By Barry Schweid Associated Press

The State Department reopened five embassies in Africa Monday but said terrorists directed by fugitive Saudi millionaire Osama bin Laden may still be preparing attacks on U.S. facilities

Declaring the protection of American diplomats to be a top priority, spokesman James Rubin said the embassy in Madagascar would remain shuttered, with daily evaluations of the situation in the Indian Ocean island republic.

Security at all six embassies has been enhanced since operations were suspended on June 24, but they remain the targets of "suspicious surveillance," Rubin said.

He would not say whether U.S. intelligence knows bin Laden's whereabouts but called him "a wanted man" whose "day will come."

Last week, Rubin gave no details about suspicious surveillance that led U.S. authorities to suspend operations at the embassies in Gambia, Togo, Liberia, Namibia, Senegal and

He did not explain Monday why intelligence and other officials who consulted over the weekend decided to reopen all the embassies except the one in Madagascar.

At the same time, Rubin renewed a warning that bin Laden may be preparing to strike on the Aug. 7 anniversary of bombings last year of the American embassies in Kenya and Tanzania. The blasts killed 224 people, including 12 Americans in Nairobi.

Ul dorms may breathe smoke-free

■ The no-tobacco, no-alcohol policy disgruntles some students, pleases others.

> By Gil Levy The Daily Iowan

In the last few years, the UI's crusade against alcohol has been gaining momentum, and now another issue is getting some notice - the use of

For 10 years, while the UI was slowly making its buildings smokefree, the residence halls were pretty much the last zones for smoking. But by the fall of 2000, UI administrators say that could change.

The UI is planning to implement a policy making the residence halls completely substance-free - meaning tobacco and alcohol products will be prohibited in the dorms, Phillip Jones, vice president for student services, said. Already, some students are disagreeing with the policy. "I think it's ridiculous," said UI senior Mark Sedgwick. "The university is becoming Big Brother or something - I guess it has the right; it owns the buildings. But people also have the right to do what they want if they're over 18. It's going too far." Currently, dorm residents are allowed to smoke in designated smoking rooms, and 21-vear-old residents are allowed to possess alcohol in their

But because most residents are not of legal drinking age and because the current smoking policy is sometimes abused, Jones said, the UI is considering implementing the substancefree policy.

"The majority of people in the dorms are under 21," he said. "We've been evolving towards substance-free, smoke-free buildings for years."

The UI has not officially announced the policy, Jones said, but is in the process of printing out new contracts and publications, so that when students come back this fall, they will be made aware of the possible change.

"The reason we're giving a year's advance notice is so that students can have reactions and make comments," Jones said.

The policy is independent of the alcohol ban imposed by the UI on the Greek system, which will begin this fall, he said.

Laura Hunger, a resident assistant in Currier Residence Hall, said the

Interns laud hands-on experience

■ The UI Career Development Services can be helpful in finding the perfect internship.

> By Melissa Renaud The Daily Iowan

While many students are busy working three jobs during the summer to pay off their U-bills, others choose to prepare for their future careers with summer internships.

"Interning was one of the best things that has ever happened to me," said Becky Bixby, a UI senior in film studies and production who worked as an intern for the "Late Show with David Letterman."

"It's hard breaking into the entertainment industry, so it's important to make connections. You learn so much more from a real-life experience than you ever would reading books during your four years of college," she said.

However, finding an exciting internship can be a challenge.

Some students use the internshipplacement assistance at the UI Career Development Services, as Bixby did; others conduct their searches independently.

The office "encourages students to make their own networking contacts," said Jane Schildroth, the director of career services. However, Schildroth said, students are able to expand their choices through the office's connections with various companies.

"Many companies seeking interns want to know that they are affiliated with a university," she said.

"When a company hires an intern through our services, the student comes to the employer pre-approved, knowing that she or he has met certain academic standards.'

But some students believe that the choices are wider if a person

Cheers, jeers for Clinton proposal

Some people praise the idea. but some are skeptical about the feasibility of bolstering the plan with budget surpluses.

> By Angela Disalvo The Daily Iowan

President Clinton's proposal Monday to buttress Social Security with budget surpluses of more than $1 trillion sounds promising to UI students and professors, though some question its feasibility.

Esther Bauer, a Texas resident taking classes at the UI this summer, said she supports the proposal.

"It's a good thing to do something about Social Security and Medicare in a positive light," she said. "Both programs have been talking about trouble for years — I hope this works out." UI senior Stephen Sullivan said the plan could be helpful. "It would be great if Clinton could allot a budget for Social Security and Medicare and stick to it, especially if other programs don't suffer," he said. The plan would use surpluses raised over the next 15 years, but it included no dramatic increases in the targeted tax cuts that Clinton proposed earlier this year. But the president did not rule out considering deeper tax reductions in discussions with congressional Republicans later this year. Peverill Squire, a UI professor of political science, said the plan will likely give rise to a long and heated discussion in Congress.

"Today's form of the proposal can't be enacted," he said. "But the debate is beginning."

Squire also said that while the budget could look good now, there is no guarantee that the money would be there in the future.

Polling begins on amendments

■ Two state

constitutional amendments being voted on today have supporters and detractors.

By Kelly Wilson The Daily Iowan

Iowans will have the chance today to vote in a special election on two state constitutional amendments, as well as for a new member of the Johnson County Board of Supervisors.

First amendment

The first amendment would limit state spending by not allowing the Iowa Legislature and the governor to spend more than 99 percent of projected state revenue.

Rep. Minnette Doderer, D-Iowa City, believes that there is no need to change the 142-year-old state Constitution because a similar 99 percent law has already been followed by the Legislature for years.

Supporters of the current law say it is precisely because of the law's success that they want an amendment added to the Constitution.

Mary Howard, a UI senior program analyst who ran as a Republican for the state Senate last fall, said the amendment has her backing because she wants to make sure that the law is not changed. Once it part of the Constitution, it will make it harder for future legislatures to change the policy, she said. Another reason that people favor the amendment is because the remaining 1 percent of revenue would be put into a "rainy day" fund. The rainy day fund is a good idea because if revenue dramatically decreases - as in a farm crisis, the

United States world's leading polluter, experts say

■ The global-warming increase could be mitigated through individual and government efforts, scientists say.

By Erica C. Fogue The Daily Iowan

While there is general consensus that greenhouse gases are contributing to global warming, efforts to reduce humanity's contribution to the production of these gases are less coherent.

In an attempt to address the issue. the U.N. General Assembly has initiated a policy that calls for industrial nations to return levels of greenhouse gas emissions to 1990 levels by 2000. The policy, called the U.N. Frameglobal work Convention on Climate Change, was signed by 84 countries at the Earth Summit in Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, in 1992

More recently, in December 1997, the Kyoto protocol, adopted at the international Climate Summit in Kyoto, Japan, saw industrial nations agreeing to reduce greenhouse-gas emissions levels to 7 percent below those in 1990 by approximately 2010.

However, the U.S. Senate has not ratified the Kyoto protocol, due in part to Sen. Charles Grassley, Rlowa. Grassley co-sponsored a resolution that essentially blocks the United States from signing the agreement unless developing nations agree to do so as well.

U.S. has highest emissions Although some blame developing countries for causing greenhouse-gas emissions, the majority of such emissions today have been caused by industrialized nations - with the United States being the greatest polluter of all. In 1996, the US emitted 1,371 million tons of carbon dioxide, the biggest contributor to global warming, followed by China at 835 million tons and Russia at 435 million tons, according to the Union of Concerned Scientists, an organization that educates the public and policy-makers on global-warming issues.

