Allied forces push cautiously into Kosovo

Russell Boyce/Associated Press British Army Capt. Andy Phipps looks over the site of a possible mass grave in Kacanik, Kosovo, Monday. British troops reported finding 81 graves thought to contain the remains of massacre victims in the southern Kosovo town.

As NATO troops press into Kosovo, evidence is uncovered of atrocities, and the stalemate at the Pristina airport continues.

> By Melissa Eddy Associated Press

PRISTINA, Yugoslavia - Ducking at the sound of gunfire, patrolling cautiously to avoid the ire of Serbs, thousands of NATO peacekeepers spread out Monday across Kosovo. Some uncovered grim evidence of atrocities as they tightened their control of the province.

Serb forces complying with the pullout ordered by NATO to end the 8-day air war mixed in with civilians fleeing in columns up to 500 vehicles long. Some Kosovar homes were set ablaze by Serb troops leaving Kosovo.

Aiming to bring a measure of stability to the province, which has been shattered by war, NATO and U.S. forces sought to play down the impasse over approximately 200 Russian soldiers who are occupying the Pristina airfield, where the allies had planned to establish their headquarters.

NATO lead commander Lt. Gen. Michael Jackson insisted that the airfield wasn't crucial to occupying forces, though the White House said Defense Secretary William Cohen and Secretary of State Madeleine Albright will meet their Russian counterparts in Helsinki, Finland, within days.

The Kosovo airport standoff between NATO and Russia is more than a turf war.

To the Western allies, a main worry is that Russian troops independent of NATO could lead to a split in Kosovo, drawing the minority Serb population to a Russian-controlled zone and excluding the Kosovars.

To the Russians, it is a foot in the door, a means of asserting themselves in a part of the world in which they held great influence before the collapse of the Soviet empire. It is a matter of national pride - and perhaps political solidarity with Yugoslav President Slobodan Milosevic - that Russian troops in Kosovo not fall under NATO control.

Partitioning of Kosovo could throw a wrench into the negotiations yet to come over Kosovo's political future the extent of self-government the province is allowed and what links it will have with Serbia. Moscow and Belgrade could be placed on one side against the United States and NATO on the other.

Some suggest parallels to the division of Berlin after World War II, which led to the building of a wall between East and West. Those suggestions are overdrawn, in the view of Anthony Cordesman, a military analyst at the Center For Strategic and International Studies. "This isn't the Cold War. You aren't struggling for control of Europe," he said.

As for the reported atrocities, since the NATO air campaign began on March 24, Kosovar refugees who streamed out of Kosovo have told of Serbs massacring innocent victims.

On Monday; the smell of death hung heavily over a boarded-up pit in the back corner of a forlorn little

> By Troy Shoen The Daily Iowan

If the UI wants angled parking on Clinton Street by Phillips Hall, it must pay for it, the Iowa City City Council decided Monday night.

Jeff Davidson, assistant city director for planning and development, presented the council with a parking design that is part of Phase III of the Streetscape Project.

In the design, angled parking would be installed between Jefferson and Burlington streets beginning his fall, exclud-

The UI would have to fund angled parking in that area, said Mayor Ernie Lehman.

"We need to contact the university and find out if it wants angled parking by Phillips Hall to be included in the Streetscape Project," Parking directly in front of Phillips Hall would remain parallel in order save the trees there.

The council also discussed reducing he size of the chicanes on Highland Avenue. The chicanes are 10-footwide cement structures that extend from the curbs. They are less than a foot tall but require vehicles to drive around them following an "S."

The chicanes were constructed in order to slow traffic along the street out are not necessary, said Councilor Dean Thornberry.

Keeping the books not easy for UI parents

■ The lack of itemized U-bills means that parents may not know what their children are buying at the University Book Store.

> By Angela Disalvo The Daily Iowan

The satisfaction of plunking down your student ID at the IMU's University Book Store knowing you'll never see the bill is even greater when you discover that you can get away with charging such things as a Sony Playstation.

Incoming freshmen and their parents got their first taste of the bookstore during Orientation Monday. As they walked in, they were greeted with the new display of video game.

"The first thing you see is games - it sends a message that fun is a priority," said Kahala Pfrimmer, an incoming freshman from Wall Lake, Iowa.

With students being able to charge games on their UI accounts, parents who have to handle the bills may be getting more than they bargained for. U-bills don't itemize charges from the bookstore, so parents won't know the difference between a Mario Brothers and a chemistry textbook purchase unless they ask their children. At the end of each month, the charges are tallied and the total amount is put on the bill along with the date of the last

Iowa drug prevention programs may go up in smoke

The state could lose federal funding for drugprevention programs because of

By Jill Barnard The Daily Iowan

Because Iowa has failed to meet its quota for reducing tobacco availability for minors, as much as $5 million in federal funding may be lost for drugtreatment programs.

The funds may go up in smoke because studies have shown that Iowa businesses sell tobacco products to minors 36 percent of the time, missing its goal of fewer than 25 percent, according to a report by the Associated Press. And the loss of funds could force the state to close down as many as 15 drugtreatment programs and 15 prevention programs for months, said Janet Zwick, head of the state health department's division of substance abuse.

"Needless to say, it seems a little ironic with all our methamphetamine problems," she said.

In agreement is Dan Shaffer, program coordinator for Iowa City's Alternative Correctional Education program. He said it doesn't make sense to take away funding for treatment because it won't help to alleviate the problem.

"It's a little unsettling to me that because Iowa hasn't met its quota, it may lose funding," he said.

The program that Shaffer works with aims to turn youngsters around who end up in juvenile courts, whose problems sometimes include drug dependencies. ACE is not in danger of losing funding because it doesn't have money specifically earmarked for tobacco education. However, Shaffer said other programs may not be receiving enough funding because they are not well-publicized. States that miss their targets face the loss of 40 percent of their prevention and treatment block grants for the fiscal year, said Mark Weber, spokesman for the federal Substance Abuse and Mental Health Services Administration.

The Associated Press contributed to this story. DI reporter Jill Barnard can be reached at: iillm76@aol.com

"It's a way to make an adjustment without doing anything invasive," he said. The stimulation device is surgically placed into the chest, from which a wire runs to the vagus nerve in the neck, Granner said.

"Patients are provided with a magnet to activate the stimulator," he said. "For some, that can block a seizure from going any further."

This is especially helpful for refractory epileptics — those who are unresponsive to or suffer side effects from medication. The device changes the brain's chemistry by electricity, rather than effectin the change with medication, Granner said.

The device reduces seizures and their intensities, though they are not eliminated totally. Some of the nine patients who have received the device have responded well to the treatment, he said.

"It is too soon to tell," he said. "But I

Lopez tries to take fame in stride

NEW YORK (AP) - Her hit album, On the 6, is named for a New York City subway train, but it was by foot and by car that Jennifer Lopez put herself on display for adoring crowds at the Puerto Rican Day Parade.

The actress-singer strolled up Fifth Avenue for about 10 blocks of the parade Sunday before she ducked onto a side street to escape hordes of clamoring photographers. Fans watching from behind police barricades shouted, "Jennifer!" and cheered as she waved and made her hasty exit.

the parade — this time in a top-down convertible, in which she looked a little more relaxed. A line of police officers flanked the car to keep photographers away.

Lopez, who starred in the movie Selena, was born in the Bronx. She named her album for the No. 6 subway train, which runs from her old neighborhood into Manhattan.

Iowans for Sensible Priorities, an offshoot of the national group Business Leaders for Sensible Priorities, is a non-partisan organization working to raise the issue of Pentagon spending with the presidential candidates during the 2000 Iowa caucuses.

"Forty percent of our time will be spent in Iowa," said Ivy Paisner, an activist for the group.

The members will be touring the state from now until February, collecting 100,000 signatures to petition for a 15 percent cut in the Pentagon's budget, said Gary Sanders, the group's field organizer for Eastern Iowa.

Started by Ben Cohen, a co-founder of Ben and Jerry's Ice Cream, the organization's goal is to move money from the defense budget to programs for education, health care and child care, Sanders said.

One facet of the funding may go to arts programs, which would be important to Allison Page, a City High sophomore.

"Arts are a big part of young people's lives," she said. "Our country wastes a lot of money on weapons.'

A tuition freeze at all state universities would also be feasible if money were to be moved away from expensive weapons projects, Sanders said.

"There are too many unmet needs in this country," he said. "No child should be going to a school that's falling apart. Every child should have access to health care."

The campaign has seen a positive response and is supported by senior military advisers, such as Lawrence Korb, the former assistant secretary of defense in the Reagan administration.

Intelligence panel rakes nuke-secrets security

> By H. Josef Hebert Associated Press

WASHINGTON - Describing a "culture of arrogance" at the Energy Department and nuclear labs, an influential intelligence advisory panel told President Clinton Monday that his proposed security improvements fall short of what is needed to protect against nuclear thefts.

The panel, asked by the president three months ago to closely examine security problems at the Energy Department, strongly recommended that nuclear programs be placed under a new agency either within the department or become altogether independent.

In a scathing 57-page report, the panel, headed by former Sen. Warren Rudman, R-N.H., concluded that the Energy Department is "incapable of reforming itself." It said only a dramatic overhaul of the government's nuclear programs would ensure the needed security and counterintelligence improvements.

"Organizational disarray, managerial neglect, and a culture of arrogance - both at DOE headquarters and the labs themselves conspired to create an espionage scandal waiting to happen," the report declared.

In a statement, the president said the department "represents the best of America's scientific talent and expertise." And he said the administration has "taken unprecedented steps to reduce the vulnerability of our secrets at the

"We remain committed to taking the necessary steps to safeguard our nation's secrets," Clinton said, without commenting directly on whether to reorganize the department.

A senior official, knowledgeable about the report, said that Rudman told the president he had "good news and bad news" about the security mess that erupted in early March with the firing of a Rudman briefed Clinton on the scientist at the Los Alamos nuclear weapons lab in New Mexi-

Rudman told Clinton that the president's directive in February 1998 to beef up security at the research labs was a "positive step" and more than what had been done by previous presidents.

The bad news is that people to this day are trying to keep (the directive) from being implemented," Rudman told the president, according to the senior official, who spoke on condition of not being identified.

The report said its "most troubling" finding was "evidence that the lab bureaucracies, after months at the epicenter of an espionage scandal with serious implications for U.S. foreign policy, are still resisting reforms.'

Rallying around the flag

o the war is over. Thank god. Another 20 minutes of CNN's coverage of the damn thing and probably half the populace would've been reduced to babbling idiocy, in favor of attending Austin Powers movies and voting for George W. Shrub.

On second thought, maybe we didn't need another 20 minutes.

Of course, the end of the war probably means that now we're faced with an near-eternity of self-congratulatory speeches, a Roman orgy of TV specials replete with $2,500 coiffures (but curiously devoid of any history or substance beyond what a ninth grader could come up with while casually surfing a mega-mall) and tickertape parades down Broadway for the returning troops.

Well, not exactly. This one was a truly postmodern war. First you fight the war; then you send in the troops. Who are not called troops, exactly; they're called peace-keepers. The first thing to fall in a postmodern war is any sense of irony.

And irony fell early and hard in this one. Any time you have ex-antiwar, anti-Western imperialist activists such as Joschka Fischer, Gerhard Schröder and Tony Blair leading in the beating of the drums of war, you know that irony got left behind a couple of rest stops ago. If that weren't enough, you had the sight of such rabid right wingers as Pat Buchanan and Tom DeLay heroically trying, like the method actors that they are, to immerse themselves in the role of peacenik. It was rather like watching Marlon Brando becoming a tree, except that, as acting goes, Marlon Brando makes a pretty good tree. If people hadn't have had the bad taste to be dying all over the landscape, it would've been a pretty good laugh.

Naturally, though, a thug such as Slobodan Milosevic had to show up and spoil any idea of a good laugh. There are some who will say that it wasn't really Milosevic's fault, that the slaughter and the mass burning of homes and towns and the expulsion of Kosovars and the methodical raping of Kosovar women can all be laid at the feet of the United States and its NATO tag-alongs. If you know any of these people, get the name of their pharmacist and order a couple of cases of whatever it is they're taking.

The one good thing about Milosevic is that he'll put you off nationalism forever. Any kind of nationalism, including the super-slick blarney that's manufactured in the good of U.S. of A.

Some, of course, would say I'm some kind of commie who just wants to burn the American flag.

Well, sort of. I'm not much of a communist, really; no one who's spent a number of years working in East Berlin, as I did, could ever be a communist — too much experience brushing up against the culmination of decades of flaming idiocy and pure drivel. Donald Kaul once wrote that pure drivel tends to drive out ordinary drivel; he knew what he was talking about. Of course, he had years of first-hand experience with the Iowa Legislature.

Not that East Berlin or East Germany (that would be the DDR, technically, or as it works out in this wonderful word play in German, the DaDaEr) or the Soviet Union or China, etc., ever practiced anything close to communism or Marxism; but then, to be fair, nowhere in the West does anybody practice free-market capitalism. Anyone who says so is either a candidate for the insane asylum or political office. Not that's it's always easy to distinguish between the two.

Anyway, yeah — I am in favor of burning the American flag. I don't have too many absolutes, being the relativist humanist that I am, but I do have one: Anything, any little thing at all, that enrages Pat Buchanan, Gary Bauer and their ilk must be several leaps for humankind in the right direction.

But then, I'm also in favor of burning the Albanian flag, the Serbian flag, the German flag, the French flag, the Swedish flag, the British flag (maybe especially the British flag — I come from the Irish), the Irish flag, the Chinese flag, the Frisian flag, the Russian flag, the South African flag, the Icelandic flag, the Fijian flag — you get the idea. Flags would make great bonfires of the vanities.

Maybe we could all gather at the U.N. building and just burn flags. The U.N. has quite a supply, I hear. And because it would be in New York City, no one would ever notice the resulting air pollution.

What it comes down to is, humans have survived, somehow, roughly 12,000 years since the end of the last Ice Age and the beginning of the evolution into so-called civilization. If humans hope to survive another 12,000 years of this thing called civilization, I have a modest proposal:

Burn all the flags.

Then teach all the flag makers how to beat their sewing machines into plowshares.

Let Hamilton use the hawk

I would like to express my opinion on the decision of the UI's stopping the Hamilton, Mich., Hawkeyes from using the Hawkeye logo. I could not believe that a well-known university would make such a big issue with a Class B high school. I am a 1965 graduate of Hamilton High, and I remember when we voted on our school mascot. Out of a selection of three, the Hawkeye was chosen. Looking back, it seems to me that contact was made with lowa about the use of the logo and that lowa gave us the go-ahead. We were elated at the time that we could do this

Now, more than 30 years later, the UI wants to make an issue with a high school that is very proud of its logo. Sometimes I wonder what higher education puts in some people's minds. If that logo — worn proudly by Hamilton students — does anything, it advertises for the UI. I'm sure that the UI can't be concerned about the small amount of money that is incurred by the sale of Hamilton products using that logo.

I see no reason for what the UI is doing to the students (and alumni) of Hamilton High School. No harm has been done in the past or will be done in the future by letting a high school be proud of its logo. Come on — move to more important and productive things. Use your education in a positive manner, not in a negative way to upset a potential UI student.

Republican priorities must shift by 2000 election

The Republican Party is sending the wrong message by debating the idea of cutting off funding to Kosovo while we are in the middle of fragile peace talks and are just about to get Serbian President Slobodan Milosevic to surrender. It makes the Republicans look as if they are siding with the enemy of the United States.

I don't think the Republican Party has figured out how to govern yet. Voters want to see what Republicans can accomplish rather than what Republicans can obstruct. In the last election, the Republicans lost seats when they were expected to gain seats. The voters were sending a message that the Republicans still aren't hearing.

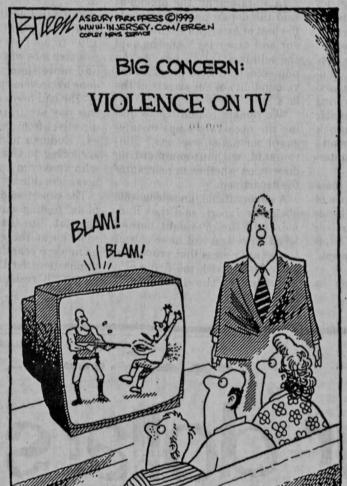

If the Republican Party doesn't put the people first and stop siding with the enemy, "President Gore" will likely have a Democratic Congress to work with. And I doubt whether that is what Republicans want to see.

Respect needed for women's sports to thrive

omen's sports are hard. Hard to watch, hard to participate in and hard to discuss. And not in the conventional definition of the word "hard."

It's not as though when you pick up the paper one morning and say, "Boy, that Mia Hamm sure is a swell soccer player," a herd of raging box turtles will suddenly and very slowly separate you from your paper. But, as I've discovered during these last few weeks of blissful lethargic nothingness at home, the difficulties surrounding women's sports are vast.

I had been suspicious for some time that huge discrepancies existed in the sports world between men's and women's team sports. Way back in high school, many of the female sports apparently didn't exist, although I distinctly remember participating in them, receiving school letters for them, and making friends through them. But just try telling our athletics director that women's track and field or cross country were actual sports, with actual athletes working hard, day after day, to excel.

Perhaps it was due to the fact we didn't have a reputation of dominance in these sports or maybe it was because we didn't bring the school as much revenue as the football program did. Just try getting spectators to pay $4 to watch people take off from a line, and run into the woods for 20 minutes. It makes it kind of hard to appreciate unless you're more directly involved. But, for whatever reason, we were not as noted as some of our fellow sporty peers.

Mention cross country, and you'd get replies such as, "Why do you guys run if there's no one chasing you?" or "Doesn't that get horribly boring, just running?" I liked to answer stupid questions with stupid (though, apparently, believable) replies. When I told some guy that they actually DID have someone chasing us to make us run faster, he was awestruck. "Man, that's some really strong encouragement."

Shees

So while it's difficult to get people to acknowledge some women's sports, that is, unfortunately, not the apex of the soccerball of life, if you will. For once women's sports are acknowledged and actually attended, new complications arise. I attended a high school sectional soccer game recently with my little sister, a budding player herself. My old high school had made it this far, and we were playing a dominant team, so everyone expected a great matchup.

And they got one. But for most of the game, my attention wasn't focused on the field. It was pulled back into the stands, noting the attitudes of the spectators. Now, I'm not naïve, and I don't believe that everyone follows the unwritten spectators' rule: "Please, Please Be Nice to Everyone and Please Support Everyone and Don't Yell Stuff at Members of the Opposing Team." Right. Some people are just hideous spectators, and carry that ugliness into the stands, or sidelines, and then project it back onto the field. The players, the refs and the coaches all feel the brunt of the abuse.

Leah Kind

At this particular soccer game, my alma mater was defeated. But it still played a good game. This wasn't enough for some of the people there. Many of the guys in front of us were obviously friends and boyfriends of the players. They seemed to think that, due to this tight bond between themselves and the athletes, they had free rein to yell whatever they wanted.

These guys were punks! One of the players on the opposing team was very tall and had a close-cropped haircut. She was also an excellent player, so, in the wonderful world of high-school taunting, she was easily singled out by the dummies. Comments were made about it being a woman's game, why they had let a "boy" play, chest sizes, etc. Really clever, thought-out taunts. At one point I glanced at my sister, took in her short hair and boyish frame, and worried that some day, she'd have to endure such adversity — not on the field, but from the stands.

Are people's sensibilities somehow troubled by women in athletic competition? Many women's sports are seen as a farce when compared with their male counterparts. The ABL, a women's basketball league, started with fresh optimism that a women's sport could draw crowds. After a while, interest fizzled and the league fell apart. Yet, even in view of the obvious hardships they have to face, women still persist with relish in their chosen sports - whichever it may be. But until women's participation in sports activities isn't viewed as spectacular simply because of the gender of the players, nothing will have really

If you'll excuse me, I have to go find some body paint. My sisters have got a game tomorrow, and I've got to be positively encouraging.

SEOUL, South Korea - South Korean warships sank a North Korean torpedo boat after an exchange of gunfire earlier today, South Korea's Defense Ministry said. The 10-minute clash was a dangerous escalation of their high-seas standoff.

"I would prefer an itemized bill," said Leslie Hayden, a parent from Lansing, Ill. "I realize my son won't study 24 hours a day, but paying tuition to play Playstation games is not what we had in mind."

Hayden and her husband, John, said they were surprised that the U-bill doesn't itemize purchases. However, they do not believe their son will take advantage of the situation when he enrolls at the UI this fall.

The UI would like to have an itemized U-bill, but with the existing system, it is unable to do that, said Marty Miller, a cashier in the Business Office.

"It would definitely be better if we could detail the U-bill so students could tell exactly what they bought and when, but our current systems won't allow this," he said.

Austin Powers shags Star Wars

A nation gets an in-joke, and a goofy movie scores at the box office, baby.

> By Michael Fleeman Associated Press

LOS ANGELES - Austin Powers is absolutely swinging, baby.

Austin Powers: The Spy Who Shagged Me, the James Bond spoof sequel starring Mike Myers as the sexually charged man of mystery, took in $54.7 million over the weekend, making more in its first three days than the original movie did in its entire run.

That knocked the latest Star Wars installment out of first place and accorded unlikely blockbuster status to a concept that started out as an "in-joke" Myers thought few people would get.

Now, everywhere you turn, somebody is trying to do her or his best Austin Powers imitation, imposing a bad English accent on his buzzwords: "Oh, behave!" and "Yeah, baby! Yeah!"

'We're stunned; it's almost surreal," said Mike Deluca, president of production at New Line Cinema, the film's distributor. "I think in a weird way, the culture caught up with it."

The original, Austin Powers: International Man of Mystery, tested poorly and opened to a tepid $9.5 million in May 1997. People didn't seem to understand the humor about a 60s spy with bad teeth, a bearskin rug of a chest and an infatuation with sex. Myers said the idea was inspired by his late father, a Liverpool-born salesman who loved

British comedy, from Peter Sellers to Monty Python. "You would have had to have grown up in my house to get it,"

Myers said before the film opened. But audiences warmed up to Austin's humor, and the $16 millionbudget film hung on through the summer to gross $53.9 million and

Then it went to video, where it was - as Austin would say smashing. The tape dominated the 1998 video charts, with $44 million in sales. It spawned Austin theme parties in colleges and homes, and set the groundwork for the sequel, with double the budget.

New Line also raised expectations with trailers that poked fun at the hype around The Phantom Menace. Featuring Dr. Evil, also played by Myers, the ads tell moviegoers that if they see just one film this summer, go to Star Wars; but if they see two films, check out Austin Powers

Then the studio launched a huge - and risqué - promotional push, using carefully selected marketing partners that adopted Myers' peculiar brand of double-entendre-laced

One Virgin Atlantic Airways billboard had Austin beaming, "Five times a day? Yeah, baby!" to promote the airline's five daily flights to London. A Heineken commercial had a masseuse admiring Austin's Heiney - his beer, that is.

By the time it opened, audiences were feeling shagadelic.

"Mike Meyers is a genius. He's one of the funniest comedians I've ever seen," said Mike Rosenkrantz, a machinist from Chesapeake, Va., who called in sick from work Monday to catch a matinée in Norfolk.

The sequel sends Austin back to 1969 to reclaim his stolen mojo - or libido - from Dr. Evil. Along the way, Austin falls for the sexy female spy Felicity Shagwell (Heather Gra-

"It's a little bit of a Rocky Horror Picture Show thing on a larger scale," said director Jay Roach, who saw people lined up for Austin Powers 2 dressed as their favorite characters. "It's Mike's spirit of joy and his love of this music and this culture, this color and movement. People young and old want to share it with him, and that's his genius."

