NATO air strikes zero in on Serbs

Three captured U.S. soldiers faced charges by a Yugoslav military court.

By George Johnston Associated Press

Belgrade — Yugoslav (AP) — NATO used its air missiles to attack a ring around Yugoslav forces in Kosovo, where Serbs were causing a series of ethnic clashes and were threatening to flee with their people. Three U.S. soldiers captured by Yugoslavs charged.

A fighting force was moving to a Bridge to urge an end to the air strikes, but the Western alliance now has a mission. It is now to habilitate people who have fled into Kosovo, said Foreign Minister Miroslav Dacic.

Alleged attacks destroyed a bridge over the Danube River, a Yugoslav-NATO unit in Kosovo, where U.S. forces are stationed. The bridge had caused many setbacks to the Yugoslav army.

"The ring is closing around the Yugoslav forces," NATO Secretary-General Javier Solana and Thorbjoern Jagland, chairman of the international commission, said in a statement.

The order had caused many setbacks to the Yugoslav army, said Jagland.

Two trains jammed with more than 20,000 refugees at a railway station at Skopje, the capital.

NATO soldiers captured in routine reconnaissance operations on Friday, authorities said.

The soldiers had patrolled the area before: three times.

Belgrade — NATO forces have been in Kosovo for three months, and the former Yugoslavia's conflict has been on the radar of international observers.

Kumanovo, Macedonia (AP) — Three U.S. soldiers had patrolled the area before, but the former Yugoslavia's conflict has been on the radar of international observers.

The soldiers had patrolled the area before: three times.

"It was boring in the camp, and no times before tonight," said Tom Baker, a photographer for the New York Times, who was filming for the New York Times.

Baker spent time with the three soldiers at a bridge in the mountains along the border with Kosovo, a province of Yugoslavia's republic of Serbia.

The soldiers were mosaic officials and NATO officials on a mission.

NATO officials met with the three soldiers, but the soldiers were not captured.

Baker's encounter with the Yugoslav army was the second one to occur.

FLORIDA FIELD, CAMPUS NEWS — Magic Johnson's new entertainment venture, Magic Johnson/Ravens Entertainment, announced the signing of Snoop Doggy Dogg, one of the most controversial and popular artists in the hip-hop music business. Snoop Dogg, whose real name is Calvin Cordozar Broadus, Jr., has quickly become one of the hottest artists in the industry, selling over 7 million albums and selling out concerts worldwide. His latest album, "Ridin' Dirty," was released last month and has been a huge success, reaching number one on the Billboard charts. Snoop Dogg's music is characterized by its hard-hitting beats, thought-provoking lyrics, and raw honesty. His unique style and powerful voice have solidified his place as one of the most influential musicians in the genre. With this addition to the Magic Johnson/Ravens Entertainment lineup, fans can expect even more exciting content from one of the most dynamic and talented artists in music today. FIRE AT UL paint shop

The Fourth Iowa blaze in two weeks was the result of a spontaneous combustion of used paint filters.

By Steve Cowen

The 300 block of Iowa St.2

The UL Services Group North paint shop is the Iowa City structure to be affected by the presently-described paint fires commonly combined during Sunday morning.

Iowa City firefighters were called to the area, 101 W. Burlington St., at 6:49 a.m., fire officials said.

When the firefighters entered the building, they found smoke and smoke-filled paint tanks at the site.

Firefighters had pulled generators from the building is only a few hours from Iowa City.

The fire was before the arrival of the fire and rescued several of the fire and the fire officials said.

The fire began a few minutes after a worker was observed to dispose of used paint filter products.

Iowa City firefighters were called to the area, 101 W. Burlington St., at 6:49 a.m.

The fire was Iowa City's third in the past week and fourth in two weeks.

It is the first to affect UI property.

The three other fires damaged several buildings and UI students, some of whom provided.

(Report by Steve Cowen is on request.

Bigjio movie screen accidentally defaced

HOUSTON
Holstein would elaborate on any of the reports. He wanted to make an announcement for the theater's new entertainment - which has a total of four branches in Iowa City and Coralville - to afford to broaden the services of the screen.

"I'm very much looking forward," he said. "We're excited about the fact that we'll be able to offer more services to our customers."

The announcement was made to the public on Thursday night, as Holstein and his team were preparing for opening night.

"We have been working hard on this project for a long time," Holstein said. "And we're excited to finally get it off the ground and into the hands of our customers."

The theater is located at 1100 E. Market Street in Coralville, and will be open Monday through Saturday. Hours are from 10 a.m. to 10 p.m., with the theater closing at 10 p.m.

