'Unequal' response to drinking upsets gymnasts' parents

Sources say some gymnasts could be kicked off the team for drinking at weekend parties.

By Greg Wallace
The Daily Iowan

Some parents of the UI women's gymnastics team say they are taking action against the team's coach for "unfair" treatment following the athletes' admission that they violated the team alcohol policy.

A parent of a team member, who wished to remain unnamed, said he faxed President Mary Sue Coleman and other UI administrators a list of 17 allegations against Coach Diane DeMarco. The statement calls for a formal inquiry into the charges to "determine DeMarco's fitness for the position of head coach," according to a copy obtained by The Daily Iowan.

The parents of at least eight other team members are behind the allegations contained in the fax, the parent said.

He said the team members face disciplinary action, if not expulsion from the team, because they attended two parties in the last two weeks at which alcohol was present.

The team's alcohol policy states: "Drugs and alcohol are not part of our training regimen, and team members are expected to exhibit sound judgment, commitment and responsibility in regard to this issue."

Another source close to the team confirmed Sunday night that two parties took place during the last two weekends; the second of which was held with the men's gymnastics team at a private home. Nearly all of the team members were at these parties, the team source said.

After their attendance at these parties was discovered, the gymnasts were confronted in a team meeting on March 2 by Lockett Stewart, who is employed by the Athletics Department as a "performance enhancer." The team source told the DI Sunday night that the meeting was "a second chance to come clean."

The gymnasts admitted to Lockett that they drank at the parties, the team source said.

"He wanted people to be honest, and they were," the team source said.

Stewart, a doctoral student in psychology who said he has a "close rapport" with the team, said gymnasts and administrators asked him to act as a neutral party in order to "get a better understanding of the young women's feelings."

"There were some mistakes made, but nobody's a bad person," he said.

Stewart said administrators already were aware of the violations at the time he met with the team. He would not comment on what happened at the meeting "out of respect for the team and the administration."

DeMarco pulled her team out of competition on March 5 against Minnesota and at the Corvette Cup at

Snow may put spring on hold

A week before Spring Break, Iowa City prepares for a storm.

By Jill Barnard
The Daily Iowan

As students are busting out their summer wardrobes for Spring Break, they'll need to keep their scarves and mittens handy, too.

The National Weather Service has predicted 8-10 inches of snow to hit Iowa City beginning today.

The storm is enough to warrant a "winter storm watch" today, said Rick Arkell, a weather service spokesman.

The snow should begin in the late morning and develop throughout the day, Arkell said. Southern Iowa and northern Illinois are expected to get the most snow.

As residents heard news of the forecasts Sunday night, several area businesses were already feeling the effects.

Wal-Mart, 1001 Highway 1 W., had sold out of snow shovels, salt and women's gloves by Sunday evening, said assistant manager JoAnne Heath.

Grocery stores also reported an increase in the number of customers Sunday, but people weren't necessarily shopping for food, said Joe Goodner, a Hy-Vee employee.

"A lot of people have been renting more movies and buying cigarettes," he said. "Everybody thinks they're going to be snowed in. They're going to need something to do."

Some UI students are concerned about their Spring Break plans.

"If I were leaving tomorrow, then I'd be scared," said graduate student Sara Schneiders, who plans to drive to Des Moines next weekend. "As long as there's no snow Friday or Saturday, I think I'll be OK."

Elton John performs in Carver-Hawkeye Arena on March 6 for a sold-out audience of almost 16,000.

The only problem for the rocker's many fans was a traffic jam worthy of Manhattan.

Elton John wows a packed house at Carver

By Julia Di Gangi
The Daily Iowan

As nearly 16,000 fans battled monstrous traffic problems and cold temperatures, British legend Elton John delivered a no-frills show at Carver-Hawkeye Arena on March 6.

The concert, the first at the arena since 1994, was a sellout.

Though the venue is huge, the simplicity of the show — featuring John and a black Yamaha piano — created an intimacy among the sometimes-subdued audience that packed the venue.

One problem, however, was traffic around the arena. Kathy Solow, a UI Student Services employee, paced anxiously in the lobby, waiting for a friend who had forgotten their tickets and had left to pick them up. "I am giving her 15 more minutes. She is probably stuck in traffic," Solow said.

The arena had traffic directors for the concert, but vehicles were backed up as far as Coralville, said Mike Forg, a security guard at the arena.

On time for the show, with tickets

Enrollment increases at two-year schools

Starting salaries for those with community college degrees are higher than many may think.

Associated Press

DES MOINES — Drawn by low tuition costs and the promise of high-paying jobs, Iowans are flocking to community colleges in greater numbers than ever.

Enrollment at Iowa's 15 community colleges, at which annual tuition is under $2,500, has risen 50 percent since 1986. More than twice as many freshmen enroll in community colleges than in the state's three big universities.

Community colleges have shown a knack for adapting quickly to the training demands of industry. In this time of record-low unemployment and high demand for skilled laborers, that makes it easy for graduates to get good jobs.

Starting salaries of graduates of the Des Moines Area Community College dental hygiene course, for which there is a two-year waiting list, average $38,000. For computer programming, it's $34,200; for machine drafting, $33,800.

Those salaries, at the high end of those offered to new community college graduates, tower over the average starting salary of Iowa teachers, for instance. With a four-year bachelor's degree, they get $23,000 for nine months' work.

The pay for many technical jobs attracts both high school graduates and older students, often retooling from low-paying jobs. The average student age — at community colleges nationally and at DMACC — is 27.

Alleged anti-gay murder sparks local march, vigil

Iowa Citizens "rage against oppression" in a rally to fight homophobia.

By Steven Cook
The Daily Iowan

Approximately 40 people braved 20-degree temperatures in Iowa City on the night of March 6 to protest the murder of a gay Alabama man last month.

The demonstrators walked from First United Methodist Church, 214 E. Jefferson St., to the Pedestrian Mall fountain. Once there, the participants held a candle-light vigil.

The march and vigil was held for Billy Jack Gaither, 39, of Sylacauga, Ala. Gaither, who was gay, was allegedly murdered last month by two men who said they were angry about an alleged sexual advance made by Gaither.

The two men, Steven Eric Mullins, 25, and Charles Monroe Butler Jr., 21, allegedly plotted Gaither's death for two weeks, then beat him to death with an ax handle and burned the body on a pyre of old tires.

"It's important to oppose this violence and make people aware that people are being killed because they are gay. That's not right, wherever you live," said Jeremy Price, a UI graduate student and one of the organizers of the march.

During the three-block march, some protesters sang "Amazing Grace," while others chanted, "Hey, hey, ho, ho, homophobia has got to go."

The murder reminded many of a similar murder last fall, when University of Wyoming student Matthew Shepard was killed, at least in part because he was gay. A similar vigil was held then on the Ped Mall fountain for Shepard.

Kim Hunter, a member of the group, Campaign to End Homophobia, said

About 40 people marched on the Ped Mall on March 6 to draw attention to recent anti-gay hate crimes in the country. Events held on March 5-6 kicked off the Equality Begins at Home project.

NEW YORK (AP) — Michelle Pfeiffer thinks the obstacles women face in life make them great role models. "Women are the heroes of our time," Pfeiffer says in Sunday's Daily News. "We accept the impossible. We take on way more than we could ever accomplish, and we somehow manage to do it." "Think about it. We run the home. We pretty much are in charge of raising the children, although the men help. A lot of us have careers. Also, women are very much in charge of putting energy into a relationship."

"They've been treating me like a stranger for months," a tearful Campbell said on March 6, wearing an Armani pantsuit. Designer Gianni Versace discovered Campbell back in the 1980s and made her the living epitome of his sexy styles. When he was shot in 1997, she was devastated. According to his sister, Donatella Versace, the British model was "acting up," which some interpreted as meaning she wanted more money.

Help me, Harlan

Dear Harlan,
 My brother is getting married in a month to a girl who used to be one of my best friends, that is until she told me my boyfriend came on to her. I know that it didn't happen because when she said it happened, I was lying right there in the bed with him! Does she think I'm stupid?
 Anyway, now the wedding is coming up and she's being all goody-goody to me. I want to go to the wedding for my brother, but watching him marry her is going to be unbearable! What do I do?
— My Brother's Wedding

Dear Brother,
 How could anyone think your boyfriend could have been coming on to her when the three of you are all lying in bed together? She must think we're all stupid. Put your petty feelings aside and be happy for your brother. At least your former friend is trying to be mature enough to extend a hand.
 For the sake of your brother's happiness, give her the benefit of the doubt and do a little growing of your own. Just go and be happy!

College applications shoot up

The increase is due to the Internet, as well as a rise in the number of high school seniors.

By Robin Estrin Associated Press

BOSTON — The growing use of the Internet combined with a surge in high school graduates, helped boost the number of college applications submitted last year, several school officials said.

Although most colleges don't accept applications via the Internet, it's becoming far more common for them to post blank applications on the Web, allowing would-be students to download forms and mail them in later.

"From the candidate's point of view, it is a much easier ball game, and the Internet has facilitated that," said Marilyn McGrath Lewis, director of admissions for Harvard University, which saw the number of applicants rise almost 8 percent this year over last.

Applications to Yale University rose 10.5 percent; University of California-Riverside applications were up 14.6 percent; Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute in Troy, N.Y., was up 13 percent; and Temple University in Philadelphia was up a whopping 23 percent.

Tom Maxey, Temple's vice president for enrollment management, said many of the applicants took advantage of the school's electronic forms.

It used to be prospective applicants learned about colleges by sending away for brochures or poring over hefty guidebooks. Now, most universities have Web pages that contain everything from course descriptions to virtual walking tours of campus.

Even without the Internet, schools would probably be reporting a jump in applicants. The number of high school seniors has been increasing about 3 percent annually in recent years. Experts predict there will be close to 3 million high school graduates next year, up from 2.6 million in 1990.

Kasich bowls I.C.

■ A presidential aspirant, hoping to make a name with Iowans, rolled through Iowa City Sunday night.

By Steven Cook
The Daily Iowan

John Kasich, a U.S. congressman and 2000 Republican presidential hopeful, bowled through Iowa City Sunday night, characterizing himself as a "non-establishment" candidate.

Kasich, from Ohio, went bowling with approximately 25 UI students at Plamor Lanes and Kegler Lounge, 1555 S. First Ave., answering questions and bowling a score of 77 through six frames.

Iowa City was Kasich's seventh stop on an eight-city "Rolling Through Iowa" tour of bowling alleys in preparation for Iowa's first-in-the-nation presidential caucuses in February 2000.

The House Budget Committee chairman told students and other bowlers he supports a charity tax credit, which, he claimed, would encourage citizens to donate funds to community charities rather than giving money to government welfare programs.

"The future will be about individuals being empowered and giving big institutions less power," Kasich said. The students were headed by UI senior Slater Bayliss, who said he's been a Kasich supporter since hearing him speak in 1996.

Bayliss and a friend, UI sophomore Steven Soper, drove to Des Moines last month to see Kasich. After speaking with him, they were invited to bring friends to Sunday's event.

"He's young and energized. He seems like he really wants to change things," Bayliss said. "How many candidates do you really think would go bowling in Iowa on a Sunday night with a bunch of university kids and drink beer?"

Some of the students were members of the College Republicans, but several just came to see Kasich. UI sophomore John Murphy said he hadn't heard much about Kasich; after seeing him, he said, he liked what the congressman said about empowering individuals.

This week is a busy one for Republican presidential hopefuls. George W. Bush, the governor of Texas and the GOP frontrunner, announced Sunday the formation of an exploratory committee in Texas, and Elizabeth Dole is expected to announce the formation of such a committee Wednesday.

