NATO forces quietly assemble on ground officials are repeating their assertions that an air war will achieve their objectives in Kosovo.

Associated Press

WASHINGTON - As hundreds more aircraft join NATO's air campaign, a less-noticed array of allied ground forces is assembling on the southern rim of Yugoslavia.

Some were brought to the region for humanitarian work and others for potential deployment as peacekeepers. But they could serve as the nucleus of an invasion force if the leaders of NATO reverse themselves and decide that only an invasion will achieve their aims against Yugoslavian President Slobodan Milosevic.

The possible deployment of combat troops was discussed on both sides of the Atlantic Sunday. Secretary of State Madeleine Albright said anew that the Clinton administration is confident that air power will achieve NATO's purposes, and NATO Secretary General Javier Solana said the allies have no plans to authorize an invasion.

But, in a significant addition to the ongoing ground troop dialogue, he added that "if the moment comes when

"I'm sure the countries that belong to NATO will be ready to do it.'

Britain Foreign Secretary Robin Cook stressed it would take two to three months to prepare an invasion, if one were ordered. Military experts agree.

Allied ground forces arriving in the Balkans include some of the keys to ground combat, including U.S. Army Bradley infantry carriers, Apache attack helicopters and British battle tanks.

Approximately 12,000 NATO troops are in Macedonia, including some 600 it is necessary" to invade Yugoslavia, Americans. In neighboring Albania, approximately 2,000 of a planned force of 8,000 allied troops are preparing for a humanitarian relief effort. There also are several thousand U.S. troops in Bosnia as part of a NATO-led peacekeeping force.

The Albanian group includes the vanguard of a U.S. Army contingent eventually to total 3,000 or more soldiers - that will operate two battalions of Apache attack helicopters and land-based missiles.

The Apache force is expected to begin operating soon against Serb armored forces in Kosovo.

"To a degree, it's academic" whether President Clinton will change his mind about ground troops, said retired Marine Corps Brig. Gen. Bernard Trainor. "If you're going to put a force in there, it's going to take some time to get yourself organized."

By the time ground forces can be assembled in large enough numbers to take on an invasion, the Serbs are likely to have completed their campaign of "ethnic cleansing" - the very acts of violence NATO is striving to stop.

■ The city says it is installing meters because students park their cars for too long on North Clinton Street.

> By Steven Cook The Daily Iowan

Students who own cars and live on change their parking habits, beginning this summer, when the city will install parking meters and the UI will look at closing an alley.

Representatives of the city and UI agreed last week to have 80 parking meters installed along Clinton Street from Market to Church streets. The meters will affect the residents of Burge, Daum, Currier and Stanley Residence Halls and several fraternities and sororities.

The UI is also planning on closing the alley between Currier and Burge as soon as funding is found in order to prevent parking there and to allow delivery trucks better access to the rear of Burge, said Maggie Van Oel, director of Residence Services.

Cars are often parked along North Clinton Street in the same spot for days or even weeks, said Jeff Davidson, assistant city director for Planning and Community Development. The city currently allows cars to be in the same spot for up to 48 hours.

The new meters are designed to prevent people from storing their cars on the street and to free up spaces for short-term parking, Davidson said; the city does not consider the move to be a money maker.

"A lot of people think cities have meters to generate revenue. It's not; it's to make parking turn over," he said.

The new metered spaces will cost 40 cents per hour and have limits from two to five hours, Davidson said. No meters will be installed directly in front of Burge. That stretch will be 20 to 30 minute free parking, Davidson said.

Student reaction to the change has been mixed. The addition of meters along North Clinton Street would open up spaces, UI freshman Brooke Stepanek said, but that's not what students are looking for.

"People are looking for parking space for a couple days, not a couple of minutes," Stepanek said. "There isn't anything like that around here.'

With a jingle and a jump, participants at the annual UI Powwow presented their heritage through dance.

The powwow, which started on April 16 and lasted through Sunday, hosted American Indian cultures from around the country. American Indian vendors lined the upper level of Carver-Hawkeye Arena with a unique blend of art, costumes, jewelry and decorations from nearly 30 different nations.

The arena's basketball court welcomed hundreds of dancers, who competed in categories broken down by gender and age.

"I've been doing this for more than 30 years," said Annamae Pushetonequa, a member of the Lakota nation, a branch of Sioux, who is originally from South Dakota's Rosebud Reservation.

Like many of the other contestants, Pushetonequa and her family had already competed in other regional powwows this year before they came to the UI. Her daughter Grace was dressed in a costume Annamae had sewn for a competition at the annual Denver March Powwow, where she took first place in her division.

Earth Day is Thursday, and many UI students are doing their part in saving the planet by heading to local recycling centers. But students need to think about more than just recycling their cans, said Fernanda Garcia, UI junior and member of the UI Environmental Coalition. As Earth Week begins today, the coalition's approximately 60 members are aiming to get students to think about global environmental ills.

"This week is about being aware of the environment as a whole, not just one little part," Garcia said. "Don't limit yourself to just cans." "Students need to broaden their scope, and this is a good way to do that," said UI senior and former coalition President Ben Lewis.

Toward this end, the coalition has booked an eclectic group of speakers to address UI audiences this week.

Dave Danstrom, an Iowa environmental advocate and founder of the activist group "Rising Up," will lecture today on the destruction of the Great Bear Rainforest in British Columbia. "He's an excellent speaker with some beautiful slides and heart-wrenching stories about British Columbia," Lewis said.

Tuesday's featured guest is Jeffrey Smith, former U.S. Senate candidate for the Natural Law Party. Smith is scheduled to deliver a speech titled "The Dangers of Frankenfoods -What the Biotech Industry Has Done to Your Corn Chips, French Fries, Soda, Bread, etc."

Smith's argument is that biotech corporations are getting out of hand, using genetic technology to create almost-artificial foods, Lewis said.

"It's something scary, and you start looking around and researching what you eat," he said. "They're doing some See EARTH WEEK, Page 8A

Help me, Harlan

Dear Harlan.

I'm a 13-year-old who is so confused! I'm currently dating someone, and I'm in LOVE with one of my former classmates! The other night I was at the bowling alley with my boyfriend and I called my boyfriend my crush's name! I teel like I love them both, but I'm so confused! Friday, I received a dozen red roses from my crush at school! I thought that it was so sweet! Which one do I choose? I am so confused! I love them both! What should I do?

- Undecided

Dear Undecided. You need to choose the guy who will treat you the best, respect you the most and make you the happiest! And that's a decision only you can make! But keep in mind, while a dozen roses will eventually die, true love endures forever! Be careful not to throw around your love like you do your exclamations! Overusing either one will only make them lose their meaning! I disagree with the advice you gave "Stuck in Replay."

