Tiger Hawk comes courtesy of sweatshops, group claims

Students Against Sweatshops lobbies the Faculty Council to pressure Mary Sue Coleman on sweatshop apparel.

By Michael Chapman
The Daily Iowan

Members of Students Against Sweatshops lobbied the UI Faculty Council Tuesday to consider a change in the UI's affiliation with the Fair Labor Association, although some UI officials stand by their choice.

The group wants the UI to switch to the clothing label Workers Rights Consortium because the companies that it oversees do not produce clothes under sweatshop conditions — which, the student group claims, is not true of the labor association.

Although one of the elements for UI's current license with the labor association was the assurance that there would be no sweatshop labor of any kind, Ann Rhodes, the UI vice president for university relations, said such a notion is not conceivable and that the labor association is still the best option for the UI.

"The Fair Labor Association is not perfect, but it is moving forward," she said. "It would be unrealistic to assume that we would know the circumstances for every product that is produced."

On the contrary, the labor association is no more than a "coversheet" for a corrupt way of doing business, said Joshua Buck, a UI junior and a member of Students Against Sweatshops.

"(The labor association) set up to stop sweatshop labor, but in reality, it doesn't protect workers," he said. "(The sweatshops) still exist because (the labor association) is controlled by corporations that were the ones flagged on the whole sweatshop issue in the first place."

Students Against Sweatshops is part of a nationwide movement to end sweatshop labor. Buck said the New York Times called it "the most important student movement since the Vietnam War demonstrations."

The initial decision to have the labor association oversee the production of clothing for the UI was made by UI President Mary Sue Coleman

UISG reaps apathy

The lack of Senate applicants perplexes current UISG officials.

By Heather Pavlica
The Daily Iowan

With 54 UI Student Government senators' seats to fill — and only 19 petitions turned in — some UISG members are concerned about the lack of interest.

There is an insufficient number of petitions to warrant an election for next year's UISG senators, which will result in the seats being filled by assignment rather than by a vote, said Megan Bygness, the chairwoman of the Student Election Board.

"Not a lot of people know about student government," said UISG Sen. Amanda Meyer. "They don't know how powerful it is."

The Election Board has extended its petition deadline to March 10 in hopes of gaining more UISG senatorial candidates. The UISG hasn't had a senator's election in several years because of the lack of petitions, Bygness said.

Nikkie Kirkwood, the undergraduate activities senate executive, said the UISG anticipated more senator petitions this year because "so many people expressed interest and picked up applications. The deadlines sneaked on them."

The interest level, thus far, has been low.

The 2000-01 UISG presidential campaign kicks off today with three tickets fighting for a seat. Last year's UISG race had six tickets.

Jacqueline Comito, a UISG graduate senator, said there are usually only two strong contenders in a

McCain, Bush toss jabs on negative race in debate

COLUMBIA, S.C. — George W. Bush and John McCain swapped charges of negative campaigning Tuesday night in a close-quarters debate, their final clash before the pivotal South Carolina primary. "You should be ashamed," the Arizona senator lectured his rival. "Don't compare me with Bill Clinton," Bush snapped back.

The two men and Alan Keyes also clashed over abortion, taxes and campaign financing and found common ground on foreign policy in a 90-minute encounter, but the debate crackedled when the topic turned to

Required grade point average up; education numbers drop

The lower enrollment won't exacerbate Iowa's teacher shortage, one UI official says.

By Jeremy Shapiro
The Daily Iowan

Tightening GPA requirements in the UI College of Education may have led to the 7 percent reduction in enrollment figures, but one school official says it won't have an effect on Iowa's teacher shortage.

Spring 2000 enrollment figures for the school show 74 fewer students were admitted than in spring 1999. A 1997 policy raised the GPA requirement from 2.5 to 2.7 for elementary-education majors, and the requirement for some fields of secondary education was raised as high as 3.0. These increases were efforts to raise the quality of students and provide enough opportunities for them to gain teaching experience at area schools, said Richard Shepardson, an associate dean of the education school.

But, Shepardson said, by raising the admissions requirements, the college isn't furthering the teacher shortage; rather, it is improving the quality of educators it is producing.

"While there is a smaller percentage of students accepted, we're not causing a shortage problem," he said.

The fact remains that Iowa is struggling to keep educators in the state, especially in some secondary fields such as math and science. This is an ongoing issue in the state Department of Education.

"With the shortage going on, I hope it will not compound the problem," said Lane Plugge, the superintendent of Iowa City School District. "They are caught in a difficult position."

But this change in policy is just what the college needs, said UI senior Jason Dutmers. Dutmers is an education major who was unable to get placed as a student teacher in Cedar Rapids, his first choice.

"It's a numbers game," he said. "There are not enough student-teacher opportunities in the area. It's a problem because it is unfortunate to limit the number of people, but they are playing this appropriately."

Wednesday's Trends

Eating through thick & thin

■ Some UI students look to weight-loss fads to slim down.

By Robin Wright
The Daily Iowan

Five months ago, UI freshman Allison Manas decided it was time to shed some pounds. On the recommendation of a family friend, she tried a variation of a low-carbohydrate diet, one that has recently been in the weight-loss limelight.

Manas modified the low-carbohydrate diet to include a banana or granola bar for breakfast. She said the majority of her food intake includes meat, cheese and diet soda.

"I've lost about 10 pounds on the low-carb diet. I've changed it around to include some carbs, but never after noon," she said. "I plan to make this diet part of my regular lifestyle."

The low-carbohydrate diet involves restricting amounts of starchy foods high in carbs such as bread and potatoes and increasing high-protein foods such as meat, cheese and eggs. The rationale behind the diet is that carbohydrates release insulin, which instructs the body to convert calories to fat instead of burning them.

Much of the initial weight loss is water weight, and often participants of the low-carbohydrate diet end up gaining more weight in the end, said Julie Gallagher, a dietitian at Student Health Service.

"I worry about some people on this diet because the body can't handle a diet consisting primarily of high protein all your life," she said. "It also can be hard on your kidneys when you go to such extremes."

Other side effects of the low-carbohydrate diet include bad breath, fatigue, constipation or eventual heart problems because of the low intake of fruits and vegetables.

But Manas said she's experienced positive effects since she's been on the diet. In November, while having routine blood work done by her doctor, she learned that her levels of protein, iron and cholesterol had all improved.

For other students, the thought of energy loss or restricted eating is enough to turn them off from the low-carbohydrate diet.

"I love carbohydrates and could never cut them out. It's the base of all my meals and would take a lot of discipline to stop eating them," said freshman Teresa Bordonaro.

One method of losing weight without skipping meals is to take diet pills, but the potential side effects of the pills can be dangerous.

"I worry that a lot of the over-the-counter drugs are not regulated, and the only education people have about them is what they learn from the seller of the drug," Gallagher said. "There are also stimulants in appetite suppressants."

In addition to over-the-counter pills, TV commercials and magazine ads boast that many prescription drugs can help overweight people control their appetite or process fewer fatty acids.

Despite the prevalence of prescription diet pills such as Meridian, Student Health doctors are certain only about the validity of Orlistat, which blocks the body from absorbing fat.

Gallagher said that, in the past, doctors have required patients to be 30 percent or more over their ideal weight, as determined by the body-mass index formula. In the situation in which a patient would be prescribed a diet aid, he or she would have to meet with a fitness specialist and nutritionist in order to modify her or his lifestyle.

"I think a lot of the reason people are using diet drugs is because they see it as the easiest way to lose weight," said UI senior Sara Luzanaris. "I know someone who had stomach problems, fainting spells and dizziness as a result of over-the-counter diet pills."

Willy the Shake, screwball musical writer

BERLIN (AP) — Kenneth Branagh says his latest twist on Shakespeare was a bold step, especially for his backers.

Branagh

"It was very courageous of them to do an obscure Shakespeare comedy as a film musical," he said Tuesday after Love's Labor's Lost was screened at the Berlinale film festival. Branagh directed and stars in the film. The original text of the play is interwoven with music from Irving Berlin, George Gershwin and Cole Porter. Branagh said the film is a "fluffy, boy-meets-girl story," updated to the 1930s and emulating the screwball Hollywood comedies of the era.

Branagh's co-stars include Alicia Silverstone and Nathan Lane, the only one with musical theater experience.

"I tried not to let them drag me down," Lane joked at a news conference. "No actually, I thought everyone did a terrific job. I didn't feel embarrassed at all."

DiFranco goes for preservation

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — Ani DiFranco's recording company has offered to buy a landmark 130-year-old church in her hometown to use as offices.

Scott Fisher, president of Righteous Babe Records, is on the board of the Preservation Coalition of Erie County. He lobbied Buffalo officials to prevent demolition of the vacant church when stones started to fall from the tower in the mid-1990s.

The city bought Asbury Delaware United Methodist Church for $175,000 last October. Righteous Babe Records plans to make a $5,000 down payment for a six-month option to buy.

Feminist icon Steinem to speak

■ Gloria Steinem, one of the founders of Ms., will participate in activities throughout the day.

By Rupa Shenoy
The Daily Iowan

Nationally recognized feminist/activist Gloria Steinem will speak in the IMU Main Ballroom tonight at 7:30 as the UI Lecture Committee's 10th Distinguished Lecturer this year.

Steinem's lecture, titled "A Future in Which Everyone Matters," will address issues of equality. More than 1,000 people are expected to attend, said Chad Doobay, the Lecture Committee chairman.

The UI Student Government is sponsoring a public performance by the Jennifer Danielson Band at 6:45 p.m. in the IMU Main Lounge, prior to Steinem's lecture.

"We want this to be a unique event," Doobay said. "It should be a celebration of the recognition of women's values and the need to continually pay attention to them."

Steinem co-founded Ms. magazine in 1972 and is currently an editorial consultant for the magazine. She also helped found New York magazine in 1968 and has written several books, including Moving Beyond Words in 1994 and bestseller Revolution and the Word: A Book of Self-Esteem in 1992. She is also a founding member of the National Organization for Women.

"Steinem should be respected for the path she and others made for all women," said Monique DiCarlo, the director of the Women's Resource and Action Center. "I hope she will tap everyone's passion and potential."

