NATO fears new Serb atrocities in Kosovo

MTV VJ CONTEST

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia - Saving it showed restraint in deference to the Orthodox Easter holiday, NATO nonetheless hammered Serb targets in Kosovo on Sunday. Western officials, meanwhile, expressed growing alarm over reports of atrocities in the province and said a possible mass grave site had been spotted.

Shortly after nightfall, a missile struck a residential area of the northern city of Novi Sad, the official Tanjug news agency reported. The indepen-

Popovic, a city official, as saying a military barracks had been targeted. There were no casualities, he said.

Part of an oil refinery was hit near Pancevo, northeast of Belgrade, Beta quoted Mayor Srdjan Mikovic as saying. A car factory in the central Serbian town of Kragujevac that was seriously damaged last week was targeted again Monday, Tanjug reported.

Air-raid sirens also sounded in the capital, Belgrade, and the cities of Nis and Cacak.

In Belgium, NATO spokesman Jamie Shea showed aerial photographs

Kosovo capital, Pristina. He said from the air it appeared the ground had been freshly turned over, and that the site looked "somewhat similar" to aerial shots of mass graves seen during the war in Bosnia.

"I suspect ... that we are going to find more and more evidence of mass graves, mass executions, some pretty horrific stories," Defense Secretary William Cohen said on ABC's "This Week."

One aerial photograph, which officials said was taken over Pusto Selo, near Orahovac, showed what appeared to be two long parallel lines of mounds of a site in Pusto Selo, southwest of the in a clearing off a road with buildings scattered nearby and tracks in the ground that could have been left by military vehicles.

"The freshly turned earth could indicate possible mass graves," a spokesman for the allied military command, Col. Konrad S. Freytag, said

The photograph, if what it appears to show can be verified, would buttress refugees' accounts of atrocities, which have been impossible to verify since the journalists and foreign observers were expelled or evacuated from Kosovo last month.

Approximately 400,000 people have fled their homes and are hiding in forests and mountains, terrified of Serb forces, British Foreign Secretary Robin Cook said Sunday after talking to a Kosovar political leader in Kosovo. Cook said NATO holds Yugoslav President Slobodan Milosevic responsible for these "victims of his ethnic cleansing."

British officials also said about 100,000 Kosovar men are apparently missing. The estimate, based on fewer than expected men turning up among refugees crossing into Macedonia and Albania, revived speculation that the See KOSOVO, Page 8A

Holstein to teach 'Quest'

■ The popular religion professor will continue to teach one of his most- admired courses, though its size will be reduced.

> By Quinn O'Keefe The Daily Iowan

Amid changes in his course load, UI religion Professor Jay Holstein will continue to teach the popular course Quest for Human Destiny - but its size will be cut drastically.

The course's enrollment will drop from 700 to 150 beginning this fall.

The change in the course stems from a letter Holstein sent to UI President Mary Sue Coleman in February, requesting several changes. If the requests were not granted, Holstein said, he would stop teaching general education courses - namely, Quest and Judeo-Christian Tradition. He has since decided to continue teaching Quest, though he was removed from Judeo-Christian Tradition, said Robert Baird, chairman of the religion department.

"Quest is Holstein's course; he conceived of it and has been teaching it for the past 25 years," Baird said. "This was not the department's decision. He is teaching a third class, and he chose to teach Quest. We do not tell our faculty what to teach.' Holstein has yet to reveal the contents of his letter, except for a request to stop teaching in Macbride Auditorium.

"Teaching in Macbride Auditorium is no walk in the park," Holstein said in an April 4 interview. "Every student is important, and they deserve their money's worth. The whole setting is anonymous, and the students will not talk to me, so I don't know until midterms how much of the information they grasped."

In accordance with Holstein's wishes, Quest will be taught in a smaller auditorium, Baird said.

"The class will only enroll 150 students, because it was put into a lecture room that holds that many - at his request," Baird said.

Early last week, Linda Maxson, dean of the College of Liberal Arts, decided that Holstein will not contin-

UI sophomore Marisa Sullivan said the one thing she will try not to do this week is swear on national television.

The 19-year-old Wheaton, Ill., native was announced Sunday as one of 12 finalists in the MTV's "Wanna be a VJ Too" contest. She now gets an allexpenses paid trip to New York City and a chance to compete for $25,000, a new car and a job as an MTV VJ.

She was notified by phone on April 9 by last year's VJ winners, Jesse Camp and Dave Holmes. During her celebration, which included yelling and screaming, one of the words she uttered was censored by the music network.

"If it happens sometimes, it's funny," Sullivan said Sunday about swearing.
"I'll have to work on that all week. It'll be like an etiquette class.

After being bleeped by MTV, Sullivan was jokingly warned by Holmes to "watch that filthy mouth."

Easter weekend, spending the holiday with family, and she decided to stay in town for the entire week, missing classes, to get a shot at being an MTV VJ.

One thousand VJ wannabes waited in frigid temperatures in downtown Chicago on April 8 to be interviewed. Sullivan woke at 6 a.m. that day and spent more than 12 hours waiting in line with her boyfriend, Jeff Pickle, 21, of Chicago. She was No. 879 of 1,000.

Weston to speak on war in Kosovo

■ The Global Series organizer will talk today about NATO actions in the strife-torn Balkans.

> By Jill Barnard The Daily Iowan

When UI law Professor Burns Weston visited Kosovo six years ago, the situation in the region was similar to the present, so he could have predicted the current problems leading the area to the brink of war.

"There was a need for creative law diplomacy at the time," he said.

Now, with bombs dropping on the area daily, it is too late for predictions. But Weston, the organizer of the UI Global Focus lecture series, will share his wealth of knowledge in a lecture titled "The Crisis in Kosovo: Law and Policy," in the Levitt Auditorium at the College of Law today at 4 p.m.

Based on the situations he observed during two "mission" trips to Kosovo in 1992 and 1993, Weston will address two primary issues: whether the NATO action in Kosovo is lawful and whether it's wise.

When Weston expressed interest in speaking on Kosovo, N. William See WESTON, Page 8A

Help Me, Harlan

My boyfriend and I had been together for a couple months when he moved to the other side of the country. We wrote some and tried to maintain some sort of long-distance relationship, but it was tough. Now, he's moved back here, but things aren't as peachy. It seems he still loves me, and we certainly have a great time together, but for some reason he hasn't told me those three wonderful words. "I love you," since returning home. What's his problem? Should I ask him myself?

Dear Grayish,

You're going to need to approach him on his lack of love. You've said it before, and it's only natural to expect to say it again Let him know that whatever may be holding back those wonderful words is something that can be worked out over time.