She couldn't get over her boyfriend breaking up with her and being with a "skanky girl," only to come back to her again. She said the images really bothered her. You advised her to forget it, to put it out of her mind. I would have told her to chalk it up to experience and find someone else to experience the many more "firsts" that wait out there for her. Just because someone is your first love, first lover, whatever, does not mean they are meant to stay together. Even if you do stay with your "first" and get married, how many actually live happily ever after? Clearly, nothing is ever like that first love. The reality is that most people only discover this reality after experience a second love. Rather than even attempting to prepare a rebuttal, I would like to appeal to those people who have gone the distance with that first love only to live "happily ever after." In addition, I encourage all those first loves who went the distance only to live "unhappily ever after," to also share what went so terribly wrong

Five areas to split from med school ■ With the approval of the regents this week, the UI will form a new College of Public Health.

By Rebecca Anderson The Daily Iowan

Following the Iowa state Board of Regents approval this week, five academic disciplines within the UI College of Medicine will split off and form the new College of Public Health in July 1999.

The epidemiology, biostatistics, environmental health, health management and policy, and occupational health and safety programs will make up the new college, which doctors, administrators and UI students said could have a statewide impact in the future.

doctorate degrees in these disciplines for the first time.

First-year medical student Jessica Ellis said the setting up of the new college is a positive move for the UI because of its impact on the general public.

"(Public Health) is going to be a big key in controlling health-care costs in the future," she said. "If we can install more public-health programs - for example, helping people to quit smoking - it will eventually lower their medical bills."

Preventive medicine Professor James Merchant, who will become the dean of the new college, said the program is progressive for the Midwest.

"There isn't a program like this between Chicago and California, Merchant said. "There's a big need for public-health education.'

The College of Public Health will benefit members of the medical profession and residents through-The UI will offer master's and out the state, said Richard Nelson, executive associate dean of the College of Medicine.

There isn't a program like this between Chicago and California. There's a big need for public-health education.

> - James Merchant, preventive medicine professor

"Public health attempts to understand what factors are important in shaping the health of populations rather than individual patient health," Nelson said.

Officials said plans for the new college include its working with the Iowa Department of Public Health and offering long-distance education courses. The new college will also provide behavioral and community health programs.

The regents are expected to approve the plan at a meeting in Vinton, Iowa, Wednesday. If approved, the new college will receive more than $1 million from the regents for the next academic year.

Part of what will make the program unique is a collaboration with Iowa State University and the University of Northern Iowa, Merchant said. There are plans to offer joint professorships to faculty at those institutions.

The new college has accepted applications from 15-20 students for admission to the programs, Merchant said.

The image of a woman's face streaming with tears, her arms outstretched, may not be a typical sight on the Pentacrest.

But this image and many like it will be prominently on display near the Old Capitol today in an effort to raise awareness, say members of the Rape Victim Advocacy

The program's annual Clothesline Project is a community effort, to be showcased between 10 a.m. and 8 p.m. today, comprising T-shirts designed by local victims of violence or their friends and family.

There's a color code for the Tshirts, said Liz Fitzgerald, the program's director of education. White T-shirts are made by the families and friends of women who were murdered; yellow T-shirts symbolize women who have been victims of battery; red, pink, and orange are made by those who have been raped or sexually assaulted; blue and green T-shirts represent women who have survived incest or child sexual abuse; and purple T-shirts symbolize victims of women attacked because of sexual orientation. "One of the goals is to provide a space where women can use creating a T-shirt as part of the healing process," Fitzgerald

Although many of the T-shirts are made by the survivors themselves, Fitzgerald said families and friends have the option of making a T-shirt — as long as the victim's identity is protected.

"Families and friends have made them in honor of survivors, but we ask that they keep the name of the survivor anonymous," Fitzgerald

The display often is well-visited because of its central location on campus, she said.

"It's a very intense experience for some and a really powerful memorial to those that have experienced violence against women," Fitzger-

The program's office, 320 S. Linn St., will be open throughout the day for people who would like to make their own T-shirts.

In addition, at 7 p.m., the Iowa Sexual Abuse Hotline and the Iowa Coalition Against Sexual Assault will sponsor their first candlelight vigil on the Pentacrest. The event, titled "Iowa Communities Against Rape," will also include 12 communities from throughout the state.

"It's the first time that we've done a statewide effort," said Christy Munson, director of the Researcher finds a way to budge TV-watching kids from sofa using "TV cycles."

> By Lauran Neergaard Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Parents may have a way to budge their chipchomping, TV-watching kids from the family sofa: a bicycle hooked up electrically to the set. To see their favorite shows, couch potatoes have to pedal.

An obesity researcher who came up with the "TVcycle" says early tryouts helped youngsters shed fat and discouraged TV viewing.

David Allison of St. Luke's-Roosevelt Hospital in New York knows parents are not going to race to rewire their TV sets, and he cautions that his findings are preliminary. But, he says, his small study of a few overweight New York children is important because it suggests that tinkering with the technology that makes life more comfortable - but also more sedentary and fattening - could help trim Americans expanding waistlines. "I am not naïve enough to think we're going to solve the world's obesity problems with TVs hooked to bicycles," Allison said. "But there are other things we could do ... that are limited only by our imaginations."

The National Institutes of Health says approximately 55 percent of American adults are overweight or obese, up from 43 percent in 1960. Studies also suggest more than 13 percent of youngsters ages 6 through 17 are overweight and getting fatter each year.

Lack of exercise is a main cause. Research shows that television is a major culprit for kids, mesmerizing children who otherwise might burn calories while play-

Formal exercise programs do not help much because it is hard to get to a gym or playground regularly, particularly for young children with busy parents, so scientists are hunting for home-based tricks to get kids moving, Allison said.

For his experiment, an engineer rewired TV sets to work only while the viewer was pedaling an attached bicycle. Built-in computers measure how long the televisions were on. The TVcycles, which are back in Allison's office as he hunts money for a larger study, are not for sale.

With NIH funding, Allison delivered the TVcycles to six overweight TV fans, ages 8 to 12, and put standard exercise bikes in front of televisions for four similar children.

The kids did not diet, and the televisions for the TVcycle group were locked to prevent cheating.

Nobody nagged the youngsters to pedal or lose weight, Allison said. "We just said, 'Here you go. For the TV to work, you have to pedal. See ya,'" he said.

Ten weeks later, the four kids who watched television while lolling on the couch saw 20 hours a week and bicyled only 8 minutes a week, Allison said in an interview on April 16 before presenting his results at a biology conference Sunday in Washington.

The six TVcycle kids watched an hour a week and pedaled an hour a week. But that was not all the TVcycle kids watched.

They did not pedal when the family watched television together, and there was some cheating, when parents lets kids watch a special show on a set not part of the test, Allison said.

But the pedaling kids finished the study with 2 percentage points less total body fat and 3 percentage points less fat on their legs than the other children. So those kids must have been more active during the time once spent

"It's quite amazing they'd see any change" in such a short time and in kids who did not diet, said Michael Jacobson of the Center for Science in the Public Interest, a consumer-advocacy group that fights obesity.

The fire began on the Everglades' western edge on April 17, possibly ignited by heat from a vehicle's catalytic converter. It quickly became the largest of more than 2,450 blazes that have burned 130,000 acres in the state this year.