DiCarlo will moderate a panel discussion and luncheon titled "Activism in Action: How to Become an Activist" at noon today in the IMU Ohio State Room. The event will be sponsored by the WRAC, Rape Victims Advocacy Program and Women's Campus Coalition.

Steinem will not attend the discussion, but she will be at a question-and-answer session in UI Assistant Professor Anne Donadey's Feminist Theory class this afternoon. She will then talk with people in the women's studies department.

"She is the most famous and vocal feminist leader," Donadey said. "It's appropriate she speaks here because Iowa City has a long history of feminist activism."

This is particularly evident when remembering that the UI was the first U.S. public university to admit both males and females equally, Donadey said.

Before speaking, the Lecture Committee will present a medalion to Steinem for being exceptional in her field, Doobay said.

The lecture is free and open to the public. Doors open at 6:30 p.m., and Doobay advises people to arrive early for good seating.

Council OKs railroad tunnel

■ The tunnel is approved by the council because of "safety issues," while the First Avenue plan ignites concerns.

By Chao Xiong
The Daily Iowan

The Iowa City City Council voted 7-0 to authorize funding for the construction of a pedestrian tunnel under the Iowa Interstate Railroad to increase safety, though plans to extend First Avenue raised safety concerns during Tuesday's meeting.

The tunnel is being constructed just west of Pine Street as a link between the Longfellow and Mark Twain neighborhoods, and residents in the neighborhoods have been working with the city since 1994 to reach a compromise. Approximately 80 percent of the tunnel's cost will be covered by federal funding, while the city will pay for the remaining 20 percent of the costs.

While the tunnel is being constructed for safety reasons, a current city proposal has residents on the Northeast Side concerned about future safety.

An extension of First Avenue will lead to higher volumes and speeds of traffic and endanger the "extremely thick" amount of pedestrian and bicycle traffic in the area, said Rosie Wilhelm, 39 Rita Lyn Court.

She and her husband have had second thoughts about retiring in the area since plans for the extension have been announced, she said.

In other council action, the South Central District Plan was questioned by the Dane family, whose land will be disrupted if certain options of the proposed arterial road are approved.

"The south field is very important in supporting the investment in the animal facilities and to spread out the cost of my machinery," said Jim Dane, who runs his parents' farm. "If the south field could no longer be farmed, my integrated operation would come apart, and I would suffer an immediate economic loss."

The plan would extend an arterial road between Highway 1 and Sycamore Street.

Iowa City resident Jane Driscoll said option N-1.2, the one option of the three located farthest from the Dane farm, would be the least intrusive.

The council also voted 6-1 in favor of raising fees and charges for Parks and Recreation services and programs. Plans for fee increases in the next three years have been tentatively established.

"I believe we should go at the rate inflation increases," said Councilor Steven Kanner, who opposed the increase. "The price is getting out of the reach of low- and moderate-income people."

Rights champion Doderer to retire

■ A longtime Iowa City House representative plans to end her legislative career.

By Christy B. Logan
The Daily Iowan

Rep. Minnette Doderer, D-Iowa City, has announced that she will not seek re-election this fall, ending a 36-year career in the Iowa Legislature in which she heavily advocated women's rights.

Doderer, a 1948 UI graduate, is well-known for her efforts in supporting legislation such as an amendment including women's rights in the Iowa Constitution, which was passed in 1998.

"I can't think of anyone who has opened up more opportunities for women," said Ann Rhodes, the UI vice president of university relations. She's done more for women's rights in Iowa than any other legislator.

Health concerns and a desire to spend time with family were Doderer's reasons for not seeking re-election.

First elected in 1964, Doderer is currently serving her 12th term in the Iowa House. She also served in the Iowa Senate for 10 years and ran for lieutenant governor in 1970 and 1978. She returned to the House in 1980.

Doderer, 76, has been an incredible role model for both women inside the legislature and outside the legislature, said

Monique DiCarlo, the director of the Women's Action and Resource Center.

"I admire her ability to be outspoken and to be a clear advocate for women," she said.

In 1978, Doderer was inducted into the Iowa Women's Hall of Fame.

Rhodes said Doderer was a tireless advocate for equal rights and truly believes in issues she supported.

"She has taken unpopular stands on women's issues and has been a really amazing leader," said Jael Silliman, a UI assistant professor of women's studies.

Doderer was unable to be reached for comment.

Gifts to UI Foundation jump 19%

■ UI Foundation officials say the good economy is one of the reasons behind the increase.

By Andrew T. Dawson
The Daily Iowan

The UI Foundation raised more than $147 million last year in private gifts, a 19.5 percent increase from 1998, due mainly to a good economy and increased staff.

Created in 1956, the foundation is a non-profit organization that is separate from the UI and only exists to serve it, said Alan Swanson, the foundation's senior vice president for development services.

There has not been a big change in fund-raising tactics or strategies to account for the recent increase in donations, said UI Foundation President Michael New. A growing staff has helped foundation employees raise more money through telephone calls and mailings.

"Personal visits, in which staffers travel around the nation meeting with donors, have also helped to raise funds," New said.

Throughout the year, the foundation contacts nearly every alumni, New said. The gifts given are in varying amounts, from the "very, very modest" to multimillion-dollar contributions, he said.

Alumni are contacted more frequently based on their donation history, Swanson said.

"We know people are good prospects because they've donated for years and years," he said. "If someone requests to be taken off the (contact) list we do it ... we're very flexible."

Iowa City attorney Jean Bartley said she has been donating to the foundation nearly every year since 1961. Bartley, a UI law school graduate, said she is contacted by the foundation two to three times a year.

"I don't remember any personal contact, but I do get frequent solicitation letters," she said. "There's a good push towards the end of the year, possibly because people are in that mindset for tax purposes."

Many other donors contact the foundation wanting make a gift, said David Dierks, the foundation's assistant vice president for principal gifts.

"The main benefit of giving to the UI Foundation is intrinsic, feeling that you're helping out a young person," he said.

The current economy has also had an effect on the amount of money coming to the foundation, said Stephen Sanders, the foundation's vice president for development programs.

"The stock market has done well in many fronts, unemployment is low, the whole general outlook has been good," he said. "It's easier for people to make gifts when things are going well."

Almost all of the funds are designated to be spent in certain programs specified by the donors, New said. These programs range from funding certain schools to building improvement projects. Approximately 17 percent of all the funds raised will benefit student financial aid through increasing scholarship endowments, he said.

NATION BRIEF

Let us not to the marriage of true kitsch admit impediments

NEW YORK (AP) — They say money can't buy love, but it can buy a bride. Especially on national television.

Rick Rockwell, a real estate investor and motivational speaker who lives near San Diego, met and married Darva Conger after a two-hour prime-time competition aired on Fox Tuesday night.

"Who Wants to Marry a Multimillionaire," broadcast the night after Valentine's Day, combined elements of "Who Wants to Be a Millionaire," "The Dating Game" and a beauty pageant — and ended with the toss of a bouquet.

And if it doesn't work out, there's always another hit TV show the couple can try: "Divorce Court."

"This is no joke," said actor Jay Thomas, the emcee, at the show's outset.

Fox executive Mike Darnell came up with the idea after watching ABC's "Who Wants to Be a Millionaire" soar in the ratings.

"It struck me that part of the reason it was so successful was wish fulfillment," said Darnell, Fox's executive vice president for alternative programming. "I thought, 'What else do people wish for? They wish for a relationship. They want to get married.

And I thought, 'How could I combine the two?'"

Fox launched a nationwide search for a millionaire who wanted to get married and a woman who would marry him. Thousands of women applied.

Rockwell, who grew up in Pittsburgh and now has a second home in Vancouver, was shrouded in shadows for most of the show before emerging to pick Conger, a Gulf War veteran also from California.

Dorm RAs get their own recognition day

■ Resident assistants will get the credit they deserve with the introduction of a day of recognition.

By Leanna Brundrett
The Daily Iowan

Hillary Rodham Clinton, singer Sheryl Crow and Katie Couric of the "Today" show all share something other than being prominent women: They were all resident assistants during their college years.

Today marks the first International Residence Hall Student Staff Recognition Day, which was created to honor RAs worldwide by Grant Anderson, a master's student in student affairs and hall director at Colorado State University.

The idea for the day of recognition was generated after Anderson saw ResidentAssistant.com, a Web site designed to provide resources for RAs, said Web site creator Dan Oltersdorf, a mentor and resident assistant at Colorado State University.

RAs are faced with many challenges and have many responsibilities that most people are unaware of, Oltersdorf said, ranging from suicide to broken hearts and failing relationships, he said.

"I've definitely learned how to deal with different situations," said Kristina Kidwell, a UI RA. "Being an RA has been a growing experience."

Being an RA offers a student the chance to play a unique role in the beginning of another student's life in college, Oltersdorf said.

"Resident assistants are the first person freshmen and new students usually go to learn about the various things that are offered at the university and on the campus," he said.

Because RAs are responsible for advertising different university events throughout the school year, Karol Dymkowski, a UI RA, said one bonus for her is learning about upcoming events before everyone else.

"Meeting new people is a great benefit," she said. "Another benefit is getting to be a role model for my residents. I have played an active role in many people's lives."

Although the job is rewarding, it is not always the easiest, Oltersdorf said, and it is nice to let RAs know they are appreciated.

"Cards, banners, candy, balloons, even scrapbooks that your floor has put together are great ways to let your RA know that they're appreciated," he said.

Oltersdorf said the recognition day will be printed on Chase's Calendar of Events, a calendar that media outlets use, starting in the year 2001. He hopes the day will become nationally recognized as the word gets out about it.

"I think that this day is a great idea," said UI freshman Melissa Sperflage. "RAs do a lot of work, and I think it's great that they'll get recognized."

Even though there was not a lot of publicity about the event, she said, she will encourage the women on her floor to get their RA a present.

Museum's turn-of-century exhibit will feature jewelry as art

■ The UI Museum of Art will, for the first time, display jewelry as art.

By Anne Kapler
 The Daily Iowan

The "Edwardian Bee Pin" will be one of the many pieces featured in the "Circa 1900" exhibit.

The UI Museum of Art offers an opportunity to travel 100 years into the past through the exhibit "Circa 1900: Art at the Turn of the Century."

