Tornadoes kill 43 in Midwest

■ Officials say a half-mile-wide twister in Oklahoma City destroyed 2,000 houses.
By Ron Jenkins
 Associated Press

OKLAHOMA CITY — Rescue crews looking for signs of life picked through shattered homes, twisted trees and mangled cars Tuesday after a swarm of astonishingly powerful tornadoes chewed up entire neighborhoods in Oklahoma and Kansas and killed at least 43 people.

Even in an area accustomed to twisters and strong thunderstorms — this is, after all, the region known as Tornado Alley, and spring is an especially dangerous time of year — the twisters' wrath was extraordinary. One monstrous funnel cloud skipped across the ground for four hours and was classified F-5, the most powerful tornado there is, with winds of more than 260 mph. It cut a path one mile wide, and, along with the other twisters, tore up 60 miles of the flat countryside.

"This is crazy," said Eric Peterson of Haysville, Kan., a suburb of Wichita, after a twister pushed a tree into his bedroom. "I have been in typhoons in the South Pacific and in hurricanes, but this tops it."

The tornadoes were spawned by a string of extreme thunderstorms that unleashed 76 twisters in five states Monday.

The death toll was 38 in Oklahoma and five in Kansas, including a month-old baby in Haysville. And the same system produced a tornado in northeast Texas Tuesday. One person was killed.

This was the nation's deadliest tornado outbreak since 42 people were killed last year in Florida. It was also the deadliest such tragedy to hit Oklahoma since 1947, when a twister killed 113 people in Woodward.

Hundreds were injured, including 500 in Oklahoma City and more than 100 in Wichita. At least 1,500 businesses and homes were destroyed or heavily damaged.

Cars were tossed across highways and crushed like soda cans. Houses were smashed into piles of splin-

Safewalk may tread no more after $ cuts

■ The program could close by July due to UISG budget cuts that have left it unable to afford its coordinator's salary.

By Crissy McMartin
 The Daily Iowan

Following a 50 percent budget cut, the organizers of Safewalk say they may close down the program if the UI Student Government does not allocate funds to pay for a coordinator.

The allocated funds for Safewalk, housed at the Women's Resource and Action Center, 130 N. Madison St., will drop from about $15,000 to $7,600 on July 1. The decision was passed unanimously by UISG in late March.

The cut means Safewalk will no longer be able to pay the $11,000 annual stipend for a project coordinator.

Safewalk is exploring other funding options, said Monique DiCarlo, WRAC director — but, she said, if none is found, the program will cease to operate when the next fiscal year begins.

"I'm not willing to have Safewalk at the center without a paid coordinator and a framework built on quality assurances," DiCarlo said.

The cuts are based on Safewalk's failure to provide the required justification for the part-time coordinator's $11,000 salary, said Tom Chiesa, chairman of the UISG Student Assembly Budgeting and Auditing Committee.

Going unplugged in Belgrade

■ NATO strikes on power stations leave most Belgrade residents without electricity.

By George Jahn
 Associated Press

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia — No light, no water. NATO says its latest strikes on Yugoslavia's electrical system are meant to cripple the army, but civilians say they are once again being hurt most.

Panic-stricken, 8-year-old Stefan Jankovic grabbed a lighter when the lights went out in his family's basement shelter and held it aloft, ignoring the growing pain from the heat until his father finally lit a precious candle.

Eighty-year-old Tatjana Paranoski, frail and increasingly immobile, worries about the food stocks in her freezer. What if the blackouts that began in Belgrade Sunday grow more serious, she wonders? Who will feed her once what she has is spoiled?

And, while major hospitals have emergency generators, they're all running short of diesel fuel, the result of weeks of NATO attacks on fuel storage and refinery facilities. If the power crisis grows, deaths are sure to follow, Belgrade

It's casting time for Herky hopefuls

■ An open audition will determine the next Herky — or Herkette.

By Crissy McMartin
 The Daily Iowan

In the first open audition in more than 40 years, Herky hopefuls will invade Carver-Hawkeye Arena Thursday night to try to persuade judges they've got what it takes to be the next UI mascot.

Six to eight Herkies will be chosen based on an interview and a performance in a 1-minute skit.

The UI Athletics Department decided to open the audition to the entire student population last month after the Delta Tau Delta fraternity, whose members have traditionally played Herky, lost its charter, said Les Steenlage, a UI assistant athletics director. This is also the first year the audition has been open to women.

Herky hopeful Angie Anderson, a UI sophomore, said her "craziness" will enhance her routine, which is remaining top secret until the audition.

"I'd love hearing the crowd roar and knowing it was all for me ... and of course, the players," Anderson said.

She said she is excited to be the first female Herky applicant.

"I think it would be cool to be a role model for little girls," Anderson said. "I want to be the first Herkette."

The skit must be performed in the Herky uniform; it can be accompanied by props and music. A panel of four judges, made up of Athletics Department faculty members, will score the performance on the criteria of creativity, excitement, mascot personality

■ With a seldom-seen modesty, for Hollywood, and a minimum of hype, the "Star Wars" prequel draws ever nearer.

A short time from now in a multiplex very close by, legions of fans will watch Ewan MacGregor and millions of dollars in special effects at work in the Iowa City premiere of George Lucas' latest creation.

But until the British star wields the real thing at 12:01 a.m. on May 19 in both the Coral Ridge and Englert theaters, local Star Wars groupies will have to make do with plastic light sabers.

"I bought a Darth Maul and a couple of aliens and a big light saber that lights up and makes noises," said Dave Haddy, assistant manager of Daydreams, 114 E. College St.

Daydreams has already gone through four or five cases of the $9 figurines, Haddy said.

"We've sold out of Darth Maul and Mace Windu, but I hope to get more," he said.

Wal-Mart, 1001 Highway 1 W., tripled its toy sales when the new figurines were released Monday. The mostly male customers who waited until the figurines went on sale at midnight weren't showing much discretion, said Michele Lerch, assistant manager of Wal-Mart.

"They're pretty much buying any figurine on the shelf," she said.

UI freshman Mike Officer spent $75 on two ships and five action figures at Wal-Mart early Monday morning.

"It was pretty chaotic," he said. "I was skeptical about what we'd find at Wal-Mart."

Others have found different ways to express their enthusiasm for the upcoming film. UI sophomore Alexander Rubinow saw the "Star Wars" special edition re-release in the same Chicago theater in which his parents saw the original movie. He plans on returning there to see the new prequel.

"I dressed up as Darth Vader to see the special edition," Rubinow said. "I have a 'Star Wars' shirt for every day of the week, and I plan on wearing them every day before the re-release."

STUPID HUMAN STORIES, PART TWO

Oklahoma City: Dennis Newton was on trial for the armed robbery of a convenience store in a district court when he fired his lawyer. Assistant district attorney Larry Jones said Newton, 47, was doing a fair job of defending himself until the store manager testified that Newton was the robber. Newton jumped up, accused the woman of lying and then said, "I should have blown your (expletive) head off." The defendant paused, then quickly added, "if I'd been the one that was there." The jury took 20 minutes to convict Newton and recommended a 30-year sentence.

When he asked how the system worked, the officer asked him for identification. Medical student wins national fellowship

Eduardo Avila, a third-year student at the UI College of Medicine, is one of 26 medical students nationwide to earn a 1999 Bristol-Myers Squibb Academic Medicine Fellowship. The award is designed for minority medical students who show potential for careers in research and academic medicine. Recipients must participate in research projects under the direction of a faculty mentor at their respective institutions. Each fellowship award is $6,000. Avila, who wants to pursue a career in plastic and reconstructive surgery, plans to focus his project on "Histochemical and molecular studies of muscle cell function in cleft palate tissue samples." Avila's mentor is John W. Canady, M.D., UI associate professor of otolaryngology, surgery and orthopaedic surgery, and director of the UI Cleft Lip and Palate Service. Avila and Canady will investigate the palate muscle function at the cellular level. They hope to explain why patients who have had their cleft palates repaired still experience poor speech. "This information can assist with more effective management of the cleft palate patient during critical stages of speech development," said Avila, whose project responsibilities will include obtaining tissue samples from cleft palate surgeries. Avila is looking forward to the experience, which will allow him to observe multiple cleft palate surgeries and gain experience in electron microscopy and histochemistry.

Bank merger concerns students

■ Firststar bought out Mercantile, formerly First National, last week.

By Leah Reinstein
The Daily Iowan

Continual mergers and changes in banking and services at 204 E. Washington St. have some students wary about keeping their business at the location.

When UI senior Adrian Frey heard about Firststar's plans to acquire Mercantile Bank for $10.6 billion on April 30, he became upset and decided to switch his account to another institution.

"My original bank got bought out by Mercantile a year ago, and it had a hard time," Frey said. "Another transition would just cause more problems. I definitely want to get out of there before another big mess."

Following a merger in November 1998, Mercantile replaced First National Bank. But the transition did not go smoothly, Frey said. For example, because of computer problems, he was not informed when his account numbers were changed.

The Firststar merger is expected to be final in the fourth quarter of 1999, combining more than 5 million customers and 1,880 branches in nine Midwest states. Changes will begin only after then, said Bob Sierck, president of Mercantile in Iowa City.

"Any system and product changes will not go into effect until the first of the year," he said. "Mercantile has always offered a great emphasis on sales and service; I see continual emphasis on customer contact."

Sierck's words are of little comfort to many UI students who banked at Mercantile.

UI freshman Nathan Mort said he was worried about changes in services. As long as no one is fired, he said, he will continue to bank at the same location.

"I'm staying, but I'm not satisfied," Mort said. "Things haven't changed very much since the first merger with First National; all the same employees whom I know and like are there. But some of the policies, such as direct deposit, have changed."

Problems with services and concern about mergers caused UI junior Cory Speth to pull his account from Mercantile in November.

"I have always gone in to deposit my checks on Saturdays; its computers were down four times when I went in on the weekend," he said. "When I found out that Mercantile bought out First National, I pulled out as quickly as I could."

Police dept. renovation put on hold

■ The City Council rejects the bids for the reconstruction project, feeling they were too high.

By Steven Cook
The Daily Iowan

Finishing the second floor of the police department will have to wait, after the Iowa City City Council rejected construction bids on the Civic Center expansion project.