Summer can jive, as long as it's civilized

NEW YORK (AP) - Donna Summer, the one-time "Queen of Disco," may be on the comeback trail, but she says she won't be singing the erotically-charged "Love to Love You Baby" any more.

Now deeply religious, Summer told the June 19 issue of TV Guide that she feels the song is too risqué. In fact, Summer

The new recruits' baptism of fire will be difficult when they are matched up against former and current NBA players like Brad Lohaus and Ricky Davis as well as current Hawkeyes like Jake Jaacks and Rod Thompson. Eight current Hawkeyes will compete in the league.

"The league this year is as talented as any group we have ever had," Larson said. "No matter which of the 12 players on the team play, it will be a competitive

New coach Steve Alford is supportive of the PTL, much like his predecessor Tom Davis was.

Larson said he had an encouraging meeting with Alford regarding the league.

"We had a nice meeting and he (Alford) said he had heard nothing but encouraging things about the league," Larson said. "He encouraged all his players to play as much as they could."

With nearly all the players with high levels of experience, the PTL showcases some top-level basketball. Even though it is not as patterned as a collegiate game, Larson said the style of play was far from a pickup game.

The games this year will be held at the North Liberty

Community Center in North Liberty. The city-owned gym replaces West High as home for the PTL. Even though North Liberty Community Center has only one court and seats just 350 people, it does have one big advantage for the players and fans — air conditioning.

The league will play their games on Monday and Thursday nights starting Thursday, June 17. The first of four games begin at 4:30 and run every hour and a half.

It was a hard weekend for Cub fans nationwide. I watched the game on Sunday, and after the endless rain delay was over, the Cubs blew the lead against the South Side White Sox.

On Friday, the Sox and the rain stole one, but on Saturday and Sunday they beat up the Cubs. To see the Sox fans, in Wrigley Field, waving the brooms around, symbolizing, the sweep of the Cubs, was a slap in my face.

Sox will go back to Comiskey Park and play in front of their crappy crowds of 14, 000 or so and the Cubs will keep winning. The payback comes before the All-Star break in Comiskey, and hopefully the Cub fans will bring some brooms with them.

Do Dallas fans know what they are cheering about?

Bench coach Matt Galante, who will be interim manager, also visited Dierker in the hospital and was elated to find his manager in good spirits. "He sounded good and was very optimistic about the surgery," Galante said. "We even kind of joked some. I told him I didn't realize I was so boring that I put him to sleep."

Jeff Bagwell said the whole team was relieved.

"Last night, we heard it was a tumor and that's life and death," Bagwell said. "This morning, they said it's not a tumor, that it was something that was not an easy operation but they felt it had a good success rate.'

Second baseman Craig Biggio said Dierker told him he thought he could be back in uniform in two weeks, although Astros personnel wouldn't speculate about

Dierker's' return. "That kind of shocked us to hear him say that," Biggio said. "That's good that he's thinking like that but we just want him to be healthy."

Hunsicker said he was told by doctors that on a scale of 1 to 5 with 1 the least serious -Dierker's condition is 1.

"But everything is unpredictable at this point," the general manager said. "Until they go in and do the surgery we don't really

Doctors also told Hunsicker the mass - about 1 1/2 inches in diameter - was located in a lesscritical part of the brain.

Galante worked his first game as interim manager Monday night against the Atlanta Braves in the Astrodome. Hunsicker does not know how long Dierker will be sidelined.

"At this point, that's the least thing on my mind," Hunsicker said. "All we can do now is take the lead from the doctors that his prognosis is excellent, but there's no way we can put a timetable on his return."

Dierker told Hunsicker he was unable to recall Bell's sixthinning grand slam, which put the Astros ahead 4-1.

Tryba wins St. Jude

After rain suspended play on Sunday, Ted Tryba finished up Monday with a win at the St. Jude Classic.

> By Frank Baker Associated Press

MEMPHIS, Tenn. - A friend's advice may have been worth

$450,000 to Ted Tryba. Tryba, who won the St. Jude

Classic by two strokes Monday, was in a group of six one shot off the lead heading into the final round, which had been delayed a day because of heavy rain Sunday.

He was practicing his putting before going onto the course when his friend grabbed him by the shoulders and told him: "Take your time out there - any time I felt a little rushed or I felt uncomfortable to just take a step back."

Clinging to a one-stroke lead at the tee on the 528-yard, par-5

16th hole, Tryba recalled the advice and stepped back from the ball. He then stepped up and smacked a perfect drive.

"I think it really helped me there because I hit probably the best tee shot of the week there," Tryba said.

From 234 yards out he hit a 4-iron about 8 feet from the pin, then sank an eagle putt to go to 19under. He stayed there and collected the $450,000 winner's check for his second PGA Tour victory.

"This was a nice one to win because you didn't just back in. You went out and shot 66 and just grabbed it. It felt great," Tryba said.

Tryba's 265 total was two shots better than Tim Herron and Tom Lehman. Jose Maria Olazabal, whose closing 62 was the best of the week, and Kevin Wentworth were three back at 16-under.

Hal Sutton, the third-round leader along with Tryba, Herron and Lehman, was alone in the lead at 17-under Monday after a birdie on No. 10, but double bogeyed No. 12 and bogeyed No. 13 to drop out of contention. His par-71 put him at 14-under, tied for sixth in a group that included Paul Azinger.

SPORTS BRIEFS

King won't step aside

NEW YORK (AP) - Don King says if the Evander Holyfield-Lennox Lewis rematch happens, he will be the promoter.

Seth Abraham, head of Time Warner Sports, has said the payper-view fight, which is set for Nov. 13, is in jeopardy if King does not give Time Warner the right to order the promoter to step aside if he is indicted in connection with the first Holyfield-Lewis fight. That bout ended in a controversial draw.

"I'm not giving up my rights, I'm not giving up the presumption of innocence," King said Monday at a news conference for the Oscar De La Hoya-Felix Trinidad welterweight tile bout Sept. 18 at Las Vegas. That fight will be co-promoted by King and Bob Arum and carried on payper-view by TVKO.

directors supported an earlier decision by the selection committee to waive the standard three-year waiting process for potential inductees in Gretzky's situation.

June 23, with the ceremony scheduled for Nov. 22.

Murray named Kings

LOS ANGELES - Andy Murray, a success at the high school and international levels of hockey, added the NHL to his head coaching resume Monday when he was hired by the Los Angeles Kings.

Murray, 48, replaces Larry Robinson, whose contract wasn't renewed in April after the team finished 32-45-5 and failed to reach the playoffs for the third time in four years.

"The fact that the team underachieved last season, this is a great time to come to Los Angeles," Murray said at a news conference near the downtown Staples Center, the new arena where the Kings will play next season.

May wins top female athlete

■ The Long Beach State volleyball player led her team to an undefeated season and a national championship.

RENO, Nev. (AP) - Misty May, who helped Long Beach State to a perfect season and the volleyball national championship, was selected Monday night as the winner of the Honda-Broderick Cup as the nation's top college female athlete.

May, a two-time All-American setter for the Forty Niners, became only the second volleyball player to win the award, which was first given in 1976. Deitre Collins of Hawaii was the first, winning in 1983.

A senior from Costa Mesa, Calif., May was the co-MVP of the NCAA Final Four as her team completed a 36-0 season with a win over Penn State in the national title match. In the final, May had 70 assists, 11 digs, nine kills and four blocks. For the tournament, May set an NCAA record with 20 aces.

May, a senior majoring in kinesiology/physical education, was among 11 finalists, all of whom received Honda Awards for being the best in their respective sports. The other finalists were Danielle Fotopoulos of Florida for soccer, Danielle Henderson Massachusetts for softball, Karin Lichey of Georgia for gymnastics, Katie McGregor of Michigan for cross-country, Martina Moravcova of SMU for swimming, Grace Park of Arizona State for golf, Suziann Reid of Texas for track and field, Mimi Smith of Old Dominion for field hockey, Stephanie White-McCarty of Purdue for basketball, and Vanessa Webb of Duke for ten-

Houston manager undergoes brain surgery

Houston players are relieved to find out their skipper's diagnosis is better than they originally thought.

By Michael A. Lutz Associated Press

HOUSTON - Larry Dierker will undergo brain surgery Tuesday to remove a mass of malformed blood vessels that caused his seizure in the Houston Astros dugout.

The 52-year-old manager spoke with general manager Gerry Hunsicker

he did not recall anything after the second inning of Sunday's game.
"I talked with Larry this morning, and he was coherent and very positive and encouraged," Hunsicker said. Dierker "He was kind of joking around, but he said the last couple of days he had severe headaches and that was unusual for

Monday and said

sions in the eighth inning of the game against the San Diego Padres at the Astrodome. Players and coaches restrained him until medical personnel arrived and took him to Methodist Hospital. Tests Monday revealed he had an arteriovenous malformation - a condition in which people are born with malformed, sometimes tangled, arteries or veins in the brain. Over time, they can become dilated, so that the enlarged vessels either pressure neural tissue or even burst and bleed into the brain.

"That blood vessel mass is what triggered Larry's seizure," Hunsicker

Despite the seriousness of Dierker's diagnosis, it's not as bad as his players thought. They left the Astrodome Sunday night thinking Dierker had a tumor.

"It was scary to hear that he might have a tumor," right fielder Derek Bell said. "You couldn't eat or sleep See DIERKER, Page 7

With the Iowa City summer in full bloom, the past, present and future of Iowa basketball will soon converge on a small gym north of town. 1999 marks the 13th year of the Prime

Time League, a summer developmental league lead by Iowa City lawyer Randy Larson. Out of the league's 96 players, Larson estimates 70 have collegiate expe-"For Iowa players, the league is a chance to work on individual skills and practice their weaknesses," Larson said. For the younger players, it is a chance to see how hard the great players play."

At the PTL Draft on Monday, Dean Oliver was the first pick overall, followed by Brad Lohaus, ex-Coe College player Jeff Hrubes, Rob Griffin and ex-Iowa star Kenyon Murray.

Gary Fitzpatrick, coach and owner of Fitzpatrick's, had the first pick in the draft and said Oliver was an easy choice.

"You either want a big man or a point guard," Fitzpatrick said. "Dean is at the point where he can run the show. He was an obvious choice.'

One of the tricks for drafting a good PTL team is to get players who will be at the games consistently. Players often have other conflicts such as tryout camps and other commitments overseas.

Bo(wen) knows sports

As the summer rolls on, here is little insight on the world of sports. How about it Reggie?

Sure, I'm not an Indiana Pacers fan, but who is after their performance in the Eastern Conference

Last season, when the Chicago Bulls were still a factor, I had a lot respect for Reggie Miller and hi Pacers. They pushed the eventual champion Bulls to seven games, and Reggie had to say after that they were "a better team." But, against the injury ladened New York Knicks the first eight seed to make it to th finals, they choked, and so d

I don't know how many times watched him flop and lean into defender to try and draw a hapless foul instead of going to the hole. Yes, he did score over 30 points in one game, though he was is the teens f the majority of them. Reggie, I Outlaw of the Magic can do that.

Fans, anyone? I feel for the Montreal Expos players. I saw more people at opening night of "Short Circut," but I guess the Expos don't have Steve Guttenberg on their team.

Oh my, Cubbies...

WOWing the newcomers

■ The UI opens the school year with the Weeks of Welcome.

By Mike Standaert The Daily Iowan

When new students come to the UI, the largeness of it all is bound to be overwhelming.

That's when the Weeks of Welcome come into play, bringing new students together and orienting them to the school and community.

The 9-year-old WOW, which this year will start on Aug. 22 and culminate on Sept. 4, welcomes freshmen and other new students to the UI community and gives them an opportunity to partake in a wide variety of events.

"The purpose is to make new students feel like they are part of the community," said Cassidy Titcomb, WOW program administrator. "We want students to feel excited about the community; we want them to have fun; we want them to learn."

The festivities focus on bringing new students together, introducing them to faculty and the different programs UI has to offer, as well as celebrating the UI's diversity and showing them what it means to be a Hawkeye.

On Aug. 22, the festival will kick off with a picnic, the WOW Here at Last program and finish up with a fireworks display.

"The first day is a common custom and should be pretty lively," Titcomb said. "We'll have speakers, music, cheerleaders — UI President (Mary Sue) Coleman will speak — and it all winds up with the fireworks on Hancher Green."

Among other WOW activities are musical acts, lectures, a faculty lunch during which students can meet teachers and UI staff, an ice cream social, films, comedy acts, a hypnotist, a field day and a tailgate party on the final day, when the UI opens the football season against Nebraska.

On Sept. 3, students will be able to take advantage of longer hours at the UI Field House (11 a.m.-2 a.m.) and

Calming the storm of Orientation

■ The university tries to put incoming students at ease during their first days on campus.

> By Anita Chlipala and Crissy McMartin

The Daily Iowan

During Orientation, it's not difficult to spot an incoming student. If the black-and-gold folder or the dazed expression aren't indicators, the parent or two in tow is almost always a dead

Beginning in June, thousands of freshmen will invade Iowa City for one of nine two-day orientation sessions. For many, it will be their first taste of life as a UI student.

The primary goal of the program is making this transition as easy as possible, said Emil Rinderspacher, the associate director of admissions.

"Although our primary goal is easing the transition and acquainting new students with our resources, we also want to confirm that they made a good choice," Rinderspacher said. "This is a

During Orientation, Hawkeyes-to-be are grouped by majors and overseen by one of 24 student advisers. After a series of ice-breaker games, the new students are given the opportunity to ask their student adviser any questions they may have about the UI or Iowa City.

Rinderspacher said the majority of questions posed by new students concern day-to-day living.

Brett Roseman/The Daily Iowan

"People wonder about practical things: what kind of sheets to bring, what to do with their cars, parking, if they should bring a computer or get a local bank account," he said.

On the second day of Orientation, students register for fall classes. While the process can seem a little overwhelming, those involved say students should relax.

"It goes pretty fast," Rinderspacher said. "Students don't bat an eye."

To ease any tension incoming freshmen might feel, the UI will provide them with orientation advisers to aid them in the process, informing them of courses they can choose, Rinderspacher said.

"We try to have help available to them instead of having them go off and fend for themselves," he said.

One of the major concerns of students is the availability of the classes, said Steve Hubbard, student program coordinator for orientation.

In cases in which a class fills up before a student is able to register for it, UI officials recommend that the student prepare alternate courses as a back-up plan.

"Be aware of the options, so you won't have to run back to your adviser to get different courses approved," Rinderspacher said.

For incoming students, this isn't much of a hassle because of the variety of options.

"First-year students usually first take general education courses, and there is more than one option to fulfill that requirement," Rinderspacher said.

To get the most out of registration, students should inform their advisers of courses they have already taken, and of Advanced Placement and CLEP credits, Rinderspacher said.

"That way we can help place students in the right classes," he said. "They won't be regressing or duplicating any courses. We'll be setting them on the right track for graduating."

Students should also have the Schedule of Courses, the guide to courses and their registration forms, Hubbard said.

"It all takes time to think about classes and fit your schedule together," he said. "But it all works out in the

In addition to registration, orientation activities include mathematics and foreign-language placement tests. In some cases, Orientation can even serve as a bonding experience.

"Many students have told me that the best thing about Orientation is meeting other freshmen," Rinderspacher said. "These are people that are in the same boat as they are. Sometimes they even hang out together when they get back on campus."

Popular religion prof to become less accessible

Jay Holstein will teach smaller classes in the fall.

> By Kelly Wilson Daily Iowan

This year's incoming UI students may have some difficulty registering for courses taught by Jay Holstein, the well-known and quite popular - UI religion professor.

In past years, freshmen have made up most of the roster of 750 for the Judeo-Christian Tradition course taught by Holstein, making the class a virtual rite of passage for many UI students.

Dan Edmonds, a UI senior who has taken several of Holstein's courses, said the professor's interesting teaching style has made him one of most popular, if not the most popular, professor on campus.

"Holstein has this amazing ability to make students care about what he is teaching," Edmonds said. "In my opinion, he may be one of the only professors who can do that."

It is for these reasons that many UI students were saddened to hear that changes made for fall semester will make Holstein less accessible than he has been. These changes will include a different professor for Judeo-Christian Tradition and a substantial reduction in class size for Quest for Human Destiny, which will still be taught by Holstein.

As a result, Holstein said, the number of his students will be reduced from 2,200 to roughly 600 a year.

"I feel a mixture of great anger and great happiness for changes made for next fall," he said. "Smaller classes make communication easier, but not as many students will be able to take the classes they want."

Quest for Human Destiny, along with the Bible and the Holocaust course, were filled to capacity after spring registration for fall semester. The only class taught by Holstein remaining open for enrollment is Old Testament Survey, he said.

UI senior Manisha Virdi said she thinks it is unfortunate that many freshmen will have to wait until later years to take a Holstein course.

"Holstein seems to be the type of professor who makes going to lectures inter-esting and fun," Virdi said. "Freshmen can really benefit from that.'

ESSENTIALSBOOKS&EMPLOYMENT

It's a textbook situation

Here a book, there a book, everywhere a book book.

> By Carrie Johnston The Daily Iowan

After an exciting, event-filled Orientation, UI freshmen leave with a copy of the Schedule of Courses for their first semester of at college.

They know what their classes are, but now what?

It's off to the bookstore. The University Book Store, located in the basement of the IMU, and Iowa Book & Supply Co., 8 S. Clinton St., provide textbooks for all UI classes. However, buying books can sometimes be an overwhelming experience for the firstyear student.

The first time I went to buy books frustrated the crap out of me," said UI freshman Grant Raupp. "I wish someone would have told me what all of the numbers and signs meant before I went."

There are a few tips that can help you buy your books without breaking a sweat or your bank account.

Always have a copy of your class schedule when you go to buy your books; the course and section numbers are the keys to locating your books.

Textbooks are numerically arranged according to departments. To find your textbook, look under the sign with the corresponding department number, which is the first number before the colon. nate waiting in line to buy books. The

Kelly Etzel/The Daily Iowa

UI freshman Laura Schneider waded through a crowd at the University Book Store to find her textbooks on Jan. 18.

Check the card underneath the textbook on the shelf for the department, course number and your professor's name. Also check to see how many textbooks are needed for the class. This number will be at the bottom of the description card.

"I eventually got the hang of it after the first time," said UI freshman Matt Fisher. "The lines can be pretty brutal, though. I waited forever.'

The rush at the beginning of the semester is inevitable, as thousands of students need books; the lines are almost legendary.

A new method could help to elimi-

University Book Store offers students the opportunity to buy their textbooks from a Web site, www.book.uiowa.edu.

Although some students wait until the first week of classes to buy their books to eliminate the hassle of buying the wrong one and having to return it, the highly desirable used books are often gone quickly.

"If you want used books, get there early," said Liz Reynolds, a UI freshman and an employee of Iowa Book & Supply. "They are gone really fast, and then you will have to buy new books."

Used books are considerably cheaper than new ones, but your bill is more than likely going to be large no matter what. Always make sure to look at the prices of all of your books so you know ahead of time how much they are to eliminate stress - and surprise when you check out.

Sometimes the bookstores will run out of new textbooks if you wait too long to buy them. If this is the case, don't panic. Check the blue "status cards" that should be posted in the book's spot for the date of the next shipment.

The bookstores also offer for sale many other "necessities" for the college student, such as school supplies, CDs, posters, greeting cards and clothing.

Need a job? Finding one's no sweat at UI

Finding a job is not a problem at the UI, which employs around 12,000 students each year.

> By Quinn O'Keefe The Daily Iowan

UI freshman Carrie Andrews entered the UI knowing that she would have to get a job in order to make some extra cash. She said she thought it would probably take her two weeks to find a job — but in reality, it took two hours.

Approximately 12,000 students are employed by the UI each year. According to UI Student Employment, jobs are numerous and vary greatly ranging from Cambus drivers to a laboratory assistants to computer programming assistants, said Cindy Sipher of Student Employment.

There are more than enough jobs available. Incoming students should not be worried about missing out on job opportunities," she said.

A Job Fair is held the first week of the fall semester each year in the IMU; attending the fair is a great way to see what the UI has to offer in terms of employment, Sipher said.

Andrews went to Student Employment one of her first afternoons at the UI and discovered a large list of jobs available.

"I was really surprised by all the different types of jobs that it had listed. It was not a problem of finding a job, but which job I wanted," she said.

Student Employment services are free; in addition to its office hours, it has a Web page that is updated daily with available jobs at the UI and in the Iowa City community.

Andrews, like many other students who work, worries about juggling her time. But she was able to find a happy median with a job that fits her schedule.

Some students prefer to find jobs that specifically fit their future career plans. UI junior Rina Rothman, a social work major, became a resident assistant her sophomore year.

"Since my contact with this job, I have used all of the skills that I have learned in all my classes but especially my social work classes, whether with myself or my residents," she said. " In many ways, this job has shown me what being a counselor is all about."

Unlike Andrews' experience in finding a job, it took more than two hours for Rothman to become an RA. She had to submit an application and go through three rounds of interviews.

More skill-specific jobs and jobs with high responsibility rates are sometimes harder to find, but they are offered, Sipher said.

The application process was a little bit threatening, but it was worth it and now I am doing something I really love," Rothman said.

Virtual UI, where computing is easy

■ With more than 1,000 computers in its ITCs, the UI is well-equipped to handle students' needs.

> By Anita Chlipala and Mike Standaert The Daily Iowan

Whether to purchase a computer or not is one of the many important decisions freshman must make when beginning school - it's almost impossible to get by without one.

But at the UI, that doesn't necessarily mean you have to break open the piggy bank just yet.

With 26 Information Technology Centers - and more than 1,000 computers - scattered across the campus, a computer is never more than a stroll away, which gives students the ability to write papers, check e-mail, browse the Internet, register for classes, search the campus libraries' catalogues, and perform a variety of other

"More and more material is being put on the Web - class notes, syllabi, assignments - and students can use the ITCs computers for all those tasks," said Don McClain, customer-relations manager for Information Technology

All UI students pay computer fees — from $50 to $170, depending on the program in which they are enrolled to support ITC operations.

At the ITCs, students can use new laser printers with a special punch card they are given with a limited number of free pages. When those free pages are used up, students may pur-chase new cards through the Weeg Computing Center, the University Box Office, or the Language Media Center in Phillips Hall.

Students concerned about the availability of computers in the ITCs can put their worries aside, McClain said if they show some foresight and are a little flexible about the time of day, they should find an available computer.

"If you find time and plan ahead, you'll have no problem getting a computer," he said.

"You can go at different times. I know students won't like this, but if you go at 8 in the morning, I can guarantee you can get a computer."

Incoming students do not need their own computers because the ITCs provide what they need, McClain said.

"If you want the best computers, they're there in the ITCs," he said. "You're not going to find old computers that aren't going to work.

However, if students believe they must have their own computer, they can work out a loan with the UI. Computers can be ordered online, and students can have them built the way they want it, McClain said.

At the UI's 24-hour-a-day computer brain-center, Weeg, located in the south Lindquist Building, students can get technical advice on computing and the opportunity to purchase computers at discount prices. Repair services and Y2K-compliance software are also Another concern of students may be unfamiliarity with computers, or in some instances, computer phobia. To help with these problems, the

You've got e-mail

By Julia Di Gangi The Daily Iowan

E-mail has replaced the tedious tasks of writing letters and licking stamps with the click of a button. For many UI students, e-mail is the primary means of communication with distant family and friends.

Kate Pace, a UI junior, like many other students, finds herself wedded to

This is kind of sick, but I probably check my e-mail four or five times a day," she said.