My boyfriend and I recently began discussing marriage. When he was younger, he made several promises to himself regarding marriage. Most of the promises are valid (marry for love, wait until he is 28 to get married). However, one of the promises was that he would not marry a virgin. This is causing us some difficulty since I'm still a virgin. I've always felt that was something precious to share with my husband. Are we both being unrealistic? - Marriage Matters

Dear Marriage Matters,

He sounds like he's full of a lot more than promises. He's made promises to himself, and you've made promises to yourself. If you're both determined to keep your promises, I promise this relationship is in terrible trouble. Mr. Spontaneity needs to understand that marriage is about compromise. Just make sure you're absolutely ready. Pressuring you to have sex before you're ready isn't exactly all that loving.

■ The annual Latin dance event draws only half as many people as last year's fest.

> By Erin Crawford The Daily Iowan

Organizers brought in more than 1,000 feet of silver and red streamers and 200 balloons to celebrate a Latin dance festival Sunday night.

But they weren't able to muster the crowd for the Orquesta de Jazz y Salsa Alto Maíz that they had in years past due to a smaller venue and inconvenient scheduling.

Almost 300 people, down from last year's 600, salsa danced to the Latin jazz sounds of Alto Maíz for the annual celebration Gusto Latino at 9:30 p.m. Sunday.

There's a lot more people than I expected for a Sunday night," said Katie Waller, a UI freshman and International Crossroads Community member.

The audience was largely made up of high school students when the show started at 8 p.m. with more college students showing up as the evening wore on.

"It's not as good as last year, but it will probably pick up more," said City High junior Doug Galbreth. "There were a lot more people last year, and it was held in a bigger ballroom."

The Union Main Lounge had hosted the event in past years, but organizers were forced to move the dance to the smaller capacity second-floor ballroom due to funding cuts. Band and room reservation conflicts caused the event to be held on a Sunday night rather than a Friday or Saturday night, which organizers would have preferred.

Allison Hefley, an International Crossroads Community organizer and educational programmer, said the abundance of high school students was due to advertising that targeted local high schools. Some City High students were also offered extra credits in their Spanish class for attending the event. "A lot of high school kids come. We invite them each year," Hefley said. "It's a good opportunity for them to get music they can't get any other way."

Alto Maíz guitarist Steve Grismore agreed that the high school portion of the audience was important. "It's nice seeing a lot of young, young people here. It turns some more people onto our music," he said. For 13 years, the music educators who make up Alto Maíz have been playing Latin music, but the music has become more and more dance-oriented, Grismore said.

"We love doing it and look forward to it every year," he said, "Everybody here comes to dance and comes dressed up. That's what

Despite the dance-themed evening, much of the standing space along the walls was filled earlier in the night.

"A lot of people are standing still," Hefley said. "But there'll be a dance lesson at 9, and that will get people comfortable."

The lessons were almost as big a pull as the band for some Gusto

"I am in it for the lessons," said UI medical student Steve Jackson. 'I'm not (a good salsa dancer), but I've had a very few lessons, and

Math dept., Union to split cost

While the math department will help to replace the Bijou's screen, some theater officials just want an apology.

> By Shirin Sadeghi The Daily Iowan

A conference on partial differential equations has resulted in the UI Department of Mathematics doing some simple division.

Following a mishap on April 1 the day of the conference — when a mathematics lecturer mistook the Bijou's movie screen for a dry-erase board, Union officials have decided to split the replacement costs of the screen with the math department.

"Holding the people who did it accountable is entirely justified. It's too bad we can't also force them to apologize," said Taylor Segrest, director of the Bijou, the UI's arthouse cinema.

The screen, which was custommade at the Chicago-based Screenworks, will cost $700 to replace. The two departments will divide the cost evenly, said Laura McCleran, manager of Guest and Event Services at the Union.

Union administrators had initially planned on charging the full amount to the math department, but questions arose about who was at fault during discussions between the departments last week.

"We are also a victim," said Li Hong, a mathematics graduate student who was helping to coordinate the conference. After reserving the Illinois Room, which houses the Bijou, Hong said he was concerned about whether the Union had adequately met the math department's requests for supplies.

Members of the department had brought a dry-erase marker into the Illinois room under the assumption that it was equipped with a dry-erase board.

"We asked (the Union) and called them many times to make sure there is a whiteboard," Hong said, adding that the Union had confirmed the availability of the dryerase board in the room several Following tentative discussions with the math department, Union administrators decided it was in everybody's best interest to split "I think there was a possibility that there were some communication issues," McCleran said.

Another pending issue is the replacement of the Bijou's losses. The cinema has lost at least $96 to date, having had to turn away 24 patrons from the film, Gods and Monsters. Bijou representatives are not optimistic about getting that money from the math department.

"Frankly, if they can't even pay us the courtesy of extending an apology, it seems like a worthless mess to ask them for $96," Segrest said.

"This is a disaster for the Bijou — I understand and I feel sorry," Hong said, adding that "it's just a mistake."

"It's very unfortunate that this happened," said Professor Bor-Luh Lin, chairman of the math department. "We need to find some way of avoiding this situation in the future."

Union administrators have asked Screenworks to return the damaged screen "to be used as an emergency screen," McCleran said. The Bijou's new screen will be ready for use in about two weeks.

FILM REVIEW By Gene Stupnitsky

Let's get the obvious out of the way: Because of its largely youthful cast, "GO" is in danger of being pigeonholed - and, in fact, already has been, to some extent - as a "teen Pulp Fiction." Given the two films' similarities, that comparison is not undeserved.

"GO" is divided into three segments, all of which cover the same limited time span. Set over a 24hour period in Los Angeles and Las Vegas on the night before Christmas Eve, the story is told from the perspective of three parties involved in the events that surround a botched drug deal: Ronna, a down-on-her-luck supermarket attendant (Sarah Polley from "The Sweet Hereafter") who needs $380 to pay her rent or face eviction, her friend Claire (Katie Holmes of "Dawson's Creek"); a pair of soap opera actors (Jay Mohr and Scott Wolf) who are more than they appear and then some; and Simon, a British expatriate who works with Ronna and Claire.

Without giving away too much (the plot and its surprises are the rave scene) and goes from Los best part of the film), there is no doubt that "GO" owes a hefty debt to "Pulp Fiction." Because it borrows heavily in rhythm and approach from Quentin Tarantino's film, "GO" cannot claim to be breaking new ground. Everything from interlocking timelines and body disposal to pop-culture conversations, revelations in diners, ODs, laconic dealers, and comedy and violence working together simultaneously ... we laugh even as we're squirming in our seats.