The exhibit includes paintings, drawings, prints, sculptures and decorative objects from the museum's permanent collection as well as a unique collection of jewelry loaned by local jeweler Mark Ginsberg of M. C. Ginsberg Objects of Art, 110 E. Washington St.

the UI Museum of Art, jewelry as an art form, as opposed to a craft form, is being shown parallel to Degas and Picassos. That's an uncommon relationship," Ginsberg said.

Jewelry is usually looked upon as a decorative art rather than a fine art, he said. In contrast to paintings or prints, which are made to be looked at, jewelry has been viewed as functional and therefore considered a craft. But, Ginsberg said, jewelry isn't any more or less functional than a painting.

"I think it was considered a craft because you hung it on your body, but what more beautiful canvas can you hang it on?" he said.

The exhibit includes 10 pieces of jewelry with a "phenomenal history," said Pamela Trimpe, the curator of paintings and sculpture at the museum.

"You get a sense of history and real people associated with jewelry that you don't have with other works of art," she said. "There's something very personal that makes the connection to the last century that much more intimate."

Visitors to the museum can use the jewelry to make these connections to various historical figures. Included in the collection is a coronation ring from the last czar of Russia and a bracelet made for the wife of Napoleon the III.

In addition to the jewelry on display with the exhibition, Ginsberg will bring a few special pieces from his collection of antique jewelry to a gallery talk at the museum today at 12:30 p.m.

The gallery talk presents an opportunity to talk with Ginsberg, an estate-jewelry expert, Trimpe said. It's also a unique chance to see jewelry that is normally only available for viewing by appointment.

"We're going to talk about the parallels between jewelry and fine art and why there is an erasure of the two," Ginsberg said.

Pieces to be displayed include several paintings by American impressionist Maurice Prendergast, a print by Edward Degas, and a sculpture, painting and drawing by Pierre Auguste Renoir.

"Circa 1900: Art at the Turn of the Century" will be on display through April 16.

The future is now for UI conspiracy theorists

UI Surveillance Headquarters, 7:42 p.m. A coordinator for the university's libraries has just opened a bag of Fritos, but the phone interrupts her.

A book from the Main Library's reserve room, on two-hour checkout and due by 7:30, has been reported missing. Surveillance officers scramble to align information and codes to track down the kidnapped book. Thanks to a UI purchase of a Global Positioning System, the library item is located within minutes.

"We've got a read on the book, sir ... looks like Sector 36-F."

"That's Hillcrest! Let's go!"

The UI, as reports have it, is set to enter a brave new era in the realm of territorial surveillance. The DI reported on Feb. 11 that the UI, in collaboration with the cities of Coralville and Iowa City, is planning to purchase a Global Positioning System for assistance in locating items on campus.

Not familiar with GPS? Neither am I, really. But what they are, in essence, are technological tools that enable their owners to map terrain from remote locations and locate specific points on said terrain.

According to GPS World Magazine, GPS has been used by the military in battlefield simulation, in Nicaragua to map out rugged terrain and in Antarctica to map, well ... what is there to map out in Antarctica?

Now, as it turns out, the rough and highly volatile landscape of the UI campus might soon be pegged for surveillance. Reasons for this are difficult to surmise. Bill Kapp, the data-systems coordinator for the UI geography department, said, "Its sole function is to locate items geographically."

Items such as what? Trees, shrubs, sidewalks and utilities, apparently. GPS will allow the UI to store information regarding the precise locations of such highly elusive items.

We should all breathe a collective sigh of relief. At long last, we at the UI might have the technology to track down the trees and sidewalks that always seem to slip from our grasp.

"Hey, Jane," one might ask. "Where's Clinton Street?"

"Oh, that's right at the intersection of Sectors 41.4-B and 22-L. You know ... where item 127.8 is."

Got it. And for any conspiracy theorists out there, rest assured — according to Kapp, the UI possesses no intent to use this remarkably precise device to track down, say, any of us. Although, Kapp mentioned, "It can definitely be used to track people or objects in motion."

There will be no "Big Brother"-esque scenarios for us to worry about, authorities assert. And if there were, why would they tell us anyway? It is not too improbable that GPS could be used for less mundane purposes than the pursuit of shrubs.

The UI, for instance, could use a technological boost in tracking down students with unpaid U-bills or overdue library books. Happen to be "sick" on a day when your unfinished term paper is due? Your professor could hunt you down with the clicks of a few buttons.

JESSE AMMERMAN

Think your friend from Iowa State can come down to the next Iowa-ISU football game clad in Cyclone paraphernalia and expect to come out clean? Not with GPS. The UI Athletics Department, with the added assistance of hundreds of drunk and rowdy fans, will expose your acquaintance within a matter of minutes and teach her or him a lesson in team loyalty (and where not to express it).

Those at the UI Department of Public Safety, in collusion with the Iowa City police, can double their productivity on weekend nights. Students feeling the effects of excessive alcohol intake would learn that no tree, alley or abandoned building is safe from the watchful eye of GPS technology. Public intoxication and urination arrests could more than triple with the implementation of GPS by Iowa City's police forces.

Come to think of it, meanwhile, I could probably use a Global Positioning System of my own. For all the times I've lost keys, contact lenses, addresses, phone bills and the like, a GPS would have indeed been quite handy.

Such a tool, and its multitude of potential uses, appears very tantalizing. Which makes me suspicious of the UI's modest approach to the use of a system such as this. Only fools, it seems, would rely on GPS simply to keep an eye on some shrubbery. But then again, this is the UI we're talking about.

Jesse Ammerman is the DI Viewpoints editor.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Noe argument not off the mark

Bad arguments usually end up defeating themselves. Kristen Gast's response on David Noe's AIDS column does just that. It crumbles under rational scrutiny.

She says that his idea of sexual conservatism "assumes a common moral and religious basis the world over, which simply does not exist." She claims that to establish one would "reek of cultural imperialism." But one must then ask, how is she able to deny a common morality and then appeal to it?

Implicit in her argument is that cultural imperialism is morally wrong. In order to declare a culture's actions, such as "imperialism," wrong, an appeal is made to a morality that is above culture. This is exactly what she denied in her argument. If there is no common morality that applies to all cultures, she cannot declare that creating or adhering to a moral code is wrong.

She blames Noe for "spouting a certain brand of morality." Isn't she spouting a certain brand of morality herself? She goes on in her letter to condemn cultural imperialism, points out the injustice of stigmatism, and shows her contempt for religious regurgitation. Whether or not these beliefs are justified is of little importance. She is clearly asking Noe to conform to a different moral code. Again, refer to her belief that a moral code cannot and should not be imposed on others. This is self defeating. It is obvious she simply believes she has a better handle on the "true" moral law.

Yes, she is correct in saying that a conservative sexual ethic won't completely stop the spread of AIDS. Here practicality intercedes. It cannot be refuted, however, that true commitment to sexual restraint will not only lessen the individual's chances for contracting the disease but also decrease the impact the disease has on society.

Flocking birds not crowing about city, UI

A local mob of crows was discovered amassed in trees outside the Old Capitol earlier today crowing. When local crow Eddie was asked what they were crowing about, he replied: "We're just hanging out here, waiting for somebody to throw down their scraps or garbage so we can check for food."

"We don't have much else of a choice," added Karl the crow. "The fields are all bare this time of year, our natural habitat has all been changed. What would you do?"

Crows have been seen hanging out over Iowa City. "We're just following people around watching. They usually congregate around places where there is food and alcohol. Then they leave their garbage all over the city. It's filthy down there but it's worth it, I suppose," commented Larry, an Iowa City crow. "There seem to be an awful lot of them out for this time of the year. Shouldn't they be inside?" he added.

When asked if they would do anything to remove the people, one crow said, "Are you kidding? They're our main source of food right now. We're not going to gang up and take anybody out or hurt anybody. Not just for leaving their trash all out or flushing their sewage out everywhere. We're just a mob of crows."

UI spending in the face of self-proclaimed poverty begs questioning

"There's a hole in daddy's arm where all the money goes ..." John Prine.

The announcement this past week that the UI has to cut approximately $1.6 million from its budget was hardly news. In the sense of being "new," only the specific details qualify. If you aren't a new student, and you've been keeping up with such matters, you know that the UI is always already short of money. You should also know such fiscal austerity only applies to particular aspects of UI spending, which have direct impact on its educational mission.

With $1.5 billion filtering through the system annually, the UI's claims about shortage of funds ring as hollow as those of the Pentagon. One has to look beyond UI rhetorical proclamations toward actual spending practices to get an accurate assessment of where the money goes. Indeed, recent news items indicate UI greenbacks flow uninterrupted to a host of projects.

Along with redundant rhetoric about deficient dollars, the UI also made the news last week for the following:

- The Board of Regents approved the Hawkeye Athletic/Recreation Facilities Complex. Estimated costs for this 141,000-square-foot behemoth tally $37 million. Although this complex will hold past and future UI athletic trophies and have recreational facilities for faculty and students, it has no general-purpose classroom space. "It is an introduction to the UI," remarked architect Rod Kruse, in a quote that succinctly summarizes my views on this project.

- In conjunction with Coralville and Iowa City, the UI will purchase a Global Positioning System. The UI's estimated share of this information technology package is between $30,000 to $35,000, the DI reported on Feb. 11. The UI apparently plans to use this high-tech geographic-mapping system for planning purposes.

However, the applications of this technology are not limited to cartographic employment. "It can definitely be used to track people or objects in motion," Bill Kapp, data-systems coordinator for the UI geography department told the DI. In addition to deciding exactly where to build the next multi-million dollar building, this software could be used more practically to locate truant students, President Coleman when you need her, or the less-than-timely Cambuses. A wise investment indeed.

- The UI Health Care will be the exclusive sponsor of AmericasDoctor.com for most of Iowa and parts of Western Illinois. The amount of cash devoted to this affiliation was undisclosed, ostensibly because of the UI's contractual obligation with this corporation. One can only speculate about how obscene the amount is.

AmericasDoctor.com offers "24-hour/seven-day-a-week, real-time, free-to-consumer physician chat, health information and (a) resource system."

Exactly what UI Health Care will gain from the affiliation is speculative at best, much like so-called e-commerce in general.

On the positive side, such an endeavor could help the millions of Americans who don't have health care with free information on health. However, those folks probably don't have Internet access anyway.

