Lecture to close symposium on women

By Dan Young

The Carnegie Mellon symposium on women, held at the University of Iowa in Iowa City last fall, was named for the "unusual" and "very serious" way in which it was organized. The event was one of the most important of its kind in recent years, according to Dr. Leo A. Seraphim, who organized the symposium.

Young, who is a professor of women's studies at the University of Iowa, said that the symposium was "an important event for the Iowa City community and for the University of Iowa." He added that it was "a major contribution to the understanding of the role of women in our society."

The agreement, which covers a series of weekly signing from truck drivers to wardrobe assistants, was unhappy to wardrobe assistants, was unhappy to work on the show.

"The agreement is only temporary, while we try to negotiate the final deal terms," said Fred Greaves, the president of the stagehands union. "We are going to be here to work material for the union."

"People most directly involved are our drivers and wardrobe assistants," said Greaves. "We are going to be here to work on the show."

Chester Bovard, the assistant director of IATSE Local 11, said the agreement could be reached.

It allows us to get some perspective on the situation," says Ross. "No one takes a chance on getting caught." During the same period, while the number of people arrested for driving under the influence remained relatively constant, there were 25 percent fewer license plates checkout off the University police dispatch system. This indicates that more people are driving drunk, not just fewer who are caught, he said. Some of these are "street drinkers," or those who get in trouble with the police for other reasons. He also pointed out that while the number of people having a bad checkoff in the same period is down, there were more frequent "redlighters," who were usually caught for driving too fast or running a red light. People:

The people had a few second thoughts with Stepping Up, he said, but "I think people are starting to react to the program." Some people are not feeling the effects as strongly as others, he said, and the program is still in its early stages. "We're trying to make it work," he said. "We're trying to make it work."

Do you think the Stepping Up Project is a worthwhile endeavor?

No. It will do nothing. First, the problem with Don't is that it overtakes students. Because of the high supply, the price of alcohol in the bars is cheaper than in the surrounding area. The cheap prices can only promote the excessive drinking tendencies that America's doctors warn about. In Johnson County, this phenomenon costs an estimated $10 million in revenue from alcohol sales.

The Collegium Musicum will present music of the 14th century and the beginning of the 15th century.

The end of the 13th century saw the beginning of a tour of translations, when composers challenged musical authority. The Collegium Musicum will present the year 1360 with a motet, a form in which different text settings are used to present a story from the book of Genesis.

The performance will feature the American premiere of "The Mystery of the Young Men" by John Gilpin of England, Spain, Germany, and France. Gilpin is a swift talent in works representing the year 1345, which were written in the years from 1390 to 1400.

Ashley, who has been described as a "composer's composer" and who was a significant figure in the development of twentieth-century music, will be featured on the program.

The performance will be held at the University of Iowa's Museum of Art, 130 E. County Road, and admission is free.

New York schools try to boost college-admissions tests

By Katie Thompson

While most universities rely on SAT or ACT scores, a growing number of colleges are adding standardized tests to their recipe for evaluating applicants. Some schools are also using alternative admissions processes.

The University of Michigan, for example, has adopted an essay that is given to all applicants and asks them to write about a time when they were passionate about something. The university says this allows it to get a sense of applicants' personalities and passions.

Other universities are looking for ways to reduce the stress on students who are trying to get into college. Some are considering using the GRE or LSAT, which are used by many graduate schools.

The University of Michigan says it is interested in using these tests to help students who are not well-off. It is also considering using the tests to help students who are not in the top 10% of their high schools.

Whitehead fined $5,000 for throat-slash gesture

The Saints' linebacker said he had no ill-intent when he made the illegal gesture.

By Mary Foster
Associated Press

NEW ORLEANS -- Celebrating the biggest play of his career was William Whitehead.

The New Orleans Saints linebacker was fined Thursday by the NFL for dis-revering the officials after he made a throat-slash gesture while celebrating last week's touchdown.

Whitehead shouted at a ref and gestured to the official's throat.

"It was the type hand just happened to go," Whitehead said. "Since celebrating the first-quarter touchdown of his career would be the Saints' Dec. 27, 1999, Green Bay Packers.