Firefighters from Texas and Arizona were called in to help.

The Everglades blaze has been dubbed the "Deceiving Fire" because of its frequently shifting winds. At one point on April 17, flames jumped over a fire crew, setting the vehicle near them ablaze. No one was BELGRADE, Yugoslavia -NATO launched its most active day of air strikes Sunday in its assault on Yugoslavia, bombing refineries, bridges and dozens of other targets in what it claimed were "highly successful" operations.

Air-raid sirens sounded early today in the Yugoslav capital and other major Serbian cities, warning of a 26th night of NATO strikes, aimed at making Yugoslav President Slobodan Milosevic halt his offensive in Kosovo and agree to a political settlement for the province.

Yugoslav media reported several powerful detonations around Novi Sad, Serbia's second-largest city, shortly after the alert was sounded. The independent Beta news agency said heavy anti-aircraft fire could be heard throughout the city.

Three missiles also struck in the town of Paracin, 90 miles southeast of Belgrade, the state-run Tanjug news agency said.

Serbian authorities warned Sunday of a major ecological catastrophe if NATO strikes a chemical plant near Belgrade, floodlighting the factory so the allied planes could clearly see it.

Foreign journalists were taken late Sunday to the factory in the village of Baric, 10 miles west of Belgrade.

Slobodan Tosovic, a Belgrade health official, said the factory is processing components for washing detergents and there are 180 tons of highly toxic hydrofluoride in the factory systems.

If NATO strikes the factory, a cloud with a lethal dose of the acid would spread in a 20-mile radius, while a cloud with a toxic dose could reach up to 60 miles away, probably engulfing neighboring states, Tosovic said.

Along Kosovo's borders, Kosovars continued to flee the province Sunday at the rate of a thousand an hour. An estimated 40,000 refugees either left Kosovo over the weekend or were at its borders preparing to leave, international officials said.

A car carrying a family across the border to Albania early Sunday struck a Serb land mine planted at the edge of a narrow mountain path, killing three children, their mother and their grandmother.

Yugoslav troops have heavily mined the area along the road to guard against crossings into Kosovo by either fighters of the rebel Kosovo Liberation Army or by NATO troops.

NATO said that while the KLA retained only a small amount of terrain, the rebels were "far from defeated," reporting fighting in central, eastern and northern Kosovo.

NATO forces will soon be bolstered by 24 U.S. Apache helicopter gunships sent to attack Yugoslav army and special police forces. The first Apaches were expected in Albania from Italy by today; however, severe rainstorms have delayed deployment at least another day.

Reflecting tensions over the stepped-up military activity in Albania, Yugoslavia severed diplomatic relations with its southern neighbor on Sunday, the Albanian Foreign Ministry said.

Albanian soldiers swarmed around the Morini border station early today and ordered reporters not to approach the frontier. International monitors described the situation as tense and said it was unclear how long the crossing would be closed.

DURRES, Albania - They arrive from Germany, France and the United States by the dozens, young Kosovar émigrés fired up by images of Serb atrocities and determined to win Kosovo for ethnic Albanians.

In a matter of days, they will be getting their first military experience in training camps in the northern Albanian mountains, before ducking across the border into Kosovo in a fervent guerrilla battle for an independent homeland.

"This is our last chance in history to win Kosovo," said 20-year-old Ismail Hoxhaj, among 150 recruits who arrived this week from Germany at the Albanian port of Dur-

Since the Kosovo Liberation Army called up all Kosovo Albanian men to fight on April 1, 10,000 recruits have arrived in Albania - mostly from Germany, Switzerland, France and Austria, where they have been working illegally. The first group of recruits from the United States landed this weekend.

They are joining a ragtag band of guerrilla fighters run by commanders in their 30s, who are without formal military training themselves and who have very few resources and few guns. There have been no reported battles where they made a

When Clara's sister, Elsie, died in 1996, she left a trove of papers and artifacts that found its way to Rutgers University.

Clara was an alumna, though not a famous one such as Paul Robeson or Calista Flockhart. She attended New Jersey College for Women, the forerunner of Douglass, Rutgers' college for women.

Deirdre Kramer, head of the Douglass scholars program, had long been interested in "psychobiography" telling the story of an interior life. So she issued a challenge to her students: Could they take these faded papers and reconstruct Clara Kangler?

"LL tell you when I start to worry. I start to worry when "officials" tell me not to worry. This is why I am very concerned about the following Associated Press report, which was sent to me by a number of alert readers:

RICHLAND, WASH. —
Radioactive ants, flies and gnats have been found at the Hanford nuclear complex, bringing to mind those Cold-War-era "B" horror movies in which giant mutant insects are the awful price paid for mankind's entry into the Atomic Age.

paid for mankind's entry into the Atomic Age.

Officials at the nation's most contaminated nuclear site insist there is no danger of Hanford becoming the setting for a '90s version of "Them!," the 1954 movie starring James Arness and James Whitmore in which huge, marauding ants are spawned by nuclear experiments in the desert."

Should we trust these "officials"? I'll let you decide for yourself what the answer is (NO). But consider:

For years, "officials" insisted that our cars needed air bags for safety; then, when we GOT air bags, "officials" started warning us how dangerous they are, the result being that many concerned parents now strap their children to the car roof.

For years, "officials" told us that marijuana was an evil, criminal drug. Now they tell us that it has, quote, "important medical benefits warranting further investigation, but first let's order a pizza."

• Every year, "officials" tell us to turn all our clocks ahead one hour, only to turn around a few months later and tell us to turn them BACK. Make up your minds, "officials"!

My point is that we cannot trust "offi-cials" any farther than we can throw them by the leg. This is especially true when it comes to the Hanford nuclear complex. When this complex was built, "officials" said it was safe; now the whole area glows like a Budweiser sign. So when "officials" tell us that the radioactive Hanford insects are NOT going to mutate into giant monsters like the ants depicted in the 1954 movie "Them!," it clearly is time to study his movie and see what happened, because it is about to happen again. I did not see "Them!," but I do have a plot summary from a book called "Guide for the Film Fanatic." It states that after James Whitmore and James Arness discover the giant mutant ants marauding around the New Mexico desert, they kill most of them by burning their nest; however, some ants escape, and the heroes "trace them to Los Angeles." The book loesn't say why the heroes would have to "trace" the ants; you'd think that if marauding insects the size of houses showed up in a heavily populated area, it would be mentioned prominently in the news media, but "Guide for the Film Fanatic" makes it sound as though Arness and Whitmore had to track the ants down via detective techniques:

JAMES ARNESS (showing a photograph to a store-keeper): Have you seen this ant? It's 23 feet tall.

STOREKEEPER (frowning at the photograph): Hmmm ... We did have a 40-foot praying mantis in here last week, but I don't recall any ... Wait a minute! Aren't you Marshal Dillon from "Gunsmoke"?

JAMES ARNESS: Not until 1955.