Plans to expand the third floor of the center's east end and to renovate the first floor will go ahead. Both the Civic Center improvements and police department improvements had been part of the same project.

The lowest bid, from Seizer-Werderitsch Construction of Iowa

City, came in at nearly $1.89 million — more than 20 percent above the city's estimate of $1.55 million.

The council rejected the high bids at the recommendation of the city's Public Works and Engineering departments.

City officials have blamed recent high bids on an increase in the price of materials and the amount of construction in the area.

The plan had called for completing the police department's second floor, adding 2,800 square feet to alleviate the cramped quarters in which police interview suspects. That will now be delayed.

The revised plan calls for finishing the third floor of the east side of the Civic Center for the Public Works and Engineering departments and for remodeling the City Clerk's office on the first floor. The revised project would add 5,775 square feet.

The plan still includes an alternative energy tower, which would help provide power for the Civic Center.

Councilor Karen Kubby said she had been "frustrated" in recent years when projects came in over bid and were accepted. She applauded the council for rejecting the high bids this time around.

The council has to draw up new plans and ask for new bids; construction on the project is expected to begin later this year.

In other business, the council repealed a $50 limit on campaign contributions. City Attorney Eleanor Dilkes recommended repealing the limit because of concerns it would not hold up if challenged in court.

CITY BRIEF

Man charged in gun-point threat case

Police officers serving a search warrant in the 1100 block of Arthur Street were flagged down by a resident allegedly threatened at gun-point Monday night.

"The officers were in the area working on another incident in the same complex," said Iowa City police Sgt. Mike Lord. "The defendant was involved in an argument with his significant other, who flagged down police. Things escalated, but the woman was able to get the officers' attention."

Melvin Gaddy, 42, 1100 Arthur St. Apt. A5, was charged with terrorism and possession of a firearm as a felon in connection with the incident.

Gaddy allegedly threatened to kill the woman, held a gun to her head and pulled the trigger, the charge states. No bullets were in the chamber of the gun, Lord said.

No injuries were reported.

The charges had not been processed at the Johnson County Courthouse Tuesday afternoon. No court appearances have been set.

Gaddy has three prior assault charges in Johnson County, two of which were domestic assaults. He was also charged with second-degree robbery in 1997.

Trial begins in NYPD torture case

Five white officers are charged with sexual torture of a Haitian suspect.

By Tom Hays
Associated Press

NEW YORK — Five white police officers went on trial on civil-rights charges Tuesday in the case of Abner Louima, a Haitian immigrant investigator say was sexually brutalized in a station house bathroom.

The 1997 case, along with this year's police shooting of an unarmed African immigrant, has strained relations between the police department and the black community.

In opening statements, federal prosecutor Kenneth Thompson described in graphic detail how the defendants allegedly battered a handcuffed Louima inside a patrol car and then sodomized him in a bloody assault in a precinct bathroom in Brooklyn.

A defense attorney countered that Louima had "150 million reasons" to lie about the incident — a $150 million lawsuit against the city. Louima is represented by O.J. Simpson lawyers Johnnie Cochran Jr. and Barry Scheck in the lawsuit.

Officer Justin Volpe, 27, and three other officers are charged with assaulting Louima outside the precinct. And Volpe and Officer Charles Schwarz are charged in the attack inside the precinct bathroom, where Volpe allegedly stuck a broomstick into Louima's rectum and then jammed it into his mouth. A fifth officer is charged with covering up the attack.

Louima was hospitalized with severe internal injuries that included a ruptured bladder and colon, prompting widespread demonstrations against police brutality in the city. He has recovered and is expected to be the government's star witness.

"Inside that bathroom, Abner Louima suffered more than a beating," Thompson told the jury of eight whites, three Latinos and one black. "Ladies and gentlemen, Abner Louima was tortured inside that bathroom."

Schwarz

Volpe

According to Thompson, Volpe at one point warned Louima: "If you make any noise, we kill you."

The prosecutor said Louima was picked up in a case of mistaken identity — police wanted Louima's cousin, who had actually struck Volpe during a melee outside a Brooklyn nightclub.

"When someone hurts Justin Volpe, he believes in hurting back," Thompson said. "He was furious, and he wanted revenge."

Marvyn Kornberg, Volpe's lawyer, said the lawsuit gave Louima $150 million in incentives to "cut the truth, to modify the truth, to, in fact, lie." He suggested another explanation for Louima's internal injuries.

Those injuries were "not consistent with a nonconsensual insertion of an object into his rectum," Kornberg said. Also, he said, there was evidence of another man's DNA mixed in with some of Louima's feces found in the bathroom.

Thompson acknowledged to the jury that Louima lied initially when he claimed that the assaulting officers had taunted him by saying, "It's Giuliani time." Mayor Rudolph Giuliani has made his reputation as a law-and-order politician.

"That lie," Kornberg said, "was told to create divisiveness in the city of New York."

Delhi killing sparks uproar over rich

The slaying of a bartender is the latest in a rash of cases in which privileged youngsters have been implicated.

By Laurinda Keys
Associated Press

NEW DELHI, India — The cold-blooded murder of a bartender at New Delhi's latest "in" spot, allegedly by a prominent politician's son, has raised a furor about rich kids with guns and the flouting of laws by the privileged.

Newspapers that were full of the school shootings in Colorado are now suddenly reporting about New Delhi's hard-drinking, all-night-partying, gun-toting rich kids.

Jessica Lal, 34, a former model on the fringes of New Delhi's party world of politicians, fashion designers and rich industrialists, tended bar at the Tamarind Court Café. Her friends told newspapers after she was slain on April 30 that she did it more for the exposure than the $36 she was paid each night.

Witnesses said a young man shot her in the head when she refused him a drink.

The restaurant, owned by a socialite, was serving liquor without a license and flouting midnight closing rules. A district police commissioner had been there but left before the shooting.

Through witnesses and the get-away car's registration number, police identified the alleged gunman as Manu Sharma, 24, the son of a politician and hotel chain owner, Vinod Sharma. He is a former Cabinet minister related through marriage to former President Shankar Dayal Sharma.

Congress Party President Sonia

Gandhi, whose children were tutored by the victim's mother, demanded Vinod Sharma's resignation as a regional party chief. His son, who fled the scene after the shooting, remains at large.

The slaying is just the latest in which the children of the well-heeled have been implicated.

In January, three rich young men were charged with barreling down a New Delhi street in their BMW and hitting three police officers and three laborers while driving home from an all-night party. The case has yet to go to trial.

Gun seller did not know of plans, lawyer says

The Columbine gunmen and the gun seller went shooting together in the woods, his attorney says.

By Sandy Shore
Associated Press

LITTLETON, Colo. — The man who sold a semiautomatic handgun to the two Columbine High killers went shooting with them in the woods three times in the month before the bloodbath, the man's lawyer said Tuesday.

Mark Manes, 22, admitted selling the semiautomatic TEC DC-9 to one of the teen-agers but did not know it would be used in the April 20 attack that left 15 dead, including the gunmen, said attorney Robert Ransome.

"When you're up shooting in the woods with a bunch of kids who love to shoot at things, the obvious assumption is, 'Hey, they like guns, and they like to shoot,'" Ransome said. "He never got to that point, thinking what they might do with it. It just never crossed his mind."

Manes, a computer programmer and former Columbine student, was booked on suspicion of providing a handgun to a minor, punishable by up to six years in prison. His lawyer is trying to work out a deal with prosecutors.

Ransome would not say whether Manes sold the two teen-agers ammunition, how much he charged for the gun, where they went shooting, who else accompanied them or what Manes may have known about the law involving gun sales to minors.

Eric Harris, 18, and Dylan Klebold, 17, stormed Columbine on April 20, hurling explosives and blasting away with four guns. They killed 13 people and wounded 23 students before committing suicide.

They used the TEC DC-9 purchased from Manes in late February and three guns — two shotguns and a rifle — that had been legally purchased by Klebold's girlfriend, Robyn Anderson, investigators said.

Under Colorado law, an 18-year-old without a felony record can furnish minors with rifles and shotguns. Investigators have characterized Anderson as a witness, not a suspect.

Investigators believe Harris and Klebold were the only two gunmen but are looking at the possibility that others may have been involved in the conspiracy. They are also performing ballistics tests to determine which weapons fired the fatal shots; Manes could face more serious charges if the TEC DC-9 was used to kill someone.

Is Asthma Related to Heartburn?

If you have asthma and heartburn you may qualify for a research study. Heartburn and regurgitation are symptoms of gastroesophageal reflux disease. Reflux may contribute to your asthma symptoms. Study participants must be 18-75, have a one year history of asthma, and had one reflux episode in the last 30 days.

Eligible research study volunteers will receive:

- Study related medical evaluations at no cost
- Study medication at no cost
- Compensation for study related time and travel

UI bands to perform spring concert

Two UI bands are scheduled to perform pieces by Daehn, Grainger and Strauss.

By T.J. Besler
The Daily Iowan

The University and Concert Bands from the UI School of Music will join forces to present their spring concert tonight at 8 in Clapp Recital Hall.

The University and Concert Bands are two of the three concert wind bands at the School of Music, the other being the UI Symphony Band. Each will play half of the concert program.

The Concert Band is conducted by Kevin Kastens, who is also director of the Hawkeye Marching Band during the fall semester. They will perform two relatively new works for tonight's concert: "Tempered Steel" by Charles Rochester Young and "As Summer Was Just Beginning" by Larry D. Daehn.

Also included in the Concert Band portion of the program are two popular pieces that have been programmed by concert bands across the country: "La Procession du Rocio" by Joaquin Turina, arranged for band by Alfred Reed,

"The music is very toneful. It's not extravagant but it is the type of music that people will go out humming."

—Boyd Perkins,
the conductor of the University Band

"Rocky Point Holiday" by Ron Nelson and "Whip and Spur" by Charles Allen, which has been arranged for modern concert band by Ray E. Cramer.

Although directing a band such as the Concert Band is hard work, Kastens said that it pays off. "The Concert Band provides me with an opportunity to work with young and growing musicians and watch them as they progress and become better musicians."

