Bradley stresses 'big,' 'bold'

■ In two local appearances, the Democratic hopeful draws distinctions between himself and Al Gore.

By Cassie Huisman and Glen Leyden
The Daily Iowan

With less than a week until the Iowa caucuses, Bill Bradley returned to Iowa City Tuesday to speak with students at the UI and West High School in an effort to close the gap between himself and Vice President Al Gore in the race for the Democratic presidential nomination.

Bradley, who began his day at West High, 2901 Melrose Ave., and later spoke with UI students at the IMU, focused on Iowa's youth during his most recent campaign swing.

"We're just trying to get students interested in the political process," said Cory Jensen, a UI senior and member of Students for Bradley.

While Bradley currently holds a 1-point lead in the New Hampshire primary, according to an ABC News/Washington Post poll released Monday, he trails Gore by a 71-27 percent margin nationally.

"If we do well enough here and win in New Hampshire, things will fall into place," said Christina Powers, a UI senior and Bradley supporter.

UI set to sneeze through flu season

■ An outbreak of flu is expected to hit the university as students return from break.

By Michael Chapman
The Daily Iowan

Early on, she came down with what millions of Americans have suffered through during the past month: influenza. To make matters worse, the virus came back to strike her again just three weeks after her first bout.

"The cold just progressed and got worse," she said. "I kind of wish I had gotten a flu shot."

Iowa is not a state exempt from the flu's latest hot streak. Since Tuesday, a flu warning has been in effect for the state, according to the National Flu Surveillance Network, which helps to determine the "hot spots" for outbreaks across the nation.

The warning is the most severe rating the organization gives; it means that there are daily reports of positive flu tests to the network. Iowa saw a 42 percent increase in those stricken with the flu virus during the last week of December, and a 38 percent increase in the first week of January, said Lee Youngblood of the flu network.

Roughly 89 percent of the students enrolled at the UI come from states under the flu network's warning. Such numbers suggest that the UI might have a flu outbreak as classes begin this week, especially given the high number of students living within close quarters.

But an outbreak isn't out of the ordinary for the UI during this time of year, said Mary Khowassah, the director of Student Health Service.

"We usually do have an outbreak of

Midwest flu severity

An increase of almost 40% of the total number of flu cases reported during the first week of January has prompted the flu network to issue a warning. Here is a look at Midwestern flu levels.

influenza when students come back, and sometimes it's even through March," she said. "It would be unusual for us not to have an outbreak this time of year."

Which leaves students trying to dodge the flu.

UI sophomore Rachel Herman dealt with several flu cases among her family while at home but said she has yet to become sick. So, when her roommate began to show signs of illness last weekend, she took precautions.

Hateful graffiti adorns UI tunnel

Matt Holst/The Daily Iowan

A UI student walks through the tunnel between the IMU and EPB Tuesday afternoon. The tunnel is collecting a lot of hate graffiti, and the UI has no immediate plans for their removal.

■ Located between the IMU and the EPB, the tunnel's graffiti may remain until fall.

By Sky Eilers
The Daily Iowan

Hate-related messages written in a UI tunnel near the English-Philosophy Building may remain for several months until the university gives it an annual cover-up coat of paint in the fall.

The tunnel was last painted in the fall of 1999, said Richard Gibson, the associate vice president for the Facilities Services Group. He said the UI tries to paint it once a year.

"If something offensive is in there, we want to get rid of it — but we can't afford to spend every dollar to keep everything off campus," he said.

Most of the recent graffiti in the tunnel consists of racial slurs and criticisms of sexual orientation.

Andy Stoll, the UI Student Government vice president, said the "graffiti tunnel" — located beneath the CRANDIC bridge along the sidewalk between the IMU and EPB — needs to be dealt with but in a way that will educate and not just cover up the problem.

"We need to see what we can do beyond just painting over it, or this will just be a struggle of paint and more paint," he said.

Phillip Jones, the vice president for student services, said the UI is a forum for free ideas but it will not condone hurtful messages.

City Council throws out car-lodging ordinance

■ Some say the proposal would have permitted the "criminalization" of the homeless.

By Heather Pavnica
The Daily Iowan

In a 4-3 vote Tuesday night, the Iowa City City Council voted down an ordinance that would have prohibited lodging in a vehicle on a public street.

The ordinance, which was up for second consideration, had needed the council's approval twice more before becoming an ordinance.

After hearing the opinions of several community members — including a homeless man living in his car with his wife and three dogs — Councilors Steven Kanner, Ross Wilburn, Connie Champion and Irvin Pfab voted against the ordinance.

Some residents were concerned about the "criminalization" of homeless people.

"I will not support it again. The whole ordinance bothers me," Champion said.

Councilor Mike O'Donnell said he voted for the ordinance in response to residents' concerns.

The proposed ordinance was drafted in response to Brown Street residents' complaints in November about a man living in his van on their street.

An ordinance prohibiting the use of motor vehicles for lodging is justifiable based on the lack of appropriate sanitation facilities and the city's right to control the use of its public streets based on health hazards, safety and welfare, said City Attorney Eleanor Dilkes.

Crisy Canganelli of the Emergency Housing Project said the shelter can only house 29 people; in 1999, it had to deny 350 people seeking shelter because it lacked space.

"There is evidence that the homeless have nowhere else to go," she said. "They have a face, they have a voice, but they are not often listened to."

The proposed ordinance would have given persons lodging in their vehicles 24 hours to leave and alternatives to living in their cars. The ordinance did not prohibit sleeping in a car.

The ordinance was approved by councilors, 5-2, during its first consideration. Three new councilors have been sworn in since the first reading, helping to account for the change in support.

Mayor Ernie Lehman said he supported the ordinance again because alternatives to lodging in a vehicle are given and because it did not prohibit sleeping in a car.

Denelle Kaim, a community member who once had two jobs but remained homeless, said she had no alternative to living in her car because the shelters were closed when she got off work.

"This law is punishing people who try to have a job ... and stay alive," she said. "I don't think it is right to kick people when they are down."

Clinton unveils new gun-control proposals

■ The NRA gives cautious support to a slate of safety and enforcement programs.

By Anne Gearan
Associated Press

BOSTON — President Clinton appealed to Congress Tuesday to begin the last year of the 20th century with a fresh slate on gun control, saying "common-sense gun safety" should be the first item on this year's congressional agenda.

Clinton requested the lawmakers' support for a $280 million package of new gun-safety and enforcement programs that he will propose in his budget package.

And he asked that they "abandon another stale debate" about whether the government should more strongly enforce existing gun laws or fight crime and prevent firearm accidents through new gun-control laws.

"The real answer is we should do both," Clinton said.

His budget package, he said, was designed to send an unambiguous message to criminals: "If you commit crimes with guns or violate gun laws, you will pay a heavy price."

Clinton's usual nemesis on gun issues, the National Rifle Association, offered cautious support for the new enforcement tools Clinton is requesting. Clinton wants 500 new Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms agents and inspectors, plus 1,000 more prosecutors focusing on gun crime at all levels and a program to track guns through ballistics testing.

Calling an emphasis on increased enforcement and prosecution "long overdue," NRA spokesman Jim Manown said the organization is ready to renew its fight against two new gun-control measures that collapsed in Congress last year.

"We certainly don't expect the Clinton-Gore administration to abandon its push for new restrictions on law-abiding gun owners," he said.

Clinton announced his gun proposal during a visit to a spotless new gymnasium and community meeting hall in the Boston neighborhood of Roxbury, where reported crime was down more than 65 percent last year.

"The drop in the crime rate has been due both to changing laws and to better enforcement and better prevention," the president said.

Boston's homicide rate dropped to a 38-year low in 1999, thanks in part to a program that allied law enforcement, the clergy, community leaders and gang members against crime.

