UI could feel pinched by Vilsack plan

■ UISG leaders will meet with legislators today in Des Moines to plea for more UI funding.

By Heather Pavnica
The Daily Iowan

Gov. Tom Vilsack's funding recommendation for the 2001 fiscal year may force the UI to use tuition — including the 4.3 percent statewide increase projected to be used for improvement projects — to budget for its regular expenses, according to UI officials.

The proposal recommends no increase in state funding for the UI, except for $237,000 for opening new buildings and $1.7 million for public-health initiatives, said Doug

True, UI vice president for finance. "You first have to make sure you pay your bills," he said. "(Vilsack's) decision can have a profound effect on the UI."

Vilsack's recommendations stem from miscalculations in December 1998 by the Revenue Estimating Conference, which projected a 1.8 percent increase in state revenues for the 1999 fiscal year, said Cynthia Eisenhower, the director of the Iowa Department of Management.

The revenues only grew 1 percent, which resulted in a $40 million shortfall in revenues, she said.

Eisenhower said the shortfall caused cutbacks in all programs across the state. Vilsack is not recommending increased funding for any new projects, including university projects.

Last fall, the state of Iowa Board of Regents approved UI President Mary Sue Coleman's proposal for an additional 2.6 percent increase in student fees at the UI, which would generate $3.8 million for new projects.

Coleman said the $1.9 million generated from the first collected portion of student activities fees — which would go toward increased library hours, upgraded library furniture, new instructional equipment, a better writing program and a $600,000 increase in financial aid — would not be affected by Vilsack's recommendations.

"We had a deal with the students, and we have to keep that deal no matter what," she said. "My highest priority will be the library."

YOU CAN DANCE FOR INSPIRATION

Dancing the night (& day & night) away

■ Dance Marathon raises $357,004, putting the event's six-year total at more than $1 million.

By Kate Thayer
The Daily Iowan

After almost 30 consecutive hours on her feet dancing, UI senior Megan Clinton still had high energy when, toward the end of Dance Marathon 2000, she was announced as the winner of the "Most Spirited Senior" award.

When her name was called, Clinton accepted the award with the positive attitude she had maintained throughout the event, while cheers erupted from the crowd.

The Dance Marathon, which raised $357,004, brought the six-year event's overall total to more than $1 million for the families of children with cancer.

It was the fourth and final Dance Marathon for Clinton.

"Dance Marathon is the biggest party of the year," she said. "It is great how everyone pulls together to help the families."

Earlier in the event, after six hours of dancing in the IMU Main Ballroom, Clinton was asked if she had begun to feel tired.

"Tired? That's not what Dance Marathon is about," she said. "My advice to any dancer is to always keep moving, and if you feel yourself getting tired, go dance with one of the kids."

UI freshman Jenny McClure was also one of the 644 UI students dancing from 5 p.m. on Feb. 4 until 11 p.m. on Feb. 5 for the 115 families.

"I am really pumped but a little nervous because I have never done this before," she said. "I think everyone here will keep me awake."

Hijacked Afghan jet sets down in London

■ After a long, tense journey across Asia and Europe, the airliner is isolated at Stansted Airport.

By Audrey Woods
Associated Press

LONDON — The Afghan passenger airliner forced by unidentified hijackers on a tense journey across Central Asia and Europe landed at London's Stansted airport early today. So far there have been no reported injuries.

The Boeing 727 taxied to a secluded spot on a runway approximately half-mile from the main terminal. Police and emergency vehicles assembled nearby.

"The police will be trying to make some sort of contact with the hijackers and begin negotiations to establish what they want," said a spokeswoman for Britain's Home Office. "At this stage, we are not aware of any demands or requests from those on board the aircraft."

The Ariana Airlines plane was seized shortly after take off, about 11:30 a.m. CST Sunday, while on a domestic flight from the Afghan capital, Kabul, to the northern city of Mazar-e-Sharif. The plane made stops in Uzbekistan, Kazakhstan and Russia before arriving in London just after 2 a.m. (8 p.m. CST Sunday).

Stansted has been used previously as a base for resolving hijackings, partly because the layout of the airport makes it easy to isolate planes.

The hijackers released nine passengers in Moscow; they made no political demands, Russian security service spokesman Alexander Zdanovich told reporters at Sheremetyevo-1 airport. He said the hijackers had asked only for food, for the plane's toilets to be cleaned and for refueling.

None of the people aboard the jet had been harmed, Zdanovich said, although it remained unclear how many people were aboard. Russian news reports said there were 131 passengers and nine crew before the release in Moscow, but other sources said there were as many as 160 aboard.

The passengers included 20 women and 23 or 24 children, said

No surprise — Hillary says she's running for Senate

■ "Hillary," as her supporters call her, becomes the first first lady to run for office.

By Marc Humbert
Associated Press

PURCHASE, N.Y. — Becoming the first president's wife to run for office, Hillary Rodham Clinton officially launched her Senate campaign Sunday from the state she has called home for only a month, declaring, "I may be new to your neighborhood, but I'm not new to your concerns."

The race for the seat being vacated by fellow Democrat Daniel Patrick Moynihan is likely to pit Rodham Clinton against Republican New York Mayor Rudolph Giuliani in what could be one of the most combative political campaigns in memory.

"I am honored today to announce my candidacy for the U.S. Senate from New York," Rodham Clinton said, as shouts of "Hillary! Hillary!" rang through a university gymnasium not far from her new home in the suburbs north of New York City.

Behind her, President Clinton, her mother, Dorothy Rodham, and daughter Chelsea sat beaming as nearly 2,000 supporters cheered.

No other first lady has ever run for public office; in doing so, Rodham Clinton steps out of the long and scandal-scattered shadow of her husband. The president is said to be one of her top advisers as she resumes the career she put aside to help him capture the White House.

Recalling a speech she made at her college commencement at Wellesley in 1969, Rodham Clinton said: "I often return to one thing I said back then, that politics is the art of making possible what appears to be impossible. I still believe that today. We can do what seems impossible if we have the vision, the passion and the will to do it together."

Over and over again during her

Police break up Mexico's nine-month student strike

■ After a 9½-month occupation, a police raid ends the strike peacefully.

By Niko Price

MEXICO CITY — In a surprisingly smooth conclusion to the 9½-month occupation of Latin America's largest university, police raided the main campus Sunday and arrested 632 striking students.

The raid ended an exasperating ordeal in which Mexican authorities from President Ernesto Zedillo on down seemed unable to wrest the country's most important academic institution from a tiny band of radical students with names such as Mosh and the Devil.

Armed with batons and shields, approximately 2,400 federal police marched into an all-night meeting of the student strike council at 6:45 a.m. and rounded up approximately 430 students, including the eight top strike leaders.

The strikers didn't resist arrest, and there were no injuries. Police then swept through the giant campus, detaining hundreds more strikers.

Chinese say ni hao to Year of the Dragon

■ The Chinese new year promises luck, prosperity and power.

By Jeremy Shapiro
The Daily Iowan

Ring in the Year of the Dragon was the focus of hundreds of UI students and Iowa City residents who gathered at the IMU Main Ballroom Sunday night.

The Friendship Association of Chinese Students & Scholars scheduled the Chinese New Year celebration, which coincides with the Chinese Spring Festival, to bring the Chinese community together.

"It's a chance to get family and friends together to celebrate one of the biggest holidays of the year," said Iowa City resident Dick Pei, who has attended the event for 10 years.

UI graduate student Mingyi Liu, who serves on the friendship association, said this year is special because it is the Year of the Dragon, the most powerful creature in Chinese mythology.

"The dragon represents good — not evil," he said.

Because the dragon symbolizes power, authority and prosperity, Pei explained, it's a great honor for a family to have a child born in this coming year.

"Dragons are really special. People born in this year are special, like princes and princesses," Iowa City resident Lin Wang said.

The evening began with a feast of various fruits and Chinese dishes, including the traditional New Year dumplings. Most of the food was provided by local Chinese restaurants.

"The food is delicious, and I'm

CITY BRIEF

Judge accepts Loftin's plea agreement

Former UI football player Ryan Loftin escaped possible felony charges on Feb. 4, when a Johnson County District judge accepted a plea agreement to charges of criminal trespass.

The plea agreement stipulates that under two years' probation, Loftin must complete 120 hours of community service and pay $310 to the UI Department of Public Safety for costs of the investigation.

"I plan to complete my community service hours at the Heart Connection camp this summer," Loftin said. "It's a children's cancer camp in Des Moines that I volunteered at last summer."

Court records state that Loftin received a lesser charge in the plea agreement due to his age, the nature of the offense, the fact that restitution was made and the lack of prior criminal history.

Originally, Loftin was charged with extortion and fifth-degree theft on Aug. 18, 1999, after Iowa football Coach Kirk Ferentz received a threatening letter and playbooks were stolen from his office. These charges were later reduced to criminal trespass, a simple misdemeanor.

