Police find 3 possible co-conspirators

Officials say a camera captured the "carnage" in the cafeteria.

By John Hendren and Steven K. Paulson
Associated Press

GOLDEN, Colo. — Investigators said Tuesday they are focusing on three camouflaged teen-agers detained shortly after the Columbine High School massacre as possible co-conspirators who may have planned to join the carnage.

"They were in combat fatigues. They said they heard it on the radio. Well, it wasn't on the radio at that time," Jefferson County Sheriff John P. Stone told the Associated Press.

For the first time, Stone laid out the timeline for the attack and also disclosed that a school surveillance camera captured the attack in the cafeteria. Stone's department is leading the investigation into the April 20 shootings in Littleton.

Although Stone called the three his "best leads," sheriff's spokesman Jim Parr told other media outlets late Tuesday that investigators had questioned the three men and cleared them. The discrepancy between what Parr and his boss said was not immediately explained.

Stone declined to name the teens, who have been questioned but not formally named as suspects. While the drama unfolded on national television, the three young men in dark jackets were stopped by deputies. They were frisked and taken off for interrogation. The men carried no weapons.

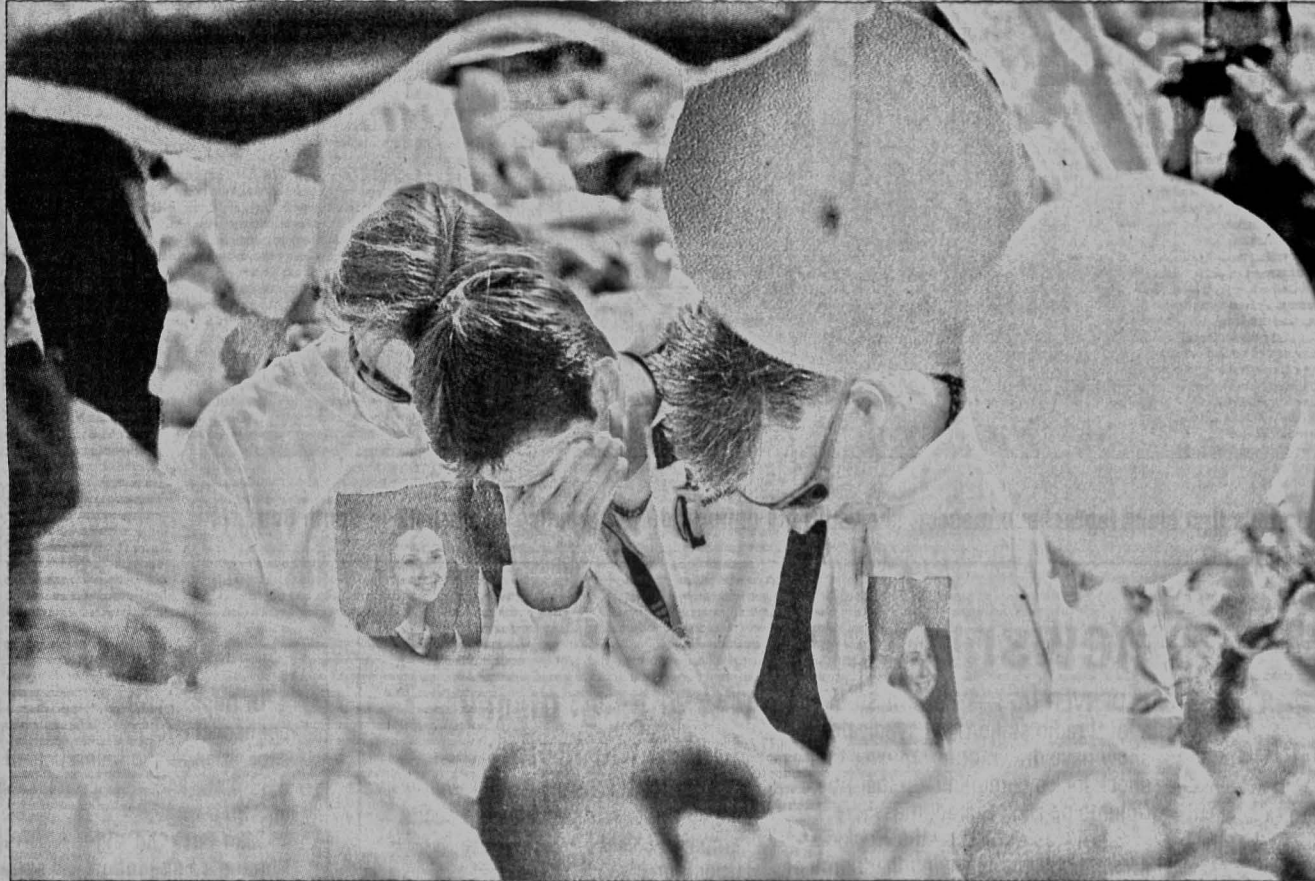

Inside the school, Eric Harris, 18, and Dylan Klebold, 17, killed 12 classmates and a teacher before turning their guns on themselves.

The three young men, who knew the gunmen and had previously been associated with their "Trenchcoat

Investigators also questioned Klebold's 18-year-old girlfriend, Robyn Anderson, who is believed to have bought at least two weapons used in the crime. Investigators want to know whether she knew how the guns were to be used.

Adam Thompson, 17, Josh Kole, 17, and Mark Doucette, 17, students of Columbine High School, gather Tuesday near the car of Rachel Scott at Clement Park, in Littleton, Colo., to share a moment of silence in observance of the one-week anniversary of the Columbine High School shooting.

"Mafia," have maintained their innocence. Investigators tested them for gun residue after the shootings and found no evidence that they had fired guns.

All three students claimed to have heard of the massacre on the radio — and were able to name the gunmen — before the names had been released, Stone said. One of them had been expelled from Columbine High School, he said.