PHILADELPHIA (AP) - Gregory Peck was honored by the city for his humanitarian work.

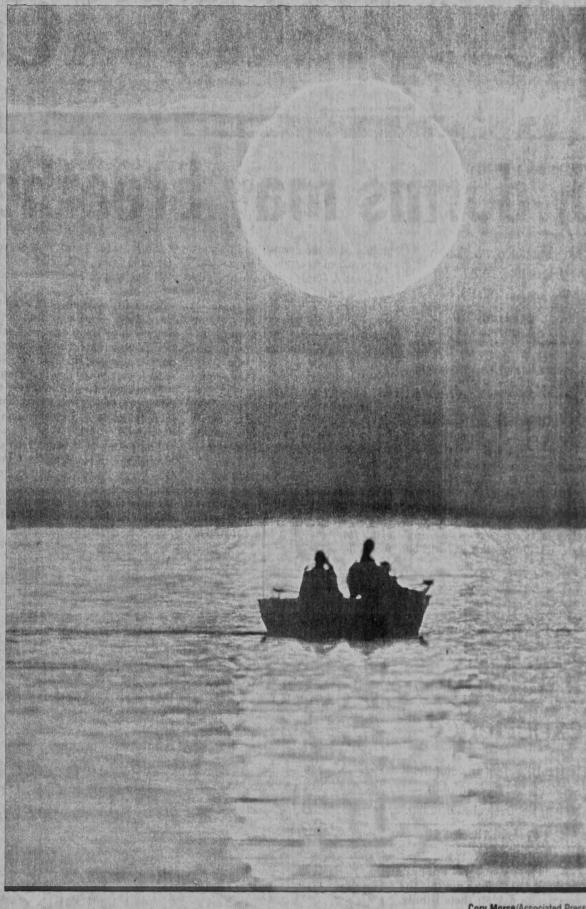

The 83-year-old actor received the second annual Marian Anderson Award on June 26 in front of 400 friends and fans. Peck received a crystal sculpture and $100,000, which he donated to several charities.

Among Peck's achievements are his starring role as Atticus Finch, the Southern lawyer who crusaded against racism in the 1962 film To Kill a Mockingbird.

He's also an outspoken supporter of gun control and has raised money for many causes, including cancer research and civil rights.

"Our Congress has been going around and around this past week," said Peck, referring to the battle over gun-control legislation. "What is wrong with keeping guns out of the hands of the wrong people?"

The recently constructed chicanes on Highland Avenue, which have resulted in numerous angry phone calls to the city from irate drivers, will be removed, the Iowa City City Council decided Monday night.

The chicanes, 10-inch-wide curbs that stick out from the side of the street, causing vehicles to drive in an S-shape, were placed in the street in hopes they would slow traffic, Mayor Ernie Lehman

While the devices did indeed slow traffic, residents on Highland Avenue as well as others who travel the road complained of the possible dangers of the chicanes, he said.

We cared enough to do something on that street, even if it was wrong," Lehman said. "We should still do something to slow the traffic down, even though we are taking out the chicanes.

The council also voted in favor of supporting the continued operation of amusement-park rides in City Park.

They have been operated for 47 years by the Drollinger family. Guy Drollinger said he felt it was time for him to pursue other interests but said he hoped the rides would remain in City Park.

"I think it is an important thing to the community to see those continue to operate," he said. "My first and foremost goal is to sell it to someone who will keep it in City Park. My second goal is to keep at least the train and carousel in the park and have it run by the city."

In order for the city to keep the train and carousel running, it will cost some money, said City Manager Steve Atkins.

If the Drollingers were to sell the rides to a buyer other than the city, he or she would not be able to run the rides as they currently are and still make money, said Terry Trueblood, parks and recreation commissioner.

In other action, Atkins recommended that, despite the company's bid being well above the estimate, the council award the Iowa Avenue parking ramp contract to McComas-Lacina Construction, 1310 Highland Court.

The company is the lowest bidder for the project, at $11.4 million; the architect's estimate is

We cared enough to do something on that street, even if it was wrong.

> - Ernie Lehman, mayor of Iowa City

The council also heard Monica and Marc Moen say they would like to build a "substantial" building on the former site of the Whiteway Building, which was destroyed by fire on March 26. In order for them to afford to build the type of building they would like, they would need a tax abatement, Monica Moen said.

"We can either leave the site the way it is, build another 'simpleunimaginative' building or a substantial commercial building," she said. "We have a tenant who is interested in making a long-term investment in this building."

The plan is to build a microbrewery occupying three levels, Monica Moen said.

The councilors were in favor of the tax abatement, but felt they should look into it further. Only the commercial portion of the building can be considered for tax abatement under state law.

Two square off for supervisor

■ Carol Thompson and John Boardman set out their platforms.

> By George Hild The Daily Iowan

Johnson County residents will elect one of two candidates to fill an open seat on the county's Board of Supervisors in today's special election.

Incumbent Carol Thompson, former chief juvenile court officer for Iowa's 6th District, has been an Iowa City resident since 1963. Her opponent, John Boardman, is director of Ambulatory Care Operations at the UI Hospitals and Clinics. A former UI student, Boardman has lived in Iowa City for the last 10 years.

Thompson has invited Johnson County residents to an election party at the Sanctuary Restaurant & Pub, 405 S. Gilbert St., today at 9 p.m. Boardman will be spending election night at home with his family.

The Daily Iowan talked with the two candidates.

Why are you running for the position?

Thompson: I was only recently appointed to the position and have been working there for about four months. That's not nearly enough time to accomplish the things I feel are important.

fectly with my current occupation. Health care is really my expertise, and roughly 40 percent of the Johnson County budget goes to health-care-related expenses. The position has also become too political and partisan. I'm apolitical and want to represent Johnson County in a nonpartisan manner.

What are your campaign issues?

Thompson: The real challenge for Johnson County is to retain the home-town flavor of county government. I feel that it has diminished a little because of the large amount of growth in the region, particularly in Johnson

My read on county tax-payers is they don't want elaborate bureaucracy in their government. However, as we continue to grow, we need to be able to rise to meet the challenges of modern government. There is currently a strong demand on Johnson County, with issues such as land use and zoning becoming very important.

Boardman: I would like to see the issue of land use being treated differently. For example, it can be very difficult for a farmer, who has owned his land for many years, to zone some of it so that

automobile accident

his children can build homes on Boardman: It corresponds per- it. Environmental impact is important to consider in land use, but we need to start taking the land owners' interests into account. That should be key.

Second, the county government needs to be restructured. I don't feel that it's nearly as efficient as it could be. By reducing its size back to three members, as it was a few years ago, we could work a lot better.

Finally, Johnson County needs to begin addressing its growing elderly population. We need to be better prepared to take care of the elderly, and we can start by giving them more of a voice, as their voice will undoubtedly become stronger.

Is there anything you would like the voters to remember?

Thompson: It is obviously very important that people remember to get out and vote today. If everybody I talked with over the phone remembers to get out to vote, I stand a great chance of winning.

Boardman: As an independent, I have no political agenda to protect. I have a strong community commitment and a solid realworld experience. The fact that I am not from around here will also be beneficial, as I will approach the job with a fresh perspective.

City Council faces decision on Northeast Side

LEGAL MATTERS

The type of development in the city's Northeast Side is scheduled to be decided on tonight.

> By Erin Gansen The Daily Iowan

A plan to rezone Iowa City's Northeast Side will be on the Iowa City City Council's agenda for the last time tonight.