"The goal throughout this case has been to find the most appropriate disposition of every aspect," Johnson County Attorney J. Patrick White said at the plea agreement in January. "In light of the facts of this case and the absence of any prior crime record on Loftin, it wasn't necessary to pursue any further convictions."

Loftin, represented by attorney Leon Spies, was granted deferred judgment, meaning that the charges will be dropped from his records if all requirements of probation are successfully met.

Councilor leery of Senior Center skywalk cost

■ There is a better use for the $358,000 needed for the skywalk, Steve Kanner says.

By Sky Eilers
The Daily Iowan

A proposed skywalk that would connect a new multi-use parking facility and the Senior Center, 28 S. Linn St., has some Iowa City city councilors questioning its cost efficiency.

The estimated $358,000 needed to construct the skywalk and an enclosed elevator could be put to better use, said Councilor Steve Kanner.

"I'm sympathetic to the folks who use the Senior Center, but I think the dangers of having to walk outside have been exaggerated," he said.

The first floor of the new parking facility, to be named Tower Place, will include parking for residents of Ecumenical Towers, 320 E. Washington St., and the relocation of the Cottage Bakery, 127 Iowa Ave., said Jay Honohan, the chairman of the Senior Center Commission. There will be private access for Ecumenical Towers residents from the south side of the building, he said.

The U.S. Department of Urban Housing and Development was negotiating with the city about the possibility of Ecumenical Towers and the Senior Center sharing access to the south exit of the parking facility, Honohan said. For security reasons, an agreement was made to limit access strictly to Ecumenical Towers residents, he said.

"Due to a lack of space and HUD's decision, our only choice is to have a skywalk or to have nothing," Honohan said.

The closest exit for the Senior Center is on Linn Street near the Cottage's old location, 14 S. Linn St., he said.

Honohan said the cost of the skywalk alone is between $120,000-$150,000 and that the elevator makes up the rest.

The floors of the parking facility don't line up with those of the Senior Center, but an elevator would make access to all the floors possible, Honohan said.

The Senior Center Commission has been raising funds to meet the estimated cost of the skywalk project. Its goal is to raise one-third of the cost through community fund raising and one-third through a grant from the Community Development Block Grant Board, and to have the balance made up by the City Council.

Finding the genome alphabet

■ A UI professor explains the significance of genome letters in disorder prevention.

By Rupa Shenoy
The Daily Iowan

Finding one letter in the human genome is like finding one person on the planet from outer space, UI Pediatrics Professor Jeffrey Murray told an audience of approximately 400 Sunday afternoon.

Yet, that is what he is doing. The genome letters that Murray looks for will help scientists of the near future prevent, diagnose and treat diseases. There are 3 billion letters in the human genome, and an error in just one can cause a disorder, he said.

"We share 99 percent of our genomes with each other, and the 1 percent that distinguishes us as individuals is also where to look for the cause of genetic diseases," Murray said.

Murray, who, since 1984, has also been a UI professor of biological sciences, pediatric dentistry and epidemiology, has worked with projects related to the Human Genome Project. He has identified the genetic cause of many disorders, including that of the cleft lip and palate.

"It's hard to pick up a newspaper or anything else these days without encountering a discussion of this topic," said UI President Mary Sue Coleman. "It was nice to have the topic so capably explained."

Murray promised that in the future, DNA diagnostic tests will become routine, genetic profiles will be cheap and easy to obtain, and gene therapy will be used to treat inherited disorders.

"I believe (advances in genetic technology) can happen, but it's scary because some things are done just because they can be done, and no thought is put into it," said UI freshman Jodi Gerdes.

Murray, however, remains optimistic. He said he believes some bad decisions will be made but that, overall, the world will be better off because of genetic technology.

Murray's speech, which took place in the Levitt Center, was part of the UI Presidential Lecture series.

CITY BRIEF

Hancher nears sales record

An ambitious schedule for Hancher Auditorium has propelled sales of more than $2 million at the halfway point of the performance season.

The sales are approaching "the record of slightly more than $2.5 million, set during the 1996-97 season. With such upcoming events as Les Misérables, Hancher officials are hopeful that the record will be broken, said Wallace Chappell, the director of Hancher.

Chappell attributes the large number of sales to the variety of entertainment available throughout the year.

"We set a balance between commercial acts and non-commercial acts, like dance and chamber music," he said. "We hope to present a very wide spectrum of what is going on in art today."

While sales are high, the costs of bringing national acts such as Cats and STOMP to Hancher have been expensive. Chappell was unable to speculate on the overall cost of events throughout the season.

"It has been an expensive year, so we are that much more grateful that we are doing well," he said.

Russia seizes Grozny, army claims

■ Thousands of rebels continue to head south to join up with other Chechens in the mountains.

By Lyoma Turpalov
Associated Press

GEKHI, Russia — Federal troops have seized the last rebel stronghold in Grozny, acting President Vladimir Putin said Sunday, pronouncing an end to Russia's months-long drive to take the Chechen capital.

Russian forces, meanwhile, tried to head off rebels who were heading south to their mountain strongholds, shelling villages in which rebels had taken shelter. Russian planes and helicopter gunships blasted militant positions in the Vedeno and Argun gorges, key rebel routes toward the mountains.

Putin said federal troops had taken control of the western Zavodskoi district of the capital and raised the Russian flag over an administration building there.

"A short while ago, the terrorists' last bastion of resistance was seized," Putin said in an interview with state-controlled ORT television. "So, we can say the operation to liberate Grozny is over."

The claim could not be independently confirmed, and Russian forces have previously claimed to control parts of the Chechen capital, only to be pushed back by rebel ambushes. It was unclear how many rebels remained in Grozny, where they have taken refuge in the shattered remains of buildings and moved freely through underground pipes. Approximately 3,000 broke out of the capital last week, rebels said, and the military reported that small groups were still putting up stiff resistance to Russian troops all week, including Sunday.

But Col. Gen. Ivan Golubev, a deputy interior minister, said the situation was stable enough to begin deploying regular police in the city. Several dozen officers have already arrived to prepare offices and patrol parts of the capital, he said.

Russian leaders have put a huge emphasis on the operation to take Grozny, the key political prize in the war in the breakaway republic. But the militants have stressed their intention to carry on a long-term guerrilla war, and the fall of their capital would not spell the end of the conflict.

Rebels who broke out of Grozny last week were regrouping in villages southwest of Grozny Sunday for the journey south to the mountains, where thousands of other militants are believed to be based.

Approximately 2,000 rebels arrived overnight in the villages of Valerik, Zakan-Yurt and Gekhi-Chu, 15-18 miles from Grozny, local residents said. They were met by other militants who came from the mountains to lead them back to rebel strongholds in the southern Argun and Vedeno gorges.

Recent events shake Republican establishment

Last week, two events transformed the Republican primaries into an actual race, rather than a simple process through which George W. Bush merely had to float. They also turned the Republican Party establishment on its head.

John McCain's commanding victory in the New Hampshire primary and a federal judge's order for McCain to be placed on the ballot throughout New York bolster the senator's campaign in significant ways. These events not only illustrate the importance of some of McCain's platform issues but reinforce the view many hold of Bush as an establishment figure, detached from voters and unaware of what it will take to win in November. Now the only question that remains is, Will the rest of the voting population tune out the endless TV sound bites and instead pay attention to the truths that resonate from last week's developments?

McCain's victory shows the voters are listening. More importantly, they show Bush's camp is not. So far, Bush's main strategies are touting massive tax cuts and parading prominent members of the supportive Republican establishment. However, polls have shown that tax cuts are not high on many voters' lists of priorities; this was demonstrated by the hesitancy with which Bush's extravagant proposal was met in New Hampshire — a state that generally welcomes tax cuts with open arms.

Contrary to what many outside of his camp have suggested that he do, Bush continues to flaunt well-known Republican supporters. But this seems to do less for his campaign than it does for McCain's plausible assertion that his opponent is the product of a political establishment intent on giving the nomination to its golden boy. Indeed, Bush once compared himself to a cork in a stream, someone whose political career has been carried and propelled by forces larger than he himself.

The establishment's New York stunts only further enhance this vision. By ruling two "bizarre" primary requirements unconstitutional, a federal judge strengthened two weapons in McCain's arsenal. First, as Bush had in the past voiced his support for the restrictive requirements, the ruling adds a bit of tangible support to McCain's aforementioned claim. More importantly, it demonstrates the extent to which money has taken a hold of politics.

The senator spent nearly $200,000 to get on the ballot in only 19 of 31 New York districts; Steve Forbes spent nearly $700,000 to qualify. The necessity of such exorbitant amounts to simply qualify in only one state's primary confirms how exclusive money has made the political system. With a substantially smaller war chest than Bush, McCain can now argue that money warped the playing field and can play up campaign-finance reform as the way to start leveling it out again.