The film is directed by Doug Liman, who has also directed "Swingers," a film that also shows the nightlife of young people ("Swingers" showed the lounge scene, while "GO" chronicles the Angeles to Las Vegas and back. "GO" is a great-looking film (Liman acts as his own cinematographer), and there is a great chase scene through the streets of Las Vegas as Simon and his pals get chased by a pissed-off strip-club owner and his son.

The real problem of the film is that Liman presents the material with such hip sarcasm that it is impossible to invest any true feeling for its characters. But these aren't fatal flaws; "GO" is an amazingly entertaining film.

Though viscerally satisfying, "GO" doesn't have the moral resonance and thematic complexity of, "Pulp Fiction." Still, you won't be bored, and that's got to count for

You didn't ask for it, but here it is anyway

HE other day, I was feeling kind of blue. Not suicidal-gonna-jump-off-a-bridge blue, you understand (though I'm sure my little broken body floating in the river would please the hell out of some folks), but kind of melancholy. The crummy weather is somewhat to blame, I guess. The war, too. And maybe the recent cavalcade of weirdness parading through our poor city. Fires and murders and whatnot.

But anyway. I was blue, so like any other redblooded American, I decided to bust out and spend some money (not that I have any to speak of). Now, I know what you're HANNAH FONS thinking - you're thinking, "What does this chick mean by extolling the virtues of the Dao one month and then turning to material gain for happiness the next? Is she really questing for enlightenment, or is she just another punk-ass Occidental with mystical delusions and trendy Chinese tattoos?"

Well, I'm both, I guess. But the point of all this is not to go on about my personal philosophy but rather to bring a message of hope and an entreaty to the material powers that be. Hark hark!

The message of hope is this: At long last, the Old Capitol Mall has been purchased by an out-of-state development company that has plans to revitalize the whole shebang, from retooling the exterior facade to filling the 10 or so empty stores within. This is a good thing. It means that when materialistic wankers like myself feel the need to drown our sorrows in a new sweater or pair of trousers, we can drown ourselves downtown instead of being tempted to perpetuate the evil that is Coral Ridge.

Now, I know we've had this conversation before. My feelings on The Ridge are hardly a secret. True, I have been spotted there a time or two, but only to obtain goods and services that are absolutely unavailable downtown. I always look downtown first and go out to The Ridge only as a last, desperate resort. Going there makes me feel slightly dirty afterward, as though I've slept with my best friend's out-of-town cousin or something. As a rule, I shun The Ridge. It's choking the life out of our funky, cozy downtown district, and I won't have it.

And maybe now, I won't have to. With the purchase of Old Capitol, and the introduction of more reasons to shop downtown, perhaps the mass exodus to The Ridge will slow. When The Ridge first sprang into existence and the great Downtown Diaspora began, I chalked it all up to insensitive consumers hungry for novelty and unconcerned about the effects of their hunger on our downtown merchants.

But lately, I've had to reassess my judgment. With a ghosttown of a mall, expensive, barely adequate parking and a tornup Pedestrian Mall, why would anybody other than students want to hang out downtown? It's a self-perpetuating cycle: The Ridge offers amenities that downtown Iowa City does not, so people shop The Ridge, thus draining downtown's vitality. Small shops close, or move, and people go, "yeah, see? Downtown's dead - there's nothing here. Told you so." And they head back out to the Demon Ridge. So it's not just a people problem. It's a crummy marketing/supply-and-demand problem.

Hopefully, the developers who have purchased the Old Capitol Mall recognize this. Hopefully they realize the stoic, steadfast merchants who are staying downtown and have no plans to leave can't support the whole area single-

By the same token, the City of Iowa City would do well to be as helpful as it can during this transitional period after all, even the most fabulously revamped Pedestrian Mall is little more than a glorified patio without thriving businesses to enclose it.

If anybody were to ask me (and even if they don't), my sage advice to the new Old Capitol Mall owners and the city would be this: Be everything The Ridge isn't. Be eclectic. Be one-of-a-kind. Be cozy and genial. Support merchants who've been here for years and who add color and quality, personable service to our community. Do not fear funkiness. A little is good for

On the other hand, go ahead and be The Gap. Be Structure. Be stuff that the twerps out in Coralville wish they'd thought of first. Be what every college student in this town has been saying they want but don't have a car to get to. You can't tell me that there aren't any "bigname" merchants interested in a chunk of student lucre - just get them here. That's my several cents' worth. The solution to our ailing Downtown area is simplicity itself: Give people some good reasons to spend their money Downtown, and they

English-only law makes sense

To the Editor:

I have a positive view of English being designated lowa's official language. In a recent column, Susan Demas wrote about her negative position on the language bill ("English-only laws only add to Americans' arrogance," DI/April 1). I see no valid reason for her and other critics' positions on Let's take a look at the benefits to a citizenry of having a designated language to be used in all official transactions. First there is standardization. Confusion would be spread over distance and time if some county had offices that chose to use Spanish or yet another tongue for its documents. Second, what if a police officer chose to speak to you only in a non-English language? In the tense world of police work, a slight misunderstanding or failure to respond correctly could be fatal to a con- Questioning logic fused citizen.

Here is an example that I know of. Some people were traveling on university work and needed to get flight information at the Los Angeles airport. All the workers at the counter were conversing in Spanish and chose to respond to the English speakers' query in Spanish — and only in Spanish. The travelers had to hurry along and find another person to get the directions they needed.

I see nothing wrong with English being the official language of Iowa. As it is now, in West Liberty, English-speaking children are being taught Spanish in the early grades as a federally funded experiment. This presumably is an attempt to create understanding in a local area without putting a focus on English. But what happens if a Hmong population expects the same in another school district?

I took advanced courses in Spanish on my way to a M.A. degree in English literature from the UI. That was difficult for me then, and even though I like to watch Spanish-language television a lot, it is still difficult for me now. It is too much to expect Englishspeaking children or adults to become proficient quickly in a second language.

This is especially true if the need goes beyond social or family conversation. When the need to communicate is official, English should be the lan-

Demas seems to have "picked sides" in some kind of culture war. She is clearly biased against "financially secure straight, white Christian males," as she put it. There is a world beyond her opinions that requires thoughtful and workable solutions for the long term. English as lowa's official language is one of those solutions to our rapidly fluctuating social environment.

> Kenneth Wessels Iowa City resident of DI columnist

To the Editor:

Lee Strang's recent column on affirmative action is an example of the tenuous chains of bad reasons offered as substantive argument that I've heard all too often ("Questioning whether UI really wants true diversity," DI/March 3). Strang's arguments are wrong not because I think affirmative action is a good idea (which I do), but because he produces bad formal arguments throughout the column.

