Panel plans report card on diversity

The report card would raise diversity measures within the College of Liberal Arts.

By Carrie Johnson

Pittsburgh Post-Gazette

The report card would raise diversity measures within the College of Liberal Arts.

"We want to keep diversity at the forefront," said Dr. John Slyke, UI's assistant vice president for student affairs. "We want to make sure that our students are represented in all aspects of our campus.

Panels and oversight groups, too, have been created to make sure that diversity is a part of our daily operations," said Slyke.

Web site offers better rates for used books

For students unshackled by the cost of their wallets or their libraries, a new Web-based book exchange lowers the price of older books to as little as $2.50.

Pittsburgh Post-Gazette

"We want to make sure that diversity is a part of our daily operations," said Slyke.

"When we talk about diversity, we're not just talking about race," said Slyke.

"We're talking about diversity in all aspects of our campus, including diversity in our faculty, staff and students," said Slyke.

Jerry Greenfield, better known as one of the two founders of Ben & Jerry’s ice cream, was scheduled to give a lecture at the University of Iowa, which is located in Iowa City, Iowa. The event was to be part of the university’s Catalyst Great Ideas Series, a program that brings in speakers from various fields. However, the event was postponed due to rumors of potential violence.

The rumors started on social media, with some users claiming that Greenfield was planning to discuss radical ideas that could incite unrest. The university, which is known for its commitment to diversity and inclusion, quickly responded by postponing the event.

The decision was made after the university received a tip about potential threats, which led to an investigation by the campus police. The university’s President, Bruce Harreld, said in a statement that the university takes all threats seriously and that the decision was made to ensure the safety of all community members.

Despite the postponement, the university remained committed to the speaker’s message and plans to reschedule the event at a later date.

The incident highlights the challenges faced by universities in balancing free speech with safety considerations.

Steele lawyer attacks Willey's credibility

By Pete Yost

ALBEMARLE, Va. — Kathleen Willey testified Wednesday that she felt threatened when one of President Clinton's lawyers suggested she assert her Fifth Amendment privilege in response to a sexual harassment lawsuit. Willey, who is charged with perjury, told FBI agents and two grand juries that she was threatened by Clinton, who kissed her on Nov. 29, 1993, and "many, many times" since. When she testified Wednesday that she had been threatened by Clinton, Starr's investigators were shocked, but not surprised. Clinton has denied under oath to Kenneth Starr's investigators that he made a sexual advance toward Willey in the presence of a stranger who had pretended to be pregnant. She testified that she had been frightened by a threatening comment Wednesday.

Willey also testified that she had been threatened by Clinton's lawyer, Robert Bennett, who is charged with perjury. Bennett said that he made a sexual advance toward Willey in the White House, kissing her on Nov. 29, 1993, and "many, many times" since. When she testified Wednesday that she had been threatened by Bennett, Starr's investigators were shocked, but not surprised. Bennett has denied under oath that he made a sexual advance toward Willey. White House spokesmen said the Clinton administration had been warned of the threat, but they were not aware of the Clinton-Bennett admissions until Wednesday.

In testimony crucial to the president's defense, Willey described Clinton grabbing and kissing her on Nov. 29, 1993, and "many, many times" since. The Justice Department Thursday approved an agreement to allow Cuban refugees to leave for Havana, the most recent of a series of efforts to ease restrictions on the flow of Cubans to the United States.

The agreement, which was reached after several months of negotiations, allows the Cuban military to leave for Havana and travel to the United States, as long as they meet certain conditions.

The Justice Department said the agreement would allow for the continued flow of refugees to the United States, while also ensuring that the Cuban military is not used for political purposes.

The agreement also includes provisions for the return of Cuban refugees who have overstayed their visas, and for the temporary suspension of certain immigration laws.

The Justice Department said the agreement was part of a broader effort to improve relations with Cuba, and to foster greater cooperation on issues of common concern.
More college students turning to religion

- Educational institutions report a rise in attendance of religious activities.
- By David Weisberg

COLLEGE PARK, Md. — As college students leave campus for summer, they often turn to religion for guidance that didn’t come from childhood.

She attended Bible study to find out what her atheist parents had shared with her away from home. She knew that religion had played a small but significant role in her life. As president of the Student Association for Religious Freedom, she wanted to make sure that everyone on campus had the opportunity to explore their beliefs.

Gun-control support jumps after shootings.

By Will Leader Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Architectural plans piled to the ceiling of a modest office in the nation's capital were tangible reminders Tuesday of the gulf between the two sides, even after the shooting.

The request came two weeks after 12 students and a teacher and wounded 20 others before killing themselves in the first-floor cafeteria.

Before the school shootings, 47 percent of those surveyed said they were in favor of more gun control, including 40 percent saying they favored stricter laws.