The Boston Pilot Project is credited with the homicide toll's plunge from 153 slayings in 1990 to 31 in 1999. A strong economy and declining use of crack cocaine also contributed to

The stress of being black in a white school

■ Emmanuel Enekwechi addresses ways for minority students to beat the stress.

By Rupa Shenoy
The Daily Iowan

Black students who find themselves the only minority in a classroom experience unspoken pressures, Emmanuel Enekwechi told a crowd of approximately 30 in the IMU Michigan Room Tuesday night.

Enekwechi, a clinical psychologist at the UI Hospitals and Clinics, received his doctoral degree from the University of Nigeria, Nsukka. His speech, "Being Black in a Predominantly White University," was part of Human Rights Week 2000 and sponsored by the Sigma Gamma Rho sorority.

Being the only black in a classroom makes a student feel like he or she represents all blacks, Enekwechi said.

"You are regarded as the encyclopedia of African knowledge," he said.

He then described how blacks respond to stresses brought about by living as minorities in a white society. Examples of such stress range from being followed in department stores to the inability to find a hair stylist who does African-American hair, Enekwechi said.

Blacks are subject to stereotypes because their ethnicity is always apparent, he said.

"We must always deal with people reacting to us on the basis of stereotypes," Enekwechi said.

These stereotypes may lead people to treat blacks as if they cannot succeed, Enekwechi said.

and president of Sigma Gamma Rho, related to the stereotypes that Enekwechi described. Bryant said her adviser, who is black, told her to choose another major because "blacks aren't good at science."

Being in an atmosphere in which you are expected to fail, coupled with the difficulty of finding black role models to identify with, may lead to feelings of hopelessness, anger or despair among black college students, Enekwechi said.

City takes first step on transit center

■ The City Council votes to notify area property owners of public hearings in March.

By Andrew T. Dawson
The Daily Iowan

The city took its first step Tuesday night toward creating a Near South Side Transportation Center, which would comprise a parking ramp, taxi service and bus station.

During the Iowa City City Council meeting, members voted 6-1 in favor of notifying property owners of a March 7 public hearing that will address the issue. Iowa law mandates that property owners receive advance notification of the possibility of condemnation.

The $12 million project will also incorporate commercial retail space, including a proposed day-care center. Backed by a $9 million federal grant, the city may begin the process of acquiring the east half of the block delineated by Burlington, Court, Clinton and Dubuque streets.

The city intends the proposed project to spur growth and to accommodate residential parking. Joe Fowler, the city's director of parking and transit, said the project should be "good multimodal interchange" for the city.

If the proposal is passed, construction could start in the first part of next year.

City Councilor Steven Kanner voted against the notification.

"I like a lot of the things of this, but I don't like 300-600 more parking spaces right now," he said.

Karin Franklin, the city's projects director of planning and Iowa City resident for over 27 years, said that if the acquisition did not occur, it would halt the construction of several other projects that have been planned in the area.

One of the buildings proposed for condemnation is occupied by the law firm of Jim Houghton and Jean Bartley.

"I'm not convinced of the benefit to the city and the citizens," Bartley said. "It's very wasteful. This is a good building and should not be destroyed to create a parking ramp."

CITY BRIEFS

Truck, car collide at IMU

A Coca-Cola delivery truck backed into a parked vehicle outside the IMU's south entrance Tuesday afternoon. Icy streets did not appear to be a factor in the accident.

Iowa City police and the UI Department of Public Safety responded to the scene of the accident at 3:30 p.m. The driver of the vehicle was taken to an area hospital. There appeared to be no other injuries; both the passenger of the car and the truck driver refused to comment.

Witnesses said the truck dragged the car, which was wedged under the truck after the collision.

"This is probably the busiest day of the semester. It's just a really congested space," said Alice Mathis, the UI director of the office of student life.

An accident report listing the driver of the car, sustained injuries and amount of damage was not available from Public Safety Tuesday night.

Iowa City man accidentally shoots himself

An Iowa City man sustained minor injuries after accidentally shooting himself while playing with a gun Monday evening, Iowa City police said.

Harry Larner, 19, was playing with a .22 caliber revolver when it discharged, according to reports. He was struck with a bullet to the forehead, said Iowa City police Lt. Richard Wyss.

Police were called to the victim's home, 4616 Lakeside Drive, shortly after 5:30 p.m., the reports said.

Larner suffered superficial wounds from the gunshot; he was treated and released from Mercy Hospital, 500 E. Market St., Wyss said.

No charges have been filed in the incident, Wyss said, but investigation into the incident continues.

Larner could not be reached for comment.

UI home page takes on virtually new changes

■ A new events page is just one feature of the university's revamped Web site.

By Michael Chapman
The Daily Iowan

Things may not have changed physically at the UI over break, but the electronic university has an entirely different landscape.

Since last weekend, the UI Web page, www.uiowa.edu, has taken on a new look, with several added features for users. The new page was designed after a committee decided to modernize the page, said UI President Mary Sue Coleman.

"We have a committee on campus that looks at the Web presence," she said. "This is part of a routine look."

The changes also came as a result of user feedback and comments, said Gerhild Krapf Greenhoe, assistant vice president for university relations.

Employees spent approximately 100-150 hours over two months trying to "freshen up" the look of the site, said Greg Johnson, the director of publications for university relations. In addition to regular employee salaries, approximately $300 was spent to scan photos for the new Web site, he said.

"What we tried to do from a design standpoint is make the Web site coordinate with the publications we send out to recruit students to campus," Johnson said.

Among the additions is an interactive map feature for students and visitors, as well as "rollover" buttons that let the user see what each section of the home page contains.

Also new to the UI Web site is "UI This Week" — the UI events page.

"What that allows us to do is to pick one event that is happening and do a little write up on it," Johnson said.

The events page currently features events relating to Human Rights Week 2000, which is occurring this week. Coleman said the site needed to be changed frequently; the page will now be updated on Mondays and Thursdays.

"If your Web page is stagnant, people don't go back to it because it's dull and boring," she said.

UI freshman Trudy Sievers said the new feature helps let her know what is going around the campus.

"I think it's helpful because I don't know what time games start, and also I like to know what's going on at Hancher," she said.

Englert's future still up in the air

■ The Englert Coalition and city officials wait for the future owner's decision.

By Heather Pavnica
The Daily Iowan

The future of the Englert Theatre remains uncertain as city councilors and the Englert Theatre Coalition continue to wait for a response from the theater's future owner, Kip Pohl of Illinois.

The coalition, a group of local community members, asked the Iowa City City Council during Tuesday's informal meeting to make a decision on whether it was willing to purchase the Englert Theatre, 221 E. Washington St., from Pohl.

The council will not make a decision to purchase the property until it hears from Pohl; the council and the coalition were unable to reach Pohl for his comments.

Pohl is expected to finalize the purchase of the theater with Central States Theaters, the current owner of the building, on Jan. 24.

"None of us are in the driver's seat right now," said Karin Franklin, Iowa City's planning and community development director. The city would use tax revenue to purchase the property for the price Pohl paid, and the coalition would reimburse the city after it raised the money, said City Manager Steve Atkins.

Atkins said he sent a letter to Pohl explaining what the city needs to make a purchasing decision, but Pohl has not responded.

The council cannot vote to purchase the theater until Feb. 1. The deed must be renewed, the building must be inspected, and there must be a formal proposal before the council can make a decision, Atkins said.

Coalition member Larry Eckholt said his group had been ready to make an agreement with Pohl for $1.5 million, but the council discussed purchasing the property for $725,000 — the amount Pohl paid — during a meeting on Jan. 10.

The coalition did not formally bring the request to the council, he said, but the coalition felt pressed for time because the council cannot vote to purchase the property for another two weeks.

"Waiting for two weeks can be a serious downfall for us," Eckholt said. "The best thing about the city being involved is it would buy us three months."

The coalition has raised $50,000 in local donations but needs more fund raising, Eckholt said.

