Faculty Assembly axes popular CLEP test

By Carla Kindmann

The Daily Iowan

In an attempt to give in-state students more control over their educational experiences, the University of Iowa's Faculty Assembly has decided to remove the College Level Examination Program's Chemistry and Biology exams, which are administered in a university classroom by students who would normally take them in their home communities.

The test was offered every spring to students entering the University of Iowa who took the Advanced Placement exam in high school and were able to demonstrate their knowledge of the subject through a high school chemistry or biology class.

According to the Faculty Assembly's announcement, the CLEP test was removed because it was seen as a way for students to "quickly and easily get college credits without taking courses that would normally be taught in their home communities."

Questions lingering following Naperville murder

Neighbors in this aging Chicago suburb seek answers after a mother was charged with murdering her twin children. After the slayings, police found the bodies of 3-year-old Nicholas, in their beds, and Thomas, 3, are kept.

No more wondering 'Is he sponge-worthy?'

The sponge, which disappeared from the market in 1998, is making a comeback.

By Laura Bergman
Associated Press

WASHINGTON - The most popular sneeze-creating controversy for women before it was pulled off the market in 1998 is back in U.S. drugstores.

A newly founded New Jersey company, Associated Sponge Inc., told the Associated Press Wednesday that the sponge from its previous incarnation, known as "secretary snot," is "spongeworthy" again.

Bessie Caravano, right, stands with her daughter Patricia, 17, Tuesday in her home in Juarez, Mexico. Caravano, one of the thousands of domestic workers who became pregnant while working in the maquiladoras, was turning up with such regularity that she had to leave her job.

"I got off and then I take off running because of how afraid I am," Caravano said.

Rodgers refused to come, he said. He was sleeping in a small room that he used during the day to change clothes and rest. He knew he had committed a crime.

"It was a crime that was committed in the middle of the night," Caravano said.

"I was very angry because of the violence and the terror."
Let's talk about sex and self-respect

What's the connection between self-esteem and sexual activity? I'm worried that college students are losing touch with their own bodies, doing what they want for the sake of self-expression, without caring whether or not that feels good to them.

"Self-esteem," in an attitude or opinion, approval and regard toward oneself is gaining a lot of attention these days. However, a strong sense of self-esteem is important to students. If you feel good about yourself, you're more likely to do well in school and have a higher academic performance.

Many people are talking about the influence of self-esteem on everything from a personal social life to his or her academic performance. Without these traits, it seems hard to believe that self-esteem can also help you to achieve your goals.

Low self-esteem on the other hand, can be a major drawback for students. Some students might be less likely to pursue their dreams, and even more likely to give up on their goals. Other students might find it hard to express their true feelings, and might even feel like they're not good enough.

Student Health Service

One of our main priorities is helping you to feel your best. We want to be there for you whenever you need us, whether it's a mental health concern or something more everyday. Our goal is to help you be your best self.

I would also like to point out that while many students struggle with their self-esteem, this doesn't mean that they are alone. Many people have this struggle, and there is help available.

The problem is especially acute in regard to periodicals, an area in which prices have been skyrocketing. This is especially true for the University of Iowa, where the library system on campus is vast.

The proposed ideas, such as the push to update and modernize the library system on campus, are detailed in such publications. The UI Libraries have been forced to make changes to accommodate the needs of their students.

A revamped library may not be a sexy upgrade for the University, but it is important to students. While a new library may not be able to find necessary research materials, but they will definitely have a place to study at night.

The UI in recent years has been experiencing expensive renovations of the University. The Main Library is a building worth more than a million dollars, with its antiquated and outdated book should be replaced. With low self-esteem, we often feel like we're not good enough and that we're not living up to our potential.

With recent plans for more renovations, a new and improved University and increased resources, the UI Library is a place where students can thrive.

Local Hawkeye sports fans want more for their money

Army

It's the Big Ten and Jordan. And without Jordan, the Bulls just aren't the Bulls anymore. So what's a fan to do when the best parts of the team are gone? The answer is simple: fans want more. They want to see a change.

The decision to introduce ticket prices has caused a lot of the recent backlash. With the introduction of ticket prices, fans have been less likely to attend games because of the cost. This has led to an increase in ticket sales, which has been beneficial for the team.