The University Band is conducted by graduate assistant Boyd Perkins. It will play five works during its portion of the concert: the Prelude and Fugue of Houston Bright, "Ye Banks and Braes O' Bonnie Doon" by Percy Grainger, "Fantasia di Concerto: Sounds of the Riviera for Euphorium and Band" by Eduardo Boccalari, featuring undergraduate Jessie Walch as euphonium soloist, the Third Suite for Band by Robert Jager, and Alfred Reed's arrangement of Johann Strauss' "Tritsch-Trasch Polka."

"I try to find music that is challenging to the students," Perkins said, "music that goes beyond what high school has to offer."

Perkins also believes his ensemble is a good one for anyone who likes to play a musical instrument.

"We aren't a high-pressure ensemble, but we work hard and play well. Also, we get the opportunity to perform in a very nice facility and perform music that many of these students have never had the opportunity to perform before."

Although a concert such as this may not sound like it's for anyone except those who know about this type of music, Perkins believes anyone will be able to come and enjoy the concert.

"The music is very toneful. It's not extravagant, but it is the type of music that people will go out humming," said Perkins. "It's very different from what people hear everyday. You can turn on the radio and hear the same songs over and over — this concert offers something new."

The concert will be free and open to the public.

Best play and musical named by N.Y. Drama Critics' Circle

NEW YORK (AP) — The drama "Wit," about a college professor dying of ovarian cancer, was named best play and "Parade" was chosen best musical Tuesday by the New York Drama Critics' Circle.

"Parade" is based on the real-life story of a murder and lynching in Georgia in 1915. "Closer," about love and sex in England at the end of this century, was picked as best foreign play.

A special citation was awarded to playwright David Hare, author of "Amy's View,"

"Via Dolorosa" and "The Blue Room," for "his contributions to the 1998-1999 theater season."

All three plays were presented on Broadway this season.

Julia Roberts hails role in new film

NEW YORK (AP) — Julia Roberts plays a superstar actress besieged by the press in the upcoming art-imitates-life film "Notting Hill," but she says it's not so bad being famous.

"It's an excellent life. I'm rich. I'm happy. I have a great job," she told Vanity Fair in the June issue. "I travel hither and yon to fabulous places. I'm surrounded by wonderful, interesting people. I live a privileged life — hugely privileged. ... It would be absurd to pretend that it's anything different."

Roberts, 31, a perennial tabloid target, warns moviegoers not to read too much into the plot of "Notting Hill," in which she co-stars with Hugh Grant.

"I was struggling with playing a person who really only shares an occupation and a height and a weight and a status with me," she said.

The movie is due out on May 28. Roberts reunites with "Pretty Woman" co-star Richard Gere in "Runaway Bride," due out in July.

Cuban coach allegedly defects

■ A Cuban pitching coach seeks refuge in the United States after his team beat the Orioles Monday.

By Mary Pemberton
Associated Press

BALTIMORE — A Cuban baseball coach sought asylum in the United States Tuesday, skipping the flight that returned players home to Havana after their victory over the Baltimore Orioles, a congressman said.

Two other Cubans also may have asked for political asylum, said Rep. Bob Menendez, D-N.J.

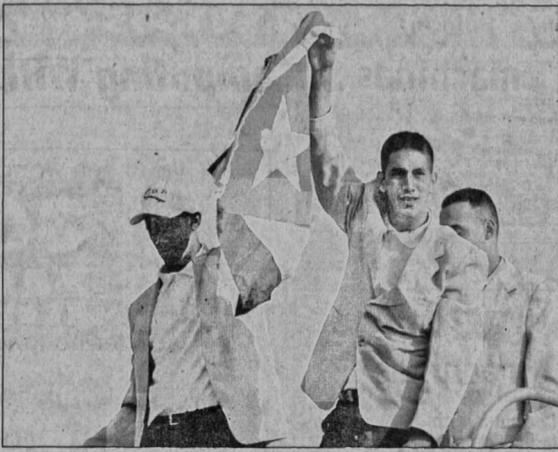

Menendez identified the defector as Rigoberto Herrera Betancourt, 54, saying he was a pitching coach. Police identified him as Rigoberto Herrera.

The official brochure handed out by the Cuban team before Monday's game had no listing for a Herrera or a Betancourt among the players or coaches.

Police said Herrera walked into a police station this morning and requested asylum.

Police contacted the Immigration Naturalization Service; the agency took custody of Herrera late this morning, police spokesman Robert Weinhold said in a statement.

mission in Washington, said six Cubans missed their flight because they overslept. He said he had no information on any defections.

A senior Clinton administration official said the government was making arrangements to talk to the six to make sure they want to return to Cuba.

Fernandez said the six former baseball players were planning to catch another flight home either Tuesday or today.

"Unfortunately, they overslept and missed their plane," he said, adding that they "were very upset when they found out they missed their flight."

California executes Purple Heart winner on death row

SAN QUENTIN, Calif. (AP) — A Vietnam veteran, who supporters say was having a flashback when he beat a 78-year-old woman to death, was executed by injection early Tuesday.

Manuel Babbitt, who received a Purple Heart on death row, died just after midnight, a day after his 50th birthday. "I forgive all of you," he told a warden before his death.

The former Marine was sentenced to die for killing Leah Schendel in 1980. He was convicted of breaking into her Sacramento apartment and hammering her with punches that broke her dentures and split the skin on her forehead to the bone. Her heart gave out.

Schendel was found nude from the waist down. A mattress had been pulled over the top half of her body, a tea kettle placed on her pelvis and a leather strap tied around her ankle.

Defense attorneys said Babbitt's use of the strap was like a soldier tagging battlefield dead, and that his efforts to cover the body evoke the combat practice of covering the dead with whatever materials are at hand.

Clinton made advance, Willey says

■ The former White House volunteer testifies that the president had his hands "all over her."

By Pete Yost
Associated Press

ALEXANDRIA, Va. — Former White House volunteer Kathleen Willey testified Tuesday that President Clinton was "very forceful" in an unwanted sexual advance near the Oval Office in 1993.

"His hands were all over me," Willey said, testifying for the prosecution in the trial of her former friend, Julie Hyatt Steele.

Recounting her version of an incident she first described to the nation in an interview on "60 Minutes," Willey, in a soft but unwavering voice, said she told the president she desperately needed a paid job at the White House because of her family's financial difficulties.

Clinton then took her to a gallery near the oval office and made his advance, she said.

Willey said Clinton backed her against a wall and "tried to kiss me. He was very forceful. His hands were all over me."

Clinton has denied Willey's allegation under oath.

Willey said Clinton kissed her on the mouth, touched her breasts and put his hands up her dress.

She testified at the trial of Steele, who is charged with lying to investigators to undercut Willey's story.

Earlier Tuesday, prosecutors summoned one of Clinton's lawyers, Mitch Ettinger, to describe his visit to Steele in January 1998, while he was working on the president's defense in the Paula Jones sexual harassment lawsuit.

Under sometimes contentious questioning, Ettinger said he sought an affidavit from Steele but never pressured her to sign it. He insisted her affidavit wasn't crucial to the president's defense.

Friends of Steele have testified that she told them about the alleged incident between Willey and Clinton prior to 1997.

Steele told investigators she first heard the allegation against Clinton when Willey asked her to lie to back up her story to a Newsweek reporter.

Steele is charged with obstruction of justice and giving false statements and is accused of lying to FBI agents and two grand juries in Kenneth Starr's investigation of the president.

NATION BRIEF
OPEC holds to cuts as prices climb
CHICAGO (AP) — World oil producers who have traditionally offered only lip service about cutting output are putting their words into action — and that probably means more price increases at the gasoline pump.
An eagerly awaited report from the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries this week or next is expected to show that OPEC members are abiding by their recent pledge to trim production. Analysts said Tuesday that could help push crude oil above $20 a barrel, nearly twice what it was in December.

ENTRY-LEVEL MANAGEMENT OPPORTUNITIES
100 best 1999
WHAT MEANS MORE TO US THAN MAKING THE LIST?
THE FACT THAT OUR EMPLOYEES PUT US THERE.
There are millions of companies that strive to give their employees the very best. And according to FORTUNE® Magazine, only 100 who actually do. We're proud to say that Enterprise Rent-A-Car is one of them. And even prouder that our employees are the reason why.
You could say that Fortune discovered what we've known all along. When you create a work environment that encourages employees to share in the decision-making process, take on all the responsibility they can handle, and enjoy promotion by merit rather than seniority, you give them every opportunity to be their best.
So use your head. Put the Enterprise Rent-A-Car Management Training Program at the top of your list, and realize your most ambitious goals just as we've realized our own. This growth opportunity offers a competitive salary and benefits package. A college degree is preferred.

cities, such as Chicago, will be selling tickets on-line up to two weeks in advance, tickets for the first Iowa City showings will go on sale on May 18 at 11 p.m.

For the remainder of the run, film buffs will be able to buy tickets for any showing that day at Coral Ridge and 90 minutes in advance at the Englert, which has no computerized ticket sales system. There will be a limit of six tickets per patron.

Only two screens will be showing the movie when it opens on May 19 because Lucasfilm limits the prints that can be shown in a given area. No local theaters will be showing the film 24 hours a day, as will be done in larger cities.

"We would have to hire three or four staff to cover it, and I wouldn't have any use for them after the first two weeks," Coral Ridge 10 manager Kim

"I don't know how anything can be disappointing with 'Star Wars' on it."

— Alexander Rubinow, UI sophomore

Davis said.

Still, some students feel the hype and multiple screens will be overkill.

"It's going to make it too big, and the restrictions on theaters will make it so huge and monumental that people may be disappointed," UI sophomore Chris Vanderlinden said.

Die-hard fans of the galaxy far, far away disagree.

"There's almost 2,000 special effects, but there's also stuff with no digital remastering," Rubinow said. "I don't know how anything can be disappointing with 'Star Wars' on it."

tered timbers and brick. The ground was scoured bare in places, stripped of trees. The air smelled like sawdust. Baby pictures floated down the streets in storm water.

Jon Hansen, an assistant fire chief in Oklahoma City, likened the scene to that of the Oklahoma bombing in 1995: "It looks like the Murrah Building, but instead of nine stories tall, it's spread out over a large area."

Officials said the death toll could have been worse if people had not heeded warnings to take cover underground. Local TV stations went live with coverage of the developing storm at least two hours before it hit the heavily populated Oklahoma City area.