Econofoods closing forces out Brenton Bank, costing jobs

Three UI students who are part-time employees at Brenton Bank, 1987 Broadway, will lose their jobs when the bank closes on Feb. 9.

Bank President Dennis Frischmeyer said he thought that Econofoods, the building that houses the bank, will close the same day.

Econofoods is under the management of the Nash Finch Co., one of the largest food wholesalers in the United States. Nash Finch officials have not announced when the store, which has been located at Pepperwood Plaza since 1986, will close.

Econofoods' store manager Scott Selberg was unavailable for comment.

The bank's two full-time employees may be relocated to other Brenton Bank locations, Frischmeyer said.

"From a company standpoint, we're looking at trying to relocate the full-time employees in a convenient place," he said. "But it will be tough to relocate the UI students, because they are only part-time workers."

Lawmaker looks to 'dry out' Iowa dorms

DES MOINES (AP) — An Eastern Iowa lawmaker wants all residence halls at Iowa's public and private colleges to be alcohol-free.

Rep. Rosemary Thomson, R-Marion, is proposing the bill under which students caught with alcohol could face a criminal charge and a $200 fine. Colleges and community colleges could lose state money if they didn't enforce the ban.

Thomson's bill would cover students who can legally drink and students living in dorms at private schools. Private colleges could be included under the law because their students receive financial aid from the state, she said.

The president of Mount Mercy College, Cedar Rapids, said dealing with drinking on campus should be left up to each school. Mount Mercy, a Roman Catholic school, allows students over 21 to have alcohol in their dorm rooms.

"This might drive those 21-year-old students off campus," said Bob Pierce, the school's president.

He said older students in the dorms often serve as role models.

Russians grind into central Grozny

Russian military officials say Chechnya's capital will fall soon, ending the resistance.

By Lyoma Turpalov
Associated Press

URUS-MARTAN, Russia — After weeks of ferocious fighting, Russian forces penetrated the center of Grozny Tuesday and started a final assault to take control of the capital of separatist Chechnya, Russian officers said.

Russian troops were pushing into the center from east and west and had established control over part of central Grozny, said Lt. Col. Konstantin Kukharenko, a Defense Ministry spokesman.

"The decisive phase of the liberation of Grozny has started," he said, adding that the city would soon fall.

The military's claims could not be confirmed. There was no immediate indication that the estimated 2,000 well-entrenched rebels in Grozny had fled the city, which has been the center of Chechen rebel resistance. Its capture would give Russian forces a huge victory after several humiliating military setbacks.

Russia has boasted several times that it was close to capturing Grozny, only to be driven back by the rebels, who have launched counterattacks in recent weeks in Chechen refugees climb onto a Russian military truck at a border checkpoint between the southern Russian region of Ingushetia, near Sleptsovskaya, and Chechnya, after soldiers going into Chechnya agreed to give returning refugees a ride Tuesday. and around the capital. After facing little resistance in their steady march across Chechnya's northern lowlands, Russian troops have been stalled at Grozny for months and only recently began pressing into rebel strongholds in the southern mountains.

Chechen commanders admitted Tuesday that there was heavy fighting in central Grozny.

Aslanbek Ismailov, the Chechens' deputy chief of staff, told the Interfax news agency that the Russians were trying to reach "the most strategically important" site in Grozny, a bridge crossing the Sunzha River that is a major transit route for rebels.

A Russian spokesman, Valentin Astafyev, told NTV television that federal troops have reached the bridge.

Some clergy back same-sex couples

NEW YORK (AP) — Dramatizing the most divisive issue in American religion, 850 mostly liberal members of the clergy and other religious figures issued a declaration Tuesday urging all faiths to bless same-sex couples and allow openly gay ministers.

Among endorsers of the statement were the retired leader of the Episcopal Church, the presidents of the United Church of Christ and Unitarian Universalist Association, presidents or deans at 15 Protestant seminaries and numerous theology teachers.

The declaration got slim backing among Roman Catholics and none from any major Evangelical, black Protestant, Eastern Orthodox, Mormon, Buddhist, Hindu or Muslim organizations.

Slush-fund scandal bags Kohl

BERLIN (AP) — Helmut Kohl resigned Tuesday as the honorary chairman of the Christian Democratic Union, brought down by a campaign-financing scandal that now marks the stunning denouement of one of Europe's most respected statesmen and the man who reunited Germany.

Defiant to the end, Kohl gave up the influential post rather than capitulate to demands that he identify donors who made illegal campaign contributions and help clear up a scandal that threatens to ruin the party.

Kohl's single-handed leadership facilitated Germany's swift reunification in 1990.

because of Bradley's interest in human rights and because "he seems like a genuinely nice person," she said.

"I haven't been this excited about politics in a long time, until now," Thompson said. She waited for more than half an hour to meet Bradley.

During his morning speech in the crowded West High auditorium, Bradley focused on universal health care, racial equality and campaign-finance reform.

Bradley hoped to draw a distinction between himself and Gore by promising big solutions to big problems.

"Politics should be big and bold things," he said. "The biggest difference (between Gore and himself) is whether we should do small things and nibble around the edges or through the prospect that we can do big things."

Bradley appealed to the young crowd by combining his views of the future with interesting tales from his basketball past.

The hour-long speech was followed by a number of enthusiastic questions on topics that ranged from the growing income gap between rich and poor to problems facing small farmers.

Bradley received his largest applause from the students after answering a question to which he vowed to fight for gun control.

"We need common-sense gun control and to stand up to the NRA," he said.

Many of the West High students were appreciative that Bradley took time out of his busy schedule to speak with students, many of whom are too young to vote.

"It's great that he came here because most politicians don't pay enough attention to youth, and that is part of the reason they don't vote," said 17-year-old West High student Rebecca Solow.

for free speech but also about promoting the respect for other human beings," he said.

In November, two separate incidents of vandalism were reported to Iowa City police and the UI Department of Public Safety. A pedestrian bridge and a new house under construction on the 1600 block of Teg Drive were spray-painted with racial slurs and swastikas. Similar markings were found in the men's locker room near the south gym of the UI Field House.

The markings at the Field House were removed as soon as possible, Gibson said.

UI graduate student Eric Jones said the tunnel graffiti deserves the same treatment.

"I think it's vandalism no matter what the message says," he said.

Hateful language doesn't belong in the public's view, said UI junior Brie Thede. "I know that people have racist attitudes and that's just their beliefs, but they shouldn't be written where other people can see."

Again, Clinton emphasizes gun control

CLINTON

ton announced Tuesday, the administration already has said it will ask for $10 million to develop "smart guns" that fire only when held by their owners. The White House is also trying to persuade gun makers and gun dealers to agree to new safety rules, with the threat of a national lawsuit if the groups don't comply.

The White House hoped to win new, tougher laws in Congress last year, when national sentiment over gun violence ran high in the wake of high-profile shootings such as the teen massacre at Columbine High School in Colorado.

In particular, Clinton wanted to tighten rules on buying guns at swap-meet style gun shows, to require additional safety features on handguns, and to ban the importation of large-capacity ammunition clips.

A version the White House liked passed the Senate, with the tie-breaking vote cast by Vice President Al Gore. Clinton said that vote represented a defeat for "the high-pressure tactics of the NRA," one of the most powerful and effective lobbies in Congress.

"But we couldn't pass it in the House of Representatives even after the travesty of Columbine High School," Clinton said Tuesday. "I believe passing common-sense gun safety legislation should be the very first action of this Congress."

so I slept in one of my friends' rooms so I wouldn't get sick," she said.

Instead of changing rooms for the evening, UI graduate Sarah Claypool took a more proactive approach to combating the flu.

"I called Student Health and said I needed an influenza shot," she said. "It took two seconds to do."

The influenza shots cost $13 and protect against three strains of the flu, Khowassah said. Scientific predictions are made on which types of flu the country is and might be seeing, and those are put into the vaccine, she said.

