2 killed in roller coaster accident

A probe begins into New Jersey accident that brings last week's amusement-ride death toll to four.

> By John Curran Associated Press

OCEAN CITY, N.J. - Mark Matczak and his two young children were waiting to board the Wild Wongier roller coaster when a car that had started out on its ride suddenly reversed course

"It was like, 'Oh, my God, it's com-ing back down,'" said Matczak, 39, of Tylersport, Pa. "As quickly as I said that, it hit.'

The accident killed two people Saturday night - a 39-year-old woman and her 8-year-old daughter. Jay Gillian, general manager of the amusement pier where the accident happened, said the victims were riding in the car that slipped backward and crashed into another car being loaded to begin the ride

The victims were ejected as the backward-rolling car rounded a corner near where the next car was loading, according to William Connolly, director of the state Division of Codes and Standards. Two people who were getting into the second car suffered minor injuries The accident was the latest in severay fatal mishaps this summer at amusement parks across the nation. "This season has been quite saddening in that regard, and it's certainly not normal," said Joel Cliff, spokesman for the International Association of Amusement Parks and Attractions. Officials would not speculate on what may have caused the Aug. 28 accident. Representatives of the manufacturer, the Zamperla Co. of Parsippany, were summoned to the park Sunday. The latest accident brought the total of deaths in the last week alone to four, while Cliff said the average number of amusement park deaths over the past two decades has been two per year. "I don't have a sense as to what's causing more accidents this year. I think it's just a set of coincidences. I think the industry is fundamentally as safe as it's ever been," he said.

Ex-footballer Loftin hit with extortion

■ The former Hawkeye linebacker turns himself in to Public Safety early on Aug.

By Greg Wallace The Daily Iowan

UI officials said Sunday that pressing charges against former Hawkeye linebacker Ryan Loftin had been their only option.

Loftin was arrested at 4 a.m. on Aug. 28 after he turned himself in to UI Public Safety. The 22-year-old was charged with one count of extortion and one count of fifth-degree theft.

The charges stem from a letter Loftin allegedly signed and sent to Iowa football Coach Kirk Ferentz. Loftin allegedly wrote that he would lead a campaign to expose Iowa football secrets and end Ferentz's UI career if his scholarship were not restored. Also, Loftin had allegedly taken notebooks containing information on the Iowa defense and special teams from Ferentz's office on Aug.

After Ferentz gave Public Safety the letter, the department decided to press charges rather than pursue an avenue of university discipline, said Ann Rhodes, vice president for university relations.

"Public Safety got involved, and it made the judgment that it was serious enough to press charges," she Loftin's lawyer, Leon Spies of Iowa City, said the case could have been handled in other ways.

"My belief is that there were lots of other avenues that could have been explored before charges were contemplated," he said.

Because of the nature of the alleged crimes, a quiet form of disciplining was not an option, Rhodes said.

"I think there's the fact that he broke the law," she said. "There weren't a lot of alternative routes for discipline. It was serious - we couldn't just sweep it under the rug."

Loftin would not comment on the charges.

"You can only imagine how a guy with aspirations like his feels to find himself on the front page of the newspaper charged with a crime," Spies said. "He's pretty shook up."

Last week Loftin announced to the media that Ferentz had violated My belief is that there were lots of other avenues that could have been explored before charges were contemplated.

NCAA rules by making voluntary summer workouts mandatory and threatening to punish those who did not attend. UI officials say they investigated the claims and found no wrongdoing.

"Fred Mims (associate athletic director) looked into the charges and found there was no further reason to continue," Rhodes said.

On Aug. 19, Loftin sent a letter to UI officials, threatening to talk to reporters if his scholarship, which was revoked when he quit the team two days earlier, was not reinstated. Rhodes said officials offered to meet with Loftin, but he refused and went to the press. Rhodes added that university officials had offered to meet with Loftin after he spoke to the press but that he had not responded

The Des Moines Register reported Sunday that in the letter to Ferentz, Loftin allegedly threatened to "drive all the way on I-80 to Lincoln," home of Iowa's Sept. 4 opponent, Nebraska. He allegedly planned to use a notebook to "share information about defense and special teams," with all of Iowa's opponents this season. Loftin also allegedly threatened to form a group of angry former players "for three days of mudslinging" to try to oust Ferentz.

The final attack was made in the conclusion of the letter, where Loftin allegedly suggested that if the UI did not reinstate his scholarship, "may God have mercy on our souls.

Though the bar was crowded and hot, Gabe's talent promoter Doug Roberson said the show went smoothly. "Compared to the Mr. Bungle show (on July 25), this was a cakewalk," Roberson said. "You guys have been the best crowd on our tour," Sparks said later in the show.

printing were given to each student this semester for printing at UI Information Technology Centers after the ITCs stopped using dot-matrix printers.

In the past, students could print out an unlimited number of pages on the dot-matrix printers.

The new laser printers are more efficient, less noisy and distracting, and of a higher quality than the previous printers, said Don McClain, an ITC customer relations representative.

But some students are not sure the Amid hectic parties, and lecture halls crammed to the maximum, UI freshmen have made it through their first week in Hawkeye country.

UI freshman Elisabeth Schneider, who was studying Sunday with friends in the Burge Hall lounge, said she's learning new study habits.

"If you want to get studying done, don't do it in groups," she said. Already a step ahead of the game is UI freshman Salin Timbo, who was studying upstairs in his room. He said he had been prepared for academic work at the UI but that there was more to school than that.

"I planned for hard courses but not for the pressures outside of the classroom," he said. "The whole hype of college really wasn't at all what it turned out to be.' The first week in college is potentially traumatic for students, said Lisa Troyer, an assistant professor of sociology.

"Students can become disenchanted, which creates stress, which can lead to a negative experience," she said.

Getting used to a new environment was hard for UI freshman Jeff Papp, who was taking a study break by playing a game of solitaire on his computer. 'I didn't think I would make it

■ The lowa City police say repeat offenders are creating the record numbers of arrests, not stricter enforcement.

For the second weekend in a row, Iowa City police issued an unusually high number of citations for possession of alcohol under the legal age.

The first weekend after the start of classes for the UI fall semester saw 63 people charged with the violation, compared with 22 during the same period last year.

On the weekend before classes began, 41 citations for possession of alcohol under the legal age were issued, a number that was up 412 percent from the year before.

House parties were hit hardest, with 17 people charged at private residences. Eleven people were charged with the violation at the Fieldhouse Restaurant & Bar, 111 E. College St.; eight at the Rush Hour, 13 S. Linn St., and six at the Sports Column, 12 S. Dubuque St.

Students who risked patronizing downtown bars despite being under the legal drinking age said more people seemed to be getting charged than ever before.

"This weekend they were out a lot worse than I've ever seen," said UI sophomore Michelle Hill, who was charged with possession of alcohol under the legal age at a party on Aug.

She said the $145 citation didn't deter her from going downtown on Aug. 28, but it did stop two of her

'A terrible, very long nightmare'

An ex-IWP writer and a UI student describe Turkey in the wake of the Aug. 17 earthquake.

> By Leah Reinstein The Daily Iowan

For some former members of the UI community, Turkey's Aug. 17 earthquake has hit close to home.

Buket Uzuner, a former International Writing Program participant and famed Turkish writer, is currently trying to rebuild her life and the lives of those around her.

She has kept in contact with Larry Rettig, assistant to the UI vice president for research, and has written of the devastation and of the help the Turkish government needs.

"It was a terrible and very long nightmare," Uzuner wrote in an email. "About 35,000 people are still under the rubble, some still alive. We who are alive and safe in cal shocks and are now thinking to find more concrete solutions in order to help the victims' families, especially kids who became orphans in 45 seconds."

The 7.4-magnitude quake killed nearly 14,000 people, left thousands more missing and up to 600,000 homeless. With cooler weather approaching, displaced people must be moved out of soggy makeshift tents and into warm, winterized shelters, Turkish officials said Sunday

Damage from the quake has been estimated at $10 billion, and the official death toll stands at 14,095. Many of those killed were trapped under the ruins of apartment blocks built with substandard materials by contractors who allegedly bribed officials to avoid inspections.

Uzuner and Andria Savage, a UI student living in Istanbul, urge people to provide help. "In a country with few pre-exist-

Uzuner said it appears that the biggest need is for medical supplies, because bodies are decomposing and there is fear of an epi-

"The Turkish government is not able to deal with a problem of this magnitude," Rettig said.

There are several search-and-rescue groups collecting donations. ACIK RADYO (Open Radio Station) in Turkey has been set up as the earthquake communication center and is organizing the effort to meet the donations in the disaster areas.

Police ponder old-gun problem

Many departments tradein their old weapons, which allows them to be sold in gun stores.

> By Hunter T. George Associated Press

SEATTLE — With nearly 600 old Smith & Wesson service revolvers they no longer need, Seattle police face a quandary.

They can sell the .38-caliber handguns to licensed dealers and hope they don't end up in the hands of killers or thieves, or destroy them and shrug off the loss of thousands of dollars of taxpayers' money.

Given those options, the revolvers have remained locked in storage since 1994.