Strang may be correct that the UI should not base its affirmative action policy on an apparently faulty premise about a diversity of opinions (diverse bodies equals diverse opinions), but it is not clear that the UI bases its justification for affirmative action on campus only on this point.

In the classroom, this argumentative strategy is often described as a scarecrow or straw-man fallacy: A weak argument is offered for criticism to make one's own argument appear stronger. Importantly, this tactic is often ruled out of argument as a bad form of proof or even as an unethical practice of shallow arguers.

Strang is also correct in his assertion that Republicans are underrepresented in American law schools. Yet to claim that an increase in women faculty who are decidedly Democratic means a lack of viewpoint diversity cannot be demonstrated. This is a fallacy of composition: where something that is true of the part is assumed to be true of the whole. Such new faculty hires might serve to balance a conservative-leaning institution, thus providing diversity, but we don't know the specifics. It is possible that Strang's claim could be demonstrated, but a critic would simply show that it hasn't been to show that Strang fails to substantiate his case.

While I would not want to generalize from my own experience (another common bad argument on the topic), consider this assertion. I am a white male and I was able to attend college with the help of affirmative-action programs, the Guaranteed Student Loan Program and the Pell Grant. These policies are not often considered under the rubric of affirmative action, but certainly could be. Such policies are united in the commitment to expanding educational opportunities to persons who could otherwise not attend college.

From this perspective, a wide majority of students at the UI could see themselves as beneficiaries of affirmative-action programs rather than erroneously assuming to be victimized by them. If we take this as the first premise and attend to our practices of argument, we'll see much smarter debate on affirmative action in the future in our classrooms, houses, dorms, and hopefully, in our newspaper

Miami Beach: The site for all your (naked) fun in the sun

ACATION season is approaching, so today I want to issue a Travel Warning to help you avoid a menace that could completely ruin your vacation: bosoms.

This menace was brought to my attention by a recent letter to my newspaper, The Miami Herald (motto: "Keep Looking! It's Somewhere In Your Yard!"). This letter was written by the Rev. Keith A. Marvel of Wilmington, Del. He states:

"Three friends and I recently visited Miami to get in a little Florida sunshine • and some golf. Our four-day stay was a bit of a shock.

"First we thought maybe we landed in another country when we walked to a beach - marked for our hotel's guests only - only to find topless women sunbathers. "As Christian men, we are taught to flee this type of thing, which is hard in Miami since it seemed that this type of immorality was nearly everywhere. "Then, the clincher came at 7 p.m. Saturday night when we went to get dinner and came back to find our car, which was booted' by a company."

After describing his group's unsuccessful efforts to protest the $25 parking fine, the Rev. Marvel states: "I hope that the city of Miami Beach would do something about this ordinance and topless sunbathing. If not, maybe you should warn tourists before they spend their hard-earned money on a trip to Miami."

First, by way of sincere apology, let me state, on behalf of all of the citizens of Miami and Miami Beach, who have unanimously elected me to speak for them, that the letters in "Keith A. Marvel" can be rearranged to spell "Hark! Evil Meat!"

Let me also state that the Rev. Marvel is correct: There are topless women sun-bathers in Miami, although I think it's a stretch to say they're "nearly everywhere." I've lived in Miami for 13 years, and if it were infested with topless women, I defi-nitely would have noticed. Also it would be mentioned on the television news

ANNOUNCER: What's our forecast, Bob? WEATHER PERSON: Bill, I look for warmer temperatures and continued naked bosoms all over the place, so the public should remain indoors with duct tape over

It's not as bad as that. But we do get our topless sunbathers. Most of them are tourists from Europe, which is known for being immoral. Europeans openly smoke cigarettes; they think nothing of toplessness. You cannot turn around in Europe without seeing a marble statue of a topless ancient Greek or Roman goddess the size of a Budweiser Clydesdale, expressing the ancient artistic concept: "I cannot find a marble brassiere in my size." So European women often sunbathe topless. European men are also quite exposed. Apparently there was some huge mix-up over in Europe, whereby all the eye patches were mislabeled as men's bathing suits, the result being that European men at the beach often have nothing covering their Euros but a piece of fabric the size of a Cheez-It. Meanwhile, Europeans who injure their eyes are stumbling around with swimming trunks over their heads.

On my fact-finding trips to Miami-area beaches, I've noticed that the Europeans don't seem to notice that they're almost naked. But the Americans definitely do. The American women are cool about it; they have developed the ability to look at things, such as a man's Euro region, via a Stealth Glance technique, so that you never actually catch them doing it. (They use a similar technique for scratching.) American men, on the other hand, are as subtle as a dog with its nose in another dog's butt.

When an American man catches sight of a bosom, his head snaps toward it, his eyeballs lock onto it like missile radar, and a loud alarm goes off in his brain, similar to the one in submarine movies that goes "DIVE! DIVE! DIVE!", except it goes "BOSOM! BOSOM!" As long as the man is within range of the bosom (12 miles), his head will remain pointed toward it and he will be unable to think about anything else; this is the primary cause of freighters running aground.

The point is that if a man, for example Marvel, is on the same beach as a bosom, he is physiologically incapable of simply ignoring it. He has to look! And then of course he has to flee. This is why I am issuing the following warning to travelers: IF YOU COME TO THE MIAMI AREA, AND YOU GO TO THE BEACH, THERE IS A CHANCE YOU

WILL SEE TOPLESS SUNBATHERS. The Miami tourist bureau requests that you tell everybody you know about this warning and spread it on the Internet. The Orlando tourist bureau has also asked me to warn you that they have a bosom problem there, but the Miami bureau claims that most of the Orlando ones are artificial.

Let me conclude by thanking the Rev. Marvel for alerting the world to this danger As a token of our appreciation, we will have the people who booted his car executed without trial. And we will make every effort to rid our community of decadent, hedonistic and degenerate activities. We'll start

Approximately 100 Serbs arrived in Miradie a week ago, not in tanks that U.S. helicopters might spot but in unmarked buses. They demanded 150 volunteers to help them fight against other Kosovars, their own ethnic brethren.

No one accepted, and villagers gassed up every working vehicle to prepare for the worst. The Serbs camped nearby. Each night, they took potshots into the village, wounding at least one man. Finally, on April 10, they ordered everyone to go. Immediately.

2 shootings at Black College Reunion

■ The event, which started in 1984, drew approximately 100,000 revelers.

> By Ron Word Associated Press

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. - A year after a police shoot-out marred Black College Reunion, two shootings and two stabbings left four people in the hospital Sunday, one in critical condition.

"Whenever you have that many people in such a condensed area, sometimes these things happen," said Officer Sherri Davis, a spokeswoman for the Daytona Beach

Black College Reunion started in 1984 as a small gathering of students from historically black Florida A&M University in Tallahassee and nearby Bethune-Cookman College. It now competes with Atlanta's Freaknik as the place to go for a "black Spring Break."

