules currently state that candidates are prohibited from sliding any kind of information under the doors, she said. They do not formally state the policy for hanging flyers on doors, she added.

"Under our rules, we don't go into residence-hall policies," Brown said. "We need to meet with hall managers before we make a decision."

Another presidential candidate, Anthony LaForge, said he was contemplating filing a complaint with the board because the action infringed on the privacy of students living in the residence halls.

Rhyme and reason are behind this pageant winner's victory

■ Deangela Nicole Wright doesn't need a swimsuit to win a UI annual pageant — she has poetry.

By Erin Crawford
The Daily Iowan

With a poetry reading that captured the hearts of the 400 audience members, Deangela Nicole Wright stole the show at the 12th annual Miss Black and Gold pageant on Feb. 20.

And you thought a pageant needed a swimsuit competition.

Wright, a UI freshman, bested seven UI women competing for the 1999 Miss Black and Gold title at the event, which was sponsored by the Alpha Theta chapter of Alpha Phi Alpha.

"I'm really shocked it happened," Wright said. "I've never won anything before."

She received a dozen roses, a sash, a crown and the opportunity to advance to the next level of competition.

Chapter President Kevin Burke said his fraternity spent five months preparing for the pageant.

"It's a celebration of black women and womanhood," Burke said. "Black and Gold is our biggest event of the year, so we put a lot of effort into it." Organizers spent approximately $1,000 sponsoring the event, which has turned a profit every year he has been involved, he said.

The chapter uses a portion of the proceeds for philanthropy, Burke added.

But charities aren't the only benefactors of the pageant, those involved said. Ernestine Meakins, mother of contestant Pertina Johnson, sees educational value in the experience.

"It's great for the student's mind," she said. "It gives them something to focus on in a positive way."

"I made some new friends," said UI freshman and third-place winner Jashawn Cannon. "I think (pageants are good), as long as you go about it to meet new people."

Miss Black and Gold of 1998, Tyanna McCann, a UI sophomore who co-hosted the event, has fond memories of her experience.

UI's Frank looks to ice theory on comets, water

■ One hundred to 200 images could be the final proof the astronomer needs.

By Steven Cook
The Daily Iowan

The final blow against critics of UI Professor Louis Frank's controversial small ice-comet theory could be dealt by the end of the summer, the astronomy and physics professor said Sunday.

It would come in the form of 100 to 200 images of the thousands of the ice comets that Frank says bombard the Earth's atmosphere every day.

Frank made the comments before more than 200 people as part of the annual Presidential Lecture Sunday at the Levitt Center.

The ice-comet theory has been a tough sell in the astronomical community, because it challenges long-held beliefs that water originated on Earth. Instead, Frank says, over the Earth's more than 4 billion-year history, the ice comets could have supplied enough water to fill the Earth's oceans.

"Not having Earth as an isolated body really goes against what most people think," Frank said Sunday. "If this is correct, much of the library will have to be replaced."

Following the lecture, Frank said that, although he already has enough evidence to prove his theory, the 100 to 200 images he hopes to get should be the "concrete proof" he needs.

Help me, Harlan

Dear Harlan,

I don't seem to have any need or desire for any kind of relationship whatsoever — no friendships, no boyfriends, no nothing. I just seem to be completely antisocial.

I wasn't this way in years past, but I never had many friends anyway, so I guess I got used to not having any. I've been told that I am pretty, but no guys ever pay attention to me, so I don't know if I am or not. But as of late, I find myself just accepting being alone and not even caring about it.

I'm a 23-year-old professional female working in the technical (computer) field. I live with my parents. I'm very happy with my job and satisfied with the direction my career is taking.

Why have I turned inward and away from people so much?

— Quietly content

Dear Quiet,

It sounds like the only meaningful relationship you've established is with your computer. You're not alone. This is just one of the pitfalls of living in this new millennium. More people than ever are working with computers, working alone and living at home.

This is only one factor in a life you've established that has little direct contact with people on a daily basis. While the career and family may be great, you need to work harder to find some balance. Clearly, your social life is lacking, and that's leaving you feeling alone and confused.

You don't have to fool yourself into being happy. Just do things to get yourself happy. You're living such an isolated life that people outside who want to get to know you can't find you to get to know you. There are people just waiting to cross your path. It's just in order to cross your path, you need to do your walking in public.

This anti-social behavior may be explained by depression. Most of these feelings can easily be overcome simply by exploring these issues and consulting with a professional to provide added insight.

Running for their lives

■ The Relay for Life pulls in 1,500 participants and $141,350.

By Leah Reinstein
The Daily Iowan

A celebration in honor and in memory of those whose lives have been touched by cancer was held at the UI Recreation Building Sunday. Approximately 1,500 participants of all ages took to the track, running or walking in half-hour increments, at the seventh annual Relay for Life.

"So many people are touched by cancer," said Arnie Davison, a cancer survivor and relay participant. "My motivation comes from my survival."

Each team member in the event, co-sponsored by the American Cancer Society and the Relay for Life Committee, was required to raise at least $100 to participate.

"Participants have a done a great job raising money this year," said Robin Sueppel, chairwoman of the Relay for Life Committee. "We've raised $141,350, as opposed to last year's $98,000."

It was the highest grossing Relay for Life event in the state; Davison, who raised $5,200, was Iowa City's highest earning participant.

"It's important for people to realize that so much of the money stays in Iowa City," he said. "I have participated in this event for the past 12 years, and I've seen it grow so much."

for cancer research at the UI Hospitals and Clinics.

Other programs supported by these donations include: early detection awareness, particularly breast cancer; public education; patient and family care; and tobacco control.

Several booths surrounded the track in the recreation building to provide information about cancer and answer pertinent questions.

"We are learning more about what it takes to cure cancer and new radiation therapies," said Caroline Beelner, a UIHC nurse and a member of the Cancer Information Network.

"The most important thing is early detection. In their early stages, tumors can be easily separated from the body. When the cancer grows from its original site to other areas of the body, the possibility of removal is strained."

The UI Cancer Center, founded in 1980, has been active in promoting research for cancer prevention, diagnosis, treatment and control, with a focus on the UI campus.

The event's team members included local residents and people from Minneapolis. "Virtual" teams in Des Moines and California also ran to raise money for the Iowa City cause.

"We never thought we would go over $120,000, and we reached the state's top fund raiser," Sueppel said.

Gambling officer refuses to split

■ An Iowa gaming commissioner says the new governor can't get rid of him until his term expires next year.

Associated Press

DES MOINES — A state gambling regulator says Gov. Tom Vilsack does not have the authority to fire him.

Vilsack announced on Feb. 19 that he was replacing three members of the Iowa Racing and Gaming Commission: Harold White of Estherville, Board Chairman Brad Peyton of Urbandale and Jackie Allen of Lamoni.

Vilsack was unhappy with the panel members, saying they sought to usurp the governor and Legislature in setting gambling policy.

But White faxed Vilsack a letter stating that he would not resign; the board member said Vilsack doesn't have the right to replace the three ousted commissioners before their terms expire.

White could not be reached for comment Sunday.

Vilsack has said he has the right to fire commissioners because they "serve at the pleasure of the governor," a statement supported by Attorney General Tom Miller.

However, in his two-page letter, White argued that the phrase means then-Gov. Terry Branstad had the right in 1997 to give him a three-year term, which will expire next year.

White included a copy of his certificate of appointment from Branstad, which lists his tenure lasting to April 30, 2000.

John Norris, Vilsack's chief of staff, said that as far as the governor is concerned, the episode is over.

"A response really is not necessary," Norris said. "... In our books, it's closed. It's time to move on."

Peyton said he won't fight to reverse the decision. "I've had a bellyful of it," he said. "The whole politicizing of this process and the way the gambling interests have absolutely manipulated the process makes me sick to my stomach."

"That's not an indictment of people he appointed. From what I know, they're very good people, and I'm sure they'll be very dedicated public servants." But Peyton said he feared that the shuffling of the commission might make the new members reluctant to take necessary stands against the gambling industry.

"I think there will be an incredible amount of pressure on people to toe the line," Peyton said. "I hope they resist that."

Norris countered that the new commissioners are not being told to be softer on the casino industry.

"This has nothing to do with being pro- and anti-gaming. It has everything to do with understanding their role in gaming," he said.

Allen could not be reached for comment Sunday.

CITY BRIEFS

Lucas volunteer pleads not guilty

A former volunteer at Lucas Elementary School who has been accused of taking indecent pictures of students pleaded not guilty on Feb. 19 to federal charges of possession of child pornography.

Roland Thomson, 71, of West Des Moines, entered his plea in Cedar Rapids U.S. District Court. His trial is set for April 26 and is expected to last for about three days.

Thomson, who is free on bail, will be allowed to see his 8-year-old grandson without the boy's parents being present. His probation officer must verify the parents' consent before a visit can be made.

The decision was made by a U.S. magistrate because the parents of the boy did not support the general pretrial order preventing Thomson from visiting.

The federal indictment alleges that Thomson possessed 12 photographs and nine negatives during a three-month period last year.

Thomson also faces state charges of indecent contact with a child and child endangerment in connection to the case. A local investigation by Iowa City police began after a Wisconsin photo lab notified the FBI about the nature of the pictures it had developed.

Roland Thomson's wife, Shirley, faces a state charge of child endangerment after she allegedly allowed her husband to take inappropriate photographs of her students.

Lucas Elementary Principal Brian Lehmann faces a state charge of child endangerment after he allegedly "failed to take action" against Roland Thomson after officials warned him about Roland Thomson's past record and the threat he may have posed to children's safety.

Roland Thomson was convicted of child neglect in 1985, when he was teaching at Hoover Elementary School.

New director to oversee UIHC budget

After a nationwide search, the UI Hospitals and Clinics announced on Feb. 19 that Ann Madden Rice will be the new associate director and chief financial officer.

In her position as head of the Office of Financial Management and Control, which she will assume on May 3, Rice will oversee an annual budget exceeding $400 million.

"It's exciting to be involved with an organization that is nationally recognized for its efforts," she said. "I want to enhance and support the caliber of research and patient care at the UIHC."

Rice said she is grateful for the opportunity the UIHC offers and is prepared to work to help maintain its financial stability.

(Rice) will be responsible for administrat-ing all the financial aspects and contracts of the UIHC," said Dean Borg, UIHC information director.

"She brings a great breadth of experience to this position. We're fortunate to have her."

Rice, who will be leaving her position as chief financial officer of the Mary Greeley Medical Center in Ames, succeeds Kenneth Yerington, who is retiring as director of financial management and control.

Named an "up-and-comer" by Modern Healthcare Magazine in 1994, Rice is a member of the American College of Healthcare Executives and the Healthcare Financial Management Association.

"I'm very pleased," said Edward Howell, UIHC director and chief executive. "She's an experienced person who's going to lead us into the next century and maintain the financial stability the UIHC experienced in the last century."