Rachel Klevar, a UI senior, said her heart led her to her career high in logins - an average of three a day.

"The most times I ever logged on was three, and that was when I was hoping for e-mail from a boy I was madly in love with," she said.

Klevar said she checks her e-mail between classes. Luckily for students such as Klevar, there are many Information Technology Centers in which students can check their inboxes between classes.

Tim Coogan, an ITC monitor and a UI junior, said that e-mail is the primary reason that students use the ITCs. He said that although email provides many benefits for students, the UI's system needs to be updated.

"Pine just isn't user-friendly, because it commands the user to use certain key codes as opposed to buttons, pictures and graphics," he said. "I doubt whether Harvard uses Pine."

Whether Harvard uses Pine or not, thousands of people use and rely on the Pine e-mail system on a regular

Students can register for e-mail accounts at orientation. By accessing ISIS, the UI's on-line registration system, students can link to an account set-up. There they will get their address and choose a password.

"We really encourage students to set it up at orientation," said Don McClain, a customer relations representative at ITS. "Then they can give it away to their friends before they leave.

Some students find that using accounts other than their Blue account is easier. Jennifer Batt, a UI freshman, said that she prefers to use her Hotmail account.

"I had Hotmail before I came to college, and the Blue server is just too long," she said. "It's too much work to figure out the Iowa computer system - just signing up for classes is hard enough, much less figuring out how to work Iowa's e-mail."

UI Libraries system a fount of information

The UI Libraries system continually seeks to improve by updating its technology.

> By Jill Barnard The Daily Iowan

When students are looking for a book or researching a paper, they almost without fail turn to the UI's system of 13 libraries.

Few students leave the UI without having used the Main Library, one or more of its 11 branch libraries or the Law Library, said UI Librarian Sheila Creth.

The UI Libraries system, which serves approximately 28,000 students and 1,700 faculty members, is the largest in Iowa, Creth said.

And technology is the key to organizing that system, said Carol Hughes, head of the libraries' Information, Research and Instructional Services.

"We have a major investment in an on-line catalogue," Hughes said. "And we intend to improve that dramatically in the next year and a half."

The new version will have more powerful search engine and a Web interface that students can use with a browser, she said.

Additionally, Hughes said, the libraries' new technology is expected to dramatically improve the system's Through the libraries' Web address, she said, people now have access to online resources, a reference librarian via e-mail and the Library Explorer - a Web interface tutorial on how to do mercular representation and the formation before a new medical formation and the second order before the second order and the second or library research.

We really feel that we're making a lot of strides on the technology front,' Hughes said.

The UI is one of the first of the nation's universities to have an Information Arcade. With it, students can get help learning how to scan; create Web pages or search the Web, Hughes said.

While the UI does have its own CD Rom library network, it can only be accessed if the user is in the library. But the libraries system is looking to improve that as well.

"In the fall, we hope that people will be able to get to our CD Rom network from their home or office," Hughes said.

Diversity the spice of dorm life

■ The 90 percent of UI freshmen moving into the residence halls can expect diverse accommodations.

> By Jill Barnard The Daily Iowan

The UI residence halls are almost as diverse as the students who live in them, and many students select their dorms based upon a hall's reputation. As a result, students can expect to have new and often exciting experiences in the UI residence halls.

"No college experience is complete without at least one year in the dorms,' said UI senior Brian Hoke. "Because, in college, you're supposed to be opening up your mind to everything.'

Having spent his sophomore year in Currier Residence Hall, Hoke said, he enjoyed his experience and feels that it diversified his education about life and getting along with others.

"You're meeting people, and it just adds a nice mix to your experience," he said.

Sometimes students form long-term friendships with the people they meet in the dorms, said UI senior Kelly Rinkenberger.

"I ended up living with my freshmanyear roommate for four years," she

N

Rinkenberger said she had good times with the people she met in Burge and was glad to see them continue throughout college.

"I'm still very close to the people that were on my floor," she said. "And I'm currently living with three people that were on my floor freshman year.'

The UI campus offers eight dorms, all of which cater to the various needs and preferences of incoming freshmen, said Dicta Schoenfelder, the housing manager for residence services.

Daum Residence Hall, designated a quiet hall, is intended for freshmen students participating in the Men in Engineering Program, the Women in Science and Engineering Program or the UI Honors Program.

Kim Wong selected Daum because it was a dorm that would allow him to focus on his studies, he said.

"I never go out, because I am always studying," he said. "I chose Daum because my friends all get together and study, and it was easier just to be in the same dorm.

Daum, Burge, Currier, Stanley and Mayflower Residence Halls are located on the campus' East Side.

Mayflower Residence Hall is different from typical dorms because each suite comes with a kitchen facility and a separate bathroom, Schoenfelder said.

The four West Side dorms are equally varied in what they offer students, Schoenfelder said. The dorms are about a 10-minute walk from the Old Capitol.

Regardless of the personal preferences of students, Schoenfelder said, all of the buildings have an open guest policy, non-smoking floors, laundry facilities, TV areas and study areas.

The UI houses 90 percent of the incoming freshmen; each hall is at least 50 percent freshmen.

The lure of being on one's own

Living off-campus can be preferable to putting up with the dorms, but with it comes responsibilities.

By Rebecca Anderson The Daily Iowan

For some students, the security of living in the residence halls keeps them there for all four or five years of their college careers.

But there are others who crave the freedom of having their own rooms, using the bathroom alone and escaping from the dreaded Tater-Tot casserole.

UI sophomore Megan Heger said her two years in the dorms were a great time, but now she needs to move on.

"I am looking forward to having my own room and making my own food, she said. "I just want to have my own personal space.

Heger and three of her friends are packing their Quadrangle bags and heading for a four-bedroom apartment on North Dubuque Street next fall. The convenience of being able to come and go as she pleases was one of the factors that led her to off-campus living.

"I just want to be in charge of when I do things," she said. "I want to be able to control the time that I eat dinner."

The most important thing a student should consider before moving out of the dorms is the cost of living in off-campus housing. Renters are not only responsible for paying rent but, in many places, are also responsible for utilities - heat, electric, water, gas, etc.

Along with utilities, there are the not-so-necessary elements such as phone, cable, food, keg money and styling products.

Another thing students want to keep in mind are the legal ramifications of living in an apartment.

If it burns down and you don't have renter's insurance, you can say good-bye to your belongs. Most landlords will not cover the cost of your personal

There is also the issue of responsibility when having guests at your abode. The Iowa City City Council recently passed an ordinance allowing officers to charge a person with keeping a dis-

Public Safety: Theft leads crime reports on campus

Both Public Safety officers and the police say preventing theft is relatively easy.

By Zack Kucharski

The Daily Iowan

UI Department of Public Safety officials say that adding a few extra steps to the daily routine can help prevent against property loss, a crime that can happen anywhere.

Theft is the most common crime reported to Public Safety, said Associate Director Jeff Van Slyke. The department received 386 reports of theft in 1998 and 362 in 1997.

"This number stays about the same every year," Van Slyke said. "There are things that never get reported to Public Safety, but based on the population, those are probably similar each year, While thefts occur everywhere on campus, they most frequently occur in the Main Library, Field House, IMU and residence halls, Van Slyke said.

Recovered property is taken to the Public Safety office, 323 S. Madison St.; it is seldom claimed, however, was found, Van Slyke said.

In order to better protect your property or minimize losses, it is important numbers of people attend parties. to take several precautions while in "You don't always know all of public.

Keeping valuable items out of sight, not leaving items alone in public areas, and locking doors are all good ways of protecting property.

Theft off-campus is a problem as well; it usually doesn't occur in a person's residence. Iowa City police say purses, cellular phones and other items are most commonly taken when people are out in such areas as bars.

"Sometimes people just forget they brought certain things with them, and because people never check to see if it they leave items places," Iowa City police Sgt. Mike Lord said.

Theft can also occur when large

"You don't always know all of the people who show up at a party," Lord said. "Things can disappear, and it is very difficult to find who took them."

Putting valuable items into an area where few people have access will greatly reduce the chance for theft to occur, Lord said.

"Preventing theft can be as easy as locking a door," he said. "In any case, if theft occurs, it is important to report it right away. That is the only way we can know if things were taken."

■ There are two main public transit systems in the city, both cheap and convenient.

By Zack Kucharski The Daily Iowan

Bad weather and sleeping in late doesn't have to mean skipping a class.

Iowa City has two separate public transit systems that provide convenient and easy travel for anyone who doesn't have time to walk, forgot his or her umbrella at home or just feels

The UI Cambus system, which is free and open to the public, operates six main routes around campus.

The Red and Blue routes circle the entire campus, running in opposite directions. The Red route runs clockwise and the Blue route runs counterclockwise.

The number of routes might seem complicated for the newcomer at first, said Cambus Manager Brian McClatchey, but if students just stick to the Red and Blue routes to start, they should catch on quick.

"If you are downtown, an easy way to remember it is by thinking red goes to Reinow on the West Side of the river and Blue goes toward Burge and out to Mayflower."

The Interdorm route, as one might guess from its name, runs between all the dorms and the Pentacrest. The Pentacrest route connects the Finkbine commuter lot and the Pentacrest, running past the north entrance of the UI

Hospitals and Clinics and the main

The Hawkeye route runs between Hawkeye Apartments and the storage lot to the main campus and the Pentacrest. The Mayflower Shuttle makes runs between Mayflower Residence Hall and the Pentacrest.

Bus routes are set up to accommodate large numbers of students, said McClatchey. When school is in session four buses run between the top of the hour and 20 minutes after.

"The best way to learn the routes is ride one complete run of the route; then you can really get feel for it," McClatchey said.

For schedule information, call the Cambus office at 335-8633 or look on the Web at www.uiowa.edu/~cambus.

Cambus also runs a para-transit Bionic Bus service. The service is available for all students whose mobility is impaired; rides must be pre-arranged. There are no set routes for the Bionic service, which specializes in taking riders directly to their destinations.

Iowa City Transit operates several bus routes, all of which stop downtown at the Old Capitol Mall. The fare for Iowa City buses is $.75.

A free downtown shuttle runs between the downtown and various neighborhoods Monday through Friday during the work day and early evening hours. For route and schedule information, call the Iowa City Transit office at 356-5151.

Iowa City's new motto: No parking

■ Short-term parking is among the worst problems for students.

By Zack Kucharski The Daily Iowan

The race to get a Clinton Street parking space outside Currier Residence Hall will come to an end next year, when Iowa City installs parking meters along north Clinton street, but for UI freshman Joe Stellinga, it was fun while it lasted.

"It seems like every place that you find a place to park has a meter next to it," Stellinga said. "I can usually find a space after a few trips around the block; otherwise, I just park on the side streets."

For those students who don't always have time to cruise the streets looking for spaces, the UI has a few options.

The Department of Parking and Transportation was able to accommodate all student requests for storage and commuter parking permits in 1998 and expects to again be able to meet the requests, said Linda Noble, manager of parking services.

"Every year is different, but based on the numbers, it shouldn't really be a problem," she said. "Expansion of the storage lot last year has taken some of the pressure away, and we have had some spaces open there all year."

Students living in residence halls can park at Hawkeye Storage for $162 for nine months. Accessible from the Hawkeye Route on Cambus, the lot is located at the intersection of Melrose Avenue and Mormon Trek Boulevard. The permit is valid for the fall and spring semesters.

Students who live outside of the Iowa City/Coralville area can buy commuter passes for $99. The commuter lots are located at Hancher Auditorium, Finkbine Golf Course and Hawkeye Storage.

All UI students must register their cars in order to avoid an additional $10 fine on their first ticket. There is no cost to register a vehicle.

Short-term parking around campus is more costly and more difficult to come by. Meters in Iowa City cost $.60 an hour; most meters have a two-hour limit. Parking in Iowa City ramps costs $.60 an hour. UI parking ramps cost $.60 an hour and have a 24-hour limit and $6 maximum charge.

Though keeping a car on Iowa City side streets carries added convenience, students must move their cars each day of the week on most city streets because of the alternate-day parking ordinance. Illegally parked vehicles are subject to tow or to hourly parking tickets.

Both the UI and Iowa City have their own parking tickets. The UI gives fines for parking in campus no-parking zones and handicapped spaces, or for not registering a vehicle.

UI fines range from $3 for parking in no-parking zones to $100 for parking in handicapped zones.

Iowa City fines are $3, $5 and $10, depending on the zone; the cost escalates if the tickets are unpaid after 30 days.

facility, the Field House is ideal for people looking to maintain and/or improve their physical fitness, said Harry Ostrander, director of recreational services.

Its facilities include racquetball, squash, volleyball and badminton courts, as well as a climbing wall, an Olympics-size swimming pool, weight areas, facilities for the disabled and an elevated jogging track

In addition, Ostrander said, the UI Fitness Loft, located in the Field House, is ideal for cardiovascular improvement and strength training. Another, more centrally located such facility is Halsey Hall's Fitness East, a relatively new facility that serves as the twin to the Fitness Loft, he said.

"It's a very popular area," Ostrander said. "We have as many as 8,500 participants a month in the Fitness East."

The Recreation Building is another facility that students can take advantage of, he said, adding that its uses are rather limited.

"It basically serves only three primary functions: tennis, jogging and weight lifting," Ostrander said. "But it does have some good free-weights for our users.'

One of the UI's highly anticipated additions is the future Hawkeye Sports Complex, which will be located at the corner of Melrose Avenue and Mormon Trek Boulevard. The complex will offer new and updated recreational facilities.

As part of the Robert Wood Johnson Foundation grant, the Field House is open for increased hours to combat binge drinking.

as well as being convenient for residents of the Hawkeye Apartments. But above all, said Dick Gibson, associate vice president for the Facility Services Group, the new facility will be large.

The Hawkeye Sports Complex will include soccer fields, a visitor center hall of fame, an aquatics facility with an indoor competition pool/diving pool, indoor/outdoor tennis courts and possibly a fitness area," he said.

Construction of the facility will occur over the next three years, Gibson said.

In the fall, there are plans to grade for one or two of the soccer fields. The following year, the UI plans to build the new visitor center hall of fame, and by 2001, construction of the buildings in the new complex is scheduled to begin.

In the meantime, Gibson said, the UI plans to replace the activity floors in both the Recreation Building and the Field House. They are expected to be ready by the fall.

Avoiding the 'Freshman 15'

■ The dorm Food Service offers many options to help UI students evade the dreaded poundage.

And as far as the alcohol part goes, staying away from excesses of anything is always the safe option.

"Avoid the 24-pack of beer. Beer has calories, and it will make you fat," said UI sophomore Emily Swales. "That's where the Freshman 15" comes from."

In an effort to put students in more control of their calorie and fat intake, Residence Services' Food Service now offers a Web page so students can see how healthy - or not - their favorite foods are, from muffins to chicken pot pie. The site can be found at http:www.uiowa.edu/~resserve/ FoodService.html.

Stoner recommends the following for those who want to avoid the dreaded Freshmen 15":

"Eat slowly and put the fork down between bites. Increase activity; walking to campus is a lot healthier than taking the Cambus. A half-hour of daily exercise is recommended. Finally, eat more crispy foods, such as lettuce and carrots, rather than smooth foods, such as sauces and dressings."

College students not promiscuous, survey says

Most college students do not live up to the stereotypes.

> By Erin Crawford The Daily Iowan

Students vary on whether they do their homework, drink or attend sports events, but according to surveys, there's one thing almost everyone is doing.

A national survey has found that, by age 20, almost 92 percent of Americans are sexually active. The number of teens under 18 "doing the nasty" ranges from 58-73 percent.

A 1997 survey of UI students showed that 71.5 percent of students had one or no sex partners in the previous year. This finding contradicts the stereotypical manner in which college-age characters are portrayed on sitcoms, where they often seem to be sleeping around, said Sarah Hansen of Student Health Service.

"I think, in general, students aren't as promiscuous as the media portray them to be," she said. "(Teens) know more about the risks out there then they did 10 or 20 years ago."

"Most of my sexually active friends have had one or two partners," UI junior Erin Martin said. "There's definitely a stigma attached to having multiple partners, and people realize they can't do that for health reasons.'

Residence hall programs and seminars given by Student Health have played a role in raising students' awareness of the risks of sexually transmitted diseases, Hansen said. Most students seem open to discussing sex and asking about things they are uncertain of.

"Students have a lot of info on (sex), but it's not always accurate," Hansen said. "Students need to become more confident talking about the topic.

Some of the inaccurate information may stem from misconceptions that students have about what sex actually is.

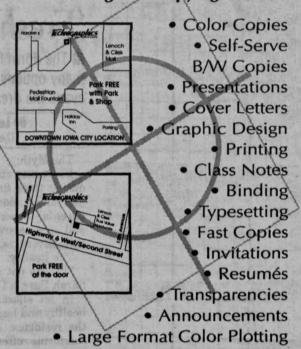

"Seventy-three percent of college students didn't think oral sex is sex (in a recent survey). I don't know what part of 'sex' they don't understand," said Roxie Tullis, a regional educator for Planned Parenthood. "They don't understand the risk factors."

I.C., UI work on strict alcohol policy

Students at the UI face an aggressive campaign against underage drinking.

Even before visiting the campus, freshman Eddie Lee knew that UI students drank.

"I thought it would be a little more 'downscaled' with the Greeks going dry; I had heard Iowa used to be just crazy," he said. "It's a lot more fun than I ever expected. I never thought this many people drank."

Both Lee's perception and statistics from surveys indicate that more than half of the students at the UI "binge drink."

A 1997 Harvard study indicated that 63 percent of UI students binge drink; a 1993 Harvard study had shown similar results. The UI is one of 10 universities working with the help of a grant from the Robert Wood Johnson Foundation to try to curb high-risk binge drinking.

Since the alcohol-related death of Matthew Garofalo in September 1995, gaining control of the underage drinking problem has become a focus for the lowa City police and the UI.

The UI formed the Stepping Up Committee, which provides such alternatives to drinking as dances, late nights at the Field House and special movies.

Iowa City officers patrol the bars nearly every night, watching for underage drinkers and intoxicated patrons who are causing problems.

The fine for possession of alcohol under the legal age is $145. Additional offenses escalate the fines.

Police officers are periodically paid overtime to check for underage drinking under a grant from the Governor's Traffic Safety Board.

"Underage drinking is one of the few offenses that we can take a proactive stance on and do something about it," Iowa City police Sgt. Mike Lord said. "Often times, alcohol leads to many other offenses, and we are reactive. Catching any alcohol offense is kind of like killing two birds with one stone, because it can eliminate a future problem."

Brian Ray/The Daily Iowan

Lee received a underage drinking ticket in March; he said it was more a nuisance than a deterrent against drinking.

"I really expected to get one," he said. "If you go out a lot, and with how strict the police are in enforcing the law, it's more than likely that I would get one. I didn't think I was in trouble or anything; it just was a fine I had to pay."

Several other charges often stem from the use of alcohol, Lord said.

False use of identification results in a $112.50 fine and confiscation of the fake identification. Any confiscated ID is sent back to the state it came from, which can result in suspension of the license in many states, including Illinois.

A person can be charged with public intoxication, a simple misdemeanor, when appearing in a public place in an intoxicated or a "simulated intoxicated" state. The charge results in a $90 fine and a night in jail in order to detox.

"People have to draw attention to themselves," Lord said. "People can be intoxicated, but as long as they don't do anything that makes them look like a danger to themselves or others, they won't be charged."

Disorderly conduct and assault charges are filed when violent behavior occurs. Disorderly conduct is a simple misdemeanor, while assault is an aggravated misdemeanor. Both can result in jail time and a fine of at least $90.

This ol' nightlife, this sporting life

lowa City has the gamut of entertainment, from keggers to drag shows.

By Leah Reinstein The Daily Iowan

There's more to life in Iowa City than classes, football games, keg parties and "occasional" forays to the Union Bar. In fact, there's a whole array of activities both on- and off-campus that should appeal to any student.

For the health conscious, the UI Field House has a variety of programs and services aimed at keeping students active and in shape.

"It's a good way to stay active and fairly inexpensive," said Heather Bell, a UI graduate student assistant in Recreational Services. "We offer classes and lessons in everything from dance to tae kwon do."

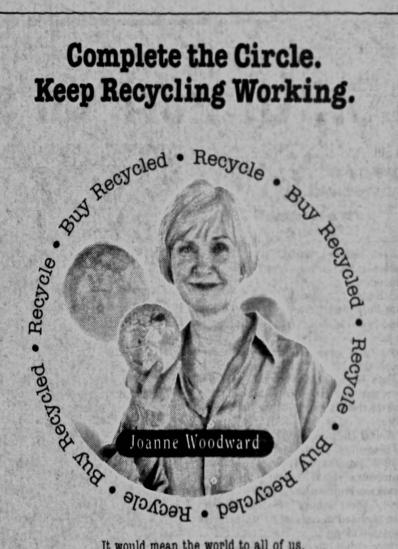

For those who are looking more for entertainment than exercise, the IMU may be more suitable. The IMU is the site of a variety of student organizations and entertainment options.

The IMU Ballroom has showcased such bands as Liz Phair and Ani DiFranco, and the Bijou Theatre shows many independent and foreign films.

Not that downtown doesn't have its share of nightlife activities. Those who want to venture there can enjoy musical groups at both Gabe's and the Q Bar, as well as special events such as drag shows and Mardi Gras at the Deadwood Tavern. And the Sanctuary Restaurant & Pub, the Mill Restaurant and the Green Room offer music ranging from jazz to blues to folk.

The Daily Iowan

Though they might not be quite the same as Mom's home cooking, there are a multitude of possibilities for incoming freshmen when their stomachs start to growl in Iowa City.

Because the majority of freshmen live in the residence halls, most will get their grub at one of the two residence hall dining centers.

Burge, Currier, Stanley and Daum.
Beginning in the fall, Quadrangle will be home to the only food service station on the West Side, catering to residents of Quad, Rienow, Slater and Hillcrest. The Hillcrest Dining Center, which has been the main West Side cafeteria for years, will undergo renovation; the work started in May and is scheduled to be completed in the fall 2000.

The real question on the minds of incoming freshman is: "But how good is the food?" Well, everyone has individual tastes, but most students are surprised at the wide variety that the dorm food service offers, including

■ The city and the UI offer a wide cereal and salad bars, waffle stations, soups and main courses.

> "The food itself is not that bad, and even if it is just cereal, there is always something to eat," said UI freshman Marianne Kronenburger. "Of course there are bad days and good days, but I was expecting a lot worse.'

If you are not in the mood for dorm food, there are countless other options to partake of. The IMU boasts the Union Market, a convenience store; the Union Pantry, a small coffee and pastry shop; and the Union Station, which serves subs, burgers, fruit, desserts and Pizza Hut Pizza. All purchases may be charged to your U-bill; the stores are located in the lower level of the IMU.

Also popular are the many restaurants located in downtown Iowa City, only minutes away from most students'

"Ohhhh, Easy Place (119 Iowa Ave.) has the best Chinese food," said UI sophomore Matthew Sondag. "And it is so cheap. So is Taco Bell (Old Capitol Mall)."

Keeping in theme with inexpensive offerings, the Airliner, 22 S Clinton St., offers $1 pizza slices every Sunday. A long-time establishment in Iowa City, the 'Liner remains a popular place to eat.

"It's good. It's cheap," said UI sophomore Doug Eglseder. "That's all there

The Daily Iowan

The Hamburg Inn, 214 N. Linn St., has been a fixture in Iowa City since 1948. "The food is beyond compare," said UI student Kristy Hartsgrove. "It is the most excellent '50's era diner food you could possibly get."