Cruising, partying and ogling members of the opposite sex are the primary activities of the event, which drew an estimated 100,000 celebrants.

Police were investigating whether the two shootings were connected because both were reported at about 4 a.m. on the same block. One of the men, Craig Grover of Jacksonville, was shot in the head. He was listed in critical condition at Halifax Medical Center. Ansie Pierre, 24, of Miami, was found wounded in the stomach at a nearby motel about 100 yards away. He was listed in stable con-

Police questioned three men in connection with the shootings, but no immediate arrests were made.

In a separate incident, a Daytona Beach woman was stabbed in the neck following an argument at the Desert Inn. The victim, identified as Shaneta Leshawn Jones. 20, was upgraded from critical to stable condition Sunday at Halifax Medical Center. No arrests were made, although Davis said a suspect was identified.

Despite the violence, Bud Asher, the host city's mayor, declared the weekend a success Sunday. He said the incidents were isolated.

"I am not going to let it spoil the good things that happened at BCR." Asher said. A stabbing on April 10 in Ormond Beach, about 5 miles northwest of Daytona Beach, resulted in the arrest of an Orlando woman, who was charged with aggravated assault for allegedly wounding a man from Alabama.

Timothy Jordan, 21, of Birmingham, Ala., was listed in satisfactory condition.

As of early Sunday, police had made more than 300 arrests - 12 for firearms possession and related charges. They wrote about 2,400

In 1998, 329 arrests were made and 926 citations were written over the three-day event. A man was killed and four police officers were wounded in a shoot-out that son Street apartment with three of her friends, sitting in front of a Grateful Dead poster. "It was horrible. But I didn't give up. They're checking to see if you have what it takes to be a VJ, and that's part of it: waiting in a Goddamn line for 12 hours."

Once she got inside the MTV office, Sullivan said, she impressed the interviewers with her Madonna knowledge. She filled out a questionnaire, giving, among other items, her tastes in music and the titles of the last five CDs she bought.

After passing a first interview, where she read off a cue card, introducing Korn's "Freak on a Leash" video, she was interviewed again. Only about 10 percent of the prospective VJs made it to the second interview.

"I had her laughing so hard. I was singing, I was dancing, I was yelling. I even showed her my Madonna ring," Sullivan said about one of the interviewers. There were a lot of nervous kids. But after waiting in line for 12 hours, I wasn't nervous."

She credited her "passion" for Madonna and her music taste, which ranges from Madonna to the Doors. "I appeal to so many different people. That's why MTV needs me,"

She will leave Tuesday morning for New York, where she will compete with 11 other finalists for five spots on the final selection show this weekend. The next round begins Wednesday. She said she should know by Wednesday night if she is picked as one of the final five.

During the next round, she said she'll be asked more extensive questions about music and why she wants to be an MTV VJ. The three main areas on which she will be judged are her appearance, creativity and musical knowledge.

Excerpts of the semi-finalist round, which includes Sullivan, will air on the MTV show "Total Request Live" beginning Wednesday, she said. The final five will then compete on a game show this weekend, and viewers will determine the winner.

Since she was notified, Sullivan said, she can't go out without someone buying her a drink. A party was held in her honor on April 9 at the Union Bar, 121 E. College St., which more than 100 people attended.

Long-time friends and even people she barely knows have been congratulating her, she said.

"I thought, if anyone could do this, it was Marisa," said Kim Lekwa, UI sophomore and roommate of Sullivan. "She's the only one I know who could pull this off. She's a strong person and real determined."

And Sullivan has been determined. This wasn't her first run-in with the music network. She's called in for various contests and even tried out for MTV's "Road Rules," making it to an in-person interview.

"This was my calling," she said. "Some people are storm chasers; I'm an MTV chaser.

IOWA WOMEN'S TENNIS

Weekend split shows parity among Big Ten's best teams

■ The lowa women's tennis team defeated Wisconsin, but lost to Minnesota.

By Lisa Colonno The Daily Iowan

The weekend's matches came down to a couple points for the Iowa women's tennis team.

The 38th-ranked Hawkeyes defeated No. 65 Wisconsin on Friday, 4-3, and lost to No. 43 Minnesota on Saturday, 4-3, in the Recreation Building.

The difference between the two matches was the doubles point, which lowa claimed against the Badgers, but failed to do against the Gophers.

Iowa is now 3-3 in the Big Ten and 11-6 overall. "This shows that everyone is fairly equal in the Big Ten," senior Erin Wolverton said. "It shows the importance of the doubles point. If we don't get it, it makes it hard going into singles down and having to win four singles matches." In both matches, Iowa split the six singles matches, and many of them were extremely close.

Against Wisconsin, freshman Toni Neykova's second set was decided in a CHAMPAIGN, Ill. - The emotional strain of Saturday's NCAA East Gymnastics Regionals could be seen in the face of gymnast Anthony Petrocelli afterwards.

The junior All-American looked at the scoreboard after the last rotation and was reduced to tears.

No individual titles. No upset of topranked Michigan. More importantly, no team bid to the NCAA Championships in Lincoln, Neb., on

Iowa finished fifth (227.775) in the team competition, missing the top-three cut that advances to nationals. Ohio State won the competition with a 231.1 total, .05 ahead of second-place Michigan. Penn State was the last qualifier with a total of 229.55.

"Earlier this season, I said this could be any team's race and this meet proved that," head coach Tom Dunn said. "Even with our performance from Big Tens transferred here, it might not have been enough."

Ohio State coach Miles Avery was unemotional after his team's firstplace effort, knowing things could turn around once nationals begin. Ohio State finished third behind Iowa and Michigan at the Big Ten Championships this season.

"I am pleased with our performance, but we really need to work on our vaulting as a team," Avery said. "We won this meet, but I was not happy at all with our vaulting performance because of the steps and bobbles we were taking. That type of inconsistency will not hold up for a championship

Odds are, Iowa will also lack fond memories of a specific event at these regionals.

After a mediocre start on the vault, the Hawkeyes missed three of six sets on the bars and had to count a score of 8.85 for the team total. With the top three teams posting scores of 9.6 and marched to victory at Augusta National with a brilliant backnine performance that left Greg Norman with yet another Masters disappointment.

Just when it appeared Norman might finally redeem himself from three past failures with a 25-foot eagle putt on the 13th hole, along came Olazabal, who had his own measure of redemption to fulfill.