Police charge 14-year-old in alcohol incident

Charges have been filed against a juvenile who allegedly provided alcohol to a classmate on school grounds.

Police charged Geoffrey W. Barthel, 14, with possession of alcohol under the legal age, possession of tobacco and providing alcohol to a person under the legal age on Feb. 18, according to police records.

Barthel was charged in connection with a Feb. 16 incident in which paramedics were called to West High School, 2901 Melrose Ave., after freshman Michael Moulds, 15, was found drunk and showing signs of alcohol poisoning on school grounds, according to police reports.

Moulds was charged with public intoxication when his blood alcohol was found to be in excess of .10 after being taken to Mercy Hospital.

The case still remains under investigation by Iowa City police.

From the Offices of Norman/Jeffers: Choosing a UISG President and Vice-President is never an easy task. You need someone who is willing to fight for your needs. Here at Norman/Jeffers, we believe in safeguarding the needs of each one of our "clients" in Iowa City. If you don't believe us, just listen to these testimonials from a few of our satisfied clients:

Norman/Jeffers are going to get me more money for the books I sell back at the end of each semester!

Norman/Jeffers got me my first ever Valentine's Day date!
Thanks Norman/Jeffers!!!!

If it wasn't for Norman/Jeffers, I would have never passed the final in my underwater basket weaving class!

Thanks to Norman/Jeffers, I will be able to get credit for my unused meal plans! You guys are the best!!

By now we are sure you're thinking to yourself, "Can I get Norman/Jeffers to protect my needs?" Of course you can join these and the many other satisfied clients of Norman/Jeffers. How you ask? Why it's simpler than trying to drop/add classes. Go to the polls on March 1st or 2nd and vote for Norman/Jeffers.

Walters interviews Lewinsky as guards sit outside

NEW YORK (AP) — After months of waiting for the go-ahead from Kenneth Starr, Barbara Walters taped her interview with Monica Lewinsky at a tightly guarded television studio in New York City.

Officially, the network had nothing to say about it, but an ABC executive speaking on the condition of anonymity confirmed the interview was done over the weekend.

Walters and ABC News President David Westin have scheduled a news conference today to talk about the interview, which the network expects to air over 90 minutes in prime-time on March 3 — the final day of a television "sweeps" period used to set local advertising rates.

The date remained tentative. The network might decide to broadcast the interview sooner, the executive said.

Walters is expected to talk today about how ABC worked within restrictions placed on the interview by Starr, the independent counsel who investigated President Clinton and his relationship with the one-time White House intern.

Lewinsky reportedly wasn't supposed to make statements going beyond what she's already told Starr's office and a grand jury.

Guards were posted outside the studio on Feb. 20, when Lewinsky talked with Walters.

Walters' landing of the Lewinsky interview was considered the biggest TV news coup of the presidential scandal, although its impact may have been diminished by Lewinsky's videotaped testimony during the Senate impeachment trial.

Nigerian results trickle in; turnout low

LAGOS, Nigeria (AP) — The party of a former general headed toward a narrow win Sunday in legislative elections, giving him a likely edge in an upcoming presidential vote that heralds Nigeria's return to democracy.

With about two-thirds of the vote counted late Sunday, the party of Gen. Olusegun Obasanjo had the greatest number of seats in the two legislative chambers.

Obasanjo's successes were tempered, however, by the strength of the other two national parties, who are fielding a single candidate for president in next Sunday's presidential vote.

the final milestone in Nigeria's move from military to civilian rule.

By late Sunday, Obasanjo's Peoples Democratic Party had won 37 seats in the 109-seat Senate and 130 seats in the 360-member House of Representatives. The other seats had not yet been decided.

Next was the Alliance for Democracy, a party with strong support among the Yoruba people of Nigeria's southwest. The alliance had 19 seats in the Senate and 66 in the House.

The All Peoples Party was third, with 15 Senate seats and 40 in the House. It is made up largely of politicians once loyal to former dictator Gen. Sani Abacha, whose sudden death last June led to the current transition to democracy.

Perhaps some of the most telling results came in the southwestern state of Enugu, the center of Nigeria's Ibo people, who voted for the Alliance.

Many analysts believe the Ibo vote is the least predictable, and it wasn't clear whether they would support Obasanjo or Finance Minister Olu Falae, the joint candidate of the Alliance and the All Peoples Party.

Allied planes attack Iraqi sites

BAGHDAD, Iraq (AP) — U.S. and British warplanes attacked an Iraqi missile base and two military communication sites Sunday after Iraqi jets violated the no-fly zone, the U.S. military said.

There was no immediate word on damage or casualties from the strikes near al-Amarah and Tallil, approximately 170 miles southeast of Baghdad. All the planes returned to their base, a statement from the U.S. Central Command said.

The statement said the strikes were launched after two Iraqi jets violated the zone in southern Iraq. There was no immediate comment from Iraqi officials on the attack.

American and British planes patrolling the no-fly zones over southern and northern Iraq have regularly clashed with Iraqi defense and aircraft. Iraq has said it does not recognize the zones.

learning experience, said UI graduate student Titinun Auamnoy, a native of Thailand. In the one and a half years he has lived in the co-op, Auamnoy said, he has learned more than in his four years of living in the United States.

"I learn about the people, about sharing and working together, and the American culture," he said.

Another bonus of co-operative living is the price, Brown said. He described the co-op as "affordable, democratically controlled housing." Expenses are $200 per month, which goes to pay the mortgage, insurance, property taxes and maintenance, utilities and the majority of the food.

And when it comes to roommate discrepancies, the "Anomites" try to work things out democratically, Brown said.

"We operate by consensus, as opposed to majority vote," he said. "People continue looking for solutions to problems that everyone is satisfied with."

But even with these measures, the residents inevitably have their share of problems. Conflicts and lack of privacy are two drawbacks to the co-op, said April Dirks, who also lives in the three-story house.

But by learning from the experiences, some have turned the disadvantages into benefits. Dirks said she learned the meaning of the word "cooperation."

"I feel like a kindergartner when I say that, 'cooperation,' but I've learned it in a whole new way," she said. "It's learning how to find common ground with someone who is so different from you."

The Anomy House is joined by one other co-op in Iowa City, the Summit House, located at 200 S. Summit St. To keep the houses running smoothly, the River City Housing Collective acts as a board of directors to oversee finances and problems.

"It's almost as if we're our own landlords," Dirks said. "It's the first time I've been paying rent where it goes to something that's going to sustain healthy living for people."

The environmentally stable lifestyle led by co-op residents tends to hold great appeal, Brown said.

"It's definitely part of the reason why people live here," he said.

Such "green" Anomite practices include buying food in bulk, helping maintain the house and tending a garden.

"The thing we share most is food," Brown said. "I like to eat a good dinner every night with great company. It's very satisfying."

In order to become a resident of a co-op, a potential member must "prospect" the house.

"Prospecting is a time to figure out if you want to live here or not, and if we want to live with you," Dirks said.

When "prospecting," one would go to the house for dinner, tour the house and get to know the residents, Brown said.

"You find out what kind of work people put in, and you must be comfortable living with everyone," he said.

When agreeing to live in a co-op, certain conditions must be met.

Everyone is required to work at least 16 hours a month: eight hours for housework, including shopping once a month and cooking twice a month, and eight hours doing community co-op work, Dirks said.

Frank expects final proof of ice-comet, water theory

have been searching the Arizona sky for the comets using the UI-run Iowa Robotic Observatory since October 1998, he said. The Iowa telescope is located near Tombstone, Ariz.

A slide depicting two black spots, which Frank says shows one of the comets streaking across the two film exposures, was shown during the lecture. It is more of these photos he needs for his proof, he said.

Scientists critical of his work have said earlier photos of what Frank called impacts from the comets were random spots created by the camera.

The probability of two random blotches occurring on just one slide, such as the one shown, are "billions and billions" to one, he said.

He already has several similar photos.

Researchers are still analyzing photos taken by the telescope, so, he said, he didn't know exactly how far the astronomers are on their way to their goal of 100 to 200 photos.

The comets are difficult to photograph, Frank said, because of their enormous speeds — more than 23,000 miles per hour.

He could already have had enough photos, Frank said after the lecture, except for several setbacks at the Arizona observatory. A fire caused by a welder's torch in January 1998 and mice nesting in the team's computers delayed the start of the team's work until October 1998, Frank said.

Frank's small ice comet theory was first proposed in an article published on April 1, 1986. But the idea was so outlandish to most astronomers, Frank said, that many assumed it was an April Fool's Day joke.

But since the initial publication, Frank has been able to win over many of his colleagues, he said. One major breakthrough in support of his theory came in 1997, when he presented evidence of many impacts in the Earth's atmosphere that, he said, were caused by the comets.

Now, Frank said, there is only a "close-knit" group of astronomers at the University of Arizona that dispute his theory.

Frank's lecture, titled "Small Comets and Our Origins: The Ecstasy and Agony of the Scientific Debate," was the 16th annual Presidential Lecture. Past lecturers have included fellow astronomer James Van Allen and Pulitzer Prize-winning English Professor Jorie Graham.

The Presidential Lecture is designed to showcase one member of the UI faculty each year.

"It was a fun learning experience," she said. "It's great, especially for new people on campus. It introduces you to everyone."

A 45-minute delay due to lighting problems at the start of the show left some audience members unimpressed with the evening's glitz.

"The (competitors) with no talent are why it's so much fun," said audience member and UI senior Tonia Neely. "I'm coming out here to laugh at the ones that are pretty bad."

The pageant includes a contestant introduction, a talent display, an evening-wear competition and an impromptu question-and-answer segment.

If the winner chooses to enter the regional level of the national competition, she would have to don swimwear, Burke said.

Wright said she is unsure about taking part in the regional competition and had mixed feelings about wearing a swimsuit on stage.

"I can understand if they want to make sure the girl is fit, but there are other ways you can do that besides putting her in a swimsuit," she said.

Board probes UISG ticket for alleged election violations

"If this is not dealt with, it could have future negative repercussions on students living in the dorms," said LaForge, a resident assistant in Stanley.

The UI policy protects students from being inundated with information from candidates as well as promotes a fair campaign process, Rhodes said.

"We don't want to give the candidates an unfair advantage," she said.

LaForge and George Hild, also a presidential candidate, said Norman and Jeffers violated a clearly stated policy. They added that they would support seeing the slate disqualified from the election, if the board were to find it in violation.

"There's really no excuse for what they did," Hild said. "This gave their ticket an unfair advantage."

campaign is "Keep it clean and keep it fair," which is what candidates Lana Zak and Matt McDermott said everyone is trying to do.

"With five tickets, you can get a pretty competitive race," McDermott said. "But we all have to play by the rules."