Another local favorite is Panchero's Mexican Grill, 32 S. Clinton St., a restaurant that hand-bakes your tortillas as you wait. Big Mike's Super Subs, 20 S. Clinton St., offers delivery of all of its menu items and is also a popular student hangout.

Perhaps the most infamous option for fast, cheap food is a hallowed college tradition: ordering pizza and having it delivered. Some restaurants offer delivery until 3 a.m. for those who decide to stay up that extra few hours to study or hang out with friends.

Popular local pizza-delivery estabinclude lishments Gumby's. Pappajohn's, Pizza Pit, Pizza Hut, Domino's and Paul Revere's.

Whenever we get back from going out, we always order from Gumby's." UI freshman Becky Ulstad said. "We love Pokey Sticks so much. They rock."

Dear Mom & Dad: College is great; send $ quick et us say that you are an incoming UI freshman, or "first year" student, as we like to call them here. By now you have graduated from high school and have chosen UI as the school where you will spend the next several years of your educational career. With this change of events, of course, comes more advice about the future than one can possibly handle.

You know that you are essentially on your own and that you face endless opportunities, etc., as you embark on your college career. Any further words of wisdom espoused by myself will guarantee little more than a spot in the recycling bin for this column, so I will spare the reader of any hokey advice regarding what to expect from college.

However, based upon what I have seen and experienced during my few years of collegiate living, I can take an educated guess as to how the next year might unfold for you, the incoming freshman. If you happen to be like most other students, but with an exotic penchant for letter writing, here is how a letter to your parents might appear about five months from now:

Dear Mom and Dad,

Just checking to see if you guys might be able to spot me some cash. The wallet is looking a little thin at the moment, as most of my earnings have been squandered on fast food, Dave Matthews albums and these laundry machines in the dorms that will operate on no less than $10 worth in quarters. In addition, I can hardly make the down payment on a cup of cappuccino at the coffee shop where I

In spite of my financial woes, however, things have been OK. The dorm cafeteria has kept me healthy with a steady supply of Tater Tots, pizza and a variety of fine casseroles. My nutrition has never been better, although all the scales around here seem to add about five or 10 pounds. Pretty strange—must be an Iowa City thing.

Meanwhile, I must admit that I wouldn't mind having my old room back. Back at home, I did not share close quarters with roommates who were at my throat because I did not share their opinion that dirty laundry made a fine substitute for actual carpeting. All complaints aside, however, sharing a dorm room does have its benefits, some of which include the TV and Sony Playstation that my roommate has brought along.

Classes have kept me busy, as I have found that the half hour I normally reserved to study for my tests in high school didn't quite cut it here at Iowa. To make matters worse, the teachers here have this strange expectation that we keep up with the assigned readings for their classes. That usually means sacrificing some valuable TV time. I haven't seen "Friends" in three weeks, but I got a B on my last test.

Another strange thing about college is that everybody else here seems to have picked up an intense smoking habit. I must have missed the segment of Orientation in which they passed out the cigarettes, but I did manage to tour the library, which is a vintage 1960s model, complete with classic orange furniture. The school colors, however, are black and gold, and it is hard not to spot people wearing Hawkeye apparel of some sport. Like cigarettes, this must have been handed out at Orientation.

Iowa City, meanwhile, has proven to be nice, although quite unlike most other Iowa towns. But what it lacks in grain silos and cattle it makes up for in bars and students who seem to have gotten lost on their way to the "J.Crew" catalogue shoot. They've got this great place here called "The Fieldhouse," where my friends and I go almost every weekend. The nightlife generally revolves around this and other local bars, as even the fraternities don't have parties of their own.

The downtown scene centers on a "Ped Mall," which contains the aforementioned bars and restaurants along with some stores and is populated mainly by bar-hopping students and skateboard enthusiasts. Right near Iowa City is this place called Coralville, which, as far as I can tell, is the area's hotel and restaurant district. It's like Vegas, only a little less conservative.

Anyhow, my textbooks beckon me. Finals start soon, and it's about time to read those books that I was supposed to read in October. Wish me luck — I just might need it. I look forward to seeing you both soon. Take care.

P.S. Remember about the money!

A report shows that only 38 percent of UI students say they always use a contraceptive.

By Erin Crawford
The Daily Iowan

Most people agree that sex is fun, but the discussion is more divided when it comes to contraception.

Only 38 percent of UI students always use a contraceptive, a 1997 survey done by the UI Student Health Service reported; however, some non-sexually active students may have responded, making the percentage lower than is actually true.

For students who have friends that choose not to use prophylactics regularly, the statistics hold true.

"For a one-night stand, it's more laziness (not to use a condom)," UI junior Emily Martin said.

Inconsistent use of birth control contributes to the birth rate for 18-19 year olds — many of whom are college freshmen — being the highest of any age group.

"We assume (freshmen) are on a college campus, so they understand birth control, and many, many have only a scattered understanding," said Roxie Tullis, a regional educator for Planned Parenthood.

Health-care providers say this is especially a concern because students don't understand that condoms are the only method that prevent both pregnancy and sexually transmitted diseases.

"Students worry about pregnancy but don't always think about STDs, which they can get if not using a barrier method," said Sarah Hansen, a health educator for Health Iowa.

Students and birth-control suppliers agree that condoms are the most-common form of birth control used by college students.

"Condoms are the most readily available," UI freshman Kurt Mulderink said. "It sort of desensitizes for the guy, but other that that, there isn't much wrong with them."

Student Health has free condoms available, and the Emma Goldman Clinic for Women, 227 N. Dubuque St., often provides samples at the information fairs it attends.

"I bring 150 condoms to tabling events, and they're gone instantly," said Sarah Goff, an Emma Goldman community programs assistant. "We're bombarded with sexual images, and as a result, I think, there's more responsibility."

Even students who aren't currently active are aware of where to go if they need to find out more about sex.

"I'm a practicing virgin, so I don't know much about birth control, but I think (the information) is there," said UI junior Sean Lento.

In years past, UI students who needed medical attention were greeted by the musty smell of the 50-year-old Steindler Building. But things have changed for the UI Student Health Service.

The UI's student medical

The UI's student medical facility moved into the newly renovated Westlawn Building in the fall of 1998, and the change has made a huge difference, said Larry Afifi, Student Health nurse manager.

"Westlawn is still an old building, but it's been totally renovated," she said. "So when people come in here, it even smells new."

The $3.7 million Westlawn renovation was paid for in part by student fees. As a part of the renovation, Student Health is working with the UI Hospitals and Clinics toward becoming a nationally accredited clinic.

"Because we're attached to a teaching hospital, we work very hard to be on the cutting edge," she said. "The UIHC has helped us through all the accreditation processes, and this year we are up for accreditation."

Student Health provides medical attention to all UI students, almost free of charge. Each student pays a fee of $48 per semester that entitles students to basic medical service, excluding prescriptions. The office also offers vaccinations at a reduced price.

If a student has a medical problem, he or she can call to make an appointment. Student Health is open 8 a.m.-6 p.m. Monday through Thursday, 8 a.m.-4:30 p.m. Friday, and 9 a.m.-noon on Saturdays. Walk-ins are accepted.

The office has a staff of 61, including student volunteers; the service tries very hard to ensure that each patient sees a licensed physician, Afifi said.

times it's not possible to see a doctor," she said. "But if you have a serious medical problem, you will definitely see a licensed physician or physician's assistant."

Student Health also offers vaccinations for a much cheaper price than that of a regular hospital, Afifi said. For example, Hepatitis B vaccinations cost $30 per shot, compared with $75-$100 in a hospital.

UI freshman Whitney Becker said she has taken advantage of Student Health several times during her first year at school.

"When you walk into the UIHC, it's really overwhelming," she said. "Student Health is easy, because you can just take a bus over and walk right in."

The Daily Iowan

As an adage goes, "Absence makes the heart grow fonder." The real test of that can come when college students leave their boyfriends or girlfriends miles away and move to Iowa City.

Some students find it no problem to stay close even without seeing the other for weeks, such as UI freshman Nick Huber. He has maintained a long-distance relationship for as long as he has been at college. His girlfriend lives two hours away, in Des Moines.

"We call each other on average about three times a week, and we see each other about every two weeks," he said. "It is probably harder on her because I don't have a car here, so she has to drive up and visit me.'

Although keeping in contact by e-mail fast and easy, phone bills to your sweetheart can add up quickly.

"I think long-distance relationships really suck," said UI fresh-man Maren Anderson, who had a boyfriend at a different college during her first semester at cious beer money on phone bills.

For other students, even the best-made intentions don't work out, and longdistance love seems not meant to be.

UI freshman Michelle Ries was also in a long-distance relationship last year.

"Basically, we just e-mailed each other a lot and called on the phone, which got really expensive," she said.

Another important aspect for lasting love is trust, Ries said.

"Trust is a big thing," she said. "If a couple doesn't trust each other, there is no chance it is going to Love is another mandatory ingredient on which to base a lasting long-distance relationship.

"Make sure your girlfriend loves you. and make sure you love your girlfriend,' Huber said. "It can work out. If you really want it to, long distance can work."

Huber thinks that love is what helped he and his girlfriend make the choice to stay together even after he left for Iowa

"We broke up for, like, a day when I was leaving for college," he said. "But then I thought, I'm still going to go out with her; she's awesome.

Ries offers this advice for any incoming freshman who intends to try to make the relationship work across the miles.

"I think it is really good for people in a long-distance relationship to make sure they get involved, make friends and get out," she said. "People have to realize they need a support network where they are living. You never know when your relationship may be over."

In the near future, the university's plans include new buildings, new pedestrian bridges and some refurbishing.

> By Jill Barnard The Daily Iowan

Refurbishing the entrance to Hancher Auditorium is just one of several changes in store on the UI campus in the near future. The university has planned everything from minor remodeling to major additions and improvements.

Two of the most visible additions will be the new Biology and Engineering

The UI will open the new Biology Building in January or February 2000, said Dick Gibson, associate vice president for the Facilities Services Group.

A new skywalk over Dubuque Street between the new Biology Building and the old Biology Building could be finished as early as this fall, Gibson said. The design of the bridge has been criticized by some for its alleged lack of aesthetic taste.

We changed the architect's controversial colors and the sizes of some of the windows." Gibson said. "It's going to be blue-green copper color painted on the steel.'

The UI's other main addition will be the new Engineering Building. Named for multimillion-dollar contributor Gary F. Seamans, the building will officially be known as the Seamans Center for Engineering Arts and Sciences. The UI expects it to be completed around the year 2001, Gibson said.

The UI is also planning some minor improvements to the campus. Although there is a need to replace many of the furnishings in the Main Library, Gibson said, as of now, the UI only plans to replace the chairs in the lobbies.

"We are focusing on the public areas of the Main Library," he said. "In that building, it's a matter of furnishings more than remodeling."

Other improvements include reconstructing the lobbies in Mayflower Residence Hall this fall and revamping Hillcrest Residence Hall's dining hall; it will be reincarnated as a food court in the fall 2000.

The UI also plans to make a number of campus repairs, said Larry Wilson, head of Campus Planning in the Facilities Services Group. The plans include improving the entrance to Spence Laboratories, as well as replanting the Pentacrest, which was heavily damaged in the June 29, 1998, windstorm.

Other improvements, scheduled to take place on the West Side of campus, include constructing a new parking ramp and a medical education and research facility.

Another major project will be the completing a new design for a proposed bicycle/pedestrian bridge over Highway 6 between the new parking ramp and the International Center. The bridge will also join the new Iowa River Trail, which the UI has planned in partnership with Iowa City, Wilson said.

What evil lurks in the heart of a Midwestern town

Do urban legends reveal lowa City's scandalous past? Does lowa City have a scandalous past? Or even a past?

> By Crissy McMartin The Daily Iowan

On the surface, it seems like such a normal town. Iowa City's urban legends, however, tell a different story.

Assuming that these mysterious tales might be at least partially based on truth and happened to the famous "friend of a friend," the following is a compilation of Iowa City's "alternate"

Getting bugged by tacos

ain.nst

After eating at a local fast-food restaurant one night, a woman woke up the next morning with a strange sensation in her mouth. She went to the mirror and discovered a cluster of white bumps on her lip. Concerned, she consulted a doctor, who delivered the horrifying news: While enjoying her taco the prior evening, the girl had unknowingly eaten a cockroach nestled inside. The cockroach had taken residence in her mouth and the white bumps on her lip were, in fact, embedded cockroach eggs.

Hazing Horrors

The stereotypical image of sorority life as catty and image-orientated women is the source of many urban legends. At one sorority house, the plumbing supposedly had to be removed because so many of its members had resorted to bulimia, and corrosive stomach acid in the vomit had eaten through all the pipes. A hazing ritual at another sorority is rumored to have involved pledges stripping down to their underwear, after which members were invited to circle with a marker the "problem areas" on the women's bodies.

The Black Angel

Perhaps Iowa City's most famous urban legend, the strange tale of the Black Angel can vary greatly depending on the source. Located in Oakland Cemetery, 1000 Brown St., the Black Angel has spurred many theories about how its received its melancholy hue.

Some say the statue was originally white and darkened after it was struck by lightning. Others claim the statue turned black when it was erected over the grave of a boy who had been murdered by his preacher father. It is also said that the statue can only return to its original shade if a virgin is kissed in front of it.

Speculation also surrounds the Black Angel's effect on those brave enough to approach her. If one looks into her eyes or touches her, legend says, that person will die within man to the second of the second the second description of the second of the next seven years. In reality, the statue was ordered in 1912 by Teresa Dolezal Feldervert to mark the graves of herself, her husband and their son. When the statue arrived,

The Haunting of Currier

In addition to its current residents, Currier Residence Hall is also said to house the ghosts of three female roommates who killed themselves in a mutual suicide after discovering that they had the same boyfriend. Their former room, now known as the "red room," was later said to be the site of an ax murder committed by a jealous lover. Perhaps because of its history, the room is now used for storage. Of reporter Crissy McMartin can be reached at:

Shop till you drop is local motto

A plethora of shopping options exists for UI students.

> By Crissy McMartin The Daily Iowan

Whether it's acquiring the essentials, buying gifts or a between-classes activity, shopping is a big part of UI student life.

Because of its proximity to campus, downtown garners the majority of the shopping done by UI students.

Beth Gauger, co-owner of the Fun Zone, 105 S. Dubuque St., said downtown is a one-of-a-kind center of commerce.

"The unique shopping you'll find in Iowa City is in the downtown," she said. "Most of the stores you'll find are small, privately owned businesses that strive to provide something different, not mainstream."

Also located near the heart of the campus is the Old Capital Mall, 201 S. Clinton St. Purchased in April by the Pittsburgh-based Madison Realty Group, Inc., the mall offers 52 stores and five restaurants.

Of course, there are shopping options outside campus, too. Since the opening of Coral Ridge Mall in July 1998, students and even local residents can find such stores as Old Navy and Gap, something that once entailed an excursion to Cedar Rapids or Des Moines.

Located near Interstate 80 in Coralville, Coral Ridge is one of Iowa's largest shopping centers. In addition to 125 stores, it features 13 restaurants, a 10-screen cineplex and an ice-skating rink.

Chris McDonald, the marketing director for Coral Ridge, said UI stuThe unique shopping you'll find in lowa City is in the downtown.

dents can fulfill all of their shopping needs with just one stop at the mall.

"Target and Best Buy supply all the apartment or dorm-room necessities, McDonald said. "Barnes & Noble attracts many students looking for research materials or just a quiet place to read."

And those without cars need not despair. Coral Ridge is served by Coralville Transit buses, which depart from downtown at various times throughout the day, Mondays through

Also accessible by either bus or car is Iowa City's South Side, home to Sycamore Mall, at the intersection of Highway 6 and First Avenue; Pepperwood Place, Highway 6 East; and Gateway One Plaza, 1101 S. Riverside Drive.

Getting by by being sly with your money

■ Life in Iowa City can be done without reducing your bank account to rubble.

> By Jill Barnard The Daily Iowan

Tuition, books, food and entertainment college expenses can be overwhelming. But by playing one's cards right, living in Iowa City is possible to do for little money.

Living away from campus is the best way to avoid the notoriously high rents of downtown Iowa City, said UI senior Natalie Jansen. But, she said, students can lose the college atmosphere if they venture too far from the center

"If you're going to live off-campus, live far enough away that you can get cheap rent but not so far that you miss a lot," Jansen said.

Entertainment can also be a major drain on a student's finances, she said, although the competition in town forces businesses to frequently advertise sales.

"Take advantage of drink specials," Jansen said.

But there is an even cheaper way to get by, said UI junior Ryan Gray.

"If you're going to drink, don't do it at the bars," he said. "Drink at your own place and then go out."

Of course, there's more to college than entertainment - there's school. Students can save a lot of money if they cut out the middle man when buying textbooks, Gray said.

"With regards to books, try to buy them from other people instead of at the bookstore," he said.

Another pricey part of Iowa City is parking. Few people have managed to escape town without at least one parking violation, Gray said.

"Parking fines will break you pretty quick," he said.

On the other hand, said UI senior Jill Prater, Iowa City's public transportation is convenient and reliable, and Take advantage of the Cambus and the downtown shuttle instead of trying to use your car," she said.

And if you are a savvy person who plans ahead, UI senior Leslie Bullock said, Iowa City public facilities make staying within a budget easy.

"If I need a movie, then I know it's going to be at the library rather than spending the money at the video store," she said.

And though a student's hectic schedule can make meals difficult, Bullock said, there are ways to eat on the run.

"I always buy things that you can use over and over," she said. "I take advantage of my Tupperware."

The key to living cheaply in Iowa City, Bullock said, is for students to limit the number of times they go out to eat each week. Instead, she said, students should learn to buy foods in bulk at the grocery store.

Getting a rush out of college life

Rush is an enduring tradition at UI sororities and fraternities.

By Erika Slife The Daily Iowan

The last thing UI students want to do is "rush" through college, yet that is exactly what members of the Greek community want them to do.

Rush is a week-long process in which incoming and current students can learn about the Greek system during the week before classes begin.

"Rush is important because it's a good opportunity and experience," said Colleen Sullivan, the Panhellenic Association recruitment officer and a member of Delta Gamma. "It sets (students) up to meet a lot of different people inside one of the largest student organizations on campus."

Rush usually entails groups of students interacting with Greek members and touring individual houses. The process determines which house the student will join.

Rush is one of the most essential activities for sororities, said Katie McKinnon, the vice president of community relations for the Panhellenic Association and a member of Kappa Alpha Theta.

"It is one of the most important activities we do to keep getting members," she said. "People really come together that week."

Fraternities and sororities have different rules and regulations concerning rush, said Justin Heiden, the InterFraternity Council recruitment officer and a member of Phi Kappa Psi.

"Rush is four days long for men and five for women," he said. "But they all view the chapters and tour all the houses and see what they have to offer.

"Fraternities are organizations that allow young men to expand their leadership and academic skills," Heiden said. "But we also participate in social events and in community-service activities."

It's all Greek to them

■ The sororities and fraternities at the UI make up the university's largest student organization.

By Erika Slife The Daily Iowan

Students interested in having a wellrounded college career might be interested in the Greek system, the largest UI student organization.

The Greek system comprises 21 recognized fraternities and 13 recognized sororities, which provide their members with leadership, academic and social opportunities, say representatives of the InterFraternity Council and the Panhellenic Association, the governing bodies for the fraternities and sororities.

"If it weren't for my sorority, I would have never been involved with all the activities I'm in," said Katie McKinnon, a member of Kappa Alpha Theta and the Panhellenic vice president for community relations.

All the sororities were founded on philanthropies — programs that raise money for charities, McKinnon said, adding that the Greek system is also a good way to meet people on campus.

"The No. 1 thing about the Greek system is networking and opportunities," she said. "You're looking for your niche, and it's a great way to recognize people. It will make the campus seem more like home."

Holly Noteboom, a member of Alpha Chi Omega, said that through joining the sorority, she has made life-long friends.

"People say the Greek system is about buying your friends, but it's not," she said. "You join a house with people who have similar values and ideas but are still diverse."

Another benefit of joining a Greek house is living in the house itself, said Brian Kurz, a member of Delta Upsilon.

"The best thing about the house is the rooms are bigger than dorm rooms," he said.

Kurz also said the house rules are more lenient about damage and returning deposits than are the residence halls and Iowa City landlords.

All is not bright smiles and Sunnybrook Farms in the Greek system, however. In April, the Delta Tau Delta fraternity had its charter revoked by its international office for alleged "flagrant" alcohol and drug violations by fraternity members. Many officials in the Greek system hastened to note that the Delts house was an isolated incident, not indicative of the system.

But Greek members say their system helps members to enhance their education while still having a good time.

"To me, it's an opportunity to walk into an organization that has 2,000 to 3,000 members," said John Craiger, a member of Phi Gamma Delta. "Automatically, you have all these friends who will be in all your classes, and you can use them to study with and go out with."

Older members will also look out for their younger counterparts during the latters' first year at school, he said.

"They can help you cut out all those mistakes you usually make freshman year," Craiger said.

Black Greek system a community

■ Scholarship and community service highlight the life in the UI black fraternities and sororities.

By Erika Slife The Daily Iowan

In a school as large as the UI, students tend to get lost among the sea of faces, but the UI black Greek system has managed to rise above the crowd.

"When I was a freshman, I didn't know a lot of people," said Malika Willis, a member of Delta Sigma Theta. "Through the sorority, we get to come together."

The black Greek system has seven fraternity and sorority chapters on campus, said Renaldo Johnson, president of Omega Phi Psi.

"The fraternities teach a lot about manhood, scholarship and how to persevere through situations," he said. "It's really enhanced my leadership skills."

Members say they have had opportunities through their houses to volunteer for many community service projects.

"The No. 1 reason I joined was to do community service with people I had a bond with and who had the same values," said Lauren Threatte, the financial adviser for Sigma Gamma Rho. "Our motto is 'greater service, greater progress.' I really like what that stands for."

Each chapter participates in various kinds of community service, ranging from the Ronald McDonald House to the Big Brother/Big Sister program. Members say they get fulfillment participating in the projects.

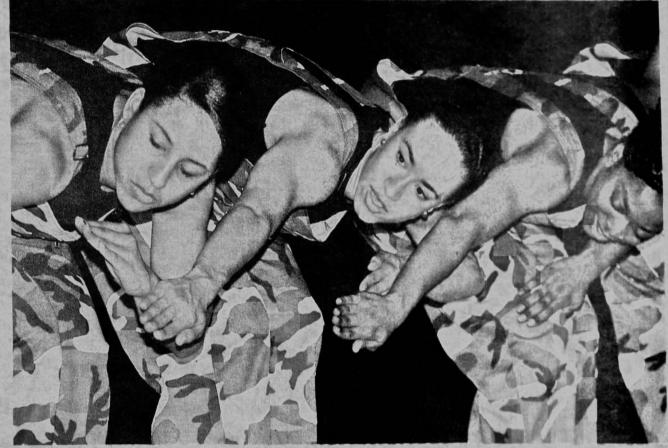

"We're all dedicated to doing community service," Johnson said. "It helps us uplift the community."

The black Greek system also offers its members alternative activities to drinking.

"Not everybody likes going to the bars," Willis said. "We do a lot of community service, slumber parties, bowling and miniature golf. We do a lot of bonding."

Charity Vesey said members of her sorority, Zeta Phi Beta, enjoy going out to restaurants and trying new things.

"We like to go out to new restaurants and sit around and talk," she said.

- Renaldo Johnson, president, Omega Phi Psi

"They're family away from home, and we're all very comfortable with each other."

Most importantly, Threatte said, joining the black Greek system is great way to make friends and have fun.

"Being Greek in general is cool," she said. "Outside of taking care of business, it's a lot of fun. It's something we can all share together."

■ There are many diverse religious groups in town, ranging across the spectrum of beliefs.

By Carrie Johnston The Daily Iowan

Iowa City offers many different opportunities to continue practicing one's faith after moving to college. The diverse selection includes Christian churches, a Jewish student center and an Islamic group.

The Newman Catholic Student Center, 104 E. Jefferson St., offers four services every weekend; approximately 1,500 students attend the weekly and daily services.

"I keep going back to the Newman Center because of the wide variety of people I meet there — you never know who you are going to meet," said UI sophomore Tony Leo. "It is a great atmosphere. Whenever you have a bad day, you can go there, see someone you know, and feel like you belong."

Leo said he also enjoys the many retreats that the Newman Center offers, including Antioch and Journey.

Among Iowa's three state universities, the UI has the highest percentage of minority students - 9.6 percent.

And that figure does not include the high number of international students. With such diversity on campus, numerous cultural organizations sponsor events throughout the academic year.

The major cultural events on campus include Diwali, the Festival of Lights sponsored by the Indian Association in November; the Kwanzaa celebration, held near the end of the fall semester and sponsored by the Black Student Union; Martin Luther King Jr. Human Rights Week, held during the first week of the spring semester; Cultural Diversity Day, celebrated in February; the celebration of International Women's History month in March; and the annual UI Powwow, which is held in April.

"All of these events are open to everybody," said Carlos Serrato, assistant director of the Office of Student Life. Attending the various cultural events is a great way for students of all backgrounds to "enhance themselves and expand their experiences,"

One of the best ways to get involved with cultural activities is to join one of the numerous organizations on campus. Some highly active groups are the Black Student Union, the American Indian Student Association and the Asian American Student Association.

There are more than 60 different cultural organizations at the UI. In addition to groups for minority students, many international students have established groups to promote their country's culture and history. Students can contact the Office of Student Life, located in the Union, for

The Latino Native American Cultural Center and the African-American Cultural Center were established to be places in which people could learn about minority issues and culture, as well as meet people from different backgrounds.

The cultural centers house different organizations, said Krista Garcia, a UI student volunteer at the Latino Native American Cultural Center. "The cultural center is a place for people to come meet," she said. "It's always open to students if you want to just come to study or to socialize."

Activities at the centers include dance parties, banquets, guest speakers and art displays. Incoming students can look forward to the annual welcoming picnics that the cultural centers hold, Garcia said.

For those students who plan to major in a foreign language or who are interested in living with people who speak a foreign language, the UI residence halls have five Foreign Language Houses — French, German, Japanese, Russian and Spanish.

Opportunity at Iowa seeks out diversity

UI program uses various outreach programs in order to increase minority enrollment at the university.

By Leah Reinstein

The Daily Iowan

In an effort to create and maintain diversity at the UI, Opportunity at Iowa has been working, since 1989, to raise minority enrollment.

The numbers prove its success.

"Having minority students as part of the UI community is very important," said Joe Coulter, interim director of Opportunity at Iowa. "Opportunity at Iowa's outreach program is an example of that commitment."

In 1991, total minority enrollment at the UI was 2,134; since then, the numbers have steadily risen. Minority enrollment was 2,413 in 1994; 1998 fall enrollment was 2,663.

various outreach programs to attract minority students and keep the enrollment numbers rising, Coulter said.

"Many recruiters go to urban areas outside of Iowa in search of minority students instead of staying in the state," he said. "Therefore, because they aren't acclimated to Iowa, many out-of-sate students experience culture shock. To avoid this scenario, we target many minority students who already live in Iowa."

Opportunity at Iowa is also dedicated to getting information to students already living on campus. Its bi-month-

What is it about University of Iowa Health Care that makes medical advances like this possible?

Researchers at the University of Iowa College of Medicine work in concert with the advanced technology and physician expertise of the University of Iowa Hospitals and Clinics.

Add to that a genuine caring for our work and the people we serve.

And something else. A belief that if we stick with something long enough, we will find a solution that helps our patients today. And everyone tomorrow.

Student Disabilities Services levels the playing field

UI students shed their "disability" identifications.

> By Quinn O'Keefe The Daily Iowan

Having a disability does not mean that a person is unable to be a regular college student, says UI sophomore Jim Pomillo.

Pomillo, a UI sophomore, has a learning disability called Attention Deficit Disorder. During high school, he said, he was labeled as the student with "the disabilities," but at the UI, he shed this identity and was able to move past what had previously held him back as a student.

"In high school, it was like everyone was searching for an identity, but I was already given one with my disabilities," Pomillo said. "Here, everyone is different anyway, and no one cares that I have to learn differently."

Before selecting a college, Pomillo researched which universities provided the best student-disabilities services, he said; he chose to attend the UI because it seemed to offer the best services out of all the schools he looked at.

We cannot and will not change the curriculum, but we will level the playing field.

— Susan Dirks, Student Disabilities Services

"I need more time to take tests; being a part of the Student Disabilities Services, I take tests with it, and it gives me the time I need," he said. "Instead of worrying about the time, like I did in high school, all I have to really worry about is the test — which is usually enough."

Student Disabilities Services, located in Burge Residence Hall, says the UI is 100 percent up to code with the National Disabilities Act. The university provides accessible facilities to all students, said Susan Dirks of Student Disabilities Services.

Disabilities are often misunderstood, Dirks said; when people think of them, someone in a wheelchair usually comes to mind. However, out of the 750 UI students who use the Student Disabilities Services facilities, the majority are those with nonvisible disabilities, such as ADD or psychological disorders.

"We try to help out these students as much as we can. We cannot and will not change the curriculum, but we will level the playing field," Dirks said.

The disabilities services "levels the playing field" by reviewing a student's medical documentation and by accommodating the student's individual needs

Some of the different services the program provides include modifying the physical environment, offering alternative exam rooms for a more private environment, and allowing the student more test time, tutorial services and counseling.

Pomillo said he was impressed with the tutoring services that the disabilities services referred him to — so, he plans to become an disabilities services tutor in the fall.

"Just because you have a disability does not mean that you are the only one with a disability — and you shouldn't have to feel that way — there are people there to help," Dirks said.

SEXUAL HARASSMENT, DISABILITY DISCRIMINATION, AND HUMAN RIGHTS AT THE UNIVERSITY OF IOWA

As an institution that places a high value on the diversity of its students, staff, and faculty, the University of Iowa welcomes persons of all backgrounds into its community. The University believes that a rich diversity of people and the many points of view they bring serve to enhance the quality of the educational and working experience at the University.

Consistent with this perspective, the University has taken a strong stand against discrimination. The University's Policy on Human Rights prohibits discrimination on the basis of race, creed, color, national origin, age, sex, disability, sexual orientation, gender identity, or any other classification that deprives the person of consideration as an individual, including associational preference. Sexual harassment, which constitutes a form of sex discrimination, is further prohibited by the University's Policy on Sexual Harassment and Consensual Relationships. Discrimination on the basis of disability is also prohibited at the University by the Americans with Disabilities Act of 1990 and the Rehabilitation Act of 1973, both federal statutes.

Sexual Harassment

The University of Iowa is committed to maintaining an environment free of sexual harassment for all members of the University community. Anyone can be targeted for sexual harassment, regardless of gender, age, race, or physical characteristics. It can occur between peers or between someone with academic or employment power over someone else. Both men and women may experience sexual harassment, and sexual harassment can occur between persons of the same gender.

Sexual harassment is defined as unwelcome advances, requests for sexual favors, or other verbal or physical conduct of a sexual nature when:

- Submission is made an express or implied term or condition of employment or status in a class, program, or activity;
- Submission to or rejection of the behavior is used to make an employment or educational decision (such as hiring, promotion, or grading a course); or
- The conduct has the purpose or effect of unreasonably interfering with a person's work or educational performance or creates an intimidating, hostile, or offensive environment for work or learning.

About Consensual Relationships

The University prohibits amorous relationships, consensual or otherwise, between faculty (which includes all instructional personnel at the University, including graduate students and instructional staff) and students enrolled in their classes or subject to their supervision. Such relationships present a conflict of interest that significantly impacts on the learning environment.

The Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA)

The ADA prohibits discrimination against persons with disabilities in employment, education, public accommodations, transportation, state and local government services, and telecommunications. The ADA also requires that reasonable accommodations be made to persons with disabilities in employment and academic programs, unless such accommodations impose an undue hardship or direct and significant threat to health or safety. Such accommodations are modifications that are made to the work or academic environment that help create equal employment or educational opportunities.

The ADA defines an individual with a disability as a person who:

- Has a physical or mental impairment that substantially limits one or more of that person's major life activities (including caring for oneself, performing manual tasks, walking, seeing, hearing, speaking, breathing, learning, and working);
- · Has a record of such an impairment; or
- · Is regarded as having such an impairment.

Dealing with issues of sexual harassment and discrimination

Questions or complaints involving sexual harassment, consensual relationships, or any form of discrimination, including discrimination on the basis of disability or denial of reasonable accommodations, may be directed to the University's Office of Affirmative Action, 202 Jessup Hall, 335-0705 (voice) or 335-0697 (text). For support services and academic accommodations for students with disabilities, contact the Office of Student Disability Services at 335-1462 (voice and text); faculty, staff, applicants, and departments needing assistance with employment accommodations may contact the Office of Faculty and Staff Disability Services at

Most students think UI President Mary Sue Coleman has the ultimate say on what goes on at this university.

But Coleman does have a boss - the Iowa state Board of Regents.

The board is the governing body of the state's three public higher education institutions: the UI, Iowa State University and the University of Northern Iowa. The regents also control the state-funded Iowa Braille and Sightsaving School and the Iowa School for the Deaf.

The regents are appointed by the overnor; they serve a six-year term. There is one student regent, who is nominated by the president of his or her university. The current student regent is ISU junior Lisa Aherns.

Most students do not realize how much of an impact the regents have on their education; the board controls such aspects of UI life as the price of tuition, room and board and the types of classes offered at the UI.

In order to keep abreast of what is going on at the student level on campus, the regents maintain a regular correspondence with the UI Student Government.

If students want to have their voices heard at the regent level, the best route is via UISG, said UISG President Brian Moore/The Daily Iowan President Mary Sue Coleman directs the campus under the leadership of the regents.

"If students want anything done, they have to get in contact with us," Zak said. "If they have an issue, we'll promote that issue the best that we

During the 1998-99 academic year, the regents voted to raise tuition for the 1999-00 year by 4.5 percent - $132 bringing total in-state costs to $3,000 a year. Out-of-state students will pay $440 more, bringing their yearly tuition to $10,340.

"I think the best part of our tax dollars are being spent on education," said Regent Clarkson Kelly, who voted to Another issue the regents paid close attention to during the last academic session was creating discussion on increasing the number of minority students at the three schools.

"In the past 10 years, the number of under-represented students has been flat," said Regent James Arenson. "What are we prepared to do at the UI to make those numbers better?"

Students interested in seeing the regents in action can attend their meetings; they meet at the UI once a

There are a variety of methods students may use to voice their concerns to the administration.

> By Shirin Sadeghi The Daily Iowan

In 1995, Mary Sue Coleman became the first female president of the UI and of any Big Ten university. Coleman, who has a doctorate in biochemistry, has focused most of her efforts on helping to create a vision for the university, she said.

"I am responsible for helping generate all the funds we need to have a truly great university. One of the most fun things I do is getting to know students and learning about their hopes and dreams for the future," Coleman said.

Under Coleman's administration, many advances have been made in technology and the arts, as well as numerous construction and renovations of campus structures, she said. "I believe the University of Iowa is very, very good, but I also believe that our best times are ahead of us.'

The UI has five vice presidents, each in charge of a specific focus for the university; they oversee such areas as student services, university research, university relations, financial and health services

Students need not feel distanced from the administration; there are many organizations designed for students to meet with administrators and discuss concerns with them.

Each college at the UI has its own dean and assistant dean, who can provide information and resources to students. The College of Liberal Arts, the largest on campus, has a unique student organization that allows administrators a window onto student concerns.

Called the Dean's Student Advisory Committee, it seeks board members at the beginning of each semester. Students on the committee meet regularly with Linda Maxson, the dean of liberal arts, and other administrators in the college to provide a student point of view for campus interests.

A useful tool for incoming students is the Office of the University Ombudsperson, located in Seashore Hall, said Maile Sagen, one of the UI's two ombudspersons. "This is the place to come if new students are lost or confused and they just need information," Sagen said.

In addition, the office is an important mediation tool between students, faculty and staff. "The mission of this office is to make sure that people are treated fairly," Sagen said. Students can file complaints about being treated unfairly by a faculty member, receiving a grade they feel was undeserved or other conflicts they wish to resolve, Sagen said. The office sees about 400 people annually.

Student government packs a punch

The UISG is perhaps the most powerful student group at the UI.

> By Rebecca Anderson The Daily Iowan

The UI Student Government is quite different from high school student government. There are more people to represent, more issues to tackle, and, most importantly, more money to handle.

UISG may be one of the most powerful groups on campus. It is responsible for allocating approximately $485,000 to more than 470 student groups across campus - groups any student can become involved in.

There are three branches of student government on which students serve: the Undergraduate Activities Senate, the Undergraduate Collegiate Senate, and the Graduate and Professional Student Senate, which represents graduate students

The Undergraduate Activities senators represent students living in the residence halls, off-campus housing, the Greek system and disabled students. Undergraduate Collegiate senators come from academic departments across campus and represent the various majors.

Sarah Pettinger, last year's Undergraduate Activities Senate executive, said the UISG is the best way for students to stay in touch with administration.

"The biggest benefit of UISG is that it is the advocate Zak Students become members of the Senate by petitioning for the position. Becoming the president of the UISG takes two weeks of full campaigning and months of planning. Current UISG President Lana Zak spent nearly $3,000 and put forth a year's worth of planning - her efforts paid off when she was elected after receiving nearly 42 percent of the 3,028 student votes.

During her campaign, Zak told voters she wanted to keep her door open to anyone; after being elected, she said that's exactly what she plans to do.

"The best way for students to find out what's up with the UI can be by coming down to the office in the Union," Zak said. "We are committed to getting each and every student involved with student government.'

Some of the projects that UISG has slated for this year include revising the campus-wide recycling program and making it possible for students to charge parking-ramp fees to their U-Bills.

Past projects include a review-week program, which is geared toward asking professors to not assign any homework, tests or quizzes during the last week of classes before finals week.

UISG is also working on a program in which the results of student evaluations of professors will be available in the Schedule of Courses. Students interested in meeting with the UISG can stop by Room 48 of the IMU or can call 335-3860.

A local-option sales tax was soundly defeated by area voters in March, which meant that the sales tax in Iowa City remained at 5 percent. Had the measure passed, the sales tax would have increased to 6 percent.

This is just one of many issues affecting students that have been considered by the Iowa City City Council. The council placed the sales-tax measure on the ballot.

From drinking to parking, the council has been busy during the past year and will surely be busy again during the upcoming year - attempting to address the needs of Iowa City residents and UI students.

One of the issues the council deals with is off-campus drinking. Last year, the council rejected a proposed ordinance that would have required people to register the kegs of beer they buy. The councilors eventually did pass an ordinance that allows police to file com-plaints against "rowdy" parties. Police have said they rarely use the ordi-

Parking is also a hot issue with the council. This past May, construction began on a new $12 million, 567-space parking ramp on the south side of Iowa Avenue, between Linn and Gilbert streets.

Another issue the council is expected to consider this fall is the expanding deer herd inside the city. A count using helicopters in January found more than 800 deer within city limits. The council approved a plan to "thin" the herd by using federal sharpshooters; however, the action was blocked by several animal-rights organizations, including the UI Animal Rights Coalition. The city is expected to try to formulate a new plan this fall.

The council meets every two weeks, on Mondays and Tuesdays at 7 p.m. The Monday meeting is an informal work session; the Tuesday meeting is a formal meeting.

In the council, ordinances require three approvals in order to be passed; resolutions require one for adoption.

It's easy to become political at UI

Campus groups have views all across the spectrum - and some off it.

> By Mike Standaert The Daily Iowan

Whether students are Democrats, Republicans, libertarians, socialists, anarchists or just plain apolitical, the UI has a group that offers them a chance to voice their opinions (or nonopinions) on political matters.

As the state with the first presidential caucuses of the 2000 election season, Iowa generally plays a major role in nominating the president - and this presidential race should be no exception. The state's voters will attend the caucuses on Feb. 7, 2000, and the months leading up to that date should see a swirl of political activity.

ign si will sprout i snow like gaudy flowers, candidates will tramp through town to try out their political platforms on the "average Iowan," and that average Iowan will help to determine who will be among those lucky enough to go on in the nomination process.

UI students can play a large part in this process and in the UI's own politics by getting involved with the UI Student Government.

UISG is the main voice of the student body for getting ideas to the UI administration, the state Board of Regents, and city and state govern-

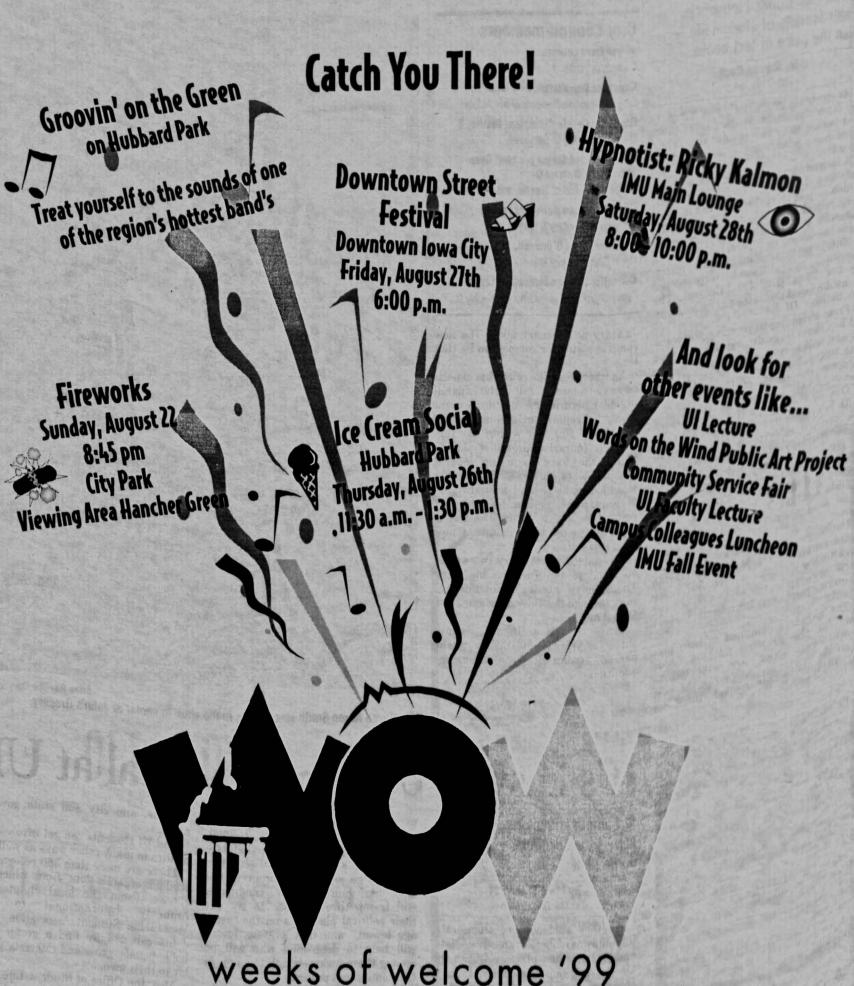

And UI students can get involved in politics in many other ways as well.

There are more than 350 recognized student organizations from which to choose. From the local chapter of Amnesty International to the Venezuelan Student Association, students can usually find a group that holds beliefs, goals and interests similar to their own.

Also, the Office of Student Life provides students with diverse social, cultural and educational programs that allow them to participate in the democratic process.

University of low! Student Government

The University of Iowa Student Government (UISG) would like to welcome everyone back to Iowa City! It doesn't matter if you're a brand new Hawkeye, a second year senior, or a semester away from earning a Ph. D--UISG is here to advocate your voice!

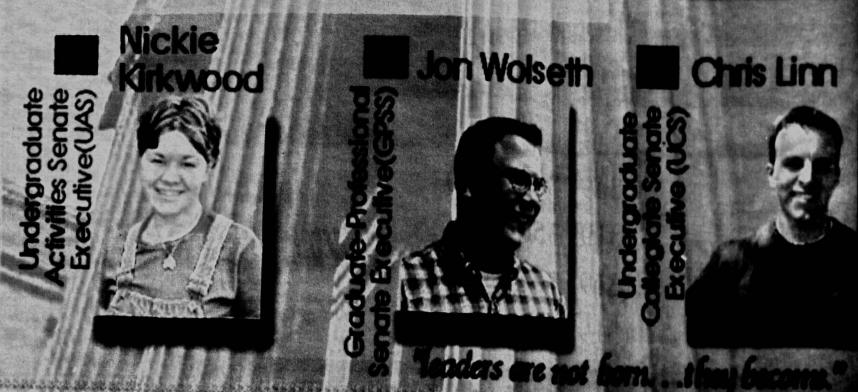

Representing almost 30,000 students, UISG plays a crucial role on campus by providing almost a million dollars of funding to over 350 student groups and campus activities! UISG funds and supports events like Homecoming, Week of Welcome, SCOPE concerts and services like BIJOU films, scholarships, bus rides home for the holidays, lectures, community panels, Safewalk. and much more!

Over 60 student senators share student opinions and make recommendations regularly to University administration, faculty, and staff on issues such as safety, tuition, parking, and student services!

We invite you to stop by the UISG office in the lower level of the Iowa Memorial Union anytime(across from the Union Pantry), or visit us on the web.

We have been working diligently to prepare for the fall, and we are ready to serve you!

CITY&CAMPUSPHILANTHROPY

From building houses to dancing the night away, charity abounds

■ There are many philanthropies locally, doing charitable work in a wide variety of ways.

> By Erika Slife The Daily Iowan

For UI students who want to both lend a helping hand to those less fortunate and enhance their leadership skills, volunteering for a philanthropic organization may be the way.

"Philanthropies raise money for local and national charities," said Katie McKinnon, the recruitment officer for the Greek system's Panhellenic Association. "Every (Greek) house usually participates in one."

There are a variety of philanthropies to choose from in Iowa City, ranging from building houses to dancing for money

"Habitat for Humanity is a non-profit organization that builds houses for low-income families," said Gina Russo, director for the Habitat for Humanity road race. "Our annual fund-raiser is a race that has drawn about $12,000 in the last two years."

Russo said the organization buys terials for the homes at cost; all unskilled labor is donated.

"I love doing it," she said. "Things always seem to work out because it's such a great organization."

Students who would like to join need only contact the group to find out when the next meeting is, Russo said.

The largest philanthropy on campus — and in the state of Iowa — is the Dance Marathon. Every February, a 30-hour dance-a-thon raises money for children with cancer at the UI Hospitals and Clinics.

"It's really awarding," said Barrie Jordan, the public relations director and a two-year participant in Dance Marathon. "I did it because it sounded like fun, and it was another extra-curricular activity."

Last year's Dance Marathon raised a record $354,000.

"We have more than 750 volunteers," Jordan said. "We work all year round to provide emotional support for the families, but dancing is the best experience you can have."

People interested in participating in the Dance Marathon sign up for it in September, Jordan said.

tem is major contributor in community service projects, say local charities.

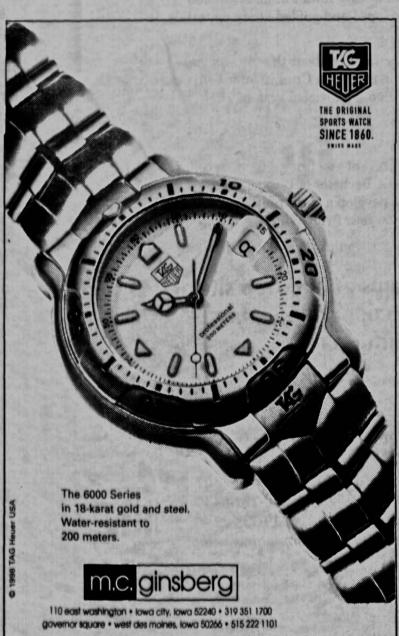

"Greeks have helped the hospital so much," said Peg Frazier, the executive director of Hospice Road Races, another philanthropy that raises money for the UHC.

The Greek system also raised more than $20,000 for Systems Unlimited, a program that aids mentally disabled people, said employee Jack Koberg.

Philanthropies are an abundance in Iowa City; students should have no problem finding a charitable cause.

Program honors the hard worker

■ The UI Honors Program may be just the thing for those who want academic challenges.

> By Anita Chlipala The Daily Iowan

For students who find their classes unstimulating and boring, the UI Honors Program may provide the academic challenge they're looking for.

"The kinds of students that we serve are looking to make the most of their undergraduate years," said Alice Fulton, director of the program. "It's something that an eligible student should take advantage of.

Those qualified to enter the honors program are UI students with a cumulative UI grade-point average of 3.2 or Becoming a member of the program does not add any obligations for the students, said Esther Materon-Arum, the assistant director of the program.

'We don't require or force students to do things they don't want to do," she said. "The students set the pace."

A concern students voice is the extra work apparently given in honors classes; both Fulton and Materon-Arum said they shouldn't worry.

"I don't think it's so much extra work as it is different work," Fulton said.

"If you're interested in stimulating conversation and discussion and put your heart into it - and if that is called more work - then it's more work," Materon-Arum said.

When a student falls below the 3.2 GPA, he or she will not be automatically kicked out of the program, she said.

We will put them on probation," she said. "But we encourage them to come back because we miss them.

If students are interested in the honors program - and if they have already declared their major should check with the faculty in their department about the honors opportunities in their field of study.

"Each department has a different way to allow students to graduate with honors," Materon-Arum said.

The Honors Program also provides students with a variety of activities they can take part in, not only academically but socially. It offers its students honors classes, seminars, assistance in applying for scholarships and jobs, as well as volunteer activities.

Materon-Arum said eligible students should achieve their potential.

"The students should believe in themselves and see what they can do," she said. "The sky's the limit."

study in almost any country. Last year, 610 UI students studied in such places as Thailand, the Ivory Coast, Zambia, Namibia and St. Lucia.

And these trips aren't as expensive as students might think, said Janis Perkins, the director of Study Abroad.

"We try to keep the cost of studying abroad as inexpensive as possible for our students," she said. "In general, it is cheaper for non-residents to study abroad than to study at the UI.'

Financial aid is available for academic work overseas; all UI-approved assistance can be transferred to a Study Abroad program. There are also scholarships specifically for studying abroad, Perkins

Study Abroad offers a variety of programs, ranging from five-week summer programs to full-year exchanges. And if a student wants to go to a country in which the UI does not offer a program, Perkins said, arrangements can be made with other schools.

Yates said the benefits of studying abroad cannot be measured.

There are so many reasons to go," she said. "It's an exceptional way to broaden your education, both in and out of the classroom. It almost always changes a person for the better."

Homecoming group sets sights high

Homecoming committee looks for the biggest and best event yet.

By Sarah Gordon

The Daily Iowan

The UI is putting the spotlight on students for this year's Homecoming festivities with the theme "Time to Shine in '99."

Special guest director Bridget Horgan said the Homecoming committee is very excited and looking forward to the week's events, which will begin

"We, as a council, are looking for something bigger and better than in years past," she said.

Director Pat Adildtrup said the funding and the size of the UI allow a facet to a university's homecoming that can help separate it from a high school's.

"This year, we are trying to include a concert with SCOPE," Adildtrup said.

Horgan said the events for Homecoming week will begin with the painting of downtown business' windows and conclude with the Homecoming game, against Indiana University on Oct. 23.

"This year is exciting and different, because it marks a new year for the Hawkeyes with our new football coach, Kirk Ferentz," she said.

UI often a springboard to fame

From Tennessee Williams, Flannery O'Connor and Rita Dove to Tom Brokaw and Simon Estes. many talents have trod the lowa City sidewalks.

> By Shirin Sadeghi The Daily Iowan

Some students at the UI may think they're coming to just another school in the Midwest, because few may know of the celebrities that once graced the walks of the campus.

In fields from journalism and entertainment to literature and sports, UI alumni have shined.

For instance, the NBC news anchorman spent one of his undergraduate years at the UI; Tom Brokaw came to the UI from the University of South Dakota, then pursued a career in journalism that led him to become one of America's top talking heads.

Television anchorwoman Carole Simpson also attended the UI. She studied journalism and went on to become the White House correspondent for ABC News.

Many famous entertainers spent some or all of their undergraduate years at the UI. Gene Wilder - Willy Wonka from Charlie and the a Pulitzer Prize winner. One of the enduring legends at the UI is that Williams' early draft of The Glass Menagerie was rejected by the theater department when Williams submitted it as his master's thesis.

Flannery O'Connor, the famous short-story writer and peacock owner, is also a graduate of the UI.

The UI has also had some important "firsts." The first woman to receive a master's degree in journalism at the UI. Mildred Wirt Benson, is the wellknown author of 23 Nancy Drew mysteries. The first black woman elected to a state supreme court, Juanita Kidd Stout is also a UI alumna.

And the UI's exceptional alumni pool wouldn't be complete without the numerous well-known sports figures it

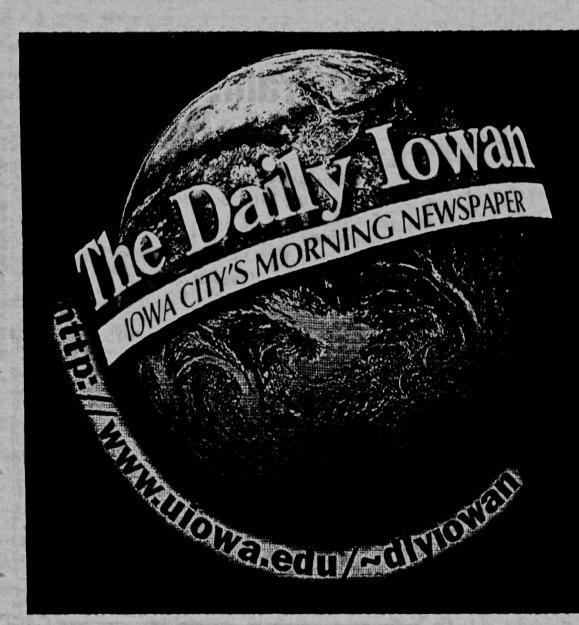

Three-time NBA champion Chicago Bulls star B.J. Armstrong was a starting guard for the Hawkeyes. He went from Carver-Hawkeye Arena to the United Center, playing side-by-side with Michael Jordan.

The Hawkeye football team has also delivered some of the nation's best players. The All-Pro defensive back for the San Francisco 49ers, Merton Hanks, was an undergraduate at the UI. So was Reggie Roby, an All-Pro punter for the Miami Dolphins who now plays for the Tennessee Oilers.

Any Gallup poll -which, by the way, was created by UI alumnus George Gallup - will tell you that studying at the UI can be an important asset to your career. That is, if you aspire to be the best.

FOOTBALL HEAD COACH: Kirk Ferentz LAST SEASON: 3-8 overall, 2-6 Big Ten

To make matters worse, Iowa loses last year's co-Most Valuable player Derek Rose to graduation and left tackle Ben Sobieski is questionable this fall following shoulder surgery.

Filling the void at center will be Chad Deal. The senior moves from guard to center and is expected to be the anchor of the young line.

Converted tight end Bruce Nelson is listed as the first string right guard. Nelson is listed in the team's spring prospectus at 6-foot-5, 210 pounds, but Ferentz said he now weighs closer to 250.

"We're not deep and we're not experienced," Ferentz said of his unit. "I think we'll have a good line one of these days, the bad news is that it may not be in September.

The New Defense

When new defensive coordinator Norm Parker came to Iowa, one of the first things he did was install a 4-3 defense.

The new look calls for three linebackers instead of two, with the defensive ends becoming outside linebackers.

The new outside linebackers duties include more work with zones and tight end coverage and less rushing of the quarter-

Former defensive turned-linebacker Ryan Loftin said he rushed the quarterback about 50 percent of the time last year and in 1999 it will be considerably less than that.

The focal point of the new defense seems to be sophomore Aaron Kampman. The sopho-more was scheduled to redshirt last year, but injuries to Vernon Rollins and Raj Clark forced him into action by the third game of last year.

"Kampman has taken a big step up," Ferentz said. "He lives the game. He is very meticulous in preparation and diligent. He has made a great improve-

Ferentz takes the reins from Hayden

■ Legendary Hawkeye coach Hayden Fry is gone, and former Iowa assistant Kirk Ferentz is left to fill some very big shoes.

> By Mike Kelly The Daily Iowan

Meet new Iowa football coach Kirk Ferentz.

He is a young-looking 43 year-old with an athlete's build.

He has a stoic work ethic that has propelled some of his players to call him the "true definition of a coach."

He is renowned by colleagues and former players alike.

He also has his work cut out for him. Ferentz has the daunting task of replacing the legendary Hayden Fry, who brought the Hawkeyes to national He is much more prominence after years of mediocrity during his 20 years at the helm of the (than Fry). I Hawkeyes. He also takes think his NFL over a team that finished a dismal 3-8 last year.

"I work hard and try to a role in that give an honest day's work, and I try to be a good learner," Ferentz said last December at his introductory press conference. "I've been around a lot of tremendous people in football and you learn a lot of things in those situations and, hopefully, you keep things moving forward."

Before coming to Iowa, Ferentz spent six seasons as an assistant coach in the NFL's Baltimore Ravens organization, where he was the offensive line coach and assistant head coach.

Ferentz's offensive expertise may be beneficial than previously thought.

In 1998, Iowa ranked a brutal 109th out of 113 Division I teams in both total offense and rushing offense.

When Ferentz took over at the helm of the Hawkeyes, he brought in a host of new assistant coaches to help him and holdovers Chuck Long and Bret Bielema put in new schemes both on offense and defense.

On the defensive side of the ball, Ferentz and his staff implemented a 4-3 defense, replacing the old 5-2 scheme. The 4-3 defense is one of the most popular schemes in college football today, with teams like Nebraska, Florida and Florida State all running variations of it.

While Ferentz is not unveiling much of his new offense, he said the playbook will be flexible enough to cater to the strengths and weaknesses of the eventual starting quarter-

"We do not want to tip our Scott Mullen hand too much," Ferentz said before the annual inter-squad Spring game. "If we have any advantages, it is to keep people

Ferentz has installed a business-like demeanor on his team that he demands both on and off the field. If a player ditches class, he can expect to spend Friday nights with Ferentz in study hall.

New Hawkeye coach Kirk Ferentz watches his team at the annual spring game. Ferent has quickly earned the respect and admiration of his players, and has Hawkeye fan anxious to see what he can bring to lowa football.

"He is much more business-like (than Fry)," quarterback Scott Mullen said. "We get in drills right away and get to work. I think his NFL experience played a role in that."

While Ferentz knows winning right away will not be easy, he refuses to call his first season as head coach a "rebuilding year."

"You line up every play and every game for the Big Ten title," Ferentz said. "But we're going through a period of transition. We're going to try and do the best we can."

"We're going to set our bar high and work hard for it and see how things turn out."

Get excited about the new regime

It's really not that far away. Trust me, a football season can come up and bite you in the ass before you know it.

I know it's early, but I can't lie to you. I'm excited - and you should be, too.

The great people of Pochahontas, Iowa, are already up in arms over hometown hero Joe Slattery. And trust me, the people of Pochahontas know good football, so hop on the bandwagon.

It has been an interesting off-season, to say the least. Coach Fry has gone on and Coach Ferentz is the new boss, and he is everything we could ask for.

Some things are going to change, and if spring football is any indication of what is to come, it is going to be the most exciting year of Hawkeye football in years.

It all starts with the team itself. If a team is excited, it performs better. It plays with that extra heartbeat that can be the determining factor between a fourth quarter win or loss.

We will definitely have that extra heartbeat come September. This team is hungry, and I don't mean the kind of hungry center Chad Deal gets before dinner. It is the kind of hungry attitude you get after an off-season that makes you practically beg for the season to Coach Ferentz has brought a new staff, along with new rules and values to Hawkeye football. Yeah, there will still be the "Hawkeye Swarm" out of the locker room, the helmets will look the same, Kinnick Stadium isn't going to change, Rob Thein will still be the Iowa City hero he is, and strength coach Bob will still have a red flat top. Despite that, Hawkeye football is moving forward in another direction with Coach Ferentz.

Na 等型的企业 化多多级的现在分词的 化多多级的 化化多多级

We have both new defensive and offensive coordinators, both bringing new schemes and overall direction. This year, during two-a-days in August, we will stay in a hotel so we focus on football - and nothing else. I like the idea, but two weeks in a hotel room with Slattery will be a challenge, to say the least.

Instead of four senior captains as in the past, we will have a leadership committee. It is composed of representatives from each class, and we meet with Coach Ferentz, just as the Senate meets with the president. Different,

If I were a fan from the outside looking in, I'd be eager to come and see what Coach Ferentz and his boys have to offer. And what better way to check them out than at the season opener, possibly under the lights at Kinnick, against known national power Nebraska.

I wouldn't have it any other way.

We could have opened against another opponent, but the excitement of playing against a team the caliber of Nebraska is a test right from the start, and we need that. We need to find out where we stand, and to strive to be the best, you first have to try to beat the Sure, we have to answer a lot of questions, but doesn't every team at the start of a new season?

Last season is in the past, and we look at it that way. There is no need to reflect back on last season. No team in the country does. I can tell you this, once the opening kickoff of the year begins, last year's national champion Tennessee, is the same as every other team. We all have the same goals as Florida State does, but to get there isn't an easy task.

As a player, that is how you have to view things.

Who knows how it will actually turn out, but it is going to be exciting to find the beginning, it looked like the 1998 season would be a long one for the Iowa Hawkeye field hockey team.

And if you don't believe me, j stroll over to Pochahontas and them. They'll tell you.

Coach Beth Beglin's team started off 0-5 in the Big Ten, the worst start in its history. But just when it looked like the Hawkeye powerhouse was dead, Iowa pulled things together and put together a winning streak that ended with it ranked 16th in the nation.

There was a totally different attitude and competitive spirit," Beglin said. This was a totally different team (at season's end). The team really came together and grew. I was really proud of the way the team turned things around at midseason that is something we can build on for next year.'

The Hawkeyes' slow start made them only a five seed in the Big Ten Tournament, but they came out and blitzed Michigan State in the opening round before falling to eventual champion Penn State, 3-2.

"I was really proud of the way we played in the second half," Beglin said. "We started to play a lot smarter, tightened up our defense, and kept possession better."

It wasn't enough, though, and Penn State grabbed a late goal and the win.

This season, Iowa will have some enormous shoes to fill with the departure of All-Americans Lisa Cellucci and Kerry Lessard.

SOCCER

HEAD COACH: Stephanie Gabbert LAST SEASON: 6-10-2 overall

The future looks bright

By Roger Kuznia The Daily Iowan

Iowa women's soccer Coach Stephanie Gabbert has many reasons to be excited about her team's upcoming 1999 season.

The Hawkeyes lost only two seniors to graduation, and they have a very solid group of seven freshmen recruits who have the ability to come in and make an immediate impact on

"This is by far the most talented and most experienced recruiting class we have seen in the history of the program," Gabbert said.

The new players should help improve on last year's 6-10-2 record. This season will be the team's third as a varsity sport.

Three of the seven recruits come from St. Charles, Ill., High School, which is wellknown for its girls' soccer program - the team was ranked No. 1 in the country in 1998 by USA Today. The players are sweeper Julie Atkocaitis, forward Sarah Lynch and midfielder Joni Anderson.

Iowa has its top three goal scorers returning in junior Kate Walse (9), sophomore Lindsey Wolman (5) and junior Beth Oldenburg (3).

Justin O'Brien/The Daily Iowan

Lindsey Wolman was lowa's second leading goal-scorer last season (5) and should play a key role in the Hawkeye soccer team's third season as a varsity sport.

The Hawkeyes have a hole to fill at the goalkeeper position after Gabe Mauren's Sophomore graduation. Melissa Wickart will most likely fill the position, though she might have some competition for the starting spot from incoming freshman Elizabeth Hendel.

Wickart said learning under Mauren last year can only help her this season.

"She was always there to push me, because sometimes being a freshman is hard," she said. "She was a good teacher and a good friend too.'

The team's other recruits are two Iowa natives, forwards Teesa Price of Iowa City and Courtney Wilkerson of Cedar Rapids. Jamie Jorgensen, also a forward, is the team's first recruit from Texas (Grand Prairie).

HEAD COACH: Rita Crockett LAST SEASON: 9-20 overall, 3-17 Big Ten

After a long drought, the Hawkeyes finally nab that elusive Big Ten win

■ The Hawkeyes finished strong under first-year coach Rita Crockett.

> By Megan Manfull The Daily Iowan

By the time the Iowa volleyball season ended, first-year Coach Rita Crockett had all but forgotten about her team's long drought.

The Hawkeyes won three of their final six games and broke a number of records in the process. The young players began stepping up, and Crockett began to look forward to a new year.

"We're not going to waste any time in the off-season," she said. "We'll have a much bigger jump this year when the season starts. I'm looking forward to it."

Iowa won its first Big Ten match in nearly a year on Nov. 16, 1998, against Indiana. Prior to the win, the Hawkeyes had lost 24-consecutive matches in the conference.

The Hawkeyes finished the season 9-20 overall and 3-17 in the Big Ten.

"(Getting the first conference win) like having a baby, and it took almost nine months, too," Crockett said, laughing. "It took awhile, but it was fun. It's just good to have the monster off our backs.'

Iowa was led by junior Julie Williams. The 6-foot outside hitter ended her career strong against Michigan in the team's final weekend of play. The kills set a new career-high for Williams and tied for thirdbest in school history.

Also returning for Iowa in 1999-00 will be 6-foot Katie Panhorst. Last Panhorst moved from outside to middle hitter and became one of the Hawkeyes' most consistent passers.

"Katie is playing really well," Crockett said. "She's understanding that middle position really well. She's such a balanced player, and I'm just happy to have her on my team."

The Hawkeyes will also return last season's lone freshman, Sara Meyermann, who secured a starting spot midway through the season. Williams, Sharla Johnson, Dawn Peterson and Jill Schmidt will be seniors.

A sweet ending for Dr. Tom's lowa career

■ Tom Davis' Iowa career had a fairy-tale ending, but this year's lowa team lacks size.

> By Megan Manfull The Daily Iowan

The Iowa men's basketball team couldn't have closed Tom Davis' Iowa coaching career on a more positive

With an emotional drive to support Davis, who was told by the Iowa Athletics Department after the 1998-99 season that his contract would not be extended, the Hawkeyes rose to the occasion and carried the 13-year Iowa coach to the Sweet Sixteen.

The Hawkeyes fell to eventual NCAA Champions UConn.

"I don't know that I've ever put more into a team in the sense that they gave so much," said Davis, following Iowa's loss to the Huskies. "I am wiped out, emotionally as well as physically drained, and I'm sure the team is. They gave you a great, great effort.'

Iowa's season was a one of both highs and lows. The team was predicted to finish 10th in the Big Ten by preseason publications. However, it finished closer to 10th in the nation by the end of the season.

Kansas Jayhawks. Iowa defeated Kansas, 85-81, ending the Jayhawks' 62-game home winning streak.

Iowa turned over the ball 31 times in the victory, but clutch three-point shooting from Iowa's all-time career leader Kent McCausland lifted them to

'We didn't play all that well and still came out with one of the biggest victories in Hawkeye history," McCausland said. "To do that was a big accomplishment."

Iowa's season was also highlighted by the return of Jess Settles, who was granted a sixth-year of eligibility by the NCAA after sitting out two years with back pain.

Settles became a regular in Iowa's lineup and carried the Hawkeyes toward the end of the season. He played in 28 of the 30 games and led the Hawkeyes with 4.8 rebounds per game. He also averaged 9.8 points a contest.

For seven games of the season, Iowa had two former Big Ten Freshman of the Year on the court together. Iowa's Settles was joined by Sam Okey, who transferred from Wisconsin in January 1998. Okey sat out one season, and chose to finish his final year of eligibility in the second semester of 1999. However, seven games into his career as a Hawkeye, Okey broke his wrist and was out the rest of the season.

Iowa's most consistent play came from sophomore point guard Dean Oliver. He led the Hawkeyes in scoring with 11.9 points per game, assists (136) and steals (51).

"I think Dean has the chance to be one of the best point guards at Iowa,' Davis said. "He's got all the physical qualities and all the mental toughness. He's got team spirit, and he cares about his teammates.'

Oliver will lead a small and inexperienced team in 1999-00. The Hawkeyes' only experienced returners will be guard Ryan Luehrsmann and forward Jacob Jaacks. Last season's freshman standout, Joey Range, will not return to Iowa after being declared academically ineligible, and center Guy Rucker, who was also in the midst of academic turmoil, turned pro in # and the beginning of the Steve Alford era

By James Kramer The Daily Iowan

The excitement created by the hiring of new men's basketball Coach Steve Alford has been spectacular, and Iowa hoops fans are convinced the team will rise to new heights.

On March 22, Alford was hired to replace Tom Davis, whose contract was not renewed after 13 years in Iowa City. A two-time All-American guard at Indiana in the mid-1980s, Alford led Southwest Missouri State to an improbable Sweet Sixteen berth before joining the Hawkeyes.

"He's well-articulated, has a terrific work ethic and a desire to develop a model program," Iowa men's Athletics Director Bob Bowlsby said. "Any way you want to slice it, he's a winner.'

The announcement immediately throughout the sta because Alford, 34, is considered by many to be the top young coach in the country.

Alford quickly assembled an staff of assistants (his father Sam, Rich Walker, Greg Lansing and Brian Jones) and went right to work finding recruits for next year and beyond. He had immediate results.

On April 7, Rob Griffin of Southeastern Community College of Burlington became the first recruit to sign a national letter of intent to play for Alford's Hawkeyes.

"Griffin is a very offensive-minded player who will help our team immediately," the coach said.

Alford and his staff didn't stop there. Two weeks later, they signed Barton County, Kan., Community College's Joe Fermino.

That same week, Mason City High School freshman Jeff Horner chose

Iowa over Iowa State University after aggressive recruiting campaigns by both Iowa State and the Hawkeyes.

Alford also went to work with his current Hawkeye players, putting them through grueling conditioning and practice sessions. He also let it be known that he would not stand for academic slumps or off-the-court prob-

"When you wear that Iowa uniform, you wear it wherever you go," Alford said.

Alford's first team should be solid, with point guard Dean Oliver returning, as well as senior guard Ryan Luehrsmann and big man Jacob Sophomores Duez Henderson and Rod Thompson are also expected to contribute.

The one glaring weakness for the 1999-00 squad is size around the basket. Jaacks is the only big man returning with court experience.

'If you go back to assuming, we're probably gonna be a little undersized in year one," Alford said. "I'm not gonna correct that in nine days."

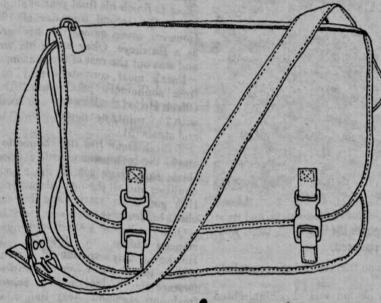

Iowa fans can live with that, however. Alford's presence promises success in the future, even if the first year of his régime ends up being a struggle.

players in each high school class when recruiting, and he's confident about his prospects of landing a good number of those budding stars.

Season-ticket sales will almost certainly increase with Alford at the helm. He wants to re-energize Hawkeye fans, and one of his first goals is to move the student section closer to the floor in Carver-Hawkeye Arena.

LAST SEASON: 12-15 overall, 7-9 Big Ten

Herrig's gone, but the future is promising

Its 12-15 record doesn't reflect it, but the Iowa women's basketball team had some great moments during the 1998-99 season.

Each game was an adventure, not knowing if the Hawkeyes were going to blow their opponent out of the arena or get blown out themselves.

They went through ups, extending eventual national champion Purdue to overtime, and downs, a seven-game skid that effectively knocked them out of the Big Ten title hunt after a promising 3-1 start to the conference season.

After losing seven players to graduation the year before, coach Angie Lee was forced to start almost from scratch.

"This isn't going to be a season that is going to be determined by wins and losses," Lee said at the team's media day last October. "(This season) we build, and we move forward."

Amidst all the inexperience and uncertainty was the steadiness of senior Amy Herrig. The Dubuque native was finally getting her time in the spotlight, stepping out from the shadows of the Hawkeyes' highly touted recruiting class of 1993.

The 6-foot-4 center averaged 18.7 points and 11.3 rebounds per game, recording a conference-leading 17 double-doubles in 27 games. In addition, Herrig earned Associated Press honorable mention honors and a spot on the Big Ten's first team.

Her Iowa career was culminated May 4 with her selection in the WNBA draft. Herrig was chosen by the Sacramento Monarchs with the second pick of the fourth round, 38th overall.

The Hawkeyes season came to a screetching halt when Northwestern staged a huge comeback victory in the opening round of the Big Ten Tournament. The Hawkeyes were up 13 with five minutes to go, but the Wildcats came stroming back to post the 75-71 win.

"It hurt so bad sitting on the bench to

Despite the heartbreaking ending to the season, Hawkeye fans certainly saw some promise from the underclassmen.

Sophomore point guard Cara Consuegra and forward Randi Peterson grew into leadership roles last season and will be looked upon to do more of the same next year.

"Randi is really looking forward to it," said Lee, who will be entering her fifth season as Iowa's head coach. "That's what Randi is going to have pumping through her veins this summer."

Consuegra, who averaged 11.4 points and 5.7 assists in her second season, earned honorable mention All-Big Ten honors from the media.

Freshman Lindsey Meder was Iowa's second-leading scorer at 13.9 ppg, while earning a place on the conference's All-Freshmen Team. The shooting guard from nearby Solon was the impact freshman that Lee had said she needed this season.

While Herrig is the only player Lee will not have back, the former 1995-96 AP Coach of the Year has to replace two vacancies on the Iowa bench.

Assistants Wendy Gatlin and Kristi Kinne left the program in April. Gatlin took the head coaching position at Butler University, and Kinne moved to Oklahoma to marry former Iowa tight end and new Sooner football Assistant Coach Jonathan Hayes.

WOMEN'S ROWING

HEAD COACH: Mandi Kowal LAST SEASON: Did not qualify for NCAAs

Rowers make a strong finish in 1998-99

By Greg Wallace The Daily Iowan

Despite failing to qualify for the NCAA championships, the Iowa women's rowing team still had a successful season. The team made great strides in the fall portion of their season, with the Club 8+ team winning the Head of Charles Regatta in Boston, the Hawkeyes' first win there in school history.

In the highlight of the spring season, the varsity finished fifth and the JV sixth in the San Diego Crew Classic, the second-largest competition in the US this year with 26 teams.

"We qualified to both of the major grand finals, and that really made me happy," Iowa coach Mandi Kowal said.

The Hawkeyes finished their season strong at the Central Sprints in Oak Ridge, Tennessee, finishing fifth overall. The varsity 8+ finished fourth overall.

In the Midwest Rowing Championships, Iowa made some serious waves. The Varsity 8+ squad finished fifth overall, only 5.8 seconds out of first place. They defeated Top 20 power Ohio State by nearly seven seconds.

All season, the Hawkeyes showed signs of being able to compete with the Big Ten's and nation's elite teams, but weren't quite able to get over the hump. The team lost their dual meet with Ohio State and Michigan on April 10, but the varsity 8+ team lost by only 1.5 seconds to the powerful Buckeyes.

"We were unranked, going against two ranked schools and we only lost by one or two seconds in a couple of races," senior Tara Fumerton said.

HEAD COACH: Tom Dunn

LAST SEASON: 14-1 overall, 2nd at Big Tens

Hawkeye gymnasts fall short in bid for nationals

■ The senior-dominated team will try and avenge last year's loss in the NCAA Regionals.

By Robert Yarborough

The Daily Iowan

After finishing 14-1 during the regular season, the Iowa men's gymnastics team did not end up the dominant team that one would expect in 1999.

An off-night at just one competition determined the outcome of an inconsistent season for the gymnasts. Two weeks after finishing second at the Big Ten Championships, Iowa finished fifth at the East Regionals, missing a bid for the NCAA Championships for the first time in six years.

"The three teams that qualified ahead of us are all Big Ten teams," Coach Tom Dunn said. "Even with our best score this season (from the Big Ten Championships) carried over to East Regionals, it still might not have been enough."

Iowa was able to defeat the eventual NCAA champion Michigan, 228.45-227.95, in front of a packed house in the UI Field House on Feb. 27. However, a key injury to freshman standout Andy Thornton made the team less than 100 percent for the regionals.

"Michigan was a good team, and we knew that," sophomore Troy Smith said after the win. "But they came into our house, and we expected to dominate. It was a big win for us in terms of momentum."

Headed into the 1999-00 season, five Hawkeyes will get their last shots at a national championship. Seniors-to be Todd Strada, Brian Hamilton, Anthony Petrocelli, Barry Wilken and Doug Jacobson should lead a very experienced squad. Strada finished third in the allaround at the 1999 NCAA championships and is one of two All-Americans returning for Iowa. Shane de Freitas earned All-American status in his first season with a fifth-place finish on the high bar at the NCAA championships.

Strada was also Big Ten Gymnast of the Year.

"It feels really good to finish out the year strong," he said. "But it would be sad if we (the upcoming seniors) went to nationals in our first two years and then miss the last two. We want to get back there."

■ Minnesota snapped Iowa's streak of 25 consecutive Big Ten Championships, but the Hawkeyes got the last laugh.

> By Tony Wirt The Daily Iowan

One streak ended in 1999, but the one the Hawkeyes care about remained.

The longest consecutive conference championship streak in history of the NCAA ended when Minnesota stopped lowa from taking its 26th straight Big Ten title, and the Hawkeyes were upset.

That was forgotten two weeks later, when Coach Jim Zalesky's Hawkeyes took home their fourth straight NCAA crown in State College, Pa.

"This is the one to win," Zalesky said of the NCAA meet. "This is the one that makes you feel good or bad about yourself — and I feel pretty good."

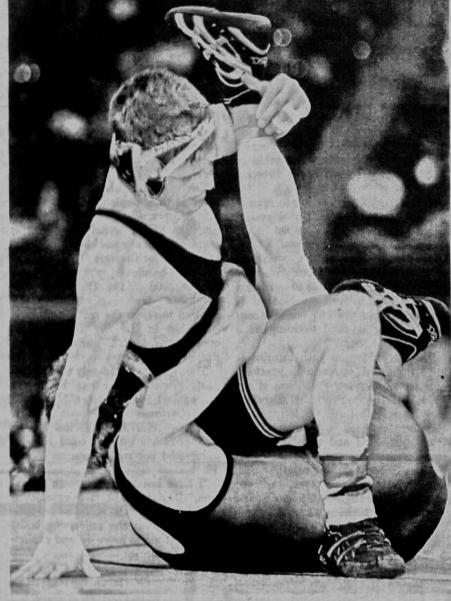

Iowa crowned two individual champions at meet. Juniors Doug Schwab (141) and T.J. Williams (149) each arned his first national championship. Schwab ended up 38-4 on the year and also took home a Big Ten title. Williams, who was ranked No. 1 for nost of the season, went undefeated at 40-0. "(The experience at NCAAs) is just going to make us that much better," Schwab said. "We really came together as a team this weekend and we've got a lot of guys coming back. We just have to keep that work ethic going and reap the benefits."

Iowa will lose three starters from this year's team, 1997 NCAA champion Lee Fullhart, 1999 Big Ten champion Jamie Heidt (157) and Ben Uker (165).

HEAD COACH: Michael Lorenzen LAST SEASON: 5-10 overall, 7th at Big Tens

Putting the pieces back together

After a season filled with suspensions and coaching changes. the women's gymnastics team is ready to put the past away.

> By Greg Wallace The Daily Iowan

The 1999 season was certainly a year to forget for the Iowa women's gymnastics program.

Injuries put the Hawkeyes in a hole to start out the season, then an ugly controversy sparked by alcohol-related suspensions ended any hopes that the team had for success. To muddle matters further, in the middle of the controversy, 19-year veteran Coach Diane DeMarco resigned.

Now, the team, divided in two by the controversy, hopes to put the pieces back together and have a successful season in 2000. It will be a season of change for the Hawkeyes' new coach, with new gymnasts, and hopefully, a new attitude. The team has begun by signing three recruits for next season. The recruiting class is led by Stephanie Benson of Eagan, Minn., who was a four-time All-American gymnast. Janna Alexandrova, a Russian gymnast from Florida, and Jessica Kyanka, from Kansas City, Mo., round out the class.

Michael Lorenzen was named head coach in June. The gymnasts wants their new leader to take them in a different direction.

'Someone who we can be really upfront with, who will be able to contribute everything he has to the team, to take us to new heights," said senior Courtney Burke. "We want someone who will give us a say in the direction of the team."

The team will be looking to reunite the two factions - those who were suspended and those who were not.

"I think we need to become a team again," said Julie Matolo, who was involved in the suspensions. "We need to be united again for this to work next year. We need to start communicating better between the two (sides) about what's going on and deciding as a team, not two teams."

The season began with injuries to 1998's team MVP, Angie Hungerford, and 1998's Big Ten Freshman of the Year, Giselle Boniforti. Hungerford tore her Achilles' tendon, while Boniforti suffered a sprained knee. Both redshirted and will be back in time for next season.

The team was pulling together well, and the Hawkeyes' scores improved steadily through January and February. But the events of March exploded any progress that the gymnasts had made.

On March 4, the team was pulled from its home competition against Minnesota due to "an infraction of team policy," said DeMarco, Minnesota competed in the meet by itself, while Iowa gymnasts touched each of their events and received 0's for scores. Meets on March 7 and March 13 were canceled.

Later that week, it was discovered that nine Iowa gymnasts had been placed under investigation for their attendance at two parties in late February at which alcohol was pre-

The gymnasts under investigation received their punishments on March 12. Seniors Christine Roselli and Shrutika Sulkar were kicked off the team, and Burke and Hungerford were suspended for the rest of the season. They will be allowed to rejoin the team for the 2000 season. The rest of the gymnasts under suspicion were allowed to rejoin the team, and most competed in the Big Ten championships on March 27, at which Iowa finished last.

The Hawkeyes had only three gymnasts compete, rather than the normal six, against Iowa State on March 17. The Cyclones beat Iowa easily, 195.350- 45.075. The meet was DeMarco's last as head coach, as she announced her resignation on March

"I have loved coaching with a passion," DeMarco said. "I have enjoyed working with truly outstanding individuals here at the university, but I feel it is time to move on and explore other possibilities.

By Mike Kelly The Daily Iowan

After her third year at the helm of the women's swimming and diving team, Mary Bolich is starting to see some results.

In the 1998-99 season, sophomore Melissa Loehndorf was Iowa's first NCAA qualifier in five years, and the team won its first Big Ten home meet in Bolich's tenure when it defeated Penn State for the first time in team history.

Loehndorf leads a talented young team that lost only four seniors to graduation last year. She qualified in three events for the Hawkeyes, including the 1650-yard freestyle, in which she finished second in the Big Ten Championships.

"Having a national qualifier hasn't happened in a long time," Bolich said.
"This shows that she has a very promising future ahead of her.'

For the second straight year, Iowa came in seventh in the Big Ten. Even though they did not achieve their goal of placing in the top five, the Hawkeyes were happy with their performance.

Pete Thompson/TheDaily Iowan Melissa Loehndorf, (above), qualified for the NCAA Championships in three events last year. The sophomore was lowa's first national qualifier in five years. They scored almost 150 points more than the 1998 meet and broke eight school records. The seventh-place finish was a little deceiving," Bolich said. "Even though we had the same finish as last year, it was huge in terms of improvement.' Loredana Zisu is another staple for the Iowa program. The 1996 Romanian Olympian broke her third school record in the 200-yard butterfly against Penn State in February.

Other Hawkeyes who should play prominent roles this year are sophomore Allison Lyle, junior Stacey Wertz and senior diver Sarah Wolochko.

With so many letter winners coming back, 1999-00 figures to be one of the most promising years in recent history for Iowa swimming.

SOFTBALL HEAD COACH: Gayle Blevins
LAST SEASON: 41-26-1 overall, 14-10 Big Ten

Hawkeyes snubbed from regionals

By Tony Wirt The Daily Iowan

It was a season of extremes for coach Gayle Blevins and her Iowa softball team.

After a hot start that had the Hawkeyes rolling through the preseason, Iowa hit the wall in the month of April, going 14-15 in that 30 game span.

The Hawkeyes (41-26-1) turned things around towards the end of the ostseason, defeating No. Michigan and eventual Big Ten Champion Minnesota.

"We had moments where we played extremely well, then we had moments where we struggled," Blevins said. "It was really hard to understand."

The slump was enough to make the Hawkeyes a five seed in the Big Ten Tournament, where they ended up taking fourth place after losses against Michigan and Penn State.

After Big Tens, Iowa could only wait to see if they would receive an at-large bid to the NCAA Regionals. The Hawkeyes were passed over in favor of some teams that may have been less than qualified.

"I wasn't totally surprised that we didn't make Regionals, but it was disappointing seeing some of the teams that made it over us," Blevins said.

Iowa should have a solid group

Brian Ray/The Daily Iowan

returning for redemption next year, with five All- Big Ten players return-

Second-teamers Alicia Gerlach and Liz Dennis will bring their bats back to the Hawkeye lineup for the 2000 season. As freshmen, Gerlach was near the top of every batting category for the Hawkeyes while Dennis was second on the team with 26 RBIs.

The pitching duo of Kelly Zeilstra and Kristi Hanks, both third-team selections, returns to Iowa for an encore performance.

Also returning is Iowa's speedy leftfielder Amber Morrow, who earned third-team honors last season as a freshman. Morrow was near the top of the conference in steals all year, ending with 33.

"We have a lot of players coming back, so that will really help," Blevins said. "Our incoming freshman class should be big contributors as well."

HEAD COACH: Scott Broghamer LAST SEASON: 22-34 overall, 6-22 Big Ten

Youth, injuries plague lowa

In 1999, lowa started six freshmen, lost their leader to a hamstring injury and finished last in the Big Ten.

> By Greg Wallace The Daily Iowan

On paper, the 1999 Iowa baseball season was a disappointment. The Hawkeyes finished 22-34 overall, and 6-22 in the Big Ten Conference, good for last place.

But last place isn't as bad as it sounds when you're starting six freshmen and your senior leader misses much of the season with a hamstring injurywhich is exactly what the team experienced 1999.

Senior and team leader Brian Mitchell broke the school's home run record against Michigan, but on March 31 against Grand View, he strained his left hamstring and was limited to spot duty for most of the remaining games.

"I expected so much for this year, and to have it work out like it has is a disappointment. But there's nothing you can do about it," Mitchell said.

The team took its lumps this year, but showed that it will be a force to be reckoned with next year in the Big Ten. They return a solid core of young players, led by first baseman Brad Carlson. Carlson led the league with 21 home runs and 71 RBI's. In addition, junior Jim Magrane led the Big Ten in strikeouts with 110.

Iowa was able to produce plenty of offense, but a lack of depth of pitching and inability to hold late inning leads led to its downfall.

"We can score a lot of runs," head coach Scott Broghamer said. "We just need to get pitching, and we need to realize that when we get to those last few innings, we can win, and we can be a good baseball team."

The highlight of the year for Iowa was a 9-3 win over national power

Miami on March 20. Magrane pitched a complete game, and was awarded Big Ten Pitcher of the Week for his efforts.

MEN'S GOLF HEAD COACH: Terry Anderson
LAST SEASON: 8th at the Big Ten Championships

Anderson's squad starts strong, but struggle late

Coach Terry Anderson's 1998-99 team was young and inexperienced, with only one junior and a lone senior. Making things worse, only one player, Adam Turner, averaged under 77 strokes a round.

"We are a young team and probably considered a team of the future, but we are capable and want to play as if the future is now." Anderson said.

Then came the fall of '98 and a turnaround

The Hawkeyes improved dramatically, bettering their team scores and even took fourth at the Hawkeye Intercollegiate held at Finkbine, the team's home course.

Senior Chris Englund took the individual title with a 54-hole score of 216.

Junior Adam Turner, who had the lowest scoring average in the fall at 74.1, had a rough go of it in the spring.

Turner was averaging 80.5 strokes per round before being replaced in the five-man lineup before the Kepler Invitational on April 17-18.

In the two spring meets leading up to the lowa finished eigth at the Big Ten Championships.

"I am pleased with the progress this team is making," he said. "The key is to keep on build-ing and learning from the positive experiences we have been exposed to.'

WOMEN'S GOLF HEAD COACH: Diane Thomason
LAST SEASON: 9th at the Big Ten Championships

Lack of depth hinders Thomason's Hawkeye golfers

It was this year that lowa women's golf Coach Diane Thomason and others predicted would be the season that lowa golf would nally shine bright again.

Thomason's heralded junior class, comprising Kelli Carney, three-time lowa state champion M.C. Mullen and 1998 Big Ten hampion Stacey Bergman, seemed destined to put lowa on the collegiate golfing map.

Bergman left the team and transferred to lennessee after the spring season for person-

"She was a good player for us, but we are a close-knit group, and we will leave the situa-tion in the past," Thomason said.

That left Thomason with only five players at the start of the fall season - Mullen, Carney, sophomores Meghan Spero and Katherine Mowat and freshman Sasha Chacon.

The fall season started with a bang, as Spero won the her first title at the Unlimited Potential/Cougar Fall Invitational in Myrtle Beach, S.C., the team's first tournament of the year, lowa finished in second place, its best finish of the four fall events.

Coincidentally, lowa had a tournament chamon and a second-place finish in its next trip to Myrtle Beach over Spring Break, in March.

This time it was Mullen taking her first collegiate title and the Hawkeyes vaulting into second place.

Mullen also led lowa at the conference tournament, placing third of out the 66 player field.

"I thought that this year we'd really start hitting our stride. In fact, other coaches in the Big Ten had even said that to me," Thomason said. "This year, to be honest, its been a struggle because we just don't have the depth we need.'

Keeping the legal drinking age at 21 saves lives and prevents injuries

Since the 1970s, at least 40 studies have examined the effects of either increasing or decreasing the minimum legal drinking age. Here are the findings:

- When the drinking age is lowered, injury and deaths increase.
- When the drinking age is raised, death and injury rates decline.
- A legal drinking age of 21 saves well over 1000 lives each year.
- Opponents of a high legal drinking age argue that because many minors still manage to purchase alcohol, raising the legal drinking age doesn't work. The evidence shows however, that although many youth consume alcohol, they drink less and experience fewer alcohol-related injuries.
- When the drinking age is 21, minors drink less overall and continue that pattern through their early twenties.

(Toomey, Traci L. et al. The Minimum Legal Drinking Age: History, Effectiveness and Ongoing Debate. Alcohol Health & Research World, Vol. 20, No. 4, 1996)

Which probably explains why so many people support it

- Nearly 60 percent of University of Iowa students said they support a "crackdown on underage drinking." Among non-drinkers, more than 90 percent of the UI respondents agreed with that statement. Nearly 80 percent of UI non-bingers agreed. Even 52 percent of the occasional bingers on the UI campus agreed with the need to crackdown on underage drinkers. (Harvard School of Public Health survey, 1997)
- 78 percent of Iowa City and Coralville residents said they favored cracking down on underage drinking even if it hurts business in bars and stores that sell alcohol.

  (Iowa Social Science Institute survey, April 1998)
- An overwhelming majority of Americans view underage drinking as a significant problem and support measures to reduce it. 84 percent oppose lowering the legal drinking age from 21 to 19. 83 percent support laws that penalize adults who supply alcohol to minors. 82 percent believe bars and stores are lax in selling to teens. (Youth Access to Alcohol Study, Robert Wood Johnson Foundation, 1998)

By Lisa Colonno The Daily Iowan

The Iowa women's tennis team tarted it's season with hopes of makg the NCAA Championships.

In May, the Hawkeyes accomished that goal, and made Iowa tenhistory in the process.

No. 39 Iowa advanced to the NCAA Championships' "Sweet 16" Gainesville, Fla. where the team fell to No. 4 Duke, 5-0, May 20.

Iowa finished with an 18-9 overall

"We fought hard and this was a great year," coach Paul Wardlaw said. "Making the tournament and advancing is all part of the process, and we want to make sure this becomes the norm and not the exception.

This was Iowa's first appearance in the NCAA Championships in school

In the tournament's first round, Iowa upset No. 19 Florida State, 5-4. The match was held May 15 in South Bend, Ind.

Iowa continued to deliver upsets in the second round, defeating No. 12 Notre Dame, 5-4, on May 16. The and came back and won," Wardlaw match was also held in South Bend.

This was Iowa's first-ever victory against the Fighting Irish and ended Notre Dame's 12-dual match winning streak

"We left our hearts on the court," Shera Wiegler said following the Notre Dame match. "All year we wanted to be in the top 16 (in the country). We just gave it all we had."

These wins sent Iowa to the "Sweet

In the "Sweet 16" the No. 4 Blue Devils put an end to the Hawkeves' history-making season, but two Iowa players remained in the tournament.

The No. 38-ranked doubles team of Toni Neykova and Wiegler qualified for NCAA Individual Doubles Tournament.

Men's Tennis

HEAD COACH: Steve Houghton

LAST SEASON: 11-12 overall, 4-5 Big Ten

Experienced Hawkeyes shooting for Big Ten prominence

After a seventh-place finish in the Big Ten last spring, the lowa men's tennis team is looking ahead to a promising 1999-00 sea-

"I think we'll have a very successful sean," said Petar Mandic, who played No. 4 les last season. "We are highly motivated, and we have lots of potential for this year."

lowa lost only three graduating seniors last ason (Girts Auskaps, Ben Bamsey and Ulf entler), along with sophomore Jason Dunn, who is getting married.

"But we'll return five guys with some good experience," Coach Steve Houghton said.

All-Big Ten and No. 1 singles player Tyler Cleveland, Tom Buetikofer, Jake Wilson, J.R. Chidley and Mandic will all return to the Hawkeye lineup.

lowa will also gain three recruits. Pete Rose and Eric Kozlowski, both from the Chicago area, signed in the fall of 1998. Stuart Waters, from Omaha, Neb., also signed with the "(Waters) was a high-profile recruit,"

Houghton said. "He should step in the lineup right away.

'The future for this year is really good. The upside to the injuries last season is that it will make the guys who had to move up in the lineup better this year.'

Injuries were the story of the season for lowa in the spring, which tied Northwestern for seventh in the conference. Several players took turns sitting out of the lineup, some missing the entire spring season and others part or all of the Big Ten season.

"Five of our better guys were injured during the year," Houghton said. "We will never know what might have been, but we could have been a little above .500 (in the Big Ten) rather than a little below.'

The Hawkeyes will have the opportunity to prove that this season.

"I think this year we can realistically be in the top three in the Big Ten," Mandic said. "Illinois will lose its top guys, as will Minnesota. We will be one year older and more experienced.

Dwight's return sparks lowa tracksters

By Mike Kelly

The Daily Iowan

In just three years, Iowa coach Larry Wieczorek has taken his men's track and field team from the Big Ten basement to the NCAA tourna-

Iowa finished second at the Big Ten Championships, the Hawkeye's highest finish since Wieczorek was a runner at Iowa in 1967.

The big story last year was Dwight.

The Atlanta Falcon starreturned to Iowa to run track and get his degree.

Dwight finished first in three events at the Big Ten Championships, including winning the 100-meter dash. He was named the event's outstanding performer.

"He's a folklore hero," Wieczorek said. "That's the reason legends are legends. He's one in a million."

Even though Dwight will not be back, Iowa's squad will not be depleted. Bashir Yamini comes back as well as sophomore throwers Jeremy Allen and Arno van der Westhuizen.

With so many key performers coming back, this year's Iowa track team should compete for a Big Ten title, even without an NFL player coming back.

WOMEN'STRACK AND FIELD

Head coach: Jim Grant LAST SEASON: 9th in the Big Ten

Women's track hit hard by graduation

By Todd Hefferman

The Daily Iowan

The nucleus of last year's Iowa women's track and field team has moved on since their ninth-place finish at the 1999 Big Ten Track and Field Outdoor Championships.

The Hawkeyes lose 10 seniors from last year's squad, leaving holes in the distance running events and a few dents in the sprints. Three new additions will try to fill those holes, and help the Hawkeves improve on their second-consecutive ninthplace finish in the Big Ten.

Out of the 14 events, the Hawkeyes lost team leaders in eight of them to graduation.

However, this season will not be a lost cause for Iowa. Two school record-holders return, and coach Jim Grant has added a junior college transfer from Arizona and two state champions to Hawkeyes in order to fill in the gaps left by the graduates.

"We needed to strengthen our hurdles and middle distances and these two will have an immediate impact by adding quality depth to our program,' Grant said.

The Hawkeyes' strongest events look to be the sprints and the shot put.

Hancher set to meow and stomp

The renowned auditorium gives the UI community the chance to partake of the best of music, dance and theater.

By Deanna Thomann The Daily Iowan

Bruce Springsteen, Ella Fitzgerald, Jay Leno, Dizzy Gillespie, Jerry Seinfeld and Luciano Pavarotti all have an Iowa City connection they've all graced the Hancher Auditorium stage.

For 27 years Hancher has brought the best in production and performance to Iowa City.

"We like to think that we are one of the best presenters in the country," said Hancher Director Wally Chappell. "The range of events and their quality are on the high side."

Located on the northwest side of campus, Hancher has attracted audiences from both near and far. UI students account for a quarter of Hancher's audience attendance, Chappell said, adding that he believes the UI is an institution that fosters great support for the arts.

"The arts set the tone for the campus, whether it be music, dance, visual arts or writing programs. Students come here wanting to participate in the arts," he said.

Teresa Welsh, a UI junior and Hancher employee, believes there's something for everyone at Hancher.

"All the shows provide something different, which makes it exciting to attend Hancher," she said. "It's great to have such renowned national and international acts coming to Iowa City."

The tradition of greatness will continue this season, when Hancher will present its "Millennium Festival," sonamed even though the millennium will not actually arrive until 2001. Here's a sampling of its upcoming events:

Music

The felines are prepared to pounce again on the Hancher stage in December in Andrew Lloyd Webber's musical production Cats! The Broadway treasure appeared last year at Hancher and is sure to leave audiences meowing for more once again.

If you're seeking a story of love and rich history, Les Misérables may be your ticket. This stunning production traces three decades of French history through a heroic tale of determination and sacrifice. A revolving stage platform will be used to heighten the action of this celebrated performance.

The arts set the tone for the campus, whether it be music, dance, visual arts or writing programs. Students come here wanting to participate in the arts.

> Wally Chappell, Hancher director

As for soloists, renowned cellist Yo-Yo Ma will make a return to Hancher this season, and Chappell expects a wonderful show.

Ma will treat audiences to a beautiful and spontaneous blend of sounds. Experimental and improvisational in nature, Ma's musical styles are unlike any other. His concert is scheduled for traditional to contemporary movement, Hancher has much to offer dance enthusiasts this season. "It'll be a remarkable year for dance," Chappell said. "We'll be presenting some of the strongest modern dance," Chappell said. "We'll be presenting some of the strongest modern and ballet dance companies. They'll provide very physical, take-you-to-the-roof performances."

Early in the season, Sankai Juku will invite audiences to travel the road to enlightenment. The sixmember troupe will present highly stylized Japanese dance from the butch tradition; the Hancher performance will be the group's American première.

The Bill T. Jones/ Arnie Zane Dance Company will unveil the world première of Oh? You Walk? at Hancher this season. The production will feature an intricate synthesis of African, European, Latin and South American cultures through amazing movement.

For more traditional tastes,
t h e American Ballet Theatre will fill the stage with new work by UI alumnus

Lar Lubovitch. His breathtaking production will captivate audiences with its sheer beauty and elegance.

Other dance companies scheduled to perform this season include the Twyla Tharp Dancers, Susan Marshall & Company, the Alvin Ailey American Dance Theater and the Paul Taylor Dance Company.

Miscellaneous

Stomp is sure to convince audiences that the potential for rhythm is everywhere. From newspapers, garbage sacks and oil drums to Zippo lighters and kitchen sinks, this group of percussionists can find a pulse in the most inanimate objects. The show, scheduled for late January, is a must-see!

The American première of Geometry of Miracles will trace the life of artistic genius Frank Lloyd Wright. The multimedia production will incorporate drama and visual poetry to explore the many dimensions of Wright's career.

For something entirely different, Capitol Steps will entertain audiences with satirical skits. From a hilarious impeachment trial to a one-of-a-kind election campaign, this group will leave people rolling in the aisles with laughter.

For most shows, Hancher offers a 20-percent discount on tickets for UI students. To obtain a complete list of upcoming events as well as ticket order forms, visit the Hancher Box Office, the Iowa City Public Library or the information center at the IMU.

Since 1973, the Student Commission On Programming and Entertainment has worked with the UI to bring the most recent and popular music entities available. SCOPE goes about bringing in the big names by contacting agents and then working out prices and discussing routing. Artists are available based on their touring positions and whether it is reasonable for them to make the stop.

Elton John played at Carver-Hawkeye Arena earlier this year; it was the first time in five years that SCOPE produced a concert in that venue. "There were issues with the rigging," Barker said.

Now that the technological barriers have been broken, Barker said, he plans on pushing for more shows in the arena. Normally, most of the SCOPE productions are held in the IMU.

Nothing as of yet has been booked for the next year, but, Barker said, it will be a good year in music for the UI.

"I want to bring in different genres of music. We'd also like to get our name into Carver a little bit more. Diversity has always been a goal of mine.

■ The Lecture Committee continues to bring big-name speakers to the UI.

By Stacy Atchison The Daily Iowan

With the start of a new school year, the UI Lecture Committee is revving up to bring speakers from across the country. Last year, the group brought such distinguished people as former Sen. George Mitchell, Jocelyn Elders and Arun Gandhi to speak at the UI.

"We're one of the only lecture committees that's mostly run by stuand I dents think that's great for students who go here, because their interests are represented in a better way," he said.

In addition to bringing in bigspeakers, name Ray said the committee has increased its efforts significantly to work with other student groups in co-sponsoring speakers.

"Any recognized student group can come to us if they want a public speaker," he said. "The Sister Connection came to us, for example, and for the Black Women's Conference they wanted to bring in Sister Souljah."

Ray said the average amount of money the committee gives when co-sponsoring a speaker is either $800 or half of the total cost of the program, which ever is the lesser amount. When the lecture committee solely sponsors a high-profile speaker, Ray said, fees can reach $12,000. The lecture committee's monetary budget is allocated to it each year by the UI Student Government.

The lecture is run by seven students, three faculty members and one staff member. To serve on the lecture committee, students must fill out an application, which are made available about the first of every April, and then interview with the UISG president, vice president and stu-

"We had to start right away, and I kind of felt like there were a lot of things to do. After a couple events, though, I caught on," Shah said. "I remember our director telling us that he couldn't really explain our job. You just do what you have to do."

The largest student organization on campus, KRUI provides opportunities for approximately 120 students in radio production, as disc jockeys and on the news and sports staffs.

"We're only as strong as our volunteers," said Rob Bennett, KRUI general manager. The interesting thing about KRUI is that there is quite a few diverse interests."

tion, Bennett said, he wants to differentiate KRUI from commercial radio.

"College radio stations are what keep the underground alive," Bennett said. "They should be more diverse. We need to bring different types of culture and entertainment that people don't normally have to our audience."

Student Video Productions produces videos for business organizations and airs its own programs on the Public Access channel.

There are approximately 50 active members in the group. Members go through workshops to learn how to computer edit and how to work with cameras, VCRs, sound equipment, lighting and several other aspects of broadcast television.

There isn't any one type of person in the group, said Jon Reberry, the general man-

"Anyone who wants a creative outlet should get involved," he said. "It's better than mashed potatoes.

Noting such shows as "Vengeance Zombies 2000" and "Life of Crime," Reberry said Student Video Productions can be whatever the members want it to be.

"If you've got anything in your head, we can make it," he said.

From ballet to swing and everything in between, the UI Department of Dance presents a vast array of styles throughout the regular school-year.

The dance department's 1999-00 concert season will include several "sace/Place performances, which give UI dance students the opportunity to present deir own works in a relaxed-yet-profes-"snal setting."

"Dance Gala," the most anticipated UI dance event, will be held on Nov. 12 and 13 in Hancher Auditorium. The production will offer a stunning variety of performances created by UI faculty and guest choreographers.

"Dance Gala' capitalizes on choreograchy produced both internationally and at the university," said Alicia Brown, an associate dance professor and artistic director of "Dance Gala." "We try to make it a varied show featuring some ballet, azz and modern dance."

"Often, when people think of dance, a three-hour program comes to mind, with people running around in tutus, but it's not like that at all," McComas said. "We present rich and varied pieces, and the choreography is cool."

Brown also encourages students to attend UI arts events.

"I would hope students at this university would engage themselves in the arts, whether it be music, drama or dance," she said. "The arts are really an important part of our creative life."

Enriching their lives by trodding the boards

The renowned UI theater program, which has trained the likes of Gene Wilder, has been around for 75 years.

By Lisa Hemann

The Daily Iowan

Oompa, loompa, diddley do; I've got a little riddle for you. Oompa, loompa, diddley dee; without Gene Wilder, who'd Willy Wonka be?

Gene Wilder, a.k.a Willy Wonka, was a student in the UI theater department who went on to become — well, Gene Wilder.

The 75-year-old program is equally amous, especially for its playwriting program, said John Cameron, an associate professor in the Department of Theatre Arts.

"We really focus on new work and put around 20 productions a year, which is more than most other programs in the puntry," he said. "It is one of the premier playwriting programs around."

The department puts on three kinds of productions: Mainstage productions are often directed by faculty; second-stage productions are similar but receive a slightly maller budget. Gallery productions are directed by either faculty or students and receive a minimal budget.

The Theatre Building houses the E.C. Mabie Theatre, Theatre B and the David Thayer Theatre.

"Students have a lot of opportunities to get involved on a number of levels," Cameron said. "It really depends on how much someone wants to get involved. The opportunities are there."

About a third of the theater students are double majors, Cameron said.

"Being involved in theater broadens your perspective and gives you another reference point from which to look at the world," he said. "Any activity in the arts enriches any course of study, whether it be science, music, math or whatever."

David Priebe notices Oliver Keith Stoutner mocking him in the play Fantasticks.

The variety of people involved in theater keeps the students' experiences interesting, UI sophomore Maura McGrath said.

"In situations where you draw from your own experience so much, it would be boring if everyone was coming from the same background," she said.

Getting involved in the program provides an alternative perspective on life, Cameron said.

"Theater is a reflection of who and what we are," he said. "If you get involved in theater, it's inevitable that you'll have a better understanding of the world."

The program offers a Master of Fine Arts in English, as well as an opportunity for promising writers to study under the guidance of established poets and prose writers.

The workshop officially began in 1936, 14 years after Carl Seashore, dean of the Graduate College, announced that creative work would be accepted as theses for advanced degrees.

Under the guidance of Paul Engle, who assumed the directorship in 1941 and held it for 25 years, the workshop grew rapidly, from fewer than a dozen students during the war years to 250 students in 1965.

Engle is credited with establishing one of the workshop's driving philosophies: The creation of literature is as valuable as the study of literature.

Current Director Frank Conroy, who became head of the workshop in 1987, said he has tried to maintain the workshop's tradition of attracting talented faculty and promising writers.

"It seems to have been working well for 62 years," he said.

The workshop has resisted recent pressure to increase its enrollment. Maintaining an informal environment in which all students know one another is part of the workshop's strength, Conroy ■ UI musical ensemble groups provide new students the chance to meet people and participate in cultural performances.

By T.J. Besler The Daily Iowan

City

The UI has a lot to offer new students in the realm of musical performance — five vocal ensembles, as well as band and orchestra, all of which are known for the quality they produce and the education they offer their participants.

UI freshman Kate Lechtenberg said getting involved with an ensemble, whether it be band, orchestra or choral, is an experience that everyone should look into.

"If you have any inkling at all that you might want to perform with an ensemble — audition. It is a great way to get to know people, especially for new students."

Lechtenberg noted that many of the ensembles are directed by graduate students. "Some ensembles are directed by graduate students, and they bring a fresh perspective to the music department, because their student experience is close in mind."

David Shaler, graduate student and director of the University Choir, believes that not only is being part of an ensemble important but also that the UI is a good place to pursue it.

"When I decided to come here, Iowa was one of a handful of schools with a tradition of a good program that was recommended to me. Also, it's a Big Ten school, so there is a tradition of scholarship and excellent faculty. There's a certain class about it."

Shaler also contends that it doesn't matter if you are a music major or planning on pursuing a career in the arts — there is a place for you somewhere in one of the many ensembles.

"Many students come here and think that they are too busy or that they won't fit in, but those are exactly the type of students we need. Students with other backgrounds and that come from different fields of study bring perspectives to the clion that many of us take for granted."

Although there is definitely a musical aspect in being part of an ensemble, Shaler said, he believes that there is a very important cultural and social aspect as well.

"In an ensemble, you get to deal with texts from different cultures and languages that challenge you constantly. Also, the social aspect goes without saying. Making music with people and striving toward perfection together locks in bonds of friendship. It's a great thrill."

Auditions for ensembles are held at the beginning of every year. For more information, contact the main office of the Voxman Music Building at 335-1603.

ARTS&ENTERTAINMENTMARCHINGBAND

Creating the game atmosphere for Hawkeye fans

The Hawkeye Marching Band seps up the atmosphere at home botball games.

By Lisa Hemann

The Daily Iowan

'Armed with clarinets and flutes, tubas and trombones, snare drums and cymals, the members of the UI Hawkeye arching Band climb into their section Kinnick Stadium. It may be just the exground music to another football the to some people, but without the and, a game wouldn't be the same.

"The band is part of what makes the stire atmosphere at a game," UI sophosore Beth Szafranski said. "It'd be eird if there weren't a band playing music between plays."

When new students come to rientation the summer before their ust semester, they have the option of tending the Hawkeye Marching Band O-outs, during which they will have an adition and will be asked to mark time to a niere.

"Usually, most people are accepted for be try-outs at Orientation," UI sopholore Theresa Rooney said.

Then the real try-outs begin. The reek before classes start, better known as Hell Week to the Hawkeye Marching Band, the freshmen who have passed he first try-out arrive on Wednesday to learn how to march Hawkeye-style.

The rest of the band arrives Wednesday night. The entire band rehearses all day Thursday and Friday with breaks to get water and to eat.

"It's really tough, physically," Rooney said. "I lost 10 pounds last year, just because you're marching about six or seven hours out in the hot sun." People are selected based on their ability and also on how many and which performers the band needs to replace..

"It depends a lot on instrumentation," Rooney said. "For winds, it's harder, because they just don't take so many."

There are also a group of alternates chosen for each section. Alternates are usually underclassmen and play when one of the members can't make it to a game, Rooney said.

Pep Band, which plays at basketball games, and the I-Club Band, which plays at the I-Club breakfast, are both chosen from the Hawkeye Marching Band.

Joining the band is a great way to meet a variety of new people, UI sophomore Scott Fiddelke said.

"It's a really big change from high school, but I'd say that was where my friend base was when I first came here," he said

The time commitment for the marching band is big, with two-hour practices at least four days a week when there isn't a game, Fiddelke said.

The marching band always goes to the Iowa State game when it's held in Ames and takes at least one other all-expensespaid road trip every year, Rooney said.

"One of the main reasons I joined was the road trips," Fiddelke said. "You get a free trip, and they are a lot of fun."

The uniforms and road trips are free, but there is a $15 fee for the marching band T-shirt.

"It's not that expensive, and you get to meet people from all different majors and of all different ages," Rooney said. "For a lot of people, it's the only time when they're not sitting down doing homework. If you have time, it's worth it."

Queens of drag, work it, girl

By Jim Mack The Daily Iowan

LUBS,

1998 was a big year for the mainstream increance of drag shows in Iowa City. This past year has been just as consistent in mixing this alternative form of enter-timment into the city's already thriving patertainment scene.

Drag shows were a rarity a little more an two years ago; their leap in popularity locally can be traced to the Iowa City Community Theatre production of the ausical La Cage aux Folles, said local drag queen "Johnny," whose drag name is augusta Grey. The musical is based on the French film of the same name; the American movie The Birdcage also used the French film for its source of inspiration.

Venues that hold drag events, such as the Deadwood Tavern, 6 S. Dubuque St., sever second-guessed the decision to host the shows. "We cater to a very diverse trowd. We get straight people in here; we set gay people in here; we get all types of people in here," said Amy Gargus, the nanager of the Deadwood. "It's something or customers are interested in, and we wretty much cater to our customers."

The Deadwood has been holding drag shows for almost five years, including 5 839 hree in the past year. It tries to bring in We cater to a very diverse crowd. We get straight people in here; we get gay people in here; we get all types of people in here.

events that reach the interests of a diverse audience. "We try to do things differently from other bars because we want to include everyone," Gargus said.

Drag shows held at the Deadwood have always had a good response.

"We normally have a line going out the door — which means that we're at capacity, and we can't keep letting people in," Gargus said. "I have never been to a drag show here at the Deadwood where it hasn't been a huge turnout."

Last summer, the Fieldhouse Restaurant & Bar, 111 E. College St., played host to the preliminary round of the Miss Gay USA pageant, Miss Gay Iowa City, and experienced the same degree of popularity.

"It was on a Sunday night. The attitude was very good, and it was lively," said Mike McConnell, manager of the Fieldhouse. "I didn't have any problems with it at all."

The money-making opportunities generated by the shows' popularity seem to be the reason that so many bars and local venues have picked up drag events.

"Some of the other bars see what business we're doing; they see the lines outside of people trying to get in," Gargus said. "I think other bars wanted to cash in on that."

Other venues that have held drag shows include the Breakroom, 1578 First Ave.; the Union Bar, 121 E. College St.; Gabe's, 330 E. Washington St.; the IMU; and Gunnerz before it closed.

On April 22, the Deadwood held a benefit show to aid in sending local drag queen

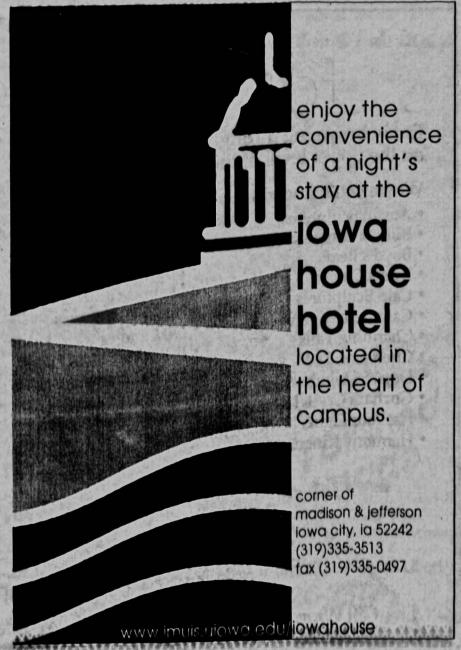

Grey to this year's Miss Gay USA pageant. This year Grey holds the honors of Miss Gay Central State and Miss Gay Central National. Last year Grey was crowned Miss Gay Iowa.

Grey attributes the success of recent drag shows to the welcoming atmosphere that Iowa City provides.

"I think it's because there is so much acceptance here. There's such a variety of people from big towns that accept it here," said Grey.

When the lights go down, you know the candy is expensive

Lucky you, here's a little wdown on local "moving acture" theaters.

By Gene Stupnitsky

The Daily Iowan

Do you like the moving pictures?

ell, if you do — and if you're human,
ou should — then let's talk options.
If you have no car, no fear, because the best theater in town is at the IMU
it's called the Bijou.

The Bijou is where you will find me that challenge your every-day issumptions about life. No special fects here — this is strictly art house. Say it with me: "art house."

The Bijou has the best in artsy-fartof existential fare. You owe it to yourplf to check it out, because chances are that no other theater in the state fill have these movies. So if you're and up with your run-of-the-mill teen torror flicks, you won't find them here; variety is the word, with both dependent and foreign films. If you the intellectual nourishment with four cinema, this is the place.

At Coral Ridge Mall, you have a 10creen theater. This is the means the post variety among the mainstream dudio films. The Coral Theatres have be best sound and the comfiest (Englert) is very old ... what it lacks in modernity it more than makes up for in atmosphere ... the people that work there have charisma flowing out of their pores.

chairs. The candy is expensive.

At the other end of the spectrum there is Sycamore Mall. You will need a vehicle to get here, also. This theater truly sucks — probably the worst that I've been to. The screen is about the size of my computer monitor. The seats are not raised, so it's doubly hard to see. And there are many seats, so if you don't get there early, bring binoculars if you want to see the movie. Avoid this place if you can.

Campus Theatres is in the Old Capitol Mall. You don't need a car, and it usually has a decent collection of movies. There are three screens, and the films stay there for months at a time. The candy is expensive.

At 221 E. Washington St. is the Englert. It is very old and very charming — you know, like old school. The Englert has two screens. Make no mistake, this theater is old, and the technology is not the best, but what it lacks in modernity it more than makes up for in atmosphere. Oh yeah, the people that work there have charisma flowing out of their pores. Just don't ask about the tattoo on the

So the next time you want to see those moving pictures, take the preceding into account. Or you can just stay home and rent a movie.