He rammed home a 20-foot birdie putt on top of Norman to pull into a tie, then showed off the brilliant short game that carried him to the 1994 Masters — just like then, he didn't have a three-putt over 72

More importantly, Olazabal didn't make a bogey over the final 13 holes. He closed out his 1-under 71 with a 4-foot putt for par, and donned a green jacket once again. And then he cried.

Asked about his family, who couldn't bear to watch when Olazabal had to crawl around their house in Spain, the 33-year-old put his hand

■ The Minnesota baseball team pushed its winning streak against lowa to fifteen straight with a four-game sweep.

By Greg Wallace The Daily Iowan

The Iowa baseball team began the weekend with high hopes of breaking its 11-game losing streak to Minnesota. Robb Quinlan would have no part of it, though.

The Gopher first baseman capped an amazing weekend with five hits Sunday, including three doubles and a home run, leading Minnesota to an easy 13-5 victory at Iowa Field. The win capped a four-game sweep of Iowa by Minnesota (24-7, 7-1 Big Ten), extending the Gophers' dominance over Iowa to 15 games. Iowa's record dropped to 15-19 overall and 3-9 in Big Ten play.

For the weekend, Quinlan was 11 for 16, with four doubles, two home runs, nine RBIs and a triple thrown in for good measure. Iowa coach Scott Broghamer was happy to see Quinlan leave, saying he had never seen such a dominant performance by one play-

Weather wreaks havoc with Hawkeyes

Heavy rain and wind gusts nearing 30 m.p.h. made it hardly an ideal weekend for a Big Ten rowing competition in Iowa City.

By Robert Yarborough The Daily Iowan

The Iowa women's rowing team braved harsh wind and rain Saturday to post solid times against rowing powers Ohio State and Michigan.

Due to high winds and a dismal forecast, the races were split between Sugar Bottom and Mehaffey launch

At Sugar Bottom in particular, the conditions of the 2.000-meter course included 20-30 mph winds from the south, creating difficult tailwinds which worsened as the competition "This is not the day that I dreamed of, but that's what happens with outside sports," head coach Mandi Kowal said. "I knew the weekend would be challenging in terms of competition, but I didn't expect the weather to give us additional extreme challenges.'

Competition was comprised of four dual races, beginning with Michigan vs. Iowa. The Second Novice 8+ gave the Wolverines a scare with a final time of 5:11.12, finishing just 6.53 seconds after Michigan.

At the end of the competition, however, it was Michigan that ended up winning all five races.

lowa women to face UConn

The lowa women's basketball team will face a stern test in non-conference play next season, with a home contest versus perrenial national power Connecticut scheduled.

Hawkeye coach Angie Lee announced the game Sunday at the team's annual season-ending banquet.

Lee also announced the Hawkeyes are going to travel overseas this summer to compete in exhibition play. The 10day trip, sponsored by Wendy's, will take the team to England, Belgium and France. The banquet was the final team event for former lowa center Amy Herrig, who is expected to compete in the WNBA's predraft camp beginning this Thursday in Chicago. The draft is scheduled for April 27.

"I always know that I will hold a special place in my heart for all the good times and great experiences I've had as an Iowa Hawkeye," said Herrig, a Dubuque native.

This wasn't nearly as shocking as his collapse in 1996, when Norman squandered a six-stroke lead to Nick Faldo in the final round. Norman simply didn't make the shots that Augusta requires of its champions on the final holes.

He three-putted from 40 feet off the fringe for a bogey on the 14th, then effectively ended his chances on the par-5 15th, when his sand wedge from 98 yards away missed its target by 40 feet and he took another bogey.

Olazabal, who had bogeyed three straight holes earlier to fall from the lead, got it back with a 15-foot birdie putt up the slope on No. 10, one of only three players to make par there on Sunday. Norman responded with a 30-foot birdie on the 11th, the hole that doomed so many other contenders.

Just when it looked as though destiny would be finally be on Norman's side, Augusta had something else in mind. On the par-5 13th, Norman hit a Sunday, Minnesota's bats dug the Hawkeyes into a hole quickly, and they could not climb out of it. In the second inning, three singles, a walk, a hit batsman and a Quinlan double gave the Gophers a 6-0 lead, chasing starter Wes Obermueller (1-5) from the game.

the pressures of competing had kept hidden all these years.

I feel very much like I did yesterday and the day before, like I did a couple months ago," Norman said after a closing round of 73 left him in third place, two strokes behind Olazabal and one back of Davis Love III.

"I wish I had done this 20 years ago, have this kind of fresher approach on life. Because this has been very, very good for me. And if it's been good for me." That, of course, remains to be seen.

If Norman arrived at Augusta no longer tortured by his past, he has to be leaving it - brave words aside - with some lingering concerns about his future.

Climbing into contention in his first major back must be satisfying to Norman, especially given the long and painful rehabilitation. Finding a new way to lose, though, has to be gnawing away at the edges of his self-assured new self.

Let's be clear: Norman didn't collapse. No single flaw in his game proved fatal. He didn't fire at sucker pin positions and he didn't pull the wrong club from his bag. He didn't put too much spin on his approach shots at the wrong holes or make a loose swing in a tight situation.

under when he stepped onto the 14th tee Sunday and he bogeyed that hole and the next. Even though he made eagle at No. 13, a par-5 of 485 yards, by going for the green in two, Norman showed enough maturity to play No. 15, a par-5 of 500 yards, as a three-shot hole.

The strategy wound up backfiring when he hit his approach shot into the right bunker, then exploded to 12 feet and missed the par putt when the ball curled on the lip and spun out. And his explanation for the wedge shot that found the right greenside bunker at No. 15 was the only time all day he sounded like the old Norman - the one who never lacked for an alibi.

"I had mud on the ball, it was 94 yards, and I tried to squeeze a sand wedge in there," he said.

On some other day, against someone less opportunistic than Olazabal, Norman might have gotten away with it. He started the day two strokes behind, shot 73 to Olazabal's 71, on a day when only seven players in the entire field broke par.

"I think he deserves the jacket as much as anybody else," the Spaniard said afterward. "When we were in the scoring tent, I said, 'I really enjoyed your company today. Just keep on trying. You have the game and you deserve the jacket. Hopefully, you will get it." That same scene, with a differ-ready to start winning the big ones.

On the first day, Iowa's pitching stole the show. After Zeilstra threw a four-hit shutout in the first game, freshman Kristi Hanks baffled the Buckeye hitters with her first no-hitter.

Hanks struck out 10 in her nono, and allowed only two baserunners. She is 8-6 on the season.

