Hospital union reaches accord

For the patient's sake, the two parties, nearly avoiding arbitration, will now wait for today's ratification vote by union membership.

By Bill Reardon

After nearly five months of bargaining, the United Hospital of Tiffin and the nurses' bargaining unit, represented by the Ohio Nurses Association, have reached a tentative agreement.

The agreement establishes a two-year contract and resolves their differences over a number of issues, including wages, benefits, and working conditions.

The hospital's top executive, and the nurses association believe that the contract will be beneficial for both parties.

The agreement will now be submitted to the nurses for ratification. It is expected that the vote will take place on Wednesday.

USG campaigns are definitely in the money

The student government presidential candidates put their money where their mouths are.

Money talks. Students today. "That's why every one of this year's USG presidential candidates are so willing to break the bank or get their message heard," said one candidate.

The candidates have been spending lavishly on posters, yard signs, and other campaign materials.

"I think that this will be a great opportunity for us to get our message across," said another candidate.

UI literary magazine 100 words temporally down to zero

Staff troubles have led the magazine's suspended publication until at least July 1.

By Mike Sandmeier

In the world of literary magazine publishing, even the most respected, unique publications have their ups and downs. This is especially true for The Daily Iowan.

The UI International Writing Program magazine, 300 words, will suspend publication until midsemester because of staffing difficulties, according to program director Eugenewantz.

WANTZ, who has been at the magazine for over five years and the department of two editors to fill other positions at the magazine, said it is a money well spent. "With a spend of $10,000 on the publishing and $20,000 on the management, we are able to make a difference," said WANTZ.

The magazine will return once restructuring is complete.

In a recent interview, Madeleine Albright has said that the security of the nation is her top priority.

"I have every reason to believe that the security of the nation is at stake," said Albright.

The threat of terrorism and the ongoing talks with North Korea have put the security of the nation at risk.

"We have to be prepared for any eventuality," said Albright.

She also mentioned the importance of international cooperation in dealing with these issues.

"We need to work together with our international partners to ensure the safety of our nation," she said.

The discussions are ongoing, and the USG will continue to monitor the situation closely.

Five studies report cancer breakthrough

- A combination of chemotherapy and radiation calls the death risk from cervical cancer half.

By Ronald A. Huber

BOSTON — In the first break- through in cancer therapy in more than a decade, researchers said Monday they had found that adding chemotherapy to radiation appears to reduce the risk of a deadly form of cancer.

In five studies, published in The New England Journal of Medicine, the National Cancer Institute in Bethesda, Md., and the University of California in San Francisco, said that a combination of chemotherapy and radiation treatment reduced the risk of death from cervical cancer by about 50 percent.

The studies, all sponsored by the National Cancer Institute, involved the use of drugs called chemotherapy and radiation together with surgery. The researchers said the combination was much more effective than either treatment alone.

"We think the data are compelling that this combination of treatment would improve the survival of women treated overall and in every case," said Dr. Edward G. Egan, head of the cancer treatment and therapy evaluation program.

One of the studies published in the journal last June because he was black.

William King Jr. was sentenced to life in prison for the murder of James Byrd Jr., who was hanged from a chain in a rural Texas county.

Byrd, 41, was attempting to relieve the excruciating pain in his legs, which were chained to a concrete pipe in a ditch.

His family and friends have said they believe Byrd was killed because he was black.

The family's attorney, Jerry F. Morgan, said he was disappointed with the verdict but would appeal if necessary.

Racial, ethnic tensions flare up in Los Angeles-area schools

- LOS ANGELES — Early this month, principals at a high school in the mostly Latino elementary school district were warning that friction among students was increasing.

"It's getting to be a very tense environment," said Jimmie B. Smith, principal of Hamilton High School in the Los Angeles Unified School District. "We don't have anything more to do than to keep an eye on it."

The tension has been simmering among teachers, parents and students, and it has reached a boiling point in recent weeks.

In one incident, a group of students at Hamilton High School reportedly threatened to beat up another student because he was wearing a T-shirt with a picture of the national flag.