Anyway, the heroes finally locate the giant ants in the Los Angeles sewer system, where, according to "Guide for the Film Fanatic," there is "a thrilling finale. The guide gives no details on this finale, so we don't know whether the ants are killed, or mutate again and become agents, or what.

But the point is this: If, as now seems likely, the radioactive insects at the Hanford complex mutate and start marauding, they will almost certainly head for Los Angeles. This is a terrifying prospect. Imagine how you would feel if you tuned in to the evening news and learned that, for example, Fran Drescher had been sucked dry by a gnat the size of a water buffalo. You'd feel pretty excited. You'd hope there was video.

But innocent people could also be hurt, and that is why we need to take action NOW. Instead of frittering away billions on this "Star Wars" missile-defense system, we need to use that money to construct, in the desert outside of Los Angeles, a 100foot-high, 500-foot-long, fully functional Hostess Twinkie. The giant insects would be attracted to the Twinkie, and while they were munching on it, an earth-orbiting manned space station would launch a rocket-propelled, laser-guided, nine-story-high, 18,000-pound man's shoe, which would, by the time it reached the Twinkie, be traveling at over 6,000 miles per hour, resulting in a Stomp of Doom that would hurl globs of cream filling as far as St. Louis.

Of course, building a weapons system this size would not be easy. There would be political considerations: Powerful members of Congress would insist on having giant Twinkies built in their states, too: But that is a small price to pay for national security. We must proceed with this! We already have the technology! Which means, of course, that so does China.

MR PRESIDENT, TOUR LEGACY IS HERE TO SEE YOU...

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

U.S. 'peace' crusade not what it seems

To the Editor:

Kudos to letter writer Keith Kinion (DI/April16) for his fitting reply to Ed Blake (DI/April 9) and Jackie Anderson (DI/April 9) for their lopsided views of the crisis in the Balkans. As much as Blake hates socialism and communism and Anderson likens Slobodan Milosevic to Hitler, they seem to be intoxicated by their patriotic fervor that is blinded by a media frenzy fed by American policy makers.

The NATO-backed aggression on Yugoslavia is a blatant disregard for the sovereignty of an independent country. What is clear from recent events is that the United States and the West in their self-appointed role as bastions of peace and policemen of evil have flouted the rules of democracy and embarked on a rampage of world superiority and dominance.

To this effect, they are using their military might and economic strength to weaken, destabilize and divide countries. When they cannot achieve their goals with their bullying tactics, they have resorted to taking sides by supporting separatist forces within countries.

This is evident from their support of the Kurds in Iraq and the Kosovo Liberation Army in Kosovo. I wish victory for the Serb freedom-fighters in their present struggle against aggressors and the separatists. Otherwise this would encourage terrorists and separatists within other countries to seek the blessing of the United States and the West in their endeavors.

Since the collapse of the Soviet Union, this aggressive role of the United States and the West is going unchecked, and maybe after the Kosovo crisis, may strike too close to home in Chechnya. Under the facade of humanitarianism, the United States is, in the words of its policy makers, protecting its economic and strategic interests.

To this effect, intimidation followed by submission appears to be the hallmark of U.S. foreign policy. The president's new world order is probably re-assigning borders and re-drawing lines on the sand. This would be true of countries that do not succumb to the strategic and economic impositions of the United States and the West.

We require the Milosevics and the Husseins of this world to withstand the superior military might of the bullies and to break away from their economic shackles. What is unfortunate is that international bodies such as the United Nations and NATO are themselves slaves of this "new authority." Freedom and dignity are the right of every country — democratic, socialist, communist or dictatorship.

Caught in this crossfire are the poor, helpless civilians. Why can't the civilized democracies learn from and encourage the teachings of such non-violent heroes as Mahatma Gandhi, Martin Luther King Jr. and Nelson Mandela to make this a better world?

Despite DI column, hate-crime laws needed

To the Editor:

Lee Strang muddies the water about hate-crime legislation when he brings up the free-speech argument. Free speech isn't protected when you yell fire in a crowded theater. Free speech isn't protected if I come up to you and scream in your face that I'm going to beat the snot out of you.

Strang also distorts the truth when he states that we don't punish motivation for crimes. If someone dies, it is horrible. If someone hits someone with his or her car accidentally, the penalty is much less severe than if someone commits a premeditated murder.

Most telling is that the people who decry hate-crime legislation didn't do so until these protections were proposed to deal with the lack of enforcement of crimes that occur against gay people. Crimes occur and the cops ignore them, or the judges don't give out real sentences. Not in cases such as Matthew Shepard, but in cases such as Michael Sharp, who had his car rammed by a Jeep and had the teen-age passengers of the Jeep get out and assault him. The kids who assaulted him were let go without penalty. Sharp was cited for reckless driving, based solely on the testimony of the folks in the Jeep. Hate-crime laws prevent uneven prosecution such as this from occurring, which is their sole legitimate justification.

Cars, pedestrians cause problems for others

To the Editor

I do not know which is worse — driving in Iowa City or walking in Iowa City. According to Carol Lindeen, they are both equally treacherous. In her recent column, Lindeen notes the congestion on Iowa City roads, especially at the intersection of Iowa Avenue and Clinton Street ("Don't let cars drive you crazy," DI/April 2).

This is one of the busiest intersections in town, causing hassle and stress not only for the pedestrian but also for the motorist. Lindeen is right to attribute aggressive driving to monopolizing walkers.

In this particular location, a city center, as well as a university center, lights and signals are programmed to maintain order in a potentially hazardous area. Problems arise when these rules are not obeyed.

Pedestrians, insisting on crossing the street when signals are flashing DON'T WALK, inhibit cars from advancing through the intersection. This makes drivers unhappy because they did not make the light.

Such transgression has progressively gotten worse and peaks every hour at the changing of classes. The article suggested a little humility; I suggest a lot of humility. This sort of thing is not limited to the corner of lowa Avenue and Clinton Street but is prevalent all over lowa City.

For example, earlier this semester I was driving down Gilbert Street when a group of students decided to cross the street in front of me. I blew my horn to warn them of a car, but this only caused them to saunter more slowly. They deliberately held up traffic when it was not their turn to proceed through the intersection.

Action needs to be taken to correct and prevent such misconduct. In many cities there are enforced jaywalking ordinances to combat such problems. Unfortunately, these measures need to be adopted here to correct a problem that has gotten out of hand. There is no respect for driver or non-driver, and Lindeen's humorous antidote "pogo-sticks for everyone" is not a reasonable solution.

Clarifying confusion of GPA standards

To the Editor:

The article discussing changes in the GPA standards for the College of Liberal Arts had it almost right. ("Faculty group squabbles over attendance," DI/April 15.)

Since this is a complex topic easily misunderstood, and since this is something every student needs and deserves to know, I'm writing to clarify the changes in policy and correct the one factual error in the article.

The current 1.70 GPA standard for students in the College of Liberal Arts earning 0-29 semester hours will be raised effective fall 2000 to a 1.85 GPA to remain in good academic standing. This means that beginning fall semester 2000, these students must achieve a 1.85 GPA across those hours to remain in good academic standing.