Although lawmakers rejected tougher gun control proposals Tuesday evening, pollsters said Monday that 51 percent of those surveyed now favor stronger gun laws. In the first poll, allowing the impact of the shooting to register, 50 percent favored the measure.

The 51 percent figure is up 9 percentage points from just before the shooting attack's aftermath.

A similar increase was found when people were asked whether they favored or opposed existing gun-control laws. In the first poll, 55 percent were in favor and 45 percent were opposed. The second poll gave the numbers 57 percent in favor and 41 percent opposed.

Whether President Clinton and others who are calling for tougher gun laws were set to sway public opinion is in question.

Moore proves that not all TV rots your brain

A LOST anyone would agree that it's a rarity to find anything of quality on television. But maverick filmmaker Michael Moore's new show, "The Awful Truth," on Bravo is the exception to the rule.

The program features stories on topics ranging from "White and Black in Littleton, Colo." to Bobo's Circus. Moore's "Tales of the Unexpected," which aired in late March, was a triumph.

But the show's true value lies in its ability to demonstrate how much better the public product can be. Moore's stories are gripping, fast-paced, well-researched, and never dull. They are sharp and clever, yet they are also informative and educational.

Moore's message is simple: There is more to life than the talk shows and the infomercials. There is more to life than the news and the entertainment. There is more to life than the reality TV and the sitcoms.

Moore even managed to make medical plans 50-city tours seem interesting and relevant. He did so by drawing attention to the problems and issues that affect all of us. He did so by showing us that the solutions are within our reach.

Moore's stories are not just entertainment. They are also a call to action. They encourage us to think critically, to question the status quo, and to demand better from our leaders and from ourselves.

Moore's work is important for several reasons. First, it provides a much-needed alternative to the mainstream media. It gives us a glimpse of what is really happening in the world, and it challenges us to think about what we see.

Second, it shows us that there is more to life than the trivial and the superficial. There is more to life than the shallow and the unthinking. There is more to life than the trivial and the superficial.

Finally, it encourages us to take action. It shows us that we can make a difference, that we can effect change, that we can improve the world.

Moore's work is a testament to the power of the human spirit. It is a testament to the power of the human imagination. It is a testament to the power of the human will.

AOL admits warning govt. on Netscape deal

Microsoft plans to use this information at its antitrust suit to show that federal intervention was unnecessary.

By Joel Brinkley

WASHINGTON — America Online Inc. revealed Wednesday that a senior executive met privately with a top government official to discuss the antitrust suit against America Online.

The disclosure, which the government was first told about last week, raises questions about whether AOL was actively trying to influence the government's arguments against Netscape Communications Corp.

These talks culminated months later in AOL's nearly $4 billion purchase of Netscape, the Internet pioneer whose Web-presence settlement with Microsoft was central to the antitrust case.

Microsoft has maintained that it didn't have any knowledge of the talks to the government, and that the government did not know that the talks were taking place.

The talks were first revealed last week by government officials who said they were surprised to hear that AOL was actively trying to influence the government's arguments against Netscape.

Microsoft contends the deal undermines the government's antitrust allegations by showing that competition is thriving in the Internet browser market.

The government has argued that the deal would create a monopoly in the Internet browser market.

Poisonous mountain of lead taints Mexican town

Studies done in 1999 show that long-time residents of a river valley had high levels of lead in their blood.

Iowa

According to the deal.

The government was aimed at promoting the development of the mining and store the lead. The lead is then sold to industry. In the case of the Mexican government, it is sold to industries that need the lead for manufacturing.

The result is a new and more peaceful era.

Annan met earlier Wednesday with representatives of the various factions. The meeting was focused on the possible reconciliation of differences and the establishment of a new government. The meeting was attended by representatives of the government, opposition groups, and civil society organizations.

The pact comprises several key provisions.

- The agreement includes a commitment to hold elections and establish a new government.
- It also includes provisions for the release of political prisoners and the protection of human rights.
- The pact includes a commitment to address the root causes of the conflict and to promote reconciliation and peace.

Broke Penguins won't go away

The eight-seeded Pittsburgh Penguins are a bring down fancy, but are making a case for themselves in the playoffs.

By Bob Robinson

PITTSBURGH — The Pittsburgh Penguins didn't know it, but they were about to set afron another milestone: they were about to become the 30th team in NHL history to win a playoff series after going down 3-0 in the best-of-seven series.

Penguins coach Mario Lemieux scored his first career playoff goal, and the Penguins' 4-0 win over the New Jersey Devils in Game 4 of their first-round series Tuesday night extended their lead to 3-1 in the series.

Lemieux has now scored goals in 16 games in the playoffs, tying the NHL record for most playoff goals by a player in a single season.

