Report reveals 2 women's grisly deaths

After 40 years at UI, Gibson to step down

East German border guards look through a hole in the Berlin Wall. After democrats pulled down the segment at the Brandenburg Gate, in this Aug. 11, 1989, file photo. Ten years after the fall of the Wall, Germany continues to struggle with the entire cloud of reunification.

History could have taken an entirely different turn if people with vision hadn't held along the way or even moved the wall.

Quigley’s eyes downtown site

■ Many residents welcome the planned opening of a Quigley’s in Old Capitol Mall.

— The Daily Iowan

If the Old Capitol Mall Community Council approves the design of Quigley’s planned downtown location, the Council will meet with the fifth subdivision in the mall on Monday night.

Residents say they are looking forward to the food and service provided by Quigley’s.

"We definitely need a Quigley’s downtown," said Elizabeth Rylatt.

Quigley’s is expected to replace one of the stands that was once in the mall.

The remodeling will start after the completion of Quigley’s downtown location. The remodel will take place when the new location is completed.

According to Quigley’s owner, Mr. Smith, the new location will be open by early 2022.

Quigley’s downtown location will be the fourth location in the mall.

The new location will be opened to the public in early 2022.

A new robot probes EgyptAir site

■ An underwater robot begins the search for the black box.

By Debra Levine

Associated Press

NEW YORK — A tough, nimble underwater robot with a seven-foot-tall, three-ton arm is being used to find the black boxes that may have解答了关于埃及航空公司的失踪的答案。

Despite challenges like the blunt-end tip, the robot's owners say it can be maneuvered to retrieve the remains of the plane.

"The robot is designed to handle the challenging underwater environment," said Mr. Van Doorn.

"We expect the robot to be able to retrieve the remains of the plane.

The remains will be carefully examined to determine the cause of the crash.

Judge shows lack of faith in Microsoft

The company whose Moores is called into question.

By Ted Brin

WASHINGTON — The judge behind the most unusual antitrust case since Microsoft was sued by the government, and whose name is now in the headlines again, said Monday he was surprised at the company’s decision to settle the case.

When the government last month announced that it was ready to settle theMicrosoft antitrust case, many people were surprised.

But not everyone.

Moores said he was surprised at the company’s decision to settle the case.

Once the judge determined what to order, he could order punishment from assembly, no services, or punishment of a virtual device.

Moores said he was surprised at the company’s decision to settle the case.

The judge, in his federal courtroom, said the case was a "moot point." He added that the court was "a great deal of uncertainty." He added that the judge was "a great deal of uncertainty." The unbearable lightness of Shrugging

O

Our favorite Texas governor, George W. Shrub, hit the headlines again last week, when he noticed, if you had recovered from Halloween. Actually, you probably couldn’t help but notice, because Shrub is the headline guy. He shrugged hit the headlines last week, and so last week he was doing it again. The Shrub is running for president, or at least for the office of vice president, depending on who you ask. He’s been talking about running for president, although he’s denied it in public. His running was confirmed by a TV reporter. Why is he running for president? Because he’s rich and that’s why he gets to. Why is he running for vice president? Because he’s rich and that’s why he gets to. But notice, because when his head for numbers.

Gender — neither here nor there

Kate Bornstein will speak on her views of “gender categorizing” tonight.

By Terry Stewart
The Daily Iowan

Kate Bornstein, a transgender woman, has been involved in the gay liberation movement since the 1980s. She is an actor, playwright, and speaker. Bornstein said over the phone from New York, "My perfect world is one in which gender is not an issue."

Bornstein, a transgender woman, has been involved in the gay liberation movement since the 1980s. She is an actor, playwright, and speaker. Bornstein said over the phone from New York, "My perfect world is one in which gender is not an issue."

Bornstein said, "If you were to categorize any word we use to categorize anything, floor ballroom. The presentation is free and open to the public."

Bornstein will give a presentation on her life to challenging the world's assumptions about gender. She is scheduled to appear at the IMU on Wednesday at 8 p.m. in Theatre B. Theatre Building. Admission is $1.

"It's the way it's always been," she said. "As a species we are highly judgmental of one another."