The current 1.85 GPA standard for students in the College of Liberal Arts earning 30-59 semester hours will be raised to a 2.00 GPA to remain in good academic standing. This means that beginning fall semester 2000, students having earned 30 or more hours must achieve a 2.00 GPA across those hours to remain in good academic standing.

The last line of the article stated that "after two semesters on academic probation, a student will be dismissed from the UI." I worry that there may be two somewhat misleading aspects of that formulation. First, the implementation of the new GPA thresholds were approved by the Faculty Assembly of the College of Liberal Arts, and these standards affect degree-seeking candidates only in the College of Liberal Arts. Second, students in the college may be subject to dismissal after one semester on academic probation.

But dismissal is not automatic even after two semesters on academic probation.

Wondering where DI was on GPA story

To the Editor:

I was upset and dismayed to read about the low attendance rates at the College of Liberal Arts Faculty Assembly meetings. ("Faculty group squabbles over attendance," DI/April 15.)

I was even more upset at the DI's lack of reporting on the GPA "good standing" increase prior to the meeting.

This is an increase that affects all members of the

This is an issue that affects all members of the student body, and I heard nothing of it until the issue had already been decided. This is personally a matter of great importance for me.

I am a sophomore and having a difficult time. I just barely clear the "good standing" GPA as it is. The new GPA requirement is probably going to put me over the edge, this despite my National Merit Scholarship, my honors classes and high grades in high school. Due to factors beyond my control, my grades have slipped.

It is a shame that the required GPA has been raised. It is a shame that so few cared about it and that attendance was so low at the meeting. And it is a shame that the DI did not do better reporting on this issue.

■ The collapse of the government in India has UI students wondering about the country's next leader.

> By Alpana Lath The Daily Iowan

Following the April 17 collapse of the Indian government, many UI Indian students predict that Sonia Gandhi, the Italian wife of former Prime Minister Rajiv Gandhi, will be the next prime minister of India, bringing the Gandhi family back to the forefront of Indian politics.

The Indian government, which was made up of a coalition led by the Hindu nationalist Bharatiya Janata Party, collapsed last week after some members of the coalition pulled out their support.

UI graduate student Enakshi Choudhuri said there is a lot of speculation about who will be the next prime minister, but many see it as a no-win situation.

"(I)t will probably be Sonia Gandhi," Choudhuri said. "It is likely to be a coalition government even though there are too many ideological differences for coalitions to work. However, no party is strong enough to form a singleparty government."

Neither of the two major national parties - the BJP and the Congress - has been able to muster enough votes to form single-party governments in recent elections.

UI freshman Rachna Chaudhari said there was talk of the government's collapsing last winter, when she visited India.

"India needs to get its act together," she said. "No significant party is in power, and everyone in the government is corrupt.

Former UI student Monali Sawai said a single-party government was essential because coalitions caused instability when they collapsed in midterm. Even if the Congress Party was corrupt when it was in power, Sawai said, she would support the party.

"I tend to support the Congress over the BJP, because Congress leaders might be corrupt, but the BJP believes in Hindu fundamentalism, and there is no way I can support that," she said.

UI graduate student Vidya Athreya is pessimistic about the fate of the next government, no matter which party forms it.

"The new government is not going to stay too long if it is made up of many different parties," she

Meanwhile, Prime Minister Atal Behari Vajpayee handed in his resignation along with that of the Council of Ministers; he has been asked to stay on until an alternative government is formed.

Side streets, including Davenport, Fairchild and Bloomington streets, have free, all-day parking. However, cars must be moved to the opposite side of the street each night.

The meters will come from the downtown area as the city works on the Downtown Streetscape and the Iowa Avenue parking ramp. The cost of installing the meters is expected to be nominal, Davidson said, adding that the city expects to install them in late May or early June.

The Iowa City City Council is expected to approve the changes at its May 3 formal meeting.

In conjunction with the new meters, the UI wants to close the alley between Currier and Burge by installing a gate, Van Oel said. The UI has had problems getting food trucks to the rear of Burge because cars are parked along both sides of the alley.

No cars are supposed to be parked in the alley. The alley would be re-opened when students move in and move out of the residence halls, she said.

The UI has wanted to close the Currier-Burge alley for several years, Van Oel said. The project, which is estimated at $50,000, could be moved up to this summer because of the installation of the meters. It also hinges on find-

"The woodland design has a lot of maple and oak leaves and acorns," Pushetonequa said.

Grace was competing in the jingle dance. Like many of the female costumes, her skirt was lined with rolled chewing tobacco lids, which make the jingle sound for which the dance is named. But Pushetonequa assured bystanders the lids were not from used tobacco cans: "We don't smoke or chew - the lids are sold separately."

Pushetonequa's nephew, 7-yearold Canku Onestar, was also competing in the dance contest. He won second place for the Junior Boy's Fancy Bustle. This type of dance category is usually reserved for youth because of the impressive amount of energy required to keep with the drum beat.

Onestar, who was never trained but learned to dance from attending and watching numerous powwow dance contests, was satisfied with his performance "because I didn't get third place," he said.

Organizers estimated that 5,000-7,000 people attended the powwow, about the same turnout as last year. The event is the largest indoor nonsporting event at the UI.

The powwow provided an opportunity for many people of all backgrounds to learn more about American Indian culture.

"A lot of people see us in a different way," Pushetonequa said. "Some think we're still primitive, and we still live in teepees." Tom Seibert, of Burlington, has attended the UI Powwow the last two years. As part of his Boy Scout group, he has participated in native dance contests and he was at the UI to "pick up ideas and new dance steps.

"I think white people should show up with more respect for the Indians after all we've done to them," he said

It means a NATO-led force to ensure the security and the safety of the people of Kosovë," Dole said. She was using the Albanian name, "Kosovë," for the embattled province, as many Westerners are doing these days. Dole's visit follows last week's statewide College Republicans straw poll, in which Dole beat out other Republican presidential hopefuls with a 32 percent vote, according to her Web site. The other Republicans included perceived front-runner Texas Gov. George W. Bush. Tanna Frederick, a UI senior and Beta Chi president, said Dole's stop recognizes the UI as a politically active campus.

"The UI represents a crucial group of voters in the Midwest," she said. "It's important to notice college students and that we're becoming a prominent role in the electoral process.'

If Dole announces her candidacy in the near future, it will be a momentous occasion, McDonald said.

"It's an important step in our history for her to run on the Republican ticket for the presidential race," she said.

Dole's visit is funded by the UI Beta Chi political science honors society. The event is free and open to the public, and will include a question-and-answer session with the audience. DI reporter Anita Chlipala can be reached at:

Alternative technologies such as biomass and ethanol are not only less polluting, but they could represent a major new revenue source for the state, Osterberg said. "We can gain from pollution," he added.

The Iowa men's athletics department made it official late Friday afternoon - John Davey will lead the men's swimming team into the next century as head coach.

