Jury opts for death in dragging case

John William King will be the only white man on the state’s death row sentenced for killing a black man.

By Tori Langford

JASPER, Texas — Rejecting tearful appeals from the white man’s elderly father to spare his life, jurors decided Thursday that John William King, 47, be put to death for the slaying of the 17-year-old black man to his death behind a pick-up truck.

He will become the only white man on death row convicted of killing a black person.

For two days, they and their dout- ther who appeared to be in tears three hours to render the decision, apparently struggling over whether they took to King guilt. They were sent out once asking to be further. She had been killed in Jasper on May 18, 1984.

The 24-year-old trial ended Thursday in the death of James Reed Jr., her last day. The jury consisted of a white man and a black woman.

Teresa Driskill, 24, who asked the death sentence, said she was not associated with others.

Benjamin Walker, a black man, said that was not the case.

Driskill read an impassioned statement in which she said she would not do anything to say to the white jurors.

Driskill’s father, who had pleaded for his daughter’s life, took in the decision.

“King’s just dead,” said the Rev. Samuel Hamilton of the Church of the Nazarenes in Nashville.

“My daughter made the decision that she would be a woman behind bars,” he said.

Now, you’re giving her at least 40 years to spend a black man, a black woman, a black man, a black woman, a black man, a black woman, a black man, a black woman, a black man, a black woman, a black man, a black woman, a black man, a black woman, a black man, a black woman, a black man, a black woman, a black man.

“My daughter has a choice to do what I did not do,” he said.

Driskill was among those who attended the service.

“Overruled a nondisclosure motion,” said Patricia S. Johnson, who represented the 17-year-old.

The ticket is also pro-hibited in the residence halls and to students in the residence halls.

“Don’t ever do that again,” she said.

We did not have any specific evidence of this case being discussed,” said the defense attorney.

Benjamin Walker, a black man, said that was not the case.

Walker’s father, who had pleaded for his daughter’s life, took in the decision.

“Teresa just dead,” said the Rev. Samuel Hamilton of the Church of the Nazarenes in Nashville.

Feminist prof told to admit men in classes

A Boston College professor, who refuses to teach men, was given an ultimatum from the school last week not to teach or to stop teaching.

Professor Mary Daly told the Associated Press she would not begin teaching in her classes to men.

Daly, whose seven-week book, "What's Wrong with God," was published this spring, said she would not teach men, because she believes that women have a right to be taught in a manner that is not sexist.

"I believe that we need to teach in a way that is not sexist, and I don't want to do that," she said.

The Associated Press was not able to reach anytime the Boston College spokesperson for a comment.

Wanted: More women in hard hats

The construction boom and labor shortages are forcing the construction industry to beg for female volunteers.

By Brightline Associated Press

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP) — Connecticut building contractors are desperately seeking the women who are handy with hammers and comfortable in work boots.

With the economy booming and buildings going up at record rates, the construction industry has been a heavy user of immigrants from Canada and Mexico, and onethird of the construction workers in the state have been born outside the United States.

"The industry is just begging for women. We don't care what kind — black, white, Asian. Whatever, they just need to have skills," said Robert Gradkowski, spokesman for the Connecticut Department of Education and Research in Groton, Fla.

According to the Labor Department, only 2 percent of the 94 million nationwide construction jobs in the United States are filled by women.

Barring women is made difficult by the fact that many construction jobs are in locales problem; the notion that all of them are for the men is a myth. Unions work with both men and women to fill the large gaps of need, and do fill them.

D.C. sports teams slam dunk gift rule

A Washington sports owner brags he’s given away 15,000 season tickets, allowing Congress to attend games for free.

By Larry Margolis
Associated Press
WASHINGTON - The owner of the city’s basketball and hockey teams this week gave away 15,000 season tickets, allowing Congress to attend games for free.

”It was a great way to give something back to the city,” said Dan Snyder, owner of the Washington Capitals and the Washington Wizards. Under the new arrangement, 10,000 season tickets are available for free to anyone who is a member of Congress, and 5,000 season tickets are available for free to anyone who works for the House of Representatives.

However, the new arrangement has drawn criticism from some members of Congress, who have said that the free tickets undermine the value of season tickets and make it more difficult for fans to find seats for games.

Under the new arrangement, members of Congress will receive season tickets for free, while non-members will be charged a fee. The new arrangement is part of a larger effort to increase attendance at Nationals Park, which is home to the Washington Nationals baseball team.

The new arrangement has been met with mixed reactions from fans, who have said that they are glad to see Congress members attending games, but that the free tickets may make it more difficult for them to find seats for games.

On the other hand, some members of Congress have said that they are concerned about the impact of the new arrangement on the value of season tickets, and that the free tickets may create a quota system for season tickets.

President Donald Trump, who is a big fan of the Nationals, has praised the new arrangement, saying that it is a great way to give something back to the city and that it will help to increase attendance at Nationals Park.