Oklahoma Gov. Frank Keating estimated that hundreds of millions of dollars of damage was done. He mobilized the National Guard to help with the rescue; tanks joined police and fire vehicles in blocking streets where the heaviest destruction occurred.

HEROES NEEDED

Military veterans, join the Iowa Army National Guard today and you can put your valuable military skills and experience to use in your community.

The Guard is full of hometown heroes who are there when called upon. Their presence is essential to the safety and peace of mind of their neighbors. They may sandbag to protect homes and lives from flood waters or help pick up the pieces after an earthquake.

Cuts may ground Safewalk program

"We still have the money for it to operate," he said. "It's a valuable program, but I think it could be better organized."

Chiesa said the decision was also partially based on Safewalk's reporting of only 33 users last year.

The Safewalk coordinator, UI graduate student Nadeja Wesley, said the program must exist as an option, regardless of how many people use it.

"This is a program that you can't measure by the number of people who use it," she said. "The important thing is that it's offered as a choice."

Safewalk's current staff comprises 25 volunteers and Wesley, whose duties include recruitment of volunteers, assisting with background checks and training the staff.

"The program cannot operate without someone we can hold accountable in that role," DiCarlo said. "We need a point person that the volunteers know they can rely on. The message that student government is sending is that it no longer prioritizes safety for students."

Though Safewalk contacted UISG following the budget cut, Chiesa said, it did not take advantage of several appeal options, which could have resulted in an additional allocation. Safewalk also failed to make UISG aware that it would close if the coordinator's salary was cut, he said.

"That fact should have also been brought to our attention prior to our decision," Chiesa said.

Byron Racki, UISG financial officer, said the UISG didn't understand why the coordinator received a salary that exceeded executives in other offices, including those in UISG.

"Every student should be shocked and indeed angered that this has been allowed to happen in the past," he said. "I'm proud that student government had the courage to make these cuts."

Racki added that the coordinator's salary should not be a cause of the program's closing down.

"Ninety-five percent of student leaders do not receive monetary compensation for their services," he said. "There are other intangible rewards."

and comfort with the uniform. Steenlage said the most important focus will be on how applicants behave in the uniform.

"Someone who is shy in person may be an outstanding mascot," Steenlage said.

Another potential Herky, UI freshman Jonathon Raclaw, said his skills as a professional juggler will help him impress the judges. If he were to become Herky, it would fulfill a dream he's had since high school, Raclaw said.

"I had a friend who was a mascot," he said. "I envied him enormously."

Applicants have already had an opportunity to get acquainted with the Herky costume at a required informational meeting held earlier this week, when spirit coordinator Gregg

"I'd love hearing the crowd roar and knowing it was all for me. I want to be the first Herkette."

— Angie Anderson, UI sophomore

Niemiec explained Herky's duties.

Working closely with the UI cheerleading squad is one responsibility for Herky, even though most of its moves are improvised. Before beginning the year-long commitment as Herky next fall, the winners will be sent to a mascot training camp in Milwaukee for four days this summer.

The audition, which is open to spectators, will be held on the main floor of the arena at 7 p.m.

Strikes leave Serbs in the dark

Deputy Mayor Milan Bozic warns. Work crews struggled Tuesday to restore electricity across Serbia two days after NATO strikes on major power grids left Belgrade and other cities in the dark — and often without running water, which depends on electric pumps.

With 70 percent of power lost, authorities urged residents not to use electric appliances because of possible circuit overloads. In neighboring Croatia, state television said Croatian government officials had refused a Yugoslav request for urgent electricity supplies after consultation with Washington and NATO.

Residents in the northern city of Novi Sad reported they had power back on by Tuesday afternoon. But some hardened residents shrugged off the blackouts as a relatively minor inconvenience.

Turning the tables on UI instructors

THE end of the semester is notable mainly for its interesting accompaniments. Suddenly, the library becomes a popular hangout, and books that have experienced weeks of neglect finally gain the attention they have sought. To sustain their drive, thousands of students seek refuge in trendy mugs of coffee, cases of soda or, as the case may be, kegs of beer.

This is readily observable and does not demand further explanation. Nor do the assumptions that finals are a pain, it is too warm to study, etc.

geared toward students who are sick and tired of mundane questions about their professor's proficiency, conscientiousness and knowledge of material. These questions are designed to provide accurate and inspired responses.

Here are a few samples:

1. Your attendance at this instructor's class would best be suited by the following phrase:

a) Only a cataclysmic force of nature would prevent me from attending this instructor's class.

b) Unfortunately, cataclysmic forces of nature have prevented me from attending this instructor's class on a few occasions.

c) What instructor?

2. In class, you:

a) Pay vivid attention to the instructor's lecture.

b) Pay vivid attention to the attractive girl/guy sitting down the row.

c) Catch a 50-minute nap.

3. Your instructor (if male) reminds you best of:

a) Robin Williams in "Dead Poet's Society" or "Good Will Hunting."

b) Robin Williams in "Father's Day" or "Good Morning, Vietnam."

c) Robin Williams in "Mork & Mindy."

4. Exams in this class are:

a) Simple and easy.

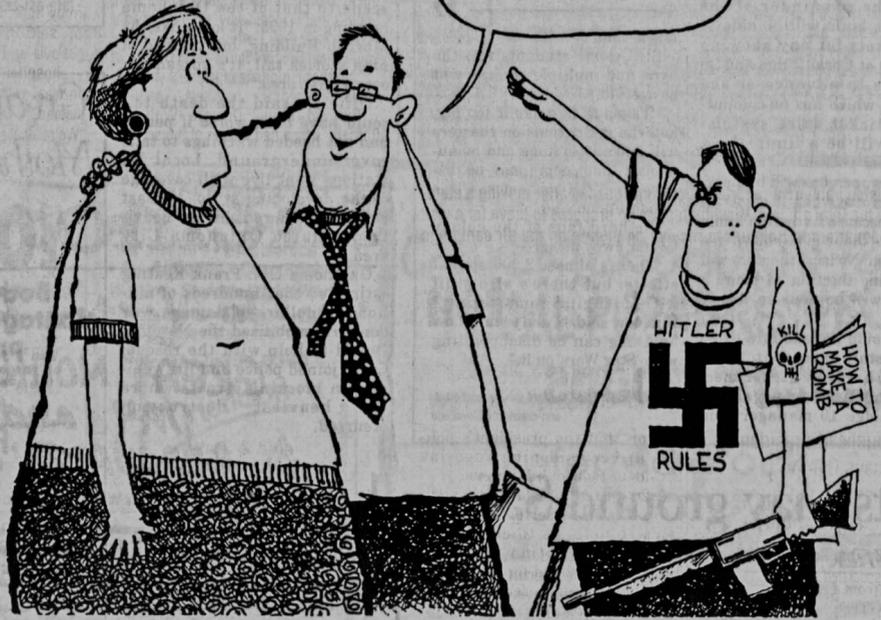

b) Fair and adequate tests of my knowledge.

c) Cataclysmic forces of nature that cannot be dealt with.

As you can see, the SKOOL form, while lacking any words that actually comprise the SKOOL abbreviation, is a distinctive gauge of an instructor's ability to capture the students' attention and admiration. Unfortunately, the questionnaire is still years away from approval.

When that takes place, the act of completing teacher evaluations might become, for once, an enthusiastic procedure. Then, perhaps, any "Mork"-like professors out there will have their day of reckoning.

Jesse Ammerman is a DI columnist.

Getting to the bottom of Irritable Bowel

What is Irritable Bowel Syndrome, and how do I know if I have it?

Irritable Bowel Syndrome is an exaggerated form of the normal digestive processes. Our digestive system — the stomach, small and large bowel, liver and gall bladder — helps us to utilize the food we eat. With the kidneys, it controls fluid balance. Digestion, like breathing, is a 24-hour-a-day process, and our system must respond to all the little "insults" we give it.

Most of us understand such terms as butterflies in the stomach and gut-wrenching. These familiar sensations occur because the digestive system has both a muscular and a hormonal component for moving fluids through it. When there is stress, such as the classic fight or flight response, the whole digestive process speeds up, leading to cramping and nausea.

Vomiting and diarrhea may also occur. The faster process during stress can be helpful at these times because the body can divert its energy to more urgent needs. However, too strong a response will produce difficulties such as fluid imbalance and subsequent weakness.

Not only do people with the syndrome have an exaggerated response to emotional stress, but they also have an exaggerated response to normal digestion and may feel bloated and crampy even when not stressed. If the bowel muscles are working inefficiently, there can be bloating behind the cramped portion of bowel, causing pain.

Further, if the digestive juices are slowed in their transit, constipation occurs. If the digestive process is speeded up, mucous can be passed along with a semisolid bowel movement. Another exaggerated response is a rush to the bathroom right after eating, which occurs because eating stimulates the entire gut.

Since the transit time of digestive juices varies between people and can be up to 48 hours, it is often difficult to know if a recently consumed food is causing a problem. Digestion of beans and other complex carbohydrates requires gas-producing bacteria, leading to increased gas. Caffeine, alcohol and dairy products can cause problems, too.

It is best to seek a medical evaluation if you are having digestive upset.

You should not assume it is the syndrome. Colitis, diverticulitis, malabsorption and other conditions can all mimic aspects of the syndrome. Medications can be used to smooth the process of it, and you can do your part by eating a regular diet containing plenty of fruits, vegetables and whole grain cereals. You should avoid excess caffeine and alcohol and exercise regularly — these affect transit time.

Reduction of excessive stress is also very helpful. Only those who have lactose intolerance need avoid dairy products. Your health-care provider is a good resource for more information on treatment of the syndrome. For more information, visit the Web site of the National Institute of Diabetes and Digestive Diseases at: www.niddk.nih.gov/ (Click on Health Information and Education).

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Reach out to 'trench coats,' don't keep harassing them

To the Editor:

I was thoroughly disgusted when I heard that a West High official threatened a student with suspension over a black trench coat. What is it with this fear of black trench coats? I have a daughter who might be considered a "Gothic" if you are into labels. She has a long black raincoat, enjoys Gothic literature and music, and has friends with similar interests. Last week she was with a friend at City High when he was hassled about his black trench coat, a totally uncalled for confrontation.