Both Bush, whose father was president, and Dole, whose husband made several unsuccessful runs for the presidency, have high name-recognition among voters. Kasich conceded that the average Iowa voter doesn't know about him yet, but, he said, during the next year, recognition of his name will increase.

He attempted to contrast himself with Bush, noting that he is the son of a mail carrier. "My father couldn't put me on a Little League team, let alone in the White House," Kasich said.

UI nears decision on education dean

■ The UI provost says he wants a person with a sense of what the 21st century means for education.

By Sarah Gordon
The Daily Iowan

Communication and leadership skills are the most important attributes for the next dean of the UI College of Education, UI Provost Jon Whitmore said.

A search committee, which just wrapped up the interviewing process, will give Whitmore its final recommendations within the next two weeks. The provost said he should make a decision after Spring Break.

"I want someone who has a real sense of what education schools should be doing for the 21st century," he said. "Leadership is a primary characteristic for me."

Steven R. Yussen was the dean of the college for seven years. He announced his resignation in February 1998.

The committee interviewed 12 candidates and selected four finalists, who have been visiting the campus since Feb. 22.

Whitmore said he plans to pick someone who is not only a successful faculty member but also already a dean or department chair at a secondary institution.

In addition, Whitmore is looking for a person who is experienced in overseeing a budget, hiring faculty and fund raising. "The candidate needs to prove to be able to communicate to a group," he said.

A preliminary report by the Iowa Department of Education, which showed that almost one third of the 99 criteria for the college's re-accreditation had not been met to the satisfaction of the state, will not be a factor in his decision, Whitmore said.

"I do not feel the report plays a key role in selecting a dean," he said.

The report, which came out last November, identified three weaknesses in the college: lack of communication among faculty and programs, absence of follow-up procedures in evaluating graduates and under-utilization of feed-back from practitioners in the field.

Whitmore said he is unsure if the report is being used by the committee in its selection process.

The finalists include: Jeffrey K. Smith, professor and associate dean of the Graduate School of Education, Rutgers University; Edna Mora Szymanski, chairwoman of the Department of Rehabilitation Psychology, University of Wisconsin, Madison; Jeffrey Gorrell, professor and associate dean of the College of Education, Auburn University; and Sandra Bowman Damico, professor in the Division of Educational Studies and associate professor in the Department of Sociology, Emory University.

Missouri Sunday. At the meet on March 5, each UI gymnast walked to her event, saluted the judges, touched the event equipment and walked away with a 0 for the event. This was done because Minnesota needed the meet to be counted as an official contest.

After the meet, six gymnasts received letters saying they were still on the team, the sources said, adding that the fates of the other team members are up in the air.

Linda Lyon, mother of junior gymnast Emily Lyon, said the situation is being handled unevenly.

"The punishments aren't being doled out equally," she said.

"Some get punishments, some don't. If they were all there and all there equally, they should be punished equally."

The team source was particularly unhappy with the alcohol policy because the team members were never involved in its formulation.

"There are other teams that have done more than what we're doing," the source said.

DeMarco declined to comment on the allegations against her.

"As you can imagine, I am not at liberty to talk about it. I really can't comment at this point at time," she said.

Ann Rhodes, vice president for University Relations, said she does not know what sanctions may be forthcoming.

"It involves a violation of team rules," she said. "I'm not sure we have (punishment) figured out

GOP criticizes 'lax' attitude toward China security

■ Congressional Republicans criticize the Clinton administration for "lax" national security in dealings with China.

By William C. Mann
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The Clinton administration has displayed "lax attitudes toward national security," the Senate Intelligence Committee chairman said Sunday, citing reports that say Chinese stole U.S. technology to produce a better nuclear bomb.

The committee is already investigating commercial technology transfers that Sen. Richard Shelby and other GOP leaders contend could help the Chinese upgrade their missile forces.

The new allegations "will certainly" mean more hearings, said Shelby, who criticized the administration for "lax attitudes toward national security."

"We have been on top of this lax security for a number of years. We've been pushing, we've been prodding the administration to do more, to tighten up security," Shelby said on NBC's "Meet the Press."

"I think they are beginning to, but ... they waited a long time."

Senate Majority Leader Trent Lott predicted Congress would be "very aggressive" in dealing with the administration.

"I think Congress is going to have to toughen up in dealing with this administration, particularly when it comes to China and the violations that have occurred there," he said on "Fox News Sunday."

The New York Times and Newsweek reported over the weekend that China had obtained knowledge of America's top-secret W-88 miniaturized warhead from Energy Department nuclear laboratories.

Reiterating the administration position, White House national security spokesman P.J. Crowley said Sunday in a telephone interview that an interagency assessment to determine "what damage, if any" was done started in 1996 and that the appropriate committees of Congress have been kept "updated throughout."

"Meanwhile, once we knew the scope of the problem, we instituted a series of very strong measures to improve security and counterintelligence at DOE labs," Crowley said.

Republicans contend that the administration allows dangerous transactions so as not to disturb always-touchy relations with one of the largest U.S. trading partners.

in hand, was Menow Plukker, a Toronto resident.

"It should be a nice event," he said. "(Elton John) is a legend or at least becoming one."

Plukker said that, though he is not a huge fan, seeing John is one of those things about which he'll later be able to say, "I was there."

Also "there" was Minneapolis native Paul Thoenke, who said he is a huge fan of the rock star and showed it by dressing in full Elton John attire. A red blazer, white button-up turtleneck, a diamond earring in his right ear and black horn-rimmed glasses completed his look.

"Even when I don't dress up, people will always stop me and tell me that I look like him," Thoenke said. "I am a huge fan, it works out well. I'm glad I don't look like Mick Jagger."

Thoenke, who has won an Elton

John look-alike contest, said he has "good Elton karma."

His karma did not fail him at his sixth Elton John concert, where once again he was recognized by the Rocket Man. During a brief intermission, Thoenke was one of the lucky few who had a program signed by John.

"When he saw me, he looked at me and he goes, 'You again?'" Thoenke said.

After playing for three hours, the rocker left the stage only to return minutes later in response to the crowd's incessant demands for an encore. He played the song, "Circle of Life," with scenes from the movie, "The Lion King," shown on two huge screens flanking the stage.

But one encore was not enough. When John started pounding out "Benny and the Jets" on his piano, Iowa State University graduate Dan Horner brought out his cellular phone and called his family in Des Moines.

"My family wants to hear 'Benny and the Jets,' too," Horner said. "My mom told me if he played certain songs to call. He didn't play the ones that she wanted, but oh, well."

For his last number, aptly titled "The Last Song," John made a tribute to women and children suffering from AIDS.

"Those of us who are healthy need to remember how lucky we are and to try to do something for someone else. OK?" the rock legend said.

Shouts of "Amen" rang out throughout the arena. Iowa City residents Matt and Keri Larson slow-danced to the last song in the aisle.

"It was awesome," Matt Larson said. "It's our third (Elton John concert) in a year."

Locals rally against Alabama murder of gay man

Gaither's and Shepard's deaths will serve as rallying points against homophobia.

"Each time, we will hold them up as martyrs in the struggle to end homophobic oppression," Hunter said. "We must rage against oppression in every way we know how."

Demonstrators carried candles, posters and pictures of Gaither during the march and vigil.

UI freshman Adam Feeney said he was "extremely disheartened" when he read of Gaither's death on March 5.

"I think it's indicative of a sick society where homophobia is pervasive," he said, holding a candle.

The March 6 protest was held in conjunction with a spiritual forum on gay, lesbian, bisexual and transgendered issues, which took place on March 5-6.

The forum was designed to address problems that people have had between their sexuality and their religion, said Robin Butler, a member of the Iowa Coalition for Human Rights.

The event served as the Iowa kick-off for the national Equality

Begins at Home project, which advocates organizing and lobbying on gay issues.

University of Northern Iowa senior Andrea Miller told one workshop she has been able to reconcile her sexuality and her religion with the help of her campus ministry. She is a peer minister with the campus' United Methodist Church.

"God doesn't just love a certain type of person," Miller said. "God loves us all."

Lewinsky's image is as stained as her dress

OK. This is the absolute last thing I'm ever going to write about the Monica Lewinsky thing. I swear. Never again. I know I said that last time, and Girlfriend's gotten way too much press lately, and I'm just as tired of lookin' at her Beverly Hills-livin', big hair-havin', spoo-dress-wearin', president-suckin' self as you are.

But you know, Barbara Walters (née Wawah) scored an interview with La Lewinsky last week on "20/20," so of course I had to watch and then comment. This was partly out of my inherent Libran-Daoist interest in hearing everybody's side of an argument and partly out of a sick desire to see how the Hootch of the Century would face the nation.

and torment Tripp? I mean, waking up every morning and just being Tripp must be pretty grueling, what with the warts and the perpetual "I smell something foul" expression, but I would have liked something more than my own personal take on it.

Would she cry? Would she be all snatchy and tell the American public and Ken Starr to kiss her ample booty and leave her the hell alone? Would she be contrite and play the innocent-intern-victimimized-by-the-mean-old-Bubbah card? Like I said, I had to watch.

What I saw surprised me. I was sympathetic and embarrassed in turns. On the one hand, I'm sure Monica didn't mean for the whole business to get as insane as it did and shake our government to its core, but on the other — what did she think she was doing? Playin' Scrabble? And I couldn't help but wonder how Hillary and Chelsea were feeling, knowing that this chick was on national television, going on about what a good kisser the president (husband ... DAD) was and speculating on his repressed sensuality. Ugh.

Hearing about that — all sympathy pains for Hil' and Chelsea aside — was kind of like hearing about a parent's sex life; you know he or she has (hopefully) got one, but you'd like to be spared the gory details. But thanks to Barbara, details we got, and plenty of them. We heard about The Dress, for instance. Monica swears she didn't notice the presidential spoo-spots until long after the encounter that produced them, and she didn't bother cleaning the dress because she'd put on a couple of pounds, and it no longer fit. I don't know if I totally buy that, but it's not entirely implausible.

The one thing I'd like to know — and I didn't find out, either because Barbara and Monica didn't go there or because they went there after I left — what does Monica think of Linda Tripp? Does she have an iota of charity for the woman who played such a substantial role in launching the worst year of her life, or does Monica (as I no doubt would) lie awake at night and plot hundreds of delicious ways to torture

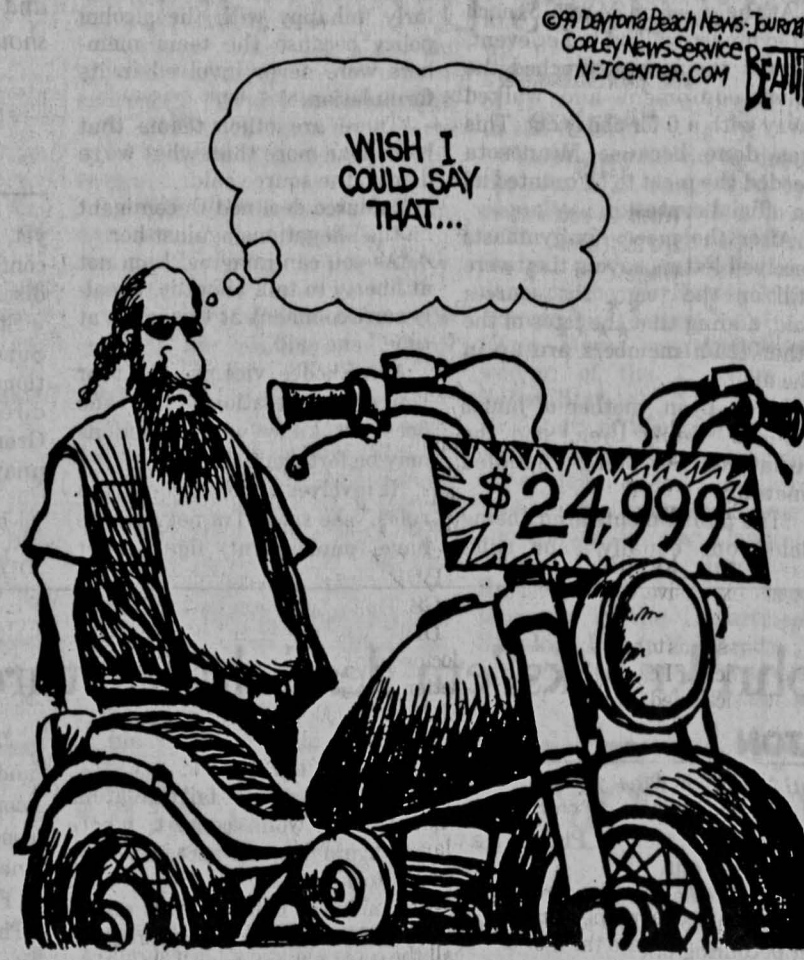

But then, what can she do, really? The fit has already hit the shan, as they say, and Lewinsky's life will never be the same, regardless of how many interviews she does. Neither will Bill Clinton's, but then, he's not a notorious 20-something ex-intern who now has to carve out a life and a career for herself and carry the burden of Scandalfest '98-99.