If the Norman/Jeffers slate were to be disqualified, it would be the second ticket to be removed during this year's two-week campaigning process. The Jacob Thomas/Bob Alanis slate was disqualified on Feb. 17 for failing to place graduate students on the ticket.

Regents should not gamble with universities' integrity

Universities are supposed to make the world a better, more enlightened place — not contribute to its decline.

But the state university system's embrace of gambling as a source of revenue contradicts this fundamental mission.

The UI, like any other academic institution, needs money to hire and keep top-shelf faculty, maintain buildings and field an array of sports teams.

But that doesn't mean the UI and the other regents' schools should sell their souls to pay for these things.

Unfortunately, though, members of the Iowa state Board of Regents disagree, giving initial support last week to funneling gambling money to a building fund for the state's public universities. Under the plan trumpeted by Democratic Gov. Tom Vilsack, the state would take $60 million in gambling revenue from its General Fund to boost from $173.3 million to $236.3 million the amount spent on new buildings, repairs and maintenance at regents' schools.

The UI has wisely sought to improve engineering and biology facilities in recent years, and expected improvements to the Union and new journalism and fine-arts facilities are long overdue.

The need for modern buildings is real, but this proposed way of funding them is disturbing.

Too bad the regents and the governor don't realize this. Instead, they seem willing to grab any source of revenue, consequences be damned.

"I think it's a pretty good idea to allocate gambling to one of the pressing needs of the state," said Regent David Fisher in Thursday's Daily Iowan.

This response is unfortunately all too common in an age in which gambling revenue is looked to as a quick fix for any funding crunch. Iowa is home to riverboat casinos in the Quad Cities, Dubuque and Council Bluffs, a racetrack near Des Moines and the American Indian gaming hall in Tama. The Powerball lottery's home in Des Moines further underscores the breadth of the state's dependence on gambling.

Gambling does not come without costs.

The multi-billion-dollar industry is associated with higher crime rates and bankruptcies in areas where gambling facilities are located, and gambling has wreaked havoc on countless families consumed by gambling addictions.

It seems ironic to have buildings built with money that has destroyed the lives of countless individuals and families.

Having individuals addicted to gambling is sad enough. Having an entire state and its educational system addicted is even sadder.

But that's to be expected when gambling is looked to as a solution when in fact it is a problem.

Byron R. Brown is the DI's Viewpoints editor.

Beware the federal budget surplus

THERE is Big Trouble brewing in Washington, D.C. And I am not talking that mess involving Monica Lewinsky and President You Know Who.

NOBODY cares about that anymore. The public is SICK of it. The Republicans could produce a videotape of the president and Monica pistol-whipping a 7-Eleven clerk and then performing an illegal act with a Slim Jim, and the public would say, "So what! Let's focus on the issues!"

No, the trouble I'm talking about is the federal budget surplus. It's raging out of control. What, exactly, is this surplus, and why is it such a threat? To answer those questions, perhaps it will help if we take a moment to review the history of our federal budget. Or perhaps it will not. But just try to stop us.

For many thousands of years, there was no federal budget. America was run by American Indians, who had a tribal form of government and used a simple tax form made of bark.

The first Europeans to arrive were the Vikings, who landed here around A.D. 700 but were eliminated in the playoffs. They were followed by Christopher Columbus, who actually thought he had discovered India. (He thought this because the American Indians, who were big pranksters, had erected a huge sign that said "WELCOME TO INDIA!")

This was followed by what historians call The Bunch of Boring Wars, which ended up with England in charge of the colonies. But then the king of England, King Really Stupid, enacted a tea tax, which was extremely unpopular with the colonists, who were very fond of their "tea," which was colonial slang for marijuana. And thus the United States was formed.

In those days, the government's only function was to deliver the mail, which consisted of a dozen handwritten parchment letters from Ed McMahon. The government didn't need much money; in fact, the original Internal Revenue Service consisted of just two employees and one horse, which would conduct audits by standing on taxpayers' heads.

Over the years, the government got bored with delivering mail, so it came up with important new programs, such as the Department of Commerce, which carries out the vital work of doing whatever it is that the Department of Commerce does. As the government's money requirements grew, so did the IRS, which today employs more than 165,000 personnel and nearly 11,000 horses.

Today the federal budget stands — or, technically, squats — at well over $1 trillion. It is difficult for average moron taxpayers such as ourselves to grasp a number that large, so to make the budget surplus problem more understandable, let's compare the federal government to a lemonade stand.

Billy and Suzy (not their real names) have mixed up a batch of "lemonade," or government programs. Whenever a "customer," or taxpayer, comes along, he or she decides to pay Billy and Suzy a percentage of his or her income, because otherwise they will put him or her into federal prison. In return for this money, Billy and Suzy do not give any lemonade to the customer. They give it to various organizations and individuals deemed worthy of lemonade, such as the Department of Commerce, retired people, defense contractors and researchers studying the dangers of inadequately heated soup.

DAVE BARRY

For years, Billy and Suzy gave away so much lemonade that, no matter how much money they got from their customers, they still had to borrow more. But now, suddenly, they are WAY ahead. They are taking in billions more dollars from their customers than they are spending on lemonade. Even if they start paying back the borrowed money, they have billions left over, piling up all over their lawn to the point where their dog, Spot, sometimes has no choice but to relieve himself on it.

This is the problem that our government leaders are wracking their brains over now. Impossible as it may sound, the government is unable to spend money as fast as it is collecting it. This is a serious problem. Why? Because, according to economists, unless something is done — and soon — to relieve the massive buildup of excess tax receipts, the Treasury Building could explode and release its contents into the atmosphere, forming an immense cloud of money that could be blown by prevailing winds over a populated area. If the wind were to shift, the money could fall back to Earth, where some of it could, conceivably, wind up — this is referred to in top-secret government documents as "The Doomsday Scenario" — back in the hands of taxpayers.

A chilling Stephen King nightmare scenario, you say? Unfortunately, it could happen, unless our leaders are able to figure out what to do about the surplus. Until they do, we, as taxpayers, should minimize the risk of coming into direct contact with our money by remaining indoors as much as possible, living on canned goods, which we should, according to recent studies, heat properly.

Constitution didn't always guarantee freedom for all

To the Editor:

Lance Hamby's recent editorial ("Respectfully disagreeing with UI policy toward gays," DI/Feb. 2) contained just enough self-righteous, heterosexist rhetoric to prompt me to write.

Perhaps most disturbing about Hamby's article is his proposition that the UI's Human Rights Policy somehow oppresses heterosexual people who believe that homosexuality is wrong. He states that "homosexuals now have their lifestyles legitimized, and others are ostracized for their honest — but different — opinion about the efficacy of the homosexual movement." How, may I ask, is Hamby or anyone else ostracized by the UI's stance that gay persons' lives are as "legitimate" as anyone else's?

Hamby goes so far as to suggest that the UI needs no human-rights policy because he believes the U.S. Constitution already guards against discrimination based on "immutable" characteristics. Does he forget that under this very same Constitution it was at one time legal to enslave black persons and to deny women the right to vote?

Part of his argument against protecting gay persons from discrimination is his contention that "homosexuality is based on a behavior and not an immutable characteristic." If the right to behave in a manner consistent with an individual's "pursuit of happiness" is not protected, then what is?

Many of our rights, such as freedom of religion and freedom of speech, are based on behavior. Essentially, we have the freedom to engage in behaviors of our choice as long as they don't interfere with the rights of others. An individual choosing a person of the same gender as a partner in no way infringes on the rights of heterosexual persons. If it causes them discomfort, that is NOT a violation of their rights but an inevitable part of a society where people are allowed to hold and express differing views.

I believe that in time, the Constitution will be interpreted to protect the rights of gay people. In the mean time, we desperately need state, local and organizational policies to protect gay people from being denied equal rights.

So congratulations to the UI for having the foresight to stand up for the equal rights of all persons through its human-rights policy. And to Hamby, if you want to know what it really feels like to be ostracized, imagine what it would feel like to live in a society where you pay taxes like everyone else but are denied equal protection under the law.

Newest menace to society: the Purple-People Basher

HOW'S this for irony? Last week, I was in a journalistic swivet, cursing television and paying particularly savage attention to those short, fuzzy, simple-minded whatever-they-ares, the Teletubbies. This week, I find myself rushing to defend the little freaks against a decidedly bigger freak: the one-and-only Rev. Jerry Falwell.

It appears that Tha Rev has decided that Tinky-Winky (the purple Tubbie) is a great big homo and that the world must know of this insidious threat to our children's souls. You may well ask how the good reverend knows about Tinky-Winky's bedroom habits. I myself was curious.

For starters, Tinky is fuzzy and purple ("the gay pride color," Falwell said in a recent Newsweek blurb). Second, Tinky has on his head an inverted triangle ("the gay pride symbol," Tha Rev says), also fuzzy and purple. Lastly, Tinky has an "effeminate" demeanor and has been known to carry a red, patent leather handbag.

Now, I'd hate to jump all over Mr. Falwell just for speculating on a genderless, make-believe, kiddie-show character's sexuality, so in the interest of fairness, let's all take a critical look at the reverend's case, plank by plank:

- Plank One of the "Tinky's a Homo" argument: Tinky-Winky is purple — "the gay pride color." Yes, Jerry, you may have something there. All purple-skinned people are queerer than three-dollar bills, and I've also noticed that football teams with purple jerseys tend to run like girls. And hey — as long as we're ferreting out fairies on the basis of purple pigmentation, we'd better round up Barney, Gonzo, Grimace and that two-headed fellow from "Sesame Street" — they could be luring our children into perversion even as we speak!

- Plank Two: Tinky-Winky has an inverted triangle (the gay pride symbol) on his head. Uh-huh, and Superman's got a big one smack in the middle of his chest — AND he wears a unitard, AND red boots! "Man of Steel," indeed. He probably got that nickname partying on Fire Island (best not to ask how!) Maybe Falwell should look into this — we can't very well have a mincing sissy-boy in an opera cape and spit-curls defending our proud nation, can we? If we don't nip this in the bud, next thing you know, Clark Kent will be shacking up with Bruce Wayne and wanting domestic partner benefits and joint custody of Robin! Good heavens!

- Plank Three: Tinky-Winky carries a red, patent leather handbag. OK, sure. Like any self-respecting person (homo or otherwise) would be caught dead carrying a dowdy, frumpy-ass-lookin' purse like Tinky's. A little quilted Chanel number with a chain-link strap and matching lipstick case, maybe. Tinky's handbag says way more about his woefully misguided taste in accessories than it does about his sexuality. And quickly before we move on — anyone who deigns to assume anything about anybody based on what they use to schlep their stuff around in is in dire need of a hobby (just a thought, Jerry).

This newest fusillade of nonsense from the right serves one purpose and one purpose only: It shows us yet again that when arch-conservative, fundamentalist wankers with the compassion of tsetse flies run out of halfway legitimate things to wheeze about, they turn Teletubbies into demons and expect us all to be as shocked and appalled as they are. The very idea that a grown man with education and influence — regardless of his politics — would be so eager to suggest that a harmless, sexless character appealing to toddlers is somehow pushing the "gay agenda" is embarrassing.