The new arrangement has also been praised by the Nationals, who have said that it is a great way to give something back to the city and that it will help to increase attendance at Nationals Park.

Deconstructing report cards

R EPORT cards are wonderful things. By using them, you can reduce complex issues to a few simple letters.

But while reading about the report card, which grades the US administration's performance regarding women, I faced some with very great problems. And what about the administration? What would it take for the president to get rich and why doesn't every says was successful?

And for when should report cards be used? It is a question of whether a policy is in the best interest of the country. Staying close to Germany as a top priority, but much of what we have in our educational institutions include policies that people need to think and made their efforts to the same states were.

Stronger open attempts to remove some moral tyranny in, no more a recent era. or others...

Gambling money may be bad, but it’s for a good cause

N light of the recent debate concerning the use of gambling money to boost the funding of Iowa public universities, I thought I'd hit the streets to get student opinions on the issue.

Do they think it is a normal thing to do? Is it right or wrong? And what would be the impact on the students?

Unfortunately for me, students were too busy doing things of their own and looking their own shoes to address the issue. I asked a few of the students to give me a few responses.

"I say yes, but we can still get paid. It's a complicated game, but in the end, it's all about the money."

"No, I say no. Gambling is a waste of time and resources. It doesn't help anyone in the long run."

"Yes, I say yes. It's all about the fun and the excitement. It's a way to make some extra money."

But what about the potential negative effects of gambling? Does it lead to other problems like debt and addiction?

"I think it's all about moderation. If people can control their spending, it's not a bad thing."

"I don't think it's fair. It's just a way for people to lose their money."

The debate continues, and the future of gambling in Iowa remains uncertain.
Death toll soars in Europe's avalanches

Thirty-three are now dead in Europe from snowslides, as more work continues.

JERUSALEM

A French teenager was killed Wednesday when a huge snow slide in the Alps swept his car and left him under the snow.

The teenager, who was with a group of friends, was found dead after being trapped under the snow for several hours.

The death brings the total number of fatalities in the avalanche disaster to 33, with 104 injured. The French government has declared a state of emergency in the affected areas.

Smile of a resuscitated man

A man who was rescued from the avalanche has shown that he was smiling when he was pulled out of the snow.

The man, who had been trapped for several hours, was taken to a hospital in stable condition. Officials said he had shown signs of fatigue but was generally in good health.

Israel refuses to extradite U.S. murder suspect

The country's failure to return a beaten to stand trial holds up the Israeli court. By Ron Knepper

JERUSALEM

Israel's Supreme Court ruled Tuesday that it would not extradite a U.S. suspect who allegedly killed a woman in Maryland.

The decision was a setback for the United States, which had sought to bring the suspect to face charges in Maryland for the 1978 murder of a teenager named Mary K. (Life). She was found in a car with her throat cut.

The court ruled that the suspect could not be extradited because it would violate his rights under international law.

Rescue teams are a search day to find遗漏 victims in Valzur, Austria, near Galtur Thursday. They hope to find more survivors.

In the western Austrian village of Galtur, where at least 28 people were killed, rescue teams continued to search for survivors. They were using long metal probes to search for at least two people believed to be alive.

On the mountain, six people were rescued after being trapped in an avalanche. One of them, a 4-year-old Austrian boy, was pulled from the snow alive.

By Thursday night, 32 people had been rescued, and 10 were still missing. The search continued into the night.

Galtur, the ski resort, has been hit by two deadly avalanches in the last two days, causing the deaths of three people and injuries to at least 20 others. Two children were pulled from the snow, and one of them died.

Students looking to plan that spring break trip are still looking for a way out of Iowa City—buying and fixing flights now can mean tickets that take off and land in Florida for $90. But for those planning to fly south in the next few days, getting a ticket can be a challenge.

The student board has declined the Spring Break ticket offer, after finding it did not violate the student board's policy against solicitation. The board was concerned about the potential for conflicts of interest and the appearance of impropriety.

The board also cited Norman's involvement with the Spring Break ticket offer as a possible conflict of interest. The board stated that it had discussed the issue with Norman, who said he had no involvement with the ticket offer. However, Norman was later found to have been involved in the promotion of the ticket offer.

The official position of the student board is that students should not be solicited for tickets to spring break events, and that all students should be treated equally. The board said it would review its policies on solicitation and conflicts of interest.

They have investigated the case but haven't made a final call yet. In a petition filed by Palm City Police District Court Judge William Anderson and others, the verdict was that the Palm City police officer who shot and killed Schwartz was justified in his use of force. It is not known if the suspension will be lifted, but it has been agreed that the verdict will stand. The case was referred to a local judge and will now go to trial.

What is your major?

"I'm a psychology major."

Right.

Injured Hawkeyes fall to host Cyclones

By Tom Werkens

A banged-up Iowa women's gymnastics team saw its first-place finish threatened by the University of Nebraska last weekend. The Hawkeyes were coming off a 199-360, 199-334, win over the Huskers in Lincoln, Nebraska.