So what was accomplished by Monica's interview, other than some spectacular network ratings and very expensive advertising minutes? I'm not so sure — but I do know this: Monica's a very smart, articulate, lively young woman who should probably consider a career in Alaskan real estate. Lord knows she'll never work in a certain nation's capital again. If she were my pal, I'd take her out for coffee, high-five her for scoring the sexual coup of the decade, then kick her ass for being such a hootchie skank.

Yes, I'm impressed — and I don't care if Bill and Monica did whatever they did swinging from the chandelier in the Lincoln Bedroom, covered in chocolate body paint and singing Kumbayah — but I squirm inside for the people that this whole tacky debacle must have sucked the most for: Hillary and Chelsea. They've been through a long year of humiliation and grief, and no amount of weepy explanation will assuage any of it.

Not even if Barbara Wawah is holding the Kleenex.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Tip of the 'PC' iceberg for UI administration

To the Editor:

I am happy to see that the UI administration has finally gotten its act together in removing the sexist term "freshman" from its vocabulary. However, it shouldn't stop there. Many other sexist terms are commonplace in today's vocabulary and should be eradicated as quickly as possible.

For example, we must never call ladies "women." This politically incorrect term has been plaguing our language for centuries, and it is time to take a stand. Ladies are not men. Yet the term "woman" (which contains the root "man") is used to describe them. Similarly, we cannot label those of the sex opposite to men as "female." Ladies are most certainly not "male" (as any reasonably competent biology book will make clear).

We shouldn't stop here though. It would be a sign of willingness to succumb to society's intolerant and male-chauvinist-pig-like ways if we did. Ladies are assuredly not human. They cannot be classified as part of mankind because of the presence of that detestable root "man." We must be bold, firm and clearheaded, labeling them for what they truly are: the defenseless, overly sensitive, weaker gender that requires much protection and care.

Think about it. They hold the majority, yet they are continually lobbied to and treated like a minority. In the practical scope of things, they are sub-human. Because they are not men they are not on an equal scope with the rest of the human race. It is only logical to treat them this way.

Suppose one were to be involved in a terrible car wreck, killing many girls in the process. That person ought not to be tried for manslaughter, but just for the damages to the vehicles in question. Of course, if a man were killed in a collision, that would be a different story altogether. You see, even our legal language reflects this truth.

Many thanks to the UI administration for removing the gender-neutral term "freshman" from its vocabulary. It is high time for such action to be taken. It is far too flattering (and untrue) for ladies to be classified as "freshmen." We simply need to follow this reasoning to its logical conclusion and complete the de-humanization of that sex opposite to men.

Hamby should have done his homework

To the Editor:

In his column bashing the uselessness of certain student organizations, Lance Hamby forgot one important element that journalists usually rely on: research. If Hamby had done his homework, he would have found that Students for Wellstone was actually created last November.

Students for Wellstone had such crazy events as an organizational meeting, where people talked to each other about Sen. Paul Wellstone's possible presidential candidacy. Then, in December, our fringe group hosted a guest speaker: Sen. Wellstone. The senator came to speak to students and members of the community about his positions and when he would make a decision. Unfortunately, the senator decided not to run for the presidency.

The UI takes weeks, even months, to recognize student organizations. So, our application that was turned in around Thanksgiving was finally given approval a few weeks ago. I'm sorry to inform Hamby that our group no longer exists. I am also very sorry to report that we spent none of the university's money on any of our activities.

There is another student organization that I am involved with that Hamby may take interest in. I would like to invite him to the next meeting of the UI Civil Liberties Union. I'm sure Hamby would appreciate an organization that exists to protect his freedom to write such sloppy articles.

Public library would benefit from local-option sales tax

To the Editor:

The need to enlarge and remodel the Iowa City library is the main reason I plan to vote in favor of the local-option sales tax. The people who run it and the variety of services offered make the library a fabulous resource and a joy to visit.

I also support the penny sales tax because it will provide funds for many other improvements needed to keep our community — Iowa City, Coralville and Johnson County — one of the state's most popular places to live and visit. And since so many visitors make use of our attractions and services, it's reasonable to ask them to pay their fair share.

All in all, I think this sales tax is the fairest way to accomplish some things that will benefit everyone.

Please, vote "Yes" on March 30!

En garde! Renaissance revival groups on the cutting edge

I WAS surprised to learn that there are people in Miami who practice swordfighting. I never thought of Miami as a sword kind of town. Down here, we like to brandish our weapons at other motorists from inside our cars, which would be risky with a sword:

FIRST MOTORIST (honking): Watch where you're going!

SECOND MOTORIST: Oh YEAH? (He brandishes his sword.)

FIRST MOTORIST (fleeing): Yikes!

SECOND MOTORIST: I showed him! (To his children in the back seat:) Kids, could you look on the floor and see if you can find daddy's ear?

But it turns out that Miami does have practicing swordfighters. They belong to the Renaissance Historical Society of Florida, a group of people who wear costumes and pretend they're living during the Renaissance.

The Renaissance — as you recall from not spelling it correctly one single time in your entire academic career — was the historical period that started in the 15th century at approximately 3:30 p.m. when humanity, after centuries of being cooped up in the Dark Ages, finally stumbled out into the light and got a whiff of its own armpits and said, "Whoa! Time to invent cologne!" This was followed by tremendous advances in science, philosophy, literature and paintings of naked women.

On a recent Sunday afternoon I watched members of the Renaissance Historical Society rehearse for a public performance at an upcoming festival. They were leaping around, swinging large, realistic swords at each other and yelling Renaissance insults such as — this is an actual insult they yelled — "You snotmuffin!"

When they were done, I talked to two of the organizers, Roger Zollo and Kyle Mathews, about the Renaissance movement, which involves groups all over the country.

"We try to be as period as possible," said Zollo.

"Although we do bathe," noted Mathews.

"Right," agreed Zollo. "We don't want to smell Renaissance."

The re-enactors wear authentic costumes, which means the men wear tights. (And before I hear any snickering from you guys out there who think men look silly in tights, I have two words for you: "golf pants.") The Renaissance men also wear codpieces, which are pieces of cloth that cover up a man's, um, codpiece area.

Zollo and Mathews told me that some guys make their own codpieces and personalize them: One guy made a fuzzy red codpiece that squeaked if you squeezed it. (My feeling about that is, if you have a squeaking codpiece, you had better have a really big sword.)

The Renaissance people also spend a lot of time learning authentic swordfighting techniques. I have an interest in this topic dating back to 1964, when my friend Lanny Watts talked me into joining the Pleasantville High School fencing club. This was a serious competitive club, but Lanny and I frankly did not have the correct attitude, a fact that became clear when it came time to form into pairs and practice a basic fencing technique.

Lanny was paired against one of the veteran club members, who had assumed his fighting stance, holding his fencing sword in the ready position; suddenly Lanny ran from the room, only to return a moment later holding a trombone. Even though I was lying on the floor and trying not to wet my pants, I still have a vivid motion picture in my mind of the scene that followed: Lanny charging forward, blowing into the trombone and thrusting boldly with the sliding part, as his opponent retreated in confusion and — yes — fear. Lanny and I were immediately kicked out of the fencing club. But I think they knew who won.

Anyway, my main question about swordfighting technique is this: How come, when you see a swordfight in the movies, where two guys are doing everything they can to kill each other, and one of them finally gets the upper hand and has his sword point pressed against his enemy's neck, instead of killing him — which he has been trying hard to do for 10 minutes — HE MAKES A SPEECH, usually involving the word "varlet"? Because while he's yakking, the other guy ALWAYS gets away.

I asked Zollo and Mathews why movie swordfighters did this, and they answered, "theatrics." They also said they rarely kill people in their performances.

"We try to show respect for life," said Mathews.

"Plus," said Zollo, "it's a pain in the butt to carry the bodies away."

Thus we see that the Renaissance movement represents positive historic values. This is heartening because many of its members, at least in the group I saw, are young people. So the next time you find yourself thinking that today's youth are nothing but mindless, giant-pants-wearing, tattoo-getting, MTV-clone snotmuffins whose definition of "ancient" is "before Ginger left the Spice Girls," remember that there ARE young people who are interested in preserving, and promoting, a vital part of humanity's cultural heritage.

And while you're remembering that, bear in mind that "Varlet and the Squeaking Codpieces" would be an excellent name for a rock band.

FILM REVIEW By Gene Stupnitsky

After seeing "Analyze This," I decided to consult a psychiatrist. Here is a transcript of what transpired:

Dr. Dick Endeavor: Hello. Please, sit down.

Gene Stupnitsky: Thanks, doc. This is really expensive, so let me get to the point.

DDE: What seems to be the problem?
GS: Well, Dick, if I can call you that, Stanley Kubrick died. Do you know who he was?

DDE: Uh-huh.

GS: I'm upset about that. And I went to see "Analyze This," and now I'm really miserable.

DDE: Go on.
GS: Well, I firmly believe that where and when you see a movie dictates your predisposition toward the movie.

DDE: Interesting, go on.

GS: For example, I saw "Analyze This" at Sycamore Mall. Ever been there?

DDE: Yes, I have.

GS: I will never go see another movie there again. My TV screen is bigger than the one in that theater. Also, the seats are all messed up — they go way back, and if you want to see anything, you have to sit way up front.

DDE: I see.

GS: Well, I couldn't cause I had to sit in the back. There was also this patron seated behind me. She must have been, I don't know, about 450 pounds.

DDE: Interesting ... yes, go on.

GS: Get this: She sneaked a 12-piece chicken dinner into the theater!

DDE: And you were upset that she was eating this chicken dinner throughout the picture?

GS: Hell no! She was done by the end of the second preview. Twelve pieces — gone! Anyway, the smell was in the air the entire time, and it made me simultaneously hungry, repulsed and angry.

DDE: And how does that make you feel?

GS: I just told you: hungry, repulsed and angry. Weren't you listening?

DDE: Yes, tell me about the film.

GS: Well, it was directed by Harold Ramis, who co-wrote "Ghostbusters" and wrote and directed "Groundhog Day," which I think is a great movie. Anyway, Robert DeNiro plays Paul Vitti, the head of a New York crime family. He suffers from panic attacks, and he breaks down and cries during sentimental TV commercials for Merrill Lynch. He's a mess. All right Dick, now here ...

DDE: Please don't call me that.