Perhaps Falwell has divorced himself from reason and is seeing rabid homosexuals behind every bush and stone, slaving for the blood of his precious flock — in which case he should turn off the television and go get some help. Or maybe he's just another pain-in-the-ass hyper-conservative who hasn't got enough common sense to see that making stupid remarks about cartoon characters when there are real issues to discuss is only making him and his colleagues look like doddling idiots.

But maybe something positive will come out of all this buffoonery. Maybe Tinky-Winky will be the next M.A.C. cosmetics spokesmodel. Maybe he'll get to do an interview for the Advocate about his meteoric rise to stardom. Maybe he'll become a poster child for the intersexual community. Maybe some gallant plastic surgeon will come forward and offer to do something about that controversial growth on Tinky's head.

The sky's the limit for a little purple critter with a good agent and a high-profile (though intellectually bankrupt) nemesis like Falwell — as long as he keeps that purple pelt glossy and hires a stylist to do something about that handbag...

FILM REVIEW By Van Griffin

What's funnier than a naked, skinny, old man riding a motorcycle at extreme speeds? What if he had a super-serious look of determination on his puny little face and wore only a huge helmet and ill-fitting flight goggles while doing so? In my superior comic opinion, not many other strange scenarios can beat that crazy little image.

In "Waking Ned Devine," an endearing dramatic comedy (extra-emphasis on "comedy") by Kirk Jones, this scenario does, indeed, occur. What is even better is that this hilarious scene is complemented by several other belly-laugh-inducing parts throughout.

The movie is set in Tullymore, a small (population 52), neighborly Irish town on the outskirts of Dublin. The story begins when someone in Tullymore wins the formidable lottery jackpot but does not reveal him or herself to any of the locals.

Well, the knowledge that someone in Tullymore is sitting on a winning lottery ticket and keeping mum about it is just too much for Jackie O'Shea (Ian Bannen) and Michael O'Sullivan (David Kelly), two locals.

The two best friends have lived in Tullymore their entire lives. Everybody knows everybody in Tullymore, and any exciting rumor — such as a local lottery winner — spreads faster than a naked old geezer flying through town on a motorbike!

The friends begin a low-key and highly unprofessional investigation to find out just who is keeping their good fortune from the collective Tullymore family, so to speak. The two decide to first locate the winner and then hopefully win his or her good graces, so as to get some of the money for themselves.

What inevitably ensues is a hysterical series of cleverly planned inquiries into the community, which ends up nearly fruitless as both of the old (but youthful at heart) sleuths almost go broke in the attempt to locate the holder of the treasured ticket.

They finally find the winner, Ned Devine, through an accidental process of deduction. Ironically, Ned's surprising serendipity was quickly undermined by a fatal heart attack, apparently a direct result of his unexpected good fortune. Upon this discovery, the two pals organize a scheme to collect Ned's winnings.

Rationalizing the scam after a visionary dream involving Ned, a chicken dinner and a "bright light," Jackie says, "... Ned would have wanted us to enjoy the money."

The wonderfully sincere and hilarious relationship between Jackie, the ever-charming and gentle mastermind behind the plan, and Michael, the neurotic and brilliantly likable partner in crime, is the cornerstone of the movie. Their rapport is perfect, each character is sufficiently — and more importantly, convincingly — explored.

Some minor faults arise, such as the only thing said of Ned Devine is that he was "... the sweetest type of man ..." In retrospect, though, too much explanation might compromise some of the film's wonderful comic rhythm, which would be an unnecessary and unfortunate loss. In all honesty, I had no desire to see this film. But, much to my good fortune, "Waking Ned Devine" is an unlikely comic belly-romper. What makes "Ned Devine" stand on its own is not the gut-clutching humor but rather the gentle characters surrounding and creating the film that make it a hilarious and lovable cinematic jackpot.

BOX OFFICE

'Payback,' 'Message' duel for No. 1

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Kevin Costner's "Message in a Bottle" and Mel Gibson's "Payback" battled for No. 1 at the box office, while "October Sky" opened to respectable business, estimates showed Sunday.

Two other new releases, the workplace comedy "Office Space" and the bad-girl teen flick "Jawbreaker," were disappointments. "My Favorite Martian" continued to do steady business after two weeks.

Here are estimated grosses at North American theaters for Feb. 19 through Sunday:

1. "Message in a Bottle," $10.3 million.
2. "Payback," $10.3 million.
3. "My Favorite Martian," $6.7 million.
4. "Blast from the Past," $6.1 million.
5. "October Sky," $6 million.
6. "Shakespeare in Love," $5.8 million.
7. "She's All That," $5.4 million.
8. "Office Space," $4.3 million.
9. "Rushmore," $2.7 million.
10. "Saving Private Ryan," $2.4 million.

SPRING TRAINING

Wood set for sophomore campaign

Chicago Cubs pitcher Kerry Wood is eager to start the 1999 baseball season.

By Rick Gano
 Associated Press

MESA, Ariz. — Kerry Wood's rookie season was full of memorable numbers. Thirteen wins, 233 strikeouts, including a major league record-tying 20 in a single game when he was just 20 years old.

There's another record he'll remember as well.

"I want to stay healthy and finish the season. I'm 0-1 trying to finish the season," Wood said Saturday as pitchers and catchers reported to the Chicago Cubs' spring training complex.

Wood missed the final month of last season because of a sprained ligament

Top-ranked Cowboys clobber Iowa

Jim Zalesky's juggling of the Iowa lineup wasn't enough to overcome Oklahoma State, the nation's top wrestling team.

By Tony Wirt
 The Daily Iowan

With heavyweight Wes Hand and 165-pounder Ben Uker out of the lineup, the fourth-ranked Hawkeye wrestling team suffered its second consecutive loss, 26-11, to No. 1 Oklahoma State Sunday.

Iowa coach Jim Zalesky tried to combat the problem by changing around his lineup, but it didn't work. Doug Schwab, T.J. Williams and Jamie Heidt each moved up a weight to make up for the absence of Uker. Redshirt freshman Mike Zadick then replaced Schwab at 141.

"For us to win the meet, we knew we had to try something different," Zalesky said. "We could have tried to come in and just win as many matches as we could, but we knew if we wanted to win the dual, we had to shake things up."

The bottom line: Already overmatched, the banged-up Iowa lineup couldn't handle Oklahoma State.

Hawkeye winners: T.J. Williams (157), Lee Fullhart (197), and Mike Zadick (141).

Up Next: Big Ten Championships, March 6 in Ann Arbor, Mich.

The strategy began to look shaky from the beginning, when Schwab lost a 12-7 decision to No. 2-ranked 149-pounder Reggie Wright.

Williams defeated No. 6 Jimmy Arias at 157 pounds, but Ty Wilcox stole a 6-4 decision over Heidt at 165, sending the Hawkeyes into a tailspin. Gabe McMahan lost a hard-fought 9-7 decision over No. 1 Mark Smith, and Mark Munoz scored a 13-5 major decision over Paul Jenn, giving Oklahoma State a commanding 13-3 lead in the dual.

McMahan's performance against Smith was encouraging to the coaches, who saw their 174-pounder hang in with the top-ranked wrestler in his weight class.

"This is a hard lesson to learn, but it's better to learn it here than later on in the season," Zalesky said. "Hopefully he picked up something he can use at nationals."

Senior Lee Fullhart did what he could to get the Hawkeyes back into things, scoring a dominating 21-6 technical fall over Josh Cruzan at 197 pounds.

Hawks get last laugh with win

A chorus of chants about Tom Davis' future wasn't enough to rattle the men's basketball team Sunday.

By Megan Manfull
 The Daily Iowan

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. — Iowa coach Tom Davis remained poised alongside the Iowa bench as time ran off the clock.

With a victory almost within the Hawkeyes' grasp, Illinois fans started chanting. "Tom's still fired."

But the 60-year-old coach didn't flinch.

The 78-72 victory over the Fighting Illini on Sunday afternoon was Davis' final trip to Assembly Hall. It was his first victory in the arena in 11 years. And only 48 hours remained before he would coach his final game in Carver-Hawkeye Arena.

"We've been through a lot this

Iowa garners weekend split

Iowa men's gymnastics coach Tom Dunn looked at the scoreboard Friday night and shook his head in disbelief.

The Hawkeyes were trailing fifth-ranked Michigan State after two rotations and were being subjected to strict judging for some stellar performances on the still rings.

Despite the slow start, No. 4 Iowa eventually pulled away from the Spartans for an important 227.525-221.95 Big Ten victory. Sunday in Lincoln, Neb., the Hawkeyes lost to the No. 8 Cornhuskers, 229-227.325.

"I was disappointed we did not hit our first two events well (against Michigan State) and trailed after two events, that was a little bit frustrating," Dunn said. "On the positive side, the team came back and turned in a really great meet the rest of the way."

Todd Strada led the Hawkeyes with the all-around victory (57.25) and wins on floor exercise (9.675) and still rings (9.775). Freshman Andy Thornton finished third in the all-around with a 55.05 total, while Shane deFreitas contributed superb performances on the parallel bars (9.6) and high bar (9.55) for two victories.

Iowa managed to sweep the top spots on parallel bars, high bar and even the still rings, where Dunn was unhappy with the scoring. Without the aid of junior All-American Brian Hamilton and sophomore Brian Christie, the Hawkeye gymnasts were extremely proud of the victory.

"This was definitely one of our best meets," Hamilton said. "We looked really confident up there, so I was definitely excited with the way that everyone performed."

Iowa (3-1) was not as fortunate against Nebraska. Dunn said Friday he would make a few lineup changes to give other gymnasts opportunities to compete.

Former heavyweight champion of the world Buster Douglas looks down at his opponent Andre Crowder Friday, after Douglas knocked out Crowder in the first round.

Douglas breezes to easy KO

Buster Douglas has his sights set on a rematch with Mike Tyson after knocking out Andre Crowder in the first round Friday.

By Tony Wirt
 The Daily Iowan

BURLINGTON — Former undisputed heavyweight champion of the world James "Buster" Douglas got back on the track to a title shot in spectacular fashion Saturday night, knocking out Andre Crowder in the first round.

Douglas (38-6-1) ended things with a three punch combination that ended with a left hook landing flush on the face of Crowder. The punch left the Lima, Ohio, native on the canvas for about 3 minutes after being counted out at 1:11.

"He was a good fighter, he just got caught and broke his nose," Douglas said. "I didn't know if he was going to get up or not after I threw it."

The former champion looked good in the limited time he was in the ring, snapping Crowder's head back with the same piston-like jab that befuddled then-champion Mike Tyson when Douglas, a 42-1 underdog, took the title in 1990.