The UI is not only spending money but also bringing it in. Approximately two weeks ago, the first U-bills of the semester went out. And, if this bill seems pretty steep now, just imagine how shocked you'll be over the next two years, when tuition and fees increase by 6.9 percent. Which brings me to my final point.

The perpetual fiscal crisis at the UI is not only a ruse revealed by actual practices, it serves as an effective persuasive pitch for perennial tuition increases.

Whenever the UI administration excessively carps about how it's broke, be assured a tuition hike is in the near future.

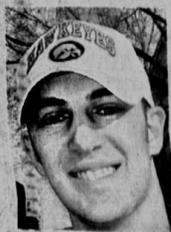

Hitler's minister of propaganda, Joseph Goebbels, was said to claim that a lie repeated often enough becomes the truth. Such an insight undergirds the UI's frenzied claims of budgetary shortfalls. The UI spends more money in a month than most people make in decades. The real question is not about how little money the UI has. It is, How and where is the money allocated and spent?

on June 15, 1999. Coleman will not decide until March whether to stay with the labor association or to switch to another watchdog organization, which could affect all clothing products carrying the Hawkeye logo. The members of Students Against Sweatshops wanted to address the Faculty Council before then, hoping that the council would pressure Coleman into seeing their side, Buck said.

The UI originally signed on with the labor association along with 107 other universities. Since then, many of the major universities have pulled out, said Heidi Sabers, a UI senior and a member of Students Against Sweatshops. Rhodes said the decision was carefully and thoroughly researched.

"At the time we signed on, it was clearly the best option," she said.

Sabers said that full public disclosure was the cornerstone advantage the Workers Rights

Consortium had that the labor association didn't.

"The full public disclosure means the licensees would need to disclose not only factories that have their name on it but all contractors and sub-contractors that are making their products," she said.

In addition, the workers' group independently monitors its shops and gives harsher penalties for violations occurring in those shops, Sabers said.

race. Three tickets were enough for an election, she said.

Some students may be intimidated from running because Andy Stoll, the current UISG vice president, is running for president, she said.

"Name recognition is hard to overcome," Comito said. "Andy is running. How many people are going to go against that?"

The Election Board lowered the campaign-financing cap from $3,000 to $1,500 this year — possibly causing people to be further discouraged from trying to compete against an incumbent.

Larissa Faulkner, a UISG graduate professional senate executive, said it would be ideal to have more candidates in the race to ensure competition.

"It forces the candidate to make a stand on the issues ... to make sure a variety of perspectives are put out for the students to vote on," she said.

UISG senator Elaina Livings said she expected a higher petition turn-out this year because freshmen senators are able to vote on the issues brought to senate. Freshmen senators did not have voting rights in the past — they could only sit in on the issues.

"It surprises me that more people don't want to get more involved with such a powerful body on campus," Livings said. "Maybe people overestimate the time commitment ... but it is what you put in to it."

Bygness said that with a large freshmen and sophomore participation level in UISG this year, some senators may want to take on presidential responsibility at this point.

"Maybe not as many people feel ready for this position," she said. "There is a younger group that may be building up its level of experience."

GPA requirement up; enrollment in ed school drops

EDUCATION

The education school said geography played a major part in the decision to limit size in the school. Because the UI is not in an urban area, there are a limited number of places available for students to practice teaching.

"In the Iowa City and Cedar Rapids areas, we are competing with Northern Iowa, Iowa State University, Coe College, Mount Mercy College and Cornell College, so there is tremendous pressure to immediately place people," Shepardson said.

The number of students in the College of Education is similar to where enrollment was eight years ago, he said, adding that there are plenty of qualified applicants in a variety of elementary and secondary fields.

Shepardson also pointed out that 60 percent of last year's education graduates found teaching jobs in Iowa, reversing the trend of students leaving the area.

negative campaigning.

Bush and McCain generally walk a fine line between aggressive tactics and negative politics in their campaign for the Republican presidential nomination. Their balancing acts were put to the test Tuesday night.

In a contentious debate, the third man on the stage, Keyes, chided the top contenders for their "pointless squabbling."

Squabbling, yes. Pointless, no. McCain and Bush are making strategic strikes, knowing the consequences will be severe if they go too soft or too hard.

McCain seemed to find the balance he sought, defending himself against criticism while striking out at Bush with a smile on his face. He used a stiletto, not a sledgehammer, to dispute the Texas governor's portrayal of his tax policies.

"It's not a Washington mental-ty, it's the grownup mentality," McCain said, suggesting that Bush is not mature enough to be president.

Bush, combative on the heels of his landslide defeat in New Hampshire, spoke with exclamation-point passion.

"You don't know my record!" he told Keyes.

"Let me finish! Let me finish!" he told McCain.

"We need to be a pro-life party!" he told moderator Larry King.

NATION BRIEF

FBI seeks 'coolio,' 'mafiaboy' in hack-attacks

WASHINGTON (AP) — The FBI sought to question several hackers Tuesday in its investigation into last week's attacks against major Web sites, looking for people known by their Internet screen names "coolio," "mafiaboy" and "nachoman."

At a White House meeting on Internet security with technology experts, President Clinton described the electronic attacks as a "source of concern" but shunned a comparison to an "electronic Pearl Harbor."

He said consumers should not feel any "vast sense of insecurity."

"I don't think that the analogous loss was that great," Clinton said. "We ought to leave here with a sense of confidence that this is a challenge that was entirely predictable. It's part of the price of the success of the Internet."

Participants at the meeting said they discussed ways to improve security on the Internet, how to protect powerful "server" computers from hackers who install attack software and use the servers remotely to overwhelm major Web sites.

"It was a failure of security at those companies that allowed that software to sit on their machines," said Terry Milholland, the chief information officer at Electronic Data Systems Corp.

The FBI sought to interview several hackers known by their online nicknames, a Justice Department official said, requesting anonymity. The one who calls himself "coolio" claimed responsibility during the weekend for hacking the Web site of one of the country's most prominent Internet security companies.

IRA calls off Ulster peace talks

■ The move could mean that George Mitchell's 3-month-old peace deal will end in failure.

By Shawn Pogatchnik
Associated Press

BELFAST, Northern Ireland — Stung by the British government's decision to suspend Northern Ireland's power-sharing agreement, the IRA broke off disarmament talks Tuesday, dealing a damaging blow to hopes of resurrecting Northern Ireland's Protestant-Catholic administration.

In a hard-line statement, the IRA also formally withdrew from the table its latest hint that it might someday disarm. The outlawed group accused the British government and the province's major Protestant party, the Ulster Unionists, of pursuing "a military victory," something that "cannot and will not happen."

The development underscored the failure of a 3-month-old deal brokered by American diplomat George Mitchell.

Mitchell had persuaded the Ulster Unionists to establish a four-party coalition alongside the IRA-linked Sinn Fein party. In exchange, the IRA was supposed to begin negotiating the gradual destruction of its hidden weapons stockpiles, a goal of the province's 1998 peace accord.

Instead, Britain suspended the 10-week-old administration's powers on Feb. 11 after confirming that the IRA had made no commitments to the disarmament commission. The commission is charged with securing the IRA's total disarmament by May in line with the Good Friday accord.

The British and Irish governments still intend to hold separate talks today in London with Northern Ireland's key parties. But the odds against returning power soon to the Belfast administration look greater than ever.

Tuesday's IRA statement came after an ill-tempered meeting between Sinn Fein leaders and Peter Mandelson, Britain's secretary of state for Northern Ireland, who took the decision to resume direct control of the province.

Adams said he blamed Mandelson for rejecting the IRA's last offering to the Belfast-based disarmament commission.

Canadian Gen. John de Chastelain, head of the disarmament commission, reported late on Feb. 11 — hours after Mandelson revoked the local Cabinet's powers — that the IRA had for the first time said it might put its weapons "beyond use" in the event of unspecified political progress.

In Tuesday's statement the IRA said it was now "withdrawing all propositions" presented to de Chastelain.

Mandelson, in response, said the IRA's last offering "had real potential, and people will be sad that it could not be worked on and developed in the way that is needed."

Northern Ireland's peace process now finds itself tied up in a familiar knot: The Ulster Unionists won't share power with Sinn Fein unless the IRA disarms, and the IRA won't budge unless the Ulster Unionists drop that condition.

The province's major Catholic party condemned the IRA statement as a rejection of the Good Friday accord.

U.K. to release Pinochet report

■ A three-judge panel rules in favor of the countries seeking the dictator's extradition.

By Mara D. Bellaby
Associated Press

LONDON — The High Court Tuesday ordered Britain to release a medical report assessing Gen. Augusto Pinochet's fitness for trial, saying the rights of countries seeking his extradition outweighed the former dictator's right to privacy.

The three-judge panel said Britain's top law-enforcement official erred in not allowing Spain, Belgium, France and Switzerland to review the medical findings and show them to their own medical experts.

Home Secretary Jack Straw said he would turn over the report immediately. The nations, which must adhere to "strict conditions of confidentiality," now have until Feb. 22 to offer their assessments of the findings.

Straw will issue his final ruling shortly after that, but already has said he believes the medical report shows Pinochet is not mentally fit to stand trial. He says he is inclined to let Pinochet return to Chile rather than face extradition to Spain on charges of torture.

The High Court decision came in response to an appeal by Belgium to see the report, supported by six human-rights groups.

Straw and lawyers for Pinochet had argued that the report should remain sealed to protect the general's right to privacy, but the court disagreed.

"If ever there was a case in which the integrity of the international criminal-justice system needed to be demonstrated, a case calling for the highest standards of fairness and transparency, this is it," said Lord Justice Simon Brown.

An official Chilean government report says 3,197 people died or disappeared after Pinochet ousted elected Marxist President Salvador Allende in 1973.

The 84-year-old general was arrested in October 1998 on a Spanish warrant while recuperating from back surgery in a London hospital. He has diabetes and suffered two small strokes last fall and remains under police guard at a rented mansion outside the capital.

The Spanish government, which has made it clear that it does not support Magistrate Baltasar Garzon's bid to bring Pinochet to trial in Madrid, welcomed the release of the medical reports.

Garzon, whom the judges specifically named as entitled to see the findings, was not immediately available for comment.