Because of this, the effectiveness of the vaccine is around 95 percent, Khowassah said. But if symptoms are already present, the vaccine probably won't work because it requires 10-14 days to take full effect.

The vaccine may not be for everyone, she said. It can cause slight soreness in the arm where the shot is injected and mild body aches and fever.

"This is a decision each student needs to make," Khowassah said. "We encourage students to get vaccines because of the student lifestyle, but it certainly isn't mandatory."

IT'S TIME TO ASK THE PRESIDENTIAL CANDIDATES...

Dear Presidential Candidates:

Last year, cancer killed half a million people nationwide and over 6,600 people right here in Iowa. These individuals, and their families, represent the true health care crisis in America - coping with sickness, pain and death.

On behalf of cancer survivors, patients and their families, we want to know what your plans are to fight cancer? Your presidency can help us move toward a cure.

Fighting this disease is not just an issue of increasing funding for cancer research. It's a war that must be fought on multiple fronts. We urge you to set a goal and work toward it: support the American Cancer Society's goal of cutting cancer deaths in half by 2015. Ensure patients have the option of participating in clinical trials - cutting-edge treatments that can reduce suffering and prolong life. And increase health care access for uninsured Americans including preventive measures for screening cancers, such as mammograms, so people get the care they need and deserve.

As Americans we all share common experiences, and sadly, coping with this disease is one of them. Talk about your experience with us. Tell us how that experience formed an impression upon you to want to beat this disease.

Near the end of every term, presidents focus on their legacy - what did they actually accomplish that made life better in this country? Would you be satisfied if at the end of your presidency, historians said you helped cure cancer?

We need your help to beat this disease.

Sincerely,

The American Cancer Society in Iowa

Hope. Progress. Answers.

Cornfield love affair will soon become ancient lore

The men stride in to town like gods, casting their sights toward the throngs of mortals who await them — some are farmers, some are merchants, others peasants. Some are data-entry clerks.

But all among them share the intense, guttural need to meet their prophet, so the hordes wait with arms outstretched, hoping to touch, or at least catch a glimpse of Gary Bauer or Alan Keyes.

At moments such as these, the man-gods stop briefly to consort with the commoners and brush against these mere mortals, professing their opinions on taxes, health care and campaign finance to the wild delight of many. It's enough to make any mythical figure jealous. Few of even the mightiest ancient gods, after all, had access to bodyguards, chartered jets, 15-car caravans and lavish media attention. In this respect, Zeus and Apollo had nothing on Steve Forbes.

working families because, hey, we deserve it — we're from Iowa!

But as soon as the caucuses end next week, so will this torrid affair. There will be nothing to do at that point but put away the balloons, mop up the floors and hope to catch our favorite politicians on TV from time to time. Like most jilted lovers, Iowa's voters will be left with little more than memories of the great times they had together with the candidates.

Ahh ... there was the day Pat Buchanan stopped by Iowa City's Hamburg Inn to serve up some of his alarming prescriptions for our nation's woes in front of a couple dozen bewildered spectators. On some days, one could count on seeing either G.W. Bush or his father stroll into town, or catching a luncheon put on by Forbes.

Al Gore was always one to make things interesting as well. On one October night, Gore dropped by the UI campus — nearly two hours late — to speak about, well, who knows what? We were all pretty dazed and fatigued by that point.

Gore's next Iowa City visit was to my alma mater, City High School. What a guy, I thought — taking time out of his busy schedule to speak to some of our nation's youth. Perhaps it was to tell them about their bright future in the 21st century or to warn those kids to stay off the dope. It sounded like a good idea, until it was revealed that the event was not for the school's students, but for eligible voters from around the area.

Meanwhile, roughly 30 City High students were selected to view the event in their gym, while the Gore motorcade took up half of the school's parking lot, forcing students to park their cars up to six blocks away. Oh, Al. What a crazy guy.

But these days will soon be history. Sure, a couple of them might be back later this summer to garner some more votes, but this might be our last chance until 2004 to see fellas such as Steve Forbes and Gary Bauer.

Hmm. Well, I suppose I can handle the wait. How about you?

At least they're getting their photos ops.

"They" are the politics and government officials who have been milking the Elían Gonzalez saga — the only ones who have reaped any benefits from this ongoing struggle between family rights and nationalist chest-thumping.

Supporters of Elían's detention in Miami have frequently argued that because the boy's mother died trying to bring him to America, we should respect and enforce her "dying wishes." While mothers' rights do extend as far as those of the fathers', Elían's mother is dead. Her death is a tragedy, but the public must keep in mind that dead people do not have parental rights.

Some accuse the father of being a mouthpiece for Fidel Castro, but no evidence has been presented to show that, in this specific case, the father is acting out of anything less than fatherly love.

The father and grandparents profess their love and concern for their child daily, and they have not been shown to be unfit guardians. Were this a domestic custody suit, it would be laughed out of court.

Some have called for the father to come to the United States to request custody of his son in an environment free of manipulation on the part of Castro. Can the public expect Juan Gonzalez to be any freer in Miami, under the weight of countless cameras, politicians and other "do-gooders?"

At a minimum, Elían's family in Florida will exert enormous pressure on the father to stay in Miami. In a worst-case scenario, Gonzalez could be welcomed at the Miami airport with a congressional subpoena, requiring him to stay here.

As manipulative as that may sound, it is not unprecedented. Rep. Dan Burton, R-

Ind., issued a subpoena for Elían to appear before the Senate this spring.

Burton represents a few thousand Hoosiers thousands of miles away from the boy's home in Cuba. From where Burton believes to have received his moral authority to override the father's wishes is anybody's guess.

If the GOP and others really want to support children trying to escape oppression, then why haven't they opened up the Mexican border to the thousands of people trying to escape the oppression of poverty? The answer: These politicians don't care about Elían's well-being. They care about photo ops, favorable election-year press, and putting Fidel Castro in his place. Elían Gonzalez just happens to be incidental to the cause.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Vilsack misguided on immigration policy

I'm an English as a Second Language Instructor at the Lodi Unified School District in California's San Joaquin Valley. To use Gov. Tom Vilsack's words Jan. 8, I "reach out to those who come from other nations." In my work, I've seen, again to use the governor's phrasing, "the dignity and worth of all individuals."

But I write to tell you that those who call for reductions in the levels of legal immigration aren't racist or hate mongers. They are, like me, realists who see that we can't keep up. As an example, over the past decade, of the new enrollments in my school district, 82 percent are non-English speakers.

As caring and compassionate as my colleagues and I are, we don't have enough teachers or classrooms to take care of those who are already here, let alone all who wish to come.

Joe Guzzardi
Lodi, Calif.

AOL-Time Warner merger will make Braves fans out of everyone

As I write this column, I don an Atlanta Braves baseball cap. Not that the club is my favorite team. I'm also watching news on CNN — and connected to the Internet via AOL — and reading my "Person of the Century" issue of Time. Not that I trust CNN, enjoy the commercials on AOL, or agree with most of Time's selections.

The invisible hand governing the marketplace has done its duty. By overpowering or altogether eliminating the competition, I have no choice — at least no equal choices. Especially when speaking about American media. Which is why I threw down my Braves hat and stomped on it when I heard of AOL and Time Warner's merger early last week. Fewer choices, less competition.

Of course I put the hat back on. I'm American. I love winners, hate losers — and there's no way the Braves can lose now. If the team had deep pockets before, it has ravers' jeans pockets now — the kind where the back pocket goes down below the knee and the front pockets even farther. The team's roster should be so great that human error and bad luck in October won't even matter.

Sure, I could wear a Montreal Expos hat — they're the best farm club in the major leagues. I could watch the "Newshour with Jim Lehrer" on PBS — it's more trustworthy. I could connect to the Internet from a local provider of Internet Navigator — the price and connection is almost the same. I could read The Nation — it's more thoughtful.