Corporate competition forces video store to close doors

In addition to cranking out a dozen albums and a half-dozen EPs, The Blue Meanies are now preparing to release a CD, several singles and a video. For these tasks, Bob Trondson and Billy Spunke have been visiting not only their own home state of Iowa but many others as well. A recent trip through Europe, Africa and the United States, it's certainly given a fine performance in the group's history.

The group plans to use its recentEuropean tour as a backdrop for a new album, due to be released later this year. Spunke says, "It's nice to see the world through a band's eyes. We've been to places we never thought we'd go before."

Describe your sound?

Spunke: Our sound is like raving punk rock--it's not something new. We don't want to be heard as anything—it's a bad time to be a punk nowadays when people try to look to us.

Trondson: You take a listener to the Big Meanies. We're a group that has no bounds.

Why, generally, in your opinion?

Spunke: Usually we get a high school and college audience. I think it's because we're the only ones doing all those shows, and most other punks don't want to be the noreferrer punk rock band that's been around for a few years and is still with us.

What's your influence?

Spunke: All the music around us influences us; nonetheless, we do the opposite. We wear jeans and do what we want to wear.

Trondson: Being punk rock, the influence is punk rock. Billy Spunke is an influence.

Trondson: Being punk rock, the influence is punk rock. Billy Spunke is an influence.

What is the strangest thing you have experienced at one of your shows?

Spunke: Well, we did one time in Maryland when people thought we were a band. The last time we were in Iowa City, we were playing at Gristmill, and this guy came up and put the belt on my back. I pulled him onto the stage to belt him on the back, and he said, "That's good punk rock!"

Zo! the real one, actually, I did.

Do you think the future of rock is punk?

Spunke: Yes, actually, I did.

Trondson: Well, it was a strange experience when punk rock was at its peak, and it's just that punk rock it's gone. We were a band of that era, and we're still around. Good sound played hard, and every time we're on stage we're always wearing our jeans and doing our own thing.

What is your favorite memory of rock or punk rock?

Spunke: The day we played in Johns Hopkins University, John Petter Center III (university), which is where the Blue Meanies played.

What's the strangest thing you have experienced as a musician?

Spunke: We've been called a woman who talks to the audience.

Investigations into Bush's past come up empty

However, the Texas governor is criticized for his silence on his past.

By Katie Falkowski

AUSTIN, Texas — Gov. George W. Bush's creation of a prospective adversary committee can't detract from what is now the most inconvenient obstacle among the state's Republican candidates. Bush has emerged from the media in recent weeks as a man who seems to be able to get things done, a candidate likely to win the nomination.

Bush has acknowledged doing things he shouldn't have done, but he has said he has learned from those mistakes. He has said he is a different person today than he was in the past.

Bush has been criticized for his treatment of his ex-wife, Laura, and his two sons, Jeb and Neil. He has also been criticized for his handling of the Iran-Contra affair, in which he was involved as an aide to President Ronald Reagan.

Bush has been working hard to distance himself from his past and to focus on his future. He has been traveling extensively, making speeches and appearing on television shows. He has also been meeting with members of Congress and political leaders to try to build support for his campaign.

Bush has been criticized for his handling of the Iran-Contra affair, in which he was involved as an aide to President Ronald Reagan. He has also been criticized for his treatment of his ex-wife, Laura, and his two sons, Jeb and Neil. Out of sight, out of their minds

Abusing their parking privilege

Forget all the free and mysteri­ous deaths, we have a far more burning question to answer: Who's taking up all the parking spaces in Iowa City?

What exactly do students who live on-campus need a car for at the UI? To drive from their residence halls, to the Pappajohn Business Building, I think not.

Or maybe they need it to drive from Flater to the Fieldhouse Restaurant & Bar and back, so they can be pulled over for an OWI. I guess that isn't either.

Let's face the facts: Students who live in the dorms just don't need cars. Everything they need is within walking or biking distance.

Classes, libraries, stores, movie theaters, restaurants, and even bars (which they only go to for dancing, of course) are just a short walk or ride away from all the residence halls.

Both the Old Capitol Mall and the Pedestrian Mall are within walking distance of most residence halls. Residents can buy their staple items — such as shampoo, paper and shoes — here. And those students who just can't make it to the latest Abercrombie & Fitch threads can probably spare 75 cents and take a city bus to Coral Ridge Mall.

A large part of the problem is that residence hall residents are using parking spaces intended for off-campus drivers, instead of parking in the storage lots, which is where these students are registered to keep their cars.

Obviously then, one of the simplest ways to cut down on parking problems would be to prohibit dorm residents from driving to the UI. Though it wouldn't solve the parking problem, it would free up a lot of spaces.

Change is required and it must start somewhere. It might as well be with the students who break the rules. Mary Mroch is a Daily Iowan writer.

Free bikes are the answer

Old, yellow bicycles may be no answer to the parking problem of lack of parking and transportation in Iowa City.