GS: That's your name isn't it? Dick?

DDE: Yes, but for the sake of the doctor-patient relationship, it would be better if you addressed me as Dr. Endeavor. I ask all my patients to do that.

GS: Let's talk about me, that's what I'm paying you for. All right Dick, whatever you say. Now Billy Crystal plays a psychiatrist, Dr. Sobel. He accidentally hits the car of one of Vitti's henchmen, who wants to forget about the incident. Dr. Sobel wants to call the cops, you know, for insurance purposes. So he gives the henchman his card. Well you know, Vitti starts complaining he might need to see a shrink — and the henchman, coincidentally, has a card from a shrink. Dr. Sobel tries to help Vitti and hilarity ensues. "Analyze This" is a nutshell.

DDE: And what do you think about that?

GS: Well, Dick, I'm glad you asked. "Analyze This" is an inconsistent film. It has its good moments, but it is nowhere near as entertaining or thought-provoking as "Groundhog Day." What makes the movie work is the interplay between the actors and the manner in which comic vignettes are incorporated into the plot.

DeNiro satirizes himself much like Brando did in "The Freshman." Crystal should stick to hosting the Oscars. What's supposed to be funny here is the twist on the gangster genre, that in our modern world a gangster's stress would require therapy ... Ha! If you want to see this type of thing done well, check out "The Sopranos" on HBO: It's funnier, smarter, better-written and better-acted than most studio pictures.

DDE: Wow, you sound like a critic. Well, Gene, all I can say is no one is beyond redemption. This is it.

GS: What?

DDE: You can't have anything unless you let go of it. You get to keep only what you give away. The world is not necessarily just, being good often does not pay, and there is no compensation for misfortune.

GS: What the hell are you talking about? I want my money back.

DDE: All of you is worth something, if you will only own up to it.

GS: Dick, I'm serious, I want my money back.

DDE: Well, time's up. Our session is over.

Sculpting a path out of life

A visiting artist's lecture tonight "has something to offer everyone."

By T.J. Besler
 The Daily Iowan

Visiting sculptor Pamela Blotner will lecture on her work tonight at 8 in the auditorium in the basement of the UI Art Building.

LECTURE
Pamela Blotner
 When: tonight at 8
 Where: basement auditorium of the UI Art Building

Blotner, currently a professor at the San Francisco Art Institute and Pixar University of Pixar Animation Studios, has lived in the San Francisco Bay area since 1996. She has been sculpting for 25 years and has been teaching for almost as long.

"I think it was always in me," she said. "Along the way, I just got more interested in it.

"As a child, I traveled to Copenhagen and saw wood sculpting, which is my primary line of work," Blotner said. "This love for sculpting grew, until I found myself skipping art classes at the Cleveland Institute of Art to go to sculpting classes."

In her work, Blotner aims to blend a personal aesthetic with humor while examining subject matter that may be disturbing and difficult. One key focus of her work is nature and where belief and science meet.

Her life experiences provide added inspiration for her work. She grew up in Virginia and North Carolina and has traveled extensively. Her mother was an actress and her father is a literary biographer.

"Because I came from a literary background, there is a narrative thread to my work and a need to tell a story. I try to bring all aspects of my life together: my travelling experiences, the people I work with and the issues I believe in," said Blotner.

Even though her passion is in expressing herself through her sculpting, she feels that teaching is just as important.

"Because art is in everything, it has something to offer everyone, from all walks of life."

— Pamela Blotner, sculptor and professor at the San Francisco Art Institute and Pixar University

"Teaching makes me a far better sculptor. It keeps me on my toes and acts as a guide to discovering new ways of thinking."

The lecture tonight will focus on her work and how she has found the right path for herself. Yet her lecture will also address issues applicable to students.

"This lecture is really a lecture for the students," Blotner said. "I think as a young artist it's hard to know where you belong or what it means to be an artist. I am going to lecture on finding that right path."

Blotner said her lecture will have something to offer everyone.

"Many people get intimidated by art thinking they need to know more about it than they do. Because art is in everything, it has something to offer everyone, from all walks of life."

BIG TEN WRESTLING CHAMPIONSHIPS

Iowa sophomore Eric Juergens displays his frustration after losing to Michigan's Joe Warren 3-2 Saturday.

Iowa dominance comes to an end

■ For the first time in 26 years, the Iowa wrestling team did not win the Big Ten Championships.

By Tony Wirt
The Daily Iowan

ANN ARBOR — The longest conference championship streak in the history of the NCAA is now over.

Despite crowning three individual champions, the University of Iowa wrestling team was still unable to capture its 26th straight Big Ten title. The favored Minnesota Golden Gophers won the Big Ten Championships with 139 points. Iowa took second with 121, followed by Penn State with 109.

"Twenty-five years is a long time," Iowa coach Jim Zalesky said. "You knew eventually someone would get up for it."

Iowa won three consecutive individual championships the final day, with Doug Schwab (141), T.J. Williams (149) and Jamie Heidt (157) each winning their first conference titles.

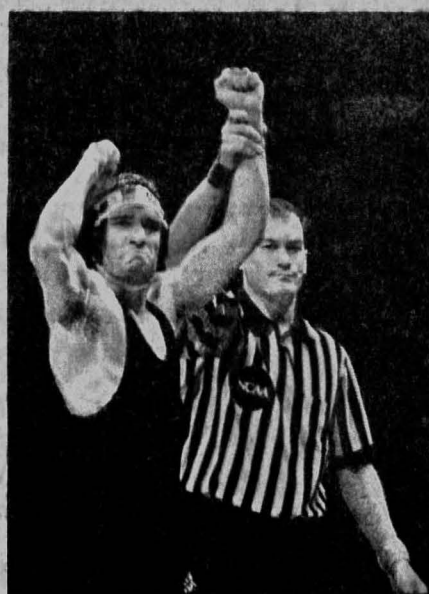

Heidt was the surprise of the tournament, coming in as a fourth seed and capturing the Outstanding Wrestler Award along with his Big Ten title.

Each wrestler the senior defeated was seeded in the top five, including the nation's top-ranked 157-pounder, Chad Kraft, in the semifinals and No. 3-ranked Clint Musser in the finals.

"I wrestle with Tom Brands and Lincoln McIlravy in practice, I can step out here and wrestle anybody in the country," Heidt said. "Those are two of the toughest guys in the world."

Williams continued his domination of the Big Ten, breezing to the conference title. The sophomore left little doubt in his performance, scoring a fall and two major decisions before defeating fifth-ranked Troy Marr 8-3 in the finals.

"It's tough going in as the No. 1 seed," Williams said. "Everyone is against you, but that's what you train for. They say if you work hard in the practice room, you go out and collect your medals. That's what I'm doing — collecting my medals."

Schwab also turned in some strong performances on his way to his first-place finish. The fiery sophomore didn't have the dominating scores that his teammate at 149 had, but he was in control throughout the tournament.

The Osage, Iowa, native's slight weakness from the bottom still showed this weekend, when opponents were able to ride him more than he'd like.

"There's a lot of things I still need to work on," Schwab said. "I'm going out to win an NCAA title. It's going to be a real battle, but I'm going out there and wrestling seven minutes hard. I know I'm right there with those guys."

The matchup everyone was talking about before the championships started, Iowa's Lee Fullhart and Minnesota's Tim Hartung, didn't disappoint anyone, except maybe the Iowa faithful.

No. 5 Iowa to open with UAB

By Megan Manfull
The Daily Iowan

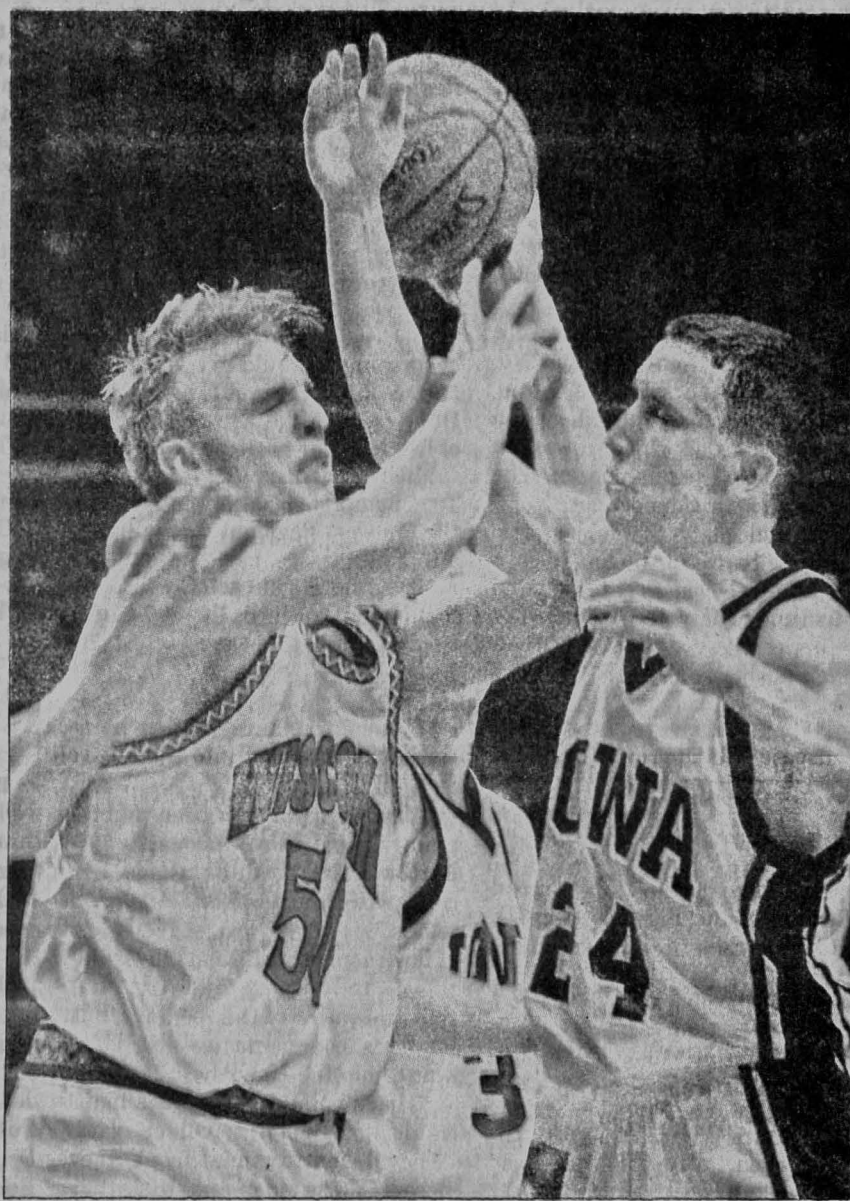

Iowa coach Tom Davis has never lost in the first round of the NCAA tournament, and he appears to have a good chance to keep that streak alive this season.

Sunday, the Hawkeyes (18-9) landed a fifth seed in the West Region. With 18 victories and the third-toughest schedule in the nation, Iowa will face 12th-seeded University of Alabama-Birmingham (20-11) on Thursday in Denver.

Tickets for the games in McNichols Arena are already sold out, but the Iowa athletic ticket office will have approximately 250 tickets available. Fans can call the ticket office at 1-800-IAHAWKS.

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — The Big Ten tied the record with seven teams selected Sunday for the NCAA tournament. The Southeastern Conference grabbed most of the top spots, however, with one-fourth of the top 16 seeds.

There were no shocks about the No. 1 seeds — top-ranked Duke, Michigan State, Auburn and Connecticut — and there weren't many controversies about the at-large teams taken for the final few of the 64 spots.