According to Smith, the incident occurred on campus after school hours.

"We have had some incidents where students have been threatened," he said. "But we haven't had any that have resulted in any real conflict."

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina—As the blackouts continued, Argentina's fledgling newspaper La Nación decided to print its pages in black and white, using only red ink for its headline. The move, which was announced by the nation's president, was aimed at reducing the need for color reproduction and saving paper.

"We've been facing a lot of problems with the electricity grid since the power plants were shut down," said President Carlos Menem. "We're trying to do our part to help the situation." The president also announced plans to build new power plants and increase the country's oil production.

"A Clinton candidacy, part II

Give it a run, Hilary Rodham Clinton. Last week, she announced she would "give it a run," and we won’t blame the Sunflower State from crossing our path to grab the grabs because Democrat David Patrick Murdock is writing.

Example A in Hawkeye Nation’s acquiescence may remind me of the time Richard Leiby, a Clinton supporter, said, "I want to experience things - just a little weird. Not all the way weird. We can snap up all the good bartending jobs, too."

A Clinton candidacy, part II is interesting to watch? Hillary Rodham Clinton should run for the Senate. She has a platform from which to advocate her pet issues. The two-party system will not go all the way. We can see the bigger picture. Instead of officials scratching their heads over how to improve the place to do it.

"The problem with the Mideast peace process is over the Hawkeye State and the Iowa Senate, I would be encouraged to see Clinton run. Clinton is a low-profile person and women should be involved in politics.

"Rodham Clinton has a beautiful, even seen it. She will not give tests."

To the Ed: I am against and embarrassed with the Ul response to the alleged rape that took place at Mfahome last week. I feel socialized into an institution that does not think of rape as normal. Christians becoming politically active to heal social ills

The religious convictions of the Christian right are misconstrued and misunderstood by those who don't know what Christians in politics seek. Christians have become politically active, a movement best exemplified by the Christian Coalition's response to secularization of society and hostility towards religion displayed prominently in our culture and media. This move is a message to remove the religious foundation of our nation—both the moral and religious basis of our constitutional system—on which many of our laws and moral standards are based.

Christianity is viewed as a social problem that who deserve to have those rights. On the contrary, Christians are the true moral, religious, and political foundation of our nation. The Constitution and Bill of Rights were written to protect the religious freedom of all, especially Christians. The separation of church and state is a myth. Christians have always been the moral backbone of America, providing the nation with a strong sense of morality and values.

For example, the idea of a "right to privacy" was not big enough. Behavior like abortion, homosexuality, and other acts were condoned by the courts. Now, the courts are trying to enact the moral standards of the religious community. These standards are based on the Ten Commandments and the Bible, and they are clear and unambiguous.

Some religious leaders have been vocal in their opposition to abortion, homosexuality, and other acts. They believe that these acts are immoral and should be punished. They also believe that the courts should enforce these standards. This is why many Christians are politically active, seeking to have the moral and religious basis of our nation restored.

Columnist doesn't understand gays

In the Editor:

The columnist's most recent column about gay rights is based on a gross misunderstanding of the human rights issue. It is not a matter of "rights" vs. "wrong". It is not a matter of "do you have the right to do something?" vs. "is it wrong to do something?". It is a matter of whether or not the government should interfere in the lives of individuals.

University of Wyoming student who stabbed and left to die last year, was not even a student there. The column calls for the death penalty for homosexuals.

How can a law professor teach such a_Class of Education and Policy Studies at the University of Wyoming who was fired in 2001 for speaking out against the university's policy of firing homosexuals. The column calls for the death penalty for homosexuals.

OK, so getting an annual pelvic exam and Paps test isn't exactly your idea of fun...

In the Editor:

It's not always easy to be a woman. Between the annual pelvic exam and Paps test, it seems that every woman is constantly being reminded of her feminine side. But why does this have to be? Can't we just enjoy our lives without constantly being reminded of our physical health?

The truth is, these exams are important. They help to detect any potential health issues early, and they can save lives. So, while they may not be the most exciting part of your day, they are definitely worth it.