Davey was the interim coach last eason, when the Hawkeyes finished 3overall in dual meets, 1-4 in the Big Ten. Associate Men's Athletics Director Larry Bruner said his committee, made up of five men's athletics officials, was someone with head coaching experience, experience recruiting elite athletes both in the United States and abroad and coaching experience at a level similar to the Big Ten. Davey is the only Big Ten athlete in any sport to be named Athlete of the Year for his or her sport four straight years. He was a 10-time all-American, owns 10 Big Ten titles, was a finalist at the 1988 and 1992 Olympic Games. "Tm happy, very happy," Davey said.

To actually come back to coach at the place you went to school is pretty cool." The swimmers met the athletics department's decision with open arms, as well. Sophomore John Lonergan said keeping Davey will allow the team to keep improving.

"He's been to the Olympics and to the Big Ten Championships, and he knows how to get people there," Lonergan said. "I know from swimming this year that I've improved, I think that the team improved and I think with John there, we'll keep improving."

DeVries, Thigpen snatched in NFL draft

■ Former lowa lineman Jared DeVries was selected in the third round of the NFL draft, while Eric Thigpen was picked 200th overall.

By Wayne Drehs The Daily Iowan

There are 12 teams in the National Football League that former Hawkeye Jared DeVries can't wait to play.

That's because DeVries, considered by many the top defensive pro prospect entering the 1998 season, watched Saturday as 12 teams passed him over for a different defensive lineman in the NFL draft.

Then, finally, 8 1/2 hours after the draft began, the Detroit Lions chose DeVries with the 70th pick overall in the third round.

"I was a little disappointed, obviously," DeVries said. "So it's definitely some added motivation. I'm going to go out there and prove to the other teams that took a defensive lineman that they were wrong." Former Iowa teammate Eric Thigpen, a free safety, was selected by the Atlanta Falcons in the sixth round

The Lions were the only team that DeVries visited with prior to the draft, so it wasn't much of a shock when they called Saturday. It just surprised DeVries that it took so long for the phone to ring. DeVries said the Lions called him four picks before their selection, while the San Diego Chargers were on the clock. They asked DeVries not to answer call waiting, in case the Chargers tried to call him. When San Diego passed on DeVries, the Lions then decided to move up in a trade with Miami and take DeVries.

"We both let out a sigh when the Chargers didn't pick me," DeVries said. "Detroit had me ranked as the 22nd-best player in the draft and said that if they had a chance, they'd be tickled to death to have me, so they said the heck with it and made the

Though DeVries was disappointed with how low he went in the draft, he said it's an added bonus to play for a team that wanted him so badly. The three-time All-American will head to Detroit on Thursday for a mini-camp.

That makes me feel good, to know that I was the one they were thinking of," DeVries said. "They said this was a Christmas present for them and that

Elliott remains 'upbeat'

By Wayne Drehs The Daily Iowan

Former Iowa assistant football coach Bob Elliott underwent a bone marrow transplant Friday in an effort to beat his lifethreatening blood disorder, and the procedure went well.

Elliott, 45, must now wait two to three weeks to determine if his body will accept the new bone marrow, which was donated by his cousin.

"I talked to his wife Joey and I guess he had a pret-ty good (transplant)," Iowa defensive end Ryan Loftin said. "Things went really well."
Elliott entered the UIHC

on April 7 and had been undergoing chemotherapy treatments since then to kill the old bone marrow prior to the transplant. Now, all he can do is wait to see if everything worked. The coach said two weeks ago that this two-week period would be one of the most agonizing parts of the procedure.

"The doctors have told me it will be like having a strength and do whatever he can with his family right now," Loftin said. "Hopefully by the end of the week we'll be able to see him or talk to him." Elliott suffers from poly-cythemia vera, a rare blood disorder that causes the bone marrow to produce too many white blood cells, red blood cells, and platelets. Loftin said he spoke with

Elliott the day after he was admitted and that the coach was "very upbeat." "He's always on a high

"The expectation is that that he's going to come through this as strong as ever and be on the practice field with us this fall."

helps a little bit." Thigpen was the 200th pick overall. If he makes the Falcons' roster, Thigpen will join former Iowa teammate Tim Dwight.

In DeVries' conversations with the Lions prior to the draft, he admired defensive line coach Brian Baker and felt quite comfortable with Detroit's attacking defense. The Lions told DeVries they plan to use him as an end on first and second down and a tackle on third down.

"It's a very good fit for what they do defensively," DeVries said. "They're penetrators, and they do a lot of the same things we did here at Iowa."

DeVries set Iowa career records in tackles for loss, tackles for loss yardage, sacks and sack yardage.

He said Thursday that he expected to be selected somewhere between the 15th and 45th picks and almost all mock drafts supported his claim. "When you get Jared DeVries in the third round, you are talking about a good bargain at this point for the Detroit Lions," ESPN's Mel Kiper Jr. said. "He's a hustler, never quits on a play and has a great motor. It's a great value at this stage of the third round."

Iowa's annual spring game didn't answer all the questions coneerning Iowa's logjam at quarter-

Senior Randy Reiners didn't ress for Saturday's game after reinjuring his knee last week in practice on a hit by defensive tackle Skip Miller.

"I had the red jersey on, but you've got to know Skip, he goes 100 percent all the time," Reiners said. "It was an accident. He feels bad enough already.'

The injury will require surgery to repair the cartilage in his left knee. Doctors had previously tried to repair the damage with stitches, but it was unsuccessful. The procedure should take place in about

The recovery time for this surgery is typically three to four weeks, and Reiners expects to recover fully in time for the fall

"Coach (Kirk) Ferentz said it wouldn't set me back and I'm pretty confident about my situation for the fall," Reiners said. "I've gotten some pretty good reps in during the spring, and Coach said it wouldn't be fair to come here, play hurt and be judged on that."

Reiners is no stranger to knee roblems. He originally injured the knee against Purdue two years

This past winter, Reiners had surgery that removed 30 percent of is anterior cruciate ligament ACL) and 20 percent of the medial collateral ligament (MCL).

"There's not much in there," Reiners said. "The doctor said I should have had it done 19 months

A new era

There have been plenty of changes on the Iowa team under the new Ferentz regime, and that was evident in Saturday's game. First, and most obvious, was the defensive alignment. Ferentz's defense is a 4-3 set, as pposed to Hayden Fry's 5-2

The 4-3, which is the defense of choice at most college and profes-ESADILLAS BLT sional programs, uses three linebackers behind four defensive line-

> "I'm really liking the 4-3," sophomore Aaron Kampman said. "It's a really aggressive style where we get to get in there and do what we like to do. We've put in a lot of time this spring, and we've picked it up pretty quickly."

When Iowa catcher Toby Humes saw Todd Ellinger's monster home run sail over the right field fence, he knew he had seen it before.

The Hawkeyes had held leads in the first three games against Purdue, but ended up losing each contest. Ellinger's two-run round-tripper capped a five-run eighth inning in Sunday's final game that gave the Boilermakers a 9-4 lead.