It's a familiar dilemma to police nationwide, and one that has come under scrutiny following an Aug. 10 shooting spree in Los Angeles. Authorities say the gun Buford O. Furrow Jr. allegedly used to kill a postal worker after spraying a Jewish community center with gunfire was traced to the police department in Cosmopolis, Wash.

Gary Eisenhower, chief of the five-member Cosmopolis police force, was sickened to learn of the connection. But he said his department cannot afford to destroy old service weapons that can bring the department hundreds of dollars each.

Eisenhower had traded the Glock semiautomatic pistol to a store for a new service weapon, a common industry practice that saves money but also floods the secondhand market with relatively cheap firearms.

Government data obtained by the Wall Street Journal showed at least 1,100 former police guns were among the 193,203 guns used in crimes and traced last year by the federal Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms.

"I think the last thing the everyday citizen wants to know is that the police department is recirculating guns and selling them to the general public," said Pamela Eakes, founder of Mothers Against Violence in America, based in suburban Seattle. "If you couldn't sell them to another police department or sheriff's department, then I think the only alternative is to melt them down," she said.

Gun-rights advocates counter that police guns accounted for fewer than 1 percent of the guns used in crimes last year.

And some advocates complain that cities suing the gun industry for allegedly failing to control the distribution of firearms

Chicago and Detroit - have themselves contributed to the number of guns on the street via police trade-ins.

"New Orleans has probably sold more guns back through the chain than any city in the country," said Alan Gottlieb, chairman of the Bellevue, Wash .based Citizens Committee for the Right to Keep and Bear Arms. "The bottom line is the exact thing they're charging the manufacturers with you could charge them with.'

New Orleans police acknowledged in January that they agreed to trade almost 10,000 confiscated and used weapons to Glock Inc. in a deal for new weapons.

City officials said the deal stipulated that the guns were not to be sold in Louisiana and the transaction netted the department a credit of more than $400,000 toward $772,000 in new guns.

N. Carolina braces for hurricane

■ The Outer Banks barrier islands begin evacuations as Hurricane Dennis lumbers north.

> By Paul Nowell Associated Press

WRIGHTSVILLE BEACH, N.C. - Hurricane Dennis moved along the coast toward the Carolinas on Sunday, prompting evacuation orders for the fragile Outer Banks barrier islands. Conditions were expected to worsen overnight, but it looked like the brunt of the storm might miss land.

The hurricane was approximately 130 miles south of the North Carolina coast by the evening, with its top wind revved up slightly to 105 mph; it had edged slightly toward the east. A hurricane warning was posted for much of the coast of North Carolina.

Winds were gusting 30 to 45 mph along the southern coast of the state by early evening. By midnight, the winds there were expected to reach 60 mph, forecasters said.

Dennis was expected to continue turning toward the northeast, but the storm's track was far from certain, the National Hurricane Center said.

along," Jerry Jarrell, the center's director. "It's been holding its own, but I've noticed the eye is very large, it's huge, and if that eye goes through one of those cycles where it contracts, it certainly could intensify, and that would bring it closer to the coast and even over the coast."

He also cautioned that because of the hurricane's size, with tropical storm-force wind extending up to 175 miles from the center Sunday, "it doesn't have to come across the coastline to cause pretty strong winds."

Forecasters said winds approaching hurricane force could pass off the coast of Cape Fear near North Carolina's southernmost tip at sunrise Monday. Hurricane-force winds were expected to remain offshore.

Well in advance of the storm, Gov. Jim Hunt Sunday afternoon declared both a state of emergency and a state of disaster, which aides said allowed him to activate any resources necessary to cope with the storm.

Wrightsville Beach declared an 8 p.m. curfew Sunday, and Seymour Johnson Air Force Base sent aircraft to bases in Ohio to escape the storm. New Hanover County at Wilmington said schools, courts and offices would be closed today.

The storm was already kicking up high waves Sunday for surfers on the Outer Banks.

"Today was really, really big," Brian Schwartz said after surfing before going to work at Bert's Surf Shop on Nags Head. "You had to be a little cautious, but we had a lot of fun rides."

At 9 p.m. CDT Sunday, Dennis was centered 135 miles south of Wilmington, N.C. It had turned slightly east of due north and had quickened its pace to 13 mph, with maximum sustained wind near 105 mph.

A hurricane warning was in effect for the North Carolina coast from the South Carolina state line to Oregon Inlet, near Nags Head. A tropical storm warning extended from Oregon Inlet northward to Chincoteague, Va., and southward as far as Savannah, Ga.

find out is how long the bear had spread rabies," state epidemiologist Dr. Patricia Quinlisk said. "Right now, I would say that anybody who was bitten by the bear or got saliva on their face or in an open wound ... needs to go and see their doctor and may need Rabies is a viral disease found in the saliva of infected animals and is transmitted to pets and humans by bites or possibly by contamination of an open cut. Untreated, rabies causes a painful death by attacking the nervous system.

Rick Swenson, 39, the petting zoo's owner, said the bear may have been in contact with approximately 100 people "One of the things we're trying to during the past week and a half. He 323-4360

Kevin Jacobs, a Postville veterinarian who treated the bear, said the bear was in a coma when he arrived on Aug. 27. The bear died at 1:30 p.m.

Swenson said the 70-pound bear was purchased from a breeder in Minnesota. He declined to give the breeder's name but said the person was recommended by others as being reputable Quinlisk said people possibly exposed to rables should contact their doctor. If there were other questions, Quinlisk said her department could be contacted through the lowa State Patrol's emergency number at 515-

Loftin was released at 9 a.m. on his own recognizance. A pre-trial hearing for the theft charge will be held on Sept. 9; a pre-trial hearing for the extortion charge will be held later in the month.

"They didn't go out on Saturday because they knew the cops would be out in force," Hill said.

However, Iowa City police Lt. Matt Johnson said the police are not doing anything different and the department has the same number of officers on patrol.

"There are specific people assigned for alcohol enforcement, but that's nothing different," he said. "The number of officers was normal for that watch.'

There is no main reason for the increase, Johnson said, but one contributing factor is that students are returning to the bars and getting arrested again.

In 1998, 882 people were charged with possession of alcohol under the legal age in all Iowa City bars, according to police records. Since Jan. 1, more than 1,400 people have been cited for the violation this year, the records said.

Downtown bars see more police because they are more convenient for the officers to walk in and out of compared with the bars the police must drive to, Johnson said.

"I've noticed a lot of cops the first couple of weekends," said Aaron Rose, a UI sophomore who was given a citation for possession of alcohol under the legal age at a downtown bar this weekend. "There were more than in the middle of the year."

Police hope that the bar staffs will pay better attention to their customers' ages, Johnson said. He added that police also hope that when underage drinkers see them issuing citations, they will realize the high chances of getting caught.

The bar checks don't seem to stop UI students from going to the bars. "It will prevent me for a little while, but when I want to go out, I'll just be more careful," Rose

DILI, Indonesia - East Timor's pro- and anti-independence leaders agreed Sunday to end years of bitter fighting, and Indonesia's military and police promised to maintain security during today's referendum on the future of the troubled territory.

Under a new U.N.-brokered peace deal, the rival factions agreed to keep their armed supporters off the territory's streets and to lay down their weapons today. They also promised to abide by the ballot's outcome.

"This is an opportunity for us to take a new step in history," said Eurico Guterres, the chief of the anti-independence Aitarak militia. His followers have been accused of killing civilians and assaulting U.N. staff. Approximately 438,000 people have registered to vote today on whether mainly Roman Catholic East Timor should remain part of Muslim-dominated Indonesia as an autonomous region or become fully independent.

Barak pushes for Mideast deal

■ The Israeli prime minister wants an agreement with Palestinians by tonight.

By Ron Kampeas Associated Press

JERUSALEM - One of Prime Minister Ehud Barak's envoys met with Palestinian leader Yasser Arafat late Sunday in an urgent attempt to reach agreement on implementing the Wye accord before Secretary of State Madeleine Albright arrives this Barak warned Sunday night that if Israeli and Palestinian negotiators fail to close a deal "within hours," he could carry out the U.S.-brokered accord unilaterally and as he sees fit.

Israel television, citing sources in Barak's office said

Classes start Sept. 6

"within hours" meant by this evening. The report said Barak suspects the Palestinians are dragging out the negotiations until Albright's scheduled arrival Thursday to create a pretext for deeper U.S. involve-

The statement issued by Barak's office said the Palestinians were not providing "satisfactory answers" on two issues: a timetable for an Israeli withdrawal from parts of the West Bank and the release of Palestinians in Israeli prisons. Negotiators have agreed that Israel will withdraw from an additional 11 percent of the West Bank by the end of January and establish "safe passage" routes for Palestinians to travel between the Gaza Strip and West Bank. The Palestinians will also be allowed to open a port in the Gaza Strip. A senior envoy for Barak made his case to Arafat in the West Bank town of Ramallah Sunday, said Palestinian officials, speaking on condition of anonymity. Failure to reach an agreement would lead Barak to consider "implementing what he sees as the original Wye, although he does not believe this is in the interest of either side," the statement said.

The statement said in that case, Barak would disregard all agreements achieved in recent negotiations.

Israel's original version of the accord calls for an open-ended pullout from the West Bank and the release of prisoners selected according to Israeli criteria.

Gazette and Gannett in a battle for profits

On Aug. 27, the Gazette Company, publisher of the Gazette in Cedar Rapids, announced it will begin publication of a new paper in the Iowa City area. The announcment is the opening shot in a battle between big and bigger media companies. The move is not about journalism, it's about profits.

It has been said the Iowa City Gazette, which will begin publication on Sept. 19, will include comprehensive Iowa City news and sports. And advertising. The Gazette Company, which also owns KCRG-TV among other companies, seems eager to fracture the influence and profits of the very large Gannett corporation, the owner of the Iowa City Press-Citizen and Des Moines Register. That might not be all bad.

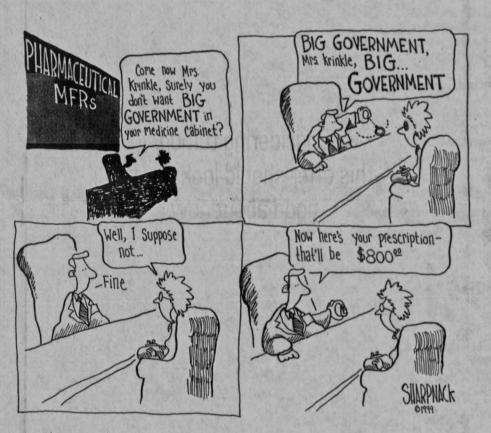

The announcement comes the same week the Register and Press-Citizen began a combined Sunday edition, published for the first time vesterday. The Gazette Company doesn't have the same resources as Gannett, so it seems very rational, although risky, for the Gazette to move in now rather than later for a better chance of maintaining a stronghold in Iowa City. Few media companies can compete with Gannett in the newspaper industry because it owns 75 newspapers nationwide, including the USA Today. The local Gazette Company, if not careful, won't be able to compete, either.

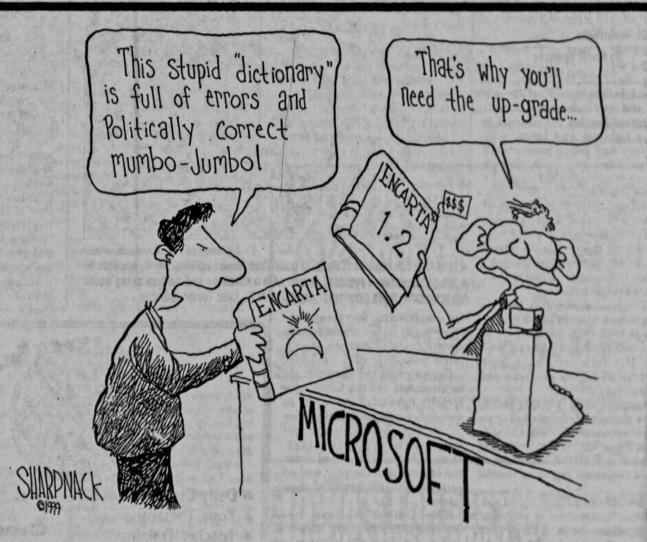

For the near future, the Iowa City Gazette will probably hurt the profits of Gannett. But the deep pockets of Gannett never seem to be satisfied; even though the company had more than $5 billion in operations revenue in 1998, it will surely put up a fight backed with deeper pockets. If successful, Gannett will likely continue its expansion - expansion that is often at the expense of quality journalism.

Ever since Gannett bought the Register, the paper's content has become watered down. The Register used to be seen as one of the best papers in the Midwest - some even considered it an agenda-maker — but its quality has slipped considerably since being bought by Gannett. To have such watered-down journalism — quite possibly the result of Gannett's drive for profits — dominate Eastern Iowa would be nothing short of a tragedy.

The new Iowa City Gazette isn't much of an issue for The Daily Iowan, which has its own audience in UI students, most of whom have the DI delivered to their doorsteps. This is an issue about big vs. bigger. Gazette vs. Gannett. Bigger took the first step with the combined Sunday newspaper, and big has responded with lightning speed. Now the questions are who will win and what voices will be heard? And at what journalistic cost?

A call for grad student discussions

ducation is so frequently cited as a public concern that it echoes like a mantra across the American republic. An abundance of studies and reports by institutional experts and governmental agencies attest to the ongoing salience of this issue.

Pollsters frequently solicit parents and students alike for their opinion. However, there is an underutilized group of experts among us whose insights and experiences are rarely tapped: graduate students.

As graduate students at the UI, many of my colleagues and I occupy unique positions as both students and teachers. We traffic daily in the world as students, engaging ideas, writing papers, and interacting with faculty members. In many instances, our experience as students constitutes the bulk of our lives. My student experience comprises 22 of my 31 years, a figure closely mirrored by other graduate students. Yet a good number of us also work as teachers. According to the UI's 1997 Annual Financial Report, graduate teaching assistants teach approximately 44 percent of the undergraduate courses. In this capacity we devote a good deal of time, energy, skill and insight to the learning process of students.

As we play many roles in higher education, graduate students have perspectives from which to draw. Unfortunately, our outlets for expression are generally limited to discus-MATT sions with our colleagues within the KILLMEIER confines of our respective departments or other internal venues. Engagement with a larger public is needed, and I hope to change this. As the UI is a public institution, I strongly believe there should be a public forum through which graduate students can offer their diverse ideas on education. Fortunately, The Daily Iowan has agreed to give us a forum. Each week this column will be open to graduate students' views on any aspect of education at the UI. While I will be weighing in as a columnist periodically, I hope that many fellow graduate students will choose to offer their ideas, concerns and opinions. As we are a diverse group, I anticipate that the column will be reflective of our manifold wisdom. Yet I also believe the common experiences, frustrations and goals we share will con> tribute to the coherence of the column. What we share as graduate students is greater than our disciplinary boundaries. In order for graduate students to be participants in the ongoing conversations on education at the UI, I urge you to submit your written work Interested writers should contact me by e-mail, Matthew-Killmeier@uiowa.edu, for specific information and criteria.

Bidding you a Fons farewell and returning to the grind et me just start off by commenting on how hard it is to know what the hell to write about after the thing I ran last Tuesday. It's like, "OK, I'll do the keening eulogy for my dead friend this week, and next week I'll rip into the asinine parking situation in downtown Iowa City or take on campaign finance reform."

Seems a little coarse, y' know? But lest I founder in my grief and turn this space into some kind of crass study in public mourning, I will do my best to reach beyond misery and loss and summon up at least a facsimile of feistiness. It's the least I can do for Jeremiah ... and for y'all. So thanks in advance for bearing with me.

That said, let me hold forth on something I've only just become aware of recently; is it just me, a hoary old fifthyear senior, or do the incoming freshmen (excuse me, "First-Year Students") look like a pack of Campbell's Soup Kids? I mean, I'm 23 years old, and I still consider myself a punk-ass kid. It seems weird to me that anybody 18 or older is referred to in the press as a "man" or "woman," and yet seeing all these freshfaced moppets roaming around campus with their spanking-new "Big 10 Conference" backpacks from the IMU bookstore makes me feel about 40. Did I ever exude that kind of enthusiasm? Maybe in kindergarten or something, before I got sucked into The System and turned bitter and twisted. Before I tried to add a Journalism Department prereq-

I think the reason that any of this is on my mind at all is that, due to forces well beyond my control, I happen to be taking Mandarin Chinese at 8:30 in the morning this fall. I haven't had a class that met before 10 a.m. for two-and-ahalf years. So here I am, five freakin' days a week, stalking downtown at the ass-crack of dawn like some disgruntled hermit, wading through a sea of first-year urchins on their way to Social Problems or Rhetoric or something. Ugh again. I HANNAH have never done mornings well, and having to FONS get up and function at a fairly complex level before 9:30 or so is just too much to ask of me. I suppose that the slurred, hissy quality of my voice at that hour might actually add something to my Mandarin pronunciation - or maybe I'll just sound drunk. Thas' right. Hannah Fons, Drunken Master. Ni hao, baybeh. Anyway. All this rambling and vagueness is really just a way of backing into the true thrust of this column. I think I'm done here at The Daily Iowan. Oh, calm down. I'm not going to go jump off an Iowa River bridge or lose myself in the steam tunnels or anything. I'm just so overwhelmed with academic nonsense and personal entanglements that I feel like I'm unable to do justice to this weekly process anymore. Sure, some of my best work comes straight out of the belly of academic nonsense and personal entanglements, but this time around, I need some quiet. I need to focus my energy, tattered and threadbare as it is these days, buckle down, and set about the business of getting graduated and the hell out of Dodge. Besides, if I just banged out 900 words the night before they were due at the paper and ran whatever piece of illcrafted garbage crossed my mind, it would be embarrassing. And it would waste your time. That would be a shame So this is it. The final column. I may from time to time submit something for your consideration, but for now, I'm trudging to class, hanging with my people and my cat, and withdrawing from the public eye. Like Garbo. Like Howard Hughes. Maybe I'll take to wearing a kerchief and big Jackie O. sunglasses and drinking lemon water at sidewalk cafes, just to cultivate that air of faded celebrity that's so intriguing. Regardless of my next move, I must say that writing for this paper has been some of the most fun I've had so far, and that nothing's cooler than having somebody come up to me and tell me that they like what I do. It's very gratifying and most humbling. Thanks so much for reading. What is it that Jerry Springer says at the end of his show? "Take care of yourselves and each other?" "Go and do the right thing?" No, that's Dr. Laura.

Damn. Well, whatever. Go forth and be fierce.

annah Fons was a DI columnist.

It will be interesting to see whether Republican presidential candidate George W. Bush's compassionate conservatism is for real. During my lifetime, the Democratic Party has been the more compassionate party. It has done more to meet the basic human needs of society's most vulnerable. Over the years, government has been more effective than the church in ministering to the poor. What makes Bush think churches and private charities will do a better job of implementing needed social programs? Is the GOP compassion-conversion genuine?

The rich we will have with us always, and they will always have more than enough. They are the only ones who substantially benefit from the proposed Republican tax cuts. Would wealthy conservatives be willing to waive a tax cut for themselves and pass it on to the middle class and poor, who need it more? It is more compassionate to give than to receive and to whom much is given, much is required. When Jesus told the rich young ruler to sell all that he had and give the money to the poor, the young man refused to follow Jesus by saying, "No."

Paul L. Whiteley Sr.

GOP policies are backward

It's an odd thing to me: The same GOP that decided that someone caught with a joint was more dangerous to society than someone convicted of assault, the same folks who backed utterly ridiculous mandatory minimum sentences for drug use, now want everyone to forgive and forget all that about George W. Bush. Frankly, I couldn't give a damn whether Bush did cocaine in his wild youth. But I do care very much about people who did the same thing and were sent to prison in such numbers that the system began releasing violent offenders early to make room.

This is the bed you made, GOP now you get to sleep in it.

Evolution is much more science than myth

As a Democrat and the founder of the Church of Reality, I am disappointed in Vice President Al Gore's statement that creationism should be taught in schools along with evolution. Creationism is merely religious mythology.

Other religions have different creation stories that are equally inaccurate. Evolution is science, and the way it actually happened. It's the difference between myths and reality, and in a science class we need to be teaching realithe way it really is. If we eliminate sciences from the classroom, as they did in Kansas, because it doesn't agree with the Bible, then we're going to have to get rid of astronomy, too. According to the Bible, the universe was created in six days approximately 7,000 years ago, and the Earth was created before the stars. This is clearly in conflict with scientific facts that estimate the age of the universe to be 15 billion years and the Earth to be 4 billion years. If the creation story in Genesis were true, the Hubbell Telescope wouldn't be able to see stars more than 7,000 light years away because the light from those stars wouldn't have got here yet.

Creationism is based on the Old Testament, which was written by ancient Jews who made a guess at the origin of the universe based on the limited knowledge they had at the time. It has now been proven that their guess was wrong; it's time that we give up old mythology and believe in what's real. We have come too far to go back to believing that world is flat.

Somewhere out there in the universe there must be an answer to why so many contemporary movies are so bad they make our ears pop and our eyeballs quiver.

Rand Ravich's new thriller, The Astronaut's Wife, is no exception to this puzzle, quickly catapulting itself into the gaping vortex of modern filmmaking's black hole. It fails not only as a science-fiction movie but also as an entity in itself, unable to stand on its own tentacles and claiming to be something it is most definitely not - a dynamic work of cellu-

Johnny Depp and Charlize Theron star in this piece of cinematic nothingness. Depp is astronaut Spencer Armagost, and Theron plays his spacy wife, Jillian. When Spencer's mission to the outer limits goes cryptically wrong, he returns to Earth a changed, albeit strangely contented, fellow. Considering the ordeal he has barely survived, Spencer's lack of post-traumatic stress becomes the core of Jillian's distress. She is sent into a swirling state of apprehension and terror. The situation is amplified by the news that Jillian is unexpectedly bearing twins. What ensues is a downward spiral into forced self-revelation and ultimate paranoia, leaving Jillian questioning not only her and her husband's identities, but also those of the fetuses she is carrying.

The mystery of the film does not reside in this complex storyline what is vexing to the mind is why the talented Depp and Theron would let themselves become entangled in such a web of cinematic crap! Depp especially could have been more discerning when he accepted a role in

The Astronaut's Wife goes around in circles if anywhere at all, starting from an ambiguous incident in space, then following an incoherent and convoluted series of events, before returning to its lame origin, adding a cluster of poorly conceived explanations to an already doomed and pre-scenes, contingent upon character interaction, are the most central to the film's evolution, but their inherent calmness anticipates a storm that never comes. The characters continually talk and contemplate and furl their brows, and with good reason: They are probably experiencing the same frustration that is being felt by the audience.

What is meant to be scary in The Astronaut's Wife is silly, what is meant to be suspenseful and surprising is poorly executed and expected, and what is meant to be intriguing is simply boring. What has been intended to create a big bang turns out to be a damp squib.

Harstad's career as a writer began in February 1986, when he found himself with almost two weeks of compulsory vacation time and nothing to do. So, he decided to write a book, which he called Eleven Days. "I got the whole thing done in 11 days - thus the title," he said. Harstad submitted the manuscript to publishers about twice yearly for the next several years. It was invariably rejected.

Then, in 1996, his cousin, a staff member on the show "ER," showed the manuscript to an actor, who found Harstad an agent. Not long after, the agent called to tell him of his two-book deal with Doubleday.

"The dispatcher took the call, then got on the radio and said, '22-3, your agent's on the phone," he said, Harstad quit the sheriff's department to devote time to writing. He recently completed his third book and is working on his fourth.

Though his new career also involves a lot of down time - he writes only 60 days of the year -Harstad is enjoying himself.

Nebraska's Erwin Swiney and Jason Schwab may be out for the season due to injuries.

> By Ken Hambleton Associated Press

LINCOLN, Neb. - In a way, it was a typical day in the life of a Nebraska football player for cornerback Erwin Swiney and offensive tackle Jason Schwab.

Typical enough. Schwab, however, was in St. Elizabeth Regional Health Center, undergoing reconstructive knee surgery. Lately, that is typical for NU football players, too. Neither player will be in uniform is weekend when Nebraska opens its 1999 season at Iowa. It could be that the two, both starters last year, will not be in uniform at all this year. Schwab is out for the season. Swiney may be out long enough he will sit out the season as a redshirt, then still have two years to play.

For both players, sitting out is the bardest part of football.

Hours in the weight room. Days of sweating through practices. Trying to balance schoolwork and team meetings. Summer conditioning. Spring football. Winter conditioning. All those things are better than not playing.

"I want to play so much. I love this game," Schwab said as his eyes moistened. "It might be hard to understand just how much it means to wear this uniform and to play on this field for this team. Oh, I want to play again."

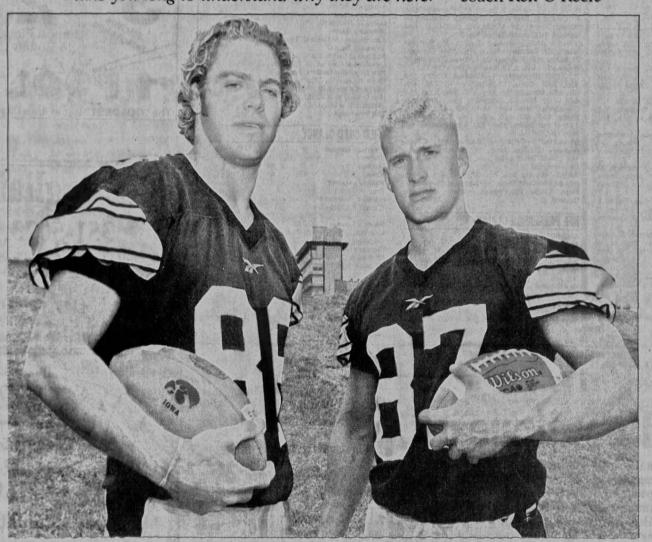

For Schwab, the chance to play again will probably depend on the

By Megan Manfull The Daily Iowan

Juniors Ryan Barton and Kevin Kasper are anything but normal. Call them what you want - the nicknames are endless.

They are Iowa's "Pretty Boys" and the offense's "Great White Hypes."

If you want to get more specific, Kasper prefers anything but Kevin. Most call him "Kasper the Ghost." Barton will answer to anything dangerous -"X-Games," Barton" or "Surfer Dude."

The wide receiver tandem lives on the edge. With an intense passion for football and a flamboyant nature each their own, the big show has just begun for Barton and Kasper.

"If I had to name two guys that love to play the game of football, it's those two," Iowa's offensive coordinator and receivers coach Ken O'Keefe said.

"They love to compete." "Look at them. You might think they were two average guys. What are they doing playing football in the Big Ten? But when they hit the field, it doesn't take you long to understand why they are here."

The duo has brought a never-saydie attitude to the Iowa squad. They walked-on to the football team in 1996 and earned scholarships less than two years later.

Last season, they saw limited action in every game. Kasper, of Burr Ridge, Ill., has 15-career catches for 300 yards. Converted from defensive back to wide receiver, Barton, of Newton, Iowa, saw his first action last season. He finished fourth on the team with 16 passes for 310 yards.

"I always liked hitting coming out of Newton," Barton said. "I liked the defense, but I've been away from it for awhile now. So, I kind of like the glory position, but I'll play either. I just like to play."

Barton and Kasper feed off the glory of their job. They love being seen. And they love doing anything out of the ordinary.

During their freshman year of college, the duo were neighbors in Slater Hall. It wasn't long before they found a common love for quick thrills.

One night, they headed over to the Field House pool with fellow freshman Kyle Trippeer and climbed to the 10-meter platforms that are off-limits because of danger. With lifeguards threatening to call public safety, the three jumped together.

"Those two live on the edge," Trippeer said. "They are down to do something crazy all the time. And being around them I've grown to do that too. I was never like that. I mean, my dad's a police officer."

Trippeer, Barton and Kasper are roommates this year, and all three are business majors. Trippeer and Kasper have aspirations of continuing football in the NFL. And Barton has aspirations of competing on

Loftin's love for football outweighs judgment

Most people have felt the way Ryan Loftin probably feels right now. Some people just handle it differently than others.

Rejection hurts as much as any facet of human emotion. It is the sickening feeling that comes when one tries as hard as they can at something, only to have it not be enough.

Be it a lover who shattered your dreams and broke your heart, or hearing from a boss that your best work is not good enough, rejection is painful. Take Loftin's case

Here is a kid who came to the team as a walk-on and according to his father "had a love affair with the University of Iowa Hawkeye football team." Here is a kid who worked his way up the depth chart to the point where he finally got enough playing time to compete for a starting spot.

Here is a kid that got all that taken away from him when the new coaching regime took over and the

Did Loftin feel rejected by the new coaching staff?

Probably. Did Loftin feel anger towards the program?

Did Loftin act irrationally when he threatened in a letter to "drive down I-80 all the way to Lincoln and share information about defense and special teams" with the Huskers?

Absolutely.

There is little question that Loftin's lapse in judgment warranted the extortion charges brought against him, but, like most things, there is probably more to the story.

Being 22-years-old is a trying time for most college students. Staring the impending real world in the face. life sometimes seems more complex than it used to.

Like anyone in a time of uncertainty, it helps to have some standbys around. For Loftin, his was foot-

Quan Nim has proven herself on the field hockey team. But her reaction after Iowa's win over Maine on Saturday suggests she might want to try her luck at the high jump. The senior leapt five feet into the air with joy after Iowa clinched its. first victory of the year, a 2-0 win over the Black Bears at Grant Field Saturday.

"It took us awhile to get a really good shot inside the circle during the game," Nim said. "Maine is a really talented team and they definitely made us work, but this win was really important for us."

Maine could only muster two shots on goal in the first half as Iowa defensively slowed the team down. By the end of the second half,

Maine was exhausted after trying to keep up with the fast tempo of Iowa's game in the scorching heat.

"I am glad it's over," Iowa coach Beth Beglin said. "I was actually really nervous before the game. It was really humid out here, and Maine is not used to playing in that type of weather."

Iowa got on the board with 12:01 left in the second half when freshman Tiffany Leister passed to sophomore Maria Merluzzi, who buried her first shot of the game. The Hawkeyes dominated the shot clock the entire game and scored as a result of persistence, Beglin

"This is the type of game where you can dominate and still lose 1-0," Beglin said. "On a hot day like this, the ball tends to stick to the turf, which made any shot difficult."

The second goal came as a result of a shot by Leister with 3:16 left in the game. In recognition of her first goal as a Hawkeye, the two-time high school All-American was mobbed by teammates as she ran

Women fall in season opener

The lowa women's socer team dropped its opener gainst Saint Louis, 5-3.

By Troy Shoen The Daily Iowan

The season didn't start how the Iowa women's soccer team had hoped, losing 5-on the road to aint Louis on riday night. Bilikens tormed out to an arly 2-0 lead holdg Iowa scoreless in the first half. After St. Louis scored again t the start of the second half, owa finally got its first goal rom freshman Sara Lynch at the 59th minute into the game.

Lynch got the pass from Julie Atkocaitis and kicked it in from 16 yards out.

It didn't take Iowa long to score again as Kate Walse got the Hawkeyes within a goal just two minutes after Lynch's score.

"Saint Louis controlled the first half but we came out on fire in the second half," said Coach Stephanie Gabbert.

But Iowa couldn't get any closer as Saint Louis scored two more quick goals in the 62nd and 66th minutes. The final Saint Louis goal came from Trisha Underwood who capped off a strong performance. She finished with two goals and one assist on the night.

Iowa was able to get one more goal from Walse but it was too late to make a rally.

"Saint Louis was a really good team," Walse said. "We came out slow and they took advantage of that. We learned a lot that we can take away from the St. Louis game."

Saint Louis only took one more shot on goal than Iowa did, and Iowa goalie Melissa Wichart had seven saves on the night.

"Unfortunately, a couple of the goals went in on our own mistakes," Gabbert said. "But I was proud of our team."

Iowa will look for their first win of the season when they host Wisconsin-Green Bay September 1 at the Hawkeye Recreation Fields.

Cherrington gets start against Rams

BOULDER, Colo. (AP) - Senior Dwayne Cherrington will start at tailback, and sophomore wide receiver John Minardi will make his first career start when Colorado opens its season Saturday night against in-state rival Colorado State.

Coach Gary Barnett penciled in his starters on Sunday, two days after an 82-play scrimmage

Cherrington, who ran for 100 yards against CSU last year but was slowed by injuries throughout the season, has been bothered by a strained hamstring in fall camp. He had several long runs in Friday's scrimmage, however.

"The guys I put on the field I have to trust," Barnett said. "Dwayne is very trustworthy. He had a nice scrimmage a couple of days ago, and I think he's back to form after missing some time." Sophomore Cortlen Johnson and junior Damion Barton should get plenty of playing time, Barnett said.

"I anticipate that all three guys will be playing," Barnett said. "I hope all three are so good that we don't know who to play.'

Junior Adam Bledsoe will be the backup to Mike Moschetti at quarterback.

Minardi, a defensive back who switched to offense and was voted the most improved offensive player during spring drills, has been impressive in fall work to do before the 2000 Games. Both teen-agers fell short of their goal a national title — at the U.S. Gymnastics Championships that ended Saturday. Gatson was thwarted by injury, while Atler was undone once again by a fall on the uneven Gatson, 18, one of the nation's top male gymnasts, tore a ligament in his right knee Friday night while leading the all-around competition. He flew back to the U.S. Olympic Training Center in Colorado Springs, Colo., on Saturday and is expected to have surgery in the next few weeks. ESPN's X-Games.

Two skateboards lay in the players' living room. Barton's tried to teach his roommates tricks. However, Kasper would rather roller blade and Trippeer said a lineman's weight doesn't go well with the small board.

"I know someday I'm going to be old and flip on ESPN and there's going to be Barton on the X-Games skating down some ramp," Kasper said. "I've kind of got a crazy per- lotion. sonality and Barton's got an edge to him. It's kind of a good mix."

The trio's apartment is never dull. According to Trippeer, the phone rings off the hook - mainly women. And football is constantly on the television.

A snowboarding poster -Barton's, of course - hangs on the living room wall. And motorcycle rides around campus relieve stress at nights.

While Barton and Kasper are sometimes mistaken as brothers, Trippeer said there are obvious differences between the two.

"Kasper loves to be the center of attention, with all the jewelry and the clothes he wears," Trippeer said. "He stands in the mirror forever and primps himself. He fixes his hair and puts on all kinds of "Barton's real laid back. He just gets up and puts on whatever is closest to him.'

Whatever their similarities or differences, the two have come together on the field. They quickly impressed the new coaching staff. Both have good hands and Iowa coach Kirk Ferentz was surprised at Kasper's hitting. In the NFL, receivers eager to hit are hard to find.

O'Keefe also plans to discuss strategies on Saturday with the two. And although, he knows about their reckless nature off the field, he said very little of what they do surprises him anymore. "They keep you on your toes, though," O'Keefe said. "They are great football players, very smart and intense. I wouldn't doubt I may see Ryan on the X-Games. Or I think, he'll go to law school and then head to Hollywood to be in a drama series. I would put nothing past these two, absolutely nothing. If they put their minds to it, it will get done."

Woods recovers, nets win

After another shaky final round. Woods won the NEC Invitational.

> By Doug Ferguson Associated Press

AKRON, Ohio - Tiger Woods hit another bump in the road on the back nine. He also stared down another challenge with a big putt on the 17th hole. And when the NEC Invitational came to a close Sunday, he had yet another Woods revived his putter just in time, holing a 20-foot birdie putt on the 17th for a two-stroke cushion. That proved to be critical when he had to two-putt from 60 feet for bogey on the final hole to win for the fifth time this year.

It all added up to a 1-over 71 and $1 million for his one-stroke victory over Ryder Cup teammate Phil Mickelson, who put a scare into Woods with a 65.

Woods finished at 10-under 270 on a tough Firestone Country Club that played more than three strokes harder because of deceptive winds and treacherous pin placements.

At 23, he becomes the youngest player to win five times in one season since Jack Nicklaus won the Sahara Invitational in 1963 at the exact same age. He is also the first player since Nick Price in 1994 to win five times in a year.

The victory, no matter how ugly it got down the stretch, also lends credibility again to comparisons to Nicklaus

Woods has been utterly dominant this summer, and appears to be getting better with every week.

Including his victory in Germany against a strong field, Woods has won five times in his last eight tournaments. Sunday was also the ninth straight time he has had at least a share of the 54-hole lead and gone on to win.

Just like his victory in the PGA Championship two weeks ago, Woods appeared to be in total control until he pulled two relatively short par putts on the back nine and saw his lead shrink to a

And just like at Medinah, where Woods had to make an 8foot par save on the 17th to maintain a one-stroke lead, he found a way to steady a sinking ship.

With Mickelson in at 271, Woods had a 20-foot birdie putt on No. 17 that crept into the hole on the last turn, causing him to pump his fist four times and let out another sigh of relief. It didn't last long, however.

Phil Long/Associated Press

He had to lay up out of the rough on the 464-yard closing hole, then caught his wedge fat and left himself 60 feet to the hole. But he coaxed the par putt within 2 feet, a great putt under the circumstances, and tapped in for the victory. Mickelson, who has won a World Series of Golf at Firestone and finished second twice, earned $510,000 for the largest paycheck of his career. But he is running out of time to extend his streak to Tour victory. He can blame this opportunity on two bad shots - a layup that found the rough on the par-5 16th, and a drive into the rough on the closing hole. Both led to bogeys.

seven years with at least one PGA

"I needed to put both balls in the fairway," Mickelson said.

Craig Parry (69) and Nick Price (71) tied for third at 5-under 275.

By winning the World Golf Championship event for Ryder Cup and Presidents Cup players, Woods became the first player to surpass $4 million in one season. He now has played three full seasons as a pro and has won 12 times on the PGA Tour. He has earned more than $8.9 million and already is 12th in career money.

Sergio Garcia, the 19-year-old Spaniard who nearly made up a five-stroke deficit over the final seven holes in the PGA Championship, took a quadruple-bogey 9 on the 16th and finished eight strokes back in a tie for seventh.

Fred Couples, playing in the final pairing with Woods, had a > worldwide victories that Woods led after the first round and went on to win. And it was the second time this year that a third-round 62 set up the victory.

After his first five shots of the day, Woods looked like he could breeze to another 62 and beat the field even worse than his 12stroke victory in the Masters two years ago. It was as simple as a wedge to 3 feet for birdie on No. 1, as powerful as a 333-yard drive and a 9-iron uphill 164 yards on the par-5 second that left him just off the green.

But his 4-foot birdie putt bounced over a minefield of spike marks and lipped out of the cup for a frustrating par. Woods made up for that with a 10-foot birdie putt on the 200-yard fifth hole, but by then he knew he had a game.

Mickelson birdied five of the first seven holes to get within three strokes of Woods, then closed within two with an 8-foot birdie putt on the 11th. While Mickelson stayed in the hunt with his brilliant short game - a tough par save from the bunker on No. 13 and a flop shot out of the deep rough to 2 feet on No. 15, two errant shots cost him a

His layup on the 625-yard 16th went too far into the rough and kept him from attacking the pin, positioned behind the water. He went over the green, chipped to 5 feet and missed the putt to take bogev.

He got it back with a 4-foot birdie on No. 17, but then chopped up the 18th by hitting into the rough, hitting a tree, hitting more rough and having to make a nice up-and-down for bogey.

Pepper holds off Kuehne for Olds victory

Dottie Pepper sank a 35foot putt to win the Oldsmobile Classic.

EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP) -Dottie Pepper, who had struggled throughout the final round, rattled in a 35-foot birdie putt from just off the green on the 72nd hole Sunday to nail down a 2-stroke victory over Kellie Kuehne in the Oldsmobile Classic.

Pepper, who notched her second major with a triumph at the Nabisco Dinah Shore earlier in the season, shot a 2-under 70 for an 18-under 270 total at Walnut Hills Country Club. Kuehne, who started the day in a five-way tie for second, five shots back, finished second alone after shooting a 67.

ner, tied for third at 13-under 275. Each shot a 69 in strong cross winds over the final round

Pepper, as she had done so many times during the final two rounds, drove into the right rough on the final hole. She hit her 7iron approach shot from thick rough onto the green, but the ball rolled just off the putting surface and into the first cut.

That allowed her to leave the pin in the cup, which proved to be important. Pepper's putt came out a little hot, but the ball hit the pin dead center and disappeared into the hole as Pepper jumped for joy and the crowd cheered.

Even Kuehne smiled, despite the realization that she wasn't going to force a playoff.

Kuehne let it be known the game was on right from the start with a trademark booming drive, and the veteran Pepper helped open the door with a mistake off the first tee, driving into a clump of trees. That set up a bogey for Pepper and when Kuehne drained a six-foot putt, it was a 2-stroke swing Pepper settled down with birdies on Nos. 3 and 4, but Kuehne responded with birdies on Nos. 4, 5 and 6. It was almost like match play.

Pepper birdied No. 7 from 5 feet for a 3-stroke lead at 18 under. Both birdied the eighth and bogeyed the ninth, so Pepper turned at 18 under, three ahead of Kuehne.

But, just as she did in the third round, Pepper started the final nine with a bogey, failing to get out of greenside rough on her third shot. That cut her lead to two strokes, her closest call in two days, and Kuehne slashed it to one shot with a 20-foot birdie putt at No. 13.

In his seventh Senior Tour event, Jim Ahern won a playoff against Hale Irwin.

STE-JULIE, Quebec (AP) -Jim Ahern, playing in only his seventh Senior PGA Tour event, parred the second playoff hole Sunday to beat Hale Irwin and win the $1.35 million Canadian Senior Open.

It was the second week in a row, Irwin, a five-time champion this year, lost in a playoff to a firsttime senior winner. Tom McGinnis beat Irwin last week at the BankBoston Classic.

The 50-year-old Ahern, a qualifier whose previous best finish was an 18th, won the $202,500 top prize as well as a one-year exemption from qualifying on the senior tour.

He birdied the last two holes in regulation, including a 15-footer from the fringe on the 72nd hole to force the playoff as he and Irwin finished at 16-under 272 at Richelieu Valley Golf Club.

Ahern had a final-round 68 Sunday, while Irwin, the thirdround leader, had a 69.

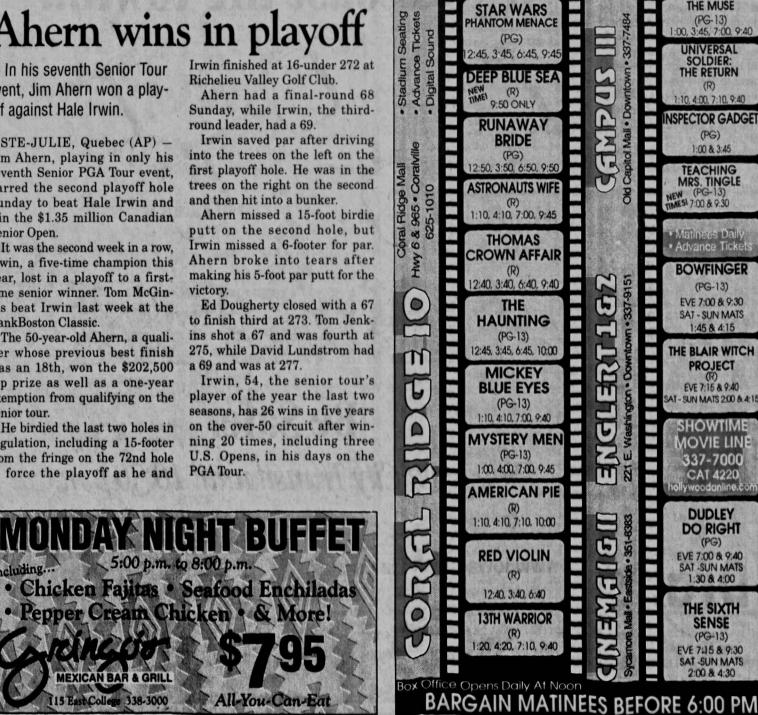

Irwin saved par after driving into the trees on the left on the first playoff hole. He was in the trees on the right on the second and then hit into a bunker.

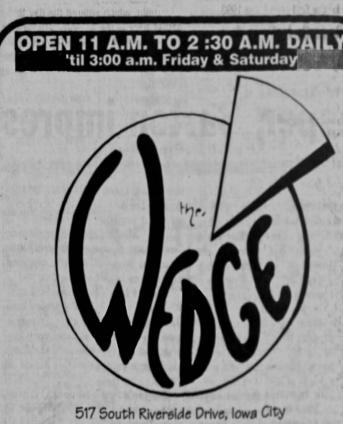

Ahern missed a 15-foot birdie putt on the second hole, but Irwin missed a 6-footer for par. Ahern broke into tears after making his 5-foot par putt for the Ed Dougherty closed with a 67 to finish third at 273. Tom Jenkins shot a 67 and was fourth at 275, while David Lundstrom had a 69 and was at 277.

Irwin, 54, the senior tour's player of the year the last two seasons, has 26 wins in five years on the over-50 circuit after winning 20 times, including three U.S. Opens, in his days on the PGA Tour.

TRAINING CAMP REPORT

Injury bug hits NFL

■ Trent Green is gone for the year in St. Louis, and other key players are expected to be out.

By the Associated Press

NFL trainer's rooms were busier than usual during Saturday night's exhibition games as a number of teams took some major lumps.

The St. Louis Rams lost starting quarterback Trent Green with a season-ending knee injury. Cleveland linebacker Chris Spielman, attempting a comeback from neck fusion surgery in 1997, might retire after a violent helmet-on-helmet collision sent him to the hospital.

New Orleans starting quarterback Billy Joe Hobert is expected to miss the Saints' final preseason game after fracturing one of his ribs.

Miami was relieved to learn tests showed running back Cecil Collins had no new break in his injured right ankle, giving him a chance to heal in time for the season opener.

New York Giants center Brian Williams, attempting a comeback after missing two seasons with an eye injury, sprained his left knee in the first half of a 16-10 loss to the New York Jets.

In the Rams' 24-21 victory over San Diego, Green tore the anterior cruciate ligament, sustained a third-degree sprain of the medial collateral ligament in his left knee and also had cartilage damage.

Reconstructive surgery will be scheduled when the swelling subsides, in about 2-3 weeks. Dr. Robert Shively, the team physician, estimated the recovery period at 13 months.

The injury occurred when Chargers strong safety Rodney Harrison, blitzing on the play, lunged at the back of Green's knees just after a pass was thrown. Green had completed all 11 of his attempts before the injury.

Kurt Warner, who has one quarter of NFL experience, became St. Louis' starter by default. The team also acquired Paul Justin from Oakland as insurance Sunday, giving up a seventh-round pick in next year's draft.

Warner, 28, led NFL Europe in passing yards, attempts, completions and touchdowns in 1998 for the Amsterdam Admirals. Before that, he passed for 10,164 yards and 183 touchdowns in three seasons with the Iowa Barnstormers of the Arena Football League.

"I'm confident in my ability and the coaches are confident in my ability," Warner said. "Now it's time to go out and prove to the rest of the world that I can be successful."

Chicago lost backup defensive tackle Jimmy Herndon for the season with a torn ACL in his left knee.

Hobert completed 10 of 15 passes for 179 yards and two touchdowns before a helmet to his right side fractured one of his ribs.

"It shouldn't be that big a deal," Hobert said, although he admitted he was in pain just standing still. "If they wanted me to play in the next game, I could as long as I wore a protective rib vest.'

Spielman could announce his retirement Monday after sustaining a "stinger" during win over Chicago when he was blindsided by Bears center Casey Wiegmann while trying to cut back on a screen play. After shedding and spinning off one blocker, Spielman turned and before he could get his feet planted, Wiegmann crushed him.

take a stab at the Heisman Trophy as well as Ricky Williams' rushing record.

> By Greg Wallace The Daily Iowan

Ron Dayne didn't come back for another season of college football for any of the big, obvious reasons, like the Heisman Trophy or breaking the NCAA rushing record. He came back for a smaller, but much more important reason - his infant daughter Jada.

The Wisconsin senior running back made it clear that while team success and records were important to him, his daughter Jada, who is only 21 months old, was his focus. Jada's mother, Alia, is a Wisconsin student, and Dayne would have had to spend time away from Jada if he went to the NFL

"I came back mainly for my daughter," Dayne said. "She was too young for me to be away from her for that long. It's a lot of fun (being a father). I love the responsibility.'

Besides sticking around and being a father, Dayne is also just a good season away from breaking Ricky Williams' rushing record. He currently sits in 19th place alltime in NCAA rushing history, with 4,563 yards.

Ron Dayne, who needs 1,717 yards to break Ricky Williams' NCAA Division I-A career rushing record, talks with reporters during Wisconsin's media day, Sunday.

from being the Big Ten's all-time leading rusher. He needs 1,717 yards to break Williams' record, or 156 yards per game. It's not an unaccomplishable goal; Dayne had 2,109 yards his freshman season, and he has averaged 1,697 He is also only 500 yards away yards per season for his career.

Even though Dayne's return may have raised the eyebrows of some, his coach was not one of

"Not really," Wisconsin coach Barry Alvarez said when asked if Dayne's return surprised him. "When you put all the facts together, what he wanted to do, what he wanted to accomplish, it really made sense for him.

"I wanted to come back and have some fun," Dayne said. "I'm not ready to leave the college atmosphere yet.'

Dayne should have a solid front to run behind, considering most of Wisconsin's offensive line, save NFL first round draft pick Aaron Gibson, returns.

Left tackle Chris Macintosh is a preseason Outland Trophy candidate, and has started every game in his Wisconsin career. In addition, guards Dave Costa and Bill Ferrario, and center Casey Rabach are all returning two-year

"I'm going to miss (Gibson), but we have a couple of guys who can step in and do what they have to do," Dayne said. "I have Big Mac, and he's the next best thing. I have two real strong guys and two anchors on the outside, and the other guys have gotten a lot older and better too, now, so I'm not too worried about it."

And while he has been mentioned as a preseason favorite for the Heisman Trophy, Dayne doesn't want a marketing blitz from Wisconsin's sports information department. He's not playing this game for himself; he's playing it for his team.

"I have a great team, and great guys on my team," Dayne said. "If it wasn't for my team, I wouldn't even be mentioned for the Heisman. I'd rather have my numbers speak for themselves. I don't want to be all hyped up, I just want to go out and play."

Softspoken and reserved, Dayne seems a bit uncomfortable with all of the attention he is receiving. And this before the season has even begun. For him, the team's success comes before that of his own.

"I know if my team's not winning, the record doesn't mean anything to me," Dayne said. "But if we win, and I get the record, I'm

Alvarez concurred.

"He's a kid that doesn't spend a lot of time worrying about records, because he's broken just about every one he can," Alvarez said, "I've seen him give people trophies," MVP's, he just gives stuff away. That's not real important to him.

The Badgers have gone to a better bowl after each of Dayne's three seasons, going from a Cop-per Bowl date with Utah in 1996. to last year's 38-31 triumph over UCLA. While he is happy about the way things have gone, Dayne, along with everyone else in Badger country, wants to take the next step forward.

"My main goal is just to go to a bigger bowl, or a better bowl, than the Rose Bowl," Dayne said.

When a reporter remarked that there was only one bowl bigger than the Rose Bowl, that being the Sugar Bowl, this year's national championship game, Dayne conceded his expectations.

"All right then," Dayne said with a smile and a knowing laugh, his face showing that he wanted to be celebrating Y2K in the French Quarter.

Warrick returns for a shot at national title

■ The Florida State wide receiver has a chance to avenge last year's loss in the championship game.

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. - Peter Warrick could have ended up as the answer to a trivia question.

After rooming with Warrick as a redshirt freshman, Moss moved to Marshall, eventually overcoming his troubles to become an NFL star. That left the receiving stage at Florida State wide open for Warrick, who returns to the Seminoles this year as one of the top players in college football.

The two have remained friends. They talk regularly on the telephone. The conversations will become more interesting when the season begins.

"I've told him, 'I'm going to call you every Saturday night and let you know what I did," Warrick says. "I'm going to tell him, 'I want you to do better than that on Warrick could have joined Moss in the NFL this season. Many people expected the Florida State senior to forgo his final year for a sure spot in the draft's first round.

Much like Peyton Manning did two seasons ago, Warrick decided to stay in school. He wanted another chance at the national title that eluded the Seminoles by one victory last season. Perhaps the prospect of winning the Heisman Trophy was a factor, too. There could have been other

"I really think Peter likes Tallahassee, Florida, and he likes it at FSU," coach Bobby Bowden says. "I don't think it's like he can't wait to get to New York or Philadelphia. Maybe that doesn't excite

As much as the decision had to do with football, it had to do with becoming an adult. Raised by his mother and aunt, Warrick never had much of a father figure growing up. Enter Bowden and the sage advice he dispenses in his down-home, folksy way.

"Sometimes I think, 'Gosh, I wonder how it would be if my daddy was there," Warrick says.
"Coach Bobby is like a father away from home. I grew up without my father. I can talk to Bobby in any way. He'll tell me, 'I think you need to do this, you need to do that.' I try to listen and follow what he tells me."

Bowden ranks Warrick up there with the most talented players he's ever coached, a list that includes Derrick Brooks, Warrick Dunn and Andre Wadsworth.

"He's a dangerous football player," Bowden says. "I think you better get two or three guys on him or you're not going to get him. He's just got a God-given talent to Carolina State's Torry Holt. Finding the end zone has always seemed easy for Warrick, a muscular 6-foot, 200-pound speedster known his whole life as P-Dub, for the W in his last name.

"The first time I touched the ball, the first time being out there, I ran the kickoff all the way back," says Warrick, recalling his football debut as a 10-year-old.

Choosing the Seminoles was easy for Warrick, whose high school team had the same nickname. His favorite player was former Florida State great Deion Warrick met Sanders this summer, but isn't making any bold statements about going head-tohead with the perennial All-Pro cornerback one day.

I ain t ready for that yet, warrick said, laughing. "I came back one more year so I could get ready for that.'

He might also be getting ready for the Heisman. Warrick and Wisconsin's Ron Dayne enter the season as the top candidates.

"That's something that will either come or it won't," Bowden says. "I don't think that's why he stayed. But our team will be on TV every Saturday. Plenty of people will see him. If he's got it, they'll see it and they'll vote for him."

It was a TV appearance of another nature that may have formed the most opinions of Warrick to this point, none of them flattering.

In last year's 23-16 loss to Tennessee in the Fiesta Bowl, the receiver had just one catch for 7 yards. In the second half, TV cameras caught him on the sideline, animated and obviously frustrated.

"I know on TV they were trying to make it seem like I was mad because I wasn't getting the ball," he says. "It probably looked like that, but it wasn't like that at all. was mad because I felt we weren't playing together as a team.

He'll have plenty of time to get it right this year. His decision to stay in college one more year was one his former roommate, Moss, completely agreed with.

"He was telling me it's a business up there, like a 9-to-5 job," Warrick said. "He's glad I stayed. Now he's saying, 'first pick, first round, Peter Warrick.' He's going to go crazy."

Spielman pondering retirement

■ The Browns' emotional leader may guit after suffering a neck injury Saturday.

> By Tom Withers Associated Press

BEREA, Ohio - Once the feeling returned in Chris Spielman's arms and legs, he picked himself up, and though a bit shaky, walked off the field under his own

He may soon walk away from the NFL the same way.

Spielman, the Cleveland Browns' intense middle linebacker attempting a comeback from neck fusion surgery in 1997, could announce his retirement Monday after getting his second scare of the preseason following a violent helmet-on-helmet collision that sent him to the hospital during Saturday night's exhibition game.

"He's exploring all of his options," said Browns coach Chris Palmer, who spoke to Spielman twice on Sunday. "He's going to look at everything and go from there. What we want to do is sit back take a look at things, let things settle down for 24 hours both emotionally and physically and then talk about the subject at that time."

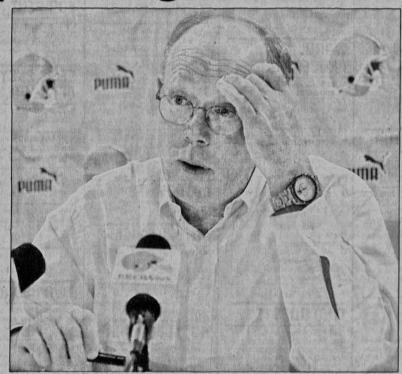

Palmer wouldn't go so far as to say if he recommended to Spielman that 10-year veteran should retire. However, the first-year coach intimated all that may be left for Spielman to do was announce his career was over.

"There's some things that have to be ironed out, discussed, looked at," said Palmer, who was visibly shaken after Saturday's game. "I think once that's all done I think we'll be in pretty good shape."

After speaking with Spielman over the phone early Sunday morning from the hospital, Palmer said the two visited again at 8 a.m. in Palmer's office.

"We had a good conversation," Palmer said. "It was very candid. It was a situation that he expressed some things to me, I expressed some things to him that will remain private. That's between the coach and the player, and I think we'll have more to say on the subject in the next day or so.

"I wanted a clear mind in the morning to talk to him. I think he had a clear mind and came in and talked to me. The fact we talked man-to-man and eye-to-eye is real

Tony Dejak/Associated Press Cleveland Browns coach Chris Palmer talks Sunday about his concern for Browns linebacker Chris Spielman after his injury against Chicago.

Asked what his gut feeling told him about whether Spielman would play again, Palmer said, "I'll reserve that until tomorrow."

The 33-year-old Spielman sustained a "stinger" during the Browns' 35-24 win over Chicago when he was blindsided by Bears center Casey Wiegmann while trying to cut back on a screen play.

After shedding and spinning off one blocker, Spielman turned and before he could get his feet planted, Wiegmann crushed him.

Spielman stayed on the ground for several moments, and later told Cleveland offensive tackle Lomas Brown, who also played with him in Detroit, that he had been momentarily paralyzed.

"It's scary," Brown said. "I don't want to tell him what to do, but I think he should have a long talk with his wife Stefanie and think about what he wants to do. Life is more important that football."

Wiegmann offered Spielman some assistance after the play.

"I thought I hit him good, but I didn't think I did that," Wiegmann said. "He looked me right in the eye, and I was going to help him up but he said to me he didn't want to get up.

Spielman had two vertebrae fused in his neck in 1997 while he was with the Buffalo Bills. He missed the final eight games that season, and was prepared to come

But Spielman put his playing career on hold to care for his family after his wife underwent breast cancer surgery. The Browns signed him to a three-year contract in February, and Spielman instantly became the expansion team's most popular player because of his Ohio roots as a high school star at Massillon and All-America at Ohio State.

He got a scare in training camp when he was blasted by fullback Tarek Saleh, a blow that sent him to the hospital for an MRI. The results actually showed Spielman's neck had gotten stronger since the surgery, and he was encouraged that he was fine.

However, Saturday night's scare may have convinced him it's time to quit.

"There's nobody playing this game that's 50 years old," Palmer said. "You only have so many blocks, so many tackles in your body and the guy upstairs says it's time to sit back and watch somebody else play. That happens sometimes when you're 18, sometimes when you're 22 or 35. But it happens."

If Spielman's career is over, the Browns are losing more than just an inside linebacker, Palmer said. Their losing a player with an unparalleled work ethic who leads by example.

Miami back with a vengeance

■ The Hurricanes made their first step back towards college football's elite with a win over Ohio State.

By Rusty Miller Associated Press

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. -Six days after declaring Austin Moherman was his starter, Ohio State coach John Cooper elected to open up another quarterback controversy.

With Ohio State leading Miami 9-7 midway through the second quarter of Sunday's Kickoff Classic, Cooper and two of his assistants decided to pull Moherman and bring in Steve Bellisari. It wasn't all Bellisari's fault that the Buckeyes promptly fell apart on the way to a 23-12 loss. But it also wasn't as if the move paid dividends. It even seemed to provide a clear swing in momentum in favor of the Hurricanes.

"We felt like we wanted to put Steve in the ballgame to see if he could make something happen," Cooper said.

"We had said going in we were not going to declare a series with these two guys," offensive coordinator Mike Jacobs said. "We were not going to say, 'Hey, the third series this guy's coming out.' We were going to ride with the guy, hopefully with a hot hand. And then make a switch if need be, or just to pull out and give a guy a series and make some adjustments and talk to him."

Moherman, making his first career start, had a hot hand. He had completed 5 of his last 7 passes for 42 yards and a touchdown after missing on his first two attempts. One of his two incompletions in the previous three series was a drop by tight end Kevin Houser.

Taking over at the Miami 28 after a Nate Clements interception, the Buckeyes moved to the 15 on three Jonathan Wells runs. But then things fell apart.

Jeff Zelevansky/Associated Press Miami running back James Jackson spins at the line of scrimmage against Ohio State Sunday.

Wells pulled in Bellisari's only pass attempt but was thrown for a 3-yard loss. After Wells regained that yardage on a run, Bellisari misfired on a screen to the right. Under pressure from a Miami blitz, he threw the ball behind the line of scrimmage toward Wells, resulting in a lateral that bounced out of bounds for an 11-yard loss.

"We were hoping they would blitz, actually," Jacobs said. "We were throwing a screen pass and that's either feast or famine. You like it sometimes when they are coming because they're selling out. If you can get the ball dished out, you're one on one out there. Unfortunately, it was famine instead of feast for us."

Dan Stultz then missed wide right on a 44-yard field goal.

The Buckeye defense forced a Miami punt and took over at the Hurricanes' 40, but there was trouble brewing again.

On first down, Bellisari fumbled the exchange from center Kurt Murphy and Miami's Dan Morgan recovered with 4:23 left in the and defended Bellisari to reporters after the game.

"I can tell you right now, I'm not down on Steve Bellisari. You guys can write what you want to about the fumbled snap, but we can correct that," Cooper said. "I like the guy and he will play in the next ballgame. You can put that down. I like him. We've got to make things happen and we didn't make them happen.

Miami sure did.

After the lost fumble, Miami's Kenny Kelly completed a pair of passes for 50 yards and capped the drive with a 7-yard bootleg touchdown run to give the Hurricanes their first lead. His twopoint conversion pass to James Jackson made it 15-9.

Moherman returned after the ensuing kickoff, but things weren't the same for the Buckeyes. He sandwiched incompletions around a 7-yard sack before Ohio State punted.

Asked if Ohio State lost momentum after the switch, Moherman said, "I don't know. Somebody else would have to say. We were moving the ball pretty decent right there at the end of the first quarter and the start of the second. ... I felt pretty good. I started to get some completions, moving the chains, getting the first downs. It felt pretty good."

Four plays later after Bellisari lost the ball, Kelly lofted a long pass that hung in the wind, providing Santana Moss the opportunity to stop and come back on his route. He wrestled the ball away from Clements at the 25, then completed the 67-yard touchdown play that led to a 23-9 lead at halftime.

Moherman, who took every snap the rest of the game, said he wasn't surprised to come out.

"That was the plan going in. Everybody knew that both Steve and me were going to play," he said. "That was just the time it happened."

Cooper said he felt Moherman played well but still had room for improvement completing 10-of-22 passes for 107 yards with two interceptions.