The council may pass the rezoning, but it would not be implemented until sometime in the future. said Councilor Connie Champion.

The area in question - north of Court Street, south of Interstate 80, and east of Hickory Hill Park and

First Avenue — has been the subject of debate for the past year.

The controversy is over which method will be used the most to develop the district - "Traditional." "Conventional" or "Conservational," said Karin Franklin, director of Iowa City planning and community development.

"Traditional" neighborhood development incorporates interconnected grids of streets, neighborhood parks and public space that serves as a focal point for the neigh-

The original proposal for the area was drawn up after interviews with nearby property owners and planning workshops were considered, according to the planning depart-said. The group would like to see Hickory Hill protected by a buffer.

The Northeast area includes upland woodlands, portions of land with easily eroded soil, and the north and south corridors of Ralston Creek, according to the proposal. Also included in the district are potential wetlands, historic and archaeological sites.

Two weeks ago, the council added mixed housing to the plan's current zoning allowances, Champion said. The recent changes to the proposal have made the plan more agreeable to contractors and to some councilors, including Champion.

Matthew Gaumer, a recent graduate of the UI Recreation and Leisure Studies program, died in an automobile accident outside Mitchelville, Iowa, on June 26.

Gaumer, 28, of Fairfield, Iowa, was driving to Des Moines with Amy, his wife of four years, when the accident occurred. Amy Gaumer suffered a broken leg and underwent surgery at Des Moines Methodist Hospital.

The Gaumers had been returning from a wedding in Cedar Rapids to Des Moines, where they had recently bought a home. Their car was pushed into another vehicle on Interstate 80 near Mitchelville, said Matt Hanson, a friend of Matthew Gaumer. Gaumer was killed instantly.

Gaumer attended Drake University for his undergraduate degree and obtained his master's degree from UI this spring. His wife is a second-year student at the Osteopathic School of Medicine in Des Dave Oppegaard, a fellow Theta Chi fraternity member at Drake, called Gaumer a selfless individual.

"He was the best part of each and every one of us," he said. "He cared more about other people than he did about himself.

Gaumer, a former manager at Active Endeavors, 138 S. Clinton St., loved the outdoors, Hanson said. In April 1998, Gaumer was part of a Mount Everest climbing expedition led by Iowa City physician and climber Charles Huss.

The accident is under investigation by the Iowa State Patrol; no summary has been released.

Police to set up area checkpoints

CITY BRIEFS

Officers from UI Public Safety and local police departments, along with state troopers, will be working overtime to crack down on drunk driving with the help of a grant from the Governor's Traffic Safety Bureau.

Checkpoints will be conducted today from 8 p.m. to 1 a.m. as part of a twoday enforcement effort, which began Monday. On the UI campus, checkpoints will be located near Hancher Auditorium, on Park Road, and near Carver-Hawkeve Arena, on Hawkins

The primary emphasis of the checkpoints will to apprehend drunk drivers. Officers will also write citations for not wearing seat belts, possessing an open container of alcohol and not having a valid driver's license, said Coralville police Lt. Terry Koehn.

He said the checkpoints resulted in "well over 100" tickets being issued last year.

Deep in the heart of the yellow pose of Texas

o Texas Gov. George W. Shrub is running for president. Well, yippie-yi-yo. And get along little doggie. And all those other colorful expressions of Texan intellect.

It's not for nothing that Americans have long looked to the Lone Star State to get a sense of their philosophical underpinnings.

Why is the Shrub running for president? you ask. And well you should. After all, there must be some reason other than he's a white male with an Ivy League education. We've had a whole gaggle of presidents whose chief qualification seemed to be that they were white males with an Ivy League education, and frankly, not a one of them seemed to make any better a president than a white male with a Big Ten education or a Pac Ten education. I'd include white males with a Big Twelve education except that my father taught for several years in a Big Twelve university, using the word loosely, and from him I learned that the words "education" and "Big Twelve" should never be used in the same paragraph, let alone the same sentence.

And there must be some reason other than to demonstrate his far-reaching grasp of international policy. This is, after all, the Einstein of foreign affairs who enlightened us by calling the Timorese, Timorians, and the Kosovars, Kosovians, and the Greeks, Grecians. Such encyclopedic knowledge must run in the family. Shrub's father, Shrub Sr., once stupefied a convention hall of American veterans by informing them that Sept. 7, 1941, was Pearl Harbor Day. Obviously, while an Ivy League education is quite expensive, it's worth every penny.

The true reason that George W. Shrub thinks his next address should be 1600 Pennsylvania Ave. is probably quite simple. And mundane. His father was president once, inexplicably. Ergo, it must be the Shrub's turn. It's what passes for logic in the land of the modem and the home of the satellite dish.

The Shrub is leading the polls right now, but that's mostly because he's running against a gaggle of Bible-wavers who seem more interested in establishing a morality Gestapo than in governing a country. His Shrubness is also leading because he says nothing, beyond continually mouthing the phrase compassionate conservatism and re-arranging a few national identi-

There is one issue that might jump up and shear the Shrub, and that's the justice system in Texas. Basically, the system works like this: If you're a poor Texan, you'd have a better shot at justice if Pinochet were governor.

As Bob Herbert of the New York Times has been reporting for the past two years, poor defendants in Texas often languish in jail for months before they finally get to see a lawyer. This is before they've been found guilty of anything. Some get introduced to their attorneys the day their trial begins, which, of course, means their chances of getting a Perry-Mason-style defense is about as likely as that of the sun's coming up in the West.

The list of injustices in the aptly named Texas criminal system would fill the New York City phone book. In three instances, Texas courts upheld the death sentences in cases where the defense attorneys fell asleep during trial. You have the right to a lawyer, one court ruled; the Constitution doesn't mention anything about being Using this logic, liberals could get around the Second Amendment by banning all triggers on guns. The Constitution protects the right to bear arms; nowhere does it mention trig-

Texas Sen. Rodney Ellis had a modest proposal to take some of the injustice out of the state's justice system. He introduced a bill that would require that poor defendants get a lawyer within 20 days of being arrested. As Herbert points out, in most states, poor defendants are assigned a lawyer within 72 hours.

Ellis' bill passed both houses in the Texas Legislature. And then his Shrubness vetoed it. Apparently, the compassion in compassionate conservatism doesn't extend beyond the Shrub's social circle.

With compassion like this, who needs hatred? Get along, little doggie. Branding iron's awaiting.

Restore the IWP — a letter to the Board of Regents

As you must have known during this past month, people within and without the UI have overwhelmingly responded negatively to the administration's decision to dismantle the International Writing Program. While many people have already poignantly voiced their opposition with sound rationale, please allow me to share with you a bit of my experience as a translator and personal friend of its founders.

It is quite clear that for more than half a century since Paul Engle created the Writers' Workshop at the UI in the 1940s, a whole generation of great American writers was born. When, in 1967, Hua Ling Nieh Engle bore the vision of inviting established writers from around the world for a brief stay in the heartland of America, Paul Engle dismissed it as "crazy." But he immediately saw the significance of his wife's idea.

In the 20 years that ensued, the Engles stood by and realized their dream through their hard work and unbending conviction. Clark Blaise carried on this dream for another nine years after the retirement of the Engles. For nearly 20 years I had the honor and privilege to actively participate in this program as a translator for the Chinese writers who came here. During this period I have witnessed great things happen that are too numerous to mention here. To give you an idea, I will mention just one situation.