"I felt like the punches were fluid for the weight I was carrying," Douglas said. "I feel good about it."

Wood confident arm will survive daily grind

WOOD

in his pitching elbow. But he returned to pitch in Game 3 of the first-round playoffs series against Atlanta, proving there was no major damage to his arm. The NL Rookie of the Year began his off-season conditioning program earlier than usual and the elbow has passed all the tests. "I was running, throwing and lifting. That was the plan but unfortunately I got sick the last couple of weeks and haven't been able to do things. But now we're back on track," Wood said. Asthmatic bronchitis and pneumonia kept Wood too pooped to pitch or do much of anything for two weeks. "I was struggling. I had no energy. I was done. I was out of breath and was just sick, coughing up stuff. It was nasty," he said. Wood, who pitched 166 2-3 innings last season — 52 more than his previous high in the minors — has been answering questions about his arm since last August. "I just knew I was OK. I'm the only person in the world who knows my body and what my arm feels like. If I was really concerned about it, it probably would have gotten to me. I wasn't worried about it, I knew it would be OK and that's how I went about handling it," he said. Wood admitted he might have to modify his "slurve" pitch, a combination of a slider and curve, because it puts a lot of stress on his arm. It was a pitch he used effectively to offset a 100 mph fastball that day in May he fanned 20 Houston Astros in just his fifth major league start. But Wood doesn't think his innings or pitches will be limited because of the problems he had at the end of last year. "We'll see how the spring goes. I've been throwing and everything feels great. I've even been airing it out a bit and have had no problems," he said. "I don't expect them to keep me from throwing a lot of innings. I got 160 last year so probably 10 or 15 more innings. I got to build up to that 200-inning mark," Wood said. Wood's off-season didn't include any major commercial endorsements, despite his increasing notoriety. He's still more comfortable keeping a low profile, one reason he turned down talk show invitations last season after his 20-strikeout game. He admits he's recognized more frequently in public now. He even has an extra locker stall in the Cubs' spring clubhouse to accommodate large boxes of fan mail.

Wood also says he's not given much thought to how much money he may be able to command someday. "I'm not a 'this is what I need or this is what I demand' type guy. Whatever I get, that's what I deserve," Wood said, adding he'll allow his agents handle his financial affairs. Wood did buy a home in the Phoenix area this winter and has been spending time getting it in shape. Just like his body. Now he just wants to pitch and let that answer all the questions about his arm. "I was in great shape a couple of weeks ago. I'm coming in probably a little under what I weighed in last spring," said the 6-foot-5, 230-pound right-hander, who began last season in Triple-A. "I'm more excited that I am nervous," he said. "Last year I was just more nervous."

1.5 seconds remaining, the chant continued. "I thought the chant was unsportsmanlike," junior Jacob Jaacks said. "But I think we got the last laugh with the outcome. We got the last chant with our win." Illinois (11-16, 3-14 Big Ten) has lost all hope of any postseason tournaments. After spoiling Northwestern's (14-9, 6-7) NCAA chances with a win last week, the Fighting Illini were hoping to do the same with Iowa (17-7, 8-6). But with eight wins in the conference and two games remaining, the Hawkeyes are confident they will send Davis out with another NCAA Tournament appearance. "Everybody's telling me we're in, so I'll just take that as we're in," Kent McCausland said. "I just don't want to count my eggs before they hatch, though."

McCausland led Iowa with a season-high 18 points. And senior Jess Settles returned to the Iowa lineup to score 16 after sitting out two games due to back pain. Overall, the Hawkeyes played well in their solid Big Ten victory. But the fans' chant may have overshadowed some of their glory. "I might think it's in bad taste, but I'd rather have the crowd saying things to me than ragging on my players," Davis said. "Unfortunately, my hearing is real good." Settles was booed whenever he entered or exited the game. But he came off the bench to sink the first three shots he took, and finished with 13 points in the first half. With 2:52 left in the half, the sixth-year senior picked up a bounce pass from Ryan Luhrsman and put down a two-handed dunk, giving Iowa a 32-31 lead. Settles landed on his back, but shook off the pain as he jogged to the other end of the court.

"I told my teammates, 'The old man's still got some hops,'" Settles said. In the second half, Iowa moved out to the perimeter. Seven minutes into the half, McCausland sank his first 3-pointer of the game. The lead bounced back and forth between the two teams until sophomore Dean Oliver began to find himself open. "We'd been pounding the ball inside all day," Oliver said. "And we got the defense sagging. I found room to get two (3-pointers) in." Oliver hit his first 3-pointer at the 7:10 mark to give Iowa a 58-56 lead. Less than 50 seconds later, he hit another. The Hawkeyes never trailed again. "We just couldn't score down the stretch," Illinois' Sergio McClain said. "When Oliver hit the two threes, it was a backbreaker." Oliver finished with 12 points, four assists and four turnovers. Koch had 13 points and two rebounds.

Illinois was led by freshman Damir Krupalija, who finished with a career-high 18 points. McClain had 14 points, four rebounds and four assists. Cory Bradford, Illinois' Big Ten Freshman of the Year candidate, scored 10 points, collected five assists and gave up four turnovers. "Cory seemed a little rushed," Illinois coach Lon Kruger said. "He didn't shoot the ball like he had been shooting it." Iowa freshman Joey Range, also a candidate for the rookie honor, did not start. According to Davis, Range missed some practice time due to academics. The freshman played 19 minutes and scored five points. Iowa will return to Carver-Hawkeye Arena on Tuesday night to face Northwestern. The game will be the team's last home appearance, and tip-off is scheduled for 6:35 p.m. DI sportswriter Megan Manfull can be reached at mmanfull@blue.weeg.uiowa.edu

Cornhuskers, who powered their way to a victory. The loss was Iowa's first dual meet loss this season as Nebraska posted the second-highest score in the nation. Former Canadian National Team member Jason Hardabura of Nebraska claimed the all-around title with a 58.125, while Strada posted a season-high 57.9 to finish second. Iowa sophomore Kevin Agnew posted a career-high 9.75 on the still rings for a victory, while Strada finished second on the same event at 9.725. deFreitas, as well as juniors Doug Jacobson and Barry Wilken, also contributed valuable points for the Hawkeyes. Despite the loss, Iowa posted its two highest scores of the year and did not look to drop very far in the national rankings, which come out later on tonight. "Overall, we are trying to build momentum for what is going to happen at the end of the year," team captain Adrian Johnston said. "Every meet is going to be like repairing the damages and hopefully we will be fine-tuned in time for the big meets." DI sportswriter Robert Yarborough can be reached at ryarboro@blue.weeg.uiowa.edu

184-pounder Lee Weber fell in at heavyweight and was pinned by Dave Anderton, practically ending the Hawkeyes chances for victory. At 125 pounds, Ben Kritsonis wrestled tough against defending national champion Teague Moore, dropping a 10-6 decision. "Ben just spent too much time on the bottom," Zalesky said. "When you get rode like that, it makes it really hard to come back." The marquee bout of the afternoon was expected to be No. 1 Eric Guerrero against No. 2 Eric Juergens, but Guerrero handled the Hawkeye sophomore fairly easily, notching a 10-2 major decision. "Juergens wrestled tough for the first three to four minutes," Zalesky said. "Then he started standing around and let Guerrero bring the match to him. It's really hard to win that way." Next up for the Hawkeyes is the defense of their Big Ten championship crown on March 6-7 in Ann Arbor, Mich. Iowa has won the past 25 Big Ten titles. Former champion Douglas eyeing Tyson once again

Douglas since he came into the ring overweight and out of shape in his first title defense, when Evander Holyfield took the title via third-round knockout. After that, Douglas retired, and ballooned to over 400 pounds, slipping into a diabetic coma. He returned to the gym to get his weight under control, then decided to resume his career. "I just need to keep working and bring the weight down," Douglas said. "The skill is still there and weight not a problem anymore. I am older, though, so I won't be able to be like I was in 1990 at 231. I'll be more comfortable at 241 — that's probably the best weight for me." Douglas plans to continue his career in the ring, working to put himself in a position for a rematch with the man he took the title from. "You never know," Douglas said. "They're supposed to be releasing (Tyson) to fight, so we'll have to see what happens. As long as I feel good about what I'm doing and my health is fine, I may go until I'm 50." On the undercard, Mid-American Boxing Association Heavyweight Champion, "Country

Boy" Troy Weida defended his title with a TKO over Tim Burgoon. Weida put the challenger down four times before the referee stepped in and called a halt at 1:25 of the third. Former amateur star "Catfish" Tony Abbey made his professional debut 12 years after walking away from the sport in 1984 by outpointing Kenny Brown. All three judges saw the fight 40-36 for the 31-year-old Abbey. "I was a little rusty, but after 12 years off, I think I did pretty good," Abbey said. "I'm ready for the next one. This was a dream, and I can't stop here." In what may have been the fight of the night, Ray "The Rat" Domenge took a controversial split decision over "The Mexican Assassin" Jesse Aquino. Aquino (10-2-1) dominated the early rounds with body punching, but became more and more hittable as the fight went on. "I thought it was my fight," Aquino said. "I shouldn't have left it in the hands of the judges." The Daily Iowan scorecard had the bout scored a draw, 57-57. Also on the card, Ira Humm KO'd Robert Johnson at 1:50 of the first, and Rob Calloway scored a first round knockout over Shawn Clarkson at 2:47. LOS ANGELES — All week, Ernie Els called Tiger Woods and David Duval the best players in the world. Then he went out and beat them and everybody else in the Nissan Open.

Els shot his second consecutive 3-under-par 68 Sunday despite bogeying two of the last three holes. He held off Woods and Ted Tryba, both of whom bogeyed No. 18, and Davis Love III to win by two strokes.

Els finished at 14-under-par 270 as swirling breezes off the Pacific kicked up in the afternoon at Riviera Country Club, which yielded a course-record 61 to Tryba a day earlier.

Els gave Woods and Tryba a chance to catch him when his 4-foot par putt slid past the cup on No. 18. He then watched anxiously as the final group — Woods, Tryba and Love — finished.

Love parred the last hole, but Woods and Tryba, who needed birdies to force a playoff, had bogeys.

IOWA TRACK AND FIELD

Hawkeye men start fast, finish slow

By Matt Bowen
The Daily Iowan

After finishing the first day of competition in second place at the Big Ten indoor championships, the Iowa men's track and field team plummeted to seventh place in the final standings Sunday.

Michigan State won the meet with 107 points, followed by Illinois at 89 and Minnesota with 83. The Hawkeyes' score of 68 put them in the seventh spot.

Bashir Yamini was once again a bright spot for the Hawkeyes, as he was the only Iowa athlete to win an event. He won the long jump title for the third year in a row with a jump of 25-6.

He also added a third-place finish in the 200-meter dash with a time of 21.59 and was a member of the 4x400 relay team (Tim Dodge, Kurt Felix and Tony Branch were the others), which took third at 3:15.23.