In the first of the season's last weekend of competition, Iowa will host and try to keep its form against the Cyclones. Due to injuries, the Hawkeyes did not drop scores.

"I was happy with the way I performed, but I still know I can do a little better," said LaFrentz. "I think I was doing my best until the end of the season, and that's why we're loping in Lincoln." Laffrenz, the 1985 National Champion who played well throughout the season, said fatigue could be a factor. "That's why we're loping in Lincoln. If you're going to be a big deal, you've got to get a lot of rest in the spring." LaFrentz will be loping back to his old self. He blew his hand to square the hole to go home.

"You have to be happy with your team's performance," LaFrentz said. "They need to do what they've been all season, which is to do what they've done all year, which is doing what they've been doing all year. They just need to get a feel for it and then they just get out and play."}

Men's Hoops

Continuing from Page 1B

"We're going to try to prepare them for that sort of thing," Lee said. "There was no way to do anything to the way they've done all year," which is doing what they've been doing all year. They just need to get a feel for it and then they just get out and play."
Arena football to begin its own minor league

In April 2000, the Arena Football League began playing in four cities across the country. The league was formed as a minor league to provide a platform for players who had previously played in the Arena Football League (AFL) or who were looking to transition from college football to professional indoor football. The league's inaugural season featured 15 teams, with plans to expand to 20 teams by the fall of 2000.

The league was unique in that it featured two types of indoor football: the AFL and arenafootball2 (af2). The AFL was established in 1987 as the exclusive indoor football league in the United States, while af2 was created in 1998 as a minor league to provide a path to the AFL for new talent.

The Arena Football League (AFL) began its first season in 1993, and it was the only minor league football league in the United States that was not owned by a professional basketball team. The league was known for its high-scoring games and exciting gameplay.

The Arena Football League played its final season in 2007, and it was succeeded by the Arena Football League 2 (af2), which continued to operate until 2017. The af2 was designed to provide a pathway for players to the AFL, and it played a significant role in developing talent for the professional sport of indoor football.

The Arena Football League's success was largely due to its unique marketing strategy, which included live performances of rock bands and other entertainment acts during games. This strategy helped to draw fans to the games and increased the league's visibility.

In conclusion, the Arena Football League was a successful venture that helped to develop talent and generate interest in the sport of indoor football. Its unique approach to marketing and the creation of the af2 helped to lay the groundwork for the continued growth of the sport in the years to come.
SCHILLING, McRAE SLOWED BY ODD INJURIES

The two NL stars were slowed Thursday, when Chicago pitcher Kerry Wood was released from the hospital.

Chicago's Mike McGwire was limited to 17 at-bats in spring training because of a shoulder injury, and he was taking batting practice in the cage Thursday, but he was not available to discuss the injury. McGwire was hitting .385 with two home runs and eight RBIs in 17 games, and he is expected to start the season in the lineup.

McGwire's injury is the latest in a string of injuries that have hit the team this spring.

The pressure McGwire faced last year has been replaced by a sense of normalcy.

The only danger of using "andro" is that it will not diminish McGwire's accomplishments. People know he hit 52 home runs last year and they will remember that.

If Mark McGwire thought there was any chance he would be accused of using drugs, he probably would have avoided them.

The bad news? There is still a chance that McGwire is a Hall of Famer.

McGwire knows that won't be easy now that he has to prove himself.

When it comes to bizarre circumstances, McGwire has seen it all.

Houston's buzzer-beater lifts Knicks

The New York Knicks, a team known for their ability to come back from deficits, managed to do just that against the Chicago Bulls on Sunday. In a game that saw the Knicks trail by double digits at one point, they fought back to win the game, much to the delight of fans and team members alike. The win solidifies the Knicks' position in the Eastern Conference, as they continue to push for a playoff spot.

BOSTON, Mass. - The Boston Red Sox, known for their longstanding rivalry with the New York Yankees, faced off against their archrivals on Sunday. The game was filled with drama, as the teams battled back and forth throughout the nine innings. In the end, the Red Sox emerged victorious, thanks in part to a clutch two-out single by Alex Verdugo in the bottom of the ninth. The win moves the Red Sox back into first place in the American League East.

Swimmers in seventh place after first day

The junior men's swimming team finished seventh after the first day of the Big Ten Championships. The team, led by freshman diver Cameron Weir, is looking to improve their position in the two remaining days of competition. Weir, along with his teammates, will be looking to perform at their best to help the team rise up the leaderboard.

Mann the man as Devils tie Boston

New York's Charlie Ward took to the field for the first time as asu Coach at the Minnesota Timberwolves in their first game of the season. With his team down, he stepped up to make the crucial play that tied the game and eventually won it in overtime. This victory not only boosts the team's morale but also solidifies Charlie Ward's place as a key player on the team.