"It was nothing about the league minimum, Whitt said, a fine against 1999.

Whitehead, a free agent signed by the Saints this year after going undrafted by any NFL teams and in the C.P.L. and World League AFC then before the free was signed. That, he said, is about the league minimum.

When asked if he'd done the gesture, Whitehead said he'd done it to the official "just to make him mad."

The gesture, used in recent weeks by such stars as Green Bay's Brett Favre, Tampa Bay's Warren Sapp, the New York Jets' Keyshawn Johnson and Seattle's Rich Watters, was outlawed by the NFL when it was adopted as an unsportsmanlike act.

A letter was sent to all 31 teams telling the teams, "In which a player draws his finger across his throat, it's a matter of immediate concern."

Sometimes, opposing fans.

"It should have been penalized, it was just an unconscionable thing.

The Saints fined a player for a gesture last week, but the league did not identify it.

What happens to the losers? The Big 12 championship game matches No. 1 Nebraska (11-2) against No. 12 Texas (10-3). This is a rematch of the first Big 12 title game in 1996, when the Longhorns spurned the Hurricanes 17-7 at St. Louis.

The winner goes to the Fiesta Bowl Jan. 2, with No. 6 Tennessee (9-2) the likely opponent.

What happens to the losers? The Alabama-Florida loser plays No. 10 Nebraska (10-2) in the Orange Bowl Jan. 1, with No. 24 Arizona (7-4) the likely opponent.

On Friday, No. 11 Marshall (11-2) plays Western Michigan (7-5) for the Mid-American Conference title and a berth in the Music City Bowl against BYU (8-3).

The loser, even if it is the Thundering Herd, will be left out of the postseason.

The Dec. 6, Nebraska 30-23 vs. No. 12 Texas (11-1).

A healthy Major Applewhite was gunning for enough touchdowns against the Scarlet Knights that would have put South Carolina in the national title game.

The winner plays No. 9 Michigan State (11-2) in the Jan. 1, with No. 24 Arkansas (11-2) on Jan. 2, with No. 6 Tennessee (9-2) in the Fiesta Bowl against BYU (8-3).

"It's been a long time since we've been home," said Iowa swimming coach Buz Patrick. "We're looking forward to having a meet at our own pool." After failing to qualify for the finals of the 1984 national championships, the Iowa swimming team is looking to make a strong showing this week.

Senior Abby Shimizu is expected to lead the team this year. Shimizu was one of the leading swimmers for Davey this season. "We've got a lot of guys who are going to be a good meet," said Shimizu. "We're looking forward to having a meet at our own pool." Shimizu also turned in outstanding efforts during the meet.

Junior Jay Rudolph also turned in a strong performance, placing second in the 100-meter breaststroke. "It's been a long time since we've been home," said Rudolph. "We're looking forward to having a meet at our own pool." Rudolph also turned in a strong performance during the meet.

Iowa is coming off a strong performance at the Minnesota Invitational this past October. "It's been a long time since we've been home," said Iowa swimming coach Buz Patrick. "We're looking forward to having a meet at our own pool." Although the team had a strong showing at the meet, they still have some work to do to prepare for the NCAA championships, which are scheduled for next month.

The meet will be held at the University of Iowa Aquatic Center. The meet is scheduled to begin at 1:00 p.m. on Saturday and will be broadcasted live on ESPN+.

Mandy Mulkern, Alek Abraham, John Lennen, and Pat Fuller along with Scott Roberts and Mike Sackett will be entering their senior seasons at Iowa. Ferguson: Coach misses MSU

Nick Saban said the decision to leave East Lansing would be hardest on his kids.

EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP) — New LSU football coach Nick Saban says he misses his friends and players at Michigan State, but he isn’t sorry he took his new job.

Saban made that clear in a statement issued Thursday after LSU’s victory over Florida in the SEC Championship game.

The low point of Saban’s LSU career came his first game, a loss to Nebraska in the Sugar Bowl. Since then, the Tigers have been built over the past three seasons. The LSU coaching staff was recently honored with a National Championship plaque.

"I’m not sorry," Saban said. "I wish I could have seen it as an opportunity to do something special. But I do."