The Denver Rocky Mountain News identified the three men who were questioned as Matthew Christianson, Matt Akard and Jim Branetti.

"We were just three punks with a lot of curiosity," Christianson said in Monday's editions.

All three wore black jackets with combat-style boots when they were taken into custody.

"That's the scariest I've ever been," Christianson said. He said they didn't know Klebold and Harris.

Stone said the two gunmen initially

Police wait for answers

Police have not released new information about the double homicide in almost two weeks.

As "Take Back the Night" rallies file past the South Van Buren Street apartment building in which two women were found murdered in March, they hope to draw attention to a crime that some in the community may have forgotten.

"The murders were a huge, horrible event that happened right here on our streets," said Laurie Haag, an education programmer for the Women's Resource and Action Center. "A woman can go out for a drink or out for a walk, and then no one sees the woman again. That's the reality for all women."

Memmer

The investigation may seem stalled to some in the community, because police haven't released new information about the case in two weeks. Investigators had expected to glean leads from Jonathan Lee Memmer, who was with victim Laura Watson-Dalton the last time she was seen alive. But Memmer, held on a probation violation for $1 million bond,

Union won't house cultural centers, UI says

Following feedback from students, the university decides to not include the centers in the new Union.

By Shirin Sadeghi
The Daily Iowan

New plans to renovate the Union will be presented to UI President Mary Sue Coleman in less than two weeks — and they will not include moving the UI's cultural centers to the facility.

"(The centers) are not in the Union, but they are still part of the (university-wide) purposeful planning process," said Phillip Jones, vice president for Student Services and dean of students. "The Union is one aspect of that process."

Feedback from various students was responsible in part for the decision, he said.

"What we learned in the focus groups gave us some idea of the compatibility of service programs," Jones said.

Baroness Greene, president of the Society for Minority Graduate and Professional Students, was one of the students who often mediated the debate between students and administrators.

"I think the announcement was good — that was what we wanted," she said. "I think (Jones) did what we asked for and complied with our needs."

A final decision on changes to the Union will not be made until the fall, Jones said. The plan, scheduled to be proposed on May 10, "is really to show what possibly could be," he said.

Greene said she has not yet tired of the administration's tendency toward ambiguity.

"Sometimes, you have to fight a little longer," she said. "Compared with other things I've been through, this is nothing."

Two consulting firms will present their proposed design of the Union, along with their financial proposals, at the May 10 meeting.

Thus far, $150,000 to $200,000 have been spent on the process, Jones said. The figure includes fees for the consulting firms, the creation, distribution and analysis of student surveys, travel costs and other related consult-

U.S. calls up 30,000 reserves

The Pentagon action, which will start with the Air Force, marks deepening U.S. involvement in Kosovo.

By Robert Burns
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The Pentagon announced Tuesday it will call 33,102 reservists to active military duty, bringing the Kosovo conflict close to communities from coast to coast. The call-up will begin immediately, with 2,116 members of the Air Force Reserve and Air National Guard to assist in aerial refueling of NATO warplanes.

The first reservists to get the call are from units based in Alabama, Arizona, California, Indiana, Kansas, Michigan, Pennsylvania and Wisconsin. They will serve on active duty for as long as six months.

Thousands more reservists will be pulled from their civilian jobs in the weeks ahead as NATO expands its air campaign, Defense Secretary William Cohen said, in announcing that his mobilization would affect reservists in all branches of the military.

The nonvoluntary call-up is the first since NATO began its air cam-

To be or to be be — UI discussion covers cloning of human beings, from sterility to 'fertility.com'

A genetic engineering debate draws 250 to the Union.

By Carrie Johnston
The Daily Iowan

"Dad, are you my brother?" The provocative title of a speech opposing the idea of cloning humans caught 250 people off guard at the Human Cloning and Genetic Engineering symposium at the Union Tuesday night.

After listening to lawyer Mark Eibert's lecture, "The Case for Human Cloning" — which focused on the somber experiences of infertile couples who would be unable to have children without cloning technology — audience members laughed at the introduction to Dr. Glenn McGee's counter-argument.

"It's clearly not the case that human cloning is a viable reason to solve infertility," said McGee, an assistant professor of bioethics at the University of Pennsylvania. "People used to start out feeling like making love, having a child and fulfilling the American dream. The next thing you know, you are picking out sperm at fertility.com."

Infertility was at issue in a presentation by both McGee and Eibert at the symposium. The two arguments were explored after an introductory speech explaining the nuts and bolts of cloning by Randall Prather, associate professor of animal science at the University of Missouri, Columbia.

For Eibert, prohibiting parents from potentially cloning a child is an outrageous injustice.

"Forced sterilization is a gross violation of our fundamental constitutional rights," he said. "The same arguments that were made against in-vitro fertilization 20 years ago are being made against cloning now. Cloning is promising and not horrifying at all."

One public fear about cloning, perpetuated by such movies such "Multiplicity," is the notion of numerous car-

Manson concert draws protest after shootings

CEDAR RAPIDS — Extra security will be on hand when shock-rocker Marilyn Manson performs tonight, but it will be outside the Five Seasons Center, not inside.

People have been calling the auditorium asking if they can protest the concert, marketing director Tammy Koolbeck said. "We tell them, that's their right," she said.