"I'm not going to lie to you," Humes said. "I thought, 'When can we get something to go our way?' It seemed like (their rally) came out of the blue. Whap! Five runs."

But Iowa (16-22, 4-12 Big Ten) finally found a way to win a close Big Ten contest, scoring six runs in their half of the eighth to secure the 10-9 win.

"We gave them five in the eighth inning, but the kids didn't hang their hats," Iowa coach Scott Broghamer said. "We came back, swung the bats and finally got a

Purdue (15-21, 4-8 Big Ten) had two costly errors in the inning, which prolonged the Iowa rally long enough for Alex Dvorsky to hit what turned out to be the game-winning, two-run double.

Perhaps even more impressive was freshman pitcher Dyson Miguel's performance. He relieved starting pitcher Jim Magrane, who had given up the first three runs in the eighth inning.

The first batter Miguel faced was Ellinger, who hit the home run. However, Miguel retired the next six batters in order, including two strikeouts in the ninth inning against Purdue's Nos. 2 and 4 hitters, Darryl Hallada and Ryan Miguel, who redshirted last season, was almost speechless after his performance.

"I've been waiting for this shot for two years," Miguel said. "I just wanted to show the coach what I could do. They gave me the opportunity, and I got the job done.

The Iowa men's tennis team swept its Big Ten competition last weekend in the team's final two home matches of the season.

Iowa defeated Penn State, 5-2, Saturday in the Recreation Building and Ohio State, 4-3, Sunday on the Klotz outdoor courts.

The Hawkeyes now hold an 11-9 record on the season and are 4-4 in the Big Ten.

Against the Nittany Lions, the Hawkeyes swept all three doubles matches to gain the doubles point. Sunday, Iowa's No. 1 doubles (senior Ulf Jentler and sophomore Jason Dunn) and No. 2 doubles (sophomore Tyler Cleveland and senior Ben Bamsey) teams won their matches to claim Iowa's second doubles point of the weekend.

"In the Big Ten matches we have won, we got the doubles point," coach Steve Houghton said. "In the four we have lost, we Houghton has stressed the importance of the doubles point and the momentum it provides. Iowa fed off that momentum this weekend, taking seven of 11 singles matches in the two duals.

Cleveland, freshman Petar Mandic, Dunn and senior Girts Auskaps all came away with singles victories against Penn State.

Sunday against the Buckeyes, Iowa took to the Klotz courts for its first outdoor match at home this season.

"There are so many elements that come into play, like the wind and the sun," Jentler said. "I was mad to start (the match outside)

Cleveland believes Iowa has a good chance to finish 6-4 in the conference.

Hanks leads Hawkeyes with her bat

■ The freshman pitcher from Texas has seven hits in her last 14 at-bats.

> By Tony Wirt The Daily Iowan

For the first half of the season, freshman pitcher Kristi Hanks concentrated solely on her duties toeing the rubber. Hitting wasn't part of her game, and she tallied only five at-bats with no hits.

Recently, Iowa coach Gayle Blevins decided to turn Hanks loose on Big Ten pitchers, and they probably wish she hadn't. The Texas native has gone 7-for-14 with a home run and five RBIs in her last six games.

Hanks' hitting was a big part of Iowa's three-game sweep of Indiana last weekend. The Hawkeyes took the doubleheader Saturday by scores of 2-1 (eight innings) and 7-2 before defeating the Hoosiers 5-1 Sunday.

"When one person starts hitting, then the next will, then the next, and right on down the lineup,' Hanks said. "I feel like we're on a roll now."

The Hawkeye bats were definitely on a roll Sunday, when they pounded out 13 hits against Indiana pitcher Teresa Martinez.

Iowa took a 2-0 lead in the second, then added two more runs in the third on a two-run single by catcher Katy Jendrzejewski.

The four-run cushion was more than enough for starter Kelly Zeilstra, who cruised through the game. Indiana put together a little run in the fourth with a run on three singles, but that was all. Iowa added a run in the sixth on

> By Robert Yarborough The Daily Iowan

Coming off two consecutive losses, the Iowa women's rowing Novice team was looking to make some waves at Sugar Bottom against Northwestern and Wisconsin on Saturday.

The Varsity crew was scheduled to compete against Wisconsin in Madison, but Wisconsin canceled the race at the last moment to protect its ranking. The Badgers are ranked ninth in the latest USRowing national polls and the top 10 teams automatically go to the NCAA Championships.

"Wisconsin felt it was in their best interest if they did not race us," Novice coach Sean Tobin said. In the meantime, the Novice unit ended its losing streak by defeating Northwestern and upsetting Wisconsin. After jumping out to an early five-stroke lead over the Badgers, Iowa had trouble getting into its rhythm down the stretch and lost to the Badgers by 39.33 seconds with a time of 9:32.13 in the 2nd Novice 8+.

Wisconsin completed the 1st Novice 8+ race 28.47 seconds ahead of the second-place Hawkeyes with a winning time of 9:07.34, while Northwestern was a distant third in both races. "Last week we raced against the Varsity squad, which helped us out a lot," sophomore Anne Shelton said. "We really were looking to win after losing here last weekend."

The 2nd Novice 8+ was the only boat able to survive the nasty weather at Coralville Lake last weekend to capture a close win against Ohio State. Adjustments were made this week to assure at least one victory over Northwestern.

Like the Varsity team, the Novice women are preparing for the Midwest Rowing Championships that take place on May 1-2 in Madison.

The Midwest Championships are a stepping stone in Iowa's bid to return to the national tournament, and Shelton believes the team has no reason not to do well.

"For the whole team, these Championships are extremely important because we see where we stand in the nation in relation to the best," Shelton said. "At this point in the season we have seen nearly everyone there, so there are no excuses if we screw up."

Poor weather knocks out Pacesetter

By Todd Hefferman The Daily Iowan

The Iowa women's track and field team split up last weekend, with the more fortunate half going west.

Junior Lakeya Boatright, senior Stacey Bynoe, senior Rebecca Kaza and juniors Colleen Prendergast and Paula Ruen ventured to Walnut, Calif., for the Mt. San Antonio College (SAC) Relays, while the rest of the team drove to Terre Haute, Ind., for the Pacesetter Relays.

Terre Haute, Iowa coach Jim Grant, who was with those who traveled to Indiana, knew the sun must have been shining in the west.

"When we got there, it was rainy and windy," Grant said. "We turned around and drove back."

The Pacesetter was canceled, knocking 13 teams out of competition and taking away the competitors' last chance to qualify for the upcoming Drake Relays, which will be held this weekend in Des Moines.

Some people, like Ruqayya acesetter Relays. (Raheem), I wanted to get some competition before Drake," Grant said. "I also wanted to get Maggie Griffith another race.

Out in Walnut, Bynoe and Ruen finished the highest of the five Hawkeyes, both finishing second. Bynoe finished second in the 400-meter dash and Ruen tied for second in the 100 hurdles. Boatright finished fourth in the 200 dash and Prendergast finished fourth in the 100 hurdles.