What people seem to be ignoring is that the other supposed members of the "Trenchcoat Mafia" at Columbine High School had nothing to do with the shootings. They expressed no racism or fascism, nor talked about guns and killing people. Eric Harris was the only one who did that. Trench coats had nothing to do with it. Maybe Klebold and Harris drank Mountain Dew — should we hassle kids who drink Mountain Dew? Of course not, so let's stick to signs and symptoms that mean something.

School officials need to look for signs of racism, fascism and other hate mentalities. They need to watch for excessive teasing, bullying, fighting and other signs of poor conflict management. They need to listen for threats and conversations about guns and other weapons.

If school officials are worried about copycats and students making statements about Littleton by wearing trench coats, then please don't overreact. Many students around Iowa City were wearing black trench coats long before the tragedy at Littleton. If you feel you must do something, then talk to the trench coat-wearers. Ask them how long they have been wearing trench coats and why. Ask them how they feel about racism and neo-Nazis and events at Columbine High School. Each student is an individual, so please treat them that way.

The meaning of column should be in the details

To the Editor:

The meaning of John Calvin Jones' April 14 column escaped me ("The meaning of jail escapes me," DI/April 14). Perhaps if Jones included more details, it would have made more sense. Jones claimed that there was "no forensic evidence, witness, confession or motive" to link his friend with the alleged crime. How did the police and prosecutor find this man in the first place? Did the authorities just flip through the phone book until they saw a name that looked sinister?

Jones took the offered plea bargain as evidence that the prosecutor realized the charges were false.

EDITORIAL

Give freshmen a say in UISG

Being part of a team requires that everyone has an equal say and voice. The team structure of the UISG's Senate has been far from this ideal "team." In the past and currently, freshmen senators have had zero voting power. Thankfully, in September UISG will discuss an amendment that would give freshmen senators voting rights.

Having freshmen senators who can't vote is pointless and wasteful of everyone's time. Inviting freshmen to add their opinions to the UISG forum and then denying them an official vote is hypocritical. Without voting power, their voices are silent. So what's the point?

The UISG's reasoning behind blocking freshmen's voting power is that first-year students need to adjust to the student government system. But we can't discount what freshmen do have to offer.

Chris McNamara, of the Undergraduate Activities Senate, is in favor of the amendment. "Freshmen should be allowed to vote on Senate because sophomores, who are the closest in age to representing them, have forgotten the emotions, issues and problems that first-year students have to overcome."

No one can quite represent a freshman's opinion like a freshman. New students have a fresh take on the university that is lost after semesters of note-taking and jumping through hoops.

The current arrangement is like an empty promise. By restricting freshmen from voting, the UISG is sending them a message: It's OK to have an opinion, but you don't deserve to reinforce it with a vote.

The UISG exists to represent the student body, and that student body includes younger students as well as upperclassmen.

Let's give freshmen senators a chance. The students who have already earned their spots in the UISG governing bodies obviously did something right. Even a freshman deserves to be heard.

President Clinton ponders a reporter's question Tuesday after making a statement outside the Oval office in Washington, as he prepares to leave for a visit to NATO headquarters in Belgium to receive an update on the air campaign in Yugoslavia.

McCain blasts Clinton on Balkan troops

The Republican presidential candidate says Clinton's refusal to use ground forces in Kosovo emboldened the Serbs.

By Tom Raum
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Under White House lobbying, the Senate pushed aside a measure Tuesday to authorize a ground war if necessary against Yugoslavia, a vote that prompted sponsor John McCain to accuse President Clinton of being "prepared to lose a war" rather than take political risks.

The Arizona Republican's outburst, the strongest criticism yet on the Senate floor of Clinton's military leadership in the Kosovo crisis, drew expressions of outrage from Democrats and even words of concern from some Republicans.

But McCain, a former Navy pilot who spent more than seven years in a North Vietnam prison camp, stood by his criticism and his con-temptation that the president's policies are emboldening Yugoslav President Slobodan Milosevic.

A 2000 GOP presidential candidate, McCain asserted that Clinton's reluctance to consider a ground-force option prompted Milosevic's Serb-led forces to more vigorously extend a reign of terror against the Kosovars.

"That is a fact of this war that is undeniable," he said. "And shame on the president for creating it."

The Senate voted, 78-22, to table a move by McCain and six other senators to give the president the authority to use "all necessary force" to win in Yugoslavia.

Senate Majority Leader Trent Lott, R-Miss., told the Senate the legislation was "the wrong language, and it's at the wrong time." He noted that Clinton hadn't asked for the authority and had no plans for a ground campaign.

Senate Minority Leader Tom Daschle, D-S.D., joined Lott in making the motion to table McCain's proposal.

NATO shoots down Serb jet

A NATO commander acknowledges that air power alone cannot stop the ethnic cleansing.

By Veselin Toshkov
Associated Press

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia — A MiG-29 fighter jet, the finest in Yugoslavia's air force, was shot down by NATO in a dogfight over Serbia Tuesday. As NATO claimed its most successful attacks, the alliance's top general acknowledged that the air strikes have failed to stem the ethnic cleansing campaign in Kosovo.

Gen. Klaus Naumann, a German four-star general and retiring head of NATO's military arm, said the air operation "has slowed down the efforts of Yugoslav President Slobodan Milosevic's instruments for ethnic cleansing," but "we cannot stop such a thing entirely." "Milosevic's mass deportation campaign appears achievable," he said, adding that while the Yugoslav cannot defeat NATO, he might be able to "completely force ethnic Albanians out."

The briefing was Naumann's last before he completes his three-year tour as chairman of the NATO Military Committee.

Milosevic Tuesday praised his top army commanders for defying NATO, "the biggest aggressor in the world." The Yugoslav leader met with several top army commanders Tuesday and lauded them for defying NATO, saying the rebel Kosovo Liberation Army had been "fully defeated."

In a statement read on state television, Milosevic said "the next task" of his security forces is "the persistent defense" of Yugoslavia from NATO.

Hemorrhagic fever toll rises to 63 in Congo

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Hemorrhagic fever has killed 63 people in northeastern Congo, but there is no indication the disease was caused by the feared Ebola virus, the World Health Organization said Tuesday.

"It is an extremely rampant hemorrhagic fever, but 58 of the deaths were in men. There are respiratory complications, and the people who wash the dead bodies have not been infected," WHO spokesman Gregory Hartl said in Geneva. "All these indicate against it being Ebola."

The aid group Doctors Without Borders, which had a team at the scene of the outbreak, said tissue samples would be sent for testing in South Africa.

U.S. Army spells freed soldier's name wrong

LANDSTUHL, Germany (AP) — After being held prisoner for a month, you'd think the least the Army could do is spell your name right.

But the name patch on the uniform worn by Spec. Steven Gonzales, one of three soldiers released Sunday by Yugoslavia and brought to a U.S. military hospital in Germany, reads "Gonzalez" with a "z" instead of an "s" at the end.

"We're aware of it, but we don't know how it happened," said Sgt. Josh Youngblood, a spokesman at the Landstuhl Regional Medical Center. "We've all been so busy we haven't had time to try to find out."

He said he didn't know if the clothing belonged to Gonzales — meaning the mistake was made long ago — or if someone had rustled up the outfit after his release and spelled the name wrong.

Gonzales himself, a 22-year-old from Huntsville, Texas, hasn't complained, he said.

Israeli settlements will expand, Sharon says

JERUSALEM (AP) — Israeli Foreign Minister Ariel Sharon, a champion of Jewish settlement, said Tuesday that despite U.S. protests and Palestinian opposition, 20,000 more settlers will live in the West Bank by the end of the year.

In an interview with the Associated Press, the former army general defended recent settler takeovers of hilltops, arguing that the only way to make Israelis living in isolated areas feel secure was to hold the high ground.

Sharon rejected U.S. protests against Israeli settlement expansion and said outsiders should not get involved in the campaign for Israel's May 17 elections.

"My only hope is that democratic countries will be careful not to interfere in our elections. It is a fair request and expectation," he said.

IOWA SOFTBALL

Hawks show little fear of Golden Gophers

By Tony Wirt
 The Daily Iowan

Standing in fifth place with the Big Ten Tournament just over a week away, the Iowa softball team is relishing the chance to take on hard-hitting, second place Minnesota tonight in Minneapolis.

"We've fared the best in games we were the underdog in," Iowa coach Gayle Blevins said. "I think we match up with their hitters, because we lead with our pitching and defense."

Only a game back from Minnesota (39-17, 12-7), the Hawkeyes (37-22-1, 11-8) will get the chance to solidify a place in the Big Ten Tournament with a pair of wins in the double dip that begins at 2 p.m.

Two losses, though, would put Iowa in grave danger of losing a tournament berth. Still, Blevins is making sure her team isn't too excited.

"We're not trying to feel as if we need to go up and take two," Blevins said. "We're going up with a steady approach and working on a consistent aggressiveness."

The Hawkeyes are coming off a three-game sweep of Purdue last weekend in which they pounded out 30 hits.

Before that, Iowa suffered through a dreadful April month in which they were 12-13.

"We really had our struggles in April," Blevins said. "Then we came out against Purdue on May 1 and played well. We're thrilled to be out of that month."

Herrig headed for Sacramento

The Iowa senior was drafted by the Sacramento Monarchs Tuesday, meaning she will rejoin former Hawkeye teammate Tangelia Smith.

By Eric Petersen
 The Daily Iowan

For Amy Herrig, the wait is finally over. The anxiety has subsided and the pressure has been lifted.

The former Iowa basketball standout was drafted Tuesday by the WNBA's Sacramento Monarchs, becoming the fourth Hawkeye player to be drafted by the team in the three-year history of the league.

Herrig was chosen with the 38th pick, the second player taken in the fourth round.

With such a loaded draft class of college seniors and players from the defunct American Basketball League, being taken where she was did not disappoint Herrig at all.

"I was very happy, actually," Herrig said. "I thought the end of the third (round) if I was lucky, and anywhere in the fourth would be great. To go fourth round, second player, I was very happy. I accomplished my goal of getting into the WNBA."

Herrig was one of 12 collegiate players taken in the 50-player draft, with a majority of the top picks being former ABLers.

The 6-foot-4 center/forward was the eighth amateur selected, giving her a great sense of accomplishment.