It also is Manson's right to perform. Koolbeck tells callers who want the show to be canceled. PAGE 4A

• A monkey is having a beer in his local tavern. When he gets down to his last sip, he spits the beer at the bartender. The monkey apologizes:
 "Please forgive me. You probably think we do this in the jungle all the time. Actually, it's a nervous habit, I just can't seem to break it. It is so embarrassing..."
 "You'd better see a psychiatrist," says the bartender. A few weeks later, the monkey comes into the bar again. He sits down and orders a beer. And just as he's about to take the last sip, he spits at the bartender. "Hey, I thought you were going to see a psychiatrist?" the bartender says.
 "I have been," says the monkey.
 "Well, it's not doing any good!"
 "Oh, yes it is," said the monkey. "Now I'm just not embarrassed about it."
 • Early one morning a mother goes to her sleeping son and wakes him up. "Wake up, son. It's time to go to school."
 "But why, Mama? I don't want to go to school."
 "Give me two reasons why you don't want to go to school."
 "One, all the children hate me. Two, all the teachers hate me."
 "Oh! that's no reason. Come on, you have to go to school."
 "Give me two good reasons WHY I should go to school?"
 "One, you are FIFTY-TWO years old. Two, you are the PRINCIPAL of the school."

McLachlan announces Fair's 40-date finale

NEW YORK (AP) — Sarah McLachlan says it's time to raise a family and end Lillith Fair — perhaps forever — after this year.
 "We're all well into our 30s now, and we decided we wanted to have babies," the 31-year-old singer said Tuesday, announcing the lineup for the all-woman show's 40-date summer tour.
 McLachlan said she has always considered the tour a three-year plan, but she may organize a short Australian tour this winter.
 "This will be the last year for a good, long while," she said. "It could be three years, it could be 10 years, it could be forever."

 "At least if you're going to kill yourself and kill all the kids, why wouldn't you have some sex?" Stern asked, according to the newspaper.
 ■ GRETNA, La. (AP) — Monica Lewinsky admitted her affair with President Clinton was wrong during an appearance on a Baton Rouge radio talk show. Later, hundreds accorded her celebrity status at a suburban New Orleans bookstore.

Katzenberg: Disney denied me money

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Top Walt Disney Co. executives waged a secret campaign called "Operation Snowball" to deprive former studio chief Jeffrey Katzenberg of tens of millions of dollars he was owed for making the company a success, his lawyer has argued.
 A Disney attorney said Operation Snowball was Disney's effort to keep track of how much it owed Katzenberg.
 Katzenberg is seeking $250 million in the breach-of-contract lawsuit. During his tenure as chief of the film entertainment division, operating income went from $2.3 million in 1984 to $186.3 million in 1988.

Bettendorf teacher to receive award

UI President Mary Sue Coleman will present Shelley Ann Klaas, a counselor and teacher at Neil Armstrong Elementary School with an Iowa Distinguished Teacher Award during a ceremony on May 4.
 Coleman will present the award to Klaas at 9 a.m. at the school. Also on hand will be UI College of Education Interim Dean Richard Shepardson. Representing the school will be Armstrong Principal Dave Lewis, who nominated Klaas, as well as the entire school population.
 As one of four teachers selected for the 1998 Iowa Distinguished Teacher Awards, Klaas will receive a $1,000 UI grant for equipment and teaching materials for the school.
 Klaas, who has been in the field 17 years, has been described by colleagues as professional, competent and creative in her efforts to show students how to get along with and appreciate differences among people, as well as conveying other important life lessons.
 Lewis describes Klaas as someone with compassion and a desire to help others.
 "She always goes above and beyond in helping us implement different ideas that will help students," he said.
 In addition to her work as a counselor, Lewis said Klaas has been instrumental in launching a number of special programs, including the Young Peacemakers Club, an after-school program in which adults teach children social skills, such as how to get along with others and how to resolve conflicts. She also helped to secure funding for a Family Resource Center, a school room in which parents can relax, watch parenting videos or leaf through an assortment of books and pamphlets on parenting and families.

Old Gold Singers go classical hip

■ The UI swing choir steps into classical shoes for its annual concert.

By T.J. Bestler
 The Daily Iowan

The Old Gold Singers, under the direction of Kevin Kriegel, will step into a new frontier tonight at 8 in Clapp Recital Hall as it presents its annual Classical Concert.

Although the Old Gold Singers is known as the show choir on the UI campus, each year it is asked to try on a new hat and employ a different style of singing in this type of concert. This year's concert will consist of a number of pieces, including:

MUSIC
"Classical Concert"
 Who: The Old Gold Singers
 When: Tonight at 8
 Where: Clapp Recital Hall
 Admission: Free

Kriegel is in his first year of directing the choir, and he is already experiencing the rewards and challenges that accompany the job.

"It's a challenge to choose literature that is challenging for the students. The reward comes with making the music in a presentable manner and then observing the ensemble's growth through the process.

"Also, it's rewarding just to be able to direct a choir such as this. I like to communicate with the students. It gives me a sense of joy to share my knowledge with other people."

Although Kriegel believes that any ensemble has benefits for student participants, he believes that a show choir offers benefits on a different dimension than most choirs.

"Obviously, this choir gives the students an opportunity to perform more," he said. "It also allows them to showcase a wider range of talents, because there is the dancing aspect too. I also believe the friendships are closer in a choir such as this."

The concert tonight marks the last of many concerts throughout the year, which included Fall Festival, Cocoa and Carols, and Swing into Spring, as well as various performances for smaller audiences.

Old Gold Singers involves an immense amount of work on the part of the students. The group rehearses about five hours a week, as well as having various weekend and dress rehearsals. Despite this, the feedback from the participants is extremely positive.

"Music groups are a great way to find a sense of community and meet other people that share the same interests," said Jerry Ortega, a UI freshman and Old Gold member.

"It's also important for me because not being a music major, I don't necessarily practice vocally as much as I should, and this helps keep me in practice. Also, I love to sing and dance and this satisfies both."

Although he loves to dance, Ortega feels that a concert such as tonight's is important.

"It's important to remind us that we are a choir and capable of doing this type of music."

Kriegel is pleased with the amount of talent in the group and the growth of that talent throughout the year. However, he admits that earlier in the year during auditions, talent was not the major factor he was looking for.

"Sure, I looked for those who could sing and dance, but my primary focus was personality. I wanted people who could get along with others."

Some lessons in laughing

■ Satirical TV show balances between fact and wit in a high school.