The Mt. SAC Relays had several heats of the same event, and no finals. Medals were based on the individual heats, which is why two different athletes could have taken first place in the same event.

Nomo looks strong for lowa Cubs

By Chuck Schoffner Associated Press

DES MOINES - If the Chicago Cubs want him, Hideo Nomo says he'll be ready.

But will he get that call? The former NL Rookie of the Year will find out by the end of the week.

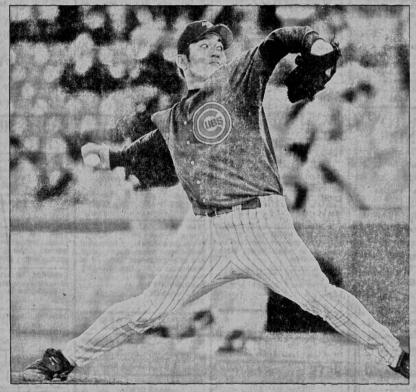

The Cubs will decide Nomo's fate with the organization after he makes a third start for Triple-A Iowa on Thursday. If he comes close to matching what he did Saturday night, Nomo can expect to find himself back in the big leagues.

Nomo struck out 10 in six-plus innings against Las Vegas, allowing three hits and two runs, both of which scored after he left.

"As far as being a step closer to the major leagues, that's out of my control," Nomo said through an interpreter. "As I said the other day, it's not my decision. It's in the hands of the club."

The club liked what it saw. Nomo's pitches were clocked at 86-92 mph and he hit 91 mph in the sixth inning. After walking the game's leadoff batter on four pitches, Nomo struck out eight of the next nine and allowed only one ball to be hit to the outfield in the first four innings.

"Overall, it was encouraging," said David Wilder, the Cubs' assistant general manager. "That's a lot better and would be ready if the Cubs against the Las Vegas Stars in Des Moines.

Nomo, who won the rookie award in 1995 with the Los Angeles Dodgers, was released by the New York Mets after an unimpressive spring and was signed by the Cubs earlier this month. The team and Nomo agreed that after three starts, the Cubs would decide whether to call him up or release him.

The 30-year-old right-hander said he never lost his confidence called on him.

After a rocky start in his first game a week ago, Nomo retired nine of the last 10 batters. He went five innings and gave up three runs and six hits, striking out three and walking three.

Nomo was much sharper Saturday night as he mixed his best pitch, the split-finger fastball, with a straight fastball and curve.

"The first time, we saw glimpses. This time he came right out in the first inning and held it through the sixth," I-Cubs pitching coach Rick Kranitz said.

Doyle sets record, wins Seniors Championship

PALM BEACH GARDENS. Fla. (AP) - Armed with a booming swing and a hot putter, Allen Doyle overcame a fourshot deficit with a record final round to win the PGA Seniors Championship on his first try Sunday.

Doyle recorded nine birdies and an eagle on the way to an 8-under-par 64, the tournament's lowest final round by a winner. He won by two strokes over Argentina's Vicente Fernandez and finished with a four-day total of 14-under

"That's something. It was a great, great day today. I don't know what to say," said Doyle, 50, a Senior PGA Tour rookie who didn't turn professional until age 47.

Andretti stays the course for victory

MARTINSVILLE, Va. — Forty-nine laps into the Goody's 500 in a car he knew was strong, John Andretti was bumped and spun out.

He went a lap down, and he was furious at Ward Burton.

"I just thought, 'Can I get off like O.J. did if I kill the guy that spun me with 60,000 people watching?" Andretti said Sunday. "I was so mad it was too hard for me to deal with to even think about winning."

But 449 laps later, racing on the same tires he'd been using for the previous 109 laps, Andretti passed Burton's brother, Jeff, and then ran away in the last three laps to earn his second career victory by a surprising 1.066 seconds.

'The car was awesome. It spits con-

Day wins playoff at MCI

HILTON HEAD ISLAND, S.C. - Glen Day, after a 90-minute wait watching contenders with major titles try and pass him, rolled in a 35-foot putt on the first playoff hole Sunday to win the MCI Classic, his first PGA Tour victory.

Payne Stewart, trying for his third victory at Harbour Town, missed an 18footer to extend the playoff.

"I finished so much earlier than everybody else, I didn't think I had a prayer," said Day, who won $450,000. I told my caddie to get the extra clubs because when somebody went ahead, I wanted to leave."

SALT LAKE CITY — Johnson & Johnson became the first sponsor to abandon the scandal-ridden Olympics, backing off an estimated $30 million deal for the 2002 Winter Games.

Williams steals the spotlight

■ Mike Ditka's successful quest to obtain Ricky Williams was one of the highlights of the NFL draft.

> By Dave Goldberg Associated Press

NEW YORK - So much for the Year of the Quarterback.

Yes, Tim Couch, Donovan McNabb and Akili Smith went 1-2-3 to Cleveland, Philadelphia and Cincinnati in Saturday's NFL draft - the first quarterback trifecta since 1971.

And five QBs overall were taken in the top dozen with Daunte Culpepper going to Minnesota with the 11th pick and Cade McNown to Chicago with the next choice.

But the quarterbacks had to share top billing with the New Orleans Saints, who did just what coach Mike Ditka has been trying to do all along: get running back Ricky Williams, the Heisman Trophy winner.

Ditka's largesse also helped out the Washington Redskins.

He made his move when Indianapolis used the fourth overall pick to take Miami running back Edgerrin James instead of Williams. Ditka traded all his picks this year and his first and third next year to Washington, a total of eight in all. It set up the rest of the draft and it certainly set up the Redskins.

But Ditka didn't blink.

After the deal for Williams was struck, he emerged from the Saints' war room, pumped both fists in the air, fired up a big cigar and shouted: "The power of prayer did it."

"He's supposed to come here," Ditka said. "I love the kid, everything about him. It's what we need. I think he's going to show people he's the best college football player

"We have maybe five or six African-American quarterbacks that will be going in the draft today or tomorrow. Because of peo-ple like Doug Williams who have paved the way it now becomes a burden on us to pave the way for the next generation."

The Browns' pick was preordained after the new team signed the Kentucky junior before the draft. So was Philadelphia's of McNabb, the Syracuse quarterback, although Eagles fans wanted Williams — a group seated together in the gallery booed and shouted "We want Ricky!" when the team selected McNabb.

NBA ROUNDUP

Iverson no longer NBA's leading scorer

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (AP) - Allen Iverson scored just six points on 2-of-17 shooting Sunday and ceased being the league's leading scorer as the New Jersey Nets shut him down in an 86-79 victory over the Philadelphia 76ers.

It was just the 11th time in 194 career games that Iverson was held under double figures. His scoring average dropped from 26.6 to 26.1, leaving him behind Shaquille O'Neal (26.5) for the league lead.

Celtics 101, Wizards 98

Bulls 79, Bucks 77 CHICAGO - Mark Bryant sank a