Last week's events in no way guarantee that the Republican campaign will still be a race five weeks from now (McCain simply may not have enough money to keep up). But they should validate for voters across the nation issues the establishment doesn't want them to think about. From now on, it is up to primary voters to open their eyes to the significance of last week's events and decide what will determine their vote: truth or money.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

The story behind McCain win

I don't find it surprising at all that John McCain beat George W. Bush in New Hampshire by almost 20 points. What does surprise me is that the news media haven't figured out why. I think it's rather obvious. It's the cocaine issue, and cocaine makes Republicans nervous.

By refusing to answer the cocaine question, a lot of people are left to wonder about Bush's involvement with cocaine in the past. Republicans have positioned themselves as morally superior and as having a higher standard of behavior, and cocaine is clearly below that standard. What kind of message does it send to the narcotics terrorists if we have to wonder if the president of the United States is a user himself?

I think Republicans are interested in more than how much money you've raised and who your daddy is. I think that Republicans are afraid that if they run George W. Bush that they will lose the moral high ground to the clean, but boring, Al Gore. I think the Republicans in New Hampshire sent Bush a message that it's time for him to come forward about drugs before the Democrats come forward for him.

A natural, alternative birth control method

A friend told me she uses the new ovulation-prediction kits as birth control. Does that work?

It's not wise for several reasons. Ovulation-prediction kits are meant to cue women who want to become pregnant to their most fertile days. The kits work by detecting the relative level of luteinizing hormone in a woman's urine. Luteinizing hormone surges just prior to ovulation. Once the surge has been detected in the urine, a woman knows that she will most likely ovulate within 24-36 hours and can time intercourse accordingly.

Although the kits are theoretically about 99 percent effective in predicting ovulation, they are subject to error that decreases their effectiveness and makes them a poor choice for contraception. Also, although the kits predict the hormone surge, they don't tell you if or when ovulation actually occurs. There are a number of factors that can delay or interrupt ovulation, including fever, fatigue and stress.

One could use a kit, detect the surge, avoid intercourse for several days, and still ovulate later in the cycle, becoming pregnant if intercourse occurs. Sperm can live for up to 3 days in cervical fluid, making the span of unsafe days (i.e., days you could get pregnant) even longer than the ovulation-detection kit would indicate. In addition, this method provides no protection against sexually transmitted infections.

Student Health Service

If your friend is interested in using a natural method of birth control, and she is willing to use a method consistently and correctly, she would be better served by learning about the Fertility Awareness Method. This involves observing and charting the key signals of fertility: cervical fluid, basal body temperature and cervical position.

The combination of these factors gives a much more accurate picture of when ovulation is occurring and when to avoid intercourse. The method can be learned through workshops and is explained in detail in a number of books, including Taking Charge of Your Fertility, by Toni Weschler. According to Weschler, this method is best suited for women in committed relationships in which an unintended pregnancy would not be viewed as detrimental. With correct use, the Fertility Awareness Method can be more than 90 percent effective.

However, it takes time and effort to learn the method well, and it does not protect against sexually transmitted infections. The only contraceptive method that provides good disease protection is the condom. Your health-care provider can provide more information on contraceptive choices and the pros and cons of various methods.

'Consumer friendly' media not necessarily the best option for consumers

Once had a journalism professor tell me pleasing the customer is the most important role of a newspaper. At the risk of injuring my grade and receiving an evil gaze tomorrow, I am here to say that is wrong.

When I pick up a newspaper, I want to read news. And I want to know what the news means to me. I want to know what happened since yesterday's edition and maybe what to expect in tomorrow's. When I'm done reading, I want to feel smarter. I want to be better informed about the world I live in.

Thus, most people would probably call me naive. They may be right. They would say that newspapers are competing with TV, radio and the Internet for customers. They would try to persuade me that the only way the newspaper business can keep up with these faster and sexier media is by catering to the customer. What the prospective buyer wants the newspaper must give.

If this is the case, let me end my quasi-career as a newspaperman now. We all know by now that nearly all TV news sold out long ago. Dan Rather continues to put up a fight, but his effort is futile. Brokaw and Jennings are dominated by men upstairs, sitting behind big oak desks and paging through the ratings and accounting sheets.

Aside from public television, CNN may be the closest thing to real news on TV, and that in itself is a very scary thought. We must remember that it spent more than a year's worth of time, energy and money covering the O.J. Simpson trial, finally coming to the conclusion that the American legal system favors the wealthy. As if we didn't already know that.

Much of the same can be said for radio. Beyond NPR and the BBC, there is little substantive news on radio. But there is plenty of Britney Spears and classic rock. There are also plenty of talk shows, where so-called experts — on everything from sports to politics — ramble on usually without saying much at all.

As for the Internet — well, it's the Internet. You need a computer, a modem and an Internet service provider. And so to have such worldwide access (itself a lie, being that nearly all of the largest dot-coms are run out of the United States), you need quite substantial financial resources. You also need to know how to operate each of these. Or should I say let them operate you.

To top it all off, the Internet is becoming even more commercial than TV execs could ever dream of. Pop-up advertisements with minuscule close buttons are far superior to 30-second spots on TV. In the very least, they require some sort of interaction. Although the Internet provides considerable possibilities for civic use, they dwindle away daily as profit-driven companies, and not citizens, are directing the medium.

Therefore, so much of journalism — or the Fourth Estate, if I may be so daring — is largely left up to newspapers. Unlike TV, print has the time and space for worthy, in-depth pieces.

Unlike TV and radio, a paper has a physical existence, allowing for easy re-examination. And, unlike TV, radio and the Internet, newspapers have a budget that isn't exclusively reliant upon advertisers, giving them more editorial freedom.

Yet most newspapers, even most of the decent ones, are giving in to the info-tainment movement. They are trying to run more appealing stories, more appealing pictures and more appealing layouts. This would be fine, except they are doing so often at the expense of quality content. Newspaper staffs around the country are being slashed as publishers push to gain more profit. Newspapers are expected to entertain as much — if not more — as inform.

The New York Times' famous slogan is "All the News That's Fit to Print." As a print journalist, I want to make the decision of what's fit. If it's quality, I trust people will read it. If it's just entertainment, I don't want them to read it. They can watch TV for entertainment.

So I say to my professor and fellow newspaper workers, let us use this unique medium to our advantage. Let us raise our craft to a higher level intellectually, culturally and artistically — not lower those standards as the USA Today and the Iowa City Press Citizen have done. Let us think independently and critically, not hand over our pencils to those releasing booster press releases. Let us persuade readers to buy and read our paper because of quality content that we created — not created by reliance on market research.

If not, then I'm in the wrong profession. Or should I say business?

Masefield trio jazzes up that ol' mandolin

Vermont's Jazz Mandolin Project — you read it right — jazzes up the Union Bar tonight.

By Jeremy Erwin
The Daily Iowan

From a trio fronted by a mandolin player, you'd probably expect some peppy bluegrass music, maybe even some good ol' American folk. But not jazz — anything but jazz. Well, prepare to be amazed, cool cat, as mandolin extraordinaire Jamie Masefield's Jazz Mandolin Project rolls into the Union Bar tonight at 7 to smash those expectations to a pulp.

LIVE MUSIC
Jazz Mandolin Project

When: Tonight at 7
Where: Union Bar, 121 E. College St.
Admission: $13.50

Born in 1994, the Jazz Mandolin Project began as Masefield's idea to compile a small jazz ensemble of Vermont natives willing to perform for little profit. A trio was soon formed, and after paying dues in small coffeehouses, the group began weaving its way into the bustling Manhattan jazz circuit.

"It all started about five years ago, when I decided to book a gig at a coffeehouse in Burlington (Vermont)," said Masefield, who at the time had not yet put together the trio. "I spread the word to various jazz musicians that I knew, and we just moved from there."

Over the years, the project has become a constantly revolving pool of Vermont's finest jazz players that has included, among others, bassist Stacy Starkweather, fusion drummer Gabe Jarrett (son of jazz great Keith Jarrett) and Scott Neumann, a veteran drummer and active force on the New York jazz scene.

The band's current roster, a.k.a. the "Tour De Flux" lineup, includes the rhythm section of Phish's Jon Fishman on drums and upright bassist Chris Dahlgren. This constantly evolving lineup is what Masefield surprisingly deems the driving force behind the band, as the influx of new players leaves the floodgates of innovation wide open.

"In the jazz tradition, the face of a group is always changing, with the musicians often taking up side projects and forming new groups," he said. "The new musicians really add to the dynamic of the JMP because they're constantly bringing new ideas into the group."

Keeping with jazz tradition, the band's driving force is unquestionably its live improvisational ability. A firm believer in the live performance, Masefield's trio released the live compilation Tour De Flux last year and will follow suit this April with the live-in-studio album Xeeno Blast.