"It was an emotional win," Lemieux said after the game. "This is a good time for the team, and we're looking forward to the next round."
Jackson returns to be honored by Bulls

By Nancy Armour

CHICAGO -- The most storied player in Bulls history was back at the United Center on Wednesday night for a halftime ceremony in honor of his nine-year tenure with the Bulls. No. 23 was unveiled, tinged with a bit of black, to the delight of most of the 21,654 who made the trip to Chicago and were there to pay homage to their former star.

"If we would have been lucky enough to have a player like Michael Jordan for a year, we would have been lucky," Bulls coach Phil Jackson said.

Jordan, who spent his entire 15-year career with the Bulls, returned to the United Center on Wednesday night for a halftime ceremony in honor of his nine-year tenure with the Bulls, tinged with a bit of black, to the delight of most of the 21,654 who made the trip to Chicago and were there to pay homage to their former star.

"If we would have been lucky enough to have a player like Michael Jordan for a year, we would have been lucky," Bulls coach Phil Jackson said.

"This is the final gathering after the last song has been sung and the last cheer has been heard on that dance. It was a wonderful, joyful day," Jordan said.

"I'm happy to be here," Jordan said. "I'm happy to be at the United Center. I'm happy to be back in Chicago. I'm happy to be back in the Windy City."

Jordan was one of the most beloved players in NBA history, and his return to the United Center was met with a standing ovation from the crowd. Jordan was presented with a number of gifts, including a large ring and a plaque commemorating his time with the Bulls.

Jordan was also presented with a plaque by former Bulls teammate Scottie Pippen, who was also on hand for the ceremony. Pippen presented Jordan with a large ring, and the two shared a hug.

"I was extremely proud to be there," Pippen said. "It was an honor to be able to be a part of this."

The ceremony also included a moment of silence for former Bulls forward Scottie Pippen, who died in May from brain cancer.

"It was an emotional moment for me," Jordan said. "It was a moment of reflection and remembering."

Jordan's return to the United Center was also marked by a large video screen that showed highlights of his career with the Bulls.

"I'm happy to be here," Jordan said. "I'm happy to be at the United Center. I'm happy to be back in Chicago. I'm happy to be back in the Windy City."

ROCKIES FLEX THEIR OFFENSIVE PROWESS

COLORADO SPRINGS - David Allen scored three runs and played a role in seven of the 10 runs scored Wednesday night as the Rockies defeated the Reds, 10-0, in the first game of the three-game series.

Allen, who had two hits and drove in two runs, said he was surprised to be playing in the leadoff spot.

"It's been a long time since I've been leadoff," Allen said. "I'm not sure how much I'd like to do it again, but I'm glad to have the opportunity to play in front of the team and contribute.

The Rockies scored eight runs in the first inning, including a three-run homer by Allen, and added two more in the second inning to give starting pitcher Ken Holtzman a comfortable lead.

"I had a pretty good feel for my fastball today," Holtzman said. "I was able to get some ground balls and limit the number of walks, which is exactly what I needed to do.

"I'm happy with the way the team played, and it was nice to get a win on the road.

The Rockies improved to 41-20, while the Reds fell to 26-35.

NATIONAL LEAGUE ROUNDUP

As baseball fans across the country prepare for the upcoming season, a number of key matchups are on tap for this weekend.

In the American League, the Boston Red Sox will host the New York Yankees in a crucial doubleheader, while the New York Mets will face the Philadelphia Phillies in a closely contested series.

In the National League, the Los Angeles Dodgers will face the San Francisco Giants in a high-stakes game, while the Chicago Cubs and the St. Louis Cardinals will clash in a highly anticipated series.

The New York Mets, who are currently in first place in the National League East, will face the Philadelphia Phillies in a crucial series that could determine the outcome of the division.

The Boston Red Sox, who are currently in second place in the American League East, will host the New York Yankees in a doubleheader that could have significant playoff implications.

The Los Angeles Dodgers, who are currently in first place in the National League West, will face the San Francisco Giants in a highly anticipated series that could determine the outcome of the division.

The Chicago Cubs, who are currently in second place in the National League Central, will face the St. Louis Cardinals in a crucial series that could have significant playoff implications.

With the season just weeks away, fans are eagerly anticipating the start of the new season, as well as the potential for exciting matchups and close races for the championship.
Boxing reform heads to Senate floor

The Muhammad Ali Boxing Reform Act was approved Wednesday by a Senate subcommittee.

By Joseph White
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Proponents of boxing reform who have fought the Senate for years will have their bill at the top of the agenda when the Senate Commerce, Science and Transportation Committee meets Thursday.

If passed, the bill would end the controversial practice of throwing money at boxers to ensure their safety and health.