By Frazier Moore
 Associated Press

NEW YORK — Jerri Blank has much to teach the nation's youth. Keep them away from her! Then sit back and share some twisted wisdom with this self-described "boozier, user and loser" — and laugh helplessly.

Blank is the hard-knocks heroine of "Strangers with Candy," a weekly morality play meant to echo, in all the worst ways, TV's youngster-targeted "After-School Specials." You remember the drill: A complex problem reduced to rite-of-passage melodrama and, at hour's end, a pat resolution.

No wonder "Strangers" is on Comedy Central, where it airs Wednesday at 9:30 p.m. CST.

Blank, our prototypical troubled teen, is actually 46 years old. A runaway for 32 years (some spent in the slammer), she is now picking up where she left off: as a freshman at Flatpoint High.

"This time," Blank said, "when I make the wrong choices, I'm doing it for all the right reasons."

Recent "Strangers" episodes have found her grappling with drug abuse, teen-age pregnancy and alcoholism — and gaining from each experience clearly stated (if preposterous) life lessons.

Her issue this week is prejudice. The shiny new braces on Blank's teeth make her a social pariah at Flatpoint. She's shunned by everyone. Everyone, that is, but Blank's loyal, lovely locker pal — whom the principal, for no sane reason, suspects is mentally retarded. The principal pressures Blank to expose the girl.

"Why me?" asks Blank, and the principal replies, "You've got those braces." Retarded people, he states absurdly, "tend to be drawn to shiny objects."

Will Blank, herself a victim of prejudice, betray her only defender? Or will she stand up to her principal's mindless, groundless bigotry?

Blank muses: "I thought she was dangerous and different. Then I found out, she's just like you and me."

Never mind. Since permission for Blank to go on a class trip hangs in the balance, her locker buddy plainly must be sacrificed. Blank has learned a valuable lesson.

"She completely lives in the moment," says Amy Sedaris, who, with a "fatty suit" supplementing her pixieish frame, plays Blank. "For her, no choice is informed by anything but immediate need."

Then, switching in and out of character as Blank (complete with the overbite and plaintive look), Sedaris enacts a telling exchange: "Jerri, what do you hope to do with your life?"

"Uh ... go to my locker."
 "No, no! I mean, what are you gonna do, wa-a-y down the line?"
 "Open it."

Stephen Colbert, who plays the reptilian teacher Mr. Noblet, bursts out laughing.

"For all the terrible things Jerri's been through, and all the terrible things she's done, she's actually very innocent," he says.

If there's something disconcerting about Blank (especially since she's meant to be a role model), that's where the humor originates. So says Paul Dinello, who plays art teacher Mr. Jellineck.

"Uncomfortableness makes other people weep, but it makes us laugh," he explains.

"That's why I like Lifetime movies," says Sedaris.

NATO strikes Kosovo farming village

■ The alliance's attacks intensify in Kosovo, and the Red Cross again visits three U.S. soldiers held in Serbia.

By Veselin Toshkov
Associated Press

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia — A Red Cross team, including a doctor, was allowed to visit three captive American soldiers Tuesday, leaving with letters for their families. Meanwhile, NATO jets pounded Serb forces in round-the-clock attacks, and one struck a civilian community in southern Serbia.

Local authorities in Surdulica, 200 miles south of Belgrade, said at least 17 people were killed and 11 wounded when NATO missiles struck the agricultural community Tuesday afternoon. The dead and injured included women and children. Officials said about 50 houses were destroyed and 600 others were damaged.

An Associated Press reporter, taken to the scene by Serb police, saw dazed rescuers trying to retrieve body parts from the wreckage as bulldozers cleared huge mounds of concrete rubble searching for more victims.

"I did not hear approaching planes," said Andrija Cvetanovic, 42. "Only an explosion. Splinters were flying all over the place. The sky was completely dark."

Most of the dead had been blown apart, and rescuers were trying to assemble body parts for identification.

At one shattered house, police said they believed up to 11 people, including five children, had been in the basement during the attack. So little remained of the bodies, however, that police were unsure of the number of victims.

NATO issued a statement saying its aircraft carried out a "successful attack against an army barracks in Surdulica." U.S. Defense Department officials could not be reached for comment, and the

However, the statement did say, "NATO does not target civilians, but we cannot exclude harm to civilians or civilian property during our air operations over Yugoslavia."

NATION BRIEF

Parties squabble over gun control

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Clinton pressed for new controls on guns Tuesday, and top Republicans proposed a hard look at the nation's violence-tinged culture.

Clinton urged Congress to raise from 18 to 21 the legal age for handgun possession and to hold negligent parents liable when their children use guns to commit crimes.

Senate Majority Leader Trent Lott, R-Miss., agreed to give Democrats an opportunity for a debate and vote on firearms proposals in about two weeks. Sen. Dick Durbin of Illinois pronounced Lott's decision "a breakthrough" toward passage of legislation.

Chernobyl virus melts down computers

■ A new computer bug, worse than what experts had expected, strikes hard at users in Asia, Middle East and some U.S. areas.

By Chris Allbritton
Associated Press

NEW YORK — Proving to be more destructive than experts had expected, the Chernobyl virus caused hundreds of thousands of computer meltdowns around the world, with the effects being far worse overseas than in the United States.

The unusually destructive virus — timed to strike Monday, April 26, the 13th anniversary of the Chernobyl nuclear disaster — tries to erase a computer's hard drive and write gibberish into its system settings to prevent the machine from being restarted.

While experts were still tallying numbers, Turkey and South Korea each reported 300,000 computers damaged Monday; there were more elsewhere in Asia and the Middle East. Officials said warnings there weren't heeded.

"Arguably, this is the most malicious computer virus," said Dan Schrader, director of product marketing at Trend Micro Inc., which manufactures antivirus software.