"If I think of all the people who didn't get drafted, it's amazing," she said. "To think 'Whoa, I got drafted over her.' It's great."

As a fourth-round choice, Herrig is set to make $25,000 her first season, assuming she is one of the 11 players to make the team's final cut. The Dubuque native just missed earning the extra $2,500 that third-round picks receive.

Herrig rejoins former Hawkeye Tangelia Smith on Sacramento's roster. Smith and Herrig played together from 1995-98.

"She called and congratulated me

The great debate: wood or aluminum?

Story By Roger Czuznia

Iowa left fielder Terry Ramsey will never forget the day he thought he killed someone. Last March, Ramsey and the Hawkeyes were in Alabama playing a tournament game against Troy State. The game marked one of the first times the Hawkeyes were swinging their new Louisville Slugger Air Attack bats, the latest in the company's aluminum bat technology. The bats have an insert of compressed nitrogen inside the barrel, allowing the ball to come off the bat faster and with more power. During that game, Ramsey hit a line drive back at the pitcher, Trey Wright, striking him just above the eyebrow. Wright was knocked unconscious and crumpled to the ground in a bloodied mess. "The ball bounced off (Wright's head) and the catcher almost caught it," Ramsey said. "I was in shock. (Wright) didn't move." Fortunately, Wright regained consciousness about a minute later and needed only six stitches to repair the damage. He began pitching a week later. By using aluminum bats, college teams can save thousands of dollars per year, but the financial savings come with some drawbacks. Safety concerns are one element of how high-powered aluminum bats are changing the nature of collegiate baseball. Another concern is that college games are increasingly turning into slugfests. Last year's College World Series championship game between Arizona State and USC was 21-14, a score more common in college football's national championship. Sixty-two home runs were hit last year at the CWS, breaking the record of 48 set in 1996. Iowa pitcher Steve Rasmussen said the increased offensive output undermines the integrity of the game. "We're getting away from the true points of the game — good pitching and good defense."

MEN'S TENNIS SEASON WRAP-UP

Young and talented Hawks keep hopes high

An injury-riddled 1999 season has done little to dampen the hopes of the men's tennis team for next season.

By Lisa Colonno
 The Daily Iowan

After a seventh-place finish at the Big Ten Championships in an injury-riddled season, the Iowa men's tennis team is looking forward to a successful 1999-2000 campaign.

The Hawkeyes finished the spring season 11-11 and 4-6 in conference play, not including a 4-0 first-round loss to Wisconsin at the Big Ten meet.

"We finished on a low note," coach Steve Houghton said. "We lost to Wisconsin and we beat them (earlier in the season). We could have beaten them without our injuries."

Injuries were the story of the season for Iowa, which tied Northwestern for seventh in the Big Ten. Five players took turns sitting out of the lineup, some missing the entire season and others part or all of the Big Ten season. "Five of our better guys were injured during the year. We will never know what might have been."

—Iowa tennis coach Steve Houghton

"Five of our better guys were injured during the year," Houghton said. "We will never know what might have been, but we could have been a little above .500 (in the Big Ten) rather than a little below."

The Hawkeyes will have the opportunity to prove that next season.

"I think we'll have a very successful season (next year)," freshman Peter Mandic said. "We are highly motivated and we have lots of potential for next year. Next season starts today and we are optimistic."

Iowa will lose three graduating seniors (Ulf Jentler, Ben Bamsey and Girts Auskaps), along with sophomore

Record holder uses Forrest Gump as inspiration

Junior Colleen Prendergast's name is the newest addition to the Hawkeye record book. The sprinter on the women's track and field team broke the 100-meter hurdles record and provisionally qualified for the NCAA Outdoor Track and Field Championships last weekend at the inaugural Twilight Invitational. This week, Prendergast sat down with DI sportswriter Todd Hefferman to talk about her plans after track is over, what direction the team is headed and why Forrest Gump is an inspiration.

DI: You're from Mississauga, Ontario, Canada. How does Mississauga compare to Iowa City?

CP: It's a much bigger city, about 500,000 people. There is also a larger diversity of people.

DI: What was your first reaction after you found out you broke the hurdles record?

CP: I was shocked, I couldn't believe it. I thought there was something wrong with the paper at first, but after I let it sit in, I was like ... OK. That was a great time! I realized right away that it was an NCAA provisional time, then I was really happy.

DI: The 4x100 relay team, which you're on, also ran its best time of the season last weekend at the Twilight. Why do you think it happened then?

CP: I think it was just time. I didn't have an indoor season, so a lot of the things I would have worked on strength-wise, especially hurdles, was just taking its time to come. Plus, I decided to change my attitude from making it a job to just coming out and having fun. I was at home, relaxed, not really worrying about it.

DI: The Twilight was a packed house, people were lined all along the fence. Do you think the atmosphere had something to do with the timing of your accomplishments?

CP: The atmosphere had a lot to do with it. My teammates have been running well, and I felt kinda disappointed, I felt like I was letting them down. We ran a 46.42 (in the 4x100), I believe, at Drake, and I didn't run very well. This past weekend I thought I ran better, and my teammates were stepping up like they always do.

DI: What does the team have to do to improve on last year's ninth-place finish at the Big Ten Championships?

CP: We have to perform like we did last weekend, if not better. We have a lot of people improving later in the season, and that's what coach (Jim) Grant was gearing towards - having us do OK at indoors, get better and do well at the Big Ten Outdoor. Now we're all tired and beat up, but it's a long season, and I think we're a lot fresher now than I think we've ever been.

DI: What's the real difference between the indoor and outdoor seasons?

CP: One main difference is the wind. Some places, like here (Cretzmeier Track), you can turn things around (in order to run with the wind), but when you have a 400 you really can't turn that around. In indoor you don't have that at all, you can just go out, you don't have to worry about wind, rain, anything.

DI: What's the best movie you've ever seen?

CP: The movie that probably stays in my mind for some reason is Forrest Gump. I like that movie, because it just showed that no one thought he could do the things that he did, and he came out as someone who was weak and surprised them all. And that's what I strive to do, no one expects me to do much, but one day I'll come out and surprise 'em.

Herrig excited about opportunities with former teammate and said she knew way ahead of time and she didn't call because she thought I knew," Herrig said. "The day before the draft, they asked her about me. She told them what happened here at Iowa and that we got along real well.

"I think we work well together as posts. We played together in the summer for three years. We know each other's games real well, so it's going to complement both of us."

"They did a great job here together and hopefully they can do the same thing there," Iowa head coach Angie Lee said.

While Herrig will be reuniting with one former teammate, she will miss out on getting the opportunity to play with other Iowa alumnae.

Former Iowa players Nadine Domond ('98) and Franthea Price ('90) were among four players waived by Sacramento Monday.

Herrig said she was unsure of the uncanny link between Iowa and Sacramento.

"I don't know," she said. "I have no idea. It's a different coach this time, too. But yeah, that's where everybody goes."

She is currently the only collegiate player on Sacramento's roster. The team drafted three former ABL players along with Herrig.

"Amy Herrig is a great young prospect who will help us some now, and has a great future ahead of her," Monarchs head coach Sonny Allen said in a statement.

Allen is entering his first season as Sacramento's head coach after serving as an assistant coach last season for the Detroit Shock.

Herrig said she thinks playing for an 8-22 team will definitely help her more than hurt her.

"It's a rebuilding year," she said. "Bringing in a new coach is going to help me out a lot. Having nobody know the program yet, I won't have to worry about being behind everybody from the get-go."

Herrig is to report to Sacramento for training camp by May 12. The 10-week, 32-game season is set to begin June 10.

J.R. Chidley and Mandic will return next season.

Junior Jake Krehbiel, who played three matches during the spring season, and redshirt freshman Hunter Skogman will also return.

The team will add three recruits to its 1999-2000 roster. Pete Rose and Eric Kozlowski, both from the Chicago area, signed in the fall. This spring, Stuart Waters, of Omaha, Neb., also signed with the Hawkeyes.

"(Waters) was a high-profile recruit," Houghton said. "He should step in the lineup right away."

"The future for next year is really good. The upside to the injuries (this season) is that it will make the guys who had to move up in the lineup better next year."

Mandic expects Iowa to make more noise in the Big Ten in the future.

"I think next year we can realistically be in the top three in the Big Ten," Mandic said. "Illinois (the No. 2 team in the nation) will lose their top guys, as will Minnesota. They will be weaker. We will be one year older and more experienced."

NCAA implementing new rules for bat safety

Rasmussen said. The changes have not gone without notice by the NCAA and its president, Cedric Dempsey.

"No one can deny that the performance level of non-wood bats over the last 10 years or so has steadily increased," Dempsey said. When Iowa coach Scott Broghamer is on the recruiting trail, he said he finds high school players with batting averages of .650. A solid average in the major leagues, where wooden bats are used, is around .300.

"I think you have to take a look at that and say, maybe it's gone a little too far," Broghamer said.

Sports Illustrated reported in March of 1998 that baseballs hit with aluminum bats can travel at speeds of 115 mph, about 20 mph faster than balls hit with wooden bats.

The safety issues and the increased run production were enough to prompt the NCAA to implement two new rules for the 1999 CWS, which will be held June 11-19 in Omaha. First, the maximum bat barrel diameter will be decreased from 2 3/4 inches to 2 5/8 inches. The second rule will lessen a bat's length-to-weight differential from -5 to -3.

Under the new regulations, a 33-inch bat can now weigh no less than 30 ounces. The change moves the college specification closer to the major and minor league differential of -2.

Most NCAA Division I teams already have made the switch to the new bats, including Iowa. Based on the Hawkeye baseball team's sentiments, most players would welcome the idea of toning the bats down even more, if not make a switch to wooden bats altogether. The pitchers, of course, are the strongest supporters of this notion.

"If you throw a two-seam fastball on a right-handed hitter, it can still end up as a base hit, instead of just a ground ball," Iowa pitcher Brian Boesen said.

Balls hit with aluminum bats often have just enough momentum to get over an infielder's head, making a pitcher's outing even more frustrating.

Though pitchers lament aluminum bats, hitters know they have a big advantage with metal. Iowa freshman Andy Jansen, who is hitting .323 with five home runs and 30 RBIs, said he would be willing to make a switch to either wooden bats or composite bats (a wooden bat mixed with a few other materials that is supposed to prevent it from breaking as easily).