The Big Ten set the record with seven teams in 1990 and it was matched by the Big East in 1991 and the Big Ten again in 1994. The league could have gotten the record if Illinois had completed its conference tournament run with another upset over Michigan State on Sunday.

"We don't think in terms of conferences," NCAA Selection Committee chairman C.M. Newton said. "The fact is we had seven teams in. Had Illinois won, that would have won their way in."

The Atlantic Coast Conference will have only three teams, its lowest total since only two were chosen for the field of 48 in 1980, when the tournament tips off Thursday and Friday. Newton said the league had a chance for a fourth team.

"Wake Forest really needed to win a game in the (ACC) tournament and they didn't do that," he said. "They had a chance to play their way in and CHICAGO — The Big Ten men's basketball tournament simply confirmed what the league's coaches had been saying all season long.

The party in the conference was displayed throughout the weekend, with high seeds falling and the No. 11 team, Illinois, reaching the finals.

Fifth-seeded Iowa (18-9) lost to Wisconsin, 74-60, on Friday in a game that saw the Badgers shoot 61 percent from the floor.

"You saw today how tough (the conference) is," Iowa coach Tom Davis said after the game. "Some days you get knocked. We're a pretty good team, and Wisconsin was better."

Top-seeded Michigan State ended Illinois' Cinderella story with a 67-50 victory in Sunday's championship game.

The Hawkeyes (18-9) were not overly gloomy after the game. For the most part, they attributed the setback to Wisconsin's stellar play.

"We got our butts kicked," sophomore Dean Oliver said. "They really didn't."

In addition to regular-season and tournament champion Michigan State, the other Big Ten teams selected were Ohio State, Indiana, Iowa, Minnesota, Wisconsin and Purdue.

The SEC's seeded teams were Auburn, No. 3 Kentucky and No. 4 Tennessee and Arkansas.

Duke, second-seeded Maryland and third-seeded North Carolina were the ACC teams chosen. The Big East, with Connecticut, No. 2 Miami and No. 3 St. John's, also had three teams in the top 16.

Duke (32-1), the first team to go 16-0 in the ACC, will take their 27-game winning streak into an opening-round game in the East Regional in Charlotte, N.C., on Friday against Florida A&M, one of five teams in the tournament for the first time. The Rattlers (12-18), who won the Mid-Eastern Athletic Conference tournament, are the only team in the field with a sub-.500 record.

"If we don't win the tournament we'll know that we did everything we could to try to win it and we didn't let pressure stop us," Duke coach Mike Krzyzewski said of his team's overall No. 1 seeding.

Michigan State (29-4), the Big Ten champion, was chosen No. 1 in the Midwest Regional and will play on Friday against Mount St. Mary's, the Northeast Conference champions coached by 800-game winner Jim Phelan.

Auburn (27-3), which lost to Kentucky in the Southeastern Conference tournament semifinals, opens play in the South Regional on Thursday in Indianapolis against Winthrop, the Big South champions making their first tournament appearance.

Connecticut (28-2) was the only top seed moved out of its natural region. The Big East champions will play in Denver on Thursday against Texas-San Antonio, which won the Southland Conference.

"The reason is because Duke is the No. 1 seed," Newton said of Connecticut's move to the West. "UConn came out second but had to go out of region because Duke was the top seed."

The Big East and Big 12 each had five teams invited. The other multibid conferences were Conference USA and Pac-10 with four each; the Atlantic Coast Conference, Missouri Valley Conference and Western Athletic Conference with three teams each; and the Mid-American Conference with two.

The national semifinals are March 27 in St. Petersburg, Fla., and the matchups are South vs. West and East vs. Midwest. The championship game is March 29.

North Carolina extended its own record with its 25th consecutive appearance, 10 more than the next best current streak, Arizona's 15.

The other first-time NCAA teams are Arkansas State, Kent and Samford.

for us," Davis said. "It's a good reflection of the Big Ten strength and the strength of our entire schedule."

Even with 20 wins last season, Iowa was left out of the tournament because of its low RPI rating. The same was true for the Blazers.

This season, the Hawkeyes are back in the Dance and feel they belong.

But the Blazers are still a team in question.

Following the selection of UAB, ESPN commentator Dick Vitale criticized the invitation given to the Blazers.

"UAB? How'd they get in over Toledo and California?" Vitale said. "I just don't buy it. There's no way."

Conference USA had four teams invited to the tournament, and UAB coach Murry Bartow attributes the strength of the league and his team's strong road record (9-14 to the invite.

"All along, this has been a good team that's been inconsistent," Bartow said. "I think that's the case with most of the at-large teams."

Iowa sophomore Dean Oliver listened to Vitale following the announcement of the seedings, but said his comments against UAB won't help the Hawkeyes.

"That's going to be a huge motivator for (UAB)," Oliver said. "They'll want to show people they deserved the spot and that they can win a couple of games. We have to be up for the challenge."

Iowa and UAB are similar statistically, both shooting around 45 percent from the field and about 34 percent from beyond the 3-point arc.

The Hawkeyes' pressure defense could work in their favor against the Blazers, who trouble handling the ball. UAB has turned the ball over 529 times during the season. Iowa has 453 turnovers.

"I see UAB as an athletic team, well-coached, one of those teams that can beat a higher seeded team," senior Kent McCausland said. "Every year, they beat some good teams. It will be tough from the start."

UAB and Iowa have never met, but the two have shared opponents. On Nov. 18, Indiana defeated UAB, 91-54. And Ohio State defeated the Blazers, 71-64, at the Puerto Rico Holiday Classic on Dec. 23. Iowa split with the Buckeyes and Hoosiers during the season.

The senior-dominated Blazers won the National Conference of Conference USA, finishing 11-7 in the league. They lost in the semifinals of the conference tournament to Louisville, 77-68.

"I know very little about Alabama-Birmingham," Davis said. "We'll have to work hard to get a scouting report put together."

With a starting lineup that averages 6-foot-4, the Blazers have no key big player, but are strongest in rebounding. They average 39 rebounds a game, while holding opponents to 36.

The Blazers are led by forward, Fred Williams who's scored in double figures the last 19 straight games. He averages 15.1 points per game. The three-point threat for the Blazers is Damon Cobb, who shoots 38-percent from beyond the arc and averages 11.2 points a game.

UAB's Willie Mitchell was voted Conference USA's Sixth Man of the Year. He averages 9.9 points and 4.3 rebounds.

While Iowa is more than happy with a fifth seed, the Blazers are not complaining about No. 12.

"I'd go to Timbuktu if they sent us out there," UAB's leading rebounder DeWayne Brown said. "I'm ecstatic. I remember the feeling when we were invited to the NIT last year and this is totally different."

Hawkeyes hope to learn from loss to Wisconsin took it to us. They just executed very well."

For 20 minutes, Iowa played very well. Davis' team led, 25-23, at halftime thanks to Jess Settles' 12-point effort.

After the break, however, the Badgers (22-8) played much like they did on Jan. 23 in a 72-52 victory over the Hawkeyes. Guards Ty Calderwood and Sean Mason scored 11 and 17 points, respectively, in the second half.

Wisconsin made seven of its nine 3-point attempts after halftime.

"We converted just enough in the second half to offset our difficulty in handling their press," Wisconsin coach Dick Bennett said. "We had to go back to the three-guard alignment to get better looks."

Wisconsin's slow-it-down schemes gave the Hawkeyes fits both times the teams played. The Badgers' tough man-to-man defense also was effective in the contests.

The good news is, Wisconsin is a unique opponent, and there aren't too many other teams around the country that employ their tactics. Therefore, Iowa may not have to play a team like that in the NCAA tournament.

"They're hard for anybody to defend," Davis said.

Iowa's worst fears became a reality in the second half. Wisconsin's shooters found many open looks after rolling off tough screens. The Badgers shot 74 percent after half-time and held the Hawkeyes to 40-percent shooting.

Settles was one bright spot for Iowa, finishing with 21 points in 27 minutes. But he committed five turnovers and was given a technical foul in the second half.

"I deserved (the technical)," Settles said. "The referee did the right thing."

The Hawkeyes' performance was an improvement over the Jan. 23 debacle. Iowa was powerless in that game and Wisconsin walked away with an easy victory.

The biggest upsets the Hawkeyes faced were Gabe McMahan and Wes Hand, each of whom were knocked out of the championship round early and ended up in the seventh-place bout, where fifth-seeded McMahan won and second-seeded Hand lost.

Had those two weights turned out differently, the Hawkeyes might have been going for their 27th-consecutive Big Ten Title next year at Purdue.

"McMahan and Hand kind of killed us," Zalesky said. "Instead of having them going for third, they were going for seventh. That's big points."

While all the Hawkeyes were naturally disappointed with the end of an era, all eyes were focused on a greater prize down the road.

"The streak we want to keep going is the NCAA streak," Zalesky said. "This was a big tournament to win, but the biggest tournament is two weeks down the road."

competition to get to the finals, where they staged a classic battle.

The first period went by with both wrestlers feeling each other out, and then, just like their last meeting, Fullhart rode his archival for the entire second period.

Just seven seconds into the third, Fullhart got on the board first with an escape. But 30 seconds later, Hartung took the Iowa senior down to take a 2-1 lead.

Hartung rode Fullhart the rest of the bout, eliminating the riding time the Hawkeye had accumulated and winning the bout.

"The guys clings and hangs on, and you've got to shake a guy like that," assistant coach Tom Brands said. "The guy has taken us down in the third period or overtime too many times. It's time to end it. He's got one more shot at him, and I feel good about where Fullhart can go from here."

In other action, Eric Juergens dropped a tough, 3-2 decision to Joe Warren in the semifinals, but wrestled back to take third place.

DORAL OPEN

Alan Diaz/Associated Press
Doral-Ryder Open winner Steve Elkington gets a kiss from his daughter, Annie, as he awaits the victory celebration on the 18th green on Sunday.

Elkington wins Doral despite bogey on 18th

Steve Elkington won his 10th PGA Tour event when he finished 13-under par at the Doral Open.

short of the water. Needing to get it close to save par, his chip came up short and trickled back down, just short of the hazard.

"I was just thinking to get it on the damn green," said Els, who wound up in a five-way tie for third. "I can't believe the shots I played."

Kraft came through a group later, also in the fairway, trying to stay in position for his first official PGA Tour victory. The pressure finally caught up with him, however, and he caught his 5-iron so fat that it splashed into the water about 20 yards short of the green.

He salvaged a bogey for a 71 and second place alone. That was worth $324,000, just $2,571 less than what he made all of last year.

Small consolation. "That's going to leave a taste in my mouth I won't forget for a long time," Kraft said.

Elkington missed all of this. After his 5-foot par putt rimmed all the way around the hole, Elkington kicked in the trailer and stormed off to his room at the Doral Golf Resort & Spa.

"I hit that putt pretty good," Elkington said. "That seemed like the one that needed to be in to knock these guys out."

He went back to the driving range to warm up for a playoff that never happened. A tour official told him what transpired on the 18th, if he didn't already fear the groans himself.

By Doug Ferguson
Associated Press

MIAMI — Steve Elkington was almost certain he needed to make par on the 18th hole Sunday to have a chance at winning the Doral-Ryder Open, which is why he planted his foot into the side of the scoring trailer after his 5-foot par putt rimmed out.

During the hour he spent in his room watching Ernie Els and Greg Kraft try to catch him, he realized something else that proved to be more accurate.

Maybe a bogey on the toughest closing hole on the PGA Tour isn't all that bad.

Despite a three-putt bogey on the 18th at the Blue Monster, Elkington closed with an 8-under 64 and won the Doral Open when Els and Kraft, both needing par on the last hole to force a playoff, fared much worse.