Sparks' Clcakes still coy on NBA decision

The two-time All-American point guard this year helped Michigan State get to its first NCAA Final Four appearance in 20 years, where the Spartans were downed by Tennessee before going on to win the national title.

Sparks averaged 17.5 points, 8.2 rebounds and 4.0 assists in 29 games of leading Michigan State to the Big Ten regular season and tournament titles.

He has until mid-March to decide on whether to play his senior year in college or enter the NBA draft. He did not say Wednesday he will announce his decision on Thursday.

"I don't think he's going to make his (decision) public on Thursday," said Cleaves, the Spartans' guard.

Sparks, who was selected as the Big Ten Player of the Year, is expected to make a decision after the Spartans' season ends Wednesday.

"He's a team person, and he wants to finish what we started," Cleaves said.

Tennessean Chamique Holdsclaw shares a moment with her grandmother, June, Feb. 18, after the No. 1 lady defeated New York to Knoxville, Tenn., in Madison Square Garden. But Washington is closer enough.

"I wouldn't go to the Garden in March," said Cleaves, the No. 1 point guard who has played a key role in the off-season already.

The bill would help protect boxers and their families.

"But basketball has sent her to Canada," Holdsclaw said.

"I'll go back and spend more time with my kids," said Cleaves, the No. 1 point guard who has played a key role in the off-season.

"And Montana's dad, I'm really worried, you know," Cleaves said.

SPR withdraws from Super Bowl plans after truncating 50% of season due to COVID-19

SPR, the National Collegiate Athletic Association, announced last week that it will withdraw from its Super Bowl plans and truncates 50% of its season due to COVID-19.

"We made a difficult decision to withdraw from our Super Bowl plans," said SPR President John McElroy. "Our top priority is the health and safety of our athletes, coaches, and staff, and we believe this is the best course of action in light of the ongoing pandemic."

Lee Westwood has won an remarkable 12 PGA Tour events, but is still a relative unknown at America.

By Mary Foster

NEW ORLEANS — Lee Westwood of England, the newly ranked No. 3 golfer in the world, has won 12 events on the PGA Tour and is the No. 1 money winner this season. But unless you've spent a lot of time in the galleries or watching the television and read the newspapers of May 6-19, you may not know who Westwood is.

Westwood, however, won't be a stranger to golf fans for long. The Englishman is scheduled to appear in theRalston Purina Classic, which begins in a few weeks.

Lee Westwood, a 26-year-old Englishman who has won 12 events on the PGA Tour, will be a regular on television in the next few weeks.

The annual exhibit of the UI M.F.A. students will showcase some of the country's best young artists.

By Debrah Thoma

As the 1990-91 term draws to a close, students from the UI School of Art and Design will display the art works of their scholarship career in the annual spring exhibition. The exhibit will be shown in the Main Building's Ballroom from 4-6 p.m. until June 12. The exhibit will be open to the public but is limited to people who have completed a BFA or M.F.A. within the 1989-90 term. The exhibit will showcase paintings, photography, printmaking, and sculpture. The exhibit will be open to the public and will be open to the public on a first-come, first-served basis.

provides them an opportunity to make music with some of the greatest benefits of any encore.

The students, who are from the art, dance, and music departments, said the concert challenges their often different goals as a group. Ferns said, "I believe it is a chance for the students to create and explore new areas of music." The concert, which is open to the public, is sponsored by the University’s Department of Music and the Department of Theater. The group will perform in a variety of venues throughout the city, including the Iowa City Public Library, the University of Iowa Museum of Art, and the University of Iowa School of Music. The concert will feature performances by the Kantorei, the University’s Chamber Orchestra, and the University’s Chamber Singers. The Kantorei is the University’s choral ensemble and is composed of both undergraduate and graduate students. The ensemble is directed by Dr. Elizabeth Brown. The Kantorei performing repertoire includes music from the Renaissance, Baroque, and Classical periods. The group has a long history of success, having won numerous awards and prizes at national and international competitions. The Kantorei’s concerts are always highly anticipated and draw a large audience.

Creation that comes from conflict

In art, dance, and music, students will present ‘Bad, Beautiful: An Intersection in Special Events’ at the University of Iowa on Sunday, September 5th.

By Lisa Haven

Concerts, films, and theater performances are not only entertaining, but also educational. They provide an opportunity for students to explore new artistic forms and gain a deeper understanding of the world around us.

One of the most powerful forms of art is music. It can express emotions and ideas that words cannot. Music can also be used as a tool for social change. For example, music has been used to protest against war and racism. It can also be used to celebrate culture and diversity.

In this issue, we explore the power of music in creating change. We feature articles on the role of music in social movements, the impact of music on mental health, and the ways in which music can be used to promote peace and understanding.
