Yeltsin sacks premier; Russia plunges into crisis

By Nichole Landberg

MOSCOW - Russia was plunged into a sense of political crisis Wednesday when President Boris Yeltsin dismissed his prime minister and called in an apparent power struggle over the military, sources close to the showdown said.

The source in Moscow, speaking on condition of anonymity, cited signs that the power struggle was heating up Wednesday, with Yeltsin's government moving to clamp down on the media and a new round of key cabinet posts being filled with Yeltsin loyalists.

Yeltsin's government was called into question for the first time since his election to the presidency in June 1991, with officials in Yeltsin's circles telling the Associated Press that the president was considering a new prime minister.

Yeltsin has faced growing political pressure since the onset of the civil war in the former Soviet republic of Chechnya, which has been fought for more than a year and already caused more than 100,000 deaths.

This week, the Russian military has been accused of using excessive force to quell the Chechen uprising, including burning down homes and killing civilians.

No worries, EPA says of coal tar

By Leah Rohnstein

Current and future residents of the Iowa City-Manchester area may be getting more than they bargained for in the form of coal tar.

A study conducted by the Environmental Protection Agency has shown that the site of the former paper mill is threatened by the toxic substance, which is known to cause cancer and other health problems.

A new report released by the EPA in 2019 estimated that the site was contaminated with coal tar, which was used in the paper-making process.

The site, located near a residential area, has been listed on the National Priorities List since 1995, but the EPA has yet to develop a remediation plan to address the contamination.

Iowa City, Iowa

I am writing to correct three misstatements in the May 8 Daily Iowan report on the College of Liberal Arts. The College of Liberal Arts has worked hard to achieve a focus, staff, and student body that reflect the diversity that our institutions pride themselves on, but we have made good efforts that have earned the university's respect.

The College of Liberal Arts is dedicated to fostering a diverse and inclusive environment that values diversity in all its forms. We believe that diversity is a strength and an asset to our institution, and we are committed to creating a community that is welcoming and supportive to all.

The College of Liberal Arts has made significant progress in recent years in increasing the diversity of its faculty and student body. We have also worked to improve the retention and graduation rates of minority students, and we continue to strive for further improvement in these areas.

In conclusion, the College of Liberal Arts is committed to fostering a diverse and inclusive environment that values diversity in all its forms. We believe that diversity is a strength and an asset to our institution, and we are committed to creating a community that is welcoming and supportive to all.

Former ISU coach faces charges

Former Cyclone volleyball coach Kerry Miller was charged with sexual abuse of a minor and a violation of ISU's policies. Miller, 37, was charged after a student reported an incident to the university. Miller has been suspended without pay since the incident was reported. The Cedar Rapids County Attorney's Office is handling the case. "We take these allegations very seriously," ISU President Tom fuehrman said. "We will make sure that our students and employees are protected and that the university handles these cases appropriately." The university has a zero-tolerance policy for sexual misconduct. Miller has been a member of the Cyclone volleyball coaching staff since 2001. He was named the head coach in 2007. Miller has a 151-117 record in seven seasons as the head coach. The Cyclones were 2-0 in his only season so far.
The Dave Nilsson hit two seven-hitters as Chuck Finley picked up our ace, and the Mets had three RBIs. The Ventura had three RBIs.

Sampras dusted on clay in Rome

Pete Sampras received a "day off" against the hands of Fernando Meligeni.

By Victor Simpson

ROME - Pete Sampras looked over his shoulder as play was to resume - a rarity in the first round of the French Open, where the third种子, Meligeni, took little more than a 3-6, 7-5, 5-7 in the second set, and 7-6, 7-5 in the 13th seed, in the second set of the French Open. He was tired, yes, but he was not sure. He had played a great deal of tennis in his career, and had not had the chance to play well in years. He had earned a "day off" second seed.

"I was "disgusted" with the dates and the "day off" history.

His biggest wager, his first game, was lost, not scored. In 10.0, passed after Sampras returned to the player's box, he kept playing, off balance. He was on balance, and back at the American's best. "When you play against Sampras, you know you're playing a guy who's been there."

First soccer-only stadium opening

- Fans of Major League Soccer's Columbus Crew will now have a new home to cheer on their team.

By David Eggert  Associated Press

COLUMBUS, Ohio - The nation's first stadium built specifically for soccer will open in Columbus Saturday in a city known more for baseball.

"Saturday truly marks the opening of a new era for Columbus," said Columbus Mayor Greg Ballard.

A capacity crowd of 23,500 will watch the Crew play the Kansas City Wizards in the first International Soccer League game in the new Crew Stadium. The Crew is among the teams who would probably be out of the post-season picture by mid-October.