Sophomore Arno van der Westhuizen was impressive in the shot put, placing second with a throw of 58-0. Teammate Jeremy Allen finished fourth at 57-4, and also took third in the weight throw with a distance of 60-10.

Iowa sprinters Felix and Branch performed solidly in the 60-meter dash. Felix came in third at 6.82, followed by Branch, who took sixth at 6.84. Dodge took sixth in the 400-meter dash with a time of 49.71.

Senior Jim Donovan took the third spot in the 800-meter run, while senior distance runner Stetson Steele finished sixth in the 5,000-meter run at 14:22.06 to round out the top finishers for the Hawkeyes.

Up next for the Hawkeyes is the NCAA qualifying meet in Ames on Friday.

Women finish ninth at Big Ten Championships

By Todd Heffernan
The Daily Iowan

The Iowa women's track team finished ninth out of nine teams for the second consecutive year at the Big Ten Indoor Championships in Columbus, Ohio. The Hawkeyes scored 14 points for the weekend.

Michigan won the Big Ten Championship for the second straight season, although they had to rally. Purdue led after Saturday's events with 49 points, but eventually finished second with 109 points.

Seniors Paula Ruen and Ruqayya Raheem made the 60-meter hurdles finals Saturday by finishing in the top eight in the semifinals. Ruen finished fourth in the 60-meter hurdles, finishing in 8.67 seconds. Ohio State sophomore Donica Merriman won the 60-meter hurdles with a provisional NCAA-qualifying time of 8.37. It was Merriman's second straight Big Ten title in the 60-meter hurdles.

Sophomore Gina Shannon scored the first points for the Hawkeyes on Saturday with a seventh-place finish in the pole vault. Shannon cleared 9-6 1/2 feet on Saturday for the Hawkeyes' only two points of the day. Sophomore Kacey Childs finished 14th in the pentathlon and sophomore Mandy Beck finished 16th in the shot put.

Junior Lakeya Boatright just missed making the finals of two events Saturday. Boatright finished ninth in the 200-meter dash and barely missed the cut for the 60-meter dash. The top eight for each event qualified for the finals.

Freshman Anna Shearer had a good showing at the Big Tens, making the finals of the 800-meter run with a time of 2:14.42.

The Hawkeyes end their indoor season with the Iowa State Last Chance this Friday in Ames.

IOWA WOMEN'S TENNIS

Hawks split on road trip

By Lisa Colonna
The Daily Iowan

The Iowa women's tennis team finished its first road trip of the season with a 1-1 record. The Hawkeyes are now 5-2 overall.

Friday, the Hawkeyes started off the weekend with a 5-4 win at Tulane. Iowa claimed one of three doubles matches, with the team of sophomore Erica Johnson and freshman Toni Neykova taking an 8-5 victory in the No. 3 position.

Iowa also won four of six singles matches, with juniors Natalya Dawaf and Shera Wiegler and seniors Emily Bampton and Erin Wolverson coming away with victories.

"We didn't play great on Friday, and part of the problem was that we were playing outside," coach Paul Wardlaw said. "The courts were so much slower (than indoor courts) and we had a tough time adjusting."

"We should have lost because of how we played, but there were some close singles match scores and tie-breakers. We figured out how to win."

Sunday, the team traveled to No. 19 South Alabama, where the Hawkeyes were defeated, 6-3. Iowa's No. 2 doubles team of Dawaf and Bampton won its match, 9-7, claiming the Hawkeyes' second doubles point of the weekend.

Iowa won two of six singles matches with No. 3 Wiegler and No. 5 Johnson defeating their opponents. South Alabama's Martina Ondrejckova defeated No. 1 Neykova, 4-6, 7-5, 6-4, handing Neykova only her second loss of the spring season. She is now 5-2 overall.

"We let a couple of matches slip away, but we showed that we can play with teams in the top 20," Wardlaw said.

Overall, Wardlaw was pleased with the team's first road trip.

"It was good to get outside," Wardlaw said. "We were definitely tested, but this gave us a good idea where we are. We showed that we can play."

The Hawkeyes travel to Milwaukee on Feb. 26-27 to take on Marquette and Alabama-Birmingham.

Top official unsure about future of IOC

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (AP) — A top official of the U.S. Olympic Committee questions whether the IOC and its embattled leader can deal with the worst scandal in the history of the games.

USOC executive director Dick Schultz said the International Olympic Committee may be unable to reform its clubby system when it meets next month.

"It's a wait-and-see thing," Schultz said, when asked if he had faith the IOC could repair the unprecedented problems that threaten the fate of the games and the multi-billion-dollar empire they have created.

An ethics report on the bribery scandal surrounding Salt Lake City's successful quest for the 2002 Winter Games identified 24 IOC members — a fifth of the membership — who benefited from $1.2 million in cash, travel, medical care and other improper inducements from Utah bidders.

Nine members have resigned or been expelled. The IOC will hold a special session in Lausanne, Switzerland, March 17-18 to endorse the expulsions and consider reforms.

Those under investigation include one of the most powerful leaders of international sports — Kim Un-yong, an IOC executive board member from South Korea and president of the international confederation of Olympic sports bodies.

Trinidad may soon face De La Hoya

There are obstacles to such a match, and one of them could be Trinidad's promoter, Don King.

By Ed Schuyler Jr.
Associated Press

NEW YORK — While Pernell Whitaker was en route to a hospital with a busted jaw, the talk back at Madison Square Garden was about Felix Trinidad fighting Oscar De La Hoya.

"If Don King as a promoter wants to promote that fight, I as a fighter want to knock him out," Trinidad said Saturday after his one-sided decision over Whitaker in defense of the IBF welterweight title.

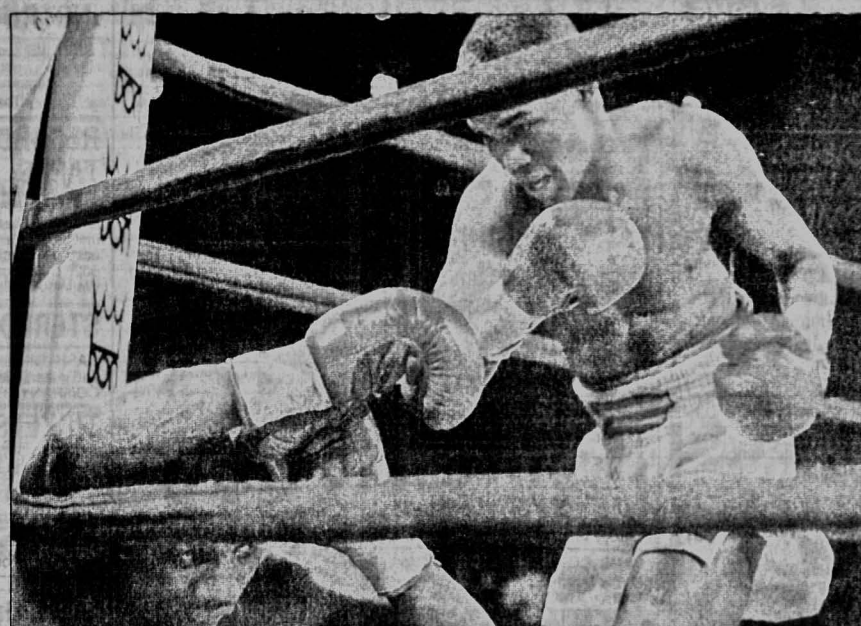

Whitaker, a former champion in four weight classes, is 35 and has lost to both Trinidad and De La Hoya. However, he said the latest loss and injury will not keep him from continuing his career.

Whitaker underwent surgery for a fractured right jaw just before dawn Sunday in St. Vincent's Hospital, according to Donald Tremblay, a spokesman for Main Events, Whitaker's promoter. His jaw was not wired and he is able to talk.

Trainer Lou Duva said he thought Whitaker was hurt when he was hit by an elbow in the sixth round.

Early Sunday, King was bellowing about getting Trinidad a shot at De La Hoya, who kept the WBC welterweight title on a split decision over Ike Quartey on Feb. 6.

First, Trinidad is to make a mandatory defense against Vincent Pettway in May, and De La Hoya is to make a mandatory defense against Oba Carr in May or June.

Bob Arum, who with Oscar De La Hoya Enterprises promotes De La Hoya, has reserved a Sept. 18 date for a pay-per-view fight between the two unbeaten champions. He reportedly has offered $8 million to Trinidad. De La Hoya, easily the biggest attraction outside the heavyweight division, would get more.

Of course, there are obstacles to such a match, and one of them could be King.

Trinidad and Evander Holyfield, the WBA-IBF heavyweight champion, are the two jewels in King's crown. Should Holyfield lose to WBC champion Lennox Lewis on March 13, King could be reluctant to let Trinidad, with whom he has a multiyear contract, fight De La Hoya, who has a deal with HBO and TVKO, his pay-per-view arm. Trinidad, of Puerto Rico, has no deal with HBO or Showtime, but King has a deal with Showtime, and that could present a problem.

De La Hoya wants to remain a welterweight for now. Trinidad, who has trouble getting down to the 147-pound limit, said he would be willing to fight at that weight.

Immediately after his loss, Whitaker said, "Trinidad is better than De La Hoya."

When Whitaker lost the WBC title on a split decision to De La Hoya, however, on April 12, 1997, it was his fourth fight in a year. On Saturday night, he was fighting for the first time in 16 months, and he spent time in drug and alcohol rehabilitation during the layoff.

Whitaker's performances against Trinidad and De La Hoya will help fuel arguments that will add to the fight's attractiveness, especially if it does happen this year.

NASCAR WINSTON CUP

After Gordon's exit, Martin finds a way

Mark Martin led the final 36 laps Sunday at Rockingham, ending Jeff Gordon's three-race winning streak.

By Mike Harris
Associated Press

ROCKINGHAM, N.C. — On a day when Jeff Gordon failed to finish, Mark Martin offered evidence he is ready to give the two-time defending Winston Cup champion a serious challenge for the title.

Martin pulled away from the field late in the Dura-Lube/Big Kmart 400 at North Carolina Speedway, beating perennial Rockingham runner-up Dale Jarrett to the finish line by about 12 car-lengths Sunday.

After Gordon's engine blew with a big puff of black smoke on the 311th of 393 laps, the battle fell to Martin, Jarrett, Jeff Burton and Bobby Labonte.

Martin, a distant runner-up to Gordon in last year's points race, took control after his Roush Racing crew moved him from second to first during a yellow-flag pit stop on lap 357.

"We adjusted on the car all day, and got better and better and better," Martin said. "They put me in the lead with four new tires, with a fast setup and, heck, that was what we needed."

A series of late caution flags forced Martin to repeatedly defend his lead on restarts, but each time the green flag waved, he was able to drive his No. 6 Ford Taurus away from the pack.