Macomb, III., on Saturday. The Hawkeyes scored 140 points on a cold and windy day, had four individual winners and placed at least one person in the top five in 14 of the 15 events. The javelin was the only event in which lowa failed to finish in the top

Western Illinois won the meet, which featured eight teams, with 201.5 points, followed by the Hawkeyes and Eastern Illinois with 137 points. Lakeya Boatright, Colleen Prendergast, Rebecca Kaza and Jill Scheibel all won events for the Hawkeyes. Boatright won the 200meter dash in 24.97 seconds, edging teammates Stacey Bynoe and Prendergast, who finished second and third. Kaza won the high jump, clearing 5-7% inches, and Scheibel won both the 1,500 and the 3,000-meter run. Scheibel ran the 3,000 for the first time ever, and became nervous when she didn't see anyone near her during the majority of the

Sosa, McGwire homers not enough

By Alan Robinson Associated Press

PITTSBURGH - Brant Brown gave the Chicago Cubs another bad memory. For at least one at-bat, Sammy Sosa also had them remembering 1998.

Brown, who dropped the fly ball that cost the Cubs a key September game last season, had three extra base-hits and drove in three runs as the Pittsburgh Pirates swept Chicago by winning 9-6 Sunday.

Sosa hit his first homer of the season for the Cubs, a 441-foot solo shot off Mike Williams in the ninth. It was the first hit of the three-game series for Sosa, who is batting only .095 (2-for-21).

"Was it a relief? I have to say yes," said Sosa, who hit 66 homers last season and led the majors with 12 this spring. "In spring training, everything was there, The season started, and they've been pitching me a little bit different.

"I got the first one out of the way, let's play ball now."

ST. LOUIS - Just like on opening day, a Mark McGwire home run didn't do much for

The 70-homer man connected in the first inning for his first home run in 15 at-bats, but Jason Bere didn't encounter many more problems and led Cincinnati to a victory.

Barry Larkin homered for Cincinnati, which has 12 homers in six games, and Hall Morris and Greg Vaughn had key hits in a three-run sixth inning.

Bere (1-0) allowed two runs and eight hits in 6 1-3 innings, and Danny Graves finished with two-hit relief for his first save. ending the game by retiring McGwire on a foulout with one on in the ninth.

MONTREAL — John Olerud went 4-for-5 with three doubles and Luis Lopez had three hits, including a key two-run single, as the Mets beat the Montreal

The Mets beat the Expos for the third straight day and have won five of six since losing on opening day. They return to New York for their home opener against Florida on Monday.

Braves 3, Diamondbacks 2

ATLANTA — Ninth-inning comebacks certainly aren't rare for the Atlanta Braves. Two-homer games off Greg Maddux are.

Andruw Jones, batting only .123 this season, hit a two-run single off Gregg Olson in the ninth inning Sunday, bailing out Maddux and giving Atlanta a victory over Arizona.

"I haven't gotten the job done," said Olson (0-1), who blew a save for the third time in three chances this year. "I think our team has played real well. We should be 4-2. I don't think there's anything wrong with the team except me."

SALT LAKE CITY - Greg Ostertag had 11 points, 15 rebounds and five blocked shots as the Utah Jazz beat the Houston Rockets for the eighth straight time, 85-76, Sunday.

John Stockton scored six straight points in the closing minutes and Bryon Russell added 19 points as Utah won its sixth straight game and fourth in six days. The Rockets have not won a road game in April and are only 3-11 against teams with winning records this season.

Hakeem Olajuwon, who had 32 points in the teams' previous meeting 10 days ago, hit a jumper with 4:27 to play that pulled the Rockets within 71-66. Olajuwon finished with 23 points but was limited in the post by a strong defensive game from Ostertag.

How low can they go? Try 49 points

■ The Miami Heat held the struggling Bulls to the lowest scoring output since 1955.

> By Rick Gano Associated Press

CHICAGO - There were indications in January of what was ahead. Tim Floyd called his first practice and then had to cancel it. Why? The Chicago Bulls didn't have enough players under contract. Now, during a season of humiliating how-low-can-you-go scenarios, the once-proud team just 10 months removed from its sixth NBA title has reached the basement of professional basketball.

One would swear the scoreboard at the United Center was malfunctioning Saturday night, choked by some computer glitch. Nope.

When the game with the Miami Heat It just hurts. ended, it There's nothing Bulls beaten else you can say. 82-49, marking It just hurts. the lowest scoring output for any NBA team since the inception of the shot

. " clock in the 1954-55 season. Forty-nine points in 48 minutes! "It just hurts. There's nothing else you can say. It just hurts," said

- Chicago's

Toni Kukoc

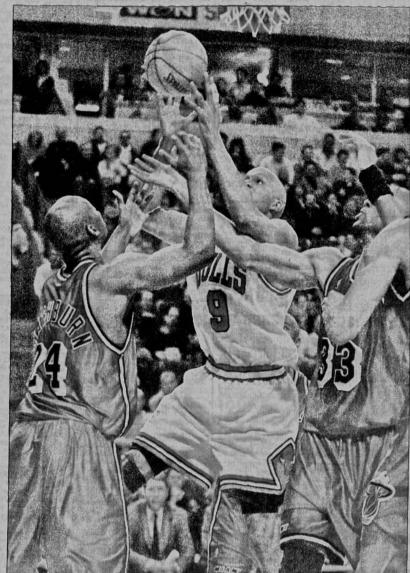

Toni Kukoc, who shot 4-for-16. The previous record for good defense - or inept offense - came last June in Game 3 of the NBA Finals when Michael Jordan, Scottie Pippen and Dennis Rodman led the Bulls to a 96-54 rout of the Utah Jazz.

Of course, Jordan, who scored at least 50 points by himself 38 times during his career, Pippen and Rodman are no longer around. They must be shaking their heads in disbelief at what has happened to the team they once represented, one headed for the draft lottery.

Just eight days earlier, the Bulls were blown out by the Orlando Magic, a 47-point loss that was the worst in franchise history.
"We can't go and hide," said veteran Ron Harper, who'd been out

10 games with a sprained knee before returning for Saturday night's embarrassing escapade.

"You never enjoy sitting through something like this," Floyd said. "When you play against a great defense, that creates frustration. I hope we can be there someday.

Frank Polich/Associated Press

Chicago's Ron Harper battles Miami's Jamal Mashburn and Alonzo Mourning for a rebound Saturday in Chicago.

"I can live with this easier than the Orlando game when we were giving up layup after layup."

The Heat, the NBA's leader in field goal defense (no team has shot 50 percent against them all year) smothered the Bulls from the outset. They ran off the game's first 15 points and Chicago couldn't score until Mark Bryant hit a free throw nearly eight minutes into the first quarter.

That would be the last point of the night for Bryant, who aggravated a shoulder injury. Without him and Brent Barry, sidelined with a sprained ankle, the Bulls had no chance. None. They had eight points in the first quarter and just 23 at the half.