Other experts disagreed over whether it was the most destructive virus ever. But many were caught off guard by the amount of damage and said it was much worse than the Melissa virus earlier this month. Before Chernobyl hit, several experts were quoted as saying they didn't expect it to cause much trouble.

The United States suffered far less than other nations; experts credited widespread warnings and updated antivirus programs with helping to avert problems in the corporate world. Home users were hit harder.

About 100 student computers were wiped out at Princeton University about two weeks before term papers were due.

"The computers were affected to a point where the hard drives were rendered useless," Princeton spokesman Justin Harmon said Tuesday.

A Palestinian police officer looks on as Hamas founder Sheikh Ahmed Yassin arrives at the Palestinian Central Council meeting in Gaza City Tuesday.

Arafat may delay statehood

■ The Palestinian leader seems ready to concur with a plea by President Clinton to postpone the declaration of a Palestinian nation.

By Ron Kampeas
Associated Press

GAZA CITY, Gaza Strip — Palestinian leader Yasser Arafat Tuesday gave his strongest indication yet that he will heed a plea by President Clinton to postpone a unilateral declaration of statehood and extend peace talks with Israel for a year.

Opening the Palestinian Central Council's decisive debate on statehood, Arafat affirmed his people's right to independence but said it's wiser not to take action now. The council's decision could affect the outcome in upcoming Israeli elections.

The council was expected to make the final decision on whether to declare statehood next on May 4 — the original target date for a permanent peace agreement with Israel — or agree to the U.S.-proposed extension.

The council — whose 124 members overwhelmingly support Arafat — met behind closed doors in a crowded conference room at Arafat's seaside office.

"We are going through a very delicate period in the history of our people, a period during which we cannot afford making any mistakes," the official Palestinian news agency Wafa quoted Arafat as saying. "We don't need to affirm our state because we are actually exercising statehood."

It was not clear whether Arafat explained what he meant by mistakes. However, a unilateral move for statehood would likely help Israel's hard-line prime minister, Benjamin Netanyahu, win re-election on May 17 and also anger the United States at a time when Palestinian-U.S. relations are blossoming.

Netanyahu, in the grips of a neck-and-neck election campaign, claimed Tuesday that the expected postponement of the statehood declaration was a victory for his hard-line policies, including Israel's threat to annex disputed territories.

The United States, the European Union and Arab states have also urged Arafat to back down from his oft-repeated pledge to declare independence on May 4.

Arafat has traversed the globe in recent weeks, seeking a trade-off for postponing statehood — a pledge from the international community to recognize Palestinian statehood after the extension.

He has extracted such promises from the EU and many other nations. But a letter from Clinton, while expressing support for self-determination, fell short of promising acceptance of statehood after a year.

"The American letter is solid and good," said Planning Minister Nabil Shaath, who helped negotiate the contents of the letter with U.S. officials. "Of course, it is not equal to the statements made by Japan and the EU."

Clues turn up in Colorado killings tried to escape through three separate exits and killed themselves only after being turned back by deputies' gunfire each time. Stone said a diary seized at the home of one of the killers indicated the gunmen planned to fly to Mexico or another country if they could escape, and kill themselves if they couldn't get out.

"They wanted to go to Mexico, or find an island, some place to get away from America, or maybe come out and hijack and crash an airplane in New York City," he said, giving details from a sheaf of papers investigators have characterized as a diary. Stone said a school surveillance camera captured "the entire carnage" in the cafeteria, where Klebold and Harris hurled homemade bombs and opened fire on terrified students. Authorities have sent the tapes to an FBI lab in Quantico, Va., to be analyzed frame-by-frame. Authorities previously have not said whether the tapes contained any useful images.

After the cafeteria attack, the two gunmen ran upstairs to the library where they caught many students studying during their lunch hour. They then ran into the administration offices.

"They shot the hell out of the administration office, but apparently there was no one in there," Stone said.

Investigators, meanwhile, questioned Klebold's 18-year-old girlfriend, who is believed to have bought at least two weapons used by Klebold and Harris. Investigators want to know whether she knew how the guns were to be used.

Meanwhile, an employee of a local hardware store said he saw Harris purchase several barbecue containers of propane and bags of nails, screws and wires.

Four guns were found in the school. On Tuesday, authorities said they had discovered 50 bombs, ranging from small pipe bombs to at least one large incendiary device rigged with barbecue propane tank. If they had been detonated, investigators say they might have blown up the school, killing hundreds.

U.S. activates 30,000 reservists for Balkans campaign to win autonomy for Kosovo on March 24 and the largest since 240,000 served in the buildup to the 1991 Gulf War. About 1,000 reservists have been serving as volunteers for NATO, but Cohen's call-up means they will be relieved.

"We must go beyond the limits of volunteerism," Air Force Maj. Gen. Michael Kudacz told reporters.

On the diplomatic front, Deputy Secretary of State Strobe Talbott concluded talks in Moscow with Foreign Minister Igor Ivanov and Viktor Chernoymyrdin, the Russian mediator for the Balkans.

"On behalf of the United States, he laid out very clearly the objectives NATO has set forth in its communiqué and the importance we attach to achieving those objectives," State Department spokesman James P. Rubin said.

Russia strongly objects to NATO's bombing campaign and to the idea of a NATO-led peacekeeping force being sent to Kosovo in the event of a settlement to ensure a safe return of refugees.

"The Russians did not indicate any major changes in their position," Rubin said.

In remarks at a Pentagon news conference, Cohen indicated little interest in the idea of putting a peacekeeping force under the command of the United Nations — a formulation that might be acceptable to Yugoslavia but at any rate is on hold as long as NATO keeps up its bombing campaign.

"There must be an international peacekeeping force that is NATO-led and, at the core, NATO must be involved in its management," Cohen said. He seemed to leave room for maneuver, however, by adding later that "we believe it should be led by NATO."