Guest Opinion Katherine Lu

One year, during the farewell party for departing writers, an Israeli writer finally summoned his courage to speak to and then embrace the German writer to whom he had refused to talk for the entire three months of his stay. Both writers had tears in their eyes, as well as everyone around

For writers from dictatorial régimes their experience at the IWP is an enlightening one. That a state university would have such a program that encourages free and open expression is hard for them to conceive. At the same time, interaction between writers and students and local citizens alike has intellectually and spiritually inspired everyone. Imagine, writers from around the world coming to Iowa City annually to enrich the lives of everyone involved. Iowa City has been blessed. Now, administrators at the UI claim that the IWP is not well-incorporated into the educational cause of this institution because the passing of knowledge does not take place in the classroom or the laboratory. Indeed they are correct; for when a soul is touched by words of wisdom and beauty during an interaction with a writer, it does not always happen in the classroom or laboratory. Is this too difficult for the administrators to fathom?

While many people weigh the value of things quantitatively, I'd assume that American academia would and should fare better than that. If the Writers' Workshop can nurture so many good writers for the United States, the apparent impact of the IWP on the UI and the world should speak for itself. It took vision to create the IWP, and it will take vision to find a way to keep it going, and help it adapt as a valuable intellectual and aesthetic experience found only at the UI.

In just a few moments, we'll answer some language questions sent in by concerned readers that we made up. But first we have the following:IMPORTANT "Y2K" ADVI-

Many experts are concerned about how the "Y2K problem" will affect grammar. A federal task force has studied this question and recently released a report concluding that beginning on Jan. 1, 2000, there could be "widespread, sporadic shortages of words." The Task Force recommends that Americans prepare by stockpiling "at least a two-week supply" of words, and learning to speak in an efficient, word-saving manner, as in these examples

Q. What is the purpose of the colon? A. The colon forms a barrier alerting the reader not to go any further in the sentence. EXAMPLE: "Earlene, you will never in a million years guess what the doctor found in there: a gerbil."

Q. What does the "K" in "Y2K" stand for? A. "Konrad."

A. Certainly: · Toni Summers sent in a magazine advertisement for DiGiorno brand pastas and sauces making this appetizing promise: "You can enjoy a gourmet meal in your sweat pants.

. Janine Stone sent in the cover of a package of VHS tapes, featuring this statement: "EACH STORAGE CASE AUTOMATICAL- LY BECOMES PORTABLE WHEN CAR-

. Cheryl Shambora sent in a story from the Vero Beach, Fla., Press Journal that begins: "For the third time in two years, a St. Lucie County sheriff's deputy attempted suicide. This time, the officer survived."

Q. What happened the first two times? A. Apparently, he was not so lucky.

· Laura Petrelle sent in a story from the Observer quoting a University of Notre Dame residence-hall official as saying, in response to a student disturbance: "People are being immature, and this will go on as long as people continue to be immature."

ANKARA, Turkey (AP) - U.S. fighter planes bombed a military command center in northern Iraq Monday after being fired on by Iraqi forces while patrolling the northern no-fly zone, the U.S. military said.

The attack was the 56th time U.S. planes struck at Iraqi defense sites since mid-December, when Iraq began challenging allied planes in the no-fly zone, said Capt. Manning Brown, a spokesman for Incirlik air base in southern Turkey.

The Air Force F-16s and F-15s dropped precision-guided bombs at a military command and control site southwest of Mosul, a city 250 miles north of Baghdad, the U.S. European Command said.

"I don't think it will make a difference; minors have always had it in their rooms, anyway," she said. "If they made the penalties stricter, it might do something, but most punishments were very minimal.

Students have been signing up for non-smoking rooms and then smoking in those rooms, upsetting roommates and other floor members, Jones said.

"I wouldn't really care; I wouldn't smoke in my room anyway," she said. "But some people might want to. If they want to smoke in their rooms, they should be able to."

If the policy goes into effect, Jones said, smoking areas will be provided outside, as long as they are away from clean air vents and smokers maintain the cleanliness of the area.

Clinton plan draws mixed reaction

Calvin Siebert, a UI professor of economics, wondered whether, in the future, Congress would support the proposal.

"It will take an extra amount of funds to keep this proposal viable, but it all depends on future politics," he said.

The new numbers that administration released come just days before the Congressional Budget Office plans to unveil its own projections. The budget office's numbers are expected to show somewhat higher surpluses than those of the administration.

Clinton's top economic advisers denied that they had rushed out the administration's mid-year review of the budget in an effort to get the upper hand in the upcoming political debate.

Clinton proposed setting aside an additional $543 billion for Social Security over the next 15 years - this, he said, would ensure the program's solvency until 2053.

To strengthen the massive pension program for the elderly and disabled, Clinton said he would use all Social Security payroll taxes for reducing the national debt, making them off-limits for other spending.

"Social Security taxes should be saved for Social Security. Period, the president said.

Black Market Stuff is the creation of Wesley Broulik. After observing such comedy clubs in Chicago as Second City and the Compass, Broulik tossed around the idea of forming his own show, assembled a cast, and began rehearsals.

"I wanted to create a professional improv company in the Iowa City area that could raise the level of the art form and could show people what it's about," Broulik said.

"I like it," he said. "It's very entertaining and spur-of-the-moment. Go in expecting anything to happen, and keep your mind open."

Although for now, Black Market Stuff is content with calling Iowa City home, the group has dreams of traveling, performing in big city comedy clubs, and conducting improv workshops. Broulik also has a higher goal in mind. "Improv has fought for a long time to be considered a legitimate art form," he said. In working with the group, Broulik hopes to gain more respect for the art form.

Dunkel summed up the Black Market Stuff experience. "It really is a great, different form of entertainment. It's fun and weird and kooky and just a good time."

Summer of the Labrador's kiss

Actor John Leguizamo revisits the scene of the crime in Spike Lee's Summer of Sam.

> By Mark Kennedy Associated Press

NEW YORK — He was just a pipsqueak then, a rail-thin, curly-haired goofball who was blessed — or cursed with a sly smile and a Gatling-gun

John Leguizamo was 14 in the summer of '77. New York City was sweltering. The discos were hotter. And there was a maniac out there with a .44-caliber handgun.

"I remember it. Yeah, I do," Leguizamo said. "It was coming of age for me. That whole summer. I was on a mission. I was trying to devirginize myself."

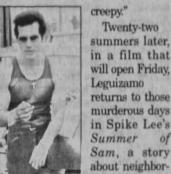

At night, he remembers, he would put on his Lothario outfit: a threepiece Polyester disco suit and an unbuttoned shirt with huge lapels. "I would take my mother's mascara and draw a mustache and a beard. I would go to clubs with a fake ID from

Times Square. I would say, 'Hey, lemme in. I'm a midget, man!' Outside, he recalls, the bodies continued to mount.

"There was paranoia. People wouldn't even hang out in the streets. Lovers' lanes were empty. I used to bike there all the time to see if I could learn something - you know, through all the fogged up windows. But there wasn't anything. It was murderous days in Spike Lee's Summer Sam, a story about neighborhood friends living during the Son of Sam's bloody reign. A former postal worker named David Berkowitz was arrested 22 years ago and confessed to fatally shooting six people and wounding seven others. He later said he took orders from a neighbor's black Labrador retriever named Sam.

Columbian-born Leguizamo, now 35, was a natural choice as the film's lead. He was raised here, after all, skipping from one working-class neighborhood to the next throughout his adolescence.