The last of six yellow flags came out on lap 379, when Ernie Irvan slammed into the wall between turns three and four on the 1.017-mile oval.

Jarrett, second in six of the last seven races at Rockingham, tried hard to stay with Martin on the restart on lap 395. But Martin pulled steadily away, and Jarrett barely fought off Bobby Labonte in the final laps to retain second.

The victory was the 30th of Martin's career. He won $104,635 while averaging 120.750 mph.

"My car was just better on the throttle," Jarrett said. "It seems like we have second place down pat. We just can't get to victory lane here."

Burton, Martin's teammate, led eight times for a race-high 227 laps. But he fell from first to third on the same pit sequence when Martin took the lead. Burton wound up fourth, followed by Jeremy Mayfield.

"We lost our track position, and that hurt us some," Burton said. "We've got to get a little better on me making the calls on what to do with the chassis. We were tighter at the end than we had been all day."

Martin felt fortunate to beat him. "I kind of hate it for Jeff Burton," he said. "He was strong all day; stronger than we were."

But Martin, who led five times for 50 laps, including the final 36, got his car right when it counted the most — at the end.

Mike Skinner, fourth in Daytona and sixth at The Rock, holds a 29-point lead over 10th-place Rusty Wallace. Gordon wound up 39th on Sunday and fell to 11th — trailing Skinner by 84 points after two of 34 races. Martin, caught up in a crash in Daytona, moved to eighth in the standings, 65 points behind.

Mets, Indians show interest in Wells

There's no telling how long David Wells will stick around once he reports to the Toronto Blue Jays.

Wells took a weekend break from spring training, having left the New York Yankees' camp in tears after they traded him in a three-player package for Roger Clemens.

SPRING TRAINING BRIEF

Wells does not seem thrilled at the prospect of pitching for his old team, and already a couple of clubs — the New York Mets and Cleveland Indians — appear eager to provide him a new home.

"We did talk to the Blue Jays the day of the trade and (assistant general manager) Omar Minaya spoke with them the second day," Mets GM Steve Phillips said Sunday at Port St. Lucie, Fla.

"But right now he's part of their staff and they're not trading him," Phillips said.

Phillips said he understood the Indians, still in search of an ace, had also inquired about Wells.

The Mets like their projected rotation of Al Leiter, Rick Reed, Bobby Jones, Masato Yoshii and Hideo Nomo, though that could change.

SPORTS

NBA ROUNDUP

Pippen ejected in Houston loss

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — Nick Anderson and Darrell Armstrong each scored 19 points and Penny Hardaway had 16 points and 11 assists as the Orlando Magic handed the Houston Rockets their third loss in four games, 109-83.

Hakeem Olajuwon led the Rockets with 21 points and 10 rebounds. Scottie Pippen had 19 points, but was ejected during a scoreless second half in which he missed all four of his shots and drew two technicals in verbal exchanges with the officials.

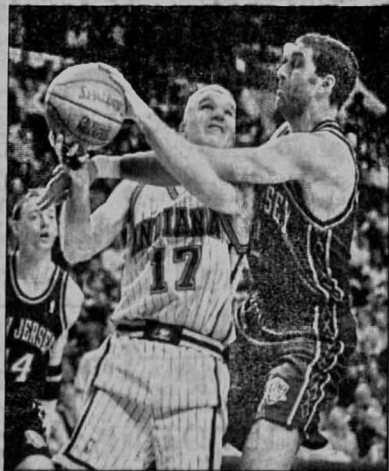

Raptors 102, Grizzlies 87
TORONTO — Vince Carter scored 27 points, including five high-flying dunks, to lead the Toronto Raptors over the Vancouver Grizzlies at the new Air Canada Center.

Kevin Willis added 17 points and 15 rebounds, Doug Christie scored 17, and Charles Oakley added 12 points, including some key jumpers down the stretch. Shareef Abdur-Rahim led the Grizzlies with 23 points.

Timberwolves 102, Kings 90
MINNEAPOLIS — Joe Smith scored a season-high 30 points and Stephen Marbury directed the Minnesota Timberwolves' offense to its third consecutive 100-point game in a victory over the Sacramento Kings.

Spurs 85, Pistons 84
SAN ANTONIO — Tim Duncan scored 17 points and grabbed 14 rebounds to lead the San Antonio Spurs over the cold-shooting Detroit Pistons.

Wizards 86, Celtics 75
WASHINGTON — Mitch Richmond scored 25 points and Rod Strickland had 20 points, nine rebounds and nine assists as the Washington Wizards beat the Boston Celtics 86-75.

Michael Conroy/Associated Press
Indiana guard Chris Mullin (17) is fouled by New Jersey center Rony Seikaly in Indianapolis on Sunday.

Knicks 79, Bulls 63
NEW YORK — In their only network television appearance of the season, the Chicago Bulls tied their franchise record for fewest points in a game as they lost to New York.

NBC televised the game to 21 percent of the country, and the other 79 percent should consider themselves fortunate for being spared from the spectacle of seeing the three-time defending champions thoroughly embarrassed.

Indiana 80, New Jersey 79
INDIANAPOLIS — Mark Jackson's short driving jumper over an outstretched Jayson Williams with 0.6 seconds left lifted the Indiana Pacers to an 80-79 victory over the New Jersey Nets.

The game-winning basket was Jackson's only two points of the game. Taking the inbound pass from Chris Mullin with 4.1 seconds left, Jackson got a step on Eric Murdock. Jackson made contact with Keith Van Horn, who fell to the floor. But no charging foul was called as the 9-footer went through the net.

SuperSonics 92, Lakers 89
SEATTLE — Gary Payton scored 26 points and Olden Polynice had 15 points and a season-high 17 rebounds to lead Seattle over the Los Angeles Lakers.

The Sonics bounced back after a 30-point loss in Utah Saturday and beat a Lakers team that eliminated them from the NBA playoffs last season, costing coach George Karl his job.

BIG TEN MEN'S BASKETBALL ROUNDUP

Michigan State beats Badgers, wins title outright

By Harry Atkins
Associated Press

EAST LANSING, Mich. — A big, hand-lettered sign in the Michigan State student section said it all: "Ain't no 'co-' this year!"

This time, the Spartans have the Big Ten championship all to themselves.

Michigan State clinched the conference regular season crown as Morris Peterson scored 13 points Sunday in a 56-51 win against No. 13 Wisconsin, stretching the Spartans' winning streak to 14 games.

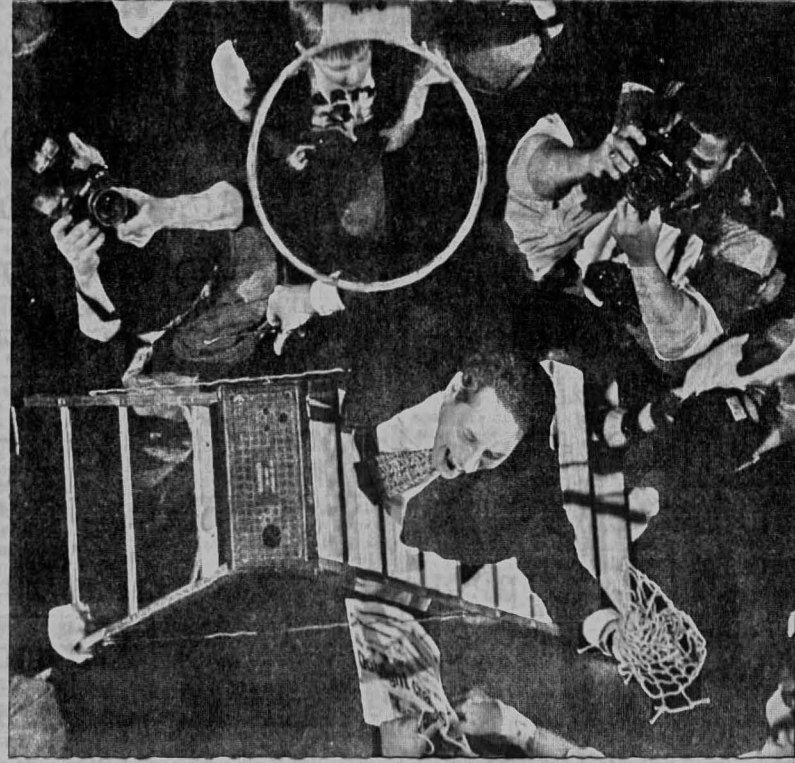

"They're a very good team," Wisconsin coach Dick Bennett said. "In a league that's really solid, Michigan State is as worthy a champion as you can have. We made them play half-court and they were good enough to beat us."

It was the first outright title since 1990 for the fourth-ranked Spartans (25-4, 14-1), who were forced to share the conference crown with Illinois after losing the last game of the season to Purdue in 1998.

"This feels good," said Antonio Smith, whose 11 rebounds helped the Spartans to a 39-19 edge on the boards. "We weren't satisfied last year, you know. We had to go out there and accept a trophy after just being beaten."

Not this time.

Al Goldis/Associated Press
Michigan State coach Tom Izzo holds up the net after cutting it down to celebrate winning the Big Ten championship Sunday in East Lansing, Mich.

When the final buzzer sounded, Michigan State players jumped and hugged while hundreds of students in green "Izzone" T-shirts rushed onto the floor at Breslin Center. A metal ladder was set up under the south basket and each player, starting with the three seniors, took turns in cutting down the net.

"I've never been on a championship team in my life," Peterson said. "That emotion was unbelievable. It was just overwhelming to me. And I'm so happy for coach. This was all his plan."

The 14-game winning streak is a modern record (post World War II).

The school's overall record for consecutive wins is 15, set in 1930. "These are my seniors," Spartans' coach Tom Izzo said. "These were the first kids I recruited after I became coach. To them, I will be eternally grateful."

No. 19 Indiana 73, Michigan 71
BLOOMINGTON, Ind. — Luke Recker hit 22 of 25 free throws and finished with 24 points as Indiana went nearly 13 minutes without a field goal to defeat Michigan 73-71 Sunday.

Indiana (20-9, 7-7 Big Ten) capitalized on foul problems of the Wolverines (10-17, 4-10) by outscoring them 32-12 from the line.

Recker, a 71 percent foul shooter this season, had a streak of 20 consecutive free throws snapped on his 15th attempt Sunday.

"I've been trying to work extra hard on my free throws. I was in a slump," said Recker, who had made only 7-of-28 before beginning his streak.

Larry Richardson set a career high for the second consecutive game with 18 points and 12 rebounds for the Hoosiers.

Penn St. 78, No. 17 Purdue 70
WEST LAFAYETTE, Ind. — Dan Earl had 18 points and reserve Greg Grays scored 14, including four 3-pointers, as Penn State snapped its six-game losing streak by defeating No. 17 Purdue 78-70 Saturday.

Grays did his damage in the first half, scoring 11 points when the Nittany Lions (11-13, 3-12 Big Ten) took the lead for good.