A Chilean plane is waiting to take Pinochet home, but even Straw's final extradition ruling can be appealed by the parties to the case.

Spain reiterated Tuesday that it would not contest any decision to release the general. The other nations have not yet indicated what they would do.

Reaction to Tuesday's ruling was mixed in Chile, with Pinochet opponents calling it a step toward justice.

IOWA BASEBALL AND SOFTBALL SEASON PREVIEWS

Hawks hope to return to spotlight

Ranked No. 25 in preseason polls, the Iowa women are looking to finish much higher than that at the end of the year.

By Melinda Mawdsley
The Daily Iowan

Confidence and excitement oozes from the Iowa softball team.

The team is confident that they have the talent to reclaim the Big Ten title.

And they're excited that, finally, it's time to play ball.

Winning is expected at Iowa. Coach Gayle Blevins, entering her 13th season, needs only one win to reach the 500-victory plateau.

In 1999, Blevins directed a team comprised of 11 underclassmen to a 42-26-1 record and a fifth-place Big Ten finish, although it failed to qualify for the NCAA tournament for the first time in five years.

The disappointing ending has served as motivation for the fall and winter workouts.

In order to climb back to the top, the Hawkeyes have to make adjustments.

"We were inconsistent from an offensive standpoint," Blevins said. "We want to make improvements there so we have a more steady output. This year we are trying to solidify our defense. Each day in practice, we are raising our level of play."

The success of Iowa's 2000 campaign will rest on solid pitching, an improved offense and a steady defense.

The Hawkeyes will return two pitchers to the mound. Senior Kelly Zeilstra, a third team All-Big Ten selection, led the conference with a 1.03 ERA. Sophomore Kristi Hanks was also selected to the All-Big Ten third team. She led the conference in strikeouts with 181.

Sophomore Liz Dennis, a starter at third base last season and an All-Big Ten second team infielder, may

Sanders to keep Lion's share of bonus money

Barry Sanders' agent still hopes that the Lions will release the running back and let him play elsewhere.

By Harry Atkins
Associated Press

DETROIT — The Detroit Lions were awarded some — but not all — of the money they wanted returned from retired running back Barry Sanders.

An NFL arbitrator ruled Tuesday that Sanders must pay back $1.833 million, or one-sixth of his $11 million signing bonus. For the Lions to get the remaining three years, they'll have to wait — and Sanders must stay retired.

The Lions wanted Sanders to return $5.5 million of the bonus he got in 1997. He played two years of a six-year contract before startling the NFL by leaving football on the eve of training camp.

"We are pleased the the ruling supports the principle that a signing bonus is contingent upon a player fully performing the services required under the contract agreement," Harold Henderson, the NFL's executive vice-president, said.

Sanders was only 1,458 yards shy of breaking Walter Payton's NFL career record of 16,726 yards.

His agent, David Ware, thinks that more significant than the ruling by arbitrator Sam Kagel was Detroit's signing of running back James Stewart on Monday.

That, Ware said, might prompt the Lions to release Sanders and let him play elsewhere.

Carlson and his bat return to help lead young squad

Iowa's starting lineup will highlight underclassmen in nearly every position.

By Greg Wallace
The Daily Iowan

A wise sage once said the best thing about freshmen was that they eventually become sophomores.

The Iowa baseball team hopes this is true.

After starting six freshmen regularly in 1999 and limping to a 22-34 record and a last-place Big Ten finish, the Hawkeyes hope that those same freshmen take a quantum leap forward in maturity and focus, and garner the program's first winning season since 1996.

The season kicks off this weekend with three games against Belmont University in Nashville, Tenn.

"We had days where we could beat any number of teams in the country, and we had days where we had lack of focus and didn't execute," coach Scott Broghamer said. "Part of that's growing up and maturing. If you're going to be good, it's an everyday thing."

The sophomores will form the core of the team, with only one senior, catcher Toby Humes, and one junior, shortstop Kurt Vitense, cracking the starting nine.

Last season, Iowa was plagued by inconsistencies in fielding and pitching. The Hawkeyes finished fourth in the Big Ten in batting, hitting .315 as a team. But they ranked near the bottom of the conference in both fielding and pitching.

"We hit well enough to win, but we didn't play defense well enough to win," third baseman Ian Mattiace said. "You can't blame pitching, because our defense was not outstanding. And we paid for it."

What2Watch

By Melinda Mawdsley and Greg Wallace

Key players

1. Brad Carlson: A preseason All-Big Ten first team pick, Carlson hit 21 HR's and drove in 71 runs last season. He led the team in every offensive category except for runs and triples last season, and was one homerun away from tying the all-time season mark of 22.

2. Kelly Zeilstra: She ended last season with a broken arm, but led the team in ERA and shutouts. She was also invited to the Canadian teams Olympic tryouts.

3. Ryan Prahm: Shoulder surgery sidelined him last season, but he will be counted upon to give Iowa good starting pitching.

4. Kristen Johnson and Katie Boney: The two freshmen will make an immediate impact. Johnson will start at shortstop, and Boney will start at second.

5. Chad Blackwell: The righty, a transfer from Indian Hills Community College, should be a fixture in the starting rotation. He is the third-best newcomer in the Big Ten.

Did you know?

Blevins

■ MILESTONE: Softball coach Gayle Blevins will be going for her 500th Iowa victory during opening weekend. Blevins won her 800th career game during last year's Big Ten Tournament. She currently has 499 Iowa wins.

■ YOUTH: The baseball team has only two seniors on the squad: catcher Toby Humes and reliever David Kot. The Hawkeyes have 24 freshmen and sophomores combined.

■ FACILITIES: The Iowa softball facilities were dedicated and named after Robert Pearl in the Fall 1999. Pearl was the first black baseball player at Iowa. He threw out the honorary pitch at a dedication ceremony in October.

■ LOSSES: Four baseball players — Jim Magrane, Brian Mitchell, Wes Obermueller, and Matt Sawwell — signed with major league organizations after last season. The softball team lost two key players last season. Senior Tammy Utley and Shawnte Vallejo were two of the best power hitters in Iowa history.

Jackson still owns Bulls' United Center

The fans offered Phil Jackson an immense amount of support, even as his Lakers downed Chicago 88-75.

By Nancy Armour
Associated Press

CHICAGO — The crowd was wonderful, the reception warm and the victory special. Now Phil Jackson will gladly get out of town, thank you very much.

"It's really nice to have played it," Jackson said Tuesday night after his first game at the United Center as an opposing coach.

"But it's good to be over." Chicago fans might disagree, even if Jackson's Lakers did beat the Bulls 88-75.

Like a jilted lover still carrying a torch, fans packed the United Center as if one of the most sordid breakups in NBA history never happened. They gave Jackson a standing ovation when he walked in, cheered him at halftime and gave him more love as he left.

The only thing the fans couldn't give him was the game, and Shaquille O'Neal and Rick Fox took care of that.

"I told Phil that game was for him," said O'Neal, who went an astonishing 11-of-12 from the free throw line and scored a total of 29. "We have an excellent relationship, and I'm real glad he decided to come out of retirement."

Fox scored all 11 of his points in the fourth quarter, including a 3-pointer as part of a game-closing 26-9 run.

SAY WHAT?

There's a definite lack of commitment. There's more than one thing. But I'm not going to elaborate much more than that. It's an academic thing. He's got to commit to academics or he's not going to be a part of this.

— Minnesota basketball coach Dan Monson, on the suspension of 7-foot center Joel Przybilla. Przybilla was suspended indefinitely because of academic reasons. He was averaging 17 points, 11 rebounds in Big Ten play this season.

Hawks Nest success just beginning

In its inaugural season, The Hawks Nest has been making quite a stir. The first organized student section in Carver-Hawkeye Arena's existence has developed into a pretty rowdy place and looks only to get bigger. DI sportswriter Jeremy Schnitzer sat down and talked with Hawks Nest committee member Carrie Wymore about The Nest, student involvement and the dude that wears the wig to all the games.

DI: How did all this get started?
CW: It was already on the minds of the alumni association and Michigan State came to promote the "Izzone" (MSU's students section). Coincidentally we were staying across the hall from the co-president for of the "Izzone" so we kind of borrowed some of their stuff.

DI: Why should students get involved with The Hawks Nest?
CW: It's a great opportunity to cheer on the Hawks and get national recognition. It's a lot of fun to be loud and obnoxious.

DI: Is it true that you have to sign a voucher saying that you can't drink at the games?

CW: We had to sign an agreement, but it wasn't just for alcohol. We have to refrain from really bad language. Alford gave us a stipulation that he wanted the arena to be unfriendly to visiting teams but friendly to families in the stands.

DI: Do you think that takes the fun away from being in a student section?
CW: I don't think so. The people who enjoy The Nest are good fans and have a certain measure of respect. You can be rowdy and be sober.

DI: How far is The Hawks Nest from being up there in the ranks with the "Cameron Craziest" of Duke and the mosh pits at North Carolina?
CW: There's definite potential with the incoming recruits Alford's bringing in. In the next couple of years, the student section could be huge. It will definitely be bigger next year.

DI: Have you been received well by the older fans that attend the games that aren't used to a students section?
CW: I think people really love it. People ask us to wave up at their spouses and stuff. (Joe) Fermino's and (Jacob) Jaacks' moms came over and started talking to that guy that wears the wig and giving him nicknames and stuff.

DI: What's the story with that guy in the wig?
CW: His name is Aaron, he's a junior here. We needed some people to help out and Aaron came up as a big, strong moral guy and he seems to do the job.

DI: When you were deciding the name for the section, what were some other names other than The Hawks Nest brought up?
CW: There was Herky's Herd, The Bird's Nest, Hawkeye Heroes. We couldn't use Alford's Army because that's what they used at SMS, plus they didn't want the military connotation.