After making his film debut as a soldier in Casualties of War, he tried to kill Harrison Ford in Regarding Henry and succeeded in offing Al Pacino in Carlito's Way.

After Spike Lee's new flick, Leguizamo has two more coming out, both with regal names: Joe the King and King of the Jungle. The one-time pipsqueak has finally got some Hollywood pull. "I have a little clout," he said, modestly, like a little boy. "Yeah!" he reconsidered, lifting his arms in the air. "I've got huge clout. I love my clout."

One critic doesn't care and has already given Leguizamo's new film about the summer of 77 a thumbsdown. The critic is Berkowitz himself.

"It's interesting that Berkowitz feels that he still has rights. I mean, of course, it's America, and I respect the Constitution, and I'd love to hear what he has to say. But at the end of the day, it doesn't have any weight," Leguizamo said.

"He has no rights about how his image is portrayed, or how his image is misportrayed. You killed six people! You took people's lives, man. What happened to their rights?"

Leguizamo isn't scared any more.

Woman admits to killing her 8 children

■ Marie Noe receives 20 years probation; she also must undergo sessions with a psychiatrist.

> By Jennifer Brown Associated Press

PHILADELPHIA - A 70-year-old woman who admitted Monday to smothering eight of her young children decades ago will not go to jail so that researchers can study her to learn more about why new mothers sometimes kill newborns.

Marie Noe pleaded guilty to killing the children between 1949 and 1968; she was sentenced to 20 vears of probation, the first five of which must be served under home confinement. "We needed to get this matter finalized more than we needed to put a 70-year-old woman behind bars," said Philadelphia District Attorney Lynne Abraham. The light sentence also had to do with "the unusual circumstances of the case and the age of the case" and Noe's being the sole caretaker of her ailing 77-year-old husband, Arthur, Deputy District Attorney Charles Gallagher said.

"This is not one of those situations where we have a heart of a killer." said defense attorney David Ruden-

Before her arrest, Noe had confessed in March to police that she suffocated four of the infants and said she did not remember the other four deaths. During a meeting with a state psychiatrist in November, she confessed to killing the other four children, Gallagher said.

Gallagher said numerous medical officials indicated that a medical study of Noe could be valuable because so little is known about why women kill their babies.

College provides immigrants fast track

■ The InterAmerican College helps people who were professionals in their native countries to earn degrees.

> By Minerva Canto Associated Press

NATIONAL CITY, Calif. -While teaching civics and government classes to new immigrants a few years ago, Reymundo Marin and his wife, Maria, stumbled across a disturbing trend.

"We noticed a lot of educated immigrants who were working low-wage jobs because they didn't know where else to go. They were told their degrees from universities in their native countries weren't valid here," Marin said.

They decided to step in to help, and founded InterAmerican College, a nonprofit school where immigrants who were professionals in their native countries are put on a fast track to earn a degree in the United States.

On June 26, the first group of eight graduates received their bachelor's of arts degrees from the independent, four-year school five miles south of San Diego.

Like most of the graduates, valedictorian Francisca Lopez plans to become a teacher and eventually a school administra-

Lopez had earned a master's degree in engineering at a Mexican university and climbed the corporate ladder until she became a manager.

But when she immigrated to the United States, she couldn't get a job anywhere - at least not one that required a degree and paid enough to support a family.

"I knocked on many doors, but everyone turned me away. I had learned English, but they said my degree in Mexico wasn't worth anything here," said Lopez, a teacher's aide. "They said I had to fulfill the college requirements here, and that meant starting all over again. At 30, I just couldn't see that, wasting all those years of my life learning things I already knew."

According to the U.S. Census Bureau, 25.2 percent of immigrants who arrived in the United States after 1990 had college degrees. But many of them founder in low-skill, low-wage jobs, some because they are unfamiliar with the educational system and don't know how to ensure that they get the proper credit for the schooling they got in other countries.

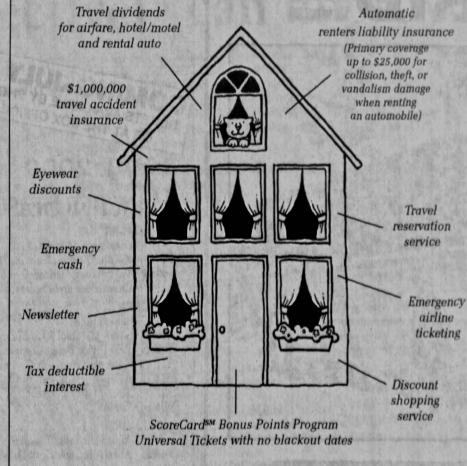

"We can't continue to keep allowing so much talent and education to go to waste," Marin said. "These people can't continue to keep painting, cleaning houses or doing landscaping."

At InterAmerican University, foreign college transcripts are evaluated by an independent panel that appraises course work and gives credit for up to three years of college work.

Students then take intensive one-month courses on weekends and at nights to complete requirements for a degree here.

The school is still in the twoyear process of applying for accreditation from the Western Association of Schools and Colleges; it does have approval from the state's Bureau for Private Postsecondary and Vocational Education to grant degrees, Marin said.

Minnesota players to help pick Haskins' replacement MINNEAPOLIS (AP) - University Bernie

Bickerstaff is the players' early choice to replace Clem Haskins, who

of Minnesota men's athletics director Mark Dienhart met Monday with basketball players to reassure them they will be involved in selecting a replacement for coach Clem Haskins. Haskins resigned last week with a $1.5 million buyout following allegations of academic fraud. Seven players voted unanimously Sunday evening to back former Washington Wizards coach Bernie Bickerstaff.

"I assured them once again that they will be represented on the search committee. I understand their anxiety during this time and feel confident that our meeting helped," Dienhart said.

Bickerstaff, 55, was born in Benham, Ky., and is a longtime friend of Haskins, having played against him in high school. Bickerstaff's son, J.B., who will be a Gopher captain for the 1999-2000 season, was one of the players endorsing him. "We had a meeting with the seven of us, and we talked about who we want as coach," center Joel Przybilla said. "We went through the pluses and minuses of many coaches. And we came across one candidate a majority of us actually want to see as our coach next year, and his name is Bernie Bickerstaff."

Pryzbilla, the 7-foot-1 freshman center who was one of the nation's most-recruited players during his career at Monticello High School, said he would consider transferring to another school if the right coach isn't named.

schools," Przybilla said. "Yes, I am thinking about leaving. I wouldn't mind sitting out a year as a transfer at another school.

"If the right coach comes along, we want to keep this team together. We feel we have a bunch of winners, and a bunch of talent on this team.

"If we get Coach Bickerstaff, the majority of us will stay here, and we feel that this is the best option for us." Przybilla said. J.B. Bickerstaff said his father, who was fired by the Wizards this past season, definitely would be interested in the job. "I talked to him," the younger

Bickerstaff said. "He said if it came about, and they came to him, that he'd be very interested."

Mark Dienhart was initially dismayed when told of the players' vote.

"If they think that is the way to produce some sort of result, they're just solid wrong," Dienhart said. "That is no way to fill a position. It involves university policies, and it involves all sorts of things. If Bickerstaff were interested in something like that, he could compete against everybody else. But I tell you that this attitude of the players really disappoints me." Senior associate athletic director Jeff Schemmel had said the department would start making contacts "in earnest" Monday, the first business day since Haskins resigned.

Schemmel said he thought Dienhart had at least a mental list of potential replacements for Haskins, but Dienhart said that's not the case. He said he still needed to decide whether the university should hire a permanent or interim coach.

Merrill Lynch/Nike nabs first win

The Daily Iowan

Merrill Lynch/Nike entered Monday's Prime Time league game with Fitzpatrick's without a win and was looking for answers.

As it turns out, it was as simple as stepping behind the three-point line.

Merrill Lynch rode the hot three-point shooting of former Drake player B.J. Windhorst and Duez Henderson to its first win, 118-112 over Fitzpatrick's. Windhorst scored 48 points, including nine three pointers.

"It was one of those games where you just feel like you're in the flow, and you know how that goes," Windhorst said.

Merrill Lynch was in control nearly the entire game, opening up an 18 point lead midway through the first half, and led 62-51 at halftime. With Merrill Lynch leading 74-65, Settles ignited a run with a one-handed slam, adding a hoop on the

But Windhorst and Henderson were too much for Fitzpatrick's to handle. A Windhorst three snapped a 93-93 tie, and he would add 4 more bombs down the stretch as Fitzpatrick's never led again. The loss dropped Fitzpatrick's to 1-3 in

The Jordan factor

"What if?"

Now that the NBA Finals are over, it is time to reflect back on this lockout shortened season and evaluate the worthiness of the new champions of the world, the San Antonio Spurs.

The "what if" of this NBA season is the disbanding of the defending champion Chicago Bulls.

Let's just say that the Bulls had stayed together for one more year. For us, of course, we would have had the pleasure of watching Michael Jordan one more time, but would they have made the Finals, and could they have beaten the Spurs?

I would say a trip to the Finals would have been a guarantee for Chicago.

New York, minus Patrick Ewing, wouldn't have stood a chance against Michael and Scottie's Bulls, or even Luc and Jud Bucheler's Bulls for that fact. Sure, the Knicks have always played the Bulls tough, though the way they played in the finals against David Robinson and Tim Duncan, Longley and "Beef" Wennington would have had a field day down low, and that happens about as often as avoiding those Add Sheet guys on Wednesday. So, the Bulls are now in the Finals, again, and they have to match up and play the Spurs. In the shortened season, counting the number of games Scottie would have missed due to back problems and Rodman due to suspension and just being himself, the Spurs would probably have had the home court advantage.

The key in this situation is the Jordan Factor. He is the best basket-

Oliver, who had missed the last Merrill Lynch, and Rvan Hogan shot only 3-22 from the floor, and it showed in his team's game. Fitzpatrick's was clearly out of tune much of the evening, which Oliver readily admitted.

"My being gone for a couple of games took us out of sync," Oliver said. "We didn't move the ball very well at all. We were taking one shot, and they were getting defensive rebounds. They were getting to shoot till they scored." Settles, who led Fitzpatrick's with 37 points and 16 rebounds, agreed.

"We've been a little down," Settles said. "Dean's been hurt, and that kind of hurts our chemistry. Once we get him back at full strength, it'll be OK, but tonight we kind of had to pick it up in other areas.'

Henderson added 20 points for two games with a bad back. He scored 17 points and grabbed 8 rebounds for Fitzpatrick's.

"We blew a little lead, but we stuck in there, came back, and played a good game," Harris said.

Imprinted Sportswear/Goodfellow Printing 102, Mike Gatens Real Estate 99

Imprinted Sportswear overcame another huge game from Kyle Galloway to defeat Gatens Real Estate, 102-99. Galloway had 36 points, including 7 of 12 from behind the 3-point arc, but Imprinted put together a strong team effort to hand Gatens its second loss of the year.

David Willock led Imprinted with 22 points, and Brian Westlake added 21 points and eight rebounds. Imprinted improved to 3-1 in the league.

Lepic-Kroeger Realtors 123. Goodfellaz 122

Lepic-Kroeger Realtors withstood another big game from Rob Griffin to pull out a thrilling win, 123-122 over Goodfellaz. Goodfellaz led 60-49 at halftime, but Lepic-Kroeger rallied behind the hot shooting of Kent McCausland. McCausland had 27 of his 39 points in the second half, including five three pointers. Craig Callahan had 42 points, and 25 of his came in the second half as well. Griffin led Goodfellaz with 33 points and 15 rebounds. while Richard Willock added 24 red and Chris Carpenter came off the disabled list to pitch five strong innings as the Toronto Blue Jays snapped a three-game losing streak Monday night with a 3-2 victory over the Tampa Bay Devil Rays.

Carpenter (5-5), sidelined since June 2 with inflammation in his right elbow, allowed seven hits before four Blue Jays relievers shut down the Devil Rays over the last four Billy Koch pitched the ninth to earn his ninth save after Roy Halladay, Graeme Lloyd and Paul Quantrill each worked one scoreless inning.

Batista hit a solo homer off Dave Eiland (0-4), who allowed three runs on eight hits league batting leader Tony Fernandez went 1-for-3 with a walk and is hitting .400 for Jose Canseco went 0-for-5 and failed to homer for the third straight game for Tampa Bay. He hit his major league-leading 28th against the Blue Jays on Friday night.

Pirates 3, Phillies 2

PITTSBURGH — Adrian Brown singled home the winning run in the 10th inning and Greg Hansell won for the first time in three years as Pittsburgh rallied to beat Philadelphia.

Kevin Young singled off Steve Montgomery (0-3) with one out in the 10th and Jason Kendall popped out. Warren Morris singled off Jim Poole, moving Young to second and bringing up Brown, who was hitting just .193. He grounded a 1-2 pitch up the middle, giving the Pirates their fifth win in six extra-inning games this season. Hansell (1-0) pitched a perfect 10th and won for the first time since May 29, 1996, when he was with Minnesota.

Philadelphia scored two unearned runs in the first after pitcher Kris Benson misplayed Doug Glanville's comebacker for an error. Glanville stole second and scored on Ron Gant's single.

Mets 10, Marlins 4

MIAMI — Robin Ventura hit three-run homers in consecutive at-bats and Al Leiter won his fifth straight start, leading New York over the Florida.

Edgar Alfonzo added a double and two-run triple as the Mets won for the 16th time in 21 games. Florida, swept by the Mets in a threegame series last week, has lost 11 of 13 overall and is 2-8 against New York this season.

New York overcame a Marlins' lead for the fourth straight game, with Ventura's fourthinning homer off Brian Meadows (5-9) putting the Mets ahead 3-2.

Indians 6, Royals 1

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Charles Nagy became the American League's second 10game winner and Richie Sexson hit a tworun homer to lead Cleveland over Kansas

Nagy (10-4) won for the seventh time in eight decisions, allowing and five hits in seven innings. He walked none and got his only three strikeouts by fanning the side after Rey Sanchez's leadoff double in the third.

ball player that has ever walked the court in NBA history. Jordan has an aura about him that effects every player, on both teams. Take Steve Kerr for example. He was brutal for the Spurs this year, averaging only 4.4 points-per-game and 16.7 minutes. When he was playing with Michael he was a player counted on to score in pivotal situations and Michael had something to do

And, as everyone knows, there is not a player in the NBA who could hold Jordan's jock.

When a great player is on the court, teammates and opposing players alike will bring their "A" game with them to the stadium.

Jordan thrives off of this. He refuses to lose once the playoffs begin, and the Spurs don't have a player such as Mike, or the experience he brings to the table. (i.e. six NBA Championships to Robinson and Duncan's 0).

Admittedly, the Spurs would handle the Bulls down low. Duncan handled Shaquille O'Neal down low, so Luc and Wennington would get eaten up quickly, but I believe Dennis could hold his

By about game four, he would have Duncan rattled and maybe affect his game just enough to give the Bulls an edge overall, but Duncan would still score around 25 a game. Advantage Spurs.

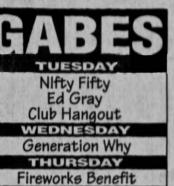

I don't see a equal matchup for Pippen either. You could throw Sean Elliott, Mario Elie, Jaren Jackson, or that stupid mascot the Spurs have at Scottie, and he would still pour in about 20 and have close to a triple double. We can't forget about the Croatian Sensation, Toni Kukoc. He would cause a problem for the Spurs, as well. Duncan would have to come away from the hoop to match up on Toni, leaving only Robinson to defend the hoop against Michael and Scottie. Not a good idea.

So, with the Spurs up by one in Game 6, Jordan isolates against Sean Elliott and drives to the hoop, fades away and fires with three seconds left. The ball touches nothing but net as time expires. Bulls in six for title number seven.

Maybe I'm just a jealous, arrogant Bulls fan, or maybe I'm right.

WIMBLEDON, England -Andre Agassi flailed feebly at returns for two sets and did little more than a pigeon-toed shuffle on the baseline as Wayne Arthurs ran his amazing streak of unbroken service games to 111.

Agassi looked as helpless as everyone else the skinny lefthander had faced in his surge from anonymity at Wimbledon. He kept pace with the Australian, but only by holding

They split two tiebreakers, and might have gone to a few more in their fourth-round match Monday, if not for one particular volley that Arthurs blew and never got over in a 6-7 (7-5), 7-6 (7-5), 6-1, 6-4 defeat.

It was a sitter waiting to be pummeled into an open court at 1-1 in the third set, but Arthurs whacked it into the net only a few feet away. Agassi seized on that gift as if he knew he might not get another, pounding a backhand return that kissed the sideline on the next point.

fying tournament, and it launched Agassi's surge into the quarterfinals

Agassi, who won his first French Open last month, is seeking to reclaim the Wimbledon title he won in 1992. If he succeeds, he will be the first man since Bjorn Borg in 1980 to win both majors back to back.

Agassi will next face Brazil's Gustavo Kuerten, the former French Open champ, who beat Swiss qualifier Lorenzo Manta 7-5, 6-4, 5-7, 6-3.

Rain delayed the start of play, wiped out most of the big fourthround matches, and left Jim Courier eager to retreat as he stood two games from defeat against Britain's Tim Henman.

Henman, seeking to avenge a loss to Courier in the Davis Cup, led 4-6, 7-5, 7-5, 4-3 when a downpour stopped play.

Seven-time women's champ Steffi Graf led Belgian qualifier Kim Clijsters 6-2, 4-2 when that match was halted.

The rain couldn't save No. 9 Mary Pierce from the all-court attack of 16-year-old Jelena Dokic, the Australian who made a spectacular debut by knocking off No. 1 Martina Hingis.

Dokic's quickness made the pumped-up Pierce look like a lumbering old woman as she gasped to keep up in deep rallies and couldn't quite catch the drop shots that Dokic flicked

HBO declines to renew Wimbledon contract

By Jeff Goodman Associated Press

NEW YORK - The strawberries and cream have been great, but 25 years at Wimbledon was enough for HBO.

The cable network will not renew its contract with the grass-court classic after a quarter-century of coverage, and there will be no shortage of bidders to pick up tennis' most prestigious tournament.

Time Warner sports president Seth Abraham said HBO's decision had nothing to do with rat- on his plans to acquire replaceings or money. The network paid $50,000 a year when it started with Wimbledon in 1975, while the current fiveyear deal averaged about $8 million a year. Ratings have been steady if unspectacular.

"As I look ahead, I felt the need to refresh our schedule," Abraham said Monday from his London hotel room. "If we had tried to renew Wimbledon, then we wouldn't have been able to try other new things."

Abraham would not elaborate ment programming, but did say that it would not involve another tennis tournament.

"Wimbledon is still the elite tennis tournament in the world and one of the top 10 sporting events," he added.

Although ratings had fallen to a 1.6 in 1997, HBO posted a 1.9 last year after making a decision to devote more of its coverage to women players.

Abraham said he expects this year's ratings to be about the same, even with Andre Agassi's

Inkster's Grand Slam 'a marathon'

It took the future Hall of Famer 16 years to win each of the four majors.

> By Doug Ferguson Associated Press

WILMINGTON, Del. - Winning the career Grand Slam turned out to be a marathon for Juli Inkster.

Of the eight players who have won the four major championships of their era, no one took as long as Inkster - 16 years from the time she won the Dinah Shore as a rookie to her victory in the LPGA Championship as a 39year-old mother.

But, oh, what a kick.

In a span of 21 days, Inkster separated herself from the pack and took her place in history by winning the U.S. Open and the LPGA Championship.

Her finish at DuPont Country Club on Sunday was just as swift.

In a span of three holes, she shot out of a three-way tie for the lead with a staggering display of shotmaking and putting, an eagle-birdie-birdie finish to win by four strokes.

"I can't comprehend this," she said after her 6-under 65. "I kept looking up and the ball was going in the hole. It's just been a phenomenal year."

When she was 23 and playing her first full season on the LPGA Tour, Inkster thought winning the four majors was simply a matter of time. It was hard to blame her for such confidence.

She was Tiger Woods and Se Ri Pak rolled into one, the first player to win three straight U.S. Amateur titles, the first professional to win two majors as a rookie.

"I always thought this is what I wanted, to win the four majors," she said. "I won two really quick, and didn't think it was going to be that tough.

Compared to the other seven who have won the Grand Slam, it was plenty difficult.

Pat Bradley, the only other woman to win all of the LPGA's modern majors, got her first one in the 1980 du Maurier and completed the sweep seven years later with the most dominant stretch of major championship golf since Ben Hogan in

NBA Finals ratings take a nose dive

Without Michael Jordan, the public wasn't tuning in to the NBA Finals.

> By Jeff Goodman Associated Press

NEW YORK - Michael Jordan took the NBA Finals television ratings to a new high, but in the first season without him, the ratings fell to their lowest levels in 18 years.

NBC's five-game series average between the San Antonio Spurs and New York Knicks posted a 11.3 national rating and a 21 share, down 40 percent from last year's final series.

The 1998 NBA Finals between Jordan's Chicago Bulls and the Utah Jazz went six games and had a 18.7 rating — the highest in league history.

The last time the NBA Finals finished with a lower rating than this season was in 1981. However, none of the six games that season between the Boston Celtics and Houston Rockets were aired in prime-time by CBS.

"We knew going in that the casual fan would be a much tougher draw without the best known man in the world," said NBC spokesman Ed Markey. "We knew it would be an uphill climb." NBC acquired the NBA in 1990 and has broadcast every game in prime-time since the 1992 NBA

Friday night's Game 5, in which the Spurs wrapped up their first NBA title, recorded a 11.0/22, down 44 percent from last season's fifth game.

The last time that Jordan didn't play in the NBA Finals was in 1995, when Houston swept the Orlando Magic. That series posted a 13.9 national rating.

The Knicks were beaten by the Rockets in 1994 and the sevengame average rating was a 12.4. But that was the same year when O.J. Simpson's freeway chase distracted viewers from basketball and Game 5 received a 8.0 rating.

Numerous factors contributed to this year's low ratings, with the most important being Jordan's retirement. Sloppy play, the NBA lockout, the fact that San Antonio is the smallest NBA market and the series only going five games also impacted the ratings.

"The emergence of San Antonio and some other teams we saw in the playoffs will hopefully Markey added.

significant dropoffs from last season. Games 1 and 5 fell 36 percent, Game 2 dropped 42 percent and Game 3 slipped 25 percent.

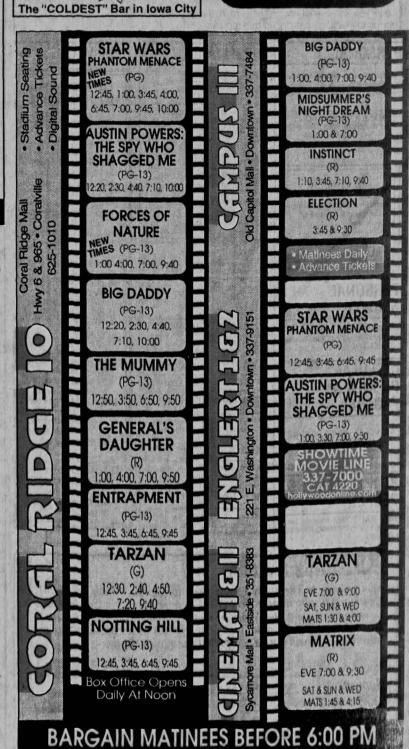

The rating is the percentage of TV households in the United States tuned to a program, and each point represents 994,000 homes. The share is the percentage tuned to a program among televisions in use at the time.

Watts gets probation in drunken driving crash

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — The former Kentucky football player who pleaded quilty in a drunken car crash that killed a teammate and another man will be released from jail next month.

Jason Watts was granted probation from a 10-year sentence Monday and will be on probation five years.

Judge Danile Venters of Pualski Circuit Court ordered that Watts be released July 19. During his probation he must attend an alcohol abuse program and do 50 hours a year of community service.

Pulaski prosecutor Montgomery said the early release devalues the seriousness of Watts' crime. Venters declined to comment on his decision.

"I know it's a pretty bare-bones order, but I don't really want to elaborate any further," he said.

Glenn Robinson arrested outside nightclub

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. - Milwaukee Bucks forward Glenn Robinson was arrested early Monday outside a nightclub and charged with disorderly intoxi-

Robinson, the Bucks' leading scorer last season, was arrested after he refused to leave Club Chaos, police said. He apparently had been denied entrance because he wasn't dressed properly, and he then began shouting at the doormén, police Robinson was

"aggressive" and appeared "on the verge of physical violence," according to the police report.

Robinson showed signs he had been drinking, including slurred speech, bloodshot eyes and the smell of alcohol on his breath, the report said. He was taken to Miami-Dade County Jail.

Nets remove interim tag from Casey

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. - New Jersey Nets coach Don Casey is the complete opposite of his predecessor. John Calipari. And that suits his players just fine.

"I think he can make us play hard," point guard Stephon Marbury said at a press conference Monday introducing Casey as the Nets coach. "His personality allows you to go on the court and give it everything you have. You're not dealing with a coach that's screaming and yelling.'

The Nets had a 3-17 record when

Money can't buy the standings

Even though the Dodgers have a payroll of $79.2 million, they're in the cellar and not for wine.

> By Rob Gloster Associated Press

SAN FRANCISCO - Davey Johnson was asked what it felt like to have the biggest payroll in the league and still be in last place in the NL West. The Dodgers' manager took a deep breath, then tried to look ahead.

"We need to win every series. We need to get our act together over here," he said. "There's a long way to go. We have time to right ourselves, but our pitching has got to lead us. I felt like we were a better pitching staff, and the starters have struggled at times."

With Sunday's 8-7 loss to the Giants, Los Angeles dropped into the cellar for the first time since April 24, 1996. Much more had been expected of a team that pays its players an average salary of $2.7 million.

The Dodgers, with a $79.2 million opening-day payroll, had been predicting championships since early in spring training. Now they're 34-39 and being ridiculed as among the biggest underachievers in baseball.

"It's been a tough year for us, we haven't been able to get a good string going," said center fielder Devon White, one of several free agents signed during the winter as the Dodgers revamped their lineup and pitching staff.

The roster includes three of the sport's 10 highest-paid players -Kevin Brown is third with earnings of $10.7 million this season, Gary Sheffield is fifth at $9.9 million and Raul Mondesi is tied for ninth at $9 million.

None of those three is to blame for the Dodgers' struggle.

Brown, who got a $105 million contract from Los Angeles, is 9-4 with a league-best 2.89 ERA and 96 strikeouts in 112 innings. Mondesi is hitting .261 - well below his .292 career average - but has 19 homers and 50 RBIs. Sheffield is hitting .306 with 16 homers and 46 RBIs.

Yet the loss Sunday dropped the Dodgers a half-game behind the Padres, whose nine-game winning streak heading into Monday night's game at home against Colorado included a three-game sweep last week at Los Angeles.

San Diego, with a $48 million payroll, plays host to the Dodgers on Tuesday, Wednesday and

The Dodgers point to this weekend's series at San Francisco, in which they won two of three games and had two big comebacks. Todd Hundley's three-run homer in the ninth won Saturday's game, and they rallied from a 7-2 deficit to make Sunday's game close

Though they're in last place, the Dodgers are just six games back in the loss column and the firstplace Arizona Diamondbacks and second-place Giants are strug-

"A couple of days ago we were eight out in the loss column. We came up here and played about as well in a series as we have all year. That's the way we have to look at it," first baseman Eric Karros said. "We play the way we did this weekend for a while, good things will happen.'

Despite such sluggers as Mondesi and Sheffield in the middle of the lineup, the Dodgers are hitting .263, third worst in the NL.

The pitching has been so disappointing that Charlie Hough was fired as pitching coach May 26.

Ageless Orosco keeps going and going

After 20 years in the majors, Jesse Orosco is still manning the bullpen.

> By David Ginsburg Associated Press

BALTIMORE - Jesse Orosco hasn't been pitching forever. It just seems that way.

Orosco was warming up in the bullpen at Comiskey Park this month when someone yelled from the bleachers, "Hey Orosco, how did you pitch to Ty Cobb?"

Orosco never did slip a changeup past The Georgia Peach. And he doesn't receive Social Security, as some wisecracking teammates suggest.

But this much is true: No big league pitcher has made more relief appearances than 42-yearold Jesse Orosco. His 1,051 relief appearances is one more than Kent Tekulve.

And Orosco now is only 16 games short of breaking Dennis Eckersley's standard of 1,071

"The relief record is very, very important. But total games is the one that means the most," Orosco Orosco had only modest expectations 20 years ago after landing a spot on the opening day roster of the 1979 New York Mets.

Orosco outlasted disco and Murray, and the left-hander has done more than just show up for work regularly. He has a 3.02 lifetime ERA, an 84-74 record and 140 saves. And few people remember that he won three games in the 1986 NL championship series before recording the final out in the World Series against the Boston Red Sox.

Orosco, who made four starts early in his career, has made a living out of entering from the bullpen and retiring left-handed hitters. He doesn't stick around for long, but he does show up quite often - he averaged 70 appearances the last two seasons and leads the team this year with

"You know that if you use him for one or two batters you can use him five days in a row," Orioles manager Ray Miller said. "That's pretty remarkable for a guy 40 years old."

"He's won a World Series. He's played 20 years and he's seen a lot of great players," Baltimore shortstop Mike Bordick said. "The man is dedicated to the game, but it's still amazing that he's been able do this for so long.'
