Minority enrollment at 4-year low

■ However, the UI's 9.06 percent figure is higher than the regents' goal of 8.5 percent.

By Chao Xiong
The Daily Iowan

This year, the UI has seen the lowest number of minority students in the past four years despite surpassing the Iowa state Board of Regents' goal for minority enrollment for the sixth consecutive year.

There are 2,615 minority students enrolled at the UI for the 1999-00 academic year — 9.06 percent of total enrollment. This is down from 9.3 percent in 1998 — 2,663 minority students. In 1995, minority students were 9.2 percent of total enrollment, at 2,537; in '96 and '97, minority enrollment reached 9.5 percent, with 2,650 and 2,653 students respectively.

The number of blacks at the UI this year is 718, down from 735 in 1995; the number of American Indians or Native Alaskans enrolled is 143, up from 120 in 1995; the number of Asians or Pacific Islanders is 1,104, falling from 1,174 in 1995; and the number of Latinos is 650, rising from 621 in 1995.

Ethnic enrollment statistics for the intervening years were unavailable for comparison from UI officials and the UI home page.

Minority students currently make up 9.06 percent of the UI student body; the regents' goal was 8.5 percent.

"We're pleased to meet the regents' goal, but we'd like to attract even more minority students to the university to broaden and enrich the students both inside and outside the classroom," said Michael Barron, the director of admissions.

Minority students include undergraduates, graduates and professional students but not international students.

Joe Coulter, the associate provost for diversity and director of Opportunity at Iowa, said the decrease in minority enrollment was the result of a large number of minority students who graduated from the UI in the last academic year and not from a lack of recruitment. Coulter said 534 students graduated in 1998-99, up from 466 the previous year.

"We're trying hard to make sure all students graduate in an expedient manner," said John Folkens, the associate provost for undergraduate education.

Iowa State University experienced a 30 percent increase in the number of freshmen minorities for 1999-00 compared with last year; it has 1,726 minority students — approximately 6.6 percent of the

Decrease of Minority Students at the UI

The UI's minority enrollment had been steadily climbing since 1984 each fall semester until last year's fall of 0.2 percent. This fall semester, the percentage of minority students dropped again, to 9.06 percent of the total student population.

Inquiry grinds on in double slaying

■ Iowa City police will meet today with the county attorney to discuss the case's direction.

By Chris Rasmussen
The Daily Iowan

Routine police procedures, not major breaks, continue to mark the investigation into last March's double slaying of Laura Watson-Dalton and Maria Therese Lehner in Iowa City, police and county officials say.

So far, the information from the state crime laboratories in Des Moines has not significantly changed the nature of the investigation, said Iowa City Police Chief R.J. Winkelhake.

"There has been evidence sent to the DCI (Division of Criminal Investigation)," he said. "What's come back from the lab has not been significant; it's been routine."

Winkelhake said the investigation has lasted for six months because Johnson County Attorney J. Patrick White does not have sufficient evidence to convict a suspect or suspects.

"It's very easy for me to say that (charges should be filed) and very different for the county attorney to go out and prove it in court," he said.

Watson-Dalton and Lehner were discovered in a burned apartment building, 427 S. Van Buren St., on March 19. The women had been beaten to death before the fire began. Authorities do not know why they were in the apartment, which at that time was rented by three UI students who were out of town for Spring Break.

Jonathan Memmer was identified as the last person seen with Watson-Dalton on March 17. He was arrested on March 26 and charged with third-degree burglary, which allegedly occurred at the apartment four days before the women were found. Police have not named Memmer as a suspect in the slayings; he is being held on a $1 million bond for alleged parole violation and a 1997 burglary.

The county attorney's office is doing what it can to put together significant evidence to charge a suspect, Winkelhake said.

But White said the investigation will continue indefinitely.

"It's a complicated case," he said. "I think at some point, charges will be filed, but I cannot say against whom."

But it is time that information was released, said Michael McKay, of Omaha, Neb., who was Watson-Dalton's boyfriend.

"The whole family has been victimized," he said. "I think it's time for some answers."

The length of the investigation is

Chalk up one for deli and pool fans

■ Construction will begin soon on a deli/pool hall with a '30s-'40s theme.

By Chao Xiong
The Daily Iowan

Another cue for pool fans in Iowa City: the College Street Billiard Club and Deli plans to open its doors on the Pedestrian Mall later this fall.

The new 1930s- and '40s-themed enterprise, owned by Dave Moore and Lew Converse, who also own the Fieldhouse Restaurant & Bar, 111 E. College St., will focus on food.

"Food is an afterthought in many downtown places," said Moore, who is also the general contractor of the club and deli. "We're going to promote the deli part of it first."

Moore said he and Converse have been nursing the idea of the enterprise for a long time but had just finalized the plans within the last "30 to 60 days." The club/deli is expected to open in early November, he said.

"We've been toying with the idea since I sold Soho's in October of 1996," Moore said.

The club and deli, which will be located at 114-116 E. College St. — the former locations of College Street News and Daydream Comic Books — will include an area of 6,000 square feet in a large building, he said. Construction will not begin for a couple of weeks, he added.

The place will feature 11 brass-detailed, regulation-sized pool tables, dark wood paneling, a 26-foot antique bar, a shuffle board, arcade games and nostalgic black-and-white photos, said Mike McConnell, manager of the Fieldhouse.

There is no estimated cost for setting up the enterprise, Moore said, but "hundreds of thousands" of dollars will be spent, with $40,000-$50,000 already going into acquiring pool tables alone.

The club/deli could possibly be rented out for parties and special occasions, he said.

Many UI students have expressed interest in the place, but some are concerned that it may become another oasis for alcohol.

"If it has all those pool tables and

Fiesta brings Latin touch to Ped Mall

■ 200 gather for theater, bingo and a piñata contest.

Latin rhythms filled the air in downtown Iowa City this weekend, as people danced and had their fill of fajitas in celebration of Hispanic Heritage Month.

Fiesta Mexicana transformed the Pedestrian Mall into a Mexican village with music, food and games on Sept. 18. Approximately 200 people gathered to watch such diverse activities as the Eulenspiegel Puppet Theatre and Mexican bingo.

Other activities included face painting by the UI's Sigma Lambda Gamma Sorority.

UI junior and Sigma Lambda Gamma member Nicole Toscano said she had a great time.

"I enjoyed working with the children and the feel of the festival," she said. "I'm glad that Iowa City has something like this every year to honor the Mexican community."

The festival used to be held in May in conjunction with Cinco de Mayo, the holiday commemorating the 1862 defeat of French troops at the Battle of Puebla. It was recently changed to September for Hispanic Heritage Month, which runs from Sept. 15-Oct. 15.

New Pioneer Co-op, 22 S. Van Buren St., one of the sponsors, planned the festival some time ago.

"We planned the festival for about three to four months in advance, and from the looks of turnout, we were successful," said Donna Palmer, a Co-op festival organizer.

The music of Los Mocambos and regional dances of Mexico by Ballet Folklorico of the Quad Cities had couples dancing on the sidewalks.

One of the many drawn to the festival was Jim Smith of Iowa City, who came with his family.

"We've been coming for the past three years; it's just a really great place to come as a family," he said.

"It's a great way to enjoy the diversity of Iowa City," said his wife, Debbie, who recently took up learning Spanish.

For many, the highlight of the festival was the children's piñata contest. Dozens of children lined up to take their swings at the piñata, anxiously awaiting the spilling of its candy insides. As the piñata went down with the thwack of a stick twice the size of its user, a sea of eager youngsters carpeted the ground, trying to fill their pockets.

For the third year in a row, Palmer said, the festival was successful in achieving its goal of bringing a greater understanding of the Latino culture to the rest of the community.

U.N. peacekeeping troops arrive in East Timor

■ The first contingent of U.N. troops land in an effort to bring peace to the island.

By Geoff Spencer
Associated Press

DILI, Indonesia — Heavily-armed international peacekeepers landed in East Timor at dawn today, clearing the way for a U.N.-approved force that has been charged with restoring order and helping to usher the territory toward independence.

A camouflage-green Hercules C-130 transport plane set down at Dili airport, the first in a wave of planes and ships expected by the end of the day. Approximately a dozen elite Australian troops in full combat gear quickly took up defensive positions.

Approximately two dozen Indonesian troops greeted the Australians, and the first minutes of the arrival appeared cordial. Indonesian troops had to chase a herd of goats off the runway shortly before the dawn touchdown as sirens wailed to warn several dozen onlookers.

Supplies and personnel soon started streaming in at breakneck speed to bring peace to a territory devastated by pro-Jakarta militias and their allies in the Indonesian army.

Soldiers in a second plane, which arrived 30 minutes later, unloaded ammunition, grenades and explosives, along with vehicles. Pallet after pallet was pulled out onto the runway, as camouflaged vehicles were driven down ramps from the

Cry like an angel

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Sarah McLachlan's mournful ballad "Angel" reduced Paul McCartney to tears at an animal-rights awards show.

McCartney, who was hosting the event sponsored by the People for the Ethical Treatment of Animals Sept. 18, returned teary-eyed to the stage after McLachlan's piano solo.

He explained that the song was brought to his attention after his wife, Linda McCartney, an animal-welfare crusader, died of breast cancer in April 1998.

Help Me, Harlan

Dear Harlan:

I've been dating this girl for nearly two years now. Last summer, I broke up with her to settle some personal issues. We've since gotten back together and have been doing fine. The problem is she doesn't know I slept with two girls the summer we were apart. A number of people know what happened and I'm afraid she might find out.

Do I tell her or keep it a secret and hope she never finds out?

Mistake maker

Dear Mistake maker:
Not telling seems harder than telling (or you'd never have told me), so tell her.

She'll either work through this new obstacle or decide she needs a little time apart (so she can sleep with two other guys and test her love for you). If you're both willing to remain open and honest with your feelings, you might make it through this thing a stronger and more trusting couple.

Hancher's act displeases stagehands union

■ Stagehands say they should receive overtime pay.

By Glen Leyden
The Daily Iowan

Union stagehands at Hancher Auditorium, out of work since Sept. 2, face an impasse in their negotiations with the UI.

The International Alliance for Theatrical Stage Employees Local 690 protested over the weekend by handing out leaflets before Hancher performances, outlining a request for overtime pay.

The union supplies workers for Hancher to do a variety of jobs. Despite the sometimes long hours and difficult work, the workers are denied overtime pay, said Meg Sump, the union's business agent.

The union blames the lack of overtime pay for the declining number of workers. Last year, the union represented 120 people; the number is now 75, as worker interest in Hancher has declined.

The UI is aware of the problem but unwilling to comment on the specific negotiations.

"There is a contract dispute, but we hope we can work everything out," said Ann Rhodes, vice president for university relations.

But until the dispute is worked out, the union fears it is putting its workers in danger.

"The ratio of skilled employees to unskilled employees is off-kilter," Sump said. "It's not safe, and we need experienced eyes and ears."

The workers provide a number of services, ranging from truck loaders and carpenters to wardrobe assistants.

Despite the wide-range of activities, the work is not stable. Workers may not work at all one week and work 32 hours the next, Sump said.

Because the union has requested the change in pay, the negotiations with the UI have broken off, she said. Hancher now uses other employees to do the stagehand work.

"It pulled its offer off the table, and talks have broken off since Aug. 26," Sump said.

The union, as the employer, is held responsible for accidents involving its members. The union hopes that the UI either honors overtime pay or takes on the role of employer for the workers, thereby taking responsibility for their safety.

The union works for several other

UI departments, such as SCOPE and the Athletics Department, all of which provide overtime pay.

To protest the lack of overtime pay, members of five different unions handed out fliers to the public on the nights of Sept. 17 and 18.

"It is important that union members join together when there are problems in the workplace," said Gary Sanders, a member of the American Federation of Teachers Local 716.

Sanders said he hopes to see a change in the way the stagehands are being treated.

"In Iowa City, people generally want to do the right thing — that's why it's important to inform them," he said.

Bar shift feels violated city's late night towing

■ Because of "street cleaning," approximately 20 cars were towed from downtown.

By Corrie Dosh
The Daily Iowan

Downtown bar employees received an unwelcome surprise early on Sept. 17 when they ended their shifts only to find their cars had been towed for routine street cleaning.

UI senior Brad Norton finished his shift at One-Eyed Jakes, 18½ S. Clinton St., around 2:15 a.m. and found his car being loaded onto a wrecker.

"A whole bunch of people were running up and down the street going, 'Where's my car?'" said Norton, who received a $35 ticket but managed to keep his car.

"There were about 25 people all with staff shirts running up and down looking for their cars. People were pissed and screaming, and the cops weren't listening."

Norton has worked at the bar for three years and said he has never had a problem with getting his car towed before, although signs posted say no parking from 2 a.m. to 6 a.m.

"It's posted, we understand that, but we were upset," he said. "It sends a bad message to the people who left their cars downtown to do the responsible thing."