Iowa assistant joins Redskins staff
ASHBURN, Va. — The Washington Redskins hired Pat Flaherty on Tuesday as tight ends coach.
The Redskins will be Flaherty's first NFL job. He was the special teams and tight ends coach at Iowa last year and spent the previous six years as a recruiting coordinator at Wake Forest.
Flaherty, 43, has also coached at East Carolina, Rutgers, Penn State and East Stroudsburg. Flaherty was an All-America center at East Stroudsburg.
Iowa signs soccer recruits
Despite the in the midst of a coaching search, Katie Poole and Lindsey May signed national letters of intent to join the women's soccer team.
May, of Dubuque, Iowa, was a member on state champion team from Dubuque Wahlert. May was a defender on the 21-0 squad and garnered first-team all-conference honors in 1997-98. She also played on Iowa's ODP program for three years where she was a teammate of current Hawkeyes Teesa Price and Courtney Wilkerson. May plans on majoring in either business or medicine.

Poole is a native of Troy, Mich. Her Michigan Hawks Club Team were national runners-up and regional champions. She is an all-area and all-league 1998-99 selection. She plans to major in medicine.
"Coach Gabbert and I went looking for defenders and we found two great prospects," said Iowa Interim head coach Ian Rickerby. "Lindsey is terrifically athletic, and Katie has amazing soccer pedigree, background and experience. They should both contribute very early on."
Former Iowa lineman Davis dies
Former Iowa football player Ian Davis, 25, was killed in a car accident early Saturday in Pekin, Ill.
Davis was driving with friend David Seals, when he lost control of the car, which turned over several times before stopping in a field. Both were killed.
The 6-foot-6 Davis was a highly touted recruit coming out of Pekin High in 1992. He lettered for Iowa in 1995.

More shrines to Landry may be in the works
DALLAS — From Tom Landry Elementary School in a Dallas suburb to Tom Landry Stadium in his South Texas hometown, the former Cowboys coach received many lasting tributes during his life.
His death has fans clamoring for more. Since Landry died Saturday of leukemia, the buzz around the area has been about making some grand public gesture to honor his memory.
The most popular, symbolic ideas include changing the name of Texas Stadium to Landry Stadium and/or attaching Landry's name to part of Central Expressway, a state highway that runs through the heart of Dallas.
Tigers not punished for not considering minority manager candidates
DETROIT — The Detroit Tigers escaped punishment for not considering minority candidates when they hired a manager, with commissioner Bud Selig saying Tuesday he was "delighted" with new efforts the team pledged to undertake.

Chevy's hope lies in Earnhardt

The numerous Ford drivers hope there is safety in numbers at the Daytona 500 qualifying race.

By Mike Harris
Associated Press

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. — A horde of Fords vs. Dale Earnhardt's Chevrolet in a Daytona 500 qualifying race. Sounds like a fair fight to Larry McReynolds.

After all, Earnhardt has won one of the two 125-mile qualifying races in each of the past 10 years and has captured 12 of them overall.

McReynolds was Earnhardt's crew chief for part of the 1998 season and remains at Richard Childress Racing in the same role with Mike Skinner.

He is convinced the first of Thursday's 125-milers will be a preview of Sunday's main event.

"It's going to be hard to beat those Fords, especially that 88 and 28," McReynolds said, referring to Robert Yates Racing Taurus of Dale Jarrett and Ricky Rudd, who already have the front row starting spots for the 500.

The qualifying races determine positions 3-30 in the Daytona 500, with the rest of the 43-car field filled by qualifying speeds from time trials and last year's team owner points.

The two rounds of time trials also set the lineups for the qualifying races, with the odd numbers on the final list in the first race and the even numbers in the second. That, for good or bad, place 1998 Daytona winner Earnhardt in the first race with most Jarrett and most of the strongest Fords.

"I think the proof of the pudding will be Thursday's races," said McReynolds, who worked for Yates before moving to the Childress team.

"If we watch Earnhardt in the first 125 and he can't do nothing with those boys, it'll be bad," he said. "He's got all the heavy hitters — Rusty (Wallace), Mark (Martin), Dale Jarrett. The only one he doesn't have in his race is Rudd and we've got him in our race. I think the first 125 is pretty much going to dictate how the rest of the weekend goes."

Fords dominated first-round time trials and the Chevrolet and Pontiac teams insist the Taurus have an aerodynamic advantage. But the first of the week's key races — the 25-lap Bud Shootout for last year's pole winners — was competitive. Jarrett finished on top, with two Fords, two Chevys and one Pontiac in the top five.

Earnhardt was not in that race but was a very interested observer.

"It looks like we'll be able to draft with those guys," said Earnhardt, who is considered a master on fast, high-banked superspeedway ovals like Daytona International Speedway.

Kevin Hamlin, who switched jobs with McReynolds in 1998 and is now Earnhardt's crew chief, said his team will know more on Thursday.

"We'll let the master (Earnhardt) get out there and give us his opinion of what's going on," he said.

Whatever happens Thursday, Hamlin said the Chevrolet teams aren't going to cede anything to the Fords on Sunday.

Lewis free on $1 million bond

The football star had been incarcerated in Atlanta since Super Bowl Sunday.

By Patricia M. Lahay
Associated Press

ATLANTA — Surrounded by deputies, a smiling Ray Lewis left jail on $1 million bond Tuesday, slipped into a car and rode away with his lawyers, mother and fiancée.

"Thank God to be out!" said the Baltimore Ravens' linebacker, who was wearing a brown football jersey with the word "Supreme" on the back.

Lewis is free for the first time since Jan. 31, when he was charged with murdering two men after a Super Bowl party earlier that day.

His lawyer, Ed Garland, said Lewis felt sympathy for the families of the two men who were killed and looked forward to clearing his name.

Lewis' mother sat in the back seat, a copy of "The Inspirational Study Bible" on her lap. Lewis' fiancée sat with two young boys on her lap beside his mother.

Lewis will spend time with his family in Atlanta and then return home to Baltimore today Garland said.

The release on bond was "step one" for Lewis, Garland said.

"The next step is to get him acquitted," he said. "I never expect him to set foot in a jail again, unless it's to do charitable work."

About 90 minutes before Lewis left the jail, another defendant, Reginald Oakley, arrived with his lawyer to surrender. A third suspect, Joseph Sweeting, surrendered Monday.

Lewis, 24, and his two companions are charged with murder in the stabbing deaths of two men during a brawl outside an Atlanta nightclub.

W. A. Harewood/Associated Press
NFL All-Pro Ray Lewis and attorney Edward Garland, right, stand outside the Fulton County Jail in Atlanta, Tuesday.

Lewis, Sweeting, 34, of Miami, and Oakley, 31, of Baltimore, were indicted Friday in the deaths of Richard Lollar, 24, and Jacinth Baker, 21, who were stabbed during the 4 a.m. fight.

Lewis' lawyers say he tried to stop the fight and that he was at least 60 feet away when Lollar and Baker, both of nearby Decatur, were stabbed. Police say Lewis drove away in a limousine and later lied when they tried to determine who was in his entourage.

After hearing from Lewis' family, Baltimore safety Ron Woodson, Tampa Bay defensive end Warren Sapp, Ravens owner Art Modell and other witnesses, Superior Court Judge Doris Downs ruled Monday that Lewis posed no significant risk to flee or to intimidate witnesses.

Lewis posted $200,000 of his bond in cash. Nine bond surety companies in the Atlanta area provided the remaining $800,000, plus $80,000 in surcharges.

The bond requires Lewis to stay in Maryland unless he is traveling to Georgia for court appearances or to meet with his lawyers. It doesn't allow him to visit Florida, where his fiancée and two of his children live.

Downs also said Lewis may not use alcohol or drugs while he is out on bond and that he must be home every night by 9 p.m.

Carter picks up where he left off against New York

TORONTO (AP) — Vince Carter scored 29 points and Tracy McGrady had 18, including 14 in the third quarter, as the Toronto Raptors won their seventh straight home game with a 91-70 win over the New York Knicks on Tuesday night.

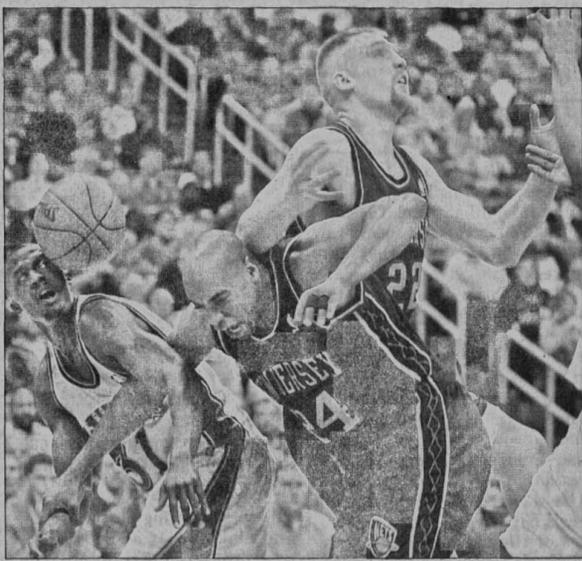

Doug Christie, the Raptors starting point guard for the past three weeks, had 11 assists in the first quarter and 13 overall.

McGrady, wearing a brace on his right arm after bruising it during Saturday's All-Star dunk contest, dominated in the third by scoring 10 straight points at one point. He also had two crowd-pleasing blocks on Allan Houston. Carter, the slam dunk champion, dominated the first quarter by scoring 15 points as the Raptors outscored the Knicks 32-16. Toronto's star forward blew past Latrell Sprewell for two spectacular dunks.

The Raptors led by as many as 18 in the first half, but the Knicks went on a 29-13 run, with Houston scoring 13 points, to pull to 47-45 before the Raptors ended the quarter a 6-0 run.

76ers 95, Hornets 93

PHILADELPHIA — Eddie Jones banked in a 19-foot jumper with 2.2 seconds left to give the Charlotte Hornets a 95-93 victory over the Philadelphia 76ers on Tuesday night.

Atlanta guard Jason Terry battles New Jersey's Scott Burrell and Jim McIlvaine (22) for a loose ball in Atlanta, Tuesday.

Jones, who had 27 points, motioned for his teammates to clear out after Allen Iverson tied it at 93 on a jumper with 23.6 seconds left. Jones drove to the middle and fired a high-arching shot that hit the backboard, the front rim, the backboard again and went in to give the Hornets their fourth straight victory.

Iverson was closely guarded when he passed up a chance at the game-winning shot from 22 feet away and gave the ball to Aaron McKie, whose 20-footer was short at the buzzer.