"It was never my tournament to start with," said Elkington, who came from six strokes off the lead and finished at 13-under 275. "Then I got a hold of it, and I dropped the ball there at the last hole. I was pretty disgusted with myself."

Els and Kraft know the feeling.

Els nearly went in the water and took double bogey when his chip failed to get up the slope to the green. Kraft hit his approach in the water and had to make a great up-and-down for bogey to finish one stroke back.

Elkington picked up his 10th career PGA Tour victory and $540,000 — maybe he can take the money he got for winning to help repair the trailer he damaged after he thought he lost.

"I'm not a club-thrower. I was just a little frustrated. Who wouldn't be?," he said. "I didn't want to leave any crumbs out there."

But he did, and Els and Kraft scooped them up with birdies on the 17th hole. All they needed was a par on No. 18 to force a playoff.

Els played first, an 8-iron from 154 yards that turned left and got hung up in the clumpy rough just

Spartans toy with Illini in finals

The Fighting Illini made it to the Big Ten finals, but couldn't keep up with Michigan State to complete a Cinderella story.

By Nancy Armour
Associated Press

CHICAGO — The Big Ten tournament championship, a No. 1 seed in the NCAA and a first-round game close to home. All in all, not a bad day for Michigan State.

The second-ranked Spartans (29-4) added the conference tournament championship to their regular-season title Sunday, making easy work of overachieving but exhausted Illinois with a 67-50 victory.

Then, 90 minutes later, the Spartans learned they were the No. 1 seed in the Midwest in the NCAA tournament. They're headed to Milwaukee for the first and second rounds, a short, three-hour trip.

"It was cool," said Mateen Cleaves, who added MVP of the tournament to his co-Big Ten player of the year award. "It's going to be tough, so we've got to go home this week and get ready to play. ... Being close to home is great. That's going to be an advantage for us."

The Spartans stuck around the United Center to watch the pairings show, eating pizza with their families as they waited. Though they expected to be a No. 1 seed after beating Illinois (14-18), the players clapped, cheered and exchanged high-fives when they saw the brackets.

Michigan State will play Mount St. Mary's in a first-round game Friday at the Bradley Center.

"I'm very pleased to be in the Midwest and to be a No. 1 seed," coach Tom Izzo said. "There is pressure, but there's been pressure on us all year. I'm hoping the guys will take it in stride."

If the Big Ten tournament is any indication, Izzo doesn't need to worry. The Spartans' victory Sunday was their 18th straight and gave them the school record for most wins in a season. The 1989-90 squad — the last Michigan State squad to get a No. 1 seed in the NCAA tournament — finished 28-6.

In the championship game, the Spartans got 11 points apiece from Morris Peterson and Andre Hutson, and three others finished with nine points. Cleaves had one of his finest games with nine points and 10 assists. He finished the tournament with 29 assists and just four turnovers in three games.

"It was motivation for us, playing in the championship here," Cleaves said. "Last year, we watched it on TV. This year, we really wanted to be in it. We wanted to win this tournament."

Kansas 53, Oklahoma St. 37
KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Kansas is still the Big 12's only postseason champion.

Lester Earl scored six of his 11 points in an 8-0 run and the Jayhawks pulled away from weary Oklahoma State for a 53-37 victory Sunday in the championship game of the Big 12 tournament.

"We just went out and outworked them and wore them down," said Earl, playing 20 minutes in one of his finest games in a season spent rehabilitating a knee injury.

"We went out there focused and shut them down. You could tell with 10 minutes to go in the stretch that they were tired. When you get tired, you start to miss shots and turn the ball over. I don't mean to say anything bad about them, but they got a little sloppy. You get sloppy when you get tired."

Kansas (22-9) improved to 9-0 in the tournament and won the third postseason title since the league was formed, earning the automatic bid to the NCAA's field of 64.

"I challenged them last night," Jayhawks coach Roy Williams said. "I said, 'We've won this thing every time. I take a great deal of pride in coming here and winning.'"

The Jayhawks, who needed a free throw by Ryan Robertson with no time left in overtime to beat Oklahoma State on Feb. 22, have won eight straight over the Cowboys.

Duke 96, North Carolina 73
CHARLOTTE, N.C. — Duke's undefeated march through the Atlantic Coast Conference was unprecedented. The way the No. 1 Blue Devils did it was even more staggering.

Duke added yet another 20-point ACC rout to its resume by defeating No. 15 North Carolina 96-73 in the conference championship game Sunday.

The win was the 27th straight for the Blue

Deviils (32-1) and completed an unbeaten run through the ACC regular season and postseason at 19-0. Four other league teams have run the table, but those occurred during 12- and 14-game ACC regular-season schedules.

"No one can ever do this better," coach Mike Krzyzewski said following the third largest victory margin by a team in the ACC finals. "Someone can do it as well, unless we add more teams to the league, which I hope they don't do."

Duke won its three ACC tourney games by a record victory margin of 25 points, topping the 1964 Duke team that won it by an average margin of 23.

"Nineteen-and-0, even if they were one-point wins is impressive," Krzyzewski said. "Our kids have just played hard all year long. I don't think they have placed any pressure on themselves. It seems like they've always had fun playing."

"I don't remember a team dominating the league the way they have," added North Carolina coach Bill Guthridge. "They've just taken everybody apart."

Kentucky 76, Arkansas 63
ATLANTA — After losing to Tennessee to the final regular-season game, Kentucky hardly looked like a team capable of defending its national championship.

A week later, the Wildcats have changed that perception.

No. 14 Kentucky, atoning for what had been considered a disappointing season, used a 16-0 spurt at the end of the first half and beginning of the second to beat No. 22 Arkansas 76-63 Sunday and win the Southeastern Conference tournament.

"We lost a lot of guys from last year and had a lot of new faces," said Scott Padgett, who scored 20 points and was honored as tournament MVP. "We all wish we could have jelled quicker, but we're starting to jell now."

Kentucky (25-8) had its most regular-season losses since the 1989-90 season, including four defeats in the final seven games. The Wildcats lost the Eastern Division title to Tennessee with a 68-61 loss on Feb. 28.

But the SEC tournament always brings out the best in Kentucky, which upset No. 4 Auburn in the semifinals before wearing down Arkansas in the final.

"We sat down after the Tennessee game and looked at some film," Padgett said. "We realized there weren't a lot of major things we needed to work on, just some minor things. We made a goal to be 9-0 in the postseason. We're 3-0 right now."

Chidley wins debut at No. 1

Iowa defeated Southern Illinois and Northern Iowa on Saturday at the Rec Building.

By Lisa Colonna
The Daily Iowan

All J.R. Chidley could do was smile.

In the Iowa men's tennis team's second victory on Saturday, Chidley defeated Northern Iowa's Johannes Hellstrom, 6-2, 6-7, 6-2, in the No. 1 singles position.

"This was the first time I have played No. 1 and I came out on top," Chidley said. "I just didn't finish the match soon enough."

Chidley and the rest of the Hawkeyes moved up two positions in the lineup against Northern Iowa to fill in for sophomores Tyler Cleveland and Tom Buetikofer, who sat out the team's second dual of the day.

Iowa defeated the Panthers, 6-1, after defeating Southern Illinois in an earlier dual, 7-0, in the UI Recreation Building. The Hawkeyes improved their record to 6-3.

"I didn't want to push them, since they would have had four matches in one day," coach Steve Houghton said of Cleveland and Buetikofer. "They both have minor injuries. It was good to see we could get by without them." Cleveland and Buetikofer did compete against the Salukis and came away with victories in the Nos. 1 and 2 positions.

Singles play, overall, was a strong area for Iowa on Saturday. Out of 12 singles matches played, the Hawkeyes won 11. Chidley, a junior, senior Ulf Jentler, freshman Petar Mandic and sophomore Jason Dunn won both of their singles matches.

"Our singles were really good," assistant coach Charley Darley said. "These are teams that we should have beaten and we played aggressively and with lots of intensity."

Although singles play remained strong for the Hawkeyes, doubles play left something to be desired, despite what the final score read, according to Houghton.

Saturday, the Hawkeyes took five of six doubles matches and won both doubles points.

"Our doubles play has to be better," Houghton said. "We are slipping back to the old days."

Last season, many of the Hawkeyes' losses could be directly attributed to not winning the doubles point and the team has focused on doubles play this season to prevent that from happening again.

Kelly Etzel/The Daily Iowan

Iowa's Ulf Jentler returns a ball Saturday against Southern Illinois.

The Hawkeyes will compete in California over spring break against Yale, Connecticut and Utah.

According to senior Ben Bamsey, the two victories over the weekend were good preparation for these upcoming matches.

"It was a good team effort," said Bamsey, who won at No. 5 singles against the Panthers. "It was good to beat them and beat them with confidence. These wins will get us in the right state of mind for spring break."

Hawkeyes notch easy win in Chicago

No. 3 Iowa defeated Illinois-Chicago, 228.9-224.15.

By Robert Yarborough
The Daily Iowan

The Iowa men's gymnastics team traveled to Chicago on Saturday riding an emotional high after a big win over No. 2 Michigan last weekend.

The Hawkeyes moved up to third in the nation and were hoping to raise their national ranking with a high team score against Illinois-Chicago. With the addition of Brian Hamilton to the lineup, Iowa easily doused the Flames, 228.9-224.15.

For the second consecutive week, Iowa earned its highest team score of the season. The Hawkeyes improved their record to 11-1.

"It seems like throughout the season, we have put together four solid events, and then lose valuable points on one or two other events," Iowa coach Tom Dunn said. "We are looking to improve that statistic and coming into this weekend that was the major focus - consistency."

Iowa rose to the challenge, tallying five of the top six spots on both floor exercise and parallel bars. Due to the fact that Todd Strada competed in only three events, Shane deFreitas was given the opportunity to compete all-around. DeFreitas finished second overall at 55.0 and claimed the parallel bars title with 9.75 points.

Hamilton had a pair of second-place finishes on vault and high bar at 9.65, while Strada took the pommel horse victory with a 9.8.

With two-and-a-half weeks remaining before the Big Ten Championships, Hamilton feels it is time for Iowa to start making its move.

"These next couple weeks will be all about consistency and solid hits," Hamilton said. "Illinois-Chicago is a good team, and if we do our job, I still think we can beat anyone."

Iowa travels to Tempe, Ariz., on March 19 for its final tune-up before hosting the Big Ten Championships at Carver-Hawkeye Arena the following weekend.

"It is really important for us to bring (the Big Ten) title back," team captain Adrian Johnston said. "These meets are being used to refine performances and we expect to see the scores rise as we get closer to the big meets."

MEN'S TRACK AND FIELD

Yamini settles for 13th at national indoor meet

By Matt Bowen
The Daily Iowan

Bashir Yamini found out just how hard it is to repeat as a champion.

After taking the national indoor title last year in the long jump, Yamini finished 13th at the NCAA Indoor Track Championships in Indianapolis on Friday.

Going into the competition with an ankle injury, Yamini jumped 24 feet, 3 inches, far shorter than his season-best 25-6 1/2.

Yamini hurt the ankle during competition at the Big Ten meet last weekend and the effects were seen at the national meet.

"We never anticipated it would cause him a problem," Iowa coach Larry Wiecek said. "It didn't affect him while he was running."

Maurice Wignall of George Mason University took the long jump crown with a jump of 26-1 1/2. Dwight Phillips of Arizona State finished second with a jump of 25-3 1/2.

"Bashir would have challenged for the top spot if he wasn't injured," Wiecek said. "He just couldn't get up off of it."

The meet could have been Yamini's last performance in track and field this season. He might redshirt during the outdoor season to concentrate on spring football.

The Hawkeyes' outdoor season begins on March 20 in Los Angeles.