"With the new record, we basically transferred our stage act to the studio," Masefield said. "We performed everything in the same room together with all of the instruments bleeding into one another."

er with all of the instruments bleeding into one another."

Still left wondering exactly what a mandolin-fronted jazz trio sounds like? According to Masefield, the group fails to fall under any "pre-existing style of jazz" as the band has managed to integrate classical, Celtic, tango and even elements of hip-hop into its sound.

ing for the UI's libraries last year, and the UI had to reallocate $350,000 in funds to make up for the shortfall, said Charles Shreeves, the associate director of the UI Libraries.

Shreeves said the reallocated money from tuition/fees this year was adequate to sustain the library but that an increase in funding for new books and journals is needed.

"The hope was the state would be willing to fund the increase requests," he said. "The students are the reason we are trying to acquire information resources."

The inadequate funding recommendation prompted UI Student Government leaders to head to Des Moines today in the hopes of persuading legislators to allocate more funding.

UISG President Lana Zak said the UISG wants to address the issue in front of the legislators before the recommendations are completed.

"What would happen next year (under Vilsack's plan) is that the UI would reap no benefits from the 6.9 percent increase in tuition and student fees," she said — and the university would have to raise tuition/fees by 14 percent next year to achieve what this year's increase was supposed to achieve.

"It is not a crisis situation yet," Zak said. "We want to make sure it doesn't become one. We think it is very important for student government to be involved at the very beginning."

DANCE MARATHON

While the number of registered dancers in this year's event remained roughly the same as last year, the actual number of dancers who participated was slightly lower, said Barrie Jordan, the Dance Marathon director of personal relations and a UI senior.

"We expect some people to drop out after registration every year for personal reasons," she said. "It is pretty impressive, considering there were fewer dancers, but we managed to raise more money."

Dancers who registered had to raise $350 in pledges in order to participate in the actual event, Jordan said.

All proceeds for Dance Marathon go toward various programs to help children with cancer and their families. The programs include holiday gifts, a weekly continental breakfast at the pediatric oncology floor at UI Hospital and Clinics and a hospital pack that includes a variety of items to make hospital stays more comfortable for the families.

Both Clinton and McClure were dancing to benefit 7-year-old Alyssa Turcsak and her family from Davenport, Iowa.

"This is our third year at Dance Marathon and our second year with Alpha Chi Omega," said Ronald Turcsak, Alyssa's father.

Ronald Turcsak said that when he and his family were first approached with the idea of Dance Marathon, they did not want to be involved.

"One of the old directors told us about the event right after the first intense month of Alyssa's illness," he said. "We didn't want to have anything to do with it, but when we got here, we were so glad we came."

Both Ronald Turcsak and his wife, Laura, describe Dance Marathon as a "roller coaster of emotions," making them laugh, cry and dance all in the same weekend.

"Dance Marathon really makes you realize that even in a bad situation, something good can come out of it, and you can meet some really great people," Laura Turcsak said.

This year, 85 families attended the event. The families are as much a part of Dance Marathon as the dancers are; many, such as announcement, Rodham Clinton pledged, "I'll be on your side" as she described her commitment to better schools, better health care, environmentalism and gun control. She also outlined her support for other issues, including working for passage of a comprehensive nuclear test-ban treaty and peace from Northern Ireland to Israel.

She also took pains to describe herself as "a new Democrat" who supports balanced budgets and welfare reform.

Rodham Clinton has often criticized Giuliani's combative style, and while she didn't mention him by name Sunday, she pledged to work against "the divisive politics of revenge and retribution ... I'll work to lift people up, not push them down."

Police break student strike in Mexico

ty," said Interior Secretary Diodoro Carrasco.

Rector Juan Ramon de la Fuente said that, where possible, the university would withdraw criminal complaints filed against students during the strike. In cases where the university lacks the authority to withdraw complaints, Fuente called on prosecutors to offer leniency. He also asked them to drop charges against minors.

Several hundred strikers were already jailed on various charges before Sunday's raid. It was unclear how many would be affected by Fuente's declaration.

The 291-day strike at the 260,000-student National Autonomous University of Mexico began in April 1999 to protest plans to raise annual tuition, which had been just a few cents, to the equivalent of $140.

The university backed down, but a small core of radical students continued to occupy the campus. They pushed a six-point agenda to reverse recent academic reforms and give students more power within the university administration. They also used the strike as a stage to denounce the free-market economy and Mexico's political system.

What little public sympathy that may have existed for the strikers gradually faded as a result of their traffic-clogging and sometimes violent protests, vandalism of university buildings, intolerance of dissenting opinions and intransigence in negotiations. A referendum last month showed students and teachers overwhelmingly sided with the university in the dispute.

But, fearing bloodshed, officials were reluctant to forcibly retake the campus. The strikers were believed to have guns and explosives. No one wanted to risk repeating one of the darkest moments in modern Mexican history: the 1968 massacre of thousands of striking university students.

Sunday's raid came five days after a clash that injured 37 security guards and two days after a negotiating session failed.

Zdanovich. All the passengers released in Moscow were male.

An emergency official in Kazakhstan said there were 20 hijackers, but three passengers who were released in Kazakhstan said eight to 10 hijackers were aboard.

The identity of the hijackers remained unclear. A diplomat familiar with the negotiations in Moscow said the hijackers were seeking the release of a prisoner from the Afghan city of Kandahar.

Afghan media speculated that the hijackers wanted the release of opposition figure Ismail Khan, a former regional governor who has been held since 1997 by Afghanistan's ruling Taliban movement.

But a spokesman for the alliance fighting the Taliban militia denied that the Afghan opposition was responsible for the latest hijacking. "We condemn any act of terrorism," the spokesman, identified only as Abdullah, said.

Ten passengers were also released in Uzbekistan, the hijacked plane's first stop, Abdullah said.

Tiger remains on the prowl of history

Tiger Woods trails at Pebble Beach, in his attempt to win six consecutive PGA Tour events.

By Doug Ferguson
 Associated Press

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. — Wearing tennis shoes instead of spikes, Tiger Woods spent 20 minutes on the practice green after the third round of the Pebble Beach National Pro-Am, the putts bumping along and missing the cup like they had done all day.

Chances of his sixth straight PGA Tour victory might depend more on the clouds that gathered over the Monterey Peninsula late Sunday afternoon.

Nasty weather that makes the old Bing Crosby Clambake the most unpredictable event on tour could be Woods' best hope to leap past five players and catch up to Matt Gogel and Mark Brooks, the 54-hole leaders.

Another postcard day like Sunday, and Woods has his work cut out for him.

"If it's ugly out there, then I'm in great shape," he said after a 4-under 68 that could have been a lot worse if not for a great escape from the edge of a cliff. "But if it's calm, then it's going to be a tough task to make that many birdies to catch them."

On another bizarre day at Pebble Beach — a weather delay under gorgeous sunshine because of fog on another course — Gogel made birdies from all the wrong places for a 5-under 67 that gave him a share of the lead at 12-under 204.

It will be the second time in three weeks that Gogel, the career leader in Nike Tour victories but a rookie on the PGA Tour, will be in the final group.

Schwab's loss forked by fan's heart attack

Top-ranked Doug Schwab was upset Sunday, while his competitor's father suffered a heart attack at the meet.

By Jeremy Schnitker
 The Daily Iowan

Sunday's meet with Northwestern was a heartbreaking day for two of the competitors.

Northwestern's No. 4-ranked Scott Schatzman upset Iowa junior Doug Schwab 3-2, handing the top-ranked, 141-pound Schwab the first collegiate loss of the season.

Despite the fact the Hawkeyes beat Northwestern 41-3, freshman Jessman Smith said the loss put a damper on the afternoon.

"Having Schwab lose was just a heartbreaker," Smith said. "Nobody is more disappointed about it than him. That just kind of puts a gloom over the whole meet."

The meet got even gloomier for Schatzman, who wasn't given much time to savor his victory. Two

Hawks remain unbeaten

The Hawkeyes narrowly defeated No. 5 Oklahoma State Friday and destroyed Northwestern Sunday.

 The Daily Iowan

If anyone had forgotten about Mike Zadick, they remember now.

The 149-pound sophomore, sidelined since mid-January with a sprained ankle, came back with a vengeance Sunday, pinning Northwestern's Nick Scacco in 2:43 to cap Iowa's 41-3 mauling of the Wildcats.

The win finished off a weekend which saw the Hawkeyes confirm their status as the No. 1 team in America. Friday night, Iowa (15-0, 5-0 Big Ten) hung on to defeat No. 5 Oklahoma State, 20-14, in front of a season-high crowd of 10,498.

With his team clinging to a 17-14 lead, 174-pound Gabe McMahan fought off a late rally from OSU's Billy Gabel to clinch the meet for the Hawkeyes. McMahan controlled the match, but tired in the third period and barely held off two shot attempts from Gabel.