But, ah, the spectacular ease brought by the first four.

When I flip to the "Superstation" — a cable-age oxymoron — on a summer evening, I'll see a Braves game. And if I watch the Braves enough, they're bound to play the Expos.

I turn to CNN at 6:30 and see vivid images, breaking news and

Joseph Plambeck

English sitcom — the "Newshour" was the previous hour. Back I go to CNN, where sharp video and speculation from celebrity pundits rule.

In the past two years, AOL has sent me 12 different CDs to connect to the Internet. I tried one, the 200 free hours kind. After my free month, I forgot to cancel. I had meant to call Cedar Rapids-based Internet Navigator, but it didn't send me anything. And while signing up with AOL, I even got a new credit card offered to me in a window I couldn't close.

I read Time because it has a great offer in the bags from Iowa Book & Supply. At least 50 percent off, I think it was. The Nation didn't have anything in the bag.

As for the news I watch, the magazines I read and the Internet service provider I use, I've decided to fight it no longer. The struggle is futile. This thing called capitalism has overpowered me and empowered those on the top floors of skyscrapers. And the end isn't in sight.

Plus, it's easier like this. I don't have to do any work. I let them brainwash and program me without even trying. All I have to do is watch commercials, read my mail and go on the Web. Beyond that, all of my decisions have been made by market researchers.

So now I'm now going to watch some professional wrestling on the "Superstation." Goldberg rules.

Joseph Plambeck is the DI assistant Viewpoints editor.

Police urge parents to keep an eye on children

The Iowa City police are warning parents to take precautions after two boys were reportedly approached during the past week by a man who allegedly had intentions of performing sexual acts with them.
 The first incident took place on Jan. 8 at a local fast-food restaurant. The suspect pushed a 6-year-old boy into a restroom stall, according to a police report.
 The second incident occurred at the Iowa City Public Library, 123 S. Linn St., on Jan. 15, according to a police report. A 7-year-old boy was lured into the restroom by the suspect, police said. The man then attempted to remove the boy's pants, but left when another person entered the restroom, the police report said.

 Police describe the suspect as a white male, 50-60 years old, balding with brown hair on the sides of his head. The suspect was wearing blue jeans and a tan or brown coat. He also may have a shuffler in his walk.

Old captain to lead soccer team

■ April Heinrichs will take over as head coach of the United States women's soccer team.

By Ken Peters
Associated Press

PASADENA, Calif. — April Heinrichs, captain of the 1991 team that won the United States' first women's world soccer championship, will be hired to coach the American team.

A soccer source confirmed Sunday that Heinrichs will be introduced as the new coach of the U.S. women's team during a news conference Tuesday. U.S. Soccer officials would say only that they have scheduled a news conference Tuesday in New York.

The Los Angeles Times reported in its Sunday editions that Heinrichs would become the coach.

Heinrichs, 35, will replace Tony DiCicco, who guided the Americans to the World Cup championship last summer, then resigned in November.

The first female member of the U.S. National Soccer Hall of Fame, Heinrichs retired from the national team in 1991 after scoring 38 goals in 47 appearances for the United States.

She went on to serve as an assistant under DiCicco for the 1995 World Cup team, and then the 1996 team that won the Olympic gold medal. Since 1997, she has coached the national under-16 team.

Heinrichs earlier was not thought to be one of the top candidates to replace DiCicco, who had a 103-8-8 record as the women's coach.

The favorites for the job were considered to be longtime U.S. assistant coach Lauren Gregg and Jay Hoffman, also an assistant under DiCicco during the team's drive to the 1999 World Cup title.

Buzzer beater falls short in Alford's return to Bloomington

By Megan Manfull
The Daily Iowan

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. — The highly anticipated greeting between Steve Alford and Bob Knight quickly became the side show instead of the main event Tuesday night in Assembly Hall.

In the middle of the coaching chaos was the most unpredictable scene of the evening. The heavily favored No. 11 Hoosiers (14-2 overall, 4-1) were forced to battle the entire 40 minutes to scrape out a 74-71 win against the Hawkeyes (7-9, 1-4).

However, once the final buzzer sounded, the coaches took center stage once again. The evening that started with a civil handshake in front of a sold out crowd of 17,500 ended with Knight's infamous shouts.

Prior to the game, the Hoosier coach uncharacteristically entered the arena from behind the Iowa bench, rather than on the Indiana side. He then walked up to Sam Alford and slapped him on the back, as he put an arm around the younger Alford's shoulder and extended his hand to shake.

"I thought it showed a lot of class," Alford said, about Knight's pregame gesture. "Everything he does is with a lot of class. I was worrying about what he was going to do. But he broke the ice and made everyone more comfortable."

"He's on a national championship run now, but when our seasons are over I hope we can get a chance to just sit down and talk. There's been a lot of miscommunication."

Prior to game time, Knight and Alford's relationship was on the cover of major newspapers and all over ESPN, who broadcast the game. When told of Alford's ideas, Knight would not say he would welcome the talk, but said he would go along with it.

"If Alford wants to sit down and talk to me, rather than hold press conferences about a lot of bullshit, I will do it," Knight said. He then added, "I just want to end with one thing, though. Alford has never asked me to do anything that I haven't done. Period. And I'm tired of the bullshit that has been attached to that."

The topic of Alford was not welcomed by Knight during his postgame questions. However, the Hoosier coach had a number of positives to say about the Hawkeye squad. Iowa's defense stopped the Hoosiers from making any of their characteristic scoring runs, holding them in check until around the seven minute mark of the second half.

Then, the Hawkeyes began missing shots under the baskets and losing the second-chance points that had helped them maintain the lead. However, the squad's aggressiveness continued to make them a threat.

"Iowa played well and some statistics really favor them," Knight said. "They had nine steals, we had two. That says a lot about position and effort. They also had 19 offensive boards. From a different standpoint we forced eight turnovers, but we had 13."

"Everything we did that we wanted to came out

Alford homecoming king with Indiana fans

By Melinda Mawdsley
The Daily Iowan

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. — Blood runs Hoosier red along every country road and city street in Indiana where basketball is life. Whatever rift existed between Iowa coach Steve Alford and his mentor, Indiana coach Bob Knight, wasn't felt between the loyal fans of Indiana and their "favorite son."

"He's a terrific ballplayer. He will get a warm ovation," said retired school teacher Wayne Girdley before the game. He and his wife Joyce have been attending Hoosier games for over 30 years and vividly remember Alford's efforts towards Indiana's 1987 NCAA championship.

As fans peered towards the tunnel, waiting for Alford's entrance, the atmosphere that surrounds Hoosier basketball continued to grow.

Finally, Alford appeared, grinning, to a standing ovation echoing in the background. Hoosier fans appreciate what Alford means to Indiana basketball, but the loudest cheers were reserved for Knight.

Alford and Knight weren't the only two members from the 1987 championship team present at the game. Todd Meyer, a teammate and close friend of Alford's, is used to cheers and screams filling Assembly Hall but felt this game was a special occasion.

"It's a good story anytime anyone with Steve's success comes to his home floor," he said, showing his championship ring. "Steve has all my support. It was tough to decide who to root for when you are wearing one of these. You like Iowa when Indiana isn't playing them."

The game brought out man and woman, young and old. Many heard the pre-game hype that recreated memories of Alford at Indiana. Bloomington, Ind., native and Indiana accounting professor Rick Schrimper holds season tickets. He came to the game early to take in the atmosphere.

"Indiana won the title the year I was engaged to my wife," Schrimper said. "Steve was my favorite player. He understands Indiana basketball and the mys-

Police say Phills racing over 100 mph before crash

■ Teammate David Wesley may face criminal charges in the wreck that killed the Hornets guard.

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Charlotte Hornets teammates Bobby Phills and David Wesley were racing at more than 100 mph when Phills lost control of his Porsche and was killed, police said.