"If you play baseball at the collegiate level, you have some desire of playing pro ball," Jansen said. "Instead of making the drastic change all at once from aluminum to wooden bats (when players enter the pros), we could learn to hit with them now."

"I think wooden bats help you become a better hitter, because it makes you hit the ball on the right spot all the time."

Teaching hitting

When the Hawkeyes start practice in the fall, the team swings wooden composite bats because they enhance players' ability to hit the ball solidly. Elvis Dominguez, Iowa's hitting coach, said the "sweet spot" on a wooden bat is smaller than on an aluminum bat.

Dominguez estimates that wooden bats have a sweet spot of about 4-5 inches, while aluminum bats have 6-7 inches of prime contact area.

The premise is simple: If hitters can hit a ball on the smaller sweet spot of a wooden bat, it should be easier for them to hit the ball on an aluminum bat's larger sweet spot.

"I don't know if it's psychological, but if you learn to hit with wood, there's no reason why you can't hit with aluminum," Dominguez said.

Also, Dominguez said, wooden bats need to be swung correctly in order to make solid contact. The barrel of the bat must come through the strike zone before the hitter's hands. Conversely, with aluminum bats, it's possible to lead with the hands through the zone and drag the barrel through afterwards. Swing a wooden bat like this, and it will break.

No switch planned

Using wooden bats seems like a logical step, so why haven't college programs made the switch?

Switching to wood would be safer, but certainly not as cost-effective. This reason, among others, is why Broghamer and Dominguez believe that aluminum bats are here to stay.

Bat companies provide corporate sponsorship for some college programs and also for some tournaments. This keeps many schools from worrying about budgets.

"I don't think they do any more or less than what shoe companies do for basketball or football teams," Broghamer said. "That's something that has to be taken into consideration."

The Hawkeye baseball team is sponsored by Louisville Slugger. Greg Morris, Iowa's equipment manager, estimates that the Hawkeye program is given $10,000 worth of equipment per year because of the sponsorship.

Aside from their cost-effectiveness, aluminum bats generally last longer. When they dent, some companies, including Louisville Slugger, fix or replace the bats at no cost.

Cost is certainly a big factor for all parties involved, but Broghamer doesn't see it as the bottom line.

"The bat companies are the same way we are," he said. "We're first and foremost concerned with the safety of our kids. If they can find the specifications for an aluminum bat to react like a normal wooden bat, I think that would be something the NCAA would have to take serious note of."

Despite the two new rules, Dominguez sees little difference in the performance of the bats compared to last year. Progress has been made, but he thinks more needs to be done to control the bats' power potential.

"Overall, I think the balls that are going out (of the park) have been hit very well," Dominguez said. "I think we're going in the right direction."

Only one part of the equation

Though it is easy to point the finger at aluminum bats as the only reason for high-scoring games, there are other factors involved. For instance, baseball players hit year-round to prepare for the season.

"They're better prepared, they lift weights all year round, they're fine-tuning their game a lot more," Dominguez said. "Now you've got three guys on a team with 20 or more home runs. (Ten years ago),

Former Bulls wondering, 'What if?'

■ Still, G.M. Jerry Krause is convinced that he and his colleagues did the right thing by starting from scratch.

By Nancy Armour
Associated Press

CHICAGO — When the NBA playoffs begin this weekend, the Miami Heat and Indiana Pacers will be chasing the Eastern Conference title while the Chicago Bulls sit home counting lottery picks.

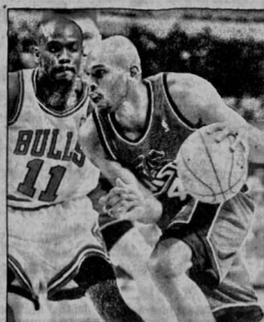

But what if the Bulls hadn't demolished their team after Michael Jordan retired?

What if they'd thrown a whole bunch of money at Scottie Pippen, Luc Longley, Steve Kerr and the rest of the gang and persuaded them to stay for one last go-around? Could Chicago have won the East and, possibly, a seventh title?

Depends who's asked. "I think we would have been right there," said former Bull Jud Buechler, now with the Detroit Pistons. "It seems like there's not really one team that's really dominating. If we would have brought everyone back, who knows? If there weren't any injuries to our team, I think we could have been in the mix for sure."

In the mix, maybe. But win it all? No way, general manager Jerry Krause said. Not without Jordan.

"Michael was such a big part in the locker room. He made everyone around him better, and filling that hole would have been near impossible," Krause said. "We thought we could win a bunch of games, but winning a championship, we did not think we had the ability to do that." Even before Jordan retired, there were signs that the reign was coming to an end. The Bulls barely got by Indiana in last year's Eastern Conference finals. Not even "Judge Judy" could have reconciled coach Phil Jackson and Krause. Dennis Rodman was getting weirder — and that's tough to do.

The Bulls were getting older, too, with Longley the only starter under 30.

So when Jordan hung up his sneakers in January, the Bulls decided it was best to gut the team and start over. The first to go was Pippen, who — feeling underappreciated and underpaid — was looking to leave.

"I was looking to come out west, so I don't know what would have happened," said Pippen, who signed a five-year, $67.2 million deal with the Rockets. "I was looking to move on, and that's what I did. Whether or not we could have stayed together as a team and been successful is difficult to say."

It's not like anyone else is lighting up the league, though. Indiana, anointed the favorite before the lock-out even ended, has struggled. Miami lost to the Bulls over the weekend.

On the other coast, the Utah Jazz are vulnerable, the Rockets have yet to live up to their hype and, the Los Angeles Lakers need therapy more than a title. "Our guys had been there," said Frank Hamblen, a Bulls assistant under Jackson and now Tim Floyd. "Plus, Michael, as great as he is, we still had a lot of good players left who knew the system, played together and been champions together."

"I think it would have been hard, but I still think we would have been right there as far as in the East." Instead, the Bulls are 13-36 with one game left, the third-worst record in the NBA. Even with a victory today, they're guaranteed to finish with the worst winning percentage in franchise history. They've set or tied all kinds of low-lights, including the NBA's record for fewest points in a game.

But as bad as this season is, Krause said re-signing everyone would have doomed Chicago for years. Pippen, Longley and Kerr signed five-year deals worth a total of $118 million, meaning the Bulls would have had little, if any, salary-cap room the next few years. Now Chicago has oodles of cap room and a bunch of extra draft picks.

WNBA DRAFT

Holdsclaw goes first in ABL-dominated draft

■ The former Tennessee star was one of just 12 college players selected in the WNBA's 50-player draft.

By Melissa Murphy
Associated Press

NEW YORK — In Chamique Holdsclaw, the WNBA just might have its version of Michael Jordan.

Holdsclaw, a four-time All-American who led Tennessee to three consecutive national titles, was the No. 1 pick by the Washington Mystics in Tuesday's WNBA draft.

"She's the player of the present and the player of the future for our league," WNBA president Val Ackerman said. "Her eventual appeal could rival what Michael Jordan was able to do over his long career."

"She'll have an appeal that players in our league haven't quite had yet in terms of reaching a new group of fans."

Holdsclaw, a two-time national player of the year, was selected first even though pro players from the defunct American Basketball League were also included in the draft. Holdsclaw was the only college player drafted in the first round.

While the 6-foot-2 star goes to a team that won just three of 30 games last season, she is expected to immediately turn around the Mystics.

Holdsclaw averaged 21.3 points and 8.1 rebounds last season for the Lady Vols, who were upset by Duke in the NCAA regional finals in March.

Former ABL player Yolanda Griffith was the No. 2 pick, going to the Sacramento Monarchs.

Utah then chose center Natalie Williams, the ABL's player of the year in '98 who averaged 21 points and 11.6 rebounds per game. Los Angeles picked forward Delisha Milton of Portland, a member of the 1998 World Championship team.

Former San Jose Laser guard Jennifer Azzi went to Detroit with the fifth pick and forward Crystal Robinson was chosen by the New York Liberty.

The WNBA drafted 50 players in the four-round draft — 35 from the ABL, 12 from college and three from international teams.

With the influx of the ABL players, many of them Olympians or All-Americans, Ackerman called it the "deepest draft in modern-day sports."

The draft was postponed a week because of a labor dispute between the players and league.

The league and players union agreed to allow three ABL players on each of the 10 established teams and five each on the expan-

STANLEY CUP PLAYOFFS ROUNDUP

Devils sent home from playoffs early again

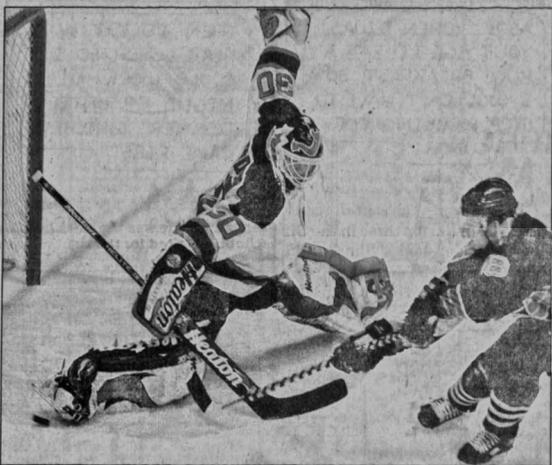

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (AP) — This time it wasn't a fluke wrap-around goal, an unbeatable goalie or an upstart team that knocked the New Jersey Devils out of the playoffs. It was arguably the best player in hockey — Jaromir Jagr of the Pittsburgh Penguins.

Jagr kept hockey alive in Pittsburgh and sent New Jersey to another early playoff exit, leading the Penguins to a 4-2 win over the Devils in Game 7 of their opening-round series Tuesday night.

Jagr, who revived the Penguins in Game 6 by returning from a groin injury and scoring the tying goal late and the winner in overtime, had two assists in the deciding game. His presence helped set up another goal in a three-goal second period by Pittsburgh, which won despite managing only 13 shots.

"I don't know if I was accurate or not when I said I didn't think we could win the series without him," Pittsburgh coach Kevin Constantine said. "It was pretty prophetic, I think. ... But he is so huge."