"It shouldn't have come down to that," McMahan said. "I went out there and was wrestling well, and it shouldn't have come down to hanging on like that. But that's what wrestling's all about, Iowa-Oklahoma State, coming right down to it."

McMahan had never wrestled a match that decided a dual's outcome. No matter. The only thing that troubled him was his lack of domination.

"It doesn't bother me," McMahan said. "I just wish I would have beat him a little worse."

Sunday's match took a turn for the bizarre. Iowa's No. 1 141-pound Doug Schwab lost his first collegiate match

Gymnasts dismantle Illinois-Chicago twice

Andy Thornton, Brian Hamilton and Shane de Freitas are all nursing injuries following two weekend wins.

By Robert Yarborough
 The Daily Iowan

The fifth-ranked Iowa men's gymnastics team began fighting its worst enemy once again this weekend.

The enemy isn't the opposition. It's the team's own fragility.

The Hawkeyes (3-1,1-1) defeated ninth-ranked Illinois-Chicago 225.75-215.5 Friday night at the Field House before traveling to Chicago to take on the Flames Sunday afternoon. Iowa won the second dual 223.45-221.65.

The wins were tainted by the injuries Iowa gymnasts suffered.

Sophomore Andy Thornton sprained his ankle warming up for competition on Sunday, adding to a list of nagging aches. All-American Shane de Freitas did not compete in Sophomore Don Jackson competes on the pommel horse Friday for the Hawkeyes. He scored a 9.95 on his set to break a school record. Iowa also won the meet by nearly 10 points.

Women tame beam in loss

Progress was evident in the women's gymnastics team's loss to Minnesota Sunday.

By Molly Thomas
 The Daily Iowan

Despite picking up another loss, the Iowa women's gymnastics team has stepped over the hump. The Hawkeyes united as a team and performed their own meet without letting anything step in their way.

Though 12th-ranked Minnesota defeated the Hawkeyes 195.125-193.55 in the main gym of the UI Field House on Sunday, Iowa's performance was a 1.45 improvement over last weekend's meet against Northern Illinois.

"Today, I saw the team that I saw in Arizona," coach Mike Lorenzen said. "We talked a lot this week about coming out and having our meet. They did exactly what we asked them to do in terms of getting focused and

Boilermakers trample emotionless Hawkeyes

Iowa 'laid an egg' in Saturday's 84-58 loss to the Boilermakers. The Hawkeyes tied the program's worst home loss in school history.

By Megan Manfull
 The Daily Iowan

Too bad the Iowa men's basketball team closes their practices. Today would be something to see.

After having Sunday off, the men are returning to Carver-Hawkeye Arena today to try and pinpoint Saturday's problems. And the show is guaranteed to be better than Saturday's.

After the game, players were already saying it was "gonna be a long Monday."

But none were complaining. Not even the most difficult practice could be as embarrassing as the team's 84-58 loss to Purdue.

It was Iowa's worst home loss in Carver-Hawkeye Arena, just two days after dominating No. 15 Kansas on the same floor. The last time the Hawkeyes lost at home by 26 points was in 1911-12, a 38-12 loss to Minnesota.

"We flat-out got whipped," senior guard Ryan Luehrsmann said. "I thought we were ready but we just came out and laid an egg."

The mistakes began from the start. Purdue's formidable defense and speed hurt an emotionless Iowa squad on both ends of the court. It took only seconds for Iowa to collect a foul, but it took them until the 14:45 mark, when Luehrsmann hit a 3-pointer, to put any numbers on the board.

Following the shot, the packed arena erupted, and Iowa made its first — and only — run of the game. Behind Luehrsmann, Dean Oliver and Jacob Jaacks, the Hawkeyes went on a three-minute tear to take the lead, 10-9.

Then, the game got ugly for Iowa. It took only three more minutes, following Iowa's lead-taking lay-up, for Purdue to make a 12-0 run. Iowa trailed 22-10, and would never get closer than 10 points again.

"I didn't see until 10 minutes into it that we had no life," Iowa coach Steve

Road not kind to Hawks, again

Iowa fell to 1-10 away from Carver this season, as Michigan State pulled away late for a 74-64 win.

By Lisa Colonna
The Daily Iowan

Iowa's road woes continued in East Lansing, Mich., Sunday. The Hawkeyes lost to Michigan State, 74-64, to fall to 1-10 away from Iowa City this season.

Despite closing a 16-point Spartan lead to two points in the second half, Iowa (6-15, 3-8 Big Ten) couldn't get over the hump.

"(This was) really a ballgame of us not finding our rhythm until late, and in the Big Ten you can't find your rhythm late," assistant coach Dana Eikenberg said.

Michigan State (16-6, 7-4 Big Ten) opened up a 9-0 lead to start the game. The Spartans extended that lead to 14 points three times in the first half, but the Hawkeyes cut the deficit to eight going into halftime. Michigan State led 34-26 at the break.

Iowa turned things around in the second half, and outscored the Spartans 4-0 to cut the lead to four points. But Michigan State once again opened things up and extended its lead to 16 at its largest margin.

Around the five-minute mark, forward Randi Peterson made three consecutive Iowa field goals to cut the lead to two with 3:50 left in the game.

"We seem not to have a sense of urgency when it comes to offense," Eikenberg said. "When we're down by 14, when our pride's a little wounded, then all of a sudden we're really kicking it in and we become more aggressive."

A technical foul called on guard Mary Berdo with three minutes remaining set off a rash of Spartan free throws, which eventually did in the Hawkeyes.

Lee
Her team picked up 10th road loss

Both teams made 26 baskets. For Iowa, the game was lost at the line. Er, lines. Michigan State went 17-22 from the free-throw line while Iowa went 7-9. The Hawkeyes also shot 28 percent from behind the three-point arch compared to the Spartans' 63 percent.

"(Lindsey) Meder, (Leah) Magner and Berdo, who we rely on the most, need to go 40 percent for the three and they're not," Eikenberg said.

The Spartans shot 50 percent for the game overall, while Iowa went 26-of-74 for 35 percent.

Forward Kristen Rasmussen led the Spartans with 18 points, forward Becky Cummings added 17 and seven rebounds and Max-ann Reese scored 15 points.

Meder led Iowa, scoring her average of 19, Consuegra added 13 and Peterson put up 13 points and pulled down seven rebounds for the Hawkeyes.

The win extended the Spartans' winning streak over Iowa to five games. The Spartans also defeated Iowa at Carver-Hawkeye Arena Jan. 20, 82-77.

Hawkeyes solve Western Michigan

Tyler Cleveland's individual loss was the team's gain as Iowa beat Western Michigan.

By Robert Yarborough
The Daily Iowan

The third time was a charm Sunday for the Iowa men's tennis team.

After two consecutive dual losses to Western Michigan, the Hawkeyes defeated the Broncos 5-2 in the Rec Building on Sunday. The win keeps Iowa (2-0) undefeated in dual meet action this season.

The Hawkeyes got an early boost when Tyler Cleveland returned to the lineup. Cleveland lost to eighth-seeded Oskar Johansson in the consolation round of the National Rolex Tournament on Friday, which gave him time to fly back to Iowa City for the match. He lost to No. 3 seed Brian Vahaly in the first round of the tournament Thursday. The Rolex featured the top 36 players in the nation.

"We were not sure if Tyler was going to play and that made all the difference in the world," Iowa coach Steve Houghton said. "Western Michigan is in our region, so the victory was very important for us."

Iowa got off to a strong start with a 2-1 edge in doubles play and solid play at the top of the lineup. Cleveland and freshman Stuart Waters did not face much of a challenge playing at the No. 1 and No. 3 slots. Cleveland defeated Ryan Tomlinson, 6-3, 6-4, while Waters breezed past Steve Pillon, 6-2, 6-0.

After that point, the Hawkeyes had to fight. Both Jake Wilson and Eric Kozlowski suffered losses, which put the pressure on either senior J.R. Chidley or sophomore Petar Mandic to get a victory to seal the win. Chidley rose to the occasion, with a hard fought 6-4, 7-5 victory over Western Michigan's Kyle Gernhofer.

Mandic closed the meet with a tough 7-6, 3-6, 7-6 victory over Fernando Garcia.

After the competition, Chidley said the victory will help gauge the progress the team has made this season.

"I did not realize my match came down to who won, so I did not have any pressure out there," Chidley said. "They beat Purdue and Michigan State last weekend, so it is a good win for us to see where we are — especially since we have lost to them the past two years."

Iowa will travel to Lawrence, Kan., next weekend to take on the University of Kansas. Houghton said he expects the dual meet to be an even tougher test for the Hawkeyes.

"This team was a step up from Northern Illinois, who we defeated last weekend," Houghton said. "Next weekend, we take a big step up going against Kansas. They are very, very good — so the progression is right where we need to be."

Women's track goes to the Moon

Jennifer Moon was Iowa's weekend standout at Notre Dame's Meyo Invitational.