Phills, traveling 107 mph, was behind Wesley, at 110 mph, when his car spun and crossed into oncoming traffic and collided with an Oldsmobile on Jan. 12, according to a new police report Monday.

Police originally estimated the players were racing at more than 75 mph in the 45 mph zone. The latest report says Phills and Wesley were driving in an "erratic, reckless, careless, negligent or aggressive manner," and the men were "involved in a speed competition" before the collision.

The speeds are estimates calculated using the length of tire marks, the amount of damage to the cars and other factors measured by investigators, police said.

The report is just one element of an investigation that will be presented to the district attorney's office late this week or early next week.

David Wesley, teammate and close friend of Charlotte Hornets guard Bobby Phills, speaks about his friend during Phills' funeral Sunday.

Prosecutors will decide what charges, if any, to file.

Wesley, driving with a suspended license at the time of his teammate's wreck, has declined comment.

Playing their first home game since the death of their co-captain, the Hornets defeated the Toronto Raptors 115-94 Monday night.

Before the report was completed, the driver of the Oldsmobile, Rob Woolard, spoke publicly for the first time about the wreck near Charlotte Coliseum.

He said it is not important to him if Wesley is criminally charged. "He (Wesley) didn't know that was going to happen," Woolard said.

Woolard is on crutches, and much of his body is bruised. He injured both knees and one might need surgery and physical therapy.

The Charlotte Hornets announced makeup dates Tuesday for the two home games postponed following the death of team co-captain Bobby Phills.

A contest against Chicago originally set for Jan. 12 will be played March 5 at 7:05 p.m. The Jan. 14 game against New York will be made up Feb. 7 at 7:40 p.m.

Ticket-holders to the postponed games can use them for the identical seats at the makeup games. They also can exchange them for tickets to another game or turn them in for refunds.

Wolf liked what he saw in Pack's new man

■ New Green Bay coach Mike Sherman reminds Packer GM Ron Wolf of Mike Holmgren.

By Greg Beacham
Associated Press

GREEN BAY, Wis. — It took Mike Sherman less than five hours to convince Ron Wolf to once again risk the Green Bay Packers' future on an untested coach.

Wolf, the Packers' general manager, hired Sherman as the 13th coach in the team's 81-year history on Monday. Sherman replaces Ray Rhodes, who was abruptly fired two weeks ago after one 8-8 season.

Sherman, a long-time college assistant with just three years of NFL experience, spoke with Wolf for 4 1/2 hours in Wolf's office at Lambeau Field on Saturday. By Sunday morning, Wolf had made up his mind.

"When I talked to Mike Sher-

man, I knew that for all intents and purposes, the search was over," Wolf said. "I went home and thought about it that night. I told my wife that if I really and truly had any guts, I would go sign Mike Sherman right on the spot."

Sherman wasn't the first to be interviewed, but quickly made the best impression, Wolf said. In fact, their chat reminded Wolf of a similarly enlightening conversation eight years ago with Mike Holmgren, who took the Packers to two Super Bowls in his first head coaching job.

"When he (Sherman) was sitting there, he just blew my socks off," Wolf said.

Sherman was the Packers' tight ends coach for two seasons before following Holmgren to Seattle, where he was offensive coordinator this season. Green Bay was his first NFL stop after 16 seasons as a college assistant, most recently as offensive line coach at Texas A&M and UCLA.

"I realize that this is a huge responsibility and undertaking on my part, but I look forward to continuing the legacy that has been created here," Sherman said. "Many teams in the NFL don't have an identity. We do. I think last year, somehow, we just forgot that a little bit."

'Woody' making Jets fans happy

■ Robert Wood Johnson IV has made big promises in his first week as the Jets owner.

By Hal Bock
Associated Press

NEW YORK — New owner Robert Wood Johnson IV promises his New York Jets will have a coach in place by the end of the week, and eventually a new stadium to call home as well.

After being unanimously approved for membership in the fraternity of NFL owners on Tuesday, Johnson set his priorities for the team. First, he said, was the matter of a coach.

Bill Parcells resigned after three years on the job Jan. 3, turning the team over to defensive coordinator Bill Belichick. A day later, Belichick bailed out, reportedly influenced by better opportunities elsewhere. That threw the Jets' sideline situation into turmoil.

There has been speculation that Parcells might return and Johnson said he'd have that issue resolved by the end of the week.

"I've met with or talked with Bill Parcells every day," he said. "We had a long meeting on Wednesday and again on Friday. He's a very unusual man who brought a life to this team not seen since the Namath era. We have had discussions and talked about what he wants to do. Those discussions are continuing."

Not for long, though. Johnson promised he would not allow the issue to linger.

"We're looking at his role," he said of Parcells. "I think he'd be a great coach. We hope he'll play a large role. No decision has been made. We'll have one by the end of the week. I guarantee we will know by the end of the week."

If Parcells decides to remain retired, Johnson said he would not limit his search for a coach to the Jets' current staff of assistants, which no longer includes Belichick, who had been the heir apparent. Linebackers coach Al Groh has been mentioned as the main candidate within the organization.

"I think with any good leader selection, you do have to look at all the opportunities," he said. "So we will be very careful to assess what is best for the team and our objective trying to create this thing. We will look inside and outside, address everything."

Johnson said that in their meetings so far he had been unable to get a read on whether Parcells might be persuaded to return.

"If he doesn't want you to know, you don't know," the owner said. "But we have decided by the end of the week we are going to resolve this decision."

Asked about reports that he had offered Parcells $5 million to return for one more year, Johnson smiled thinly and said, "I don't remember making such an offer."

One matter already settled is the status of Steve Gutman, who has agreed to remain as president of the team. Gutman handled much of the day-to-day operation of the franchise for owner Leon Hess, who died last May. "He knows more NFL than anybody," Johnson said.

Then, there's the stadium. Hess moved the Jets out of Shea Stadium in 1984 and since then they have shared Giants Stadium in East Rutherford, N.J. Their lease at the Meadowlands lasts through 2008.

"Eight years from now, they will play somewhere else," Johnson said. "The Jets have never had their own stadium. Every game they've played for the last 39 years has been an away game. They have never had the home field advantage."

Tyson, Lewis exploring a fight

■ Mike Tyson, in England to fight Julius Francis, says he'd like to take on Lennox Lewis.

By Robert Millward
Associated Press

LONDON — Mike Tyson is in England to fight British champion Julius Francis, but there is talk of Tyson fighting another British heavyweight — undisputed champion Lennox Lewis.

Shelly Finkel, Tyson's boxing adviser, and Seth Abraham, president and CEO of Time Warner Sports, discussed the possibility of a Lewis-Tyson match during the Concorde flight bringing Tyson to England on Sunday.

"There are a lot of problems to overcome, but I believe Lennox against Tyson is a definite possibility," Abraham said Tuesday. "If Lennox continues to win, and if Tyson continues to win, they will fight. It is only a question of when. It would be the biggest payday of Lennox's career. It would be his pension money."

The Times of London said the fight could happen as early as September, possibly in London. But Abraham said December or the spring of 2001 was more likely.

One stumbling block is that Lewis is under contract with HBO, a Time Warner company, while Tyson has a deal with rival network Showtime.

Abraham said Tyson, who is to fight Francis in Manchester on Jan. 29, still has something to prove after two losses to Evander Holyfield and a one-round no-contest against Orlin Norris in November in his last four fights.

"Tyson is a big draw," Abraham said. "He still has to show championship caliber. We'll have to see how he does in his next couple of fights."

"I'm more than ready for Julius Francis on Jan. 29 and I'll soon be ready to knock out Lennox Lewis and regain my world heavyweight championship," Tyson said.

Abraham said Lewis has certain mandatory defenses to get past, but "if all goes well, we will find a way to make the fight. I want to see Lennox get the biggest payday of his career because he has been with us for 11 years."