In a program run by the University of Iowa, called the Yellow Bike Campaign, student leaders are providing yellow bicycles for campus riding. The bikes, donated second-hand, are kept at recycling centers from downtown University of Iowa area. Students can rent the bikes at no cost for a few minutes of exercise and may take them away from campus as long as the bikes are eventually returned.

The implementation cost for this program is between $1,200 and $1,500, which includes purchasing the bikes, painting them and providing initial maintenance. The bikes are also stereo motors, which limits their appeal to those who would use them.

While such an idea may seem great in theory, in actual practice the program may have some success on campus but little success off campus. Other colleges around the nation have tried such programs and have had similar results, which limit their appeal to those who would use them.

A Hawkeye-Gold Bike Campaign can be the campus need.

Aside from the obvious health benefits of increased bicycle usage, students can gain mobility without having to wait for buses or in need of finding parking.

The more people bike, the less pollution that comes out of the bicycle and the more parking spaces that are freed up for campus use.

Free bikes are the answer, regardless of whether the program works. With the price of a bicycle, drivers are driving and students might have to go to other public transportation vehicles.

Ukrainian murderer gets death penalty

The man who killed 52 people claims he was guided by an unknown dark power.

By Sergei Prienok
Associated Press

KIEV, Ukraine—A Ukrainian who was convicted of murdering 52 people in 1994 was sentenced to death Thursday for murdering 52 people in Kiev on Oct. 5.

The man was convicted of murder and sentenced to death in 1995 for the killing of 52 people in Kiev.

The man's trial began Tuesday and ended Tuesday with the death sentence.

The man had appealed his murder conviction, saying he was acting under the influence of a supernatural force.

The man's attorney, Alexander Milonov, said his client was acting under the influence of a supernatural force.

Milonov said his client believed he was under the influence of a supernatural force.

The man had no previous convictions.

Steve A federal judge on Thursday said he had asked basketball coach and coach Norman Stewart, 64, if he was sure he wanted to retire from his job.

"I asked him, are you sure?" Athletic director Mike Alden, who was "shocked" by the news of Stewart's resignation Thursday, said to himself that day. "I wondered if he was right.

"On Wednesday he broke the news to them. On Thursday he told them his decision," Alden said.

"There was an emotional moment," Stewart said. "It was like 'Tell me the scoop, tell me the scoop.'

"I was getting ready for class that morning. I was thinking about stuff, thinking about class."

"There is no springboard, no reason that we're both personal and professional reasons that we're both personal and professional."

"I had springboard, I had the right to orchestrate his career and his future," Stewart said.

Stewart was "shocked," Alden said, when the inspiration for his motivation was the right to orchestrate his career and his future.

Steve Scott will look to become the oldest man to run a sub-4-minute mile at the Drake Relays this month.

By Chuck Schleeter
Associated Press

DES MOINES (AP) — Steve Scott, already an icon in the mile, will try for the goal now to become the oldest man to run a sub-4-minute mile at the Drake Relays this month. Scott, who'll be 43 May 6, will make the attempt April 22 at the Drake Relays. He will be one of five competitors trying to break the oldest to break the 4-minute barrier in a mile race.

"I don't know if it will produce anything," Scott said Thursday. "But it will be exciting for the people to remember that day."

Scott has broken the 4-minute barrier 138 times, including eight more under 3:50, and has a lone silver medal from the 1976 Olympic Games. He has missed the last sub-4 mile at 3:59.05 at 30.

The world record for the sub-4 mile is the 3:46.08 by British David Hemery in 1967. The fastest ever mile by a sub-4 winner is 3:46.05 in 1954.

Scott is not sure he has been able to break four minutes. It's very hard training for a sub-4. Scott was slowed by tendinitis in 1984.

"I'm 43 years old today," Scott said. "I know my body and I'm in very good shape."

TORONTO (AP) — Bucks center Scott Skiles scored career-highs of 31 points, including six in the final 3:00, and added 12 boards to help the Milwaukee Bucks beat the Indiana Pacers 107-88 over the Indiana Pacers on Thursday. The victory also capped the Bucks second 40-plus win season.

Carter also had 11 rebounds, six assists, two steals and three blocks for the Raptors.

Scott Pellerin scored twice and Mikael Renberg had a goal and an assist in a battle of teams heading fast toward finishing in the East.

Scott has already given up on the 6:00 barrier in an open mile at the Drake Relays later this month.

MONTREAL — Anson Carter, the NHL's leading scorer this regular season, had a goal and an assist as the Boston Bruins edged Nashville 3-2.

The Bruins needed a win to stay tied with the Rangers for the top spot in the East and tied the Blues for the league lead. Carter's goal came 13 seconds into the second period.

Ray Bourque, who lost the 1,000th game, scored for the Rangers.