By Jeremy Schnitker
The Daily Iowan

The Iowa women's track team was led by junior Jennifer Moon as the team participated in the Meyo Invitational at Notre Dame Friday and Saturday.

At the invitational, which was a non-team scored meet, Moon was the only Hawkeye to win an event. She placed first in the shot put with a throw of 43-10.

"It was nice to place first," Moon said. "I wish my distance would have been a little better, though."

Other Hawkeyes who turned in solid performances were sophomore Julie Gallery and junior Kacey Childs. Gallery placed second in the high jump as with a leap of 5-5 and Childs followed Gallery with a fourth place finish in the high jump. Childs jumped 5-3.

Coach James Grant was pleased with his performers in the field events.

"I felt our high jumpers improved a lot," Grant said. "I felt Moon made some great strides against some tough competition."

Grant also cited Colleen Prendergast as a performer who improved over the weekend. According to Grant, her fourth-place time of 25.11 in the 200-meter dash was a personal best.

Overall, Grant said he was happy with his team's performance. "Most importantly, everyone competed hard," Grant said. "That's what I want to see — everybody digging deep."

Iowa will head to Ames this weekend to participate in the Cyclone Invitational. According to Grant, this weekend's meet was good preparation.

Per Hogmo said. "It was a good win. We beat the best team the United States has at the moment."

The Americans are preparing for the Sydney Olympics, and this exhibition was their first game since they signed a new contract with the U.S. Soccer Federation and ended a boycott that had kept them from a tournament in Australia.

Mia Hamm and Kristine Lilly scored for the Americans. The goal was Hamm's 115th of her career, extending her record for international goals by a man or woman.

Tennis gets squashed down South

Florida State got revenge on the women's tennis team to start a bad weekend in Nashville, Tenn.

By Todd Brommelkamp
The Daily Iowan

Following Iowa's 5-4 upset win over Florida State in last year's NCAA Tournament, Iowa women's tennis coach Paul Wardlaw knew the Seminoles would be hungry for a rematch.

Florida State quenched its desire for revenge by defeating the Hawkeyes by the same 5-4 score Saturday afternoon in Nashville, Tenn. No. 35 Iowa also lost to Vanderbilt, 8-1, on Sunday to fall to 1-2 on the season.

Iowa began its toughest road trip of the season by taking on No. 19 Florida State Saturday. The Seminoles wasted little time in making sure the Hawkeyes knew that last year's victory would not be easily repeated.

The Seminoles won the first two matches of the day as Shera Wiegler and Toni Neykova fell to their opponents, 5-7, 3-6, and 4-6, 6-4, 5-7, respectively.

Iowa then tore off three straight victories beginning with senior Natalya Dawaf in the third match. Dawaf defeated FSU's Jessica Balbuena, 6-4, 6-2.

Junior Erica Johnson and freshman Jennifer Sinclair added victories against their opponents to give Iowa momentum. Johnson dispatched Kia Asberg in straight sets, 7-5, 6-4 and Sinclair defeated Ali Weber, 6-2, 4-6, 6-4.

Freshman Steffi Hoch fell to Marina Raic, 4-6, 6-2, 6-4 to round out singles action.

In doubles action Iowa lost two of three to the Seminoles, including a tiebreaker in the final match, allowing Florida State to snatch the victory away from the Hawkeyes.

Wiegler and Neykova teamed to defeat Weber and Balbuena,

8-6, in the first match. Florida State's Aleda Gallovis and Nan Duxin defeated Dawaf and Sinclair, 8-4, which set things up for the final match of the day between Asberg and Raic and Iowa's Johnson and Hoch. Johnson and Hoch battled to a tiebreaker before falling, 9-8.

Things didn't get any easier for the Hawkeyes on Sunday, when they battled No. 16 Vanderbilt. The Commodores pounded the Hawkeyes, cruising to an 8-1 victory.

In singles action, Vanderbilt dismissed every Iowa player in straight sets with the exception of Neykova and Dawaf.

Wiegler and Neykova defeated the seventh-ranked combo of Kristy Blumberg and Kate Burson to pick up Iowa's only victory, 8-3.

Iowa will return to action on Saturday as they host Marquette at the Recreation Building at 11 a.m.

Allen shines at Illini Classic

Jeremy Allen bettered his personal highs at the Carle/Health Alliance Illini Classic Saturday.

By Jeremy Schnitker
The Daily Iowan

Iowa crowned three individual champions at the Carle/Health Alliance Illini Classic Saturday as junior Jeremy Allen won both the weight throw and shot put and freshman Bobby Atkins won the mile.

Allen, who has already provisionally qualified for the NCAA indoor championships, continued to improve on his personal best in the shot put as he threw a season high 60-6. Atkins finished the mile in 4:15.93.

According to teammate Tim Dodge, Allen has been performing great since his coaches have helped him balance both football and track.

"Allen is doing unbelievable. He's the top of the show," Dodge said. "His coaches have everything worked out, things are more organized for Allen. He has an endless amount of talent."

Allen said he felt a boost in his confidence after this weekend.

"I feel confident that I can perform at a decent level and be consistent," Allen said.

Dodge himself turned in a solid performance this weekend by placing third in the 400-meters with a time of 49.09. Dodge was also on the Iowa 4x400-meter relay that placed second with a time of 3:15.50.

The Hawkeyes dominated the 600-meters by placing Russ Peterson second in the race and Scott Williamson third.

With the Cyclone Invitational ahead this weekend and the Big Ten meet coming up, Allen said he hopes he can continue to beat his personal bests.

"Next week I hope I can pop off an even bigger throw," the junior said.

Frazier's daughter calls out Laila Ali

Jacqui Frazier-Lyde challenged Muhammad Ali's daughter after winning her professional debut.

By Ed Schuyler
Associated Press

SCRANTON, Pa. — Jacqui Frazier-Lyde, Smokin' Joe Frazier's daughter, turned pro with a first-round victory Sunday, then threw down the gauntlet to Muhammad Ali's daughter, Laila.

"Laila Ali, you wanted to know if I was a professional fighter, now you see," Frazier-Lyde said after stopping Teala Reese in the first round. "I'll kick your butt Laila Ali. I'm challenging you. Don't make me come and get you."

The 38-year-old Frazier-Lyde, a Philadelphia lawyer and mother of three children, didn't look nearly as impressive as the 21-year-old Ali did when she won her debut by knocking out April Fowler in 31 seconds Oct. 6. Ali has won two more fights since.

Watching Frazier-Lyde's victory was Laila Ali's sister, Khalilah, who lives in Philadelphia and is a friend of Jacqui's.

"They take the history between their fathers serious, and they should," Khalilah said. Joe Frazier and Muhammad Ali had three legendary fights, with Ali winning two of them.

Frazier-Lyde is scheduled to fight March 19 at Mountaineer Race Track and Casino in Chester, W.Va.

U.S. women's soccer loses to Norway

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — The U.S. women's soccer team has a new coach, a new contract and several new players.

What it needed Sunday was some of the old magic.

The Americans gave up two goals in the last 10 minutes and lost 3-2 to Norway, souring the debut of April Heinrichs as coach of the team that captivated the nation last summer by winning the World Cup.

"We hate to lose, but this was the first game of our new system and there were new players and a new coach," Shannon MacMillan said. "This is something to build on. We can play better."

The U.S. team — which lost for the first time in 22 games — played without several members of the 1999 World Cup-winning squad: Michelle Akers, Lorrie Fair, Cindy Parlow and Tisha Venturini.

"The United States has had a tough time over the last months. Don't put too much into this match," Norway coach

St. John's star benched for car swap

St. John's point guard Erick Barkley allegedly traded his car to a family friend for a better one.

By Jim O'Connell
Associated Press

NEW YORK — Erick Barkley of St. John's, one of college basketball's top guards, was suspended for exchanging cars with a family friend, two sources told The Associated Press on Sunday.

St. John's athletic director Ed Manetta Jr. said he expects the NCAA to address Barkley's status on Monday.

The school on Saturday declared its leading scorer ineligible because of a possible NCAA rule violation.

"There is no official investigation," Manetta said. "The committee that handles this interpreted it one way and we had to take action reluctantly."

Barkley traded his late model Jeep Cherokee for a bigger but older Ford Expedition that belongs to a family friend, said a source close to Barkley and another with knowledge of the matter, both speaking on condition of anonymity.

"No money was involved, no payments," the source close to Barkley said.

The exchange could be a violation if the NCAA rules Barkley received preferential treatment because he is an athlete or if this constituted possible payback for when he turns professional.

No one from the NCAA was available for comment Sunday.

"It's their interpretation against our interpretation. They are accusing him of being guilty," Manetta said Saturday. "We have to prove he's innocent, but at this time we've had to suspend him."

Barkley is averaging 16.9 points, 4.1 assists and 2.6 rebounds in 17 games for the Red Storm (14-6).