What happens when you take away the fans? The answer is simple: Hawkeye fans are grieving.

Hawkeyes have always been known for their strong fan base. They seem to enjoy the games and are excited about the potential for a win.

When you lose your favorite part of the team, you lose something that is special. That's why it's important for fans to stay engaged and support their team. With a new head coach, we should see a change in the team's performance.

Elliott does it with stereo

I get that the theme of the year is "For the Love of Football," but that's not going to be the case for me. With a new head coach and several key players leaving, it's hard to be excited about the upcoming season.

The good news is that the Hawkeyes have put together some small wins, which could give them a boost in the conference. With a new head coach and several new players, the Hawkeyes can put together some small wins, which could give them a boost in the conference.

If you're looking for a new team to support, look no further than the Hawkeyes. They have put together some small wins, which could give them a boost in the conference.

2 Palestinians die in death sentence protest

A report of the increase in the use of capital punishment is causing an outrage from human rights groups.

By Susan Issad

RAFAT, Gaza Strip - Palestine police killed two teenagers yesterday in Rafat, Gaza Strip, amid reports of clashes with Israeli forces.

The two were among several Palestinians killed across the occupied West Bank, including Israeli police who killed two teen-age Palestinians in the West Bank city of Hebron.

The deaths came after Israeli forces entered Rafat, a Palestinian town near the West Bank city of Nablus, and opened fire on a crowd of protesters, according to witnesses.

It was unclear when Attar, 25, and his brother, 22, were killed.

The sentence brought protests from the Palestinian Authority, which has condemned the killings as a violation of human rights.

The United Nations has called for an investigation into the deaths and has urged both sides to refrain from using violence.

The protesters were demanding the release of prisoners held in Israeli jails.

DENVER — The bolt was the way Iowa sophomore Dean Oliver envisioned his first step to an NCAA tournament.

Iowa’s point guard was ruled out for a Denver men’s basketball tournament Saturday and returned to the floor when a shot was misfired from a 3-point range.

"He’s going to be there,"风景 said of his guard.

Iowa Freshman Colton Holdman helped the Hawkeyes in the second半场 of the game.

The hit was precisely 5 seconds into the game and the Hawkeye moment under Fry and his dressing room.

"It’s almost like when you’re growing up, you’re always thinking about winning and going to the Final Four,"风景 said. "It’s just something that’s always been around, but it’s been a long time.

Oliver will come off the bench for the first time since the Big 12.

"I’m hoping to be back to playing this weekend,"风景 said of his situation.

Oliver said prior to the tournament that he was still thinking about not having a chance to see the floor after his operation in November.

"I’m feeling a lot better,"风景 said of his situation.

McClure, the starting quarterback, has been in and out of the lineup because of injuries, but he's back for the Hawkeyes' game against Iowa State.

The Scarlet and Black will be the first black player on the Hawkeye roster.

It's a difficult situation. I tried to get away from the matter Wednesday. I've been thinking about the Iowa State game and playing at Kinnick, where I've played all my games. I want to go to Iowa and handle it at Kinnick.

When I went home after that game, my mother asked me, 'Jerry, I thought you were going to integrate the Hawkeye Conference, why are you all by yourself over there and the white players are all together?'

So in our family, that was always known as the segregated end play.

Now, the one that makes me laugh is the story of Jerry's father, who was a football player in the Hawkeye program.

One game, he says, Jerry was playing for Iowa State.

'You're playing for Iowa State,' his father said.

'Yes, but I'm playing at Kinnick,' Jerry replied.

Iowa - Thursday against Auburn, the top seed in the South Regional -Indianapolis. The blowout was expected. The 12th-seeded Hornets (20-11) got to the Final Four after a nine-game winning streak that included three times through (1998, 1999, 2001), this year's No. 1 seed, Michigan. The Hornets have made the cut in the last nine years.

Lakers-Hornets complete five-player deal

The Lakers and Hornets have formally completed the five-player deal that is about to end the Lakers' storied franchise. The Lakers have acquired forwards Jacques Roy and Tyrone Glasser from the Hornets.

North Carolina-New Mexico will play for the first time since 1986, when the Tar Heels won 72-69.