"Our guys just got on them and tried to keep Toni out of it," Miami coach Pat Riley said, insisting he was not out to set any records.

"I'm not into the history of the Chicago Bulls. They're a team rebuilding with a lot of draft picks and cap room for next year."

Alonzo Mourning, frustrated in previous playoffs by the Bulls, both in Charlotte and Miami, blocked seven shots and had 19 points. He said the past had nothing to do with the Heat's performance, one that limited the Bulls to 18 field goals — another NBA low — and 23.4 percent shooting — just off the NBA worst of 22.9.

"There was no payback. We just like to win," Mourning said.

"There's no sympathy at all out there. If they had a chance, they'd do it to us."

The Heat will have another opportunity Tuesday night. That's when the Bulls visit Miami.

"It's not a game you're looking forward to," Floyd said.

Grimsley admits to corked bat mystery

NEW YORK (AP) — Jason Grimsley has finally come clean. The pitcher was the one who crawled through the bowels of Comiskey Park five years ago to replace the corked bat of teammate Albert Belle that was being held in the

The confession by Grimsley, then with the Cleveland Indians and now with the New York Yankees, was reported Sunday in The New York Times clearing up one of baseball's ongoing mysteries. "I went sky diving once, and I can compare it to that," Grimsley said before Sunday's between the Yankees and Detroit. "The adrenaline rush I got from that caper was just like jumping out of an airplane.

Grimsley

Good news for Grimsley, too: No disciplinary action is expected.

"I regard it as history," said AL president Gene Budig, at Yankee Stadium to present the Yankees with their World Series championship

In the first inning of a Cleveland-Chicago game on July 15, 1994, White Sox manager Gene Lamont was tipped off that Belle, then with the Indians, had a corked bat.

Lamont challenged the use of the bat and umpire Dave Phillips took it and put it in his locker. The Indians panicked, knowing the bat was indeed corked Grimsley, 6-foot-3 and a slim 180 pounds, volunteered for the mission to get it back. "It was mission impossible," Grimsley said.

Dayne held out of team scrimmage

MADISON, Wis. — The Wisconsin Badgers held a full-contact scrimmage without tailback Ron Dayne, who has a history of getting injured in practice But if coach Barry Alvarez hoped to protect

Dayne from the injury jinx by keeping his backfield star on the sidelines Saturday, Dayne was ready to

"I want to go harder in practice because I don't have a chance to scrimmage," he said. "I feel like I have to practice harder just to let the younger guys and the guys that don't know that I'm still there, that I'm doing everything with

The weekend scrimmage was the first of the spring training camp for the Badgers, who will have Dayne for his senior year next season because he chose not to enter next weekend's

The 5-foot-10, 253 pound Dayne, who has set 34 UW records, has announced his intention of setting Big Ten and NCAA career records for rushing

Hornets criticized for meeting with Jordan

CHARLOTTE, N.C. — He flew to New York, smoked Cuban cigars with Michael Jordan and told him that buying into the Charlotte Hornets would be good for the team, good for the city and good for the prospects of a new arena.

Then John Fennebresque, the head of the New Arena Committee. flew home to criticism from people who wondered why he tried to Jordan

Charlotte "I told Jordan that I was there for the city." Fennebresque said. "That's why I was there. I wanted to keep the Hornets in Charlotte. We needed a new arena to be uptown and Michael Jordan's involvement as a 50 percent owner could make the job a whole lot easier." Others believe he should have stayed at home March 19.

"It was stupid, wrong, and ridiculous," said Al Rousso, at-large City Council member. Rousso objects to spending public money to promote "a private multimillionaire's enterprise." He's angry that Fennebresque, chairman of a council-appointed committee, agreed to meet privately with Jordan.

Seles beats Dragomir to end drought

AMELIA ISLAND, Fla. — Monica Seles came to Amelia Island for the tuneup she dearly needed. She ended up with a title she didn't expect.

Seles, the No. 2 seed, won her first tournament in seven months Sunday, closing out a dominating run at the Bausch & Lomb Championships with a 6-2, 6-3 victory over unseeded Ruxandra Dragomir.

The five games were the most Seles lost in any of her five matches, in which she dropped only a total of 14 games and never was in jeopardy of losing a set. Only Chris Evert Lloyd has a better run at this tournament, in 1981, when she dropped 12 games.

It was a better-than-expected result for a tournament that Seles had planned to simply use as a tuneup for the United States' Fed Cup meeting next week against Croatia.

"I wanted to take this a day at a time, a point at a time," Seles said. "I wanted to keep working hard and in some ways that was good. I took pressure off myself. I just enjoyed every ball, every match, no matter if you win a big match, small match, I think that helped me."

The title, which earned the world's thirdranked player $80,000, was even more of a surprise considering Seles' recent early exits at

Indian Wells, Lipton and Hilton Head.

Top coach accused of sex with former skater

NEW YORK — Richard Callaghan, who coached Tara Lipinski to an Olympic gold medal, has been accused by one of his former figure skaters of sexual misconduct.

Callaghan, one of the sport's premier coaches, said he was "shocked and deeply dismayed" by the "unsubstantiated allegations." He said through his lawyer that his accuser is emotionally troubled.

Craig Maurizi, who skated for Callaghan and later became a colleague, said in a story in The New York Times on Sunday that they began having sex in 1981 and he now thinks he was exploited

Callaghan denied having a sexual relationship with Maurizi, the newspaper said. Callaghan contends the accusations are a ploy to rob him of his skaters at the Detroit Skating Club, where he had been director of skating.

Callaghan's lawyer, Dean Groulx, said Sunday his client "always considered Craig to be an invaluable member of his extended family." Groulx added that Callaghan and his wife hope Maurizi "will be able to resolve his emotional problems."

Wallace gets redemption at Bristol

BRISTOL, Tenn. — Another Food City 500 meant another dominating performance by Rusty Wallace. Only this time, he closed the

"It's real nice to win them that way," Wallace said after he started on the pole and led 425 of 500 laps on the way to victory Sunday at Bristol Motor Speedway.

His overpowering display was almost dentical to what he had done in each of the two last two spring races at Bristol. But both times, it was Jeff Gordon who wound up in Victory Lane, and Wallace who wound up wondering what could have

Artest to declare for NBA draft

NEW YORK - Ron Artest, a third-team All-America last season as a sophomore, has decided to forego his final two seasons at St. John's and make himself eligible for the NBA draft, the school said Sunday.

The 6-foot-6 swingman, who led the Red Storm to the NCAA tournament regional final last month, will announced his decision Tuesday at a news conference at the community center in his Queensbridge neighborhood.