Morris helps team break record

Former Iowa track and field star Andre Morris was part of a record-breaking day at the World Indoor Track Championships in Maebashi, Japan, over the weekend.

Morris was a member of the United States' 1,600-meter relay team that broke the world record in the event with a time of 3:02.83.

BASEBALL

Hawkeyes drop a pair to St. Louis

The Iowa baseball team dropped two more games over the weekend to St. Louis, losing to the Billikens 7-6 on Saturday and 7-5 on Sunday.

Originally, the teams were scheduled to play three games, but due to cold weather, the third game was not played. Temperatures in St. Louis were in the high 20s to lower 30s.

In Saturday's game, St. Louis led 2-0 after three innings, but the Hawkeyes scored four runs in the fourth to take the lead at 4-2. Iowa (2-7) had six extra base hits in the game, including two triples from lead-off man Brian Burks and a home run by Brad Carlson.

However, the Billikens rallied for five runs to come out with the win.

Iowa never saw the lead in Sunday's game. Starting pitcher Steve Rasmussen gave up six runs, five of them earned, in 4 1/2 innings of work. Iowa had a rally of its own in the eighth and ninth innings, scoring three runs, but Billiken Brad Wehrfritz closed out the game with two strikeouts to seal the St. Louis victory.

IOWA WRESTLING NOTEBOOK

Uker, Jenn and Heidt rise to the occasion

Iowa's problems stemmed from the struggles of Wes Hand and Gabe McMahan.

By Tony Wirt
The Daily Iowan

ANN ARBOR — Going into the 1999 Big Ten Championships, Iowa coach Jim Zalesky knew he was going to need a strong contribution from his lower-seeded wrestlers

He got it. If it wasn't for some upsets over a few of his higher-seeded wrestlers, it would have been enough for Iowa's 26th consecutive Big Ten Championship.

"(Ben) Uker, (Paul) Jenn, (Jamie) Heidt — those guys really sucked it up for us," Zalesky said.

Heidt came up the biggest for the Hawkeyes, winning a Big Ten title at 157 pounds. The senior emerged as one of Iowa's strongest wrestlers for the weekend, earning the Outstanding Wrestler Award after defeating three wrestlers seeded in the top five.

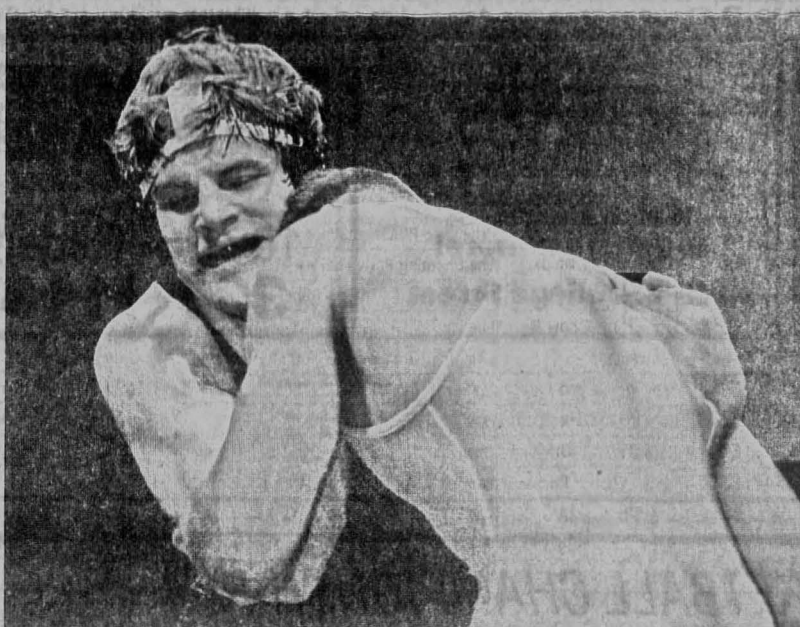

"I made the commitment and took the challenge of winning a Big Ten title," Heidt said. "I watched (Doug) Schwab step it up this year, I've watched T.J. Williams and I've watched (Lee) Fullhart. I saw what they had, and I wanted it too."

Jenn and Uker also wrestled above their seedings.

Uker, a senior, pinned third-seeded Peter Rogers of Ohio State in 2:46. After losing to second-seeded Josh Holiday in the semifinals, Uker wrestled back to the third-place match, where he was defeated by No. 5 Bill Zeman.

Jenn also wrestled back to a fourth-place finish after losing to top-seeded and eventual champion Brandon Eggum.

"(Uker and Jenn) really turned it around," assistant coach Tom Brands said. "They really came on, and I feel really good about where we can go from here."

Brian Ray/The Daily Iowan

Iowa's Lee Fullhart and Minnesota's Tim Hartung mix it up during their 197-pound championship match Sunday in Ann Arbor, Mich. Hartung won, 2-1.

Road-mat advantage?

Black and Gold filled the stands at Michigan's Crisler Arena, giving the Iowa team more fan support than any other team there, including the host school.

"We almost take the fan support for granted, but it's great having everyone around," 184-pounder Paul Jenn said. "I like it a lot. It makes it even better when you win."

Not only were the fans supporting their Hawkeyes, but their second-favorite team seemed to be anyone facing a wrestler from the University of Minnesota.

Many of the fans came in two Hawk buses, sponsored by the H.A.W.K. Club, a group of wrestling boosters.

The group also plans to take a similar-sized group to the NCAA Tournament, which will be held in two weeks at Penn State University.

Schwab gets a scare

During his opening-round win against Indiana's James Torres, Hawkeye 141-pounder Doug Schwab almost found himself making an early exit from the championship round.

In the last 30 seconds of the second period, Schwab tried to turn Torres and ended up getting flipped onto his back. The Osage, Iowa, native quickly squirmed out, but not fast enough for the Indiana fans, who thought their man had scored the fall.

"I left my head down too long on a single leg," Schwab said. "I was out of position, but I ended up get-

Gable in the house

Former Iowa coach Dan Gable was present for Iowa's first Big Ten loss in 25 years. Although he was disappointed with the outcome, he saw many ways where this could help the Hawkeyes regain their dominance in the long run.

"(Zalesky) will use this to get more out of his assistants and his athletes," Gable said. "This should make him a more confident coach. It's hard to make needed changes when you're always winning. You'd like to see them made when you're winning, but I'm not sure that can happen."

Looking to nationals

The Hawkeyes qualified nine of their 10 wrestlers for this month's NCAA Championships in State College, Penn. The only starter who will not be wrestling is 125-pounder Ben Kritsonis.

Heavyweight Wes Hand, who did not automatically qualify with his eighth-place finish, was awarded one of the two wild-card spots.

That selection caused some controversy among Minnesota supporters, who thought 141-pounder Chad Erickson was more deserving.

"With Iowa's past dominance, people just expected Hand to get the wild card," Gopher coach J. Robinson said. "Granted, he had the No. 3 ranking, but he didn't wrestle today. He didn't want to be there. Erickson got hurt in his second match, and battled back in the toughest weight class there."

NCAA MEN'S TOURNAMENT ANALYSIS

Blue Devils could be unbeatable

The tournament's other top seeds — Auburn, UConn and Michigan State — will be hard-pressed to beat Duke.

By Jim O'Connell
Associated Press

The question was first heard in early February. Is Duke going to lose a game in the Atlantic Coast Conference this season?

When the Blue Devils capped a first-ever 16-0 league season with a 20-point win at North Carolina last weekend, the question changed. Can anybody beat these guys?

After this weekend's ACC tournament, which the Blue Devils ripped through with three wins by an average of 25 points, the question was altered again. Can anybody stay close to these guys?

Welcome to the 1999 NCAA tournament, the 64-team competition with the subtitle: "Is second place really so bad?"

What makes the Blue Devils such a heavy favorite is a 32-1 record, a 27-game winning streak, only three wins by less than double figures and 13 by 30 or more. Then there are all-conference players like Trajan Langdon, Elton Brand and William Avery.

Don't forget Mike Krzyzewski, the coach who has led Duke to seven Final Fours and two national championships. There's even a tinge of revenge as the Blue Devils had one of their most devastating losses ever last year to Kentucky in the regional final at St. Petersburg, Fla., the site of this year's Final Four.

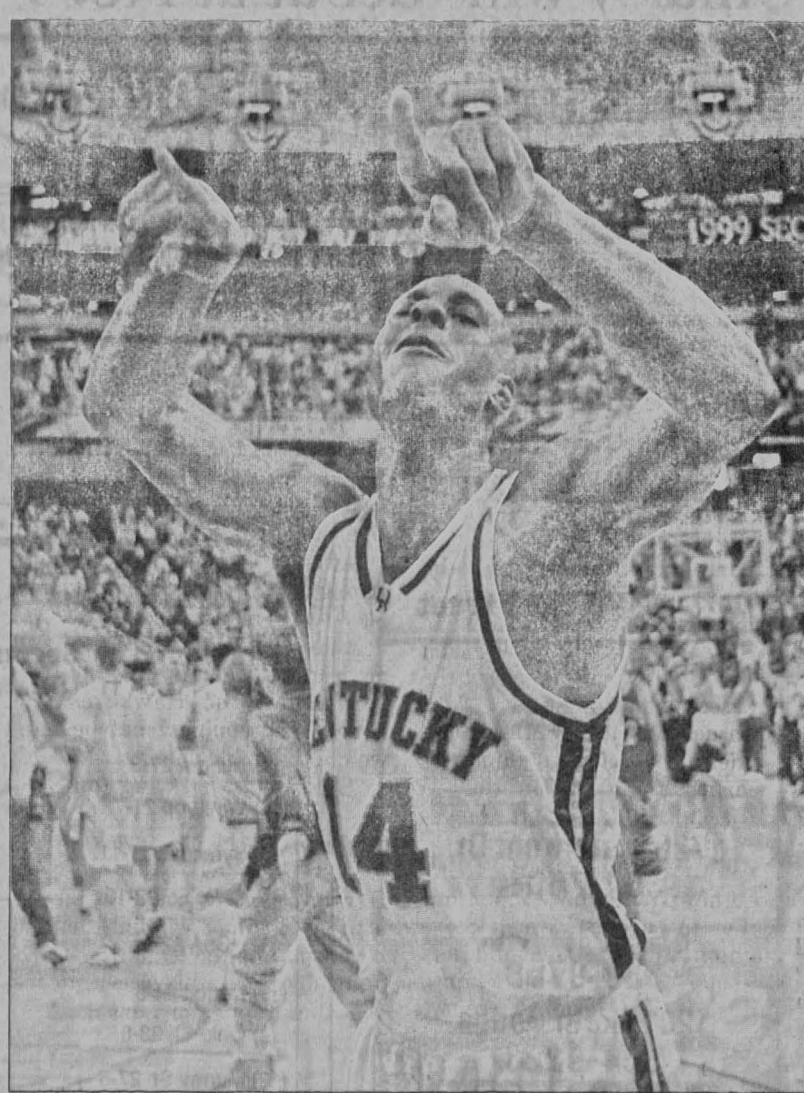

How can anybody pick against Duke?

The Blue Devils will cruise to the East Regionals at the Meadowlands, their favorite Final Four launching pad, with wins over Florida A&M and College of Charleston, and will be joined there by Wisconsin, Cincinnati and Miami.

Cincinnati, the only team to beat the Blue Devils this season, just won't have the last-second heroics it did in that Nov. 28 game in the Great Alaska Shootout.

The Blue Devils will play the Midwest Regional champion in the national semifinals.

Look for Kentucky to be that team as the defending national champion makes a Dukelike fourth straight Final Four appearance. The Wildcats will stave off some scares, however, as sixth-seeded Kansas, with its lowest seeding since 1988, makes some noise in the second round and Utah, the team Kentucky beat for the title last season, provides a regional semifinal thriller.