White House Press Secretary Joe Lockhart used a similar approach, saying the force "would be one with NATO at its core." Yugoslavia has insisted that it not include any NATO countries.

Cohen said the reserve call-up will enable NATO to accelerate the pace of its air strikes by keeping planes in the air longer and to expand the attacks by fueling a larger fleet of strike aircraft. U.S. Gen. Wesley Clark, the top NATO commander, has asked the Pentagon to dispatch 300 more planes — one-third of which are to be refueling planes.

Cloning debate runs the human gamut

CLONE CLONE

bon copies of the same person roaming around, Eibert said.

"It is a false idea that cloning will yield children that are so-called 'Xerox copies' of the cell donor," he said. "The idea that clones will be an exact copy of its human source is a gross misinterpretation of human biology and psychology."

McGee said he is disturbed by the question of whether society is "having" or "making" babies. In an age in which people can manipulate the egg and sperm that will become their child, he said, the ability to clone humans will lead to even more selective births.

"In cloning there is no recombination of DNA, just replication," he said. "The first child that is cloned will be the first child born by the reproduction methods of the potato."

Replication of organs also played a part in the debate.

McGee said although he feels humans will never be mass produced solely for organs, certain tissues will end up being mass produced in unnatural forms.

"The pope is going to be furious, but it is going to happen," he said. "Females will be 'pregnant with' and give birth to embryo-like things, like a sack of liver cells."

Although to date, humans beings cannot be cloned, Prather warned that the amount of opposition does not seem to be hindering the technological advancements in the field.

"Take any technology you want, and you can find people who are opposed to it," he said. "But the ability to clone a human will be here soon — sooner than everyone thinks."

ing costs.

"The university is engaged in planning all the time. (Such fees) should not be viewed as out of the ordinary," Jones said.

Greene said the cultural centers are badly in need of structural renovations. The administration should spend its funds on improving the existing structures, she added.

"We do want the structures of the cultural centers to change if possible," Greene said. "They need an individual place — we just don't want them in the Union. We support making the centers better, including newer facilities."

For Greene and others like her who have engaged in the cultural-center discussions from the start, this small victory is just a peephole into the future.

"It's not over yet — we are not done at all. We just finished part of phase one."

Police waiting for crime lab results in double homicide has remained silent, and police aren't calling him a suspect.

Investigators are still working to find answers, Iowa City police Sgt. Mike Lord said. Authorities had planned to release new information on the homicides Monday, but the Johnson County Attorney's Office halted the plan because it could have damaged the case, he said.

But, Lord said, the information did not include charges being filed or authorities naming a suspect in the slayings.

Mike Rehberg, a laboratory administrator for the Iowa Department of Criminal Investigation, could not say when the lab results from the homicide evidence would be completed.

"There are just too many things that can change the rate at which the work can be completed," he said.

Certain divisions of the laboratory, including the latent prints, street drugs and the DNA departments, typically have a lengthy turnaround, Rehberg said.

Locally, investigators are trying to establish motives in the slayings; no connections have been made between the two women.

Authorities do not know why the women were in an apartment belonging to three UI students who were on Spring Break at the time of the slayings, police said.

The "Take Back the Night" march plans to stop in front of 427 S. Van Buren St. for a moment of silence tonight to remember Watson-Dalton, 29, and Maria Therese Lehner, 27. The bodies of the two women were found in a burned apartment at that address on March 19.

Memmer was arrested by Iowa City police and UI Public Safety officers on March 26 at the UI Field House for probation violations. He is believed to be one of the last people to see Watson-Dalton alive on March 17.

Memmer was charged, while in jail, on April 19 with forgery and third-degree burglary. He pleaded not guilty to the charges; a hearing date has not been set.

Stroke: Reducing the Incidence and Impact

May 3, 1999
A Community Seminar

Hampton/Clarion Conference Center
1220 1st Avenue, Coralville, 7-8:30 p.m.

Stroke is the third leading cause of death in Americans and the number one cause of disability. Some stroke risk factors are based on heredity. Others are a function of natural processes. Still others result from a person's lifestyle. Factors resulting from lifestyle or environment can be modified with a physician's help. Join UI experts as they discuss the advances being made that can reduce the incidence and impact of strokes.

Advance registration for this free seminar is encouraged. For more information, or to register, please call 319-384-8442 or 800-777-8442

Iowa's Slutzman Big Ten golfer of the week

Hawkeye sophomore Matt Slutzman was named Big Ten Golfer of the Week Tuesday following his third-place finish at the King Cobra Collegiate last weekend.

Slutzman, a native of Lincoln, Neb., is leading the team with a spring average of 73.3 strokes per round. Slutzman made his spring debut just two weeks ago, shooting a team-best 232, good for a share of 33rd place.

One mistake costs Iowa's Zeilstra two runs in 7th a pitch got away from Zeilstra and Maxwell hit a frozen roper over the left-center field wall. "Zeilstra made one big mistake," Blevins said. "That was a pretty stiff wind (Maxwell) hit it into, so you know it was hit awfully well to get out. You just can't afford to make a mistake to a good hitter."

at the Hawkeye Softball Complex. Game one is set to start at 2 p.m. The two-game set with the Badgers will start the stretch run of the Big Ten season for the Hawkeyes, who will need to finish strong to assure themselves of a berth in the Big Ten Tournament.

remaining games is that all the teams we play are with us in the hunt for the final four spots (in the tournament). We can control our own destiny. To take care of business in the Big Ten, the Hawkeye offense will have to pull its weight.

"If you're producing runs, you take pressure off your defense and pitchers," Blevins said. "All the parts are intertwined. When you have a five-run cushion, it's easier to throw pitches or make plays. When one part of your game is nonexistent, it puts pressure on the rest."