The sophomore guard sat out Saturday's 59-58 victory over Boston College. The Red Storm's next game is Tuesday night at Providence.

Manetta and coach Mike Jarvis vigorously defended Barkley, who missed two games earlier this season with a knee injury.

Jarvis said Sunday he does not want to get into a war of words with the NCAA. But on Saturday, he was adamant in both his support of Barkley and criticism of the NCAA.

"I hope and pray I see the day when there is no NCAA, and when we are guided by the values system with which we are brought up on, that we fight for every day in this country," he said. "Maybe St. John's will be a leader in that move. Enough is enough. It's time for a change."

"This young man has done absolutely, positively nothing wrong," Jarvis said, using phrases like Communist totalitarianism and the Gestapo in describing the NCAA. "I hope that none of you feel the way I have the last two days, as if someone had come into my house and raped me."

U.S. survives Zimbabwe in Davis Cup

Chris Woodruff rallied the United States from a 2-1 deficit Sunday to escape Zimbabwe with a win.

By Andrew Selesky
Associated Press

Chris Woodruff celebrates after beating Wayne Black, of Zimbabwe, 6-3, 6-7 (2), 6-2, 6-4 to give the U.S. a 3-2 come-from-behind victory Sunday.

HARARE, Zimbabwe — The United States stayed alive in the Davis Cup on Sunday, with Chris Woodruff winning the final match that gave a relieved and tearful John McEnroe a victory in his first test as captain.

Woodruff, facing immense pressure as a Davis Cup rookie, defeated Wayne Black 6-3, 6-7 (2) 6-2, 6-4 to lead the United States to a 3-2 victory in the first round.

After the winning point, Woodruff threw his racket in the air. He and McEnroe ran to each other and embraced. McEnroe briefly wept, and the other American players mobbed the pair.

"I've aged like five years in a week," McEnroe said.

A weakened Andre Agassi — so sick he vomited on the court — did his part earlier in the day, beating the other Black brother — Byron Black — 6-2, 6-3, 7-6 (4) to tie the best-of-5 series.

That set the stage for Woodruff, who looked stiff and shaken in his opening singles loss Friday. But he responded when he had to, just as McEnroe hoped he would.

The victory sent the United States into the second round. The Americans will have far less travel then, playing at home against the Czech Republic in April.

The Americans, in their first Davis Cup matches in Africa, playing for his country, with McEnroe stalking the sideline.

"I'm going to have to put on my thinking cap," McEnroe had said, wondering how he could motivate Woodruff for such a pressurized match.

But even that one sure thing — Agassi's victory on Sunday — did not come easily.

Agassi was distraught with altitude sickness and dehydration. After winning a shot, he vomited into a box behind a line judge's spot.

Later, in the locker room, Agassi suffered severe vomiting and cramping, said a team doctor, George Fareed.

Harare's near 4,000-foot altitude is the highest Agassi has ever competed in. He arrived in Harare last Monday, a day after winning the Australian Open.

He left the court at the City Sports Center following his victory without his trademark bows to the crowd. In the locker room, Agassi was cramping and vomiting severely, the team doctor said.

Agassi watched the end of the second match on TV from his hotel room, where he was recovering.

"I'm so proud of the team and the way they left their hearts on the court," he said.

But for all his debilitated state, Agassi was still able to put his powerful ground strokes to good use in sweeping Zimbabwe's top-ranked player.

He also took some of the steam out of the crowd. What had been a raucous audience on Saturday, when Zimbabwe won doubles in five sets, was more subdued Sunday.

This was Agassi's second singles victory of the series.

Manning recovers from bus trauma

A former Hawkeye continues his recovery at UIHC after being hit by a bus.

By Christoph Trappe
The Daily Iowan

Former Iowa standout wide receiver Ray Manning was listed in fair condition at the UI Hospitals and Clinics Sunday after being hit by a Coralville Transit Bus on Feb. 3.

Manning, 741 Alpine Drive, had just left the Iowa-Kansas basketball game with his wife and was hit while walking east-bound on Newton Road.

Manning, who played football for the Iowa in the late 1960s, lettering from 1968-70, was originally listed in serious condition shortly after the accident; his condition has been upgraded to fair.

The driver of the bus, Pat Bur-rier, could not understand how the accident occurred. "We still can't figure out what happened; he wasn't even the closest one (to the bus)," she said.

Manning was walking on the street, close to the side of the street, Burrier said. The accident occurred near the intersection of Newton Road and Woolfe Avenue.

"There was no sidewalk available at the time," she said. "It was all covered with snow."

UI Department of Public Safety Officer Brian Meyer, who is investigating the report, said no citations have been issued; he declined to comment further.

"I don't know how they could charge me," Burrier said. "I think it was an accident; perhaps he stumbled, or he may have lost his balance."

UI junior Mike Luken, who drove by the scene shortly after the crash occurred, said Manning was lying face down under the right side of the bus.

"He was unconscious," Luken said.

Although Burrier is uncertain how Manning ended up under the bus, she said the group had already walked past the front of the bus.

"The first contact was right behind the front wheels," she said. "I was going away from the group."

Coralville Transit Manager Roger Fisher said Burrier was traveling between 3-5 mph shortly before the accident occurred because she was going through a group of people.

"It doesn't seem like anyone did anything wrong," he said. "Except that people were walking in the street, but no one ever does anything about that."

The accident remains under investigation by Public Safety.

Kyanka steps up for Hawkeyes on beam

HAWKS-GOPHERS

Kyanka suffered a big fall while mounting the beam in warm-ups. Though she was given the option of not competing, she performed on the beam, as well as the floor, where Lorenzen said she did the best routine he'd ever seen her do.

"I was pretty overwhelmed when given the opportunity to compete in some of the other girls' spots," said Kyanka. "We had so much energy in this meet. We all cheered for each other, we were a total team and nothing could stop us."

The Hawkeyes have been working on building mental toughness and the ability to focus in on each other throughout the season. Iowa took a major step toward that task in Sunday's meet.

Senior Julie Matolo placed third in the all-around competition. She attributed her recent success to the confidence and competition experience that the team has helped her build this year.

Senior Courtney Burke agreed that the mentality of the team really improved during this meet and they finally united and worked together to do what they needed to do.

"We didn't have two of our best competitors, but we believed in ourselves," said Burke. "We raised our score by a point and a half. We just have to keep this momentum going. I know we are on the right track."

According to Lorenzen, last weekend's meet really shook Iowa's confidence level, but Sunday's meet got it right back where it should be. Minnesota had to have a great meet in order to beat Iowa, and that is what they did.

"There is no shame in losing to a great team who has just had a great meet," Lorenzen said.

either meet this weekend due to a shoulder injury, and senior Brian Hamilton competed in only three events while recovering from a sprained ankle.

All three gymnasts missed competitions last season due to injuries.

"We really missed Shane de Freitas, especially on rings this weekend," Iowa coach Tom Dunn said. "He has a shoulder inflammation that we are resting this weekend. It is something he has had for years, and when it flares up we just have to calm it down."

Nevertheless, the weekend provided a number of highlights. Sophomore Don Jackson stole the show Friday night, scoring a 9.95 on the pommel horse to set an Iowa record in the event. The Hawkeyes' team total of 38.9 on the event was less than two-tenths from a team record.

"I came in here and felt really good, but I had no idea I was going to do that well," Jackson said. "If I can be at this point by the end of the season, that would be great. I really do not want to peak too early."

Senior Todd Strada took the all-around title (56.025), as well as event titles on rings (9.45) and parallel bars (9.55). Freshmen Cameron Schick and Nathan Blair took the individual titles on floor (9.725) and high bar (9.45), respectively.

On Sunday, Iowa ran into big problems on the parallel bars and high bar, which led to a lower team score than Friday night. The goal for the meet was to give some other gymnasts an opportunity to compete. Therefore, no Hawkeyes took part in the all-around competition.

Schick took the floor title (9.775) once again, while Strada added a victory on the still rings (9.7).

"We started the meet well, but we finished kind of weak on the last few events," Dunn said. "We are going to go back to the gym and work on consistency. We could have done a lot better."

Dolphins hire assistant coach

MIAMI (AP) — The Miami Dolphins have hired Georgia Military Collegé coach Robert Nunn as an assistant defensive line coach.

Nunn worked with newly hired Dolphins defensive coordinator Jim Bates while at Tennessee in 1988-90. Another Miami assistant, Pat Jones, coached Nunn when he was a standout linebacker at Oklahoma State.

"Not in my wildest dreams did I think I'd get a call, but here we are," Nunn said Saturday. "All the guys who know me in coaching were shocked. It's just incredible and I'm blessed."

Nunn, who informed his players of his decision Friday, plans to meet with each one individually this week. Nunn said he will report to Miami full time on Valentine's Day.