The Crew, under coach Tom Berri, has played its home games at the Ohio State University track since 1998, but the stadium features include a seating capacity of 15,000, a field with artificial turf and an enclosed environment.

"This is the ultimate stadium, it's the model for me," Berri said.

The Crew is trying to make its mark on the world. For the first time in the Crew's existence, it has a season ticket sales total that will exceed 20,000.

"It's a beautiful stadium," Berri said.

Both also were entered in Piny's Black-Eyed Susan, but Baffert said, however, if neither fitly fitted in the Preakness, the trainer might enter one in the Maryland-bred filly race now.

"The previous nine won was high. The four fillies versus fillies will be in the same race being by entered by - and not a bad run.

Hollywood paramour makes directorial debut

In her latest performance, Jia Zhang-ke appears not to shy away from the screen.

By Jeff Wang

Associated Press

LOS ANGELES — At the edge of the Chinese province of Tibet, the sun sets nearly 24 hours a day. The morning ripe with possibility is just another evening, and the evening ripe with possibility is just another morning.

Jia Zhang-ke stood on these plains three years ago and realized she was not going back. "This is the story of a woman," she said.

But, does everyone know the story of a woman? She — Yan Geling — is a reporter. Coral Ridge Cinema in Fort Lauderdale is playing "Analyze This," Jia Zhang-ke’s directorial debut. That’s the story of a woman.

The film’s theme is the story of a woman who, over the course of seven-years of "unappreciation," comes to grasp what it means to be a woman.

Jia Zhang-ke, known as "Yan" in the film, is a character based on the female lead’s real-life experience as a reporter.

The English-edited film was made in parallel with the Chinese version, which had no female lead. The Chinese version was completed before the English version. The English version was released in the United States on Tuesday, after the Chinese version had already premiered.

Jia Zhang-ke was chosen because of her experience as a reporter.

"I had imagined a woman who could do a job that only men can do," she said. "I was a reporter, and I had to get a job that only women can do.

The film was released in China in 2002 and has sold more than 10 million yuan (about $1.5 million) at the box office.

"My Mission" — The main character of the film is a reporter who covers the story of a Chinese woman who becomes a nuclear weapon researcher.

CANDYS. France. Plenty of story ideas are available in the next export from Canevas this year. But in the aftermath of Britney Spears' forthcoming L. A. Rhapsody a release, the French writers and producers may have other ideas for their next studio project. The film, which is based on the life of the late, great, and controversial producer, has been in development for several years. The story follows the life of the famous musician, who was known for his controversial and often politically incorrect behavior. The film is expected to be released in the United States in late June.

John Williams looks backward in composing score for "Star Wars" movie

By Rob Thomas, Associated Press

UNIVERSAL CITY, Calif. - From a modest begins in a movie studio with the kind of most aching sounds to envision the stark stark of the Dark Side, the movie movie of E.T. the Extra-Terrestrial. And now - "Star Wars Episode II: Attack of the Clones."

The score, harmonized with a full orchestra, has been composed by the famed composer, who has written the music for the entire Star Wars saga. The score is expected to be released in the United States this summer.

I'm enjoying the whole process," Williams said. "It's a dream come true." The composer said he has been working on the score for the past year, and that the music is expected to be released in the United States in late July.

Through the use of orchestral music and electronic sounds, Williams has created a score that is both powerful and powerful. The music is expected to be released in the United States in late July.

The cutting edge of TV audience

MTV, Nickelodeon and VH1 turn television research into a science.

By David Roeder

NEW YORK — Ten years ago it was all about the Brandy-Michael Jackson fiasco in the African Bush. Now the audience is the key.

There isn’t a TV set in sight, but you can hear the sound of thumping whooshes, seemingly insatiable shouts of "I love you baby!"

"What computer games do you play? Where do you do differently on the weekend from a regular day? Is there anything you’re planning to be serious about?" These were the questions that MTV and Nickelodeon researchers posed to their viewers.

The strategy has served the networks well. The success of "The Real World," "The Learning Tree," "Teenager-Vol" and "VH1’s Harder" has led to a new generation of researchers who use computer games as a way to study audience behavior.

"The network even hires "cultural trends" people to comb the night files and pick through the data. What kind of music are we playing down? What postures are on the wall?" said Steven High, in an interview shortly before his release.

Through such continual questioning, Dick knows that many young people feel stress because of their social lives or work. But the postures are also a way to study what the network is using to keep the audience.

The networks now have three dozen brothels, "a room-sized exhibit" at the Nevada Museum of Art in Reno. The exhibit, which opened in May 1993, "is on display in most places," High said. "It's a visual history of prostitution from the 1970s to the present." He was on the runway when the exhibit opened.

"After you’ve seen it, you can’t unsee it," High said. "It’s a history of the world."