Lee excited that recruits are now coming for her

LEE

Continued from Page 1B. games, but when your team plays, the crowd is nowhere near as large? AL: Sure, it bothers me, because I think our product is exciting and is a lot of fun. And more so this past year than ever before. A lot of people, even though our record wasn't the greatest, talked about how much they enjoyed watching these kids play. So yeah, it really does bother me. We have to do more along the promotions line. There's a lot more that we should do and there's a lot more that we can do. I wish I could understand not only why we don't get more fans, but why we can't attract students.

quick-hit, fast-breaking type of offense. You are losing Amy Herrig, whose inside presence was relied upon for 15 or 20 points a game. What type of offensive attack can we expect next season? AL: I always want our offense to be well-rounded. I want there to be opportunities for a lot of people to get touches. But I don't think there's any question when you look at our team next year and you see Cara Consuegra and Lindsey Meder, you've got to create some things that are a little bit more perimeter-oriented that are going to give those two a few more looks. DI: With the recent departures of two members of your coaching staff, and five total during your four-year tenure, is it tough to adapt to changes in personnel?

AL: On a staff, you want to look for some security and stability. You don't want it changing over every two years. However, the beauty of it is, they are leaving to be head coaches. It would be different if they were leaving to be assistants somewhere else or not taking a step up the ladder. DI: Has it been tough on you trying to get used to new people every few years? AL: It is hard. You get somebody in here and you get them comfortable to the system and take the time to teach them how (the head coach) needs or wants something to be done. Not only that, I think what a lot of people forget is that you open yourself to somebody. A staff is very close, there's a lot of trust. And so you think about a new staffer, you've got to do the same thing and you can't help, but think, 'Does that take away from the kids?' DI: Does it feel good now that you are entering your fifth year here and finally have your own recruits? AL: I think it does, because the other kids, they came here with a mission to play under Coach (Vivian) Stringer. They did and there's nothing that I hold against them. I was a part of that, I understood why they were coming. It was my job at that point to promote Coach Stringer, and what a great person to promote. But the thing now that's very rewarding is that kids are coming to Iowa because of me. They're coming here because they like me, they like my style and they like what I'm about and what I'm trying to do.

Herrig working out on her own to keep skills sharp

HERRIG

Continued from Page 1B. Orlando and Minnesota. She said Orlando and Minnesota, expansion teams entering league play this season, would be ideal because of their first-year status and their 11 available roster spots. Lee said she would love to see her former star get chosen by Minnesota, considering the coach plans to attend many of the team's games. "I bought my season tickets, so hopefully she'll get there," Lee said. Right now, Herrig is trying to remain in shape. However, she is in the midst of completing a nine-hour-a-day internship at the Orlando Parks and Recreation Department, making her everyday workout regimen harder to complete. "The internship takes up a lot of my time and I don't have the energy to do it all," Herrig said. Because of the 21-year-old's work schedule, Herrig struggles to find other players to work out with during her two-hour, five-day-a-week training sessions. "I'm pretty much on my own," Herrig said. "The current Iowa players are done with their workouts when I get off work." Although she does go through shooting drills with Iowa assistant coach Dana Eikenberg at Carver, Herrig also gets floor time playing pickup games at the UI Field House. The league and the players union reportedly are close to a deal, but the speculation isn't comforting Herrig all that much. If an agreement is reached soon, Herrig will report to training camp on May 14 — one day before her graduation ceremony. "I want to know where my life will go this summer. I want to know if I need to get a cap and gown," she said.

MAJOR LEAGUE ROUNDUP

With top two players back, Florida wins

MIAMI (AP) — The woeful Florida Marlins looked like a much better team with their best hitter and best pitcher back in the lineup.

Sluggish Cliff Floyd, making his 1999 debut, and ace Alex Fernandez came off the disabled list Tuesday to spark an 8-0 victory over the Chicago Cubs.

Fernandez pitched four scoreless innings in his first start since April 11. The Marlins limited the right-hander to 69 pitches, and he appeared angry about being removed one inning short of the five innings needed to qualify for the victory.

Floyd, returning from a spring-training knee injury, began to earn the four-year, $19 million contract he signed last winter. He singled in his first at-bat and scored on Kevin Orrie's double, then singled in the sixth before departing for a pinch runner.

Dodgers 3, Brewers 2

MILWAUKEE — Raul Mondesi hit his NL-leading eighth homer and Kevin Brown survived a shaky start as Los Angeles snapped Milwaukee's four-game winning streak.

Mondesi, dropped from cleanup to fifth in the batting order, sent a full-count pitch from Rafael Roquero into the left-field bleachers for a two-run shot in the sixth, erasing the Brewers' 2-1 lead.

Until then, Roque (0-2) had held the Dodgers in check, scattering just four singles, including one by Gary Sheffield two batters before Mondesi's shot.

Padres 6, Mets 2

NEW YORK — San Diego opened its nine-game road trip with a bruising win.