Iowa starts tough three-game road trip

IOWA-PURDUE

Alford said. "This is by far my worst loss in nine years of coaching. I blame myself. I thought this team was prepared."

None of Iowa's starters reached their point averages. Jaacks fouled out in the second half, finishing with only five points and five rebounds. Three of those fouls came from trying to guard Purdue senior Brian Cardinal.

Cardinal owned the paint Saturday, finishing with 18 points and seven rebounds. Jaacks' output was his lowest since collecting only four points and picking up five rebounds against Minnesota. Soon after Jaacks left the game, so did most of the fans. The arena was half empty with four minutes remaining — the opposite of the scene just two nights earlier when Iowa fans rushed the floor after the upset.

"We're a tease," Iowa senior Rob Griffin said. "We totally let the 15,500 fans down. I can't even blame (the short turnaround). We just did a lot of things wrong."

No one was complaining about the fans' departure.

"As proud as I've been with their development and improvement, tonight was the first game that was not worth the drive, and the fight for parking and the cold weather," Alford said. "We didn't even give Purdue a workout."

The Hawkeyes shot only 33-percent from the field, and were 10-21 from the free throw line. The Boilermakers shot nearly 70-percent in the second half, and finished the game 58-percent from the field. They were 23-of-29 from the field.

The Hawkeyes were also out-rebounded 42 to 29, capturing only 13 defensive boards in comparison to Purdue's 35.

"We just had too many players that didn't show up," Alford said.

The Hawkeyes have only 10 days before they head to Purdue for a rematch. The Boilermakers will be Iowa's final opponent in a three-game road stretch, which also includes Ohio State and Illinois.

Schatzman's grip too much for Schwab

matches after he beat the No. 1 guy in the country, his father Joel Schatzman, who was in the crowd, suffered a heart attack and was rushed to the hospital.

He was taken to the UIHC, where he is listed in stable condition.

"It's one of those things you don't like to see happen," Iowa coach Jim Zalesky said. "I've known him (Joel Schatzman) for a while, and he's a good man."

While Zalesky displayed remorse for the unfortunate incidents that occurred, he was quick to point out what went wrong in Schwab's match.

"He spent the last period on the mat and never got back to his feet," Zalesky said. "When you don't get back to your feet, you can't use your conditioning. He got stymied on his feet and got beat on the mat."

After a scoreless first period, Schatzman scored a one-point escape early in the second period making the score 1-0. Schwab scored a reversal to take the lead 2-1 early in the third period before Schatzman matched Schwab with a reversal of his own. Schwab fought like an animal to get out of Schatzman's grip but failed, giving the Wildcat the 3-2 win.

"Hopefully he'll learn from it," Zalesky said. "I think he's just been going through the motions lately, and hopefully this will kick him in the butt and get him going again."

Schwab will have a chance to get back at Schatzman at the Big Ten Tournament where Schwab won by one point last year.

Zalesky records first coaching win against Cowboys

of the season, 3-2 to Northwestern's Scott Schatzman. During the final match at 157 pounds, Schatzman's father suffered a heart attack, halting the contest and giving Iowa's T.J. Williams a default win over Drew Pariano.

Other than the unusual caper to Sunday's meet, the weekend was all Iowa.

"Friday, I felt we wrestled OK, not up to our capabilities, and beat a good Oklahoma State team," Iowa coach Jim Zalesky said. "Today, I thought we wrestled even better. It's that time of year when you want to wrestle better each match."

Wes Hand fits that description perfectly. The heavyweight, who was billed as "The Hammer" before Sunday's match, finished with a flurry in both of his weekend matches.

Friday night, with Iowa trailing 6-0, Hand threw Pat Popolizio to the mat for back points with :08 left to clinch a technical fall and give Iowa a jump-start. Popolizio, who only weighs 184 pounds, was filling in for Dave Anderton, who was left in Stillwater by Cowboy coach John Smith for disciplinary reasons.

Sunday, Hand broke open a tight match with Josh Saul for 11 third-period points to score a major decision.

"Ideally you want to do that earlier," Hand said. "I like to wrestle hard from start to finish."

Friday's win was Zalesky's first over the Cowboys since he took over as head coach in 1997. The win expelled a monkey from Zalesky's psyche, as well as that of his team.

"It can be psychological," Zalesky said. "No one on our team has ever beaten Oklahoma State. I asked them who had beaten OSU, and no one raised their hands. Sometimes that gets to you. You're trying to win so much that you don't wrestle like you're capable."

Sunday, former Iowa coach Dan Gable was honored in a way that will last for all time. The team's wrestling room and locker area was renamed The Dan Gable Wrestling Complex. During 21 years as the Iowa coach, Gable led Iowa teams to 15 NCAA titles and 21 Big Ten championships.

Gable took the honor in stride. While his many accomplishments were being read, he waved his hands in a hurry-up motion, as to deflect attention from himself.

"I haven't looked at it yet, but I know it's impressive, and it's going to feel real good," Gable said. "I just am glad that they're doing it up right, to the point that it makes you feel real proud."

Bures rule NHL All-Star Game

■ It was like being back in Russia for Pavel and Valeri Bure on Sunday.

By Alan Robinson
Associated Press

TORONTO — A frozen pond. A pair of brothers. A shared vision. As Pavel Bure shivered alongside Wayne Gretzky, Mario Lemieux and Gordie Howe, filming the memorable scene that opened the NHL All-Star game telecast, he recalled another frozen pond. And a moment frozen in time.

Bure scored three goals, two assisted by little brother Valeri as they recreated their days on a frigid, deserted Russian lake, to lead the World's 9-4 rout of North America in the 50th All-Star game Sunday.

Kevin Frayer/Associated Press

Three goals, two brothers, one special moment in a game that, for a change, was something more than an unexciting shootout. "That's why I got MVP, he set me up a lot," Pavel Bure said, nudging a brother who has been his teammate only several times since their days together with the Red Army team.

During their youth, the Bures sometimes skipped school to play on a frozen lake, much like the one depicted in the ABC film clip that drew a huge ovation inside a jam-packed Air Canada Centre.

In the short film, Gretzky, Lemieux and Howe trek to a remote pond for some pickup hockey, only to discover Bure, Jaromir Jagr, Paul Kariya and Eric Lindros already playing. The retired stars cede the pond to the new generation, who respond by tapping their sticks in the traditional hockey player's show of respect.

Defenses take holiday in Pro Bowl

■ Randy Moss set a Pro Bowl record with nine catches for 212 yards.

By Ben DiPietro
Associated Press

HONOLULU — Randy Moss set records with nine catches for 212 yards, and Mike Alstott scored three touchdowns in the NFC's 51-31 victory over the AFC on Sunday in the highest-scoring Pro Bowl ever.

Arizona's Aeneas Williams and Tampa Bay's Derrick Brooks returned interceptions for touchdowns as the NFC dominated the game from the start in snapping a three-game AFC win streak.

The 82 points broke the record of 64 set in 1980.

Moss, the 6-foot-4 Minnesota star selected the MVP, used his height advantage to outleap the AFC defensive backs, particularly 5-11 Sam Madison of Miami and 6-foot James Hasty of Kansas City.

Moss' last catch was a 25-yard TD reception from Carolina's Steve Beuerlein with 1:05 to play that closed the scoring.

Alstott, the Tampa Bay full-back, scored on runs of 1, 3 and 1 yards. He finished with 13 carries for 67 yards.

Brooks picked off a pass from Jacksonville quarterback Mark Brunell and raced untouched 20 yards for a touchdown to make it 44-24 with 11:12 left.

Jaguars receiver Jimmy Smith caught three touchdown passes, and finished with eight catches for 119 yards. His last score, a 52-yarder from Indianapolis' Peyton Manning, made it 44-31 with 6:30 to play.

Manning had two touchdown passes and two interceptions, including the 62-yard return by Williams that gave the NFC a 7-0 lead less than three minutes into the game.

Williams had an open field after Colts receiver Marvin Harrison fell down, and he raced down the left sideline for the score.

The next time the NFC had the ball, St. Louis quarterback Kurt Warner connected with Moss for 48 yards to put the ball on the AFC 5.

EDITOR WANTED

An aggressive, talented individual is sought as editor of The Daily Iowan, Iowa City's largest newspaper, with an editorial staff of more than 60 young professionals, an editorial budget exceeding $300,000 and circulation of 20,500. The Board of Student Publications incorporated and the publisher of The Daily Iowan will soon interview candidates for the position of editor for the term beginning June 1, 2000 and ending May 31, 2001.

The editor of The Daily Iowan must have strong journalistic abilities, skills in management and a clear sense of editorial responsibility. The board will weigh heavily scholarship, previous news writing and editing experience (including work at The Daily Iowan or another daily newspaper), and proven ability to lead, organize and inspire a staff.

Applicants must be enrolled in a UI undergraduate or graduate degree program. Candidates must submit completed applications and supporting materials by noon, Friday, February 25, 2000.