Lewis makes his next defense against Michael Grant in New York on April 29. Talks are in progress for a possible defense of the IBF title against David Tuna in London on July 15.

Serena Williams escapes down under

■ Unheralded Amanda Grahame took Williams to the limit Monday.

By Phil Brown
Associated Press

MELBOURNE, Australia — U.S. Open champion Serena Williams fumbled through mistiming, wild shooting and foot faults before surviving her Australian Open first-round match 6-4, 4-6, 6-4 against 261st-ranked Amanda Grahame today.

The third seed needed two hours to beat the Australian wild-card entry, playing in her first Grand Slam tournament and enjoying thundering support from a home crowd of nearly 14,000.

"It was just out of control," said Williams, who committed 55 unforced errors — 23 in the second set — in her first match in three months.

The match was interrupted for 35 minutes by rain, in the midst of a seven-deuce game as Grahame scored her second break of the second set to take a 4-1 lead. Play resumed after the stadium roof was closed.

Williams was called for eight foot faults, and sometimes punctuated her mistimed shots with "Oh, oh!"

The 20-year-old Grahame attacked Williams with a strong left-handed serve, mixed up her pace and kept her nerve even when Williams broke for a 4-2 lead in the final set.

Grahame immediately broke back on four errors by the 18-year-old Williams, and in the final game saved two match points before bowing out with two errors.

Grahame said that at 4-4 in third, she thought she had a chance.

"It is just an incredible experience playing on center court and against Serena Williams, and I should get a lot of confidence out of that," she said.

Canadian officials give NHL teams a boost

■ The Canadian government announced a plan to assist its six National Hockey League teams Tuesday.

OTTAWA (AP) — The Canadian government is bailing out its six NHL teams to protect what it regards as the country's national heritage.

No dollar figure was put on Tuesday's federal aid package, which runs to 2004 when the collective bargaining agreement between the NHL and its players expires.

The federal money, designed to keep the teams competitive and prevent them from moving to the United States, is contingent upon contributions from the league, city and province in which the team plays.

"The federal government's willingness to participate in a shared solution for Canadian NHL teams is not about giving money to rich hockey players and team owners," Industry Minister John Manley said.

"It's about helping these teams get through a difficult period so they will be in a position to emerge from their current financial problems as sustainable Canadian NHL franchises."

Manley acknowledged the plan has its critics, but said many Canadians feel passionately about the game.

"In our hearts, really, I feel that hockey is really part of Canada," Manley said.

The decision immediately benefits the Ottawa Senators, who already received such assistance. Senators owner Rod Bryden, a former president of the Liberal party of Canada, led the campaign for federal assistance to NHL teams.

The federal contribution is not to exceed 25 percent of the total of any aid package involving the league, the city and the province involved. It will be reviewed annually and is to be repaid to Ottawa if the team moves.

Manley admitted the British Columbia and Quebec governments have shown little inclination so far to help the Vancouver Canucks and Montreal Canadiens.

The NHL already provides some compensation to Canadian clubs hurt by the low value of the Canadian dollar. Teams get most of their revenues in Canadian dollars and pay most expenses — notably player salaries — in U.S. dollars.

Tom Hanson/Associated Press
Ottawa Senators owner Rod Bryden speaks during an on-air television interview Tuesday at the Corel Centre in Kanata, Ontario, home of the Senators.

Penguins' Brooks sits for one more game

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Pittsburgh Penguins coach Herb Brooks was suspended Tuesday by the NHL for an additional game for shoving and verbally attacking a Colorado Avalanche announcer who suggested a Penguins player embellishes injuries.

Brooks, who returned to the NHL as a coach last month, was given the extra game's suspension during a disciplinary hearing in New York. Brooks was suspended for Saturday's 4-2 loss to Nashville and also will miss Wednesday's game against St. Louis.

Brooks, best known for coaching the 1980 "Miracle on Ice" U.S. Olympic hockey team, became angry after confronting Avalanche announcer John Kelly in a hallway following Pittsburgh's 4-3 loss Thursday in Denver.

Shortly after Pittsburgh forward Matthew Barnaby suffered a concussion while being cross-checked in the back of the neck by Colorado's Alexei Gusarov, Kelly suggested that Barnaby is known for exaggerating injuries. Brooks was told of the remark, and began yelling at Kelly when he spotted him after the game.

Brooks initially cursed at Kelly as he questioned him about the call, then shoved the announcer and said, "I'll kick your butt all over the place, all right?" before an NHL security officer separated them.

"Was that your call?" "Was that your call?" Brooks yelled repeatedly at Kelly.

Casey Martin has game to go with cart

■ With his motorized cart, Casey Martin is proving that he is a legit PGA Tour player.

By Doug Ferguson
Associated Press

BERMUDA DUNES, Calif. — The cart carries Casey Martin only so far.

A milestone on the PGA Tour takes place Wednesday in the Bob Hope Classic when the guy in the cart — a label Martin assigned himself when he tied for 23rd in the 1998 U.S. Open — makes his debut as a card-carrying, cart-riding member.

The emphasis will be on the cart — not the Rolls-Royce variety that Martin saw when he pulled into Bermuda Dunes Country Club to register, but a standard issue that he earned only after taking the PGA Tour to court two years ago.

Where the emphasis should be is on the cart.

One has to look beyond the tire tracks, beyond the limp brought on by a circulatory disease in his right leg, to understand this: While Casey has a cart, he also has a game.

It was good enough to win on the Nike Tour in 1998, right before a federal court in Oregon ruled in his favor. It was good enough to qualify for the U.S. Open, and then perform better that week than Ernie Els and Justin Leonard.

It was good enough to finish 14th on the Nike Tour money list and earn full playing privileges on the PGA Tour, perhaps the toughest roster to make in sports.

"I'm out here playing. I'm chasing my dream," Martin said Tuesday.

No other PGA rookie has received so much attention since Tiger Woods, only Woods' fame came from winning three straight U.S. Amateur titles and from that prediction by Jack Nicklaus that he was good enough to win 10 green jackets.

Martin is prepared for the media blitz at every tournament, and figures it will stay with him for the better part of the year. His cart was big news at the U.S. Open, and also when he took sponsors' exemptions to play the Greater Hartford Open and the Quad City Classic.

"That doesn't bother me," he said. "I'm sure it might if I've been at it for 10 years and won a lot of tournaments."

That may be asking too much.

No one should question whether Martin is capable of winning. The relative skill level on the Nike Tour is much higher than it is in the CBA or Arena Football League, and he has shown that special knack for raising his game when the world is watching.

Martin has not played a competitive round since the Nike Tour Championship, and cold weather at home in Eugene, Ore., has kept him from practicing as much as he would like. He is rusty and is not sure what to expect this week. But he is no different than any other player in that he wants to win.

"I don't know if I will, or when or how, but I do think I have the ability to do it," he said. "I've seen people who have won that I can play with. If they can do, so can I."

It is doubtful, however, his career will last 10 years.

Martin suffers from Klippel-Trenaunay-Weber Syndrome, which restricts circulation in the lower portion of his right leg and makes it virtually impossible for him to walk 18 holes a day over four rounds. More than one doctor has warned that amputation is likely.

"The clock is ticking," said Dr. Brian McDonagh, a vein specialist in Chicago who treated Martin three times last year. "You might say it's a bit of a time bomb."

The pain has been around as long as Martin can remember. King Martin, his father, recalls the days when Casey would have to stop playing for a month at a time while he wore a splint or had his right leg packed in ice to help reduce the swelling.

Woods, a teammate at Stanford, used to room with Martin on the road.

"I saw how much pain he played with," Woods said. "When he'd come home ... he would never say it, but you could just see him walking around. Just getting up to go to the bathroom, sometimes he didn't want go because it hurt so bad. That's tough to swallow, just watching that."

being second best. But we still won the game."