Jagr, who missed four games with the injury, wasn't the only one who stepped up for the Penguins. Martin Straka and Alexei Kovalev

Pacers seal Central Division title with 100-78 victory

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Reggie Miller scored 24 points despite sitting out the entire fourth quarter as the Indiana Pacers coasted past the Cleveland Cavaliers, 100-78, Wednesday night to clinch the Central Division.

Indiana, which closed the season with four consecutive victories, clinched the No. 2 seed in the playoffs when Atlanta lost to Miami 93-79. The fourth quarter was in progress when the Atlanta-Miami game ended.

All 12 Indiana players scored. Reserve Jalen Rose had 16 points and Rik Smits scored 14 for Indiana, which will not learn its playoff opponent until tonight.

Bucks 99, Raptors 86

MILWAUKEE — After being rebuffed in another attempt to sign Kevin Johnson, Milwaukee used a makeshift starting lineup that included Armon Gilliam and Tim Thomas to beat Toronto.

Ray Allen scored 19 points, Gilliam had 14 and Sam Cassell 13 as the Bucks overcame a sluggish start on a day when they learned that Vinny Del Negro would miss the postseason.

Rockets 100, Timberwolves 83

HOUSTON — Rookie Michael Dickerson scored a career-high 31 points, including 16 in a rugged third quarter, leading Houston to a victory over Minnesota.

The victory snapped a three-game winning streak for the Timberwolves and pulled the Rockets (30-19) even with the Lakers for the No. 4 playoff spot in the Western Conference.

Heat 93, Hawks 79

MIAMI — With smothering playoff-caliber defense, Miami beat Atlanta to clinch the No. 1 seed in the Eastern Conference. The Heat, who also won their third consecutive Atlantic Division title, are assured of the home-court advantage through the Eastern Conference finals.

Hornets 117, 76ers 110, OT

CHARLOTTE, N.C. — After being eliminated from postseason contention one night earlier, Charlotte bounced back behind 28 points from Eddie Jones and defeated playoff-bound Philadelphia.

Jazz 99, Clippers 82

SALT LAKE CITY — Karl Malone had 29 points, 12 rebounds and 10 assists as Utah Jazz completed its regular season by beating Los Angeles.

Hamilton will skip senior year to enter NBA draft

STORRS, Conn. (AP) — All-American Richard Hamilton, who helped the University of Connecticut men's team to its first national championship, will skip his senior season and enter the NBA draft.

Hamilton, who averaged a team-leading 21.5 points per game this season, announced his decision Tuesday, just short of a month after teammate Khalid El-Amin said he would return next season.

Hamilton

Hamilton was voted the outstanding player in the Final Four, averaging 26 points and six rebounds per game as Connecticut upset Duke 77-74 for the NCAA tournament championship.

A 6-foot-6 forward, Hamilton was the third player in the Big East's 20-year history to win the player of the year at least twice. Hamilton won the award in 1998 and shared it this year with Miami forward Tim James.

Hamilton, 21, contemplated turning professional after his sophomore year, but stayed in school in hopes of winning a national title. He said winning the title was a key factor in his decision to leave.

"If we hadn't won the championship, to be honest with you, I might have come back," he said.

PGA says walking is essential to the game

PORTLAND, Ore. — PGA Tour lawyers tried to overturn Casey Martin's golf cart ruling Tuesday, saying the decision allowing the disabled pro to ride is as fundamental a change to the game as taking the dribble out of basketball.

The walking rule is a substantial rule, expressly designed to inject stress and fatigue, and impact the outcome of the game, PGA Tour attorney Andrew Hurwitz told a three-judge panel of the 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals.

"In an elite athletic competition, certain rules must apply equally to everyone."

The San Francisco-based appeals court was not expected to rule for months.

ESPN sues baseball over termination of contract

NEW YORK — ESPN's 10th season of baseball could be its last because of a conflict with NFL games.

ESPN sued major league baseball in federal court Tuesday to try to prevent termination of the network's regular-season contract, which has three years to run.

For the second straight season, baseball is refusing to allow the network to switch three September Sunday night games to ESPN2 and run NFL games on the bigger-audience ESPN.

"Baseball has attempted to extort hundreds of million of dollars of economic concessions as the 'price' for its consent," ESPN said in a 30-page complaint.

Speed may have contributed to hockey player's death

RALEIGH, N.C. — Accident investigators believe excessive speed and alcohol might have contributed to the death of Carolina Hurricanes defenseman Steve Chiasson.

The 32-year-old Chiasson was killed early Monday after he lost control of his pickup truck on a north Raleigh road. Chiasson, who wasn't wearing a seat belt, was thrown from the vehicle when it rolled.

Chiasson was traveling at about 74 mph in a 55-mph zone, according to the state Highway Patrol accident report released Wednesday.

IOC closes case on official

LAUSANNE, Switzerland — Olympic leaders closed the case Tuesday against the highest-ranking official caught in the Salt Lake City bribery scandal.

The International Olympic Committee's executive board said it had "no new element" of evidence to justify further action against Kim Un-yong, a board member and international sports power-broker. But the board said there was enough new information to extend its investigation of a second leading member, Australia's Phil Coles, who like Kim had received a severe warning from an earlier inquiry.

MAJOR LEAGUE BASEBALL

Cubs beat Rockies in a wild one at Wrigley Field

CHICAGO (AP) — Mickey Morandini's shallow ninth-inning fly fell in for a game-winning single Tuesday as the Chicago Cubs blew a six-run lead and then rallied twice to beat the Colorado Rockies 13-12 on a wild and windy day at Wrigley Field.

The Cubs hit five homers but trailed 12-11 entering the bottom of the ninth after Colorado's Darryl Hamilton hit an RBI single in the top of the inning off Rod Beck (2-2).

Jose Hernandez walked off Jerry DiPoto (0-1) to start the ninth and scored on Tyler Houston's RBI double to right center. Lance Johnson grounded out with Houston moving to third and Morandini's fly into shallow right center fell in front of Larry Walker to give the Cubs the victory.

The Cubs, who once led 8-2, trailed 11-8 heading into the bottom of the eighth but tied it on Sammy Sosa's two-run homer, his fifth of the season, and a solo shot by Henry Rodriguez off Chuck McElroy.

Phillies 3, Padres 0
PHILADELPHIA — Carlton Loewer pitched a five-hitter for his first career shutout and Marlon Anderson drove in two runs to give Philadelphia a win over San Diego. Loewer (2-2) needed 129 pitches to throw his second complete game of the season and third of his career.

Expos 2, Dodgers 1
MONTREAL — Carl Pavano allowed four hits in 7 1/3 innings and Vladimir Guerrero hit his fifth homer as Montreal beat Los Angeles for only their second win in 12 games.

Reds 6, Diamondbacks 4
CINCINNATI — Barry Larkin scored three times and hit a tiebreaking two-run homer, leading Cincinnati to a victory over Arizona.

Larkin's fifth homer off Omar Daal (2-3) broke a 4-4 tie in the sixth inning and sent the Diamondbacks to their third straight loss — their deepest slump since they began the season 0-4.

Astros 6, Mets 1
NEW YORK — Mike Hampton stopped the New York Mets' six-game winning streak with his arm and his bat.

Hampton allowed just two hits in seven innings and sparked a three-run rally in the seventh with a two-out triple, leading Houston over New York.

Hampton (3-1) won his third consecutive decision, striking out five and walking three. Before Mike Piazza's game-tying single in the seventh, the only New York hit had been a fourth-inning smash to third by Edgardo Alfonzo that Ken Caminiti threw in the dirt.

Giants 7, Pirates 4
PITTSBURGH — Rich Aurilia had three hits and two RBIs, and winning pitcher Russ Ortiz helped himself with a run-scoring single in San Francisco's victory over Pittsburgh.

The Giants shook off the aftereffects of the Pirates' winning four-run ninth inning rally Monday and an early 2-1 Pittsburgh lead to stop a four-game losing streak, their longest this season.

Cardinals 9, Braves 1
ATLANTA — Leave it to Mark McGwire to break his homerless streak in grand fashion. McGwire hit his first homer since April 18 — a second-inning grand slam against four-time Cy Young winner Greg Maddux — and the St. Louis Cardinals went on to rout Atlanta 9-1 Tuesday night, ending the Braves' six-game winning streak.

Brewers 8, Marlins 1
MIAMI — Cal Eldred allowed one unearned run in eight innings to win for the first time since June 30 and give Milwaukee a victory over Florida, keeping the Brewers undefeated against the Marlins.

Tigers 3, Angels 1
DETROIT — Dean Palmer hit a tiebreaking, two-run homer in the eighth inning to give Detroit a victory over Anaheim.

Doug Brocail (1-0) pitched the eighth for the victory, and Todd Jones worked the ninth for his fourth save.

Athletics 13, Blue Jays 4
TORONTO — Olmedo Saenz drove in four runs and Ben Griev, Jason Giambi and Miguel Tejada homered to lead the Oakland A's to a win over Toronto.

Saenz, who signed with Oakland as a minor league free agent after spending eight seasons in the minors with the Chicago White Sox, went 2-for-3.

Royals 5, Devil Rays 3
ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. — Carlos Beltran tripled with the bases-loaded to lead a five-run, ninth inning rally that gave Kansas City a victory over Tampa Bay.

The Royals, frustrated for seven innings by left-hander Wilson Alvarez, did all of their damage against righty Roberto Hernandez (0-2), who was trying to earn his AL-leading 10th save.

Frank Polich/Associated Press

Chicago's Mark Grace is greeted by Jose Hernandez, Sammy Sosa and Kyle Farnsworth after hitting a grand slam against Colorado Tuesday.

Orioles 9, White Sox 5 (10 inn)
BALTIMORE — Harold Baines hit a grand slam in the bottom of the 10th inning as the Baltimore Orioles rallied from a four-run deficit to beat the bungling Chicago White Sox 9-5 Tuesday night.

Baines hit an RBI triple and scored the tying run in the bottom of the ninth to help the Orioles win a second straight game for the first time this season.

Twins 8, Yankees 5
MINNEAPOLIS — Mike Lincoln got his first major league victory — retiring 14 straight Yankees at one point — as Minnesota defeated New York.

Lincoln (1-4), who entered the game with a 4.81 ERA in four career starts and one relief appearance, allowed two runs and four hits in six-plus innings. He struck out a career-high five and walked one.