The Hornet's revolting split-guard system seems economical, but not bad.

"Take Along," going through Map at the U. Museum of Art, portraying a feeling Los Angeles through an immigrant's eyes.

By Donna Thomas

Los Angeles has long been known as a city of wonder and possibly a place where the greatest dream can come true. But at an exhibition, called "song of the city," many of America's second generation is shown in a new light.

The exhibition, called "song of the city," is a collection of work by young emerging sculptors and photographers. The work is not only a reflection of the artist's own experience, but also a reflection of the artist's own vision.

Stephen Kazan's most recent work, "Song of the City," is a collection of prints titled "Muller." Kazan, a German photographer, uses a methodical palette that is look at the environment, "I have a wonderful sense of how to use color," Kazan said. For further information contact the museum at 202-327-1255.

"Leitch" will be on the plaza at the Civic Center Museum at 11:30 a.m.

The sculpture is a great deal larger than its original size. Kazan captured her work with a wonderful sense of how to use color.

Breaking way from the madding crowd

Every year, some mysterious force seems to lure hundreds of thousands of beings to gather, march into the fray of sun and storms, through the blackest nights and brightest days, and together to create a world of dreams. What is it that draws us? What is it that makes us want to be part of this strange, incredible, and wonderful event? Do we go to have fun? Do we go to meet new people? Do we go to create art? Or is it something more? Is it something that we can never really understand?

No one really knows. But everyone who has been a part of this amazing event knows that it is something that we all need to be a part of. It is a time when we can let go of our worries and our problems, and just be in the moment. It is a time when we can be ourselves, and be free.

So the next time you are thinking about going to a festival, think about what it is that is drawing you. Is it a desire to experience something new? Is it a desire to connect with others? Is it a desire to create something beautiful? Whatever it is, remember that it is waiting for you at the festival. And make sure that you are ready to let go, to be open, and to create.

Big night nears for glitz crowd

LOS ANGELES — As the Academy Award winners return to the Summit for the first time this year, the stars are already taking shape in their own Hollywood fashion.

"The Lord of the Rings: The Return of the King," "King Kong," and "Charlie’s Angels" have all won major awards, and the stars are already looking forward to the presentation of their work.

"This is a group of people who have been working hard for a long time," said one star, who declined to be named.

"We’re looking forward to the recognition," said another.

Quartet fits perfectly at the UI

The Maia String Quartet will finish its residency with a concert in Clapp Hall Friday.

By Lisa Home

Heading up the four-person quartet of its residency, the members of the Maia String Quartet feel that their music is in the hearts of their audience.

"We take a lot of pride in the journey that our music has," said Elizabeth Oakes, who plays viola in the quartet. "It's like a community, and we're a part of it."

The Maia String Quartet, which includes violinists Andrew H. Williams and Ralf Kotterman, do a lot of outreach with schools and community organizations to reach active listeners.

"Several of us started in the public school system," said Thomas S. Sturm, an assistant art dealer in New York. "We have an affinity for the kids."

"I think it pays to be a legend," he added.

The quartet, which has been together since 1930, said they were inspired to form the quartet by the legendary Pierre Matisse Gallery, which was known for its representation of modernist artists and sculptors like Alexander Calder and Henri Matisse.

"The Pierre Matisse Gallery is the most important art dealer in New York," said Oakes. "I think it pays to be a legend."

Building on their educational residencies with Clapp Hall, the quartet will be in residence at the University of Iowa Arts, Texas, Chamber Music Festival, and at the city of Kasaquay, Japan.

"We've just been overwhelmed by how warm and open and kind the community is," said Kotterman.

"They're definitely aware of the basic traditions of the world they come from," he added. "They bring a lot of energy to the location, and they're very engaging.

The UI has been a perfect match for the Maia String Quartet, and the members would like to continue to be affiliated with the school.

"We're happy here," said Oakes. "It was a perfect match."

"This isn't our first visit," said Williams. "It's been on our tour schedule for years."

"The Pierre Matisse Gallery is the most important art dealer in New York," said Oakes. "I think it pays to be a legend."

"It's so nice," said Williams. "I think it pays to be a legend."

The quartet's concert is scheduled for tonight at 8 p.m. in Clapp Hall. Admission is free.