Indiana had an opportunity to put Iowa away with 1:30 remaining, leading 73-67. However, Lynn Washington missed a lay-up, and Iowa capitalized—with help from Dean Oliver. The junior made a crucial three-pointer with 45 seconds remaining in the game to pull Iowa within two points.

The Hawkeyes would get two more opportunities on their end of the court. Kyle Galloway shot a three-pointer to take the lead with three seconds remaining in the game, but the shot was a shade long and bounced off the rim.

Indiana scored on a free throw by Washington with two seconds remaining. Rob Griffin then received a nearly open look for a three-pointer at the buzzer, but it would not fall.

Oliver led the Hawkeyes in scoring with 24 points, five assists, three steals and two turnovers. Griffin finished with 18 points and 15 rebounds.

The Hoosiers were led by Kirk Haston, who carried the team in the second half and finished with 25 points. A.J. Guyton picked up the scoring load for the final five minutes and finished with 20 points.

"No one dislikes losing more than me," said Alford, following Iowa's third-consecutive road loss. "But I am seeing improvement in these guys. We got two good looks at the end and they just didn't drop."

The issues between the coaches that created such a pregame stir did not seem to go away after their meeting, either. Knight agreed with a question posed to him that the highly publicized game was "much ado about nothing."

However, following the postgame questions, Knight shouted across the press room from the exit. He wanted to settle the score about the hype made following the Big Ten media day that was held in Chicago in October.

"One more thing I'm tired of, is when I went to the goddamn Big Ten media day, I spoke to a total of three coaches," Knight said. "There were six other coaches there that I didn't get a chance to talk to. I'm tired of the bullshit that's been made of not speaking to one of those guys."

He left the room, but returned shortly after. "Alford was sitting next to me, too," Knight said. "Why didn't he come talk to me if it was such a goddamn offense. That kind of bullshit wears on me."

Knight and Alford will not meet on the court until next season in Iowa City.

tique here, not just in Assembly Hall but in the state. I'm happy to see him doing so well, but I was definitely rooting for Indiana."

Three Wabash, Ind., high school seniors, Britt Snyder, Justin Ridgeway and Zac Ayala, skipped school to come down to the game. Ayala and Ridgeway were rooting for the red and white, but Snyder is an Iowa boy all the way, one of the few in the crowd.

"My mom's from Forest City, Iowa. The Hawks have been my favorite team since I was a kid. I was glad to see they got Alford," Snyder said.

Following Knight's lead, Doug Schrock, Knight's fishing buddy brought a different perspective on the game and felt that it was hyped too much and that the miscommunication between Knight and Alford will be resolved in a matter of time.

"Alford is just a first year coach in the Big Ten to Knight. Indiana loves Bob Knight," said Schrock.

Several players who love Alford traveled to see their former coach's homecoming. Players from Southwest Missouri State and Manchester were in attendance. Former Manchester player Chanse Young was recruited by Alford and played one year under him.

"Coach Alford is a very nice person. He's very competitive and intense as a coach," said Young. "I was disappointed for myself to see him leave, but I'm excited for him. I'm a big fan of Alford so I was neutral."

Alford and Knight tried to direct the attention away from the pre-game hype and towards the game between the lines, but the fans have made room in their hearts for both Knight and Alford. One is the general of the Hoosier army and the other was a man on the frontlines. Both will always a part of Hoosier history in their eyes.

No. 16 Tennessee 81, No. 9 Florida 79 20T

GAINESVILLE, Fla. (AP) — C.J. Black hit the go-ahead free throw with 1:04 left in the second overtime and No. 16 Tennessee beat No. 9 Florida 81-79 Tuesday night.

It was a school-record sixth straight Southeastern Conference road victory for the Volunteers (16-2 overall, 4-1 SEC). The game was tied at 79-79 after Tennessee's Jon Higgins and Florida's Brent Wright traded 3-pointers.

After Black's free throw, Jon Higgins added a free throw with 23.8 seconds left. Florida (13-3, 2-2), needing only a basket to tie, had its last chance fizzle when Brett Nelson missed a 3-pointer under pressure.

Isiah Victor hit two free throws and Vincent Yarbrough connected on a 3-pointer as Tennessee grabbed a 76-72 lead in the second overtime. Florida responded with two free throws by Matt Bonner and a jumper by Teddy Dupuy with 2:50 left.

Tennessee took a 71-70 lead in the first overtime period after Vincent Yarbrough hit two free throws. Donnell Harvey, who opened the overtime with a dunk and added two free throws, hit one of two from the foul line to tie the game 71-71 with 30 seconds remaining.

Victor forced overtime with a baseline turnaround jumper with three-tenths of second left that made it 66-66.

Desire and passion in the Big Easy

The Iowa City Community Theatre rages forward with its production of A Streetcar Named Desire.

By T.J. Besler
 The Daily Iowan

The Iowa City Community Theatre will continue its run of Tennessee Williams' play A Streetcar Named Desire Thursday night at 8.

Streetcar, considered by many people to be Williams' best, is a Pulitzer Prize-winning work that explores some of life's deepest passions through a fascinating character study.

Blanche DuBois, tormented by the memories of her tragic and scandalous past, seeks refuge with her sister, Stella, in New Orleans. But her crudely sensual brother-in-law, Stanley, resents her presence in his home, and in a violent and passionate rage, Stella's past is exposed.

Susan Hamel, director of the play, said it is one of those plays that either "you love or you hate" but that so far the reaction has been very positive.

"The reception by the audiences has been overwhelmingly positive," she said. "In fact, the first night we nearly sold out, and the second night was another great crowd. So far, people seem to be really enjoying it."

Hamel also said the reason the theater chose this particular play was because it is a classic that fits right into the thematic season.

"We are celebrating a century of great world playwrights, so Streetcar, being a classic, was one that we really wanted to do," she said.

Even though it is wonderful to be able to perform a script of this caliber, and one that audiences seem to enjoy, there are certain challenges that come with attacking this type of play, Hamel said.

"The biggest, most obvious challenge is that everyone thinks they know the show," she said. "But the show is so complex that in order to do the play justice, you have to really get into the heads of the characters, because all the characters are extremely complex. We want to make that complexity apparent."

Those who decide to attend the show won't be disappointed, Hamel said.

"We spent a lot of time just getting to the heart of the characters and inside their heads, what are they thinking, and I think it came out well," she said. "I was blessed with a cast beyond what you usually face within community theater in terms of their professionalism. They spent a lot of time working outside of rehearsals, so that when they came to rehearsals they were really there, and I think that shows in the final product."

Tickets for Streetcar are available by calling the Theater Box Office, (319) 338-0443. Tickets are $11 for adults and $10 for senior citizens/students, with a $1 discount on any matinee.

Additional performances will be held Friday and Saturday and on Jan. 28 and 29 at 8 p.m., and on Jan. 30 at 2:30 p.m.

ARTS BRIEFS

Tempestuously Prospero-ing Redgrave

LONDON (AP) — Vanessa Redgrave will take on one of her most intriguing roles yet — playing the decidedly male magician-ruler Prospero in The Tempest at Shakespeare's Globe Theatre this summer.

"I do want to find things for great actors, and Vanessa's a great actor, male or female," Mark Rylance, artistic director of the Globe, said Tuesday in announcing the restored Elizabethan playhouse's summer lineup.

Redgrave, 62, on "vocal rest" because of a virus, was unable to comment.

Plugging Elian Gonzalez

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Even during a night of celebration, Gloria Estefan and Andy Garcia couldn't put the plight of 6-year-old Elian Gonzalez, caught in a tug-of-war between the United States and their native Cuba, out of their minds.

"All I do is pray for that boy and his family," Estefan said Monday night backstage at the American Music Awards, where she received an Award of Merit. "Every time I see his little face I feel he's in a tough spot ... I don't think anybody wins in this issue."