The cars were towed by Holiday Towing of Coralville, which has a contract with the city. "We've been doing this for the last six months," said Iowa City police Lt. Ronald Fort. "The signs have been up forever."

Fort said approximately 20 cars were towed on Sept. 17; in the last month, the police have had up to 50 cars towed on street-cleaning night. He said he did not know why the city Streets Division chose Sept. 17.

"I think they want to make the town look as nice as possible for the weekend," Fort said.

Troy Kline, manager of the Sports Column, 12 S. Dubuque St., had to pay a $65 fine and all his outstanding parking tickets after his car was towed.

"I was kind of upset at first; I didn't see the point," he said. "There's nowhere for us to park."

For Dave Moore, co-owner of the Fieldhouse Restaurant & Bar, 111 E. College St., the towing presents a more serious problem.

"It's forcing a student to make a choice: 'Do I drive home drunk or get towed?'" he said, adding that he doesn't oppose the police towing cars, just the night they pick to do it.

student body.

Coulter said there are 322 minority freshmen this year at the UI, compared with 325 last year.

"If memory serves me right, the UI is the only one of the three schools (ISU, the UI and the University of Northern Iowa) to reach the regents' goal," Barron said. "I think it's a goal for all three regent universities, and we each do whatever we think is appropriate to bring the message of our university to the public — including minority students and their families."

Folkins said such UI programs as Opportunity at Iowa help minority enrollment by bringing pre-college students to the campus for summer programs.

"The UI is heavily involved in outreach to any high school that has 5 percent or more underrepresented minorities," Barron said.

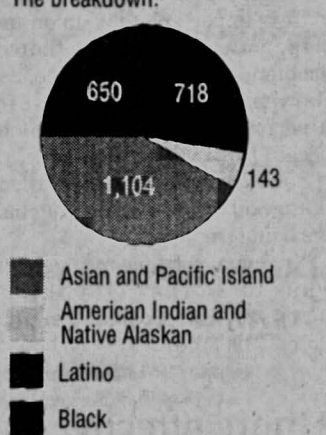

The UI works with students in elementary, junior high and high schools to educate them about higher education, he said.

"There have been strong efforts that we've had for a number of years," Folkins said. "We do very well compared with many universities. We can always do better — and we want to do better — but we're doing a good job."

very frustrating for the victims' loved ones, McKay said, but he is confident the police are doing their best.

"It's difficult to deal with anything like this," he said. "The police are doing the best job they can. They want to take in all the evidence they can."

Memmer's attorney, Ed Leff, could not be reached for comment.

Police investigators will meet today with White to review the case, said the lead investigator, Lt. Richard Wyss, but that is just a routine part of the investigation.

"We meet frequently to review the progress of the case," he said. "It's very likely that nothing will come out of this meeting."

The investigation, however, is getting closer to ending, Wyss said.

"Not all of the evidence from the lab has come back, and we're waiting for all of the lab results to come back," he said.

Wyss would not comment further on the evidence.

isn't known as a bar except at night, I'd go there," said UI sophomore Katie Ehlert. "I hope it doesn't become known as the Fieldhouse II. I'd go there to get a soda."

Moore said the club/deli will be a family-friendly eatery, with kitchen hours from 11 a.m. to 11 p.m. or 2 a.m. He has entertained the idea of sponsoring non-alcoholic and no-smoking nights, he said.

"It would be a nice place to just stop by for lunch or dinner," he said. "We're just doing our part to rejuvenate the downtown area. Lew and I believe it's very important to keep the downtown strong, with the Coralville mall and everything."

The club/deli and the Fieldhouse will remain "separate entities," Moore said. He added that operational details such as cover charge, age requirements and special events have been discussed but not determined.

"A lot of people enjoy playing pool," said UI junior Steve Soper. "People aren't demanding a pool hall, but they'd welcome it with open arms."

Moore said Jim Mondanaro, the owner of the club/deli's building, had plans of opening Mondo's Sports Cafe at the same location but discarded the idea because of cost.

Mondanaro was unavailable for comment.

backs of the Hercules cargo planes.

The foreign intervention is a major humiliation for Indonesia, whose army had fought — often brutally — for nearly 25 years to put down pro-independence activists after invading the territory in 1975. An estimated 200,000 Timorese — out of a population of 700,000 — have died since the invasion.

Five planes in all had arrived within the first two hours, bringing in several dozen soldiers and vital supplies. Many of the soldiers were to head to the city's port area to clear the way for combat ships heading toward East Timor.

Australian, British and New Zealand soldiers quickly secured the perimeter of the small airfield. The soldiers, squinting in the tropical sun, wore helmets equipped with goggles to keep out the dust that constantly sweeps across the capital city.

NATION BRIEF

Billionaire benefactor puts his money where his morals are

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — To catch a fly, chemical magnate Jon Huntsman explains, you have to know where it's headed.

The 61-year-old billionaire leaps to his feet to prove his point on an unsuspecting insect. First calculate its trajectory, he whispers. He kneels down on the plush carpet, then snatches the air where the bug should be. A swoop and a miss. The fly gets away.

Huntsman shrugs and settles back into the couch. Failure is just part of the process, he says.

"Always shoot ahead of the target," he says, reciting lessons learned in the Navy. "You have to use your imagination."

It's a philosophy that works for the man who built the world's largest privately owned chemical company from scratch and is embarking on his next mammoth task: finding a cure for cancer. Last week, he opened the Huntsman Cancer Institute, a six-story addition to the University of Utah campus.

With $151 million out of his own pocket and a pledge of millions more each year, Huntsman built a center that looks more like a corporate headquarters than a hospital and staffed it with 300 researchers lured from the top laboratories in the nation.

His priority is to focus on the precursor genes that could help doctors predict cancers, and he envisions inoculations in the not-too-distant future that would protect high-risk patients.

What if?

Sometimes the most amazing medical discoveries begin with the simplest of questions.

A researcher thinks, "What if?" A nurse asks, "Why not?" A doctor wonders, "Is it possible?"
And suddenly minds open to new ideas, more advanced treatments, better ways of caring.

Like finding more effective medicines and surgical techniques to help couples like Lori and Ken Smith of Mason City become parents.

Or using an improved method of replacing wrist joints damaged by rheumatoid arthritis.
Or introducing the use of a new technology to help profoundly deaf people hear.

Many times these breakthroughs begin with research at the University of Iowa College of Medicine. Add to that the advanced technology and medical expertise of the University of Iowa Hospitals and Clinics, and the special way we care for patients.

Together, we are changing medicine. And most importantly, changing lives for the better all over Iowa and all around the world.

Lori Smith of Mason City, Iowa, treasures every moment with daughter Lauren who was conceived using advanced in vitro fertilization techniques at University of Iowa Hospitals and Clinics.

Local hunters frolic through fungi

■ Approximately 50 people search for mushrooms in the annual fall foray.

By Anne Huyck
The Daily Iowan

More than 50 people gathered in a park near Mount Vernon Sunday in a bid to find and identify different types of mushrooms.

The annual fall fungus foray, sponsored by the UI Museum of Natural History, was held at Palisades-Kepler State Park.

Three hunting groups were formed in accordance with members' walking speeds. When the first mushroom was discovered, Dean Abel, a mycologist — a person who studies mushrooms — and co-author of A Guide to Kansas Mushrooms, gave members an insider's account about it.

The small orange miconia drew several oohs and aahs. The fungus fans, who listened intently to Abel, whipped out books to write down details about the mushroom.

"I like the forays because they bridge the non-technical and technical people such as Dean (Abel)," said Cedar Rapids resident Larry Long.

The "slow group" found 24 different mushrooms. None of the mushrooms were edible.

Long, however, expressed a fondness for the fungi. "Spring is the best time for finding edible mushrooms," he said. "I enjoy the spring more (a type of edible mushroom) hunts."

Although the mushrooms could not be eaten, the hunters smelled them and put them in their mouths.

"Taste and smell can be two important ways of determining what type of mushroom it is," Abel said. "You can lick even the most deadly mushroom in the world, and it will not kill you."

Mycologist Dean Abel explains the finer points of fungus hunting to a group of Sunday morning at Palisades-Kepler State Park near Mount Vernon.

Iowa City resident Allison York said she participated in the hunt because she likes puzzles and enjoys the challenge of identifying mushrooms.

"I had bird-watching parents," she said. "The advantage is that mushrooms stay still. Plus, it's a nice excuse to go out in the woods."

York recorded the group's findings and took pictures of unique bright yellow mushrooms. She described Abel as being "very knowledgeable."

Abel said he is happy to see so many people interested in mushrooms. He was attracted to mycology through hunting for morels.

"My hobby kind of matured, and now I have eaten more than 50 kinds," he said. "My life list of all the mushrooms I've seen is around 750 — which is about 10 percent of the ones you can find around here. There are a lot of mushrooms."

CITY BRIEF

Ralston Creek found wanting

The Iowa City chapter of the Sierra Club conducted an instruction and water-testing session on Sept. 18, in part to determine the health of Ralston Creek.

"Ralston Creek, at this site, at this moment in time is not in good shape," said Jennifer Hensley, coordinator for the club's water-testing program.

People at the session complained about a foul smell — similar to sewer gas — around the creek.

"If there's something down there, it proves the need to test," said Becky Soglin, the club's conservation chairwoman. "You're not going to learn everything you need to know in one day, though. It's an ongoing process."

Two representatives from the Iowa City Water Division provided general information, and said the city was committed to having clean water.

Steve Julius, supervisor of the water division, said he wasn't surprised by the poor condition of the creek.

"There is uncontrolled normal runoff," he said, explaining that rainwater runs directly into the creek from streets, parking lots and residents' lawns — which can pollute a stream, with bacteria causing the odor.

I think this course has been great in that I can read at least 20 times faster now than only a month ago. It's a lot of work, but I know it was worth all the time and effort because, from now on, for the rest of my life, I'll be able to read newspapers, magazines, books, and even textbooks 20 times faster. I'm looking forward to taking the ACT test again, because I know I will improve my worst scores, since now, I will be able to finish these sections.

Jews mark Yom Kippur with fast

■ The holiday is the holiest day of the Jewish year.

By Dana Ritzmann
The Daily Iowan

Yom Kippur, the Jewish Day of Atonement, began Sunday at sundown with the Kol Nidre and religious service at the IMU. "The Kol Nidre is the most prominent prayer on Yom Kippur," said Gerald Sorokin, director of the Alibor/Hillel Jewish Student Center. "It is said three times right at the beginning of the service to set a solemn mood for an active Yom Kippur experience."

Yom Kippur is the culmination of the Ten Days of Awe that begin on Rosh Hashanah, the Jewish New Year, Sorokin said. The holiday is considered the holiest day of the Jewish year, a time to atone for sins, ask for forgiveness, and reflect on oneself.

"For me, Yom Kippur is a time to look back on the past year and think how I can be a better person in the next year," said UI senior Caroline Musin.

To put people in a contemplative mood for the day, fasting is a requirement on Yom Kippur, said Jonathan Simon, a UI mathematics professor.

"The idea of the day is to separate yourself from the material world and seek some sort of peace by not eating," he said.

For approximately 25 hours — from Sunday sundown to sundown Monday — Simon has no food or water, he said.

Jews should deny themselves luxury on Yom Kippur, Sorokin said.

"You're not supposed to wear leather shoes," he said. Therefore, many people wear sneakers with their suits for the service, he said.

Yom Kippur is an excused day of absence for the approximately 600 Jewish students at the UI, said Andy Zellman, president of the Hillel student board. Because it is the biggest holiday of the Jewish year, Simon does not hold classes on Monday.

"I tend not to give extra assignments," he said. "But I feel an obligation to the students to make up the time." Simon either tries to re-schedule the class or ask a colleague to substitute for large lectures.

The end of Yom Kippur, when everybody is hungry, thirsty and exhausted, is marked by blowing the shofar, Sorokin said. The blast tells people, "Now, let's get back to work," he said.

WORLD BRIEF

Snags develop in demilitarization of KLA

PRISTINA, Yugoslavia (AP) — NATO and the Kosovo Liberation Army were reported to be in intense discussions early today in an effort to reach agreement on what will become of the former rebel army after it disbands.

NATO officials insisted that the June agreement for the KLA to demobilize remains in effect. But they acknowledged that unspecified problems prevented the two sides from signing an agreement by the midnight Sunday deadline on transforming the KLA into a 5,000-member civilian Kosovo Corps.

The KLA wants the new organization to become the nucleus of a new army of an independent Kosovo — something NATO has refused.

NATO has insisted that the peacekeepers must be the only armed force in Kosovo. The Russians and the Serbs — who consider the KLA terrorists responsible for attacks against Serb civilians — oppose any formula that might enable the KLA to continue with its same organizational structure under a different name.

The transformation agreement was to have been signed Sunday morning by peacekeeping commander Gen. Mike Jackson and the KLA military commander, Gen. Agim Ceku, but the ceremony was canceled.

NATO and the U.N. mission were to begin organizing the Kosovo Corps this morning. The group was to help combat natural disasters and take on other humanitarian and civilian missions, such as firefighting and rescues.

In a clear warning to the former rebels, NATO spokesman Lt. Col. Robin Clifford alluded to the demobilization agreement. He said Ceku must sign by midnight "because after that, the KLA ceases to exist. So does its general staff."

The deadline passed without an agreement being signed on the new force.

Ceku's staff told reporters the general was unavailable to speak to the news media. A well-placed Albanian source, speaking on condition of anonymity, said Ceku insisted KLA fighters be allowed to keep their uniforms and red-and-black emblems but that Jackson refused.

The KLA was promised new uniforms for the Kosovo Corps but they would not be ready for months, the source said. The rebels also want assurances they can retain a military-style command structure, the sources said.

Hours before the midnight deadline, the two sides were still in what the sources described as difficult and intensive talks.

NATO officials said Thursday that the KLA had already turned in more than 10,000 weapons ahead of the deadline and that the demilitarization is effectively complete.

New Gazette won't bring new news

It can be argued that people study the things they do to make contributions to society. My friend studies physics, and, being a scientist, he naturally thinks he knows everything about anything.

He will argue with you until you are blue in the face about the importance of art. (He says, "Anybody can draw; what makes Picasso so special? I bet even I could do that.") Then he says, "What can't physics provide that society needs? Society needs a lot of things, but something it doesn't need is two newspapers in the same town — especially newspapers that turn their 'customer base' into a lab to do fun experiments."

After all, what do their patrons need to know that the papers cannot offer them? A lot. Much like the physicist, Gannett Inc. and Gazette Communications think they know everything about anything and are going to impose their formulae and market research on the community with their newspapers. On Sept. 19, Gazette Communications began to go head to head with Gannett's Iowa City Press Citizen when it commenced to publish the Iowa City Gazette, a daily newspaper. Gazette Communications already publishes the Cedar Rapids Gazette 25 miles north of Iowa City, with a circulation of 70,476 Monday through Saturday and 84,501 on Sunday.

So what does the Gazette think that it can contribute to Iowa City that the Press Citizen already doesn't? Not a whole lot. Lyle Muller, the Gazette editor, says he envisions a newspaper that is "utile and local" — in other words, in his words, "news you can use." Is that all it can do? In a debate between Muller and the managing editor at the Press Citizen, Michael Beck, it came down to just that. The bottom line, of course, was money and increasing circulation.

I study journalism to contribute to society. Journalists play a central role in the working of democracies. We create a public sphere in which information is presented that is essential to citizen participation in community life, not selective lives. The only thing that this newspaper war will do is create a myth of common culture, values, tradition and ways of looking at the world. Iowa City is not one community but a conglomerate of many communities. With mergers such as Viacom and CBS, the world is moving into one global media system, headed by Robert Murdoch's News Corporation, which seeks to conquer the world, owning every form of programming: news, sports, films and children's books. News Corporation holdings include some 132 newspapers in Australia, Britain and the United States, which makes it one of the three largest newspaper groups in the world. It covers 40 percent of U.S. TV households. Part of Murdoch's expansion includes developing areas, where growth is to be greatest for commercial media, namely continental Europe, Asia and Latin America. Companies such as Gazette Communications and Gannett are no different — only smaller.

In a 30-year span, the newspaper industry has undergone a lot of change by conducting research in order to "better relate" to its readers. The growth of group ownership and communications companies has allowed the newspaper industry to generate great profits, with annual returns of 18-20 percent. Gannett, an Arlington, Va., company, had operating revenue of $5.1 billion in 1998.

It owns and operates 21 television stations covering 17.3 percent of the United States, and it operates 74 dailies with a combined circulation of more than 6.7 million people. Gannett would attribute much of its success to its news 2,000 pyramid. This is the process in which each of Gannett's newspapers are evaluated by at least 10 editors who judge the paper on a point system. The base of the pyramid is based on community interest, worth 16 points, while criteria such as "evoking emotion" and "emphasizing immediacy" are given 8 points each.

I wasn't aware that journalists were in the business of making up news. The Press-Citizen is required to conduct research to find the key interests of Iowa City, if there are any. If the Iowa City Gazette is here to provide a newspaper that is "utile and local," it is wasting its time. We already have one that does that to the best of its ability.

Instead, the Gazette should focus on what people should know or need to know. Iowa City does not need another paper that has only expanded to generate revenue for a paper based 25 miles away that can't find another outlet to save its dwindling circulation. Like the physicist, Gazette Communications and Gannett should stick to the things they know about. It used to be journalism.

EDITORIAL

A notable mistake by the UI PR machine

Every so often, they get caught up in their own game. And when they do, they look incredibly guilty. Such was the case with the public-relations work on the recent sewage spill that poured 80,000 pounds of sewage straight into the Iowa River.

When the UI's public-relations team, clearly caught red-handed, had to react publicly to the reports last week, one could imagine that their faces blushed and their sentences stuttered. All their answers stated the obvious, and it was obvious they were caught guilty, off guard and unable to spin the issue as they so often do.

Steve Parrott, director of university relations, said the UI owes the public an apology. Of course it does. This is an issue about the community's health and about the environment. And in both of these areas the UI has caused damage, albeit fairly insignificant. The community deserves a honest apology, if nothing else.

Ann Rhodes, vice president for university relations, said the UI will take responsibility for the problem. Of course it will. With the DNR ready to slap the UI with fines for the discharge and not reporting the problem, the responsibility has already been handed out. Unfortunately, it took the DNR to step in before any action was taken or responsibility accepted by the UI.

Perhaps miscommunication is at fault, as Rhodes has said. Miscommunication should almost be expected when all distribution of university news is controlled by a public-relations department. The department can't hear it all, and sometimes this ignorance is easily apparent, as in this case. When this does happen, it makes the university look all the worse, as if there were somewhat of a cover-up. And maybe there was.

The UI is taking responsibility because there are no other options. If the spin team in the public-relations department had got a hold of the report first, however, the responsibility would have surely fallen somewhere else, probably on the shoulders of the contractor. And that's if the story would have been told at all. But once they were caught off guard, they were guilty as charged.

It's almost amusing how the administration's spinsters react to a problem when not prepared — almost like little children getting caught with their hands in the cookie jar — accepting responsibility with blushed faces. These reactions aren't surprising, though. What else would be expected from an institution that releases and comments only through the a tightly controlled public-relations department, but, like in this case, ignorant of the problem? Nothing.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Is Bush really anti-gay?

I am writing in response to Steve Schmadeke's piece on G.W. Bush's comments on the gay agenda ("Bush's anti-gay remarks irk some I.C. residents," DI, Sept. 15). I see it as very lame journalism to stereotype these comments as "anti-gay." I am not a G.W. Bush supporter, but his comments were no more "anti-gay" than my comments on soccer are "anti-football."

Promoting the essential building block of society and advancing the best possible chance for children to become stable, confident adults is not "anti-gay."

What would common sense see a "pro-gay" statement to be, I wonder? I love many persons of the same sex, and I very much enjoy their company. Therefore, I carry on sound adult relationships with them. I no more dislike someone who says he or she is homosexual than I dislike someone who tells tall tales of being compulsively promiscuous. Those actualities are a part of their lives, which they must deal with. My departure from compromise/tolerance with these conscious actualities surfaces when anyone attempts to force the same social equivalence on these activities as on ones of loving fidelity and chastity through successive generations.

It is definitely not easy being chaste. And, surprisingly, it is not easy being sleazy. I could be either one by choice.

Laundry price increase is a real issue

Leah Kind's recent column (DI, Sept. 17) chastising dorm residents for complaining about the increase in laundry fees is in incredibly bad taste and comes at a very interesting time. Many people live in the dormitories because of the relative inexpensiveness and convenience. We are protesting the laundry hike because, like everyone, we want to get the most for our money. That is called economics and happens to be something we are supposed to be learning here as students. As for the timing, I would like to ask Ms. Kind a question: Just because other universities charge more for tuition and fees, should we immediately champion this 6.9 percent increase? Of course not, which is why I have trouble understanding why a 50 percent laundry fee increase should not be challenged.

Visiting good geysers of very raw sewage

Last week, the nation held its collective breath as Hurricane Floyd drew closer and closer. Experts said it was the most powerful storm to hit the United States in decades, with winds reaching 120 mph.

While it spared the majority of the coast, there were some areas that were hit hard. But being the positive person that I am, I, of course, see the good in this otherwise tragic event. An example of this would be an interesting hurricane anecdote I read in the paper. Apparently, when the storm first hit the Florida coast, the municipal sewer system in one of the coastal cities was so backed up by the high winds that a septic tank behind a house exploded, and raw sewage was thrown hundreds of feet into the air. No one was hurt, luckily. One witness described the event as "a geyser of raw sewage."

Now, to me, this seems like a waste of a perfectly good geyser of raw sewage. I mean, there have been numerous occasions when I'd have paid upwards of a $1,000 for a spontaneous geyser of raw sewage.

At least once every day, when someone is drowning on about, say, the excellent "midrange" in her or his car stereo, or the "offensive line," or the difference between a "lager" and an "ale," I find myself thinking, "I would gladly cut off my right arm if this person were to be suddenly engulfed in a geyser of warm, raw sewage." But, of course, the person never is, and I am stuck listening to her or him waste precious minutes of my life like so many pieces of copper. Following are some situations and events that, I think, would benefit from an eruption of raw sewage.

FRANK

THE ANNUAL GREEK COMMUNITY ETIQUETTE BANQUET

No, I am not making this up. I swear. The Greek community (official motto: "Proudly Disguising Ignorance with Conformity into the 21st Century") holds this banquet every year; they hire "experts" to come from out of town and tell them how to act ("Like cretins. Class dismissed.") I was able to sit in on the banquet as an observer. Here is an excerpt.

Etiquette expert: "So what do you do when you see one of your peers wearing clothes that cost less money than yours?" Greeks, in unison: "Act really condescending and treat them like second-class citizens!"

Etiquette expert: "Right! I also would've accepted, 'Soothe offended sensibilities by taking Daddy's AmEx Platinum card on a huge shopping spree at Abercrombie and Fitch' or 'Wait until prom and then dump a bucket of pig's blood on them.'"

Several Greeks I talked to afterward said they enjoyed the banquet and found it very valuable and informative.

"I liked it because I got to dress up," said one sorority member. "Will you give me money if I sit on a huge teeter-totter?" "What's an etiquette?" asked a fraternity member. "Can we haze it?"

Suddenly, the banquet was tragically cut short when the entire ballroom is engulfed in a geyser of warm, raw sewage. I miraculously escape unscathed.

THE UI PRESS CONFERENCE WHERE THE DEAN ANNOUNCES THE TUITION HIKE

"I assure you, the tuition hike is absolutely necessary," the dean told a disgruntled crowd. "You see, my personal foot masseuse crashed her Jaguar convertible, and she needs a new one. This expense is very important to the university community because I get cranky without regular foot massages. The last time my feet acted up, I was barely able to get up and flog my servants. You see, living with corns is like..."

But before he could complete his no doubt brilliant metaphor, he was engulfed in a geyser of raw sewage. Later that night, as he emerged from an exclusive spa, finally clean, and tried to charge the $800 bill to his university expense account, he was tragically engulfed in a second spontaneous geyser of sewage.

KANSAS SCHOOL BOARD MEETINGS

I wish I could have been at the one where they announced the decision to teach creationism in schools.

"Let's review what we've decided in today's board meeting," says the chairman of the board.

1. From now on, creationism is going to be taught in our schools.

2. Adam and Eve, NOT Adam and Steve.

3. Jesus didn't die on the cross so you kids could go around "heavy petting" each other and listening to "raps."

4. If you don't stop touching your wee-wee in the shower, you're going to burn in Hell.

Just then, the entire state of Kansas is engulfed in a massive geyser of warm, raw sewage. You might say it was a geyser of "biblical proportions." Ha ha. Again, I alone escape miraculously unscathed.

In Floyd's wake: record floods, more rain coming

GREENVILLE, N.C. (AP) — The power is intermittent, much of the county is completely under water, roads are closed, grocery store shelves are empty, and there's little gasoline available.

Can it get worse? Yes. Greenville, a city of 44,000, faces worse flooding when the Tar River crests today. And more rain could today and Tuesday.

"Everyone is figuring out her or own survival," Carl Campbell said Sunday, as the river inched closer to home, and neighbors tried to save belongings from their flooded homes.

Hurricane Floyd saturated eastern North Carolina with 20 inches of rain last week on its way up the East Coast. Flooding has virtually shut down coastal plain east of Raleigh.

National Guard helicopters were used to search for stranded people and to shuttle food to stricken towns where grocery shelves are bare. Drinking water had to be rushed to several communities where wastewater treatment systems failed.

Approximately 300 roads, including parts of Interstates 95 and 40, were closed Sunday, and 6,400 people remained in shelters.

At least 21 people are confirmed dead, including a Pinetops family when they tried to escape their flooded home in a boat early on Sept. 18. Others are unaccounted for.

They are among the at least 47 people killed from the Bahamas into England. Beyond North Carolina, the sands of people were still without electricity and phone service in parts of Virginia, Maryland, New Jersey, Pennsylvania and New York.

UI senior Leslie Nielson may lose her favorite study spot. Nielson has been a patron at the Hawk-I Feed & Relay Station in Coralville for the past three years, but it's beginning to look as if she'll have to search for another place to hit the books.

Richard Myers, owner of Hawk-I, 903 First Ave., may sell his 8½-acre property to the city for $4 million. The city plans to demolish the 34-year-old truck stop by next spring, said Kelly Hayworth, Coralville city administrator.

"I was hoping it would stay open at least until I graduated," Nielson said. "I've been told that Donutland has just as good coffee, so I'll have to try that."

Coralville officials plan to sell the property to developers, who will build a hotel-conference center late next year, Hayworth said.

"The City Council is interested in the potential to make a nice entry into town," said Diana Lundell, a Coralville city councilor. "We had a great interest in the property because it is a key location."

The council voted to purchase the property on Sept. 14 and expects Myers to make a decision by this week, Hayworth said.

Myers, who is also a Democratic state representative from Coralville, said he wanted to sell the property to someone else. He planned to build some commercial businesses and continue to run his motorcycle shop on the Hawk-I property.

"The city approached me and said it wanted to condemn the property for its own use," he said. "I wasn't intending on keeping the truck stop there, but I still want to operate the motorcycle shop. I'm just not sure where."

The truck stop, gas station and Hawk-I Harley Davidson shop will be demolished, but Myers plans to relocate his motorcycle shop to a different Coralville location, he said.

"(The truck stop) had reached the end of its livelihood there," Hayworth said. "There are different commercial uses that would make the entry way (to Coralville) more attractive."

There is no replacement for Hawk-I's cheesy fries, Nielson said, and she and her friends are going to miss the corner six-person booth in which they spent so much time studying.

"We're going to need to buy the booth with our names engraved on it for memories," she said. "That's how much time we spent there."

Walker gets 32 years in Boyd case

Clifton T. Walker, 17, was sentenced to 32 years in jail on Sept. 17 for his involvement in an August 1998 death.

Walker pleaded guilty in March to willful injury, facilitating a criminal network and conspiracy stemming from the slaying of 43-year-old Frank Boyd.

Walker was sentenced to 25 years for the first three charges. He was sentenced an additional seven years for perjury and obstructing defense, after he lied about his own involvement in the case.

Boyd's body was found in a rural field outside Iowa City on Aug. 9, 1998. The body had been severely beaten and then burned.

Walker showed remorse for his crime and gave a tearful apology to his family and Boyd's family.

"I am truly sorry for their loss and pray every night that they will forgive me for my actions," he said.

The judge said Walker will have a substantial opportunity to lighten his sentence through good behavior.

Carlos Morris, 21, James Miller, 16, and Jason Lack, 21, have also been charged for their involvement in the slaying.

Watson wins senior event

Tom Watson broke a record en route to his first Senior PGA Tour victory.

DALLAS (AP) — Tom Watson, 34 PGA Tour victories, has won major championships and is in the World Golf Hall of Fame. On Saturday he made his first mark on the PGA Tour, shooting a course-10-under 62 in the final round of the Bank One Championship to win by five strokes in his second event as a senior.

The 62 broke Watson's career low of 63, which he had accomplished three times. His 20-under 196 total was a season-low on the senior tour and he became the tour's 10th time winner this year, breaking a record set in 1989.

Bruce Summerhays started behind the leaders and had a finish second. Summerhays seven birdies in a span of nine and was within three strokes lead after a birdie on par-5 16. Watson, playing in the next round, answered with a two-putt birdie on the same hole.

Watson, who was tied for third with five others at 10 under after rounds, birdied Nos. 2 and 3 and took charge of the tournament with an eagle on the par-5, 530-yard hole at the Bent Tree Country

Swing time for Sosa: makes history, reaches 61

■ Sammy Sosa hit his record-setting 60th home run Saturday and followed with 61 on Sunday.

By Rick Cano
Associated Press

CHICAGO — Sammy Sosa has used his home-run hop 61 times so far, bouncing out of the batter's box, following the flight of another ball as it sails over a fence and then stutter-stepping his way around the bases.

The style is all his. And now he has a record all to himself as well — the first man to reach 60 homers twice.

"I'm sure he's not done for the year," Milwaukee pitcher Jason Bere said Saturday after surrendering No. 60.

And Bere was prophetic. Sosa came back Sunday and hit a prodigious home in his first at-bat for No. 61 off Hideo Nomo. With a 16 mph wind blowing out, Sosa's homer went way out of Wrigley Field, bounced, hit the windshield of a parked car and then rolled halfway down a side street as frenzied souvenir-seeking fans went in chase.

On the heels of his 66-homer season a year ago when he lost to Mark McGwire by four in baseball's epic home run derby, Sosa hasn't let up. "We knew he'd strike out a lot, but he had such potential," said Jim Lefebvre, who was Sosa's first Cubs manager in 1992 and is now managing the Brewers the rest of the season.

"He's one of the real treasures we have in the game now. People ask me if I saw greatness in Sammy. I saw a five-tool guy with three outstanding traits — a great body type, he is absolutely fearless and he wanted to be great. He worked hard at it. But to think he'd hit 60 — and twice — I couldn't have predicted that."

Who could have? When Sosa reached 60, he ended a seven-game homeless streak in which he was obviously pressing to make history.

And now with 13 games left after Sunday, he has a slim chance of matching McGwire's almost unfathomable 70 of a year ago. McGwire did his part Sunday, hitting two against Houston to reach No. 58.

"Basically, the name of the game now is home runs," Sosa said. "All the people come to the park to see us hit them. That was one of the reasons why Mark and I brought baseball back last year."

Sosa still packs 'em in at Wrigley Field, even as the Cubs continue to play embarrassing baseball with an

Betts runs the show, Iowa shuts out Huskies

■ Ladell Betts rushed for 174 yards, as the Iowa defense shut out Northern Illinois on Saturday.

By Greg Wallace
The Daily Iowan

Just when his team needed him most, Ladell Betts put the lead squarely on his back.

It was late in the third quarter, and Iowa was clinging to a slim 3-0 lead over a Northern Illinois team that had won three games in three years. Iowa was backed up to its own one-yard line, and things were certainly looking grim. After all, Iowa hadn't had a touchdown drive of more than 35 yards all season.

But Betts hadn't had a drive like this all year, either. The play-by-play account brings out the truth. Betts for seven up the middle. Betts for five. Betts on a draw for nine. Betts up the middle for 10. Betts for 14. Betts, driving a stake through Northern Illinois' upset chances. He would finish the drive with 61 yards, and 176 for the game, a career high.

The 99-yard drive was Iowa's longest since 1996, and it was the key to a 24-0 shutout of the Huskies on Hayden Fry Night at Kinnick Stadium.

"I don't feel that it's my responsibility to carry the team, but if my number's called to carry the ball, then it's my responsibility to make yards," Betts said. "That got accomplished tonight."

Iowa coach Kirk Ferentz said the drive could be a turning point for his young team.

"The highlight of the night offensively was that 99-yard drive," Ferentz said after the game. "Hopefully it's something that later on in the season we'll point back and say 'Hey, we grew up a little bit on that series.'"

Before that drive, the Hawkeyes had been less than sharp. They had

Fry exalted in return to Kinnick on Saturday

■ Prior to the pregame ceremony honoring Hayden Fry, the former coach talked about prostate cancer and politics.

By Greg Smith

From his health to helping George W. Bush win the Republican presidential nomination, Hayden Fry showed the same flair for quips and one-liners that he displayed during his 20 years as coach of the Iowa Hawkeyes.

Fry, 70, who was honored on Hayden Fry Day before Saturday evening's Northern Illinois-Iowa game at Kinnick Stadium, talked publicly for the first time about his prostate cancer and said it "certainly had an impact" in his decision to retire last November.

"I knew something was wrong last year but didn't know what," he told reporters, adding he was finally diagnosed last February.

Iowa sends message to Big Ten teams

■ The Iowa women upset No. 12 Wisconsin on Friday and lost in double overtime to Minnesota on Sunday.

By Melinda Mawdsley
The Daily Iowan

The Iowa women's soccer team went 1-1 this weekend but feels it showed the Big Ten Conference the Hawkeyes are for real.

Iowa suffered a defeat Sunday against Minnesota. With four seconds left in double overtime, senior Nicole Lee came through for the Golden Gophers and found the left corner of the net. It marks the second double overtime loss the Hawkeyes have suffered this year. Iowa is now 0-5-2 in all overtime matches.

Minnesota improves to 3-3 overall and 1-1 in the Big Ten. Iowa moves to 4-3 and 1-1, suffering its first home loss this year.

"We need to be more focused at the end. We need more concentration and to do things smart," Iowa coach Stephanie Gabbert said.

Minnesota's Erin Holland scored the lone first half goal at 2:52.

"They came out tougher and challenged us," freshman Teesa Price said. "We were focused, but we knew Minnesota was a good team."

Iowa, even with the tough wind in its face, was able to even the match at 1-1 in the second half. Price kicked in her third goal of the year and first career Big Ten goal at 51:21 off fellow freshman Sarah Lynch's fourth assist of the season. Lynch needs one more point to break Beth Oldenburg's record for most points in a season (22).

Several good saves by Iowa goalkeeper Missy Wickart kept the game even through regulation and the first overtime.

"They came out tough, but we came back," junior Kate Walse said. "We played tough and solid. We showed them we weren't a pushover team."

Second-year pro wins LPGA Safeco Classic

KENT, Wash. (AP) — With 14 of the top 18 money-winners bypassing this year's Safeco Classic, chances seemed good to produce a first-time LPGA Tour winner.

And that's exactly what happened, as second-year pro Maria Hjorth shot an 8-under 64 Sunday, including a tournament record-tying 30 on the front nine, and won the $650,000 tournament.

The 25-year-old Swede, whose best previous tour finish was a tie for fifth, didn't have a bogey over the final 26 holes and beat Scotland's Catriona Matthew by two strokes.

"Now I have to put down some new goals," said Hjorth, the latest LPGA winner from Sweden. "I guess I'll have to go out and win another tournament."

Matthew, in her fifth year on the tour, was also looking for her first victory, but her closing 69 wasn't enough to catch Hjorth.

Matthew's best previous finish was a tie for second at last year's Edina Realty Classic.

Tina Barrett, third-round leader Rachel Hetherington and defending champion Anika Sorenstam all finished four strokes behind the leader.

Hjorth

Hetherington had a closing 72, while Sorenstam had a 68 and Barrett a 67.

Hjorth's 72-hole total of 17-under 271 on the 6,198-yard Meridian Valley Country Club course south of Seattle earned her $97,500 and was just one shot off the tournament record set by Patty Sheehan in 1990.

Hjorth tied for fifth at last year's Friendly's Classic and again in February at the Valley of the Stars Championship. She started Sunday's round four shots behind Hetherington.

Hjorth had six birdies, including five straight on Nos. 3-7, for her 30, which tied the tournament record held by Judy Dickinson in 1986 and Hollis Stacy in 1992.

SAID WHAT?

"The longer you let a team live like we did in the first half, the tougher job you've got. It's like a heavyweight fight. If you don't put somebody away early in the bout, they keep hanging on, hanging on, hanging on."

— Ohio State football coach John Cooper, on being favored by 43 points against Ohio, but heading into halftime with only a 10-10 tie. Ohio State won the game 40-16.

WEEKLYPLANNER

WHAT'S AHEAD

Tuesday:

Volleyball vs. Drake, 7 p.m., Carver-Hawkeye Arena.

Thursday:

Iowa men's tennis player Tyler Cleveland will compete at the four-day National Clay Court Championships in Baltimore, Md.

Friday:

Volleyball vs. Purdue, 7 p.m., Carver-Hawkeye Arena.

Field hockey vs. Ohio State, 4 p.m., Grant Field.

Soccer at Valparaiso, 4 p.m.

Iowa men's tennis at the three-day Ball State Invitational.

Saturday:

Volleyball vs. Wisconsin, 7 p.m., Carver-Hawkeye Arena.

Men's/Women's Cross Country at Roy Griak Invitational, 11 a.m.

Sunday:

Field hockey vs. Penn State, noon, Grant Field.

Soccer at Michigan, 1 p.m.

The Big Ticket...

The Iowa field hockey team heads into the week-end's competition still undefeated with a 6-0 record.

However, the Hawkeyes will get their biggest tests when they host Ohio State and Penn State at Grant Field on Friday and Sunday. Penn State is the top-ranked team in the nation. Last season, the unranked Hawkeyes shocked the then No. 5 Nittany Lions with a 4-2 upset at Grant Field.

STOOPSWATCH

First-year Oklahoma coach and former Hawkeye Bob Stoops collected his second win of the season against Baylor on Saturday. The Sooners defeated the Bears 41-10 in the Big 12 opener for both teams.

Sooners' quarterback Josh Heupel set Oklahoma single-game records for completions, attempts, passing yards and total offense. He was 37-of-54 for 420 yards and three touchdowns.

Stoops' squad will travel to Louisville (2-1) on Saturday for a nonconference matchup.

Stoops

WHO'S HOT

Iowa freshman Sarah Lynch has helped lead a young and talented Iowa soccer team to a 4-3. Lynch has scored a team-leading nine goals and is only one point away from the Iowa record for points scored in a season (22).

Lynch

WHO'S NOT

The Wisconsin football team (2-1). Seems like Wisconsin was looking ahead towards Michigan next week. The Badgers lost to unranked Cincinnati, 17-12. The loss knocked them out of ninth place in the AP poll, and into the No. 20 spot.

Dome not so sweet as Vikings shocked by Raiders, 22-17

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — The Oakland Raiders pulled off the upset despite losing their cool.

Russell Maryland picked off a pass and recovered a fumble as the Raiders defeated the Minnesota Vikings 22-17 on Sunday.

A week after blowing a 10-point fourth-quarter lead at Green Bay, Oakland survived a second-half meltdown as the Vikings mounted a comeback bid.

With the Raiders ahead 22-10 midway through the second half, Randall Cunningham completed a third-and-8 pass to Jake Reed and defensive end Tony Bryant was assessed a personal foul for driving the quarterback to the turf. The penalty moved the ball to the Oakland 45.

Then safety Eric Turner drew another 15-yard penalty for spiking the ball he picked off out of bounds near the end zone. That led to Cunningham's 28-yard TD pass to Jake Reed that pulled Minnesota to 22-17 with 14 minutes left.

Tyrene Wheatley fumbled at the Vikings 31 with 3:40 left, but Minnesota failed to gain a first down and punted. Wheatley secured the victory with a 25-yard run with two minutes left. He rushed 10 times for 72 yards in the second half.

Lions 23, Packers 15

PONTIAC, Mich. — Brett Favre ran out of miracles.

A 91-yard kickoff return by Terry Fair and the heady play of Charlie Batch on Sunday brought Detroit back for a 23-15 win over the Green Bay Packers, keeping the surprising Lions unbeaten after two games.

It was the sixth loss in the last seven trips to the Silverdome for the Packers (1-1), who bolted ahead 15-14 with 12:55 left in the fourth quarter. But the Lions (2-0) came up with some fireworks of their own to stay undefeated despite playing without All-Pro Barry Sanders, who retired in frustration over the Lions' 5-11 finish in 1998.

Patriots 31, Colts 28

FOXBORO, Mass. — Veterans Drew Bledsoe and Terry Allen showed youngsters Peyton Manning and Edgerrin James how to finish a game.

Bledsoe, the top pick in the 1993 NFL draft, and the 31-year-old Allen sparked a New England comeback from a 21-point halftime deficit to a 31-28 win over Indianapolis on Sunday.

Bledsoe threw three of his four scoring passes in the second half, and Allen's runs set up Adam Vinatieri's winning 26-yard field goal with 35 seconds left.

Steelers 23, Ravens 20

BALTIMORE — Stoney Case once again worked his magic for the Baltimore Ravens in the closing minutes. This time, however, he was outdone by Will Blackwell and Kris Brown.

Blackwell returned a kickoff 37 yards to midfield after Case tied the game with his first NFL touchdown pass, and Brown kicked a 36-yard field goal as time expired to give the Pittsburgh Steelers a 23-20 victory Sunday.

Buccaneers 19, Eagles 5

PHILADELPHIA — The Tampa Bay Buccaneers found a perfect solution to their problems Sunday. The Philadelphia Eagles are perfectly awful, even with Donovan McNabb at quarterback.

Though Trent Dilfer failed to redeem himself from a poor performance in the opener, the Bucs had little trouble beating the punchless Eagles 19-5 on Sunday.

Redskins 50, Giants 21

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. — The Washington Redskins didn't blow a 21-point lead this week. They just poured it on and embarrassed the New York Giants.

Stephen Davis ran for touchdowns on Washington's first three possessions and Brad Johnson threw three touchdown passes as the Redskins had their biggest offensive explosion since their 1991 Super Bowl season with a 50-21 victory over the Giants on Sunday.

Seahawks 14, Bears 13

CHICAGO — New team, same old result.

Mike Holmgren continued his domination of the Chicago Bears on Sunday as the Seattle Seahawks scored two touchdowns in the second half for a 14-13 victory. Holmgren, who was 12-2 against Chicago with the Green Bay Packers, has won 11 straight against the Bears.

The Bears (1-1) had a chance to win the game, but rookie Brian Gowins' 48-yard field goal attempt with 20 seconds left sailed wide right.

Dolphins 19, Cardinals 16

MIAMI — The Miami Dolphins' defense made sure Jake Plummer didn't pull off another comeback.

Plummer threw four interceptions and Miami kept the Arizona Cardinals' offense out of the end zone for a 19-16 victory Sunday.

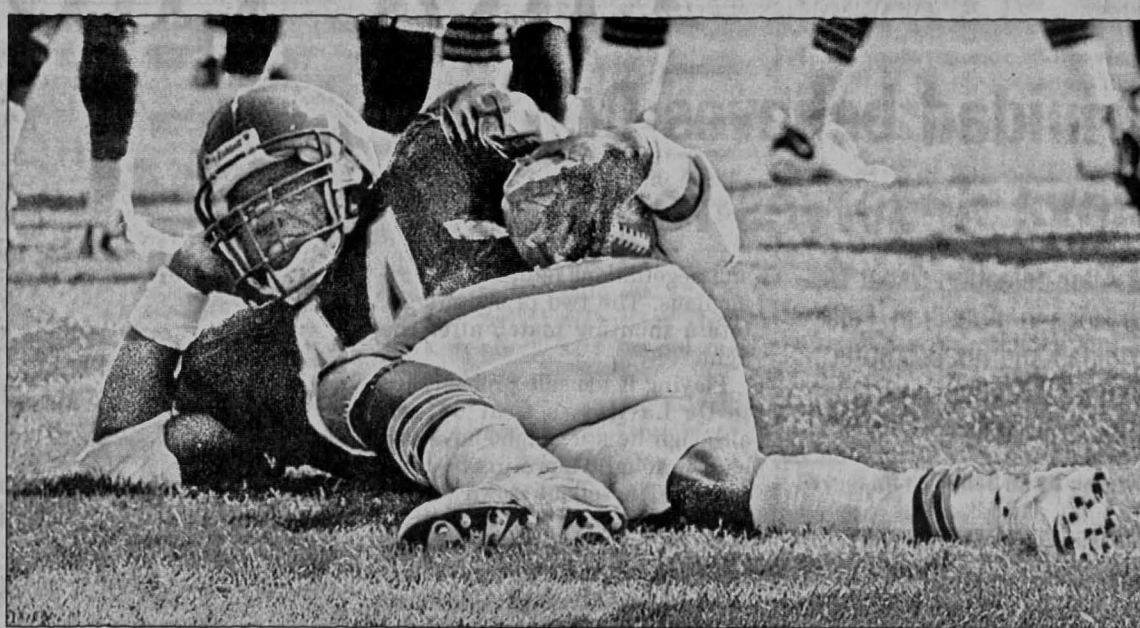

Plummer orchestrated the 10th comeback of his three-year career last week at Philadelphia, but Miami withstood his bid for fourth-quarter heroics. The Cardinals took over at their own 33 with 1:14 left, but two penalties and a sack pushed them back to the 25, and Plummer was intercepted by Brock Marion with 15 seconds to go.

Chargers 34, Bengals 7

CINCINNATI — Once they got rid of the rust from their first-week bye, the San Diego Chargers made up for lost time.

Jim Harbaugh threaded a 29-yard touchdown pass between two defenders and Gerald Dixon returned a fumble 27 yards for a touchdown barely a minute later as the Chargers rolled to a 34-7 victory Sunday over the bumbling Bengals.

The Chargers made Mike Riley a win-

J. David Ake/Associated Press
Chicago running back Curtis Enis poses in the end zone after scoring a two-yard touchdown during second quarter action against Seattle Sunday.

49ers 28, Saints 21

SAN FRANCISCO — The San Francisco 49ers might be nearing the end of a two-decade long run of success. That doesn't mean they can't beat the New Orleans Saints.

Steve Young threw two touchdown passes to Terrell Owens, including the tying score in the late going, and Lance Schulters won it with a 64-yard interception return with 1:31 left as the 49ers beat the Saints 28-21 Sunday.

Chiefs 26, Broncos 10

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — The deeper Denver goes into the post-John Elway Era, the worse it gets.

Converting points off a Terrell Davis fumble and two turnovers by Elway's rookie replacement, the Kansas City Chiefs beat the Broncos 26-10 on Sunday and dropped the two-time defending Super Bowl champions to 0-2.

Brian Griese completed 11 of 16 passes for 107 yards, with one interception and one fumble, before being replaced by Bobby Brister with 9:17 left in the game. Brister didn't fare any better, throwing an interception that led to Pete Stoyanovich's fourth field goal, a 27-yarder with 2:14 left.

Titans 26, Browns 9

NASHVILLE, Tenn. — The Tennessee Titans won with a new starting quarterback. A change of signal-callers didn't help the Cleveland Browns, though.

Neil O'Donnell, filling in for injured Steve McNair, completed 31 of 40 passes for 310 yards and a touchdown as the Titans beat the expansion Browns 26-9 Sunday.

Eddie George scored on a pair of 1-yard TD runs for the Titans, who improved to 2-0 for the first time since 1991.

Cleveland rookie Tim Couch had a rough time in his first NFL start, getting sacked seven times and completing 12-of-24 for only 134 yards. The Browns (0-2), gained a total of only 173 yards against Tennessee.

Big Mac not letting Sammy run away with home run race

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Looks like Mark McGwire is all warmed up for Sammy Sosa and Wrigley Field.

McGwire moved closer in the home-run race by hitting his 57th and 58th, but Jeff Bagwell's two-run shot in the seventh helped the Houston Astros avoid a three-game sweep Sunday with a 4-3 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals.

McGwire is three homers behind Sosa, who hit No. 61 Sunday for Chicago.

On Monday night, McGwire and the Cardinals start a three-game series against Sosa and the Cubs at Wrigley Field.

Houston increased its lead in the NL Central to 3 1/2 games over Cincinnati, which lost to Pittsburgh 8-5.

After striking out in the first, McGwire hit a two-run homer off Chris Holt (5-13) in the fourth. He cleared the bullpen in left center on Holt's first pitch of the sixth, a drive estimated at 423 feet that put the Cardinals ahead 3-2.

Dodgers 5, Rockies 2, 7

Innings

DENVER — Gary Sheffield homered for the second straight day, leading Kevin Brown and the Los Angeles Dodgers over the Colorado Rockies 5-2 Sunday in a game stopped after seven innings because of rain.

The game was called after a wait of 62 minutes with more rain in the forecast.

Brown (17-8) stopped his two-game losing streak and lowered his ERA to 2.98. He allowed two runs and seven hits in 6 2/3 innings, striking out seven.

Mets 8, Phillies 6

NEW YORK — John Olerud and Mike Piazza hit consecutive home runs and the New York Mets overcame a bad inning by Kenny Rogers to beat the Philadelphia Phillies 8-6 Sunday.

The Mets remained one game behind Atlanta, which beat Montreal 5-1, in the NL East. Both teams are off Monday, then the Mets and Braves begin a three-game series Tuesday night at Turner Field.

Olerud drove in four runs as the Mets won for the 11th time in 15 games. Piazza, forced to leave Friday night's game and sit out Saturday because of a bruised left hand, hit his 36th home run.

Roger Cedeño also homered for the Mets in going 3-for-4, scoring three times and stealing his 65th base.

Pirates 8, Reds 5

PITTSBURGH — Brian Giles hit his 38th and 39th homers to drive in three runs and the Pittsburgh Pirates dealt Cincinnati's playoff hopes another setback, winning 8-5 Sunday behind Jason Schmidt.

Greg Vaughn hit his 40th homer and the Reds' 40th in 19 September games, but the Reds' four pitchers constantly battled control problems in their second loss in the three-game series and fourth in six games.

The Reds, who won seven in a row before a slide that started with two losses in three games at home to the Cubs, began the day 2 1/2 games behind Houston in the NL Central and three behind the Mets for the wild card.

Braves 5, Expos 1

ATLANTA — Kevin Millwood won his career-high 18th game, Freddy Garcia homered in his first at-bat for Atlanta and the Braves maintained their hold on first in the NL East with a 5-1 victory over the Montreal Expos on Sunday.

The Braves, who have won seven straight division titles, began the day with a one-game lead over the second-place New York Mets. The two teams meet six times in the next nine games, beginning a three-game series Tuesday night at Turner Field.

Devil Rays 15, Rangers 2

ARLINGTON, Texas — Fred McGriff, Bubba Trammell and Jose Guillen homered as the Tampa Bay Devil Rays routed the Texas Rangers 15-2 Sunday.

Rangers starter John Burkett (7-8) and reliever Mike Morgan gave up 10 runs on nine hits in four innings.

McGriff reached the 30-homer mark for the eighth time, becoming the second player to hit 30 for four different teams, joining teammate Jose Canseco. McGriff also hit 30 homers for the Blue Jays, Braves and Padres.

Rookie D'Angelo Jimenez also had four hits and his first two career RBIs and Derek Jeter went 3-for-6 with a homer as the Yankees maintained their three-game lead over second-place Boston in the AL East.

Yankees 11, Indians 7

CLEVELAND — Giving away a big lead to the Indians was bad enough. The Yankees weren't about to let their slim one over the Red Sox get smaller.

Joe Girardi's two-run single capped New York's four-run ninth inning and Bernie Williams went 4-for-5 as the Yankees showed why they are World Series champions in outlasting Cleveland 11-7 on Sunday.

White Sox 3, Blue Jays 2

TORONTO — Brian Simmons hit a three-run homer Sunday as the Chicago White Sox beat the fading Toronto Blue Jays 3-2.

The Blue Jays lost their fifth in a row and fell 10 1/2 games behind Boston in the AL wild-card race.

The White Sox swept the three-game series and have won four straight.

Red Sox 7, Tigers 3

BOSTON — Nomar Garciaparra homered to help stop Dave Micki's eight-game win streak and Trot Nixon also homered Sunday as the Red Sox beat Detroit 7-3 to complete a three-game sweep.

A fifth straight win helped Boston keep pace with the Yankees, who led the AL East by three games coming into the day. New York played the Cleveland Indians; the Oakland Athletics trailed the Red Sox by 4 1/2 games in the wild-card race entering the day.

Twins 2, Mariners 1

SEATTLE — LaTroy Hawkins became Minnesota's second double-digit winner and the Twins used Cristian Guzman's sacrifice fly in the fifth inning to edge Seattle 2-1 on Sunday.

Hawkins (10-13) allowed five hits in 7 2-3 innings, walked two and struck out five in besting Jamie Moyer (14-7), who pitched his fourth complete game of the year.

Athletics 12, Royals 3

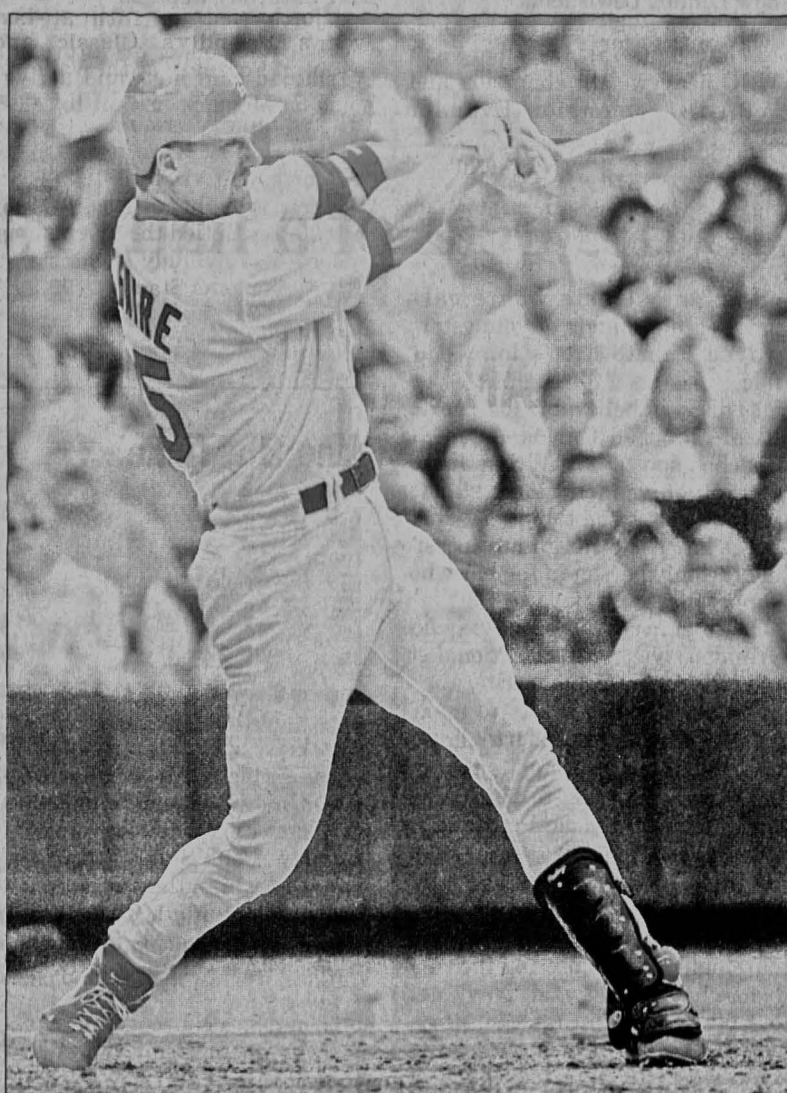

OAKLAND, Calif. — Jason Giambi and Miguel Tejada both homered and drove in three runs Sunday as the Oakland Athletics defeated the Kansas City Royals 12-3.

A sparse crowd of 13,914 saw the A's remain 4 1/2 games behind Boston for the wild card. The Red Sox defeated Detroit 7-3.

Eric Chavez, in his first game back from the disabled list, drove in two runs to support Gil Heredia (13-7).

Sal Fasano and Mike Sweeney each homered for the Royals, who have lost five of the six games played in Oakland.

Heredia allowed three runs and six hits in 6 1/3 innings. He struck out five and extended his streak without a walk to 13 innings.

Tom Gannam/Associated Press
St. Louis slugger Mark McGwire turns on his 57th home run of the season in the fourth inning against Houston Sunday.

Diamondbacks 8, Marlins 7

PHOENIX (AP) — Matt Williams hit a sacrifice fly in the ninth inning Sunday, to give Arizona an 8-7 victory over the Florida Marlins, reducing the Diamondbacks' magic number for clinching the NL West to seven.

Arizona took two of three from the Marlins and led second-place San Francisco by 7 1/2 games going into the Giants' game at San Diego on Sunday night.

The Diamondbacks now begin their final road trip, with three games beginning Monday at Colorado, followed by three games in San Francisco next weekend.

Trinidad believes De La Hoya deserves rematch

■ After defeating Oscar De La Hoya in a decision, Felix Trinidad and his promoter Don King are willing to negotiate a rematch.

By Ed Schuyler Jr.
Associated Press

LAS VEGAS — Oscar De La Hoya went on his bicycle in the late rounds, assuming he had his fight against Felix Trinidad won. Then the wheels came off.

"I thought I had it in the bag," De La Hoya said. "I swear I did. The 11th and 12th rounds, I was protecting the rounds I had in the bag."

De La Hoya's backpedaling backfired in a big way, however, and fighting to the final bell paid off for Trinidad, who won a majority decision Saturday night in the welterweight showdown at Mandalay Bay.

"My corner said keep attacking. I knew it was close," said Trinidad, who landed several hard rights to De La Hoya's head in the final three rounds.

"I feel so happy," the 26-year-old Puerto Rican said at a Sunday news conference.

"Me, too," added Don King, Trinidad's promoter.

The unbeaten Trinidad, who defended the IBF 147-pound title and won the WBC championship, said De La Hoya deserves a rematch.

But a rematch will require an agreement between King and Bob Arum, De La Hoya's promoter, and negotiations figure to be acrimonious. The two promoters got into a shouting match after the fight.

Playing it too safe probably led to De La Hoya's first defeat, although he still might have lost had he fought more in the final rounds. The sellout crowd wished he had.

At the end of nine rounds, De La Hoya led 86-85 on the card of Jerry Roth of Las Vegas and 87-84 on the card of Glen Hamada of Tacoma, Wash. Bob Logist of Belgium had it even at 86-86.

Trinidad won all three final rounds and the fight (115-113) on Roth's card. Hamada also gave Trinidad the last three rounds and scored it a draw at 114-114, while Logist gave Trinidad the 10th and 11th rounds, De La Hoya the 12th and favored Trinidad 115-114.

The AP scored it 115-113 for De La Hoya, giving Trinidad the last three rounds.

In his defense against Ike Quartey, De La Hoya won the last three rounds, knocking down Quartey in the 12th, to keep the WBC 147-pound title.

"I was doing what I was trained to do — box," De La Hoya said. "I landed a hundred more punches than he did."

A CompuBox punch analysis credited De La Hoya with landing 263 of 648 punches to 116 of 462 for Trinidad. The number of punches landed, however, does not necessarily equate to effective punching.

"I'm not disappointed," De La Hoya said at a post-fight news conference, not attended by Trinidad. "If I felt like a defeated fighter, I'd feel bad. Now I know how Lennox Lewis feels."

De Hoya was referring the highly controversial draw between WBC heavyweight champion and WBA-IBF champion Evander

Felix Trinidad celebrates after defeating Oscar De La Hoya by way of decision after 12 rounds of their WBC/IBF Welterweight Championship bout Saturday.

Holyfield in a March 13 fight, which most people thought Lewis won. They will have a rematch Nov. 13 in Las Vegas.

A lot of people thought De La Hoya won, but there was a general air of disappointment rather than a sense of outrage. The match billed as the Fight of the Millennium between two power-punching champions wasn't even the Fight of the Year.

The pay-per-view fight will be rebroadcast on HBO at 9:45 p.m. EDT Saturday, Sept. 25.

De La Hoya said he will take a vacation and ponder his future.

Trinidad said he would arrive home on Monday. "I want to celebrate with all my people in Puerto Rico," he said.

While Trinidad has achieved hero status in Puerto Rico, he won't achieve De La Hoya's celebrity status in the United States. He does not speak English, which will limit public appearances and media attention and could hurt with endorsement deals.

A rematch with De La Hoya would be Trinidad's richest option. He could, of course, move up to the junior middleweight division (154 pounds). So could De La Hoya.

"I'm willing to give him a rematch under the same terms and conditions," King said. "Just switch the names."

Funk, Faxon to play off for B.C. Open title

■ Fred Funk slipped into a tie Sunday, after playing the best round of golf in his 15 years on tour Saturday.

By John Kekis
Associated Press

ENDICOTT, N.Y. — Fred Funk and Brad Faxon were tied after 72 holes of the B.C. Open on Sunday night and a one-hole playoff didn't decide a winner so they were to continue Monday.

Faxon, Funk and Rory Sabbatini started the final hole of regulation in a three-way tie, but both Funk and Faxon birdied the hole to knock the young South African out of the lead as the sun was setting and a half moon hung in the sky to force.

Both Faxon, who shot a fourth-round 67, and Funk, who had a 72, parred No. 18 and will play for the championship at 8:30 a.m. Monday. They finished regulation at 15-under 273.

Craig Spence, who had a closing 65, finished in a tie for fourth at 276 with Jonathan Kaye, Stephen Ames, Ronnie Black and Mark Carnevale. Peter Jacobsen was another stroke back, while Mike Weir and Deane Pappas were at 278.

The field was forced to play the final two rounds on Sunday because rain from Hurricane Floyd had postponed Thursday's opening round. A fog delay held up play for 45 minutes Saturday, making for a long Sunday that Funk struggled to survive.

Funk, who began the day with a five-shot lead over Faxon and Sabbatini, slowly watched it dwindle as the day wore on.

Clinging to a one-stroke lead over Sabbatini, Funk's second shot on the 432-yard par-4 15th hit about 15 feet on to the sloping green, tore up a big ball mark, and spun back down into a giant water hazard. Funk had to settle for a bogey while Faxon and Sabbatini had pars.

Faxon then forged a three-way tie for the lead when his second shot on the 16th landed within a foot and he easily tapped in for birdie.

Funk, who shot an 11-under 61 to surge to the top of the leaderboard after Saturday's second round, couldn't come close to duplicating the best round of his 15 years on tour.

Funk had his troubles in the third round on the way to a 70. He landed in three sand traps on his way around the En-Joie Golf Club course and had two bogeys to go with four birdies.

Sabbatini shot an impressive 68 in the third round despite some erratic play. The highlight of his round was a terrific eagle on the 545-yard 12th.

Island rocks to the beat of a native son's victory

■ An elated Puerto Rico will celebrate Felix Trinidad's victory and welcome him home in a rally scheduled for today.

By Chris Hawley
Associated Press

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico — Music pounded until dawn and cavalcades of honking cars wound through the streets.

Native son Felix Trinidad had beaten Oscar De La Hoya, triggering an all-night fiesta on the island.

The government planned a rally to welcome Trinidad on Monday, and San Juan Mayor Sila Calderon gave city employees the day off. Gov. Pedro Rossello praised Trinidad for "glorifying the name of Puerto Rico."

Cable television officials estimated nearly half of the 135,000 homes in San Juan capable of receiving the $50 pay-per-view fight were tuned in.

When the majority decision was announced in Las Vegas early Sunday, a roar of "Tito! Tito!" carried over the roofs of historic Old San Juan. The sounds reverberated ed on the streets where cars paraded and bands of youngsters waved Puerto Rico's lone-star flag.

"This is unbelievable for Puerto Rico!" shouted Carlos Colon at Coaches sports bar in San Juan, where young men mounted the bar and danced on tables.

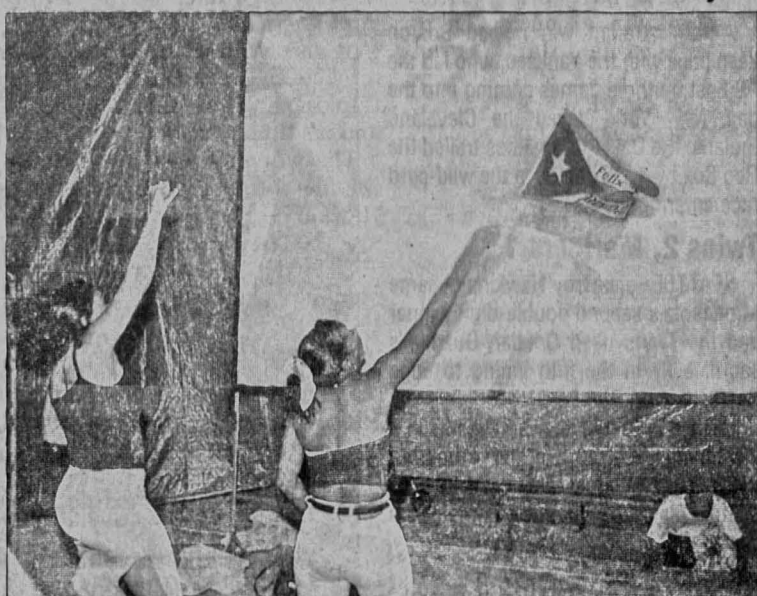

His girlfriend sat glumly, possibly the only person in the bar who supported De La Hoya.

Like many, Colon viewed Trinidad's victory as a nationalist triumph for this U.S. territory.

"Pedro Rossello wants to make us Americans. But Tito shows we're Puerto Ricans," said an older man referring to the bid by the governor to make Puerto Rico the 51st state. "Trinidad won because he's Puerto Rican and Puerto Ricans are hungry."

Trinidad displayed his own nationalist bent, entering the ring before a sign that said "Navy, get out of Vieques," in reference to a controversial military training ground on the outlying island of Vieques. The Puerto Rican government is demanding the U.S. Navy leave the island.

Trinidad, little known outside Puerto Rico because he speaks only Spanish, is adored in his homeland as a churchgoing Christian who unabashedly sports religious pins declaring, "I love Jesus." He is a dedicated husband and the father of a 2-year-old girl, Ashley.

On Saturday night across the island, thousands of people crowded into standing-room only bars that charged $15 to watch the fight on big screens.

At the Capitol, the government paid $72,000 to mount 16 giant screens and gave away tickets to 8,000 people who watched the welterweight title bout outdoors, cooled by breezes off the Atlantic Ocean.

HAWKEYE ROAD ROUNDUP

Volleyball

Iowa traveled to College Station, Texas this weekend with the objective of finding its first victory of the year. But now that it's over, they're still looking. With three more losses at the Texas A&M Invitational, the Hawkeyes moved to 0-6 on the season, the worst start ever in the 23-year history of the program.

Iowa began the tournament Saturday against No. 17 Texas A&M (8-1), and were quickly ousted 15-7, 15-3, 15-3. The Hawkeyes proved no better against Santa Clara, being defeated 15-6, 15-10, and 15-10. Iowa was typically paced by Julie Williams, who had 10 kills versus Texas A&M and 12 kills against Santa Clara.

Sunday meant a new day, but unfortunately the same results. The Hawkeyes took Georgia to the limit, but came up just short in a tough contest by the scores of 15-2, 7-15, 15-13, 4-15, and 12-15. Julie Williams led the way with 13 kills, and Sara Meyerermann helped out with 11. Larissa Lopes also added 30 assists. Iowa had 47 kills in the loss, the most so far this season. Williams' 35 kills on the weekend gave her 1,165 for her career and moved her past De Ann Davidson for eighth on Iowa's all-time kills list. Jill Oelschlager is seventh with 1,207.

In the locker room at halftime the offensive line took responsibility.

Field Hockey

The Iowa field hockey team remained undefeated this weekend as the No. 10 Hawkeyes defeated No. 20 Delaware 3-1 to move to 6-0 on the season.

Tiffany Fodera began the Iowa scoring drive as she put the Hawkeyes on the board with just over 13 minutes left in the first half.

Quan Nim scored an unassisted goal with 27:16 remaining in the second half to break a 1-1 tie, and give Iowa a 2-1 lead.

With 18:08 remaining in the game, Anita Miller broke into the Delaware 25-yard line from the left wing of the field and scored off Blue Hen goalkeeper Kelly Ottati to seal the win.

"I was happy to win, but there were some things that I was not happy about," coach Beth Beglin said. "Passing looked really good, but we were not sharp. It was difficult to play at Delaware because the field was very bouncy."

Iowa outshot Delaware 18-9 in the game, including a 12-5 advantage in the second half of the game.

The Hawkeyes were scheduled to play Rutgers last Friday in Piscataway, N.J. However due to the intense flooding caused by Hurricane Floyd, the university was shut down for the day. The game has yet to be rescheduled.

Next weekend, the Hawkeyes will begin Big Ten play with the two tough matches at Grant Field. Iowa will face Ohio State on Friday and top-ranked Penn State on Sunday. All three teams are currently undefeated.

Women's golf

The Iowa women's golf team finished in eighth place this weekend at the Lady Northern Invitational in Madison, Wis. The tournament comprised of mostly Big Ten schools left the Hawkeyes ranked seventh in the conference this weekend.

Scores of the three-day, 54-hole tournament were 323, 323 and 303—12 shots back of seventh-place Penn State. Purdue took the team title with a total of 896, as Boilermakers' Stacey Orschell took the individual title scoring 217.

M.C. Mullen led the Hawkeyes, carding a three round total score of 229, tying for eighth place out of the 95 athletes participating in the event. Mullen placed 34th in the Lady Northern Invitational last fall. Spero earned a score of 239, tying for 37th place. Freshman Heather Suhr tied for 40th, while Kelli Carney finished 42.

The third day of competition, Iowa had the third lowest score but Diane Thomason said she is aware that the team needs to move up before Big Tens rolls around.

"We need to keep working on mental toughness," said Diane Thomason. "We need to finish strong and we need to work on our short game."

In two weeks Iowa will travel to Ohio to play in the Ohio State Invitational Oct. 2-3.

Men's Cross Country

Bobby Atkins was the highest finisher for the Hawkeyes on Saturday at the Les Duke Invitational cross country meet in Grinnell. Atkins finished 16th running a time of 27:33 for the five mile course.

Coach Wiczorek took four freshman runners to the Division III meet hoping they could gain experience running among the leaders. That never happened as Iowa got off to a slow start and was never able to work their way up front.

"I am not happy with their performance, but it is not unexpected that freshmen will make mistakes" Wiczorek said. "I would rather see them make a mistake early in the year like this than later on when we are counting on them."

Finishing second for Iowa was Freshman Josh Maxwell who got 27th out of the 180 finishers. Maxwell ran a time of 27:50.

The Hawkeye runners were satisfied running in the middle of the pack early on despite the leaders of the race running a slow 5:40 for the first mile. The result was Iowa running slower times than they did the week before at the Illinois State Invitational.

Atkins was able to get as high as 8th with only a mile to go in the race before drifting back.

Fry optimistic about Hawkeyes

FRY

live or die, and I said, 'I'm too ornery to die,' Fry said.

Fry, Iowa's winningest coach with 143 victories, said he has finished his treatments but didn't elaborate. "You don't want to do it," was all he said, laughing.

Fry, wearing his trademark dark sunglasses and sporting a gold tie covered with black Tiger Hawk symbols, said he did not miss coaching.

He watched a game recently on television and "went to the refrigerator to get me a sody-pop; went outside and looked up at the sky and said, 'Thank you, Lord.'"

"I really feel I was blessed," he said. "After retiring, you find out there's a lot more things that are a lot more important than a football game."

More than 100 former players were on hand Saturday to honor their old coach, who transformed the Iowa program from the dormat of the Big Ten into one of its best teams with three Rose Bowl trips and 11 other bowl games.

Fry's team last year limped home with a 3-8 mark and this year's team under first-year coach Kirk Ferentz dropped its first two games.

Fry said he was proud of his former players' and coaches' successes and predicted Ferentz, his offensive line coach from 1981-89, will start winning.

"The Hawks are just going to get better. They've got to because the quality of the competition is getting better," he said. "I told him that if he didn't like his job, I'd come out of retirement if they pay me what they're paying you."

Fry said he's busier in retirement than he was in coaching as he travels the country for his book signing appointments and on trips to stump for Bush.

The Texas governor's family and Fry have been longtime friends, and Fry introduced Bush at the recent straw poll in Ames, home of the Hawkeyes' intrastate rival, the Iowa State Cyclones.

"That's the first time I ever got applause in Ames," Fry quipped.

Soccer team in search of Big Ten berth this season time, Lee ended the match at 2-1. Iowa is 0-3 lifetime versus Minnesota, including last year's 3-0 shutout.

"I gave them credit for fighting and getting this match into double overtime," Gabbert said. "No matter how they scored the final goal, we played with them. This is such a big step from last year."

Another indication the soccer program is making strides was their huge 4-1 victory over No. 12 Wisconsin Friday.

Iowa had never beaten Wisconsin and was shutout 3-0 last year. The Badgers fell to 4-1-2 and 0-1 with the loss. The Hawkeyes improved to 2-1 in Big Ten openers.

Wisconsin came out early, and behind good fan support, Allison Wagner put the first goal on the board at 3:03. It was all Iowa after that.

"I thought if we played well we could get a few goals. If we get momentum we are a hard team to beat," Gabbert said.

Lynch scored Iowa's first goal off an assist from Julie Atkocaitis at 16:09. With that assist, the freshman tied Iowa's record for most assists in a season (6) and moved into a three-way tie for second on the career assists list.

Lynch netted her ninth goal of the year and second of the game at 43:19 on a pass from Meredith Taylor.

Iowa is now 9-0 all time when scoring four or more goals.

"Everyone's a finisher. The win is incredible," Audino said. "We've never beaten this good a team like this. We're playing our game and making other teams play with us."

The win is one of the biggest in the young program's history but Gabbert said the goal still remains a Big Ten tournament berth, and Iowa will still have to work hard.

Iowa hits the road this weekend for a non-conference matchup with Valparaiso on Friday and then back to the Big Ten against Michigan Sunday.

"We got in a little group and said, if we play well in the second half we will win this game," guard Jay Bickford said. "It's on us. If it's to be, it's up to us."

It certainly was, and the line responded. Iowa had only three penalties, and Betts had 115 yards in the second half alone.

"I think Iowa's line up front performed better than in the previous two games," NIU coach Joe Novak said. "But a running back like Betts can make a line look good."

Betts had Iowa's first 100-yard rushing game since he accomplished the feat against Indiana last season. Ferentz was quite impressed with his sophomore tailback.

"Ladell Betts played a great game," Ferentz said. "He ran very hard and very tough and I think he will only continue to improve."

Certainly, the presence of Randy Reiners behind center made the line look better, too. Reiners was more mobile in the pocket, and made more of less, something that Kyle McCann had trouble with the first two games of the season. Reiners completed 13-of-18 passes for 145 yards, and added a two-yard touchdown.

The game's outcome was still in doubt early in the fourth quarter. With Iowa up, 10-0, Northern Illinois had driven to the Iowa six, and was attempting a field goal, which would have brought the Huskies within a touchdown of tying the game. Matt Bowen would have no part of it, though. He blocked Kent Baker's kick, and LaVar Woods picked up the ball, rumbling 87 yards for the score. The return was the longest non-kick-return return in Iowa history.

After pinning Northern Illinois deep in their own territory on the ensuing kickoff, a poor punt gave Iowa the ball at the NIU 31. They punched in the ball in six plays, capped off by a Ladell Betts 10-yard jaunt to end the scoring at 24-0.

"This is one of my favorite victories of all time," Bowen said. "We needed this win so emotionally. After that game, seeing all of those people on the field, you get that good feeling. It doesn't matter how bad you hurt, all you're thinking about is we got that win, and it's time to celebrate."

The win was Iowa's first since October 10, 1998, when the Hawkeyes beat Northwestern. It was the team's first shutout since last year's opener, when Iowa blanked another MAC team, Central Michigan.

Beginning Monday, Sosa and McGwire will go head-to-head in the first of six meetings between the Cubs and St. Louis Cardinals in the final two weeks.

"Everything is possible. I have faith in my ability and my talent and all the work I put into it. That has made me come back and have another great year."

Cubs manager Jim Riggleman said his team will pitch to McGwire and expects that the Cardinals will do the same with Sosa.

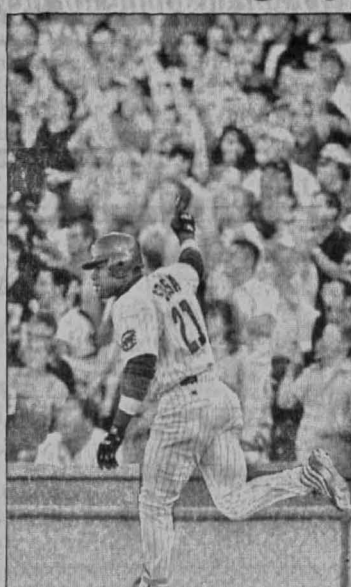

"That's the way it has to be," Sosa said.

"Everybody will be watching him and me, too. We'll see."

Riggleman said he'd like to see McGwire reach 60 again now that Sosa got there first. He said they both deserve to be there because of what they have meant to the game for two years.

Even McCarney surprised by ISU shutout

LAS VEGAS (AP) — Even coach Dan McCarney, the eternal optimist, was surprised by what his football team accomplished against UNLV.

"I never realistically believed that we would come in here and shut this team out," McCarney said. "We figured they would move the ball and score some points."

UNLV did neither. Iowa State dominated the line of scrimmage on both sides of the ball and spoiled the Rebels' home opener with a 24-0 victory.

It was Iowa State's first shutout on the road since a 31-0 victory at Iowa in 1978 and puts the Cyclones at 3-0 for the first time since 1981. And while McCarney and his players know the competition will heat up considerably when No. 15 Kansas State visits Ames for the Big 12 opener next Saturday, they'll be a confident group as they get ready for that game.

"If you can handle the distractions out here and play like these kids did, you can go anywhere in the country and play," McCarney said. "I was really proud of the kids in the way they handled this trip and especially the way they played."

Iowa State's defensive line smothered the UNLV offense, holding the Rebels (2-1) to seven first downs, eight yards rushing and 106 total yards. The offensive line, meanwhile, sprung Darren Davis for 208 yards in 37 carries.

"All week UNLV was saying they had to stop Davis — keep him under 100 yards and they could win the ball game," Davis said. "The offense took that personal. We went out there and did some good things."

Quarterback Sage Rosenfels added 50 yards on seven carries as Iowa State, which entered the game second nationally in rushing, amassed 319 yards on the ground.

GAME NOTES

Miller's injury frustrates Ferentz

By Greg Wallace
The Daily Iowan

Doug Miller was just trying to be a good team player. Because of it, he will be on the sidelines a little longer. After injuring his shoulder last week, the senior defensive back was doubtful for this week's game. However, he was cleared to play on Thursday, so Ferentz gave him some time on special teams. While attempting to down a Jason Baker pooch punt in the second quarter, Miller dislocated his knee. He had to be taken from the field on a cart.

"I feel very badly for him," Ferentz said. "It looked like he was going to be out a couple weeks with the shoulder, and we found out he was cleared to play Thursday, so we played him on special teams. And doggone it, this thing happens. You're frustrated anytime a player gets hurt, but especially when it's a senior."

Banged Up: Defensive end Ed Saidat did not play Saturday, due to a sore back. Scott Pospisil took his place and filled the hole well, with six tackles.

"Ed has been nursing a sore back," Ferentz said. "He didn't practice last week, and we didn't do him any favors by playing him against Iowa State. He got out of practice on Tuesday and really didn't look good, and we made the decision to rest him and protect him, and hopefully it will pay off for us down the road."

Wide receiver Kevin Kasper did not play because of an undisclosed injury. In addition, cornerback Joe Slatery re-aggravated a nagging shoulder injury in the first half. It didn't affect his performance; he led the team with 12 tackles. Chad Deal dressed for the game, but he did not play.

Bad Idea: The UI sports marketing department ran a promotion in which they placed a paper fan in every seat, one which was marked with a gold Hawkeye. The fan with the gold Hawkeye could redeem the fan for 20 years of Iowa season tickets. However, it is unclear whether that prize will ever be claimed. Fans, most notably the student section, littered the field with the fans throughout the game, so it is unknown if the prize wound up in a fan's hands or a maintenance worker's garbage bag.

Hayden Fry Night: The pregame ceremony honoring former coach Hayden Fry went off without a hitch. Fry rode onto the field on a golf cart, and was presented with a captain's chair by his former players. More than 100 former Hawkeyes attended Saturday's game to honor Fry.

Give him a 9.3: LaVar Woods punctuated his 94-yard blocked field goal return with a dive into the end zone. He claimed that he wasn't trying for style points; he just wasn't sure who was behind him.

"I dove because I thought someone was on my tail," Woods said. "I didn't know. I wanted to make sure I scored."

No Hokey Pokey: The team didn't celebrate the win with the Fry trademark Hokey Pokey, but they did sing the Iowa Fight Song after winning for the first time in eight tries. Some of the Hawkeyes were a bit rusty after going so long between wins.

"Not all of them," Ladell Betts said when asked if he remembered the words to the song. "I knew a few of them."

What they say...

"I was really surprised the students ran on the field. I didn't think a win over Northern Illinois was really deserving of it. I don't think security was really expecting it either."

— Iowa's Jay Bickford

"I got tears in my eyes just watching Hayden out there before the game with all the former players."

— Iowa's Joe Slatery

"We sang the victory song at mid-field after the game. I didn't know all the words."

— Iowa running back Ladell Betts

"It was pretty shitty."
— Iowa quarterback Randy Reiners when asked to describe his first-half performance.

GAME ANALYSIS

Brett Roseman/The Daily Iowan

Iowa's Joe Slatery defends a pass in the second quarter of Iowa's 24-0 win against Northern Illinois.

A little bit like the Hawkeyes of old

By Mike Kelly
The Daily Iowan

For the first three quarters, Kinnick Stadium was as about as enthused as a Hell's Angel at a craft show.

Iowa and Northern Illinois battled it out in a pitcher's duel, with the two teams combining for just three points at the end of the third quarter.

Then Iowa took over the game with a methodical intensity that would have made the former Hawkeye greats in attendance remember the glory days of Iowa football.

In his first start, Randy Reiners took control of the offense late in the game, leading his team on a commanding 17 play, 99-yard drive at the beginning of the fourth quarter. Ladell Betts made several gutsy runs in the fourth quarter that wore down the Huskie defense until they were all out of gas.

Sure, it was against a team that lost to I-AA Western Illinois, but after two difficult losses, a win's a win.

Inefficiency plagued Iowa in the first half. The offense drove the ball down the field on numerous occasions early, but shot itself in the foot when it got close to scoring due to penalties and miscommunication.

Don't blame the first half woes entirely on the offense, though. Northern Illinois was not the team that endured a 23-game losing streak last year. A solid core of receivers and intelligent play calling on both sides of the ball are a true testament to the revitalized Huskie program. They were not that bad.

Northern Illinois did not quit either. After the 99-yard drive in the fourth quarter, NIU stormed back with a drive of their own. When the Huskies were primed to make it a one-score game, Matt Bowen and LeVar Woods stepped up and ran a blocked field goal back for a touchdown. It was just the big play Iowa needed.

Reiners was solid at quarterback, completing the passes he had to and taking charge of the team when necessary. He provided the spark that Kirk Ferentz was looking for him to provide. On a fourth and one, deep in Northern Illinois territory, he convinced the coaching staff to go for it.

Even though Iowa did not get the first down in that instance, Reiners exhibited confidence in his offensive line that can be carried over into the rest of the season.

This off week could serve the Hawkeyes well. With two weeks to prepare for Michigan State, Iowa has a chance to heal and try to build on the win against Northern Illinois.

While it was nice to see Iowa get its first win of the Kirk Ferentz era, was it really imperative for the fans to storm the field after the game? I am just wondering what was going through the minds of the former Hawkeyes who had played in big games like the Rose Bowl. They had to have questioned why exactly the fans stormed the field. After all, it was only Northern Illinois.

DI sports writer Mike Kelly can be reached at mkelly@blue.weeg.uiowa.edu

quarterbyquarter

Northern Illinois had the first possession, and moved the ball to the Iowa 45. But two sacks of NIU quarterback Frisman Jackson, sandwiched around a two-yard loss, killed the drive. Iowa took the ball at its own 36, and moved the ball to the NIU 18, before the drive stalled. After two incomplete passes and a Rob Thain two yard loss, Tim Douglas hooked a 33-yard field goal attempt wide left.

NIU went three and out, and Iowa began in excellent field position at its own 47. A Ladell Betts fumble killed any Iowa chances, though. Neither team was able to mount a sustained drive the rest of the quarter, which ended with the score 0-0.

Iowa took the second half kickoff and moved the ball steadily. A combination of Betts running and a Randy Reiners pass to Chris Oliver moved the ball to the NIU 33. Three Betts runs moved the ball to the 25, but he was stopped short on fourth and two by the Huskie defense.

Northern Illinois' next drive was unsuccessful, but it pinned Iowa at its own 1 yard line. Things looked bad for Iowa, but they started their longest drive of 1999.

The drive would consume the rest of the third quarter. Betts took the team on his back, rushing for 61 yards on the drive. The quarter ended with Iowa on NIU's 19 yard line and threatening to score.

Northern Illinois took its first drive of the second quarter and very nearly broke the deadlock.

Beginning on its own 20, NIU drove to the Iowa 15, and had an apparent touchdown when Darrell Hill beat Joe Slatery in the end zone. But the play was called back due to offensive pass interference. The Huskies were forced to try a field goal, which failed due to a poor snap.

Iowa's Tarig Holman intercepted the pass at the Huskie 44, setting up a Tim Douglas field goal for the first score of the game. NIU's Kent Baker missed another field goal with 1:19 to play, leaving the score 3-0 at halftime.

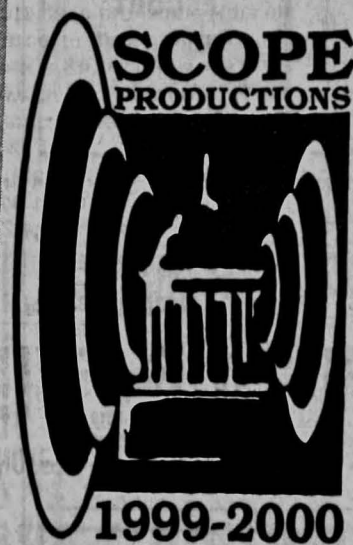

Iowa wasted no time scoring. A Reiners draw play and two Betts rushes pushed the ball to the NIU 2, where Reiners took the ball into the end zone, making it 10-0 Iowa.

Northern Illinois came right back with a drive of its own, driving to the Iowa 6 for a first and goal. Three plays later, Iowa's Matt Bowen blocked a field goal try, and LeVar Woods rumbled 94 yards to make the score 17-0.

An intentional grounding moved NIU back to their 3 yard line. This gave Iowa great field position at the NIU 31, and Betts capped off the scoring 6 plays later with a 10 yard touchdown run.

Genetic testing errors cloud diagnostic future

Health Secretary Donna Shalala has appointed a panel to look into test-quality control.

By Lauran Neergaard
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — A gene test concluded that Nancy Seeger greatly increased risk of getting breast and ovarian cancer, so the woman, who had watched cancer her mother and aunt, had her removed.

Eight months later, Seeger got devastating news: The company tested her genes had made a mistake — she didn't have the cancerous gene defect after all.

Gene tests that promise to protect a person's future health are being marketed to Americans, for hundreds of dollars apiece, with a seldom-mentioned caveat: No one regulates the accuracy of most of those tests, even mistakes can be life-altering.

The Food and Drug Administration, which oversees most medical products, says it lacks the money to regulate gene tests such as the one Seeger took. Nor does a federal law that oversees the quality and expertise of the laboratories address genetics.

Experts say that while most genetic tests do a good job — and gene tests are powerful tools that can help people — Seeger's experience raises risks that the public and doctors must understand.

Nor is she alone: Johns Hopkins University had to stop a screening for inherited colon cancer last year after discovering a gene test bought from a commercial laboratory missed causing mutations in two patients.

How can patients or primary care physicians choose the best genetic tests? "Genetics professionals can't? 'It's a mess, frankly,'" responded one researcher, Hopkins psychologist Ann-Marie Codori.

Now Health and Human Services Secretary Donna Shalala has appointed a panel of leading geneticists to determine, by Dec. 1, how to regulate quality gene testing.

Americans "just assume" that these great scientific institutions, the FDA's there, and whatever offered is protected one way or another," she told the Associated Press.

She charged the panel to make "the science doesn't get ahead of the ability of the appropriate institutions" to oversee it.