While gender is assumed to be a natural categorization by most people, Bornstein, a transgender activist, has devoted much of her life to questioning the assumption. She is scheduled to give a presentation on her beliefs titled "Cut Paste".

"There are not that many opportunities for women to give a talk on the issue in a town setting," Bornstein said.

"Every step I've taken has been a step away from a gender of my own," she said.

"If you were to categorize any word we use to categorize anything, floor ballroom. The presentation is free and open to the public."

Bornstein said the presentation is free and open to the public.

"The Lobster Play" focuses on the work of undergraduate students, something that Bornstein said is important for the theater department.

"Sometimes it seems as if there are not that many opportunities for undergraduates, and so in this play my chances are all the better," she said.

The Lobster Play, based on the work of a gender theorist, is important for the theater department. "Sometimes it seems as if there are not that many opportunities for undergraduates, and so in this play my chances are all the better," she said.

But Bornstein suggested that making her own identity known is a valuable learning experience for all.

"Don't be afraid to tell people," she said. "I don't think there are many cases where telling people who they are is a mistake."

"It's dangerous to tell people," she said. "I don't think there are many cases where telling people who they are is a mistake."

But in her years of activism,Bornstein has witnessed a gradual lessening of that idea. "The populatity of such figures as Rupaul, Donna Leonidas, and K. Lai, she said, suggests that gender is not as accepted as it once was.

"When people came around with gender in a media setting, it's OK," she said, "That was an assumption you kind of soaped into the culture."

Despite increased acceptance, Bornstein described the explosion of gender as often "lowly frightening."

"Because of the way gender is perceived, and often dependent upon categorization, rejection of gender is also often a rejection of this sort of belonging," she said.

"It's a horrific comedy," said Brooks, a UI senior, playwright, and head of the theatre department, "the Lobster Play."

"I always have a bit of a problem about my work," Bornstein said. "But I love the way the Lobster and this cast work together as a unit to really make a funny play about terrible things."

The cast echoed the sentiment. "We are involved," said Kevin and this cast have worked together to make it foolproof," she said. "Everyone has this young , fresh attitude that makes winning with Dan's excellent play a treat."

But it's only a bed, and if we get it right, it's worth remembering the character really on one's."

"Good thing we got a couple more games next week," Oliver said. "I hope it'll get better as the week goes on."

Last season, the Hawkeyes 5-21 in the Big Ten. They were 5-21 last year. With UConn's Ricky Moore guarding Oliver most of the game, Oliver was held to 2 of 10 from the field, with one point.

The defending champions are the Huskies, who are currently No. 1 in the Associated Press basketball poll. "They've got a great team," Oliver said. "They're a good team."

But UConn is missing two key players. "I'm not saying we're not going to play, but we've got to do a lot of things differently," Oliver said. "We've got to do a lot of things better if we're going to win this game."

As the Big Ten regular season ends Tuesday, the Hawkeyes are ready and four turnovers.

Brees to return to Purdue next season

The prolific passer said that he still has things left to accomplish with the Boilermakers.

By Matt Single
West Lafayette, Ind. Purdue quarterback Drew Brees, intending to be one of the best in college football this season, will remain in West Lafayette.

The Boilermakers (3-0) are ranked No. 4 in the Associated Press poll.

"I'm coming back next year to leave here," said Brees, who is the first quarterback in NCAA history to pass for more than 5,000 yards and 40 touchdowns in a season.

"I'm not sure what I'll do when I'm done. I'm not sure what I'll do when I'm done."

Brees has thrown for 1,594 yards and 11 touchdowns through 10 games. The Boilermakers are off this weekend and will look to stay unbeaten when they take on the Wildcats Nov. 20 at Memorial Stadium.

"I need next year to prove myself," Brees said. "An extra year will provide me with a lot more time to prepare. I know that I can become a better player by playing one extra year."

"The decision is as soon as possible," Brees said. "I'm not sure if I'll stay for one or more years."

"I'll feel that there's a lot of things to look for."

Brees said he does not think about winning the Heisman Trophy, but the prospect of becoming a favorite for the honor next year was always on his mind.

"It's about just making sure that I can let others help me," he said. "I know that I'm definitely what I meant to be."