Heat 107, Clippers 88

MIAMI — Jamal Mashburn scored

26 points to lead the Miami Heat to a 107-88 victory over the reeling Clippers on Tuesday night, handing Los Angeles its seventh straight loss and 17th defeat in 18 games.

The Heat, winners of six of seven overall and a season-best six straight at home, got 20 points, 13 rebounds and eight blocks from Alonzo Mourning.

Cavaliers 92, Spurs 81

CLEVELAND — Lamond Murray scored 27 points, rookie Andre Miller had 20 and the Cleveland Cavaliers began the second half with a shocking 92-81 win over the San Antonio Spurs.

The Cavs, coming off an injury-filled 19-30 start to the season, snapped a four-game losing streak by outthrusting the defending NBA champions.

Hawks 103, Nets 86

ATLANTA — Dikembe Mutombo had 21 points, 13 rebounds and 11 blocked shots for his third career triple-double as the Atlanta Hawks beat the New Jersey Nets 103-86 Tuesday night.

Mutombo blocked Kendall Gill's layup with 4:27 remaining to register his first triple-double with the Hawks. He spent his first five seasons in Denver before coming to Atlanta in 1996.

Mutombo, a three-time NBA defensive player of the year, had 10 points, seven rebounds and five blocks in the first half alone.

Alan Henderson added 21 points and Jim Jackson 20 for Atlanta, which has won seven of its last 10 games.

Cleveland set to face Mo Valley's best man

■ The Iowa men's tennis team takes on Drake in Des Moines tonight.

By Lisa Colonna
The Daily Iowan

Iowa's Tyler Cleveland will face another league's singles champion tonight.

The undefeated Big Ten singles champion will face Drake's Oggie Kolev, Drake's No. 1 player and MVC singles champion.

"Drake has a very good No. 1 guy," Iowa coach Steve Houghton said. "Tyler beat him last year, but he has gotten a lot better since then."

The Iowa men's tennis team (2-1) travels to Des Moines to take on the Drake Bulldogs (2-2) at 6 p.m.

Iowa leads the series with Drake 18-4, and defeated the Bulldogs last spring, 5-2. Although the Hawkeyes have the upper hand in the series, Drake entered the spring season tied for No. 75 in the country. Houghton is expecting a close match.

"They are better than last year and we will be evenly matched," Houghton said. "It is always close with them. They were nationally ranked and are in the top five in their region. It should be a tough match."

Iowa returns to dual play after a 4-3 loss to Kansas last weekend. Jake Wilson and Hunter Skogman notched wins for Iowa at the No. 4 and No. 6 spots, respectively.

Drake will enter tonight's match with back-to-back wins under its belt. The Bulldogs defeated Butler, 4-3, and Creighton, 4-3, after starting the season with consecutive losses. Those two losses knocked the Bulldogs out of the national rankings.

Skogman will fill in for No. 6 singles player Eric Kozlowski against Drake. Kozlowski will sit out due to a foot injury. Houghton has not yet chosen a doubles replacement for Kozlowski, who usually plays No. 2 doubles.

Spartans win battle atop the Big Ten

■ Morris Peterson scored 26 points to lead the No. 6 Spartans in this top 10 clash.

By Harry Atkins
Associated Press

EAST LANSING, Mich. — Morris Peterson has had a lot of big games for Michigan State. Still, he will remember this one.

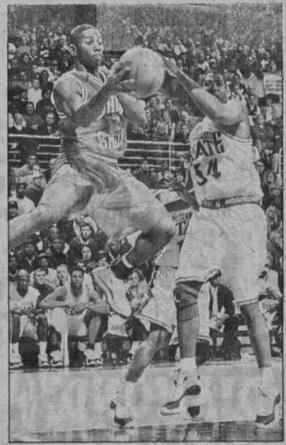

Peterson had 26 points and 11 rebounds as the sixth-ranked Spartans took over sole possession of first place in the Big Ten with an 83-72 payback win over No. 7 Ohio State on Tuesday night.

"This is definitely going to stand out," said Peterson, who scored 20 points in a 78-67 loss at Columbus on Jan. 20. "Years from now, when I'm done playing, I'll still enjoy this one."

This was the 25th straight win at home for the Spartans (19-6, 9-2), who are attempting to win a third straight conference regular season title.

"Nobody had to tell us this was an important game," said Charlie Bell, who scored 23 points for the Spartans. "We were trying to protect home floor, and this was for first place in the Big Ten. I don't think you need too much more motivation than that."

Scoonie Penn scored 30 points

for Ohio State (17-5, 8-3), which turned the ball over 14 times and fell into a tie for second in the conference with Indiana and Purdue.

"They played us tough," said Michael Redd, who added 18 points for the Buckeyes. "They made good decisions off our turnovers. It was tough."

Mateen Cleaves scored 24 points for Michigan State and his one steal gave him 176 for his career, one more than the school record he shared with Scott Skiles.

The Spartans hit 8-of-20 from 3-point range.

Michigan State won the battle of the boards, 43-30, including a 16-8 edge on the offensive end.

The importance of this game was apparent from the opening tip. Both teams made it to the Final Four last season and played like a No. 1 seed in this season's tournament might be at stake.

Ohio State coach Jim O'Brien was ejected by referee Tom O'Neill after picking up his second technical foul 5 1/2 minutes into the second half. Assistant Rick Boyages ran the bench the rest of the way.

"First of all, I did not like the way I was being treated by O'Neill," O'Brien said. "There were no obscenities. He just called a technical on me from across the way."

"On the second one, I was trying to get his attention and he just refused to acknowledge me. He just kept walking away. I tapped him on the shoulder."

Heartland bids farewell to Thomas

Fans said the tribute to the Chiefs linebacker was "the saddest day in Kansas City sports history."

By Doug Tucker
Associated Press

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Thousands of people attended a memorial service for Derrick Thomas Tuesday, singing gospel tributes and remembering how his special life touched them all.

"Here in the heartland of America, he gave us his heart," Kansas City Chiefs general manager Carl Peterson said.

A letter from President Clinton praised Thomas' kindness, character and courage after a Jan. 23 car accident left him paralyzed from the chest down. The nine-time All-Pro linebacker died Feb. 8 when a blood clot in his legs created a pulmonary embolism that killed him.

"Our hearts go out to you. ... Derrick Thomas was a gifted athlete and a fierce competitor," Clinton wrote.

Among the mourners were NFL commissioner Paul Tagliabue, Hall of Fame quarterback Joe Montana, state legislative leaders and Missouri's congressional delegation.

"It will always be 58 degrees at Arrowhead," said former mayor Emanuel Cleaver Jr., referring to Thomas' jersey number, which was displayed in lights on a scoreboard at Kemper Arena.

On Monday, Thomas' open casket sat in Arrowhead Stadium's east end zone, near the spot where he once sacked John Elway and recovered a fumble for a touchdown that clinched a playoff berth.

Bundled against a cold February wind, 22,750 fans walked single file and two-by-two down the stadium steps and into a white tent where a spray of roses sat next to the casket. Thomas' body was dressed in a light gray business suit.

A B-2 Stealth bomber flew over the stadium as a tribute to the son of an Air Force pilot who never returned from Vietnam.

For the flyover, almost everyone who works for the Chiefs — owner Lamar Hunt, general manager Carl Peterson, coaches, secretaries and maintenance men — stood silently on the field facing the tent.

"This is the saddest day in Kansas City sports history," said Steve Warczakoski of Kansas City, Kan. "My favorite football player of all time."

One woman carried her 9-month-old daughter down the steps.

"Someday she'll be able to say she was here," the woman said.

Thomas was just a few weeks past his 33rd birthday when his Chevrolet Suburban skidded on an icy highway Jan. 23 and flipped several times. The crash killed his best friend and left one of the NFL's most feared pass rushers paralyzed from the chest down.

Thomas and his friend were both thrown from the car. A third passenger, the only one in the car wearing his seat belt, walked away with minor injuries.

"I've got Derrick's No. 58 taped to my steering wheel," said Darren Bradley of Raymore, Mo., who took a day off work to pay his respects. "Every time I turn the ignition key I'll think of Derrick and I'll buckle up."

Death penalty sought against Carruth

Prosecutors said special circumstances led them to seek capital punishment.

By Paul Nowell
Associated Press

CHARLOTTE, N.C. — Prosecutors made it official Tuesday: They want the death penalty for Rae Carruth.

With Carruth and his mother in court, the prosecution said special circumstances warrant the death penalty for the former Carolina Panthers player.

However, Assistant District Attorney Gentry Caudill would not say what those circumstances were.

From the outset of the case, the prosecution has said it would seek the death penalty in the murder of Carruth's girlfriend. But the request was finally put before Judge Shirley Fulton on Tuesday.

Carruth did not speak during the brief hearing.

His lawyer, David Rudolf, said Carruth is doing well, given the situation.

"He has faith and he knows he's innocent," he said, joined by Carruth's mother. "And he has faith that the system will work."

Rudolf asked the judge to encourage prosecutors to begin turning over evidence, such as witness statements and telephone records.

"We have not gotten anything, not a single piece of paper," he said outside the courthouse. "It's important that discovery rolls ahead so we can start working on the case."

Caudill said the district attorney's office will provide the material as quickly as possible. The judge scheduled a hearing for April 3 to review progress.

Carruth and three co-defendants are charged with first-degree murder in the drive-by shooting in November.

Cherica Adams, 24, was shot four times in her car while driving on Nov. 16. Soon afterward, she gave birth to son Chancellor, 10 weeks premature. Adams died Dec. 14.

A similar hearing was held Tuesday for two of the other three defendants.

Vikings tell George to shop around

The Vikings told Jeff George that the team cannot afford him right now.

EDEN PRAIRIE, Minn. (AP) — The Minnesota Vikings have told quarterback Jeff George they cannot sign him right now, advising him to instead begin testing the free-agent market.

Leigh Steinberg, George's agent, said coach Dennis Green told him the Vikings are directing their limited salary-cap money toward re-signing punter Mitch Berger.

George led the Vikings to a 9-3 record last season, but seems to be out of the team's long-range plans. Green had not confirmed that sentiment until speaking with Steinberg last week.

"They might come back to us later," Steinberg said, "but (Green) said to go ahead and explore your options. Jeff's preference is still to come back to Minnesota, but we're in the early phases of exploring what potential options there would be."