Penn State looked anything like a team that had dropped 10 of its previous 11 games as they were torrid from long range.

No. 11 Ohio St. 59, Northwestern 49
COLUMBUS, Ohio — Reserve Neshawn Coleman scored a season-high 16 points and Scoonie Penn had 19 and spurred two second-half surges as 11th-ranked Ohio State outmuscled Northwestern 59-49 Saturday.

Northwestern center Evan Eschmeyer, averaging 20.2 points and 11 rebounds a game, was crowded by defenders all day and finished with a season-low 10 points before fouling out in the final minute.

NHL ROUNDUP

Dallas, Colorado battle to tie

DALLAS (AP) — Goaltenders Patrick Roy of the Colorado Avalanche and Ed Belfour of the Dallas Stars sparked as two of the elite teams in the NHL played to a 1-1 tie Sunday.

The Avalanche's Chris Drury and the Stars' Brett Hull were the only players to find the net.

Dallas, seeking revenge for a loss two weeks ago in Reunion Arena to Colorado, had to settle for the tie because of the brilliant Roy.

Roy stopped 23 shots, including two in overtime as Dallas swarmed the Avalanche net but couldn't connect. Roy turned back shots by Pat Verbeek and Derian Hatcher in overtime. Belfour turned away 17 shots, none in overtime.

The game matched Pacific Division-leading Dallas, which started the day with the best record in the league, against Northwest Division-leading Colorado.

Red Wings 4, Sabres 4
BUFFALO, N.Y. — Vyacheslav Kozlov's hat-trick goal in the third period gave the Detroit Red Wings a tie with the Buffalo Sabres.

It was the third career hat trick for Kozlov, who accounted for the first goal ever scored in Marine Midland Arena in October 1996.

Kozlov's shot from the top of the faceoff circle midway through the third period deflected in off defenseman James Patrick's stick and allowed Kozlov to finish with a goal in each period.

Bruins 6, Blackhawks 3
CHICAGO — Dmitri Khristich scored three goals as the Boston Bruins beat the Chicago Blackhawks and snapped a three-game losing streak.

Ray Bourque, Sergei Samsonov and rookie Cameron Mann, who had his first NHL goal, also scored for Boston.

The Bruins survived a scare in this one. They led 4-0 early in the second period before goals by Alex Zhamnov, Chris Chelios and Eric Daze cut the Bruins' advantage to 4-3 after 40 minutes and chased goaltender Rob Tallas.

Hurricanes 4, Islanders 1
GREENSBORO, N.C. — Jeff O'Neill scored for the second time in as many days since sitting out seven games with a neck injury and the Carolina Hurricanes defeated the New York Islanders.

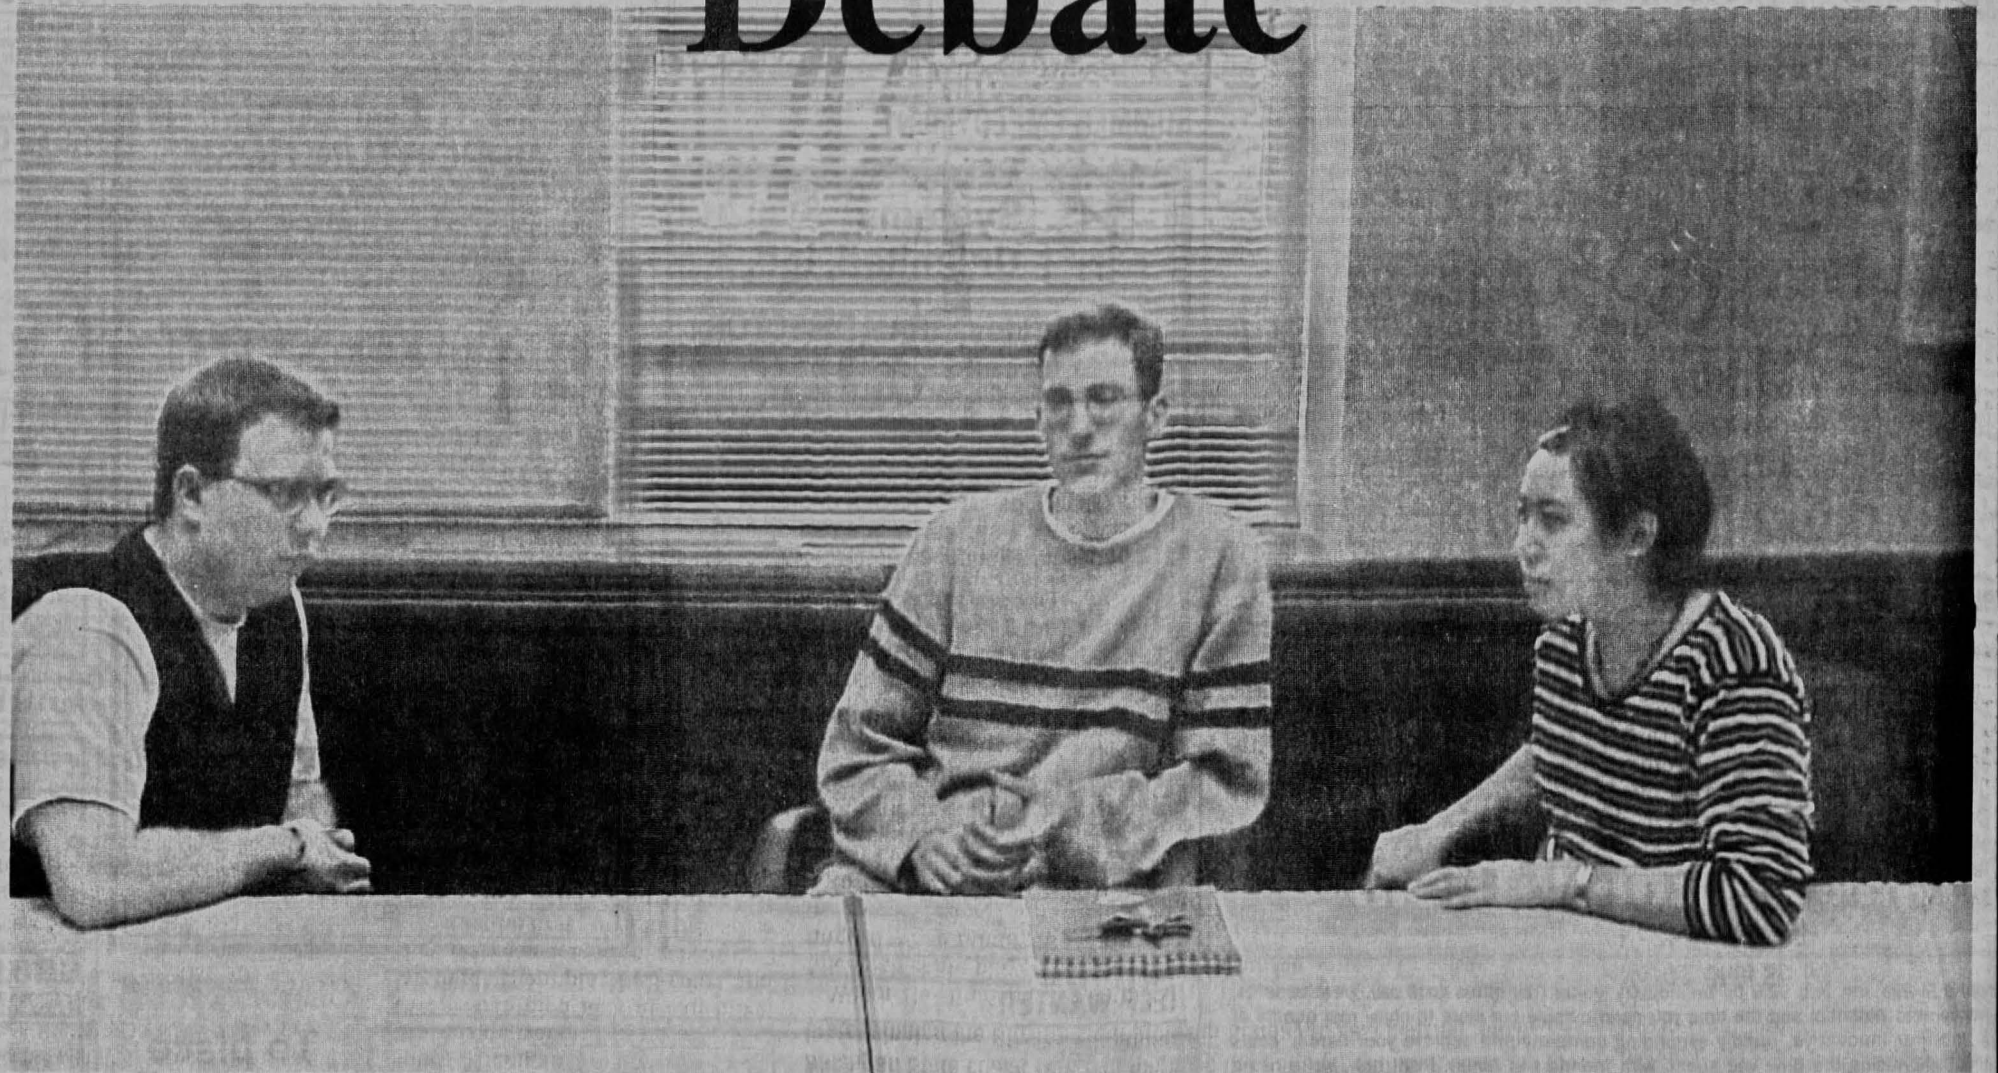

O'Neill's goal helped Carolina score three times in the opening 18 minutes, the team's biggest first-period outburst in more than six weeks.

Rangers 2, Oilers 1, OT
EDMONTON, Alberta — Eric Lacroix scored his first goal of the season 45 seconds into overtime to lift the New York Rangers over the Edmonton Oilers.

Rangers goaltender Mike Richter stopped 39 shots, many from close range.

Flyers 2, Penguins 1
PHILADELPHIA — Eric Lindros scored his 34th goal and John LeClair had two assists as the Philadelphia Flyers snapped out of their February funk with a victory over the Pittsburgh Penguins.

Presidential and Vice Presidential Candidate Debate

The University of Iowa Student Government will sponsor a debate for the five tickets vying for the offices of University of Iowa Student Government President and Vice President. A five member panel composed of student leaders will ask questions concerning various issues facing the prospective tickets. An open question period will follow, time permitting.

Please plan to attend this important debate on Tuesday February 23 in the 2nd Floor Ballroom of the Iowa Memorial Union. Be there when the candidates ACTUALLY say what they said and judge for yourself whether they mean what they later will have meant. Help determine which candidate will represent the University of Iowa Student Body.

For more information on University of Iowa Student Government sponsored programs and events, log on to our web site:
