Coralville revels in new town square

After 126 years, Coralville gets a new town square. The people of Coralville are a small town of about 1,000 people, and they have a lot of pride in their town. The Coralville city council, the mayor, and the town residents are excited about the new town square.

For the first time in 126 years, Coralville has been looking at a new town square. The old town square was small and run down, but the new one is a big improvement. It's a lot bigger and more modern, with more buildings and better landscaping.

The new town square is a big upgrade for Coralville. It's a place where people can gather and enjoy themselves. It's also a place where they can learn about the history of the town.

The construction of the new town square has been a big project for the Coralville city council. They have been working on it for a long time, and it's finally done. The town square is now open for everyone to enjoy.

Coralville is a small town, but it's a place where people take pride in their community. They have worked hard to make their town a better place to live, and the new town square is a testament to that. It's a place where people can feel proud to be a part of the town.

Coralville has a lot of history and a lot of pride. They have a lot to offer, and they're always working to make their town a better place to live.
IWP responds to a new program than alters athletics and education

It is with regret that I convey the news of President Gabriel's recent letter. As you may know, the Iowa WAC, an affiliate of the Iowa Conference, has been invited to join the Midwest Conference. This move has been made possible through the recent expansion of the Midwest Conference to include programs in football, basketball, and hockey. The decision was made based on a comprehensive evaluation of the Iowa WAC's athletic and academic programs, and it is believed that this move will best serve the interests of our student-athletes and academic community.

President Gabriel has stated that the Iowa WAC will continue to support its traditional programs and will continue to strive for excellence in both athletics and academics. He has also expressed his confidence in the leadership of the Iowa WAC and its ability to continue to provide a high-quality educational experience for its students.

As a member of the Iowa WAC, IWP will have the opportunity to compete at a higher level and to enhance our athletic and academic programs. This move is a testament to the hard work and dedication of our student-athletes and faculty, and it is a reflection of the values we hold dear.

We are committed to providing a positive and enriching experience for our students, and we are confident that this new affiliation will allow us to continue to do so. We will continue to work hard to ensure that our academic programs remain a priority, and we will strive to provide our student-athletes with the best possible opportunities to succeed both on and off the field.

Thank you for your support and for your continued commitment to the Iowa WAC. We look forward to the future with excitement and anticipation.

Sincerely,
President Gabriel
Keyes comes stumbling into town

Republican Alan Keyes appears to be in the lead in Crabapple in his bid for the presidential nomination.

By David Fipps

WASHINGTON - For a week in which President Bush has been wooing supporters of the House and Senate Committees on Appropriations in the West Wing of the Old Executive Office Building, Alan Keyes has been wooing the West Wing of the Crabapple Inn.

Keyes is known for his moral, conservative philosophy in which he advocates abortion, school prayer and the right to bear arms. Bush, who is also a conservative, is known for his firm stance on abortion.

The two men are likely to be seen as similar, with Bush's appeal to the religious right and Keyes' support for the same, but Keyes' support for school prayer and abortion may be the deciding factor in the election.

In addition, Keyes' support for school prayer and abortion may be the deciding factor in the election.

Gallows shines in losing effort

Iowa junior Kyle Gallaway scored 41 points in his first competitive game since a 1998 back injury.

The Daily Iowan

Kyle Gallaway hadn't played basketball competitively in quite a while. He didn't show it in the Prime Time League game Thursday night at the Iowa Athletics Pavilion.

Gallaway is one of the players on the Drake basketball team that Mike Garrett hired to fill his team. He's trying to break into the starting lineup.

The game also marked the first Iowa games for Iowa basketballs. Former Iowa basketballs, Daniels and Hayes, were on the starting lineup for the Drake basketball team

I'm exceptionally happy that I get to play with my point guard," Daniels said. "I really wanted to get and get used to the way we played. We're working on it. We're trying to build a good team."

The game was the latest of the Iowa games. The Hawkeyes had fans of Iowa fans, and for Garrett, the game was a test of their work.

"We're ready to go," Garrett said. "We're ready to play. We're ready to play. We're ready to get this team in a row. We're ready to get this team in a row."

I'm very happy with our team's performance, Garrett said. "I'm very happy with our team's performance. We're ready to go. We're ready to go."

Grant deserves title shot in the near future

The Stros, unsure they might be playing their final home game if they don't clinch a berth in the playoffs, are beginning to look like a desperate team. "It's not like a playoff game," said Manager Terry Crawford. "But it is a must-win game. Everyone is going to be working hard to make sure we win.

The last time they faced the Rangers, the Stros lost 3-2 at home. This time, they hope to come out on top.

The pitching has been strong for the Stros, with RHP Bob Purkey leading the way with a 2.24 ERA. The offense, however, has struggled, with only five home runs hit in the last 10 games.

The Stros will try to take advantage of the Rangers' weak defense, which has allowed 39 runs in the last 10 games. If they can hold the Rangers to less than four runs, they will have a good chance of winning.

The game starts at 7:05 p.m. at Minute Maid Park. It will be televised on ESPN2.