Green is believed to favor pushing up the timetable for first-round draft choice Daunte Culpepper as the team's starting quarterback for next season.

George finished the season with a 94.2 quarterback rating, but his market value is still unclear. What is clear is that George has expressed more interest in staying with the Vikings than the team has in re-signing him.

"Other teams have called, but we're just not aggressive in it yet," Steinberg said. "We're sort of putting them off, just to make sure. Why? Because you're not going to find that offensive line, those two wide receivers and that running back combination anywhere else."

Meanwhile, the Berger talks have progressed slowly, said agent Tom Mills. The team was expected to offer Berger a new five-year deal, but he is expected to take a free-agency visit to the Kansas City Chiefs.

Pitchers Simas, Florie settle on two-year deals

NEW YORK (AP) — The final week of salary arbitration began with five settlements, including two-year contracts for right-handers Billy Simas and Bryce Florie.

Simas and the Chicago White Sox agreed to a deal worth $3,275,000, while Florie and the Red Sox settled on a contract worth $2.8 million.

Outfielder Mike Cameron, obtained by Seattle last week from Cincinnati in the Ken Griffey Jr. trade, got a one-year contract from the Mariners worth $2,225,000. Also getting one-year deals were Reds outfielder Alex Ochoa ($862,500) and Montreal second baseman Wilton Guerrero ($825,000).

Anaheim pitcher Jason Dickson, who missed all of last season following right shoulder surgery, lost his case today, a day after the hearing in Tampa, Fla.

Dickson will get $375,000, the same salary he had last season, under the decision by arbitrators Alan Symonette, I.B. Helburn and Kenneth Perea. The 26-year-old right-hander had asked for a raise to $600,000.

Two players settled during the week-end. San Francisco left-hander Alan Embree got a $4.55 million, two-year contract, a deal that includes a $400,000 signing bonus, $1.25 million this year and $2.2 million in 2001. The Giants have a $2.4 million option for 2002 with a $300,000 buyout.

Arizona shortstop Andy Fox agreed to a $750,000, one-year contract.

Among the 90 players who filed last month, seven players remain in arbitration, with hearings scheduled on Thursday and Friday. Still remaining are New York Mets right-hander Armando Benitez, Arizona right-hander Brad Clontz, Boston outfielder Carl Everett, Baltimore catcher Charles Johnson, New York Yankees right-hander Mariano Rivera, Texas first baseman Lee Stevens and Cincinnati outfielder Dmitri Young.

Players lead 4-3 in cases decided thus far.

Simas gets $1.35 million this year and $1,925,000 in 2001 under his new deal, up from $1.15 million. Florie gets annual salaries of $1.35 million and $1.45 million, up from $1.3 million.

Rodman ejected in second game

DALLAS (AP) — Dennis Rodman was ejected in the fourth quarter of Tuesday night's game against the Milwaukee Bucks after picking up two quick technical fouls.

Rodman contended that the Bucks should have been called for an illegal defense with 7:13 left in the game. Referee David Jones whistled Rodman for one technical, then Rodman picked up a second one for sitting down on the court in protest.

Rodman refused to leave quickly, repeatedly storming up to Jones and screaming in his face.

As Rodman exited the court, he removed his No. 70 game jersey, ran to the baseline and handed it to a female fan with a child in her lap.

Rodman finished with 16 rebounds, six points and four assists in his second start since signing with Dallas. Rodman had the high rebound game for the Mavericks this season.

Hawks hope to slow Purdue's big man up a much better fight in Lafayette than what we did in Iowa City. If we don't, it'll be worse than just a 26-point loss."

Mackey Arena is one of the toughest places in the Big Ten to play, and the Hawkeyes know they have to be prepared for a challenge.

Mackey may not have a fan dressed up like a donkey with a sign around his neck that said "Jacob Jaacks" like in Champaign, but Iowa knows what is waiting.

"The fans there are some of the more hostile fans in the Big Ten," senior guard Ryan Luehrmann said. "They really love their Boilers there."

Even Alford is expecting a chilly reception.

On his first trip to Indiana, he received a standing ovation in Bloomington. But Purdue is Indiana's biggest rival, so Alford does not expect a repeat performance.

If the Hawkeyes are to give Purdue a game, they know they need to match Purdue's intensity from the get-go. In the Feb. 5 meeting, the Boilermakers pounded the ball inside to Brian Cardinal and held Iowa in check defensively.

Iowa shot just 33 percent from the field and 21 percent from beyond the 3-point arc in their last meeting.

Luehrmann said he would take it upon himself to make sure his team is prepared to play tonight.

"Senior leadership is big in trying to forget about the last loss," Luehrmann said. "If we are not sharp, things can get out of hand quickly. Anytime a team hands it to you like Purdue did last time, you get a little ticked off."

see some action on the mound.

"I feel we'll be up there in the Big Ten," Hanks said. "Our goal is to work hard every day. It's going to take a lot of dedication to get there. Our defense is solid. Our hitting is solid, and our pitchers have a lot of confidence."

As the old saying goes, "defense wins championships," and the Hawkeyes' defense is strong. Freshman Kristin Johnson has stepped in as the starting shortstop. Junior Lisa Rasche will take her quickness and range to third this spring. Blevins called the duo her most athletic left side of the infield since the mid-'90s.

"I'm excited and nervous, mostly excited," said Johnson. "I think the freshmen can make an immediate impact. We need to have the same expectations as the rest of the team. I'm ready."

Behind the plate looms junior catcher Katy Jendrzejewski. She was the primary catcher, making only six errors in 291 chances last season. Blevins is expecting better leadership from her players behind the mask.

Left field is possibly the deepest position on the team, with three experienced players returning. Sophomore Amber Morrow leads the trio as a third team All-Big Ten selection last season.

The anchor of the outfield will undoubtedly be centerfielder Jill Knopf, who established herself in the number eight defensive position last year.

"I'm really excited about this season," Knopf said. "We have a lot of talent all around, even our backups. We have a lot of confidence and that will help us. Hopefully we can get to the big dance."

The pitching and defense look to rival the best. The offense expects to make huge strides on the bases, literally. Blevins likes to utilize "slap style" hitting, and its success depends on speed. Blevins said this Iowa team may be the fastest she's ever coached.

The addition of junior college transfer Lori Leon should help increase the offensive numbers as well. Leon hit .367 and had 132 RBIs for Central Arizona, helping them win last year's junior college national title. Blevins said she expects her to fill the designated hitter slot for the Hawkeyes.

Iowa enters play this week with a No. 25 preseason ranking. Michigan (6) and Michigan State (17) are the only other Big Ten teams ranked, so Iowa is poised to open this millennium on a memorable note.

"We have the talent," Dennis said. "We need to come together, play together and click together. Last year, watching the NCAA selections on TV and seeing you can't go any further, you tell yourself it's not going to happen this year."

Prahm returns to deepen pitching staff

"Because we're going to score eight or nine."

Carlson is ready for the pressure to repeat such an amazing debut. He's even noticed his teammates kicking it up a notch to get him out in practice, and is ready for opposing hurlers to do the same.

"It's fun to think people are going to be challenging me every day," he said. "I've showed that I can play a little bit, and I'm up for the challenge."

The pitching staff took a hit with the loss of Wes Obermueller and Jim Magrane to the major leagues, but added Ryan Prahm, who missed 1999 with a torn labrum in his shoulder. Prahm was one of Iowa's best pitchers as a freshman in 1998, with a 2-0 record. In addition, righty Chad Blackwell, a junior from Indian Hills Community College, was voted the No. 3 newcomer in the Big Ten.

"There's a lot of talent here," Prahm said. "If we play to our potential, it's going to be good enough. I think we'll have no problem doing that."

From his bench viewpoint, Prahm said an attitude injection was needed.

"Outside of (Magrane), the staff lacked confidence," Prahm said. "And the whole team lacked confidence behind them. And it just kind of falls apart, when you're not aggressive."

Iowa hasn't made the Big Ten tournament in a decade. Carlson said his individual accomplishments don't mean much without team success.

"That was almost embarrassing that we weren't winning games last year," he said. "With the talent we have? It's not fun."

Chicagoans hold no grudges with Jackson the Bulls up 67-62 with 8:41 left in the game. Fox hit a layup and a 3 to tie the game. O'Neal followed with five free throws — he didn't miss a free throw until 4:47 left in the fourth — and a baby hook to give Los Angeles a 74-72 lead.

BULLS-LAKERS

Fox drilled the decisive 3-pointer with 4:15 left, giving Los Angeles a 77-72 lead.

"The difference in the game came late," Bulls coach Tim Floyd said. "Rick Fox was the difference."

Kobe Bryant added 21 for the Lakers, who shot just 40 percent from the floor. It was Los Angeles' first victory over the Bulls in Chicago since March 11, 1995.

Ron Artest led the Bulls with 16 points, Toni Kukoc added 14 and Dickey Simpkins and Randy Brown each scored 10.

"It is special for me," Jackson said. "And special for Shaq. He was really glad to help contribute to that win, and I thank him for it."

But this game wasn't about hacking Shaq, no matter how amazing his stats were. This was all about Jackson, as big a part of Chicago's championship run as Michael Jordan and Scottie Pippen.

Chicagoans have a special place in their hearts for the quirky coach, even if they don't always get what he's saying. They supported him when he zoomed off on his Harley-Davidson in June of 1998, weary of the circus that surrounded the Bulls and tired of the sniping with general manager Jerry Krause.

And they backed him when his "retirement" gave way to the Lakers job after only a year. Ticket scalpers were actually working the sidewalks before the game, trying to grab extra tickets. Fans made it sound like the glory days when Jackson walked on the floor, filling the arena with cheers.

"Thank God for all the photographers. I couldn't see any of the people," Jackson said. "It was a warm welcome, a friendly welcome. And the pre-game ceremony, I thank the Bulls for not doing anything extraordinary. Otherwise I might have broke down and cried."

OK, so that last part might not be so sincere. But Jackson was moved as he walked onto the floor, smiling sheepishly before acknowledging the crowd with a wave. He hugged Bulls assistant Bill Cartwright, a player on the first three championship teams, and made his way down to the Lakers bench.