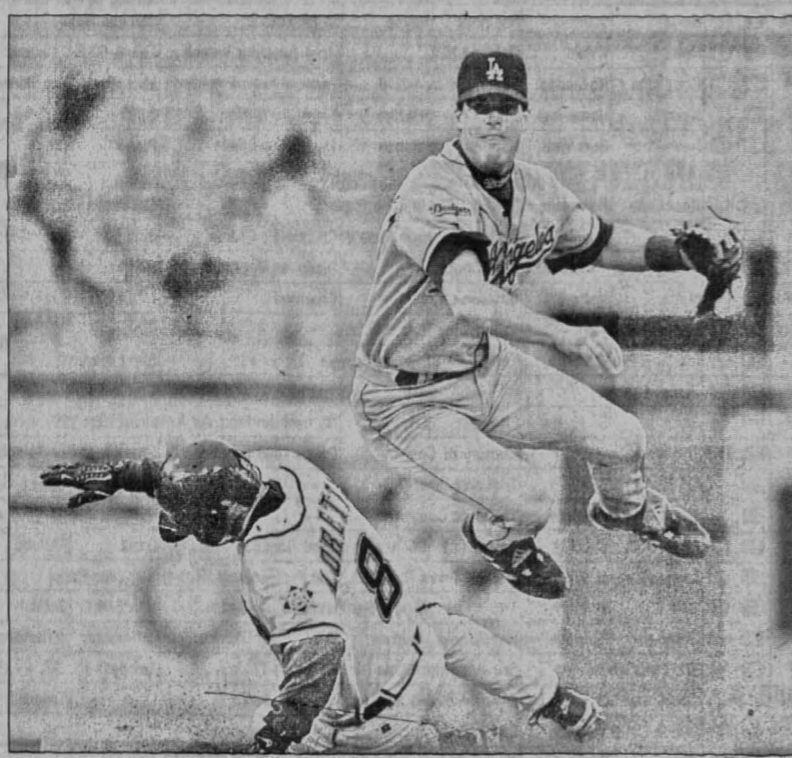

Greg Myers entered the game after catcher Jim Leyritz was hurt and hit a tiebreaking two-run double that led the Padres over New York, sending the Mets to their first three-game losing streak of the season.

Reggie Sanders added a two-run homer and drove in three runs for San Diego, which plays 22 of its next 34 games on the road after starting with 12 of 18 at home.

Phillies 1, Reds 0

PHILADELPHIA — Curt Schilling pitched nine shutout innings and Doug Glanville's RBI single in the bottom of the 10th inning gave Philadelphia a victory over Cincinnati.

Gabe White (0-2) walked Mike Lieberthal to start the inning and was relieved by Danny Graves. Desi Jafar then pinch ran for Lieberthal and moved to second on a sacrifice bunt by Dave Doster. After Kevin Jordan struck out, Glanville delivered the winning hit to right-center.

Morry Gash/Associated Press

Los Angeles shortstop Mark Grudzielanek turns a double play as Milwaukee's Mark Loretta slides into second base Tuesday in Milwaukee.

Pirates 5, Braves 3

ATLANTA — Pittsburgh's Jason Schmidt pitched seven solid innings and beat his former team when the Pirates scored three runs in the eighth.

Schmidt (3-1), who was 1-3 with a 6.30 ERA against the Braves since they dealt him to Pittsburgh three years ago, allowed six hits and three runs, then got credit for the win when his teammates came through at the plate.

Cardinals 7 Rockies 5

ST. LOUIS — Ray Lankford, making his first start since offseason knee surgery, hit a home run and St. Louis beat Colorado.

The Cardinals won for the ninth time in 14 games. The Rockies fell to 1-4 on their road trip.

Giants 3, Expos 2, 10 innings

MONTREAL — Stan Javier scored on Ugueth Urbina's wild pitch in the 10th inning as San Francisco beat Montreal before 5,202 fans, the smallest crowd of the season at Olympic Stadium.

Astros 11, Diamondbacks 0

HOUSTON — Shane Reynolds held Arizona hitless for 6 2/3 innings and also drove in three runs, leading Houston over the Diamondbacks.

American League

Twins 6, Red Sox 5

MINNEAPOLIS — Minnesota overcame a four-run deficit and Todd Walker snapped out of a slump with a two-run single in the eighth inning as the Twins beat Boston.

Eddie Guardado (1-1) pitched one inning in relief of Eric Milton to earn the win. Rick Aguilera gave up a pinch homer to Reggie Jefferson in the ninth before finishing for his fourth save.

Jim Corsi (0-2) took the loss, walking two in the eighth before Walker singled to center with the bases loaded.

NBA ROUNDUP

Minus Mourning, Miami rolls

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. — (AP) Playing without injured center Alonzo Mourning, Miami made 15 of 20 shots in the first quarter and defeated injury-riddled New Jersey, 95-76.

Mourning, only one of three players in the NBA averaging more than 20 points and 11 rebounds, missed his first game of the season after being hit in the right eye in Cleveland on Monday night.

Pat Riley, who moved into sole possession of second place on the career victory list with his 945th win, does not believe the injury is serious, but Mourning returned to Miami on Tuesday after being examined by a specialist in Cleveland.

Pistons 92, Celtics 85

BOSTON — Grant Hill scored 32 points and Jerome Williams had 21 points and 13 rebounds Tuesday night as Detroit beat Boston.

Hill scored 10 points in the fourth quarter as the Pistons wiped out a 10-point deficit on the way to their second straight win. Detroit clings to the seventh spot in the NBA's Eastern Conference playoff race.

76ers 80, Cavaliers 71

PHILADELPHIA — Allen Iverson scored 31 points as Philadelphia clinched its second winning season this decade with a victory over injury-plagued Cleveland.

Iverson increased his slim lead on Shaquille O'Neal in the race for the NBA scoring title.

Hornets 108, Raptors 98

TORONTO — Eddie Jones scored 28 points and Bobby Phillips had 20 as Charlotte dealt a significant blow to Toronto's playoff hopes.

The Hornets, who had six players score in double figures, moved within one game of the New York Knicks for the eighth and last playoff spot in the Eastern Conference. They also won the season series from the Raptors, the first head-to-head tiebreaker.

Magic 88, Pacers 87

INDIANAPOLIS — Darrell Armstrong's open 17-footer with 1.6 seconds to play gave Orlando a victory over Indiana as the Magic snapped their longest losing streak of the season at five games.

Indiana had one last shot at victory and got the ball to Travis Best after two consecutive timeouts, but his open shot from the corner bounced off the rim.

Mavericks 84, Grizzlies 75

DALLAS — Rookie Dirk Nowitzki capped a 10-2 fourth-quarter run with two baskets and Dallas continued its homecourt success with a victory over Vancouver.

Gary Trent had 20 points and Michael Finley added 14 for the Mavericks, winners of six of their last eight at Reunion Arena.