Let's all make a pact to make these exams a little less uncomfortable. Maybe we can all wear our favorite color underwear, or even bring a friend to keep us company during the appointment. It's all about the attitude, right?

Letter to the Editor

Finding fault with gun column

In the Editor:

I read your recent column on gun control with interest. While I agree that gun control is necessary, I think your article lacks some important points.

Firstly, your article implies that gun ownership is a right that should be protected at all costs. This is not the case. The Second Amendment was written to protect the rights of states to maintain their own militias, not to protect the rights of individuals to own guns.

Secondly, your article suggests that gun control measures would lead to a decrease in legitimate gun sales. This is not necessarily true. In countries with strict gun control laws, such as Australia and Japan, gun violence has significantly decreased.

Finally, your article does not address the issue of gun-related deaths among children. This is a serious problem that needs to be addressed.

Let's have a more responsible discussion about gun control that takes into account the needs of all Americans.

NEW YORK — Even though Greg Brown has been nominated for a Grammy Award, there's no way he's going to go anywhere near New York City. T"m less interested in the actual naming of the awards, really, than just being nominated," he said. The recording artist and folk singer is scheduled to attend the award ceremony in New York on Wednesday.

DR. TOM TO CLOSE OUT CARVER CAREER TONIGHT

By Megan Marshall

Finally, it's come down to one game.

There are no more questions about basketball tonight. Tom Davis' farewell at Iowa. After 200 losses to Great Western, 273 losses to the Hawkeyes, it all will be over.

If there is a perfect storm and a minimal victory performance, Davis will end his Hawkeye career against Northwestern, who previously was defeated by the Hawkeyes in the first game of the season.

Davis is scheduled tonight for 6:35 p.m., with Davis hoping to add one more victory to his career record of 101-41.

As always the Summer winds, Hawkeye fans will tail in the East to show Davis' last win.

As the Worm turns: Tearful Rodman closer to joining L.A.

Reveres Hill Cafe — There were tears. There was talk of a course. There was an audience. There was Yasmeen Davis and another Detroit Red Wings newscaster.

The audience and Davis — Reveres Hill Cafe — all happened to be the Rodman move closer to playing for the Los Angeles Lakers.

The team hopes to have in the near future of former champion in uniform to play. Davis is one of the most influential athletes who has made what his spot and career have given him back to.

"I had no presence on me at the Olympics because we were representing Canada, and it's the game world, that is basically like competing for the American basketball beat, definition of what it's supposed to be and was more than grateful to just be there."

The naval observer may not realize the importance the Hungarian national flag that drops the ball in the Washingon, D.C., 1999 Summer Olympics.

The flag is a constant reminder where the Hungarian team has come from, as well as his team's goal for getting the opportunity to take part in the 1996 Olympic Games.

In a world where athletes are seen as heroes, there are millions of people who define themselves as one of the humble athletes who has had what his spot has given back to him.

The Nightingales "I'm going to try and draw as much attention to the issue as I can," said Davis, who is well-known for her rustic "farm kids" image. "I was in such a bog that I don't even know when things are changing."

Rodman said the Lakers' attitude will improve if they start winning games. "All the guys want to be superstars, but they're just too busy focusing on winning games," he said.

That's when Davis first met her 20-year-old son, Jonny, and her son's friend, who lived in Colorado. Davis said she doesn't have a lot of time to spend with Jonny, but she took the opportunity to get some rest. She even had five spots to the Olympics that she was unable to fill.

The New York Dodgers will probably not win 116 games this season, but they have a better chance of winning the pennant this year than they did the last two seasons.

Delko said the Lakers would probably lose more games this season than they did last season, but he doesn't think they will be in the same race as the Dodgers. "If the Dodgers get three games, it will be tough," Delko said.

During his Junior Olympic Games, Strada trained with some of the best gymnasts in the world. He said the Olympics were the deciding factor, and it led to a spot on the men's national team. He also said he was able to learn from some of the best gymnasts in the world.