The Wildcats will make their trip to St. Petersburg after a regional final win over North Carolina Charlotte, the team that will grab the nation's attention with solid play and kiss-blowing 3-point shooter Diego Guevara.

The South Regional will have the best of the second-round story lines when George Washington meets its former coach, Mike Jarvis, and St. John's. The second round will also have the first of the No. 1 seeds leaving when Syracuse stuns Auburn.

Syracuse will run out of luck against Ohio State in the regional semifinals and the Buckeyes' game against Maryland in the final will also be a former Boston College coaches reunion.

Maryland's Gary Williams will get his first Final Four appearance, carried there with a sensational tournament from guard Steve Francis.

The Terrapins' opponent in the national semifinals will be Connecticut, another team led by a coach, Jim Calhoun, making his Final Four debut.

The Huskies will have some fun running their way past Missouri in the second round and Arkansas in the third.

Stanford and North Carolina will get back within a game of returning to the Final Four for a second straight year. The Tar Heels will get second-year coach Bill Guthridge back there but the rematch of last year's regional final with Connecticut won't turn out as well.

The Final Four will have Duke getting revenge on Kentucky for last year's game and Connecticut prevailing in what should be an entertaining game that doesn't need a shot clock.

NCAA WOMEN'S TOURNAMENT

Eight SEC teams selected to field of 64

Top-ranked Purdue is the No. 1 seed in the Midwest.

By Chuck Schoffner
Associated Press

Tennessee, Purdue, Louisiana Tech and Connecticut received the top seeds Sunday in the NCAA women's basketball tournament, which has a decided Southeastern Conference flavor.

Eight SEC teams made the field of 64, a record for one conference. That contingent is headed by Tennessee, the regular season and conference tournament champion and winner of the last three national championships.

The second-ranked Lady Vols (28-2) were made the No. 1 seed in the East Regional. They'll begin their quest for a fourth consecutive title and eighth overall against Appalachian State (14-14), the Southern Conference representative, at home on Saturday.

Top-ranked Purdue (28-1) heads the bracket in the Midwest, third-ranked Louisiana Tech (26-2) is the top seed in the West and sixth-ranked Connecticut (27-4) is the No. 1 seed in the Mideast.

The tournament begins at eight sites Friday. The remaining first-round games are Saturday, also at eight sites.

The other SEC teams named to the field were Alabama, Auburn, Florida, Georgia, Kentucky, Louisiana State and Mississippi State. All are veterans of NCAA play except Mississippi State, which will be making its first appearance.

"Eight teams from the SEC is a reflection of the parity from top to bottom," Tennessee coach Pat

Summitt said. "I think most folks would tell you that one through those top eight or nine ... you go into the arena knowing you have to play strong basketball to win."

Connecticut claimed a No. 1 seed after bouncing back from a rash of injuries at midseason, when the Huskies lost three of six games. They've won 12 of 13 since then, including an impressive three-game run through the Big East tournament on Sunday.

The unseeded 17-year-old, ranked 21st in the world, eliminated Davenport 6-4, 6-2. "It was good for me," Williams said after the victory. "I wasn't hitting that well. ... I was really mentally focused, and I really was mentally there. It was a good win for me."

A baseball barrier falls: Orioles to play in Cuba

Major league baseball is returning to Cuba for the first time in 40 years, completing a deal Sunday in which the Baltimore Orioles will play the Cuban national team on March 28 in Havana.

"If this produces the kind of human results that we're all hoping it does, this could be something really big," baseball commissioner Bud Selig said. "I'm very proud of the role we will play in doing something constructive — that transcends baseball."

The Cuban team will play a return exhibition game at Camden Yards. The second game will be played either just before Baltimore starts the regular season April 5 or on an off day during the season.

SPORTS BRIEFS

Unhappy Cowens resigns

FORT MILL, S.C. — Dave Cowens resigned as coach of the Charlotte Hornets on Sunday, unhappy with being one of the NBA's lowest-paid coaches after leading the team to unprecedented success in his first two seasons.

Cowens informed the players of his decision before practice Sunday, then left the training facility. General Manager Bob Bass announced at an evening news conference that Cowens had submitted a letter of resignation.

The team did not announce an immediate successor, but the players were told it will be assistant Paul Silas, who played with Cowens for the Boston Celtics in the 1970s. Bass said the announcement of the interim coach would be made today.

Jeff Burton wins battle of brothers in Las Vegas

LAS VEGAS (AP) — Brothers who race cars for a living dream about this type of finish.

Side-by-side with the checkered flag looming and only a handful of laps ahead, Jeff and Ward Burton duelled Sunday in the Las Vegas 400.

In the end, it was Jeff, the younger of the brothers from South Boston, Va., who pulled away to victory. But it was a thrill for both of them.

"That's awfully stressful," Jeff said. "I'm a big fan of Ward Burton's. I want Ward to do well, and to sit there and try to beat him is really hard."

"We were door-to-door and all but rubbed a couple of times. But we always want it to come down to the end like that. The next time he'll get me."

Ward, six years older and with five fewer Winston Cup wins than his brother's six, said: "I wasn't giving him an inch. I was trying to crowd him as good as I could without wrecking him. You don't want to wreck your brother."

Elaine Thompson/Associated Press

Seattle's Ken Griffey Jr. watches the flight of his third-inning home run Sunday against San Diego.

McGwire hits first home run of spring

The Associated Press

On the day Mark McGwire hit his first home run of 1999, the Texas Rangers also had a big blow.

First baseman Rafael Palmeiro had surgery Sunday to repair torn cartilage in his right knee and will be sidelined 4 to 6 weeks, probably causing him to miss the start of the season.

Palmeiro, who played with the Rangers from 1989-93 before re-signing during the offseason, also had surgery on the knee on Feb. 10. He was working out with the club and had been expected to return by the end of the week, but reinjured his knee while jogging Thursday. Dr. John Conway operated on the knee Sunday at Fort Worth, Texas.

"I've been told there's a chance he'll be ready for opening day," Rangers manager Johnny Oates said. "I don't know how accurate that is, but I'm going to go on that. I'm just trying to make plans for the last few days knowing that this would be a possibility."

McGwire hit a trademark shot high over the left-field wall in the St. Louis Cardinals' 6-1 win over the Montreal Expos at Jupiter, Fla.

Coming off his record-breaking season of 70, McGwire wasted no time finding his home-run swing. The three-run drive came in just his second official at-bat of the spring.

"It's nice to get it out of the way," McGwire said. "But it's only spring training."

Across the state in Tampa, the New York Yankees were worried about Andy Pettitte. He walked off the mound after three warmup pitches in the second inning of a 6-5 win over the Minnesota Twins, saying his left elbow was stiff.

An hour later, after an MRI exam at St. Joseph's Hospital, the Yankees said Pettitte has a "mild muscle strain." He had thrown just seven pitches in the first inning. Pettitte missed his first batting practice session this spring because of the same problem.

"There was no significant tenderness, no swelling," Yankees team physician Dr. Stuart Hershon said. "The preliminary studies look good. We won't have a complete answer on that until tomorrow, but so far everything looks good. It was a precautionary thing to do."

At Vero Beach, Fla., Kevin Brown allowed one run and two hits in three innings with three strikeouts as the Dodgers tied the New York Mets 2-2, his first game for Los Angeles since signing a record $105 million, seven-year contract.

He gave up a home run to Edgardo Alfonzo, throwing 43 pitches — 27 for strikes — in his first outing since losing Game 4 of the World Series for San Diego against the New York Yankees.

Hawk men, women break four pool records

By Todd Hefferman
The Daily Iowan

When Iowa freshman Ales Abersek broke the UI Field House record for the 200-yard butterfly Saturday night at the Iowa Senior Championships, he was a little shocked.

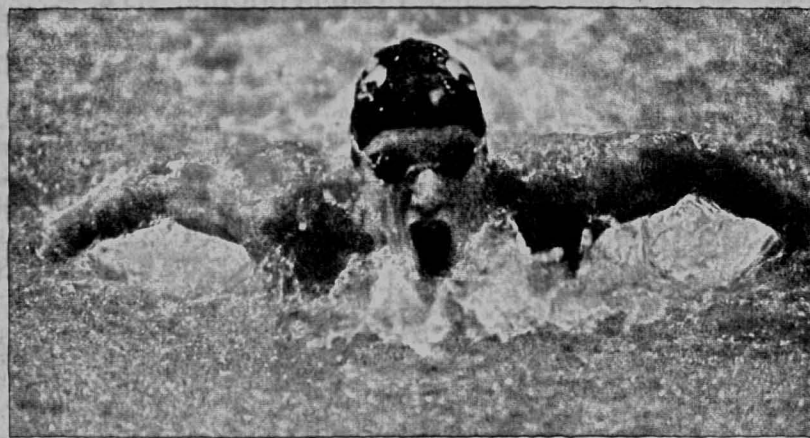

He probably shouldn't have been, because ever since joining the Hawkeyes' men's swimming team in January, he's led the team in the butterfly, and he finished fifth at the Big Ten Championships in the 200 about a week ago.

"I was quite surprised. I didn't know, but then Marc Long said that I swam a pool record, and I became quite happy."

Abersek was the first to break a pool record in the three-day invitational, but he wasn't the last. Three swimmers from the women's team also cracked Field House marks.

Sophomore Andrea Pennington, junior Alisha Stitts and sophomore Loredana Zisu all shattered previous pool records. Pennington broke her own record in the 100 breaststroke about 10 minutes after Abersek broke the 200 butterfly mark on the men's side.

Zisu won three events at the Iowa Senior Championships, breaking the pool record in the last victory, a win in the 100 backstroke. It was the first pool record for Zisu, even though she holds four individual Iowa records, and was part of three relay teams that set Iowa records this season. Earlier, Zisu won the 50 freestyle and the 200 individual medley.

Stitts broke the Field House pool record in the 200 breaststroke, finishing in 2:18.19. The Hawkeye women also had wins in the 200 medley relay, the 400 freestyle relay, the 500 freestyle and the 1,650 freestyle. Sophomore Becca Schwartz won the 500 while junior Cristina Vintila won the 1,650.

The Hawkeyes were the only collegiate team in the invitational, which featured swimming club teams from across the state. The Bettendorf Swim Club had 1,128.5 points to lead after the first 29 events, even though the Hawkeyes won every event they entered except for the 400 individual medley.

SOFTBALL

Hawks defeated in quarterfinals

The 23rd-ranked Iowa softball team advanced to the quarterfinals of the South Florida Speedline Invitational Saturday before being eliminated by Mississippi, 1-0.

The Hawkeyes played seven games in the tournament, winning five. Their record now stands at 8-4.

"We saw what we hopes would be a natural progression for a team at this tournament," Iowa coach Gayle Blevins said. "Our pitching staff had an excellent weekend."

Iowa advanced to the quarterfinals with a 3-0 victory over Big Ten rival Purdue. Kelly Zeistra threw her fourth consecutive shutout, improving her record to 4-2. She struck out five in a four-hitter.

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Reggie Miller scored 16 points and Rik Smits added 14 Sunday as the Indiana Pacers rebounded from their worst loss of the season with a 85-72 victory over the Miami Heat.

Indiana lost to Miami by 11 points in their first meeting at Market Square Arena three weeks ago and by 19 points to Golden State on Friday, their only home losses of the season. This time, the Pacers built a 16-point lead and then held off the Heat in the closing minutes.

TORONTO — Vince Carter scored 26 points and outplayed Paul Pierce in a matchup of two of the NBA's top rookies as the Toronto Raptors defeated the Boston Celtics 105-92 Sunday.
